Patrols Skirmish With Viet Cong In Mekong Delta

SAIGON (AP) — Skirmishing south of Saigon Tuesday showed the difficulty of clearing Communists from the Mekong delta, the canal-laced rice bowl that some military experts consider a key to victory in the Vietnamese war.

A U.S. Army-Navy task force, with support of aircraft, artillery and armored monitors, had chewed up a Viet Cong battalion in a fierce battle Monday 19 miles south of Saigon along the Rach Hui River, one of the delta's many waterways. A South Vietnamese battalion acted as a blocking force.

Spoilsman said 169 of the enemy had been killed in the action, which ebbed at midnight. Presumably most of the 300 or 400 others rounding out the battalion were wounded before they quit their riverfront bunkers under a rain of fire and the glare of parachute flares.

But patrols of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division encountered fresh opposition in a daylight resumption of the sweep, called Operation Enterprise.

The U.S. Command said there was contact for about five hours. It had no report of the results.

Twenty-eight American infantrymen were killed and 126 soldiers and sailors were wounded in the fighting Monday. Four U.S. helicopters were shot down.

This was one of four battles that day, ranging from the delta to the Da Nang sector, in which U.S. troops reported 310 of the enemy were killed. American dead totaled 49.

In the northernmost part of the country just below the demilitarized zone, Communist gunners opened up again early Tuesday on three U.S. Marine positions. Twenty Marines were reported wounded by the mortar and artillery shells.

Eshkol Indicates Desire To Meet Arab Leaders

SHARM EL SHEIKH, Sinai (AP) — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol of Israel, visiting this most remote of the Arab posts seized by Israeli troops in the Mideastern war, said Tuesday, "We want to forget the past and work for a lasting peace."

Eshkol said he was ready to meet President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, King Hussein of Jordan or any other Arab leader for peace talks "at any time, at any place, on land or at sea."

Dressed in khaki clothing and a black beret, the chief of state, now 71, flew from Jerusalem to Sharm el Sheikh, at the tip of the Sinai Peninsula, where Egyptian troops formerly stood guard at the entrance to the Strait of Tiran.

This is "the place where all the trouble started," Eshkol said, referring to Nasser's order last month closing the strait to Israeli shipping.

At the same time, he said his offer to confer with Arab leaders was not made from a position of strength and arrogance.

In a prepared statement to correspondents, the prime minister said there once had been a time when Arabs and Jews worked together.

"The Middle East has a great future if we could work together in peace again," he said. "This opportunity must not be missed."

"We do not believe in armistices. We must establish a lasting peace with friendship and security so that neither side need be afraid of the other."

House, Senate Get Bills For Financing Regents

DES MOINES (AP) — Bills proposing to appropriate differing amounts for operating State Board of Regents institutions in the coming biennium were sent to the floor in the House and Senate Tuesday.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved the $166 million recommended by the Board of Regents appropriations subcommittee.

At virtually the same time, the House Appropriations Committee sent to the floor a bill to limit Board of Regents spending to $150,151,000 for the two years starting July 1.

The proposed bills compare with the present $124 million the board has had in the two years ending the last of this month, $185 million the regents requested, and $160 million recommended by the governor.

The Senate committee approved its bills by a 19-10 vote. The vote by the House committee was 24-12 to reduce the amount allowed the Regents to $150 million.

The House was preoccupied throughout the day with budget matters. The committee's action meant that economy forces won their skirmishes both on the House floor and in committee.

The House action came in the second Appropriations Committee meeting of the day. At its first meeting, a motion to bring out a bill recommending the $150 million figure failed on a 21-21 tie vote.

After an afternoon session in which economy-minded representatives succeeded in lopping $194,000 a year off a bill for operation of the State Board of Control's

Top Soviet Leaders Boost Arab Support

MOSCOW (AP) — In Moscow, Cairo and at the United Nations the Soviet Union's top leaders pushed a three-way drive Tuesday to reinforce their support for the Arab nations against Israel. Persistent reports in Egypt told of new arms shipments from the Soviet Union.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party and the top man here, delivered a key policy statement on the Mideast to the party's top forum, the Central Committee, at a closed-door Kremlin meeting.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was in New York pushing a Soviet resolution before the United Nations demanding an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory.

Brezhnev's Remarks
Brezhnev's remarks to the Central Committee were not immediately disclosed but his speech was believed to have followed the main lines of Kosygin's address Monday to the U.N. General Assembly.

