

House Vetoes Regents Money Plan

DES MOINES (AP) — Authority for the State Board of Regents to finance new classroom buildings at state educational institutions through revenue bonds went down to defeat in the Iowa House Thursday.

The vote was 82-39 against the measure after opponents raised a cry of loss of legislative control over spending by the regents.

Minority Leader William Gannon (D-Mingo) immediately filed a motion to reconsider the vote, thus keeping the measure alive.

The bill would authorize the regents to issue bonds to finance new buildings at the University of Iowa, Iowa State University and State College of Iowa. Students fees or tuition would be pledged to pay off the bonds over a period of up to 20 years.

Rep. Richard Welden (R-Iowa Falls) said the regents are faced with building needs totaling nearly a quarter of a million dollars in the next decade and need some more assured way to get the money than by depending upon biennial appropriations from the legislature.

He said most of the building needs will be in the next five years, and "we can't afford to put this off" for another biennium.

Rep. Andrew Barley (R-Grimes) contended, however, that the state's birth rate is declining and the new buildings may not be needed after the next few years.

Of the bonding proposal he said, "We'd be not only pledging tuition of students not yet born, we don't even know that they are going to be born."

Before the debate began in earnest, the House attached several amendments to the bill which was passed by the Senate April 3.

An amendment by Rep. Rudy Van Drie (R-Ames) would have limited any bond issue for the next two years to no more than $3 million. Another by Rep. Donald Voorhees (R-Waterloo) would require the regents to increase tuition, fees and institutional income in an amount sufficient to retire the bonds.

Welden won approval of an amendment requiring prior legislative approval for any specific bond issue proposed by the regents. And Rep. Elizabeth Shaw (R-Davenport) wrote in a provision that if the bonds ever are re-funded the retirement period cannot be extended beyond the original 20 years.

Rep. Lester Kleuver (R-Atlantic) urged passage of the bill, saying the House amendments had built plenty of safeguards into it.

He was supported by Rep. Keith Dunton (D-Thornburg) who said Iowa's support of Board of Regents building needs has lagged nearly as badly as its providing of property tax relief.

Gannon reminded the House Republican majority that long range financing of state-supported educational building needs was a plank in the GOP platform.

Rep. Ray Cunningham (R-Ames) said, however, that he regarded the bill as a "dangerous precedent," and Rep. Paul McCray (R-Davenport) declared:

"The great society has mortgaged the future of our children and grandchildren. Now we are proposing to do the same thing on the state level."

Among the 20 Republicans voting for the bill was Earl Yoder, and Mrs. Minnette Doderer joined the 19 Democrats who supported it. Both are from Iowa City.

Racial Outbursts Plague 4 States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Spontaneous outbursts of violence occurred in several states, but Tampa, Fla., saw relative quiet prevail Thursday for the first time since race rioting broke out there Sunday night.

There were incidents in Ohio, Illinois and Michigan and a crowd gathered briefly in the Watts community of Los Angeles after a Negro youth was shot to death by police.

More than 70 persons were arrested in Cincinnati in the third night of disorder. There were numerous reports of gunfire, but apparently most were shots fired into the air.

National Guardsmen and police continued to patrol Cincinnati's streets in the neighborhood where a white youth was wounded Wednesday night.

At Dayton, north of Cincinnati, store windows were smashed and several white persons were beaten. Fifty-five persons were arrested before the disturbances were brought under control.

Windows Smashed
Roving gangs of young Negroes smashed windows and set off false fire alarms in Middleburg, Ohio. Police said the disturbances followed a dance sponsored by the Human Relations Council at a recreation center.

A 500-man National Guard force was demobilized at Tampa, leaving peacekeeping to police and squads of young Negroes who wore white helmets.

The 150-man "peace patrol" roamed the city's streets and told other Negroes, "We don't need no trouble."

Patrolman James R. Calvert, who shot and killed Martin Chambers, 19, was placed on leave. Authorities declined to say how long he would be off duty. The slaying of Chambers, a Negro, touched off rioting Sunday night.

Calvert said he shot the youth to prevent his escape from the scene of a burglary.

Negro leaders in Tampa said poor housing, joblessness and a lack of educational and recreational opportunities are behind the rioting.

Chicago Troubled
Policemen from four of Chicago's western suburbs converged on a park in the Maywood community to quell a rock-throwing, window-smashing disturbance by several dozen Negroes. There were no injuries or looting, however.

Police were attempting to determine the cause of the outbreak.

At Warren, Mich., a Detroit suburb, city officials met with residents in an effort to find a peaceful solution after demonstrations in front of the home of Corrado Bailey, 43, a Negro auto worker, and his white wife.

Police at Los Angeles said they shot a 16-year-old Negro to death in the Watts community after he and his father leveled shotguns at them.

