

—Repeat Planned For Sunday—

Summit Meeting Fruitful

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — Three hours of intense personal talks between President Johnson and Premier Alexei Kosygin Friday brought some progress toward a U.S.-Soviet understanding on principles of a permanent peace settlement between Israel and the Arab states.

They agreed to meet here again Sunday. Johnson and Kosygin met for 5 hours and 20 minutes in this college town. Three hours of that time they were closeted with advisers, using only their interpreters for the most private possible conversation.

Then, at Kosygin's suggestion, they agreed to meet again Sunday at 1:30 p.m. EDT.

This was an almost certain sign that some turning for the better in U.S.-Soviet relations must be at hand, despite angry outbreaks of differences over the Middle East and Vietnam.

Word of the Middle East policy development came from White House press secretary George Christian, who said an understanding developed between the two leaders that "Israel does, of course, exist as a nation."

Policy Declared

Actually this was declared policy for both the United States and the Soviet Union. Christian said that the two disagreed on four other points of President Johnson's principles for peace in the Middle East, but he added: "It is the President's hope and Secretary Rusk's hope that on these other matters a consensus can be reached."

Johnson made a speech in Washington Monday setting forth five principles for Mideast settlement.

They included the proposition that the right of Israel to exist as a state — the fact that it does exist — must be recognized by the Arabs if peace is to be secure. Johnson's other points: limits on the arms race, political independence and territorial integrity for all, right of use of international waterways (Suez Canal and Gulf of Aqaba); and justice for Arab refugees from Israel.

Christian reported it was Kosygin who suggested that Johnson and he should continue the meeting.

The talk covered a wide range of U.S.-Soviet issues and general world issues, generating an atmosphere of improving relations which far exceeded American hopes when Johnson came to Glassboro Friday morning.

Vietnam Discussed

Subjects covered included the war in Vietnam, a pending proposal for a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, and U.S. proposals to limit the race with the Soviet Union in ballistic missiles.

Christian reported that in the conference Rusk took an optimistic line on a nonproliferation treaty, expressing the hope that a draft — being discussed between the U.S. and the Soviet Union — be put before the Geneva disarmament conference soon. The treaty has taken on added meaning with Red China's explosion of a hydrogen bomb.

Kosygin returned to New York after the meeting while Johnson took off for a speech in Los Angeles and then Texas.

The agenda remains wide open for the two leaders when they resume their talks Sunday. They could extend the talks over the whole spectrum of world problems and Soviet-U.S. relations.

President Speaks

Emerging to the front lawn of the 2½-story mansion which was chosen suddenly for this meeting, President Johnson told reporters: "Chairman Kosygin and I have met since we arrived a little after 11 o'clock today. We have exchanged views on a number of international questions. Among these were the Middle East, Vietnam, the question of nonproliferation of nuclear weapons. We agreed it is very important to reach agreement on a nonproliferation treaty."

A surprising development was the sudden ovation this town gave to both leaders. Johnson escorted Kosygin to his limousine where they shook hands with the same cordiality which had marked their handshake at the outset of their conference.

After Kosygin got into his car for the trip back to New York, a crowd of students and citizens of this sleepy academic town of 12,000 gave the Russian leader an enthusiastic cheer and surrounded his car so closely that his driver was unable to get moving until security men cleared a path.

Then the crowd began shouting, "We want Johnson!"

34 Die In Airline Crash; Copter Collision Kills 21

BLOSSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Thirty passengers and a crew of four were killed Friday afternoon in the fiery crash of a Mohawk Airlines jet in a heavily wooded area near here.

Reporters at the scene of the crash said wreckage of the twin-engine jet was strewn in bits and pieces over an area about the size of a football field.

A spokesman for Mohawk said the FBI was investigating the possibility of sabotage.

The plane, Flight 40, originated in Syracuse, N.Y., and had stopped in Elmira, N.Y., enroute to Washington, D.C., its termination point.

A spokesman for the airlines in Utica, N.Y., said most of the passengers boarded in Elmira.

Their identities were not known immediately.

A temporary morgue was set up in this north-central Pennsylvania village's fire department.

Scott Jenkins, 17, of Blossburg, who was playing tennis near his home, told a newsman that he "heard the jet engines screaming just before" the plane went down.

"It disappeared behind the trees and there was a terrible explosion," Jenkins said.