Podgorny's visit to Cairo was viewed as another spectacular Soviet move to rebuild Moscow's prestige in the Arab world.

Egyptians have been disappointed at the Soviet failure to give stronger backing to Arab charges that Israel's victory in the Mideastern War was the result of armed support by the United States and Britain.

Anti-Soviet comments — which appeared in the Egyptian press immediately after the fighting — had disappeared, however, as word spread in Cairo that arms shipments from the Soviet Union were not halted by the war.

Kosygin's Demands
Kosygin demanded that Israel be condemned for aggression, be forced to disgorge all territory it won in the early June war, and pay Arabs damages.

Informed sources said Podgorny would go on to Cairo after an overnight stop in Belgrade for talks with President Tito of Yugoslavia.

Tito, who met Podgorny at Belgrade's airport, had sided strangely with the Arab countries in the Mideastern conflict.

One report said Podgorny was accompanied by the chief of staff of the Soviet armed forces, Marshal Matvei V. Zakharov. The Foreign Ministry refused to say who had been with the president, the expected length of the visit or other details.

If Zakharov went along, then Podgorny might be ready to discuss with Nasser the question of rearming Egypt's army, which Israel smashed.

More Soviet Arms
Down the drain of war went billions of Soviet arms supplied to Egypt. Informed sources have reported that a new Soviet arms program was being launched, but it was not clear whether the Russians intended to resume the Middle East arms race on their old lavish scale.

The hurried trip of Podgorny to Cairo convinced diplomats in Moscow that the talks with Nasser would be of major policy significance.

Meanwhile at the U.N. the United States proposed the Arabs and the Israelis negotiate for peace with third-party help. At the same time, the United States rejected Kosygin's demands for punishment of Israel.

But a new note of division was injected into the emergency special session of the 122-nation assembly when top Soviet bloc delegates left the hall as Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban took the rostrum to answer charges of aggression. Eban had made a disdainful walkout on a Syrian speech earlier.

There was no organized walkout but groups of delegates have been following the practice at this session of leaving the hall in a gesture of opposition by one side to the other.

3 Persons Shot In Atlanta Riots

ATLANTA (AP) — At least three persons were shot — one fatally — Tuesday as violence erupted in a predominantly Negro neighborhood for the fourth straight night.

A spokesman at Grady Hospital confirmed three persons had been shot and said the victims included a 9-year-old boy and an elderly man.

The spokesman said the man had died. Sporadic gunfire and rock-throwing broke out in the block-long Dixie Hills shopping center, the scene of a nightly series of disturbances since Saturday.

Police reinforcements were rushed to the area.

LEON VOLKOV
"U.S.S.R. Vs. China"

Volkov Analyzes Sino-Soviet Rift In Union Lecture

By NORMA PARKER

An old Russian proverb says, "When you have a Chinese for a friend, you don't need an enemy," said Leon Volkov, Tuesday night at the Union Main Lounge in the first of the Summer Lecture Series.

World affairs are proving this more and more, he said. China's aim is to "lure the two big giants — the Soviet Union and the United States — into a clash."

However, the Soviet Union knows it has too much to lose. Herein lies the fight between Red China and the U.S.S.R., Volkov said.

Volkov, a native of the Soviet Union who defected to the United States in 1945, is Soviet affairs editor of Newsweek magazine.

The ideologic structure between the two Communist powers is falling apart, Volkov explained.

"The Chinese are now in business for themselves; they learned very early that the Soviet Union was not going to help them."

Chinese communism is of a new brand — more radical, more challenging, he explained.

The Chinese now view the Soviet Union as conservative and in a sense it is, Volkov said. The Russians don't want to get involved in any international situation which might wipe out what took years to build.

Thus the rift grows. There is no united Communist world. The split of France's Charles de Gaulle with the Western world is slight compared to the one of Red China's Mao Tse-tung with the Communists, Volkov said.

All that is left for the Soviet Union to do is to watch and to maneuver.

"Russia watches a Chinese state of 700 million people. The Soviet Union knows the Chinese are a challenge and with better weapons they would be a deadly challenge. A powerful China would talk not only with billigerent words but also with rockets."

Chances Seen For U.S. Goals In Mideast Crisis

By JANET TEAGUE

The present Mideastern situation is full of opportunities for the United States, Leon Volkov, Soviet affairs editor for Newsweek magazine, said during a press conference Tuesday afternoon.

A new group could take over at any time in the United Arab Republic (UAR) and it would be easier for the United States to develop improved relations with them if President Nasser was out of the way, Volkov said.

