Israeli Legions Press Drive To Suez Canal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An appeal for an immediate cease-fire went out to the embattled Mideast from the U.N. Security Council Tuesday night as Israeli legions thrust on toward the Suez Canal, claiming destruction or capture of 200 Egyptian tanks in two days of fighting.

Arab nations in turmoil accused the United States and Britain of giving military aid to Israel and broke relations with the two major Western powers. The Iraqi foreign minister scorned the U.N. cease-fire appeal as a "complete surrender to Israel." Israel welcomed it.

As the Mideastern war moved into its third day there were these developments:

● Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the council Israel welcomed the cease-fire appeal but warned the Arabs:

"There will never be a Middle East without an independent and sovereign state of Israel in its midst."

● In Cairo, a mob of Arab demonstrators set the U.S. Embassy on fire early Wednesday and mob scenes were also reported in the port city of Alexandria. The incidents followed an order by President Gamal Abdel Nasser's government for American nationals to leave Egypt. Syria and Algeria quickly followed Egypt's lead in breaking relations with the United States.

● In London, monitors heard the Cairo, Amman and Beirut radios broadcast the U.N. cease-fire appeal early today. The Arab broadcasts did not include any comment.

Tough Battles Fought

The Israeli command said Tuesday that tough, grim battles were fought with Egyptian tanks as Israeli armor slashed toward Suez across the Sinai Peninsula.

In the Holy Land, Jordan reported fighting in Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus, and in Jerusalem, some of it hand to hand and house to house.

The Arabs, claiming only minor gains in the field, were striking back in commerce and diplomacy. They closed the Suez Canal and curtailed oil shipments to Western Europe in addition to wholesale severing of relations with the United States and Britain.

Israel continued to strike hard in the Sinai Peninsula, driving toward the Suez Canal on a 30-mile front. The Israelis seemed to be aiming at the main Egyptian base in Sinai-Bir Gifgafa — between the Israeli border and the canal.

An Israeli Defense Ministry spokesman, Lt. Col. Moshe Pearlman, said Israeli forces had destroyed or captured 50 tanks Monday and 150 Tuesday in Sinai and the Gaza Strip, but described the fighting as "tough and grim and certainly not easy."

The Egyptians counterattacked at several points, but were repulsed, he said. He added that some of the Egyptian armor apparently was withdrawing to higher ground in central Sinai.

On their northern front, the Israelis entered the Jordanian center of Old Jerusalem after a fierce battle, struck deeper into Jordan and reported they had hurled back a Syrian tank and infantry attack inside Israel.

Jordan claimed street fighting raged in both sectors of the Holy City of Jerusalem throughout Tuesday, with Arabs and Israelis often grappling in hand to hand combat.

The Amman radio said fighting broke out along the west bank of the Jordan River at Bethlehem, just south of Jerusalem, and Hebron, 10 miles farther south. The radio claimed Israeli attacks were repulsed with heavy Israeli losses.

Canal Closed

Cairo announced it was closing the Suez Canal, 90 miles east of where the Israelis were fighting along Egypt's Mediterranean coast. Egypt declared Israeli planes might bomb ships in the canal and block the vital waterway.

To justify its diplomatic break with Washington, Egypt charged the U.S. intervention in Israel's behalf had resulted in "fierce fighting on Egyptian territory." The United States vigorously denied intervening.

Syria and Algeria quickly followed Egypt's lead in breaking relations with the United States. Syria ended relations also with Britain, likewise accused by Egypt of intervening. London's denial quickly followed. Egypt broke relations with Britain in 1965 over the Rhodesian issue, a break still in effect.

Cairo, on the second day of the war, made repeated charges that U.S. and British carrier planes had come to the aid of Israel.

One such charge came in a Cairo army communique that said Israel's advance along the coast was due to "large-scale air intervention." It was along this route that Israel drove to the Suez Canal in its war with Egypt in 1956.

British Accused

A later statement by the Egyptian High Command said Canberra bombers bearing British markings had attacked Egyptian positions in the Sinai Desert.

NEWS IN BRIEF

ROME — Americans evacuated from Beirut arrived in Rome Tuesday night and told of busloads of screaming Arabs gathering at the U.S. embassy in Beirut to demonstrate and burn cars. The Americans said police fired shots to break up the rioting.

DES MOINES — The Senate discussed two versions Tuesday of a bill to aid municipalities hit by disasters, then deferred the whole matter for more study. As introduced by the Governmental Subdivisions Committee, the bill would allow the State Executive Council to make loans to such communities without interest or grant them up to half the money they spent in averting effects of a disaster. It would set a ceiling of $100,000 for each grant.

CHAPLEAU, Ont. — Residents began streaming back to their homes Tuesday after 30 minutes of pelting rain Monday afternoon relieved fears this Canadian town might be destroyed by a menacing forest fire.

MIAMI BEACH — Jay Dermer, a 37-year-old lawyer, upset incumbent Elliott Roosevelt Tuesday to win the mayor's post in this tourist center city.

HOUSTON — Tragedy struck America's astronaut corps again Tuesday when Air Force Maj. Edward G. Givens Jr. died after his car plunged into a ditch. Givens, 37, a rookie spaceman, was the seventh U.S. astronaut killed within three years. He was the fourth to die this year.

U.S. Jets Strike Rail Facilities North Of Hanoi

SAIGON — U.S. jet bombers ranged deep into North Vietnam Tuesday and flew through intense anti-aircraft fire to strike at rail yards and bridges north of Hanoi.

In South Vietnam, ground fighting came to a near-standstill early today.

On Tuesday, a single Communist mortar shell set off explosions and flames that killed two Americans, wounded 34 and caused heavy damage at English Field, a forward supply base of the U.S. Air Cavalry Division.