Officers said Elmer L. Russell was killed instantly. About 50 persons gathered but dispersed quickly. The officers were responding to a robbery report.

Ground Attacks Engage Marines Near Da Nang

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines battled Communist troops below the big Leatherneck base at Da Nang Thursday in engagements typifying revived ground action in the Vietnamese war.

Flareups 14 and 25 miles south of Da Nang coincided with speculation that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's ninth trip to Saigon next week will bring a further increase in the buildup of American forces.

About 463,000 U.S. servicemen were on hand as of last Saturday midnight, and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky told newsmen a total of 600,000 was needed. U.S. officials had indicated the planned commitment was 470,000 by the end of the year.

This was reflected Thursday in casualty figures which showed reduced losses on both sides in action June 4-10.

176 Killed
Military headquarters announced 176 Americans were killed, the lowest such toll since the week of April 16 to 22, and 928 wounded, the lowest since the week of Feb. 19 to 25. Fifteen men were missing. There were 214 killed, 1,161 wounded and one missing in the week of May 28-June 3.

The South Vietnamese command said 215 of its men were killed, 20 fewer than in the previous week. Eighteen of the other allies perished, up three.

The U.S. Command said 1,156 Communist troops were killed, compared with 2,420 in the previous week. The American estimate of the strength of the enemy armed forces in South Vietnam rose to 294,000, a net increase of 2,000.

Unofficial tabulations listed 10,956 Americans killed and 66,130 wounded in action in Vietnam since 1961. In addition there have been 2,143 deaths from accidents and other nonhostile causes, 21 last week.

Patrol Under Fire
The first Marine battle broke out about noon when some squads of the 5th Marine Regiment — probably a reconnaissance patrol — came under withering mortar and small arms fire 25 miles south of Da Nang.

Marines poured in reinforcements, probably more than 500 men. The battle raged throughout the afternoon, but appeared to taper off as night fell.

There was no report on casualties of either side.

Units from the 7th Marine Regiment, operating 14 miles southwest of Da Nang as part of a multi-battalion sweep called Operation Arizona, ran into about 60 Viet Cong.

The Marines reported killing 15 in a fight still under way at sundown. There was no word on Leatherneck casualties.

About 700 Vietnamese civilians in the area of Operation Arizona staged demonstrations against air strikes and artillery fire supporting the Marine riflemen. American sources said the protest movement was ordered by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese political agents who apparently want the area's rich rice harvests.

Koreans Charge Election Rigging

SEOUL (AP) — Student demonstrations and charges of election rigging swirled around the government of President Chung Hee Park, for the fourth day Thursday, echoing the disturbances that brought on the overthrow of President Syngman Rhee seven years ago.

More than 20,000 students demanding new parliamentary elections demonstrated in Seoul. Some threw rocks at riot police who used tear gas to disperse them. Police seized 525 students for questioning.

About 200 members of the minority Democratic party, led by the party president, Cho Jaichun, held a brief demonstration in the capitol. Police arrested Cho and 33 others.

Mass protests were held in Pusan, Taegu, Taejon, Congju and several other locations.

A military coup toppled Rhee in April 1960, after a wave of student revolts and charges of voting fraud. He fled to exile in Honolulu, Hawaii, where he died in 1965.

The present turmoil grew out of the elections June 8 in which Park's Democratic Republican party won 130 of 175 National Assembly seats.

Kosygin To Appeal Arab Cause At U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin will leave Moscow for the United States today to plead the Arab cause before the United Nations and possibly meet President Johnson in summit talks that could include Vietnam.

En route, the Soviet leader will stop in Paris to confer with President Charles de Gaulle.

Soviet and U.S. spokesmen in Moscow said Kosygin is heading a 50-man delegation to an expected special United Nations General Assembly session on the six-day Israeli conquest of the armies of Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

In Paris, official sources at the presidential Elysee Palace said Kosygin is expected to talk with De Gaulle this afternoon on the Mideast crisis before flying on to New York.

Kosygin's plans were made known in Moscow before a necessary pool of U.N. delegations was completed. Sixty-two affirmative votes out of 122 are needed to call a special session. Fifty-four were received before the count was adjourned for the night.

Possible Summit Contacts
While the Kosygin trip would seem to set the scene for possible summit contacts on Vietnam and other issues besides the Mideast, there were no known plans Thursday night for big-power talks.

At the White House, press secretary George Christian said an old invitation still stands for Kosygin to visit Johnson and that the President would be glad to see him. Johnson planned to be in Texas over the weekend, however, Christian said.

Christian did not rule out a possibility that Johnson might attend the proposed special U.N. meeting but said there were no plans for him to do so.

Whether De Gaulle attends might depend on his talks with Kosygin. That the Soviets were giving urgency to the Paris talks was seen in a French disclosure that Kosygin rang up De Gaulle on the Moscow-Paris "green line" Thursday to arrange the meeting. The "green line" is similar to the Washington-Moscow "hot line."