The United States has much more to offer the UAR than does the Soviet Union, he said. It is doubtful whether the Soviet Union has the will or ability to help the UAR rebuild their country, he added.

The Soviet Union has been sending a certain amount of arms to the UAR in recent weeks but not on a large scale. Volkov said this material was being sent so Nasser could show that he still had the support of the Soviet Union.

There have been complaints from some of the Egyptian officials that the Soviet Union is not giving enough help.

It will take the United States and the Soviet Union to exert the pressure for a solution, he said. At the present time these powers are disagreeing on what steps to take.

SMILING THROUGH IT ALL, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin waves as he arrives to attend the second day's meeting of the U.N. General Assembly emergency session on the Mideast. After listening to the often bitter exchange of charges and countercharges between Arab and Israeli spokesman Tuesday, however, the premier wasn't smiling. — AP Wirephoto

Compromise Draft Plan Sent To White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only token opposition, the House passed and sent to President Johnson Tuesday a revised draft plan which gives undergraduate college students deferments as a matter of right.

The 377-29 vote completed congressional action on a compromise version of the bill that the Senate passed last week. Although the measure omits several changes asked by a presidential study commission, Johnson is expected to sign it.

Existing authority for the military draft expires June 30 but the new legislation continues this until 1971.

The new act would permit President Johnson to put into effect his announced intention of placing the emphasis on induction of 19-year-olds. It has been an older men in the 19-26 age group.

Intention Made Clear
This change in emphasis is not written into the new law but Congress made it clear that it favors the plan, which Johnson can put into effect by regulation.

The President would be prohibited from changing — as he suggested — the present selection method by using a national lottery system. Under the new legislation, it would take a specific act of Congress to make such a change.

Any undergraduate college student who seeks a deferment would be entitled to it instead of being required to obtain approval by his local draft board.

Most boards now grant such deferments on request but to keep deferred status a student must stay in the upper half of his class and meet other standards of his school.

Deferment Expires
Deferments under the revised law will remain in effect until the student completes his undergraduate work, reaches age 24 or leaves school, whichever comes first. When one of these points is reached, the student reverts to the top of the age group most vulnerable to induction.

Graduate students would not receive automatic deferment but the bill would allow the President to defer by regulation those whose studies are deemed to be in the national interest.

Occupational deferments could be provided by presidential regulation but they would not be mandatory on local boards.

House Waives Flag Bill Wording

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House gave lopsided passage Tuesday night to a measure popularly called a "flag-burning bill" — but the word "burning" doesn't appear in the legislation.

A 385-16 vote sent to the Senate legislation to make it a federal crime to desecrate the American flag — a bill inspired in large part by congressional resentment against flag-burnings by demonstrators protesting the Vietnamese war.

The measure would set maximum penalties of a year in prison and a $1,000 fine for casting contempt on the flag by defacing, defiling, mutilating or trampling on it or any representation of it.

Similar existing laws in all 50 states would remain in effect.

Before passing the bill, the House adopted by voice vote an amendment by Rep. Edward G. Biester Jr., (R-Penn.) applying the bill only to persons who knowingly desecrate the flag.

But a parliamentary tangle, produced by action in first adopting and then rejecting an amendment by Rep. Louis C. Wyman (R-N.H.) knocked Biester's amendment out of the final version.

This same parliamentary tangle served ironically to eliminate the term "burning" from the final version.

The somewhat redfaced sponsors of the bill took the position that this omission doesn't mean that flags can be burned with impunity. They argue that burning is covered under such terms as defacing or defiling.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In today's younger generation, the so-called "sexual revolution" is bringing more of "a change in attitude than behavior," a psychiatrist said Tuesday.

"I would suggest that we are not seeing orgies or lack of control but rather a different kind of control — self-control based not on guilt or fear of disapproval but on a concept of human relations that emphasizes self-respect, human worth and human dignity," said Dr. James F. Masterson Jr. of New York.

Adolescents now, more than before, are demanding "logical reasons for ethical standard," Masterson told the American Medical Association.

Dr. Robert R. Bell, sociologist of Temple University in Philadelphia, reported increasing evidence that "a number of women may pass their husbands in sexual interest and desire."

A study of 196 college-educated wives indicates that about one in four are not satisfied with the frequency of sexual intercourse in their marriages, he said. Potentially, this may raise serious problems for many men, he said, since "there is biologically little to restrict the frequency with which women can indulge in sexual intercourse."