B52 bombers staged two raids on Communist positions in South Vietnam early today. The first strike attacked enemy troops, bunkers and storage areas 38 miles north of Saigon. The second raid struck at Communist infiltration routes 11 miles south west of Plei Djereng near the Cambodian border in the central highlands.

In the air blows over the North Tuesday, U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs flew through heavy anti-aircraft fire to attack the Viet Tri rail yards 31 miles northwest of Hanoi, the U.S. Command said. Pilots reported heavy damage to tracks and hits on a building.

In still another attack on rail facilities, Thunderchiefs struck at the Bac Giang yards 50 miles northeast of Hanoi. Pilots reported they left several fires burning in the area, silenced an anti-aircraft site, and cut up a 1,500-foot section of track.

In the mortar attack on English Field, U.S. officials estimated the loss in ammunition stores alone at $2.5 million. Several helicopters were reported damaged and 400,000 gallons of oil went up in smoke. The field is in coastal Binh Dinh Province, about 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

2,026 To Win Degrees At Commencement Friday

More than 2,000 degrees will be awarded at Commencement exercises Friday — the largest number ever granted by the University at a single commencement.

Pres. Howard R. Bowen will confer an estimated 2,026 degrees, with more than half of them being advanced degrees or degrees from professional colleges. The June degrees will bring the total number awarded by the University since the first one granted in 1858 to 100,802.

The record number of degrees granted at a previous commencement was 1,845, awarded in June, 1950, when veterans from World War II swelled the number of graduates.

George Gallup, founder of the American Institute of Public Opinion (the Gallup Poll), will give the Commencement address and receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at Friday's exercises, which are scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. in the Field House.

Gallup earned three degrees from the University — B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in 1923, 1925, and 1928.

Elizabeth Edson, A4, Storm Lake, who will receive a B.A. degree in psychology with highest distinction, has been designated the representative 100,000th graduate of the University. Miss Edson will receive a certificate of recognition and will speak briefly.

The Commencement Band, under the direction of Director of Bands Frederick C. Ebbs, will open Commencement activities with a concert on the east approach to Old Capitol at 7:30 tonight.

The College of Medicine Convocation will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Union Main Lounge. The College of Dentistry Convocation will take place at the same hour in Macbride Auditorium. The College of Pharmacy Senior Dinner is scheduled for 6:15 p.m. Thursday in the Union Ballroom.

Commissions in the armed forces will be granted in the ROTC Commissioning Ceremony in the Field House at 8 a.m.

U.N. Seeks Cease-Fire As 1st Step To End War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — With the United States and the Soviet Union in agreement, the Security Council called unanimously Tuesday night for an immediate ceasefire as a first step to end the Israeli-Arab war.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, fresh from scenes of fighting in Jerusalem, declared his country welcomed the appeal. But the first Arab reaction was to denounce the cease-fire call as an abject surrender to Israel.

"Israel welcomes the appeal for the cease-fire as formulated in the resolution," Eban declared. "But I must point out that its implementation depends on the absolute and sincere acceptance of the other parties."

And he added this warning to the Arabs: "There will never be a Middle East without an independent and sovereign state of Israel in its midst."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg hailed a resolution approved by all 15 council nations as a first step on a road back toward peace in the Mideast.

But the big question was whether the call could be heeded by Israel and the Arabs.

Arab Reaction Angry

In the first Arab reaction in the council to the resolution, Iraqi Foreign Minister Adnan Pachachi called it "a complete surrender to Israel."

Goldberg denied Arab charges that U.S. planes had flown in support of Israel in the war against the Arabs, and invited U.S. observers to take positions aboard U.S. 6th Fleet carriers in the Mediterranean and report on U.S. plane flights.

Soviet agreement to the cease-fire call was regarded as a retreat made necessary by Israeli victories over the Arabs, but Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko served notice that he regarded the move as only an initial peace measure.

The Russians declared it was "the bounden duty of the council to adopt without any delay" a decision which would compel Israel to withdraw to positions held before the war started on Monday.

In the eyes of the Soviet Union, he added, Israel should be condemned as an aggressor.

Danish Ambassador Hans R. Tabor, the council president for June, introduced the resolution to the council after two days of intense negotiations under his leadership.

Progress Made

But it was not until Goldberg and Fedorenko consented to joint consultations Tuesday that progress was made.

Until Tuesday, the Soviet Union had demanded in the negotiations that any resolution include a request for withdrawals to positions held Sunday, before the war began.

The resolution called upon "all governments concerned, as a first step, to take forthwith all measures for an immediate cease-fire and for cessation of all military activities in the area."

Tabor requested Secretary-General U Thant to dispatch the appeal immediately to all the warring nations in the Mideast.

Taking the floor immediately after removal of the resolution, Goldberg declared: "It is now the duty of all the parties to comply fully and promptly with its provisions. It is also the duty of all members of the United Nations to support the resolution with all the weight of their influence."

Goldberg and Fedorenko had met twice Tuesday in an attempt to end the paralysis which had gripped the 15-nation council for the past two days.

Voters Reject County Shop Proposal

Voters in Johnson County Tuesday turned down a proposal for a bond issue to finance a new county shop. The vote was 1,002 in favor and 1,498 opposed to the bond issue. A 60 per cent majority was required for the issue to pass. The percentage of voters approving the measure was just over 40 per cent.

The voting turnout was low. For comparison, the total turnout in last November's general election was 16,588.

The bond issue proposal would have authorized the sale of $190,000 in bonds to finance a $220,000 garage for storing and servicing road maintenance equipment and supplies. The building would have been located northwest of the County Road on the IOWA Road.