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two helicopters collided in flight during a training exercise Friday, carrying 21 Marines to their death and injuring 14 others, six critically.

The crash occurred at the New River Marine Air Facility, a helicopter port used for training crews for Vietnam duty and for acclimating troops in the use of helicopters for assault purposes.

Involved were an HUE-1 helicopter and a CH-53A "Sea Stallion," both of a type used extensively in the Vietnam fighting.

Col. Thomas Tulipane, commander of Marine Air Group 26, to which both 'copters were attached, said the "Sea Stallion" carried a crew of four and 29 enlisted men who were enrolled in the Marine military subject program.

Col. Tulipane said the "Sea Stallion" was coming in for a landing, in which the troopers were to leave the 'copter quickly and assault a simulated pillbox.

When the craft was about 500 feet above a runway, the other helicopter rose from the runway. It hit the tail of the troop-carrying 'copter and both went out of control. They crashed and burst into flames in a wooded area at the end of the runway.

Both pilots in the HUE-1 were among those killed. The pilots of the "Sea Stallion" were among eight who suffered minor injuries.

Senate Unit Strikes College From Bill

DES MOINES (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee disagreed Friday with House action on State Board of Regents appropriations for major construction in the next two years.

The board requested $55 million and Gov. Harold E. Hughes recommended $30 million.

The House passed a bill calling for $40 million, including money to begin building a new four-year college in western Iowa.

The Senate committee reported the bill to the floor Friday, but with an amendment reducing it to $30 million and striking out the new school and other items the House added. The measure will be debated in the Senate next week.

Police Recover Car Abandoned By McClelland

Iowa City police have recovered the 1967 Camaro Chevrolet abandoned here by Hubert B. McClelland, the Texan being held in Cedar Rapids on murder charges in connection with Wednesday's triple slaying and kidnaping.

The car was found at Jim's Standard service station, Burlington and Clinton Streets.

The Texas-registered car, owned by the Hertz Rent-A-Car System, will be turned over to the firm's Iowa City office after examination by authorities.

Police here began their search for the auto Thursday afternoon after being tipped off by Cedar Rapids police, who said McClelland had told them of leaving the car in Iowa City Wednesday.

Meanwhile, in Cedar Rapids, the investigation in the apparently senseless murder which took the lives of three Iowans, continued.

Linn County Sheriff Walter A. Grant said McClelland is being held alone in a cell in the Linn County jail.

"He has been quiet," said the sheriff. "He hasn't created any disturbances."

McClelland was specifically charged with slaying Mrs. Charles Schwab, 41, Belle Plaine.

She was shot after her car was forced off a gravel road near Elberon. The gunman then drove off with her daughter, Christine, 11, and Christine's cousin, Julie Braksiek, 11.

McClelland also is accused of shooting Leland Skoog, 55, Elberon, and Skoog's son, Garith, 24, when they offered aid.

The two girls were found in the trunk of the Skoog car when McClelland meekly gave himself up to officers in Cedar Rapids early Thursday. The girls were unharmed.

News In Brief

CALUMET (AP) — A 5-year-old Iowa girl missing almost 24 hours was found alive Friday night about seven miles from where she was last seen near this Upper Michigan community. State police said Christine Hemken of Le Claire, Iowa, was found on a rural road by a 17-year-old vacationer.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Johnson said Friday night he and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin agreed at their New Jersey summit talks that both want "a world of peace for our grandchildren."

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy bombers attacked the Nam Dinh electric power plant south of Hanoi Friday for the second straight day and U.S. warplanes struck railroad yards and a surface-to-air missile site in North Vietnam.

Young GOP Head Is Conservative From Tennessee

OMAHA (AP) — Entrenched conservatives rolled over party moderates Friday to elect Jack McDonald of Nashville, Tenn., as Young Republican National Federation chairman.

McDonald, who campaigned as a conservative and for independence of the youth organization from domination by the senior Republican National Committee, succeeds Tom Van Sickle of Fort Scott, Kan.

The new chairman's selection for a two-year term which spans next year's presidential nominating convention seemed to point toward organized Young Republican opposition to a moderate candidate such as Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

There was a great deal of enthusiasm among the conservatives for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, principal speaker at the convention's windup banquet.

McDonald told a news conference that as YR chairman he would not promote any presidential candidate before the convention. He said he regarded Romney and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as leading contenders at this point for the 1968 nomination. But he said there are "dozens of others" who would make a strong race against President Johnson.