The older husbands may become "neither physically nor psychologically capable of satisfying her needs. It is possible that in the near future there will be an increasing number of problems in marriage centering around the lack of sexual satisfaction by the wife," Bell said.

Masterson, of Cornell University Medical College, said: "I think our fears about sexual misbehavior have led us to underestimate the fact that beginning sexual experience for many youngsters is often fraught with anguish and pain, and, therefore, can be as much a trial as a pleasure."

Welfare budget cuts are bad

It's been hot in Des Moines, and the legislators have taken to working through the dinner hour and into the evening. Perhaps that accounts for some of the bad legislation that has been considered under the gold dome recently.

Gov. Hughes last week acknowledged that legislators "are as sincere and as devoted to the public interest as I am." I agree, but I also share the Governor's opinion that some recent budget cuts reflect an "anti-people" bias which is distressing.

A case in point is the House's action in trimming back the Governor's request for the Welfare Department by $3.5 million. If the entire Legislature accepts $29.8 million as the welfare appropriation (an increase of $5.6 million), it will mean that the State Board of Social Welfare will be unable to participate in new federal programs and may have to abridge existing programs.

Child welfare health programs and administrative efforts will have to be curtailed sharply, but the Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) program would be most severely affected.

Consider what this means. Suppose a mother with one child has requested ADC. A social worker calls on her and analyzes her income and expenses according to a bureaucratic formula. The worker figures out how much the family needs to get along at a subsistence level. Her budget is computed on the basis of what it cost for food, clothing and shelter in 1962, disregarding inflation. Also disregarded is the age of the children.

Then comes the cruelest cut of all. The mother's budget, already computed at a minimum, is slashed by 18 per cent. She gets only 82 per cent of what she needs. The mother with one child receives a monthly grant of $132. What if she gets a job as a waitress or babysitter? Whatever she earns above $45 is deducted from her welfare check.

This system is so outrageously illogical that it amounts to the governments perpetuating poverty.

We, through our representatives — the welfare workers — say to the mother: "This is what we've figured you'll need to scrape by on this month, but we're only going to give you about 80 per cent of it, and if you get a job, we won't let you keep all of your salary if it's over the limit."

This is the way the system operates, and it has been condemned by qualified critics for years.

Last week Rep. Elmer Den Herder (R-Sioux City) was quoted as saying of welfare recipients, "We want to make these people stand on their own feet."

Rep. John Mowry (R-Marshalltown) commented, "They ought to do something with these men who don't have any sense of social responsibility — send them to the penitentiary, as far as I'm concerned."

The fact is, many county attorneys in Iowa do prosecute those "men who don't have any social responsibility."

But, it must be remembered, for example in ADC cases, that many fathers are incapacitated or dead. The welfare budget is not exclusively the result of socially irresponsible persons. A recent national investigation showed that less than one per cent of those on public welfare are able to work. In Iowa a survey showed only 3.7 per cent able to work, most of them women, and here in Johnson County the figure is less than 2 per cent.

Any glib politician can rattle off slogans about getting the chiselers off the welfare rolls and onto the pay-rolls, but in reality it is a difficult process. Nonetheless, some commendable programs are now underway to improve the lot of those persons regarded as unemployable. The Work Experience Program, operated through the existing social welfare structure, is a War on Poverty plan aimed at the really down and out recipient who for some reason has never been able to get or hold a job. These are the persons outside the usual scope of the state employment service or vocational rehabilitation programs. They include former mental patients, alcoholics and transients who require a whole new appreciation both of work and of themselves. Johnson County has such a program.

That is a demanding challenge for any social worker. It calls for incredible patience and skill, yet it is an indictment of the over-all welfare scandal that social welfare workers are paid far below what they are worth. The government asks that they deal with the most depressing and sometimes even dangerous persons, and yet reimburses them at a level where they might themselves qualify for a poverty program.

In Johnson County a Public Welfare Worker II, who must be on call 24 hours a day, earns $5,400 a year. A B.A. degree is required for the job, but it need not be in a field connected with social welfare. As a result, the turnover among state welfare workers is as high as morale is low. There was an abortive campaign last year to organize a union of public welfare workers to assert more influence in policy decisions, but the State Board of Social Welfare quashed the budding drive. Just as with teachers' unions, it's my opinion that the lot of the welfare worker will continue to be wretched until they organize and demand better pay and personnel policies.