The county shop proposal was first submitted to voters in the November general election last year. It was defeated at that time when only 54.6 per cent of the voters approved it.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors had expressed optimism that the measure would pass. The issue would have authorized a tax levy of not more than a quarter mill to retire the bonds.

2 States Defeat Legislative Bids On Open Housing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Legislative efforts to legalize open housing were defeated in the capitals of two states bordering Iowa Tuesday.

The Iowa Legislature earlier this session adopted an open housing statute which goes into effect July 1.

In Lincoln, Nebraska's legislature killed an open housing bill on a 23-21 vote after its chief sponsor, Sen. Edward Danner of Omaha, rejected proposals he said would water down the measure.

"A half a loaf won't suffice," said Danner, the only Negro member of the legislature.

"For over 100 years we've been taking half a loaf, and it just doesn't satisfy. We're still hungry."

The motion to kill came from Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, whose compromise bill authorizing municipal governing bodies to adopt open housing ordinances at their discretion lost out by a 23-13 vote Monday.

In Springfield, Ill., an attempt to place the question of open housing before a referendum next year was crushed by the House. The vote was 109-40 against it.

Rep. Raymond Kahoun (R-Chicago) said the basic question is "property rights and not civil rights."

Council OKs Appointments Of 3 To City Library Board

By BRAD KIESEY
City Editor

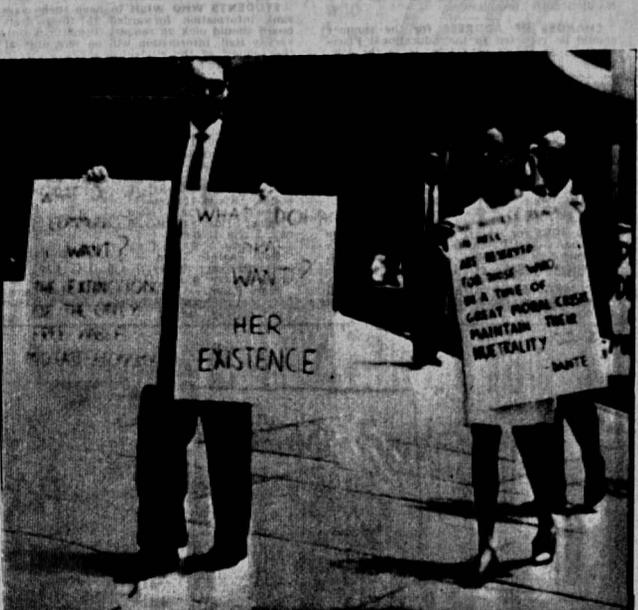

The appointments of three new members of the Iowa City Library Board were approved Tuesday night by the Iowa City council.

The new members are Douglas M. Hieber, head of the circulation department of University Library; A. Kent Braverman, an Iowa City real estate developer, and Thomas H. Summy, an Iowa City retail clothier. They will begin their six-year terms on the nine-member board July 1.

They will replace Karl Kammermeyer, professor and head of the University Department of Chemical Engineering; Mrs. Myrtle K. Aydelotte, professor of nursing at the University; and Mrs. LeRoy Mercer of 621 S. Summit St., whose terms are expiring.

The council also approved a recommendation by City Manager Frank R. Smiley that the one bid received for the Mercer Park swimming pool and bathhouse be rejected. The council voted to direct the architects, Burke and Associates, to redesign the project at its own expense, this time keeping it within the $200,000 limit set by the council in its agreement with the firm.

The council expressed the opinion at an informal meeting Monday that the plan submitted by the architect was vastly "over-designed."

City fathers are on right track

By T. E. LYON
Circulation Manager

The citizenry of Iowa City is indeed fortunate to have such a fair and "equity-prone" city council. Recently this august body declared that since the good citizens of Iowa City and University Heights had paid for their library, they alone should be entitled to its use. This is certainly a step in the right direction.

Carried to its logical extension, this decision could have several and far-reaching effects. It could solve some grave problems for some nonresidents of Iowa City.

In as much as the good citizens of Iowa City have taken from their hard-earned wages to provide the city with other services and conveniences, shouldn't they also come within the realm of this same theory? Certainly.

The citizens have paid good money for the sidewalks of this city (if memory serves correctly, the most recently accepted bid was 54 cents a foot). There's no reason why strangers from the county or Coralville, or Hills or Lone Tree should be allowed to wear them down without paying for them. The curbs and gutters and a sizeable portion of the streets have also been paid for with Iowa Citizens' money. There's no reason why they should be subjected to traffic from "outsiders."

But this is just the beginning of a tremendous source of revenue for the city fathers. Enforcement will be a problem. But certainly the undaunted spirit of the leaders will not be dismayed with this minor problem. They may well have thought of the solution which I propose.

First, to make sure that there would be no cheating, a wall would have to be erected around Iowa City. There, of course, would have to be access to the highways that run through the city because the state fixes the potholes in these highways and we wouldn't want Iowa City unfairly charged. These would be sort of "corridors" through town.

Each Iowa Citizen would be issued a citizen registration card when they pay their taxes which would enable them to use the streets, sidewalks, alleys, streetlights (where they exist) and any other modernizations as they are constructed.

Of course the Iowa City businesses would like to have many outsiders spend their money in the city, so perhaps unlike the library where no money is spent for or no money is accepted from "foreigners," a rental system could be established. For instance: for walking on the sidewalk a fee of 15 cents for the first block and 5 cents a block for each block thereafter; 10 cents for using a street light to see how many blocks you had walked, or maybe 10 cents for each refuse can used.