Wilson May Come
Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain was considering whether to attend the assembly session, a London spokesman said.

Israel's war hero — Defense Minister, Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, may come to the U.N. to bolster Israel's cause, it was said in Tel Aviv.

There was no indication as to whether any Arab heads of state or government planned to attend the special session.

The United States announced it could not concur with the Soviet demand for the emergency session and challenged the way Secretary-General U Thant went about arranging for it. But the United States also appeared to concede that it could not prevent the assembly from coming.

Although the United States said it could not concur in the request for an emergency session, Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg told Thant: "If, nevertheless, a majority of the member states decides to convene such an assembly, the United States hopes that any discussion will have a helpful influence in encouraging and enabling all states concerned to deal effectively with the underlying cause of tension and conflict in the Middle East."

Soviets Condemn Israel

A Soviet move to condemn Israel for aggression and order a troop withdrawal to positions held before the war started met defeat in the council Wednesday.

The Soviet Union asserted that as far as it was concerned the Arab-Israeli war was no longer before the council. This was disputed by the United States, which is trying for further council action on Arab-Israeli negotiations despite a Soviet announcement that it would veto any U.S. resolution.

The situation raised the prospect of simultaneous meetings of the council and the emergency special session.

In his letter to Thant, Goldberg challenged the legal grounds on which Thant acceded to the Soviet request for the emergency session.

Goldberg asserted that the only sources of authority for calling the emergency session was under the 1950 "uniting for peace" resolution of the General Assembly, and assembly rules pertaining to that resolution.

Notes 1950 Resolution

He noted that the 1950 resolution, which the Soviet Union has frequently denounced, provides for an emergency session if there is lack of unanimity among the permanent members of the council preventing action on maintaining international peace and security.

He added that the Security Council had already approved unanimously four resolutions on the cease-fire aspects of the question, and another on humanitarian problems.

"The processes of consultation, negotiation and search for measures to harmonize the actions of nations enjoined by the Charter therefore have not been exhausted," he said.

For those reasons, he told Thant, the United States does not believe a situation has arisen in which the Security Council has failed to exercise its "primary responsibilities for the maintenance of international peace and security," as set forth in the 1950 resolution.

China Still Lags In Nuclear Race, Study Concludes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China has a "very large capacity for nuclear weapon development" but can't overtake the United States or the Soviet Union for some time, a congressional study committee concluded Thursday.

The estimate was among the findings the Senate-House Economic Committee included in its report on the economy of mainland China, based on hearings and papers prepared by specialists in Asian affairs.

Other findings:

• China has the conventional military capability to support "a major involvement in a border war." But if she should undertake to supplant the guerrillas in Vietnam, the war there would change into a more conventional clash of regular forces and "the contest would turn upon relative firepower with the advantage going to the industrially stronger adversary."

• China can be expected to maintain a militant mood for some time and to try to promote her brand of revolution where possible, but the witnesses "did not envision any effort toward expansion by force."

• The U.S. embargo on nonstrategic trade with China has not significantly affected the mainland's economy; its effect is purely psychological. The committee heard a number of suggestions that trade might be used as a bargaining tool in future negotiations but took no position on the embargo, considering it a political rather than economic question. Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff (D-Conn.), specifically opposed any present relaxation of the embargo.

• China's economic development has been remarkably uneven as ideological considerations and practical views have alternately prevailed among leaders. The present cultural revolution phase could lead to an economic crisis similar to the disasters of the early 1960s.

• Despite several agricultural problems and some malnutrition, there has been no starvation under the Communist regime such as marked China's past.

• Remarkable gains have been made in investment in education, medicine, public health and scientific research.

Shipping Strike Enters 3rd Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Defiant deck officers carried a premature strike into a second day Thursday, reportedly tying up some 20 American flag freighters and tankers in East and Gulf Coast ports. Hardest hit were New York and New Orleans.

Military cargo ships, including those bound for Vietnam, were exempted from the tieup by the striking AFL-CIO Masters, Mates and Pilots Union. Foreign shipping was not affected.

An arbitrator's return-to-work order went unheeded by the union, which has about 7,000 members in 12 Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Low-Rent Housing Plan For Elderly Suggested

By DEBBY DONOVAN
Preston Caplan, an economist with the Housing Assistance Administration (HAA), suggested Thursday that Iowa City build 90 to 180 low-rent units for elderly people and 40 to 120 units for non-elderly families.

Caplan told the Low Rent House Agency that if the city enrolled in the HAA program, all of the expenses would be met through rental and Federal Government subsidy. He said that the city would not have to pay anything.

Caplan was one of the speakers whose ideas will be considered by the agency before it makes recommendations on low-rent housing to the Iowa City council. Other organizations represented by speakers included the Johnson County Department of Social Welfare and the University Institute of Gerontology.