During the House Appropriations Committee debate on the welfare budget last week some representatives complained that there were too many idle public welfare workers. Rep. Harry Gittins (R-Council Bluffs) complained, "In my county we have so many child welfare workers they're in danger of stumbling over each other."

It's difficult to believe that allegations of laziness on the part of welfare workers are true. Most workers stagger under such oppressively heavy case loads and must fuss with so much red tape that any talent they might have for counseling clients is dissipated. If it really is true that workers are stumbling over each other, the state board should re-evaluate its personnel distribution and reassign workers where they are most needed. The state department is soon to be merged into the new Department of Social Services, and hopefully this new organization will eliminate any duplication of effort. Creation of the new department may, in fact, streamline operations to the ultimate benefit of welfare recipients.

But the most effective way of helping the mothers, children and others out of the darkness and misery of poverty would be to grant them the minimum economic support they need to stand tall and breathe freely. I hope the Legislature keeps this in mind. Gordon Young

Middle East war to become movie

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — There is no doubt that a movie will be made on the recent Israeli-Arab war. Two producers have already submitted titles. Darryl Zanuck wants to call his "The Shortest Day," and Otto Preminger would title his "Son of Exodus."

A third company is also thinking about a film called "One-Eyed Moshe," but the reason they can't go into production is that they're having script trouble.

When the screen writer submitted his story outline to the producer, the producer called him in and angrily said, "What kind of a nut do you think I am? The public will never believe the Israelis took Egypt, Jordan and Syria in four days."

"I know it sounded silly when I wrote it, chief, but it's based on fact. We can't fool with history."

"Who says we can't? John Wayne, Kirk Douglas and Gregory Peck couldn't take Egypt, Jordan and Syria in four days. Where's the conflict?"

"Well, I've tried to weave a fictitious story in there. You see, we have a one-eyed general played by Sammy Davis Jr., of course, and his driver, an Israeli sergeant, played by Frank Sinatra. The picture starts off in Tel Aviv with the general telling his driver to take him to the front. In the next shot we see them in Gaza. This is taken the titles."

"They've taken Gaza and we haven't even had the titles yet? You must be out of your mind."

"In Gaza, Sinatra meets Elizabeth Taylor, who plays an Israeli machine gunner."

BUCHWALD

She asks Gen. Moshe if she can go with him to the front. The general says all right, but asks her to keep her head down. The next scene they're in the Sinai desert and they've captured an Egyptian armored division commanded by Omar Sharif.

"Sharif is wounded and Sinatra wants to kill him. But Taylor insists on nursing him back to health. Sharif is put in the jeep with Gen. Moshe and they drive off for the front."

"The jeep's getting kind of crowded, isn't it?"

"Now hear me out, chief. They all arrive at the Suez Canal and Taylor, who is hot and dirty, decides to take a swim in the canal. But she doesn't have a bathing suit. So she makes everyone turn his back, except for Gen. Moshe who only has to put his hand over his good eye. Taylor goes into the water."

"While they've got their eyes shut, Sharif steals a pistol out of the jeep and is about to shoot Gen. Moshe and Sinatra when Dean Martin jumps Sharif and wrestles the pistol out of his hand."

"Where did Dean Martin come from?"

"He was a drunken Suez Canal boat pilot left over from 1956. He says he's been trying to get home ever since. So they take him along with them and drive down to the Gulf of Aqaba where Paul Newman is in command. It turns out Taylor was an old girl friend of Newman's, but he married Eva Marie Saint, a Gentile woman who stayed in Israel after Otto Preminger made 'Exodus.'"

"Sinatra wants to kill him, too, but before he gets a chance, Gen. Moshe orders everyone back into the jeep to take him to Old Jerusalem where Peter O'Toole personally surrenders the Arab legion to Gen. Moshe. Sharif, realizing the war is lost, surrenders, too, and Sinatra offers him an Israeli cigarette, showing that even in war all men are brothers."

"Taylor, seeing Sinatra's gesture, puts down her machine gun and kisses him while both the Arabs and the Israelis cheer."

"Then Gen. Moshe jumps back into his jeep and yells, 'Take me to Damascus!'"

"The picture ends with the jeep heading up into the Syrian hills with Taylor riding on a fender and Sharif and O'Toole waving goodbye."

"Okay," the producer says. "If it doesn't work we can always sell it to television."

Chicago to have an art be-in CHICAGO — Museum-goers may be in for a few surprises when Chicago's Museum of Contemporary Art opens in October.