All of this would bring in tremendous revenues which, as we hinted before, might help solve other problems. For instance, some of the money could be used to build a bigger parking lot (of course the demand for parking lots would be somewhat diminished, but Iowa City has always wanted a big parking lot so that shouldn't make any difference). The money could be used to build a wall high and wide. Then the top of the wall could be leased to Coralville for a sewage treatment plant. Well, it could unless they zoned it multifamily residential.

Of course all of this is predicated on the fact that no Iowa Citizen would ever want friends or "outsiders" to visit. Certainly the city council would have to allow anyone accompanied by a bona fide Iowa Citizen to enjoy the facilities of the city. Sort of like "No One Admitted Without a Chaperone." The chaperone would have to make sure that his guest didn't drag his feet on the sidewalk or drive too heavy a car or stand under the street light too long.

This exception might lead to a tremendous new business enterprise — "Rent-a-Host." Certainly someone with some capital could have a crew of guests at one of the checkpoints at the wall and for a nominal fee you could see the sights of Iowa City. Maybe you could even look at the library. Of course you wouldn't be allowed to read the books because, as anyone knows, the more times that pages are looked at the more the print wears off.

With the increased revenues it might even lower Iowa Citizens' taxes. The revenue could be used where taxes were normally used — for such things as sidewalks, streetlights, libraries, etc. Then all the foreigners would have Iowa Citizens stopped from using the sidewalks, etc. But never fear, the city council will be able to come up with something by that time... unless they are too busy with their "Rent-a-Host" business to figure something out.

U.S. should stay out

Some reasons why the United States should not take sides in the Mideastern war:

● If the United States entered the war, it would surely be on the side of Israel (political reasons demand that President Johnson support this side if he supports any side). Yet, the indications are that Israel actually started the war, although it was Egypt who began the crisis by closing the Gulf of Aqaba to some Israeli shipping. In any event, both sides have contributed — it is not a case of an innocent nation being harassed by a trouble-making nation.

● Israel's Defense Minister Moshe Dayan has announced his confidence in victory and said American troops would not be needed. In other words, the United States hasn't been asked to help.

● The war has a tremendous emotional backing from citizens of both Egypt and Israel. This emotionalism can be traced to hatred, for the most part religious hatred. The Gulf of Aqaba closing is only an attempt at a logical excuse for war.

● The United States' interest in protecting the right of free passage on international waters (as is being threatened by the closing of the Gulf of Aqaba to ships carrying certain items to Israel) is only a matter of principle. The United States has violated this principle (the Cuban blockade), and it, like most other principles, has little value standing alone. Any value it does have comes only when it is practically applied to a specific situation. And practical application of this principle to the Gulf of Aqaba shows that the United States has little real interest in keeping the gulf open to the ships Egypt has blocked.

● The United States is already involved in a war that is expensive in both the money and lives it is costing. To take on another war at this time might have serious domestic repercussions. Americans are too used to the materialistic good life to sacrifice much of it for other people or nations, regardless of the cause. And the amount of the sacrifice that Americans can be forced to make ought to be used to overcome the problems of the world in peaceful ways instead of by war, because, although the peaceful method is as expensive as war in dollars cost, in terms of human suffering, the cost of war greatly exceeds that of peace. Besides, can war possibly solve any of the problems of the world?

● The United Nations would be substantially weakened if the United States by-passed it and took unilateral action in the Mideastern war.

● The Soviet Union would be left with little way out of an obligation to commit itself to Egypt if the United States committed itself to Israel. The danger in such a situation, in which the United States and the Soviet Union were militarily committed on opposite sides, is obvious.

'Today, the world — Tomorrow, ourselves!'

What's the NRA done?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The National Rifle Association (NRA) has not only been fighting against any decent federal gun legislation, but in the latest issue of its magazine, the NRA recommends that citizens arm themselves and join posses and unorganized militia to protect American communities against riots. The NRA editorial goes on to say the police cannot do the job and that it's essential that everyone buy a gun.

As soon as I read the editorial, I rushed down to my friendly local gun shop and told the clerk:

"Give me a .22 pistol so I can protect myself against the forces of evil that are running rife in this country."

"Yes, sir," smiled the clerk. "I see you read the NRA editorial."
"You're darned tootin'," I said. "And as a good American, I want a gun at my side at all times."

While the clerk was looking for the gun, a man in dirty blue denims came in and shouted to another clerk, "Hey, baby, I want to get my hands on a nice, snub-nosed .32 revolver."

"Say, wait a minute," I said nervously. "You people aren't supposed to be buying guns."

"That's how much you know, man. I just read this crazy editorial in the National Rifle Association magazine and it said if I ain't satisfied with my police protection, I should go out and arm myself. Well, that's what I'm doing, baby."

My clerk came back with the .22 revolver. "On second thought," I said, "I think I better look at your .38 Colts. This .22 looks too small for me."

The man in the denims watched me closely and then shouted to his clerk: "Hey, baby, you better forget that .32. I'll look at a .45 pistol instead."
As I inspected the .38, I whispered to my clerk, "You don't have a German Luger for sale, do you?"
The clerk disappeared to look for a Luger

and I said to the man, "You know I'm only buying my gun for self-defense."

"That's all I'm buying mine for, baby. A man got to protect his life and home. It's in the Constitution. Man starts shooting at me, I'll start shooting back. You buying a Luger, man?"

"I'm just looking at it," I said.
"Hey, daddy," he said to the clerk. "I changed my mind about that .45. Let me look at some of your rifles."

I pushed the Luger back at the clerk. "I think I'd rather have a shotgun."

The man stared at me. "You going for a shotgun, baby?"

"I'm not sure," I said. "Unfortunately the NRA didn't say what kind of gun to buy. I guess a shotgun is good as anything if you don't trust your local police force."