Caplan based his estimate of the number of housing units needed for elderly Iowa City residents according to the 1960 census. He said that there were 253 families of one or two members whose head was 65 or older and whose income was less than $3,000 a year.

He also said that there were 741 substandard rental units in Iowa City. Caplan based his estimate of the need for housing units for non-elderly people upon data from cities comparable in size to Iowa City. He said that a more definite estimate would have to be determined through studies provided by the Welfare Agency, the University and the Urban Renewal Commission.

Caplan said that the rent on the units would pay for the maintenance. Ten percent of the rent would go to the municipal government to replace taxes. The Federal Government would pay the principle and interest of 40-year bonds used to build the units. If the rentals amounted to more than was needed to meet expenses and maintain a contingency fund for future repairs the excess would be used to help pay off the bonds.

If it were not possible to charge elderly residents sufficient rent to meet the expenses, the Federal Government would increase the subsidy.

Caplan said that the local agency would manage the project under a plan approved by the HAA. The agency would determine who could live in the units according to state laws that set maximum income and other specifications.

State law also provides that a local referendum must be passed before a city can participate in such a federal program.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime in the United States jumped 20 per cent in the first three months of this year, the biggest surge in at least nine years, the FBI reported Thursday.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) failed to win election to the Harvard University Board of Overseers, it was announced Thursday.

DES MOINES (AP) — The Senate systematically watered down a conflict of interest bill Thursday evening, then passed it by a 50-4 vote. It goes to the House, where some senators who originally opposed parts of the bill said it stands a chance of passage in its amended form.

Canary, Cat Cleared In Probe Of Estate Heir's Tragic Death

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gigi, a sophisticated French canary, lived in one of Charlotte's best suburbs with two other heirs to a $200,000 estate.

Her housemates were Co-Co, another canary, and Tommy, a big, fat tomcat.

Mrs. Andree Montet, a Charlotte widow, died last Oct. 9. In her will she left the bulk of her estate to her three pets and to her mother, Mme. Clotilde Georges in Nice, France.

Mrs. Montet instructed the executor and trustees of her estate to hire a housekeeper to maintain her residence in a fashionable section and to look after the pets.

All was serene until May 21 when Gigi died, leaving Co-Co as the only occupant of the gilded case. Tommie still had the run of the house.

Recognizing the implications, William Alamy, the legal officer, and trustees ordered a post-mortem on Gigi.

Dr. Richard A. Freund, a veterinarian, gave his ruling in a formal, dignified letter to all interested parties.

In part, it said: Fifteen-year-old Gigi apparently died of natural causes. The examination revealed "no visible cause of death due to gross changes of tissue."

Tommy and Co-Co thus were removed from consideration as villains in the case. "The examination," said Abernathy, "was ordered to guard against any eventuality." He declined to elaborate, but he said the post-mortem report will be kept on file as proof one of the heirs died of natural causes.

Senate hurt academy bill

The Iowa Senate on Tuesday knocked out an important part of the law enforcement academy bill.

The bill, as passed by the House, would have set up an academy for state, county and township law enforcement agencies with operating costs being paid by levying a charge of 10 per cent on all criminal charges including serious traffic violations. This charge would be added over and above the amount of the fine and costs assessed to the violator. This 10 per cent collection would go into the general fund, and the legislature would appropriate the necessary amount to the Department of Public Safety for the academy's operation.

However, the Senate rejected this method of paying the operating costs of the academy and voted to appropriate $158,000 to run it for the next two years.

A large share of the taxpayer's dollar is already being used for law enforcement and correctional institutions. The method of financing the academy advocated by the House would have made the law breaker pay for his own apprehension and would not have been an additional burden on tax funds.

The bill now goes back to the House. The House should stick to its guns and insist upon the 10 per cent charge to finance the academy's operations. Since the Senate rejected this plan by only a 31-28 vote, a little log-rolling should be able to swing a few extra votes in order to make the law breaker — not the general public — pay for the protection necessary in an orderly society.

'Dream' isn't good

By NICHOLAS MEYER

"An American Dream" (not to be confused with Edward Albee's short play "The American Dream") is the film version of a novel by Norman Mailer. It is not a very good film for a variety of reasons.

The basic Mailer premise as depicted in Robert Gist's film (I have not read the novel) is that the fault, dear Brutus, is not in ourselves but in our stars that we are underlings! Quite a reversal, but unfortunately the film never convinces us that it is true. When stripped of all its philosophical implications, Mailer's theory is an argument for melodrama instead of drama. The actions are superimposed on characters, and fate emerges, not from their personalities and their decisions, but because of phone calls missed, props coincidentally there, or the inability to communicate. But it is never really believable.