Instead of pictures hanging on walls and pieces of sculpture standing around to be seen, the museum will feature works to be experienced — a sort of an amusement park of the fine arts.

This means that the works will not be labeled with the familiar interdiction "Do Not Touch," which is seen in most museums.

The title of the opening show is perhaps indicative of what can be expected from the museum. It is, "Pictures to be Read/Poetry to be Seen."

From the description of the show by the director of the museum, it will consist of just that.

Jan van der Marck, 37, a native of the Netherlands, discussed in an interview the breakdown of boundaries between the arts and their growing inter-relationship, which will be the focus of the museum.

One of the things already selected for the first exhibit is what Van der Marck describes as "an environmental assemblage resembling a big book," by Allyson Knowles.

Rather than standing at a distance to see the work, as in traditional art shows, the viewer will be invited to crawl inside the assemblage and move around.

Visually, there will be words, texts and notations inside to be read; but there also will be a tape recording of things to be heard. Each viewer also will become a part of the book because his own movements and observations will be recorded while he is inside.

The whole show would feature works to be picked up, played with, reshuffled or manipulated by the viewers, Van der Marck said.

"There is an increasing inter-relationship between painters, sculptors, poets, playwrights, performers, technicians," Van der Marck explained, and this will be explored in the museum's exhibits.

"Artists are breaking down barriers," he says. "It is not just the total impression. The artist forces you to stick your nose in it — participate."

The new museum is being established on fertile ground. Chicago museums already attract crowds. The Art Institute alone attracts more visitors each year than the combined home games of the two Chicago baseball teams — the Cubs and the White Sox.

The Art Institute, while it does have shows featuring contemporary artists, is best known for its collection of earlier art works, particularly the works of the French Impressionists.

The group backing the new museum was formed two or three years ago. The museum board is comprised of 30 members, a number of them important private art collectors. And they are not all Chicagoans. They range geographically from New York to Iowa.

There will be no regional favoritism toward Chicago artists, says Van der Marck. Works to be exhibited will be selected for "quality and relevance" regardless of the home town of the artist, he says.

The museum will be opened in an office building, which has housed the offices of Playboy Clubs International, at 237 E. Ontario St., just off Michigan Avenue, in the midst of the chic shops and numerous private galleries.

This building, which will be remodeled, has 20,000 square feet, of which 11,000 will be used for exhibition space.

Van der Marck said the museum would be devoted primarily to living artists, but would not exclude artists who had died if they had been an important influence on contemporary art.

Before a work can be exhibited in the museum, he said, "it will have to have human involvement. If there is no human angle, we are not interested."

He defined contemporary art as "whatever is relevant to our lives today, whatever ideas seem to be valid and pertinent and have bearing on the life we're living."

At first the museum would concentrate on getting a first-rate staff and the best exhibitions, he said. Later it may seek to build a permanent collection.

But, he adds, "Buying is a luxury. Collecting is a rich man's hobby."

To the Editor:
I'd like to know why it is that here in Iowa City, miles away from any major industry, there is a daily shower of soot as heavy as in some of the crummiest sections of the East coast.

Curious how it always seems to be heaviest downwind of the University power plant.

Swede Sees America First

What does a Swedish professor of art who wants to spend a few months in "really genuine" America do?

In the case of Sven Sandstron, professor of art at the University of Lund, Sweden, he comes to the University School of Art to teach during the summer and fall sessions.

Sandstron said recently that he had also accepted the invitation of Frank Seiberling, professor of art and director of the School of Art, to teach here because he hoped to find time to finish his book, History of Modern Art, which will be used in Swedish universities.

Sandstron is teaching history of art this summer. In the fall semester he will conduct a series of seminars for graduate students on symbolism art and an intermediate course on renaissance art.

Sandstron, who occasionally writes on art for Dagens Nyheter, Stockholm's leading newspaper, said he was impressed with the American system of universities.

According to Sandstron, Sweden takes pride in her democratic principles, but as far as higher education is concerned, those principles are not practiced as much as in the United States.

Sandstron also expressed interest in the way students in the United States move from one university to another, a situation which does not occur in Sweden.

Sandstron studied in Sweden at the University of Lund and in Paris. Five years ago he spent six weeks in the United States visiting museums.

Prof To Discuss Norway's Folk Art

"Norwegian Folk Painting" will be the topic of a lecture by Marion Nelson, associate professor of Scandinavian art at the University of Minnesota, in the Union Illinois Room at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Sponsored by the art area of the Union Board, the lecture will be open to the public, and no tickets will be required.