"Maybe so, but I like a gun with more fire power. You don't want to have to stop to load and reload when someone's shooting at you all the time." His clerk brought out a .30-30 Springfield.

"No, man. That won't do. You got something in the automatic line? Maybe a carbine?"

My hands were perspiring. I said to my clerk, "On second thought instead of a shotgun, I'd like to see your small light-weight sub-machine guns."

The man looked at the carbine a few minutes. "I don't think it will do the job. You have any 20 millimeter cannons?"

"Never mind the sub-machine gun," I shouted to the clerk. "Let me see what you got in bazookas!"

The other man in the store asked for a flame thrower and when the clerk said he didn't have any, he paid for his 20 millimeter cannon.
I had my bazooka gift-wrapped.
"I'll see you around, baby," the man smiled maliciously as he put the cannon over his shoulder.
"Yeh," I said, stuffing my bazooka shells in a shopping bag. "I'll see you around."

Theme of 'Fahrenheit' is absorbing, barbaric

By NICHOLAS MEYER

"Fahrenheit 451" as a movie is something of a mixed blessing. Some parts are very good and others are quite mediocre. Altogether, Francois Truffaut's adaptation of Ray Bradbury's novel serves it just as it deserves.

In case you were not aware, "Fahrenheit 451" is the temperature at which book paper supposedly bursts into flames, and Ray Bradbury's science-fiction-like novel takes place in a future "Utopia" drawn up vaguely like the paradise of "Brave New World" and "1984." In this wonder world of the future, book reading is forbidden as a danger to the society and a source of unhappiness to its citizens. (Instead they sit at home and watch endless programs of harmless nature on a wall to wall TV). Book reading in this land enjoys the peculiar status of drug addiction now: a disease which has been made illegal by the government. There are firemen in this world, but their job is not to put out fires, but to start them.

Basically, we are concerned with one fireman who turns from burning books to reading them, and the girl who gets him to do it. Truffaut seems to be interested in what he is doing and he uses his camera (as always) economically and with dexterity.

It is the leisurely script, however, with its curious non-reactions and pauses, and Truffaut's direction of it which indicate that he is not familiar enough with English and how to handle actors speaking it. (Truffaut does not speak fluent English, but wrote his screenplay in French from a translation of the novel, which was then translated for him back into English in order that "Fahrenheit 451" would be his first English language film).

Oskar Werner as the fireman and Julie Christie as both his sterile wife and intellectual girl friend never seem to ignite sparks the way one would have expected. They play their scenes in a disjointed, poorly paced fashion — not as demanded by the script, but because Truffaut was not able to HEAR what he was doing. He had little or no trouble with the visual aspect of the film, but misfires more than once when his actors have to talk. Cyril Cusack as the fire chief looked right, but his lines, too, suffered from having been written in too many languages. Truffaut's best handling of actors was at the film's end, when our hero and heroine join the "outcasts," the book people, fugitive intellectuals, each of whom has memorized a book by heart in order to preserve its text for the day when literature and thought will again be respectable and in demand.

Quite good, also, is Bernard Hermann's musical score, which is appropriately terrifying when accompanying such horrifying scenes as piles of books going up in flames.

or a gleaming red fire engine on its way to destroy still more. The theme of the movie, in fact, is what is absorbing and overpowering. It falters more than once in its execution, but still emerges as strong stuff because the idea of Bradbury-Truffaut comes through intact: bookburning is barbaric. The worst thing about the movie is the credits, which, a la Orson Welles, are spoken. "Fahrenheit 451" is a movie worth seeing, if only because it is out to remind us and warn us anew that the destruction of literature will mark the end of civilization, wherever and whenever it occurs.

Couple has praise for Prof. Alston

To the Editor:

Since my husband is too busy with finals to write a letter to the editor, I want, with his consent, to be his spokesman on behalf of Prof. Alston, whom my husband praises warmly. He speaks of him as being a professor who cares for his students rather than fulfilling ambitious plans of writing voluminous books which would leave him no time for students.

Iowa Runners Ranked In U.S. Track Field

High national ranking in performances have been earned by three University of Iowa athletes and two relay teams, according to the U.S. Track and Field Federation report.

Currently, the mile relay team has the sixth best time of 3:07.4; Jon Reimer is fourth in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles with 50.7; Mike Mondane is tied for eighth in the 440-yard dash with 46.4; Rollie Kitt ranks 11th in the steeplechase with 9:02.9; and the four mile relay team is 12th with 17:00.4.

Coach Assails Ruling

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — University of Wisconsin track Coach Charles Walter says a ruling that dropped his team one place in the recent Big 10 meet was "contrary to an agreement among the coaches."

The Big 10 reported Saturday a check of photographs gave Larry Midlam of Michigan fifth place in the 120-yard high hurdles over Jon Reimer of Iowa. The added point gave Michigan 41 points to push it ahead of Wisconsin in the final standings.

GOPHERS SIGN NUNESS—

FORT DODGE (AP) — Al Nuness, ace basketball player for Fort Dodge Junior College, said Tuesday he has signed a tender with the University of Minnesota.

Leading scorer for Fort Dodge the last two seasons, the 6-3 guard said the University of Iowa was a close second choice.

New Hockey Clubs Nab Vet Goalies

MONTREAL (AP) — Goalies Terry Sawchuk, Glenn Hall and Charlie Hodge were among a handful of veteran stars claimed by six new clubs Tuesday in the National Hockey League's first expansion draft.

The expansion teams — California, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Minnesota — cut deeply into the old clubs' stock of fringe players and minor league talent. But, aside from Sawchuk, Hall and Hodge, there were few big names selected.