Stuart Whitman portrays Joe-Pyne-type TV personality, whose private life is marred by a marriage to a wife that makes Grace Poole's prisoner look like a nun. He wants a divorce, but in a marital discussion that leaves "Virginia Wolf" behind in a cloud of epithets, he knocks her off a 30 story building. It is an accident, and it is also an accident (and something of a coincidence) that when the lady hits the pavement, she is run over by a Cadillac containing a prominent Mafia leader whom Whitman has been attacking with unceasing vigilance on his TV program. In the back seat of the Cadillac is (coincidentally again) the girl Whitman once really loved. It goes on and on like that. Coincidence is supposed to mean an unlikely juxtaposition of events, but in "An American Dream" it is the order of the day.

Nor do we accept the fact that Whitman is unable to straighten out this mess. In the police station he is unable to "communicate" (a Mailer comment) what really happened, to the hard-boiled lieutenant (Barry Sullivan). Shortly thereafter we are not convinced when Lloyd Nolan, playing the dead wife's millionaire father, suggests to Whitman that he take a walk along the edge of the penthouse terrace (where his daughter went over), to restore his will to live. Why Whitman does this is never clear, but maybe it was to throw a little tension into the film; God knows it needed it. We are told by a number of people that Whitman is conscience-stricken by the death of his wife, but we never see any evidence for this, either. On the contrary, the night after her demise, he is re-living old times with the Mafia man's mistress, and showing every evidence of making some sense of his life, now that he is unburdened of his incredible spouse.

The final bit of nonsense occurs when he learns that five Mafia men are waiting to kill him in his girl friend's apartment. He is on the landing. They are inside. They do not know he is without. The girl is with him. He loves her. She loves him. You'll never guess what he does. The sum total of the film (whatever the book had to say) is meaningless, unconvincing, and worst of all uninteresting. "An American Dream" turns out to be a mediocre nightmare.

Another trouble spot

Public higher education sees mounting pressure

WASHINGTON — Mounting admission and enrollment pressures in public colleges and universities are documented in a newly-released survey. The survey reinforces the findings of a study of the admissions picture at state and land-grant institutions conducted in April by the Office of Institutional Research of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC).

Both surveys illustrate how public colleges and universities continue to be subjected to pressure to accommodate growing numbers of students, even though the results of the post-World War II baby boom are tapering off. There aren't quite as many 18-year-olds in the nation this year as there were last year, and the number of seniors graduating from high school is also about the same. Nonetheless, applications for admissions to state institutions are continuing to rise as even larger percentages of students decide to continue their education beyond high school and as a growing proportion of all students enroll in public colleges and universities.

The new survey polled member institutions of the Association of State Colleges and Universities (ASCU). The earlier survey polled members of the NASULGC. Together, the 316 institutions in both organizations enroll about half of all college students in the nation, and expect to provide higher education for about 45 per cent of all college freshmen next fall. The ASCU institutions will account for about 20 per cent of all college freshmen, and the NASULGC institutions for about 25 per cent. Institutions in both associations are growing rapidly and will increase their freshman classes by about six per cent this fall.

Here are some of the highlights of the 1967 ASCU admissions survey:

- Applications for freshman admission to ASCU institutions, that is, state colleges and universities, are running 8.2 per cent ahead of applications received one year ago.
- Freshman enrollment will be 6.6 per cent higher at ASCU institutions this fall than it was last fall.
- Close to one-fourth of the ASCU institutions surveyed expect to turn down qualified applicants for freshman admission in proportionately greater numbers than last year.
- Admissions standards for entering freshmen are higher this year at almost one-fifth of the ASCU institutions, and 10 per cent have set an earlier deadline for freshman applications.

Dodd must be thankful that Garrison is busy

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Sen. Russell Long, the Senate whip, who has become Sen. Dodd's most avid defender, revealed recently that Eberhardt Deutsch, "one of the greatest trial lawyers of all time," had offered his services free of charge to get Sen. Dodd out of the pickle he's in with his Senate colleagues over the ethics issue.

BUCHWALD

Sen. Long also revealed that at one time Jim Garrison, the New Orleans district attorney, had volunteered his services to help Sen. Dodd, but since Garrison became so involved in his own version of the Kennedy assassination, Sen. Long said, "I wouldn't presume to call on him now."

I can't help thinking, on the basis of his performance in the past few months, that the fact that Garrison is tied up is probably the best break Sen. Dodd has had so far. You wonder how Garrison would have defended Sen. Dodd if he had the chance.

First, Garrison would probably call a press conference and announce he was going to subpoena all six members of the Senate Ethics Committee to testify before a grand jury.

"Why are you going to do that?" he would be asked.

"Because I believe there's a definite conspiracy between the Senate committee, the CIA, the FBI and Oswald. I can't reveal more than that at this moment."

"But what would that have to do with Sen. Dodd?"