Dr. Nelson has been director of the Norwegian-American Museum in Decorah since 1965. He earned a Ph.D. degree from the University of Minnesota in 1960. His doctoral dissertation was on contemporary mural painting in Norway. Nelson has spent four years in Scandinavia studying art and literature.

UI Motion Picture Receives Award

A motion picture about the problems and achievements of the blind, produced by the University and narrated by actor Danny Kaye, has won an award in competition with some 800 non-theatrical films judged by the Council on International Non-Theatrical Events (CINE).

"Blindness Is . . .", a film about the Iowa Braille and Sight-Saving School at Vinton made by the University Motion Picture Production Unit, has won one of CINE's Golden Eagle awards and has been entered by the United States in the fifth International Educational Film Festival this summer in Teheran, Iran.

The Motion Picture Production Unit is a service agency in the Division of Extension and University Services.

CORRECTION

July 26 is the deadline for all presently enrolled students who have on their records a grade of incomplete (I) to finish their work. After this date they will automatically receive an F if their work is not finished and turned in to their instructors. The deadline date of June 26 stated Tuesday in The Daily Iowan was an error.

Critic Urges I.C. Facelift

Mrs. H.C. Harshbarger, 6 Longview Knoll, a landscape architect and garden writer, urged the Iowa City Kiwanis Club Tuesday to undertake a beautification project and to support the Iowa City Beautification Committee.

Mrs. Harshbarger, co-chairman of the beautification committee of Citizens For a Better Iowa City, presented an illustrated lecture, "City-Area Beautification."

She said the committee's goals are high standards in architecture, maintenance of local streets and parks and coordination of groups seeking to preserve beautiful landscape and landmarks.

The committee seeks to stimulate the city and its citizens to make improvements on public and private property, she said.

Mrs. Harshbarger said the University was doing its part for area beautification and the city must keep up.

"In recent years the city has bought land for city parks, appropriated money to improve existing parks, and developed a master plan for planting new trees," she said. "Our first obligation is to encourage people in local government and planning to continue improving local landscapes."

YRs Don't Want Increased Control

OMAHA — GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss has warned that the Young Republican National Federation is not likely to change its constitution to strengthen senior party control over its organization.

Tom Van Sickle of Kansas, Young Republican chairman, said at a news conference he had told Bliss it would be extremely difficult to muster the required two-thirds vote.

Youth Corps Furnishes UI 14 Workers

The University has hired 10 girls and four boys enrolled in the Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC). Mike Edwards, Johnson County NYC coordinator said Monday.

The 14 hired by the University are among 22 young people enrolled in the program in Johnson County.

To be eligible for the program, one must be between the ages of 16 and 21 and come from a family having an income within a designated poverty range, Edwards said.

The NYC has found jobs for the teenagers with such non-profit organizations as the Iowa City Public Library, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Iowa State Conservation Commission, Edwards said.

The teenagers are paid $1.25 an hour by the organization that employs them. They work 32 hours a week and attend a group meeting one day each week.

At these meetings, they receive practical tips on how to get a good job or on personal hygiene, Edwards said.

Girls are usually assigned jobs as typists or file clerks. Boys are assigned to work crews.

Ecuador Seals U.S. Tennis Fate

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP)—Ecuador tennis team over Texas Cliff Richey salvaged a final singles victory over Miguel Olvera Tuesday that made the final score 3-2 in favor of the jubilant Ecuador tennis team over the United States in the American Zone final of the Davis Cup tournament. The last loss, which had no significance, failed to dim the enthusiasm of the home forces, still celebrating their amazing upset of the favored Americans.

Richey, 20, of San Angelo, Tex., defeated the 26-year-old Olvera 5-7, 6-4, 7-5, 4-6, 6-0.

The clinching triumph was supplied Monday by 21-year-old Francisco Guzman when he tumbled Arthur Ashe, America's top-ranked amateur, 6-6, 6-4, 6-2, 0-6, 6-3, for a 3-1 advantage in the best-of-five series.

On Sunday Guzman and Olvera combined to whip the heavily favored doubles team of Clark Graebner and Marty Riessen 6-6, 9-7, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, and Olvera topped Ashe.

Rick, an NBA All-Star who led the San Francisco Warriors to the Western Division championship, told a sports conference he signed a "very lucrative contract" with Oakland, coached by his father-in-law, Bruce Hale.

Half a million dollars for three years, including possibly a share in the Oakland franchise, was the lure speculated on by most sports writers.