Sawchuk To Kings
 The Los Angeles Kings tabbed Sawchuk, the NHL's 37-year-old shutout king, as the No. 1 choice in the separate goalie draft, during which each of the newcomers acquired two goaltenders.

Hall, a 13-year NHL standout who shared the 1966-67 Vezina Trophy with Chicago teammate Denis DeJordy, went to the St. Louis Blues, who selected third after Philadelphia grabbed young Zernie Parent of Boston. Hodge, a former Vezina winner with the Montreal Canadiens, was chosen by the California Seals.

But several aging veterans, mentioned prominently in pre-draft speculation, either wound up on their clubs' protected lists or were ignored by the selectors.

Red Kelly of Toronto, reportedly in line for the Los Angeles coaching job, was not on the Leafs' original list of 12 players, including a goalie, who were protected from the start. But the 39-year-old Kelly went back to Toronto's roster after no one claimed him during the first 10 rounds.

Leafs Protect
 The Leafs' 1966-67 Stanley Cup champions, also protected 42-year-old Johnny Bower at the start and added 41-year-old Allan Stanley and 36-year-old George Armstrong to their safe list later in the all-day session.

San Francisco picked up two Toronto defencemen — Bobby Baun and Kent Douglas — in the early rounds. The Seals went for six former Leafs and also drew heavily from the Montreal system. Bert Olmstead, the Seals' coach, played for both the Canadiens and Maple Leafs.

Dave Balon, a reserve for the past two years at Montreal, was the surprise first pick in the draft of forwards and defencemen, going to the Minnesota North Stars.

Other draftees with recent NHL backgrounds included centers Earl Ingarfield of New York and Bill Hay of Chicago; wingmen Jim Roberts of Montreal and Wayne Connelly of Boston, and defencemen Jean-Guy Talbot of Montreal, Al MacNeil of New York and Leo Boivin of Detroit.

Pittsburgh picked Ingarfield, MacNeil and Boivin; St. Louis drafted Roberts and Hay, and Minnesota took Connelly and Talbot.

Yanks Choose 1st, Get Prep Slugger In Baseball Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees drafted Ronald Mark Blomberg, a powerful 18-year-old high school first baseman from Atlanta, as the No. 1 pick Tuesday in baseball's annual selection of amateur players.

Balked in their efforts to make a deal with Baltimore for big Mike Epstein, who was traded to Washington, the Yanks dug into the free agent field for a schoolboy who batted .472 and hit a 406-foot homer out of Atlanta Stadium.

The Yanks had the first pick by virtue of their 10th place finish in the American League last season. The clubs selected in inverse order of their finish, alternating by leagues.

The Chicago Cubs, who were last in the National, picked second and took Terry Hughes, an 18-year-old shortstop from Spartanburg, S.C., who had been on everybody's list. The 6-1 1/2, 185-pounder from Dorman High School is regarded as an outstanding prospect with a great glove, solid bat and a strong arm.

Each of the 20 big league teams was permitted to make one selection. Each of the Class Triple A farms and Class Double A farms was allowed one pick but each Class A club had unlimited selection rights.

Following the regular phase, involving the newly eligible players, the secondary phase was to be held. That covered players drafted previously but not signed.

Of the 20 players picked by the majors, there were six pitchers, four catchers, three shortstops, three third basemen, two first basemen and two outfielders.

Under the new college rule, no players can be selected while attending a four-year college unless he is 21 years old. The Los Angeles Dodgers, drafting 20th and last, picked Don Ray Denbow, a 6-2, 185-pound third baseman from Dallas, Tex., who is a junior at Southern Methodist but who celebrated his 21st birthday last Monday.

Most of the draftees are high school boys who will be graduated in a few days.

When the Yanks drafted Blomberg, the young man was practicing for his graduation from Druid Hills High School in Atlanta.

His father, Sol Blomberg, said his son hadn't made up his mind about an immediate pro career but probably would play if he could go to college in the winter.

The draft was expected to cover two days. In two previous years, over 800 players were selected each year.

Chills, Thrills For Epstein In 2nd Start

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Epstein's first thoughts in his anxiously awaited second beginning in the major leagues were of Lou Gehrig and Mickey Mantle. But Mrs. Mary Abrams wasn't very far behind.

"When I went out to first base," Epstein said of his debut with the Washington Senators and in Yankee Stadium Monday night, "I thought, 'Lou Gehrig stood where I am. Mantle stands where I am.' I got a little chill. I'm not comparing myself with them, but it was really quite a thrill."

Epstein's thrilling and chilling moment came a couple of hours after he stopped to see his 72-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Abrams, who lives only a few blocks from the Stadium in the Bronx.

"If you have a good arm, it's a stone's throw from here," the 24-year-old rookie said after lashing a single and a 200-foot inside-park homer in his first game since his 19-day sit-down strike against baseball.

"She wanted to feed me cake and milk, but I couldn't eat. If I lived here, I'd weigh 800 pounds."

"I listened to the game on the radio," Mrs. Abrams said Tuesday. "It was quite thrilling. I think it was marvelous. My blood curdled when I heard him making the home run."

Epstein had threatened to quit the game rather than go to Baltimore's Rochester farm club. Then last week the Orioles traded him to Washington.

Epstein's home run — his first in the majors — carried only about 200 feet in the air.

"I haven't been on the field for so long, I wasn't sure I was running the right way," the 6-foot-3, 230-pounder said after chugging less-than-speedily around the bases.

"As I rounded second, it just dawned on me. Here's Eddie Yost, the third base coach, waving at me. My first thought was I should wave back."

Draft Extension Bill Stalled By House-Senate Conferees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The four-year extension of the military draft into a temporary snag Tuesday when a Senate-House compromise committee failed to reach agreement.