"Nothing, but it has a lot to do with Cuba. I can assure you there will be a conviction if I have anything to say about it."

"Mr. Garrison, Sen. Dodd has been charged with using $116,000 raised at political testimonial dinners for his own personal use. How do you plan to answer that?"

"That $116,000 was not a money figure but was a code used by the ethics committee to contact certain people in Dallas. If you subtract 23,456 from that figure and then add all the odd pages in the World Almanac and then divide this by the days in the month of May, you'll discover that the number you arrive at corresponds exactly with Jack Ruby's telephone number."

"But this doesn't answer the charge that the testimonial dinners were advertised as political events and the people who attended them did not know they were paying off Dodd's personal debts."

"I will produce witnesses who have undergone hypnosis and who will testify they knew in advance what kind of dinners they were attending. Only someone under hypnosis knows the real truth about these affairs."

"What else will you do, Mr. Garrison?"

"I plan to issue warrants for the arrest of the four ex-employees who stole Sen. Dodd's correspondence and I will prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that they all had a party two weeks before Dodd fired them. I will also produce as a key witness a narcotics addict who will swear that he saw Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson in a heated discussion with David Ferrie just days before Sen. Dodd gave his fifth testimonial dinner."

"You sound like you've got a solid case. I do, and anyone who says I don't will be indicted for perjury."

"Then from what you say this thing is much bigger than just an ethics question in the Senate."

"It certainly is. I may have to indict the entire Senate before I'm finished, but I'll get to the bottom of this or I'm not the Jolly Green Giant."

"I'm not saying this is exactly how Garrison would have handled Dodd's case, but on the basis of his track record so far, I think Sen. Dodd can thank his lucky stars he got Eberhardt Deutsch instead."

Minimum wage and hour law has little effect on job attrition

SAN MATEO, Calif. — Job attrition due to the imposition of the new minimum wage and hour law among independent retailers as yet shows no signs of bottoming out.

This is indicated in the latest special data off the computers of the National Federation of Independent Business analyzing approximately 35,000 respondents to the continuous field survey.

Nationally, in January, 26 per cent of the retailers reported changes in their employment structure and a net gain in employees, after deducting those dropped, of 3 employees. In April, however, only 22 per cent reported employment changes and after deducting dismissals, the net gain of new jobs is shown as .1 on the reduced number of firms making employment changes.

Of those respondents who reported dropping employees in February, 20 per cent gave the new minimum law as the reason. This was the first month the law went into effect. In March, 23 per cent reported dropping employees due to the new wage and hour law and in April this jumped to 26 per cent.

Previous data compiled from this research and reported, shows that the job attrition is among the handicapped and least proficient. Federation researchers said they believe that whenever the data shows that the rate of job attrition due to the new labor laws reaches bottom, they can estimate what percentage of the working force is capable of being fully, or partially self-supporting, yet incapable of maintaining a minimal rate of productivity commensurate with the wage and hour law.

Today on WSUI

• Opera will begin and end our day at WSUI. Aase Loveberg will be heard at 8:30 a.m. singing arias from Verdi operas. And tonight's complete opera will be "Lakme" by Delibes — a performance recorded under the direction of George Sebastian.

• Another Henry Wood Promenade Concert (from the BBC) will be offered at 1 p.m. Included will be the Symphony No. 1 in A Flat by Elgar and the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto in E Minor, with Josef Suk, soloist.

• Tomorrow's musical, at 8:30 a.m., will be "I Can Get It For You Wholesale." The BBC World Theatre production, at 2 p.m., is a radio adaptation of the 100-year-old Victorian melodrama "The Silver King."

Committee to study relationship between colleges, Government

WASHINGTON — The relationship between American colleges, universities and the Federal Government will be explored by a 15-member advisory committee on higher education announced recently by John W. Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

"The growing partnership between the federal government and the universities must be a relationship in which neither side exploits the other," Gardner said. "If we are to reap the benefits and avoid the dangers in the relationship, we shall have to understand it far better than we do now."

"We also need to understand better the responsibilities borne by institutions of higher learning — teaching, the advancement of learning, development of solutions to community problems, and contributions to both our cultural life and international affairs."

"The federal government, in recognizing these responsibilities, has sharply increased its investment in higher education in the past five years. It is time to appraise this partnership and to seek ways in which it may be strengthened."

In the current fiscal year, the federal investment in higher education is estimated at $4.6 billion. Five years ago the figure was $1.6 billion.

The committee will report to Gardner in July, 1968. The committee will examine the present quality of relationships between higher education and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The overall relationships of colleges and universities with the federal government also will be reviewed. Special emphasis will be given to identifying those problems which exist and proposals for their solution.

The advisory committee membership represents both large and small colleges and universities, junior colleges, foundations and public and private institutions.

Family night is a summer feature of Union Board and will be held every Friday night at the Union until August 5.