The major Oakland owner, singer-actor Pat Boone, personally dealt with and signed Barry, father-in-law Hale keeping in the background.

Barry, 23, who won All-America honors at the University of Miami under Hale's coaching, averaged 35.6 points a game for the Warriors last season, his second in the NBA. He was voted

Oakland Entices NBA Star Barry From Warriors

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Rick Barry, sensational scoring champion of the National Basketball Association, jumped to the new American Basketball Association Tuesday and drew the threat of a $10-million lawsuit.

Rick, an NBA All-Star who led the San Francisco Warriors to the Western Division championship, told a sports conference he signed a "very lucrative contract" with Oakland, coached by his father-in-law, Bruce Hale.

Half a million dollars for three years, including possibly a share in the Oakland franchise, was the lure speculated on by most sports writers.

The major Oakland owner, singer-actor Pat Boone, personally dealt with and signed Barry, father-in-law Hale keeping in the background.

Barry, 23, who won All-America honors at the University of Miami under Hale's coaching, averaged 35.6 points a game for the Warriors last season, his second in the NBA. He was voted the outstanding player in the league's All-Star game.

Warrior owner Franklin Mieuli, expressing amazement at Barry's defection, said that move would topple "the very structure of professional sports."

Mieuli declared, "Obviously, there will be a big suit filed against Barry, the Oakland club and the rival league."

Mieuli already has filed a $1-million suit against the ABA, its New Orleans club and Clyde Lee, reserve forward who jumped from the Warriors to New Orleans.

How much would Mieuli ask in suing Barry and Oakland?

"We'll have to work it out," he said. "But if a fourth forward on your team is worth $1 million, $10 million doesn't seem unreasonable for Rick."

"If a player can move about — ignoring the reserve clause — nobody could build a team. I feel the reserve clause has stood up in court," Mieuli added.

Iowa Names New Coaches

Gary Kurdelmeier, former Hawkeye national collegiate wrestling champion, has been appointed assistant wrestling coach at the University; and Donald Spencer, 1967 University of Minnesota graduate and swimming star, has been named assistant swimming coach.

Athletic Director Forest Evashevski announced their appointments Tuesday. Kurdelmeier will report July 1; and Spencer, who will be working toward a master's degree, will start duties in September.

Kurdelmeier was the Big 10 Conference 177-pound champion in 1957, and in 1958, won the NCAA 177-pound championship. He earned a bachelor's degree at the University in 1959 and his master's in 1962.

Kurdelmeier has been coaching at Jefferson High School of Cedar Rapids during the past year and prior to that, was coach and athletic director at Iowa Falls High School. He will work with head Coach Dave McCuskey on a full-time basis.

Spencer, who will aid Coach Bob Allen as a part-time coach, specialized in the butterfly event for Minnesota's swimming teams. He placed well in Big 10 and NCAA meets.

Jury Convicts Ali Of Draft Evasion — Gets 5-Year Term —

HOUSTON (AP)—Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, unbeaten in a glamorous boxing career, was convicted Tuesday by an all-white jury on a charge of refusing induction into the military service and a federal judge promptly sentenced him to five years in prison.

All, 25, in a surprise move, asked Judge Joe Ingraham to sentence him immediately after the jury deliberated only 21 minutes.

Standing erect in front of the gray-haired jurist, All said in a subdued tone, "I'd like to say I would appreciate it if the court would sentence me now instead of waiting."

However, the maneuver appeared to be a formality since attorneys immediately said they will appeal the case and All left the court on the same $5,000 bond he had been under since May 8 when he was indicted.

All, descendant of a runaway Kentucky slave, had challenged the legality of his 1A classification on grounds he is a Black Muslim minister.

The verdict by the six men and six women thus ended a trial that had lasted less than two days and had included less than five hours of testimony by only eight witnesses. Ali did not take the stand.

As the jury told the judge it had received a verdict, All opened his big, brown, expressive eyes widely, staring across the courtroom. He was asked by Ingraham to stand, an order with which he quickly complied.

When the word "guilty" was heard from the jury foreman, All lowered his eyes, then leaned over and coughed faintly. Then Hayden Covington, his chief attorney, "We're ready for sentencing now."

Part-time boxer All had refused to take the traditional induction symbol of one step forward April 28 in Houston. He was indicted May 8 and his attorneys built his defense around contentions the heavyweight champion spends only 10 per cent of his time as a boxer and 90 per cent as a minister.