"We're near a meeting of the minds on most points but still have some matters to adjust," Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), head of the six Senate conferees, told reporters.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.), like Russell chairman of the Armed Services Committee in his branch of Congress and head of conferees for the House, said the compromise effort will resume today.

Both houses have agreed to a four-year extension of the compulsory draft system beyond June 30.

Both also accepted the proposal of President Johnson to induct younger 19-year-old eligibles first, instead of the present system of starting with the older men in the 18-25 age bracket now subject to induction.

But both committees questioned the presidential proposal to use a nationwide random selection system — called by some a lottery — for actual induction of young men for two years of military duty.

The House inserted language in its bill which would require advance notice to the Senate and House armed services committees on any such system. During a 60-day period either the Senate or House could veto the plan.

Numerous other proposed changes in authority and operation of the more than 4,000 local draft boards also were inserted in the House bill.

The Senate, however, merely voted to extend the present law and then in a committee report took note of part of these proposed changes.

4 Houses To Go For Parking Lot

Four houses now lived in by University students are to be torn down to make room for the expansion of the Civic Center parking lot.

The houses are all north of the Civic Center. Demolition is scheduled to begin sometime this week. The contract for the work has been awarded to Roy Walton of Iowa City.

The city has owned the houses for some time and has been renting them to students. The buildings are at 21 South Van Buren St. and at 409, 423 and 429 Iowa Ave.

Senate Considers Liquor, Wets Win Decision

DES MOINES (AP) — Senators considered the subject of liquor from three different directions Tuesday and, in the only decision, the wets won.

The Senate reconsidered its earlier defeat of a bill to allow liquor advertising on commercial vehicles and passed the measure 51-26. It now goes to the House.

The Iowa Liquor Control Commission long has had authority to allow such advertising but has not done so. The bill would put into the law that such advertising is permitted.

Sen. George O'Malley (D - Des Moines) voted against the bill on its first consideration but backed it Tuesday as a way to help financially troubled city bus services.

"Buses in the big cities of the state are in very serious trouble," O'Malley said, "and if they can't get a little advertising from this filthy liquor don't you think that's better than getting it from the taxpayers?"

He noted some cities are subsidizing buses.

Sen. Franklin Main (D-Lamoni) suggested sarcastically that money also could be obtained by renting wall space in schools to advertise liquor.

And Sen. Richard Stephens (R-Ainsworth) declared, "We have got plenty of liquor problems right here in our state without advertising to get more addicts."

Stephens joined Sen. Joseph Platt (R-Winterset) in introduction of a resolution directing the Liquor Commission to "proceed at once to an adequate enforcement" of liquor tax laws.

They noted the state auditor in a report Monday said the state apparently is losing "substantial" tax revenues through poor collection of the 10 per cent tax on liquor sold by the drink.

The audit said the commission does not have enough personnel to check each tavern's wholesale purchases against its sales reports and price list to confirm tax returns.

The resolution, which may be called up for a vote at any time, also would call the attorney general's attention to deficiencies in law observance by holders of liquor licenses and would have him "insist that corrective measures be taken."

Stephens in a statement also took a swing at Democratic Gov. Harold Hughes. He said Hughes last fall advocated legislation to establish presumption of drunken driving when a driver's blood-alcohol level is .10 per cent or higher.

"The House has passed this bill," Stephens said, "and it is now dying in the Senate because Gov. Hughes will not exert influence to bring this bill to the Senate floor for debate."

Oil Operators Set To Boost Output From Alternate Areas

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Arab oil nations began a boycott of the west's Tuesday, prompting international oil operators to prepare to boost output in other areas and reshuffle supply lines.

Industry sources are confident a short war should cause no major supply problems but they frankly admit a prolonged conflict or a widespread shut down of the vast Middle East supplies might cause shortages, particularly to Western Europe and Japan.

Kuwait and Iraq halted the sale of oil Tuesday to Great Britain and United States companies. Algeria took similar action but practically all its oil goes to France.

Egypt closed the Suez Canal, a major supply route for the bulk of the Mideast output that exceeds 9 million barrels a day.

The United States, with oil to spare, has no reason to fear that shortages of its own might develop. The turning of only a few valves could offset Arab oil imports that do not exceed 400,000 barrels a day.

But the Mideast and North Africa supply more than 80 per cent of Western Europe's oil requirements and the Mideast's share of the Japanese market exceeds 82 per cent.

The United States could boost its production by 3 million barrels a day or more but this would be far short of Western European imports that now amount to 4 million a day from the Mideast and nearly 2 million a day from North Africa. Even with strong assistance from Venezuela and Canada, the United States could not fill such a gap.

Defense officials in Washington also minimized possible effects on petroleum supplies for the war in Vietnam. A substantial part of such supplies come from the Mideast but defense officials said sufficient alternate sources are available and will be used if necessary.

Endless Crisis In Mideast A U.S.-Soviet Sore Point

An AP News Analysis By WILLIAM L. RYAN

If the major powers have learned from years of endless crisis in the Mideast, there is only one way out of today's situation. Once again, the Russians and Americans will have to find common ground to avoid the threat of a new showdown threatening World War III.

That happened 11 years ago, when

Prof Discusses Reform In Council-Manager Government

Most of the arguments used against council-manager government won't hold water, but some are at least partly valid and should lead to reform of the system.

This was the message of Russell M. Ross, professor of political science, who addressed the Conference on Council-Manager Government here Tuesday.

The two-day conference is sponsored by the University Institute of Public Affairs.

The council-manager system exists by vote of the people in seven cities in Iowa including Iowa City.