As for the Young Republicans, McDonald said they wanted a "measure of autonomy" for their organization. This should not be a servant-boss relationship with the National Committee, he said. "We have to have a responsible voice in policy-making. If we don't have that then we don't have anything but a label, and you can't attract young people with a label. After all, we are not children, and we have some ideas."

Reagan Blasts LBJ On Mideast, Vietnam

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California addressed a conservative-dominated Young Republican National Federation convention Friday with slashing criticism of President Johnson's policies in Vietnam and the Middle East.

Reagan accused Johnson of "indecision and vacillation" in the Israeli-Arab crisis, and proposed expansion of the Asian war by the mining of North Vietnam's Haiphong harbor.

By TERRY TAYLOR

If summer studying is getting you down, don't wait to be sent up the academic river.

Cool it, and paddle up yourself by taking advantage of the University Canoe House which opened Thursday.

It is located just north of the University Theatre on the west side of the Iowa River.

Enterprising outdoorsmen and women can paddle up the river to Coralville, portage around the Coralville City Dam, and then paddle up the Coralville Reservoir Dam. The distance one goes up the river depends only on the number of portages (that's when the canoe is carried) one wants to make.

In case the canoeist wishes to return the same day, he need only get someone who doesn't mind a canoe on top of his car to drive him to the Coralville Reservoir, and then paddle back to the Canoe House. If the canoeist is in lousy physical shape this is better because it's downstream all the way.

Senate Lowers Boom On Dodd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) was censured by his peers Friday for spending personally money raised politically. The Senate then dropped a second misconduct charge against him.

The censure verdict was returned on a 92-5 vote. Dodd thus became the sixth senator in U.S. history censured or formally condemned by his colleagues. But he was the second man to be punished by the 90th Congress for misconduct.

Dodd voted against his own censure, registering his vote at the clerk's desk. Then he walked from the chamber as his colleagues solemnly announced their positions.

He did not return for the final minutes of the nine-day debate when the Senate was weighing a proposal by Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) that it dismiss a charge that Dodd billed both the government and private organizations for the same travel.

Amendment Adopted

Ellender's amendment was adopted 51 to 45, and the second count of the Senate ethics committee's censure resolution was dropped.

Dodd did not vote on the Ellender move. But he did return to the floor during the Senate's final, formal vote — adopting the ethics committee resolution as altered by the Ellender amendment. The vote on that question, a formality, was 92 to 5, identical to the initial censure vote.

In these two votes, Dodd's only supporters were Sens. Russell B. Long (D-La.), Abraham A. Ribicoff (D-Conn.), Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) and John Tower (R-Tex.).

After the final vote, Dodd arose and told the Senate: "I feel a grave mistake was done to me."

He added that he felt he had done no wrong and would carry on his work "as long as the people of my state permit me to do so."

Decision Grave

The Senate's decision was a grave, perhaps fatal, political blow to the two-term senator who vowed in advance he would remain in the Senate and seek a third term in 1970.

It does not, however, deprive him of his seniority, committee assignments or other prerogatives of a senator. The real punishment will be whatever stigma attaches to the Senate judgment.

Dodd was spared the fate of Adam Clayton Powell, the Negro congressman excluded by the House when Congress convened Jan. 10. Powell, who has since been reelected to the Harlem seat he was denied, is fighting his case in the federal courts.

Sex Is Not Everything, Pope Says To Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said in a 13,000-word encyclical Friday he recognized the loneliness and renunciations of celibacy but was keeping the centuries-old tradition of an unmarried Roman Catholic priesthood.

"The sexual instinct is not all that man has," he said.

His encyclical letter to all the bishops and priests of his church, entitled "Sacerdotalis Celibatus" — Priestly Celibacy — was a strong rejection of growing pressure to allow Catholic priests to take wives.

Priests in growing numbers, including some leading scholars, have put aside their celibate vows and married in the past few years. Impatience for change has marked many church areas following the 1962-65 Vatican Council.

The Pope took note of troubled consciences and perplexed priests. He said he had looked at "opinions and petitions which have come to us from all over the world, notably from some pastors."

But he said, in effect, that sex wasn't everything and that man could master himself if properly motivated in the service of God.