Critics Praise Art By Prof

The first one-man sculpture exhibition in Chicago by Hans Breder, assistant professor of art, has won acclaim from Chicago art critics.

Breder's show at the Feigen Gallery in Chicago opened May 27 and will close Saturday.

Harold Haydon of the Chicago Sun Times wrote of the Breder sculptures: "Hans Breder's brilliant use of reflected light is timely with a capital T . . . it is stunning. Very difficult to describe or photograph, Breder's sculpture depends on reflections to build and multiply effects."

Commenting that Breder "looks like a comer," Franz Schulze said in the Chicago Daily News, "His sculpture has all the terse economy and impersonality usually associated with purism, but at no time does a chill set in or a sense of so-what develop."

Breder is a graduate of fine arts schools in Hamburg, Germany. He had a one-man art show in Hamburg in 1964 and has exhibited in many group shows in Europe and the United States.

He came to the University in September after a year as an instructor at the Summit Art Theatre, Summit, N.J.

Urologists Name UI Man President

Dr. Rubin H. Flocks, professor and head of urology, has been named president-elect of the 2,000-member American Urological Association (AUA).

Dr. Flocks, nationally and internationally recognized as an authority in the medical specialty of urology — especially in the field of treatment of cancer of the prostate — was named to head the AUA at the group's recent annual meeting in New York City.

For the past five years, Dr. Flocks has served as secretary of the AUA and in 1954 he was president of the North Central Section of the organization. In February he was re-elected president of the American Board of Urology.

Dr. Flocks also is a member of the American Advisory Board for Medical Specialists, which serves as an advisory organization to various clinical boards.

He is a member of the National Advisory Cancer Council of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, has served as chairman of the American Medical Association's section on urology, and has been a member of the Board of Governors of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Flocks received A.B. and M.D. degrees from Johns Hopkins University.

Byrnes Documents Reveal Key To De Gaulle's Mood

By JACK BELL
CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle tried in 1945 to get the Allies to push France's border to the Rhine but wound up with a French occupation zone in Germany only because of Franklin D. Roosevelt's "kindness."

First, on a visit to Moscow, De Gaulle said the Rhine was France's natural boundary and he wanted French troops stationed there permanently.

Then, on a visit to Washington in August 1945 De Gaulle pressed his territorial claims with President Harry S. Truman. He told Truman that the Rhine was the logical separation point between Germany and France. Truman made no commitment.

The patronizing attitude of the "Big Three" U.S., British and Soviet leaders 22 years ago toward the present president of France stand out clearly in the former top secret papers of James F. Byrnes.

Byrnes, secretary of state in the Truman administration and "assistant president" under Franklin D. Roosevelt, has deposited his records of World War II years with the Clemson University Library.

There scholars are free to inspect documents and, among other things, ponder over how much De Gaulle's abrasive relations with the Allied leaders may have influenced his current intransigent nationalism.

This reporter's review of the documents showed: At a Feb. 4, 1945 Livadia Palace meeting in Yalta, Soviet Premier Joseph V. Stalin asked Roosevelt if he thought France should have a zone of occupation in Germany, and for what reason.

"The president said he thought it was not a bad idea, but he added that it was only out of kindness," the report of the session said.

"Both Marshal Stalin and Mr. V. M. Molotov, Soviet foreign minister, said that would be the only reason to give France a zone. Stalin said the question would have to be considered further," the report added.

In their conversations at Yalta, Roosevelt and Stalin exchanged views on De Gaulle which they obviously were confident were shared by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, who was absent from this particular meeting.

The top secret report quoted Stalin as saying that he had not found De Gaulle a very complicated person "but he felt he was unrealistic in the sense that France had not done very much fighting in this war and De Gaulle demanded full rights with the Americans, British and Russians who had done the burden of the fighting."

Prof Appointed To NAS Council

Dr. Robert L. Dryer, associate professor of biochemistry, has been appointed to the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences.

Dryer will serve on a Committee on Clinical Chemistry. His three-year term begins July 1.

Established in 1918 as the principal operating agency of the congressionally chartered National Academy of Sciences, the National Research Council advises governmental and other organizations on matters relating to science and technology.

Dryer, who received his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees from the University, joined the faculty in 1955. He is the author of numerous technical articles and a member of a number of professional organizations.

In 1965 Dryer participated in an International Symposium on Environmental Biology held in Kyoto, Japan, and in 1962 he was a member of a scientific team which conducted a nutrition survey in Malaya. Presently, Dryer is also president of the American Association of Clinical Chemists.

Graduate Exams Set For July 8

The Graduate Record Examination will be conducted at three Iowa test sites July 8.

Registration closing date for the exam is June 20.

The tests, given to prospective graduate students, are required by many graduate schools. At the University all graduate students must take the GRE aptitude test. They should also check with their respective departments to see if any advanced tests are required.