Ross ridiculed charges that council-manager government is controlled by the League of Women Voters or the Chamber of Commerce, that it is un-American or anti-labor, and that it makes a dictator of the city manager.

He proposed reforms, however, in answer to charges that the system fails to provide effective community leadership and that it does not provide adequate representation for the voters.

Charges Cited

Ross attributed charges that council-manager government is dominated by a few civic groups to the fact that such groups often sponsor its establishment, usually after detailed study.

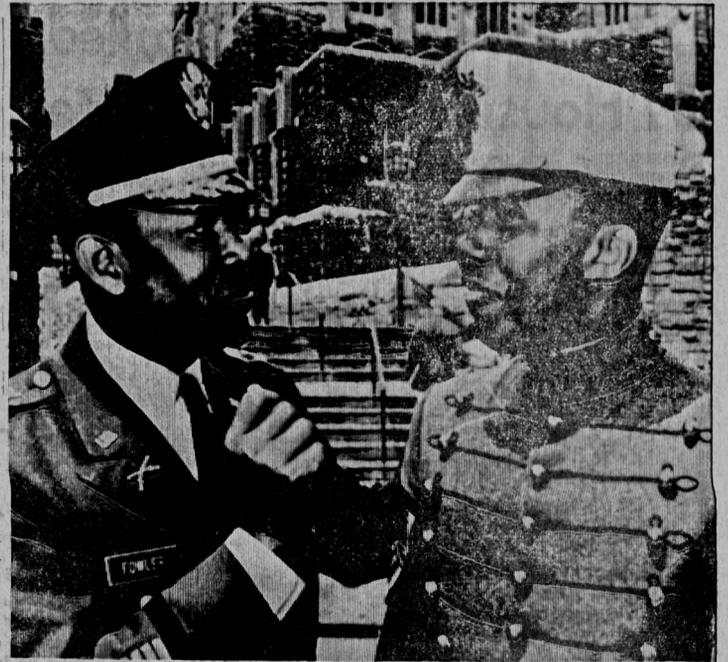

Far from being un-American, Ross said, the system can be called America's contribution to local government. It has been exported to Canada, West Germany, Finland and Ireland, he said.

Labor unions usually oppose council-manager government, Ross said, though in Kansas City they now have become supporters of the system. He attributes the opposition to the fact that the system is often supported by groups that the unions consider their natural enemies. Contrary to popular belief, the system does not reduce the number of laboring jobs in a city government, but shifts them to provide greater service for the minimum tax expenditure, Ross said.

It might also increase the number of candidates for the council if they knew they would not be expected to serve as mayor, he said.

To improve representation on the council Ross advocates allowing the individual city to determine the size of its council. At present a state statute sets the number at five for cities as different in size as Chariton (population 5,402) and Des Moines (population 208,000).

Ross would also provide for some council members to be elected by ward, which he said would give voters a feeling that they can talk to at least one councilman.

TWO GENERATIONS of West Point men talk it over. Cadet James D. Fowler Jr., got some words of advice from his father Col. James D. Fowler of the U.S. Army Command and Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., Tuesday. Fowler Sr., graduated from West Point in 1941 and his son graduates today, making him the first second generation Negro to graduate from West Point. — AP Wirephoto

Editor Belittles Radio, TV News

NEW YORK (AP)—The president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors says radio and television are not up to newspapers for local news coverage.

"Let no one ever be conned into believing that local coverage worth a damn has ever been made, followed, interpreted, explored, reported or investigated by radio and television," said Michael J. Ogden, who is executive editor of the Providence Journal and Bulletin, in the ninth annual Pulitzer memorial lecture at Columbia University's graduate school of journalism.

Addressing the 1967 graduating class Monday, Ogden said news they might consider routine is part of the making of a newspaper — "a report in depth and a reflection on the whole city, state and world around us."

Summer Journalism Workshops Planned

Special journalism workshops for high school students and publication advisers will be held again this summer on campus under the sponsorship of the School of Journalism and the Extension Division.

The 15th annual Iowa High School Journalism Workshop for high school journalists will be held concurrently with the High School Publications Advisers' Workshop, June 12 to 16.

James Tucker, instructor in the news-editorial sequence in the School of Journalism, will be coordinator of the Journalism Workshop. Prof. Lester G. Benz, head of the School's high school journalism teaching sequence, will teach the Advisers' Workshop.

One hour of graduate credit may be earned by high school journalism teachers or publication advisers at the Advisers' Workshop, which is designed to provide practical and theoretical information to improve the quality of high school publications.

The Journalism Workshop, which last year drew 287 students, will feature seven different divisions of concentration: three in school newspapers, one in yearbooks, one in broadcast news, and two in advanced journalism study.

Grad Student Earns Ph.D. For Dialect Study In 'Finn'

A study which identifies two dialects in "Huckleberry Finn," instead of the seven claimed by Mark Twain, has earned for Curt Rulon, G. Topeka, Kan., the first Ph.D. in English with concentration in linguistics ever given at the University.

Rulon did his research in a new program in linguistics, under the direction of Robert R. Howren, associate professor of English.

An introductory note by Twain warns the reader that the characters in "Huckleberry Finn" speak seven varieties of dialect. "I make this explanation," said Twain, "for the reason that without it many readers would suppose that all these characters were trying to talk alike and not succeeding."

Rulon found that the "re-spelled forms" in the novel represent two dialects: one Negro, and one a mixture of south-midland and southern. He believes that both were heard in the 1840s in the region between Hannibal, Mo., and northern Louisiana.

In making his study, Rulon drew on his own experience as a railroad worker in Hannibal, on linguistic maps and other scholarly records, and on Twain's original manuscript, which he said has even more re-spelled forms than the published version.