The July 8 tests will be given at the University, Drake University, Des Moines, and Loras College, Dubuque.

Application forms for the exam are available from Examinations Service, or by writing Educational Testing Service, Box 966, Princeton, N.J.

Journalism Grad Gets Cornell Job

Miss Janet K. Roberts, a 1967 graduate of the School of Journalism, has been appointed editorial assistant for news information at Cornell College, Mount Vernon.

Miss Roberts was a reporter, photographer and copy editor for The Daily Iowan and a photographer for the Hawkeye. She was a summer intern in the photographic department of the Ottumwa Courier in 1966.

She is a member of the American College Public Relations Association, the Iowa Press Photographer's Association, the University Photographers Association and Theta Sigma Phi, the national professional society for women in journalism.

Eye Doctor Group Names Dr. Blodi

Dr. Frederick C. Blodi, professor of ophthalmology, has been elected to the 12-member American Board of Ophthalmology.

The American Board of Ophthalmology is one of 19 principal medical specialty boards. The main purpose of the boards is to elevate standards in the various clinical fields of medicine.

Members of the boards conduct examinations to test the qualifications of eligible physicians and issue certificates to those who demonstrate proficiency as specialists.

Dr. Blodi received the M.D. Degree from the University of Vienna in 1940. He has held positions as a research fellow at the Eye Institute of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and as a clinical associate professor of ophthalmology at Veterans Hospital here.

Iowa City Plays Milan Here In Hawkeye League Contest

Donn Haugen will be on the mound this afternoon as the Iowa City 66ers face Milan, Ill. in a Hawkeye League contest at 5 p.m. on the Iowa Field.

Haugen, a starter on Coach Dick Schultz's Iowa varsity team this past season, posted a 2-1 record in seven games. He had an earned run average of 4.14, while walking 19 and striking out 42.

Iowa City lost its first game of the season to Davenport Tuesday, 1-0. Davenport's Mike Linden and Tom Staack gave up only one hit in seven innings. Iowa City's Jim Koenig, who like Linden and Staack is a University product, gave up seven hits, walked one and struck out eight in a losing effort.

Iowa City Coach Tom Carlson said his lineup would be about the same for today's game, with the possible exception of catcher, where Bob Henry may replace Steve Welter. Welter caught the season opener, but is expected to play primarily for the Muscatine team this summer.

The 66ers probable starting lineup will be Gerry Bruchas,

Two changes were made in the Iowa City team's plans last week. The scheduled doubleheader against Davenport Sunday, which was rained out, will not be replayed. Also, two dates were added to the Iowa City schedule. The 66ers will play Parsons College at Iowa City July 25 and at Fairfield Aug. 2.

Parsons is rated a "very good ball club" by Carlson, who added that the team finished with a 33-2 regular season mark.

Several Iowa players on the Davenport, Muscatine and Iowa City rosters will be interchanged throughout the season in a move to get the best pitching into each game and to alleviate some of the work schedule conflicts of the players.

Thus Carlson said it would be difficult to single out a power in the Hawkeye Conference because of the roster changes.

Sluggish Robinson Thinks Orioles Need Shaking Up

BALTIMORE (AP) — Outfielder Frank Robinson said Thursday there is jealousy within the ranks of the struggling Baltimore Orioles and suggested the defending world champions need "to be shaken up."

Rookie's 67 Tops 1st Round Scores In U.S. Open Golf

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Marty Fleckman, a shy young amateur from Port Arthur, Tex., unperturbed by his first Open, fired a poised three-under-par 67 Thursday in the opening round of the National Open Championship, interrupted late in the day by a torrential rainstorm.

The game's great and near-great charged the 23-year-old Walker Cup alternate like a herd of stampeding buffalo, and seven of them, including defending champion Billy Casper and heavily favored Arnold Palmer, were bunched two shots back at 69.

In the list also were South Africa's Gary Player, winner of the title two years ago; 43-year-old Art Wall Jr., fully recovered from his arthritic miseries; Juan "Chi Chi" Rodriguez, the long hitting Puerto Rican; Don January, and the former two-time U.S. amateur champion, Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., a pro of two months. They were the only players under par after close to 12 hours of wrangling with the massive, 7,015-yard, par 70 Baltusrol course.

Five players were tied at even par 70 including former British Open champion Kel Nagle of Australia and Dave Marr, the 1955 PGA king hobbling on a torn cartilage knee.

Also at par were Dutch Harrison, at 57 the oldest competitor in the tournament; Gardner Dickinson and towering George Archer.

The downturn struck the course just after Jack Nicklaus finished with a 71.

At that time, five groups were still on the course, including the fabulous, 55-year-old Ben Hogan, who was one over par with two holes to play. Play was suspended temporarily.