"The present law of celibacy should today continue to be firmly linked to the ecclesiastical ministry," he said.

He said celibacy, which has been mandatory for the Latin Church since the 5th century, "retains its value undiminished even in our time when mentality and structures have undergone such profound change."

Senate Restores Welfare Funds

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Senate restored funds for Gov. Harold E. Hughes' recommended welfare spending program when it passed a welfare bill 33-15 Friday.

The governor asked for $33.9 million to finance various welfare programs in the next two years, but the House passed the bill to spend only $29.9 million. It returns to the House for consideration of the Senate version.

The Senate also adopted an amendment establishing a work training program for physically and mentally able persons, age 18 to 65, who are members of families receiving aid to dependent children payments.

The bill would require them to take some sort of training or hold a job, if training is available and would not interfere with child care, to remain eligible for aid.

The amendment, by Sen. David Stanley (R-Muscatine) would require the State Welfare Department to set up a training program to "encourage the development of work skills and work habits" to encourage ADC recipients to become self-supporting.

The state could pay the trainees for expenses of the training, such as transportation and baby sitting.

Flag bill is irrational

First it was draft card burning. Now, almost, it's flag desecration. The government of the United States is taking the position that the destruction of certain pieces of paper or certain pieces of cloth is severe enough to justify long prison sentences and huge fines to those who do the destroying.

The concern now is with the flag. The U.S. House of Representatives has passed (385-16) a bill to make desecration of the American flag an offense punishable by a $1,000 fine and a year in prison. Support for such legislation was motivated by the burning of flags at a recent demonstration in New York against the Vietnamese war.

The issue, of course, is a very emotional one. It is of the type that is not easy for some of us younger people to understand. Most of us were born after the period of rampant nationalism had already begun to be eclipsed. The remnants of this nationalism are the cause of the emotional ism surrounding the flag desecration issue today.

But we should try to understand the people who have such an emotional attachment to our country — the type of attachment in which the flag serves as a symbol of attachment. And we should respect such purely emotional attachment despite the fact that we don't share and don't even understand it by not destroying this symbol that is all-important to some people.

At the same time we should do everything we can to oppose the passage of such irrational legislation. One of the 16 representatives on our side on this issue was John Culver (D-Iowa), of the Second Congressional District (Cedar Rapids). He should be congratulated.

The Senate has yet to act on the measure. Letters to our senators might help develop opposition to the bill. Write them. If enough opposition does develop, the Senate will defeat this legislation. We should all hope so. Bill Neubrough

What's with you, Texas?

The killings late Wednesday of three people in the Cedar Rapids area and the arrest of a Texas man in connection with them lead me to ask, what's with you, Texas? Regardless of whether this man being held in Cedar Rapids is guilty of the crimes with which he is charged, I might ask what do you do, Texas, (if anything) to make seemingly so many of your people perform hideous acts? Are you still an old West wasteland where gun slingers walk the streets terrorizing the people, or are you — as everyone would like to think — a modern, civilized and law-abiding member of the 20th century?

In the past few years Texas has supplied this country with some of the most horrible and senseless murders and/or murderers in our history.

In 1963, a young man named Lee Harvey Oswald, then living in Texas, established himself in that elite group of men who can lay claim to having killed a President of the United States. In that same year another Texas resident, in turn, shot and killed Oswald. When that man, Jack Ruby, killed Oswald, he also killed any hope of finding out exactly why and how, and indeed, whether Oswald actually killed the President.

For awhile there was a lull, and Texas seemed to go back to normal — whatever that is for Texas.

Then last July another man who had moved to Texas as a young boy and completed nine grades of school there killed eight student nurses in Chicago.

That man, Richard Speck, will probably very soon die for his crime — a crime which he is convinced he committed but about which he says he can remember nothing. It is still possible to find out whether Texas — particularly Dallas where he lived — did anything to make Speck the way he is and do the things he did.

Even before the shock of the murders in Chicago had worn off, another man in Texas went on a rampage. Charles Whitman, a 25-year-old honor student at the University of Texas, climbed to the top of a university building in Austin last Aug. 1 and shot 44 persons.

And now, frightfully close to home, another Texan is accused of killing three people. In a period of about six hours Wednesday night Hubert McClelland is accused of shooting a 42-year-old Belle Plaine housewife — in full view of her daughter and niece, both 11-years-old — and a 55-year-old Tama County farmer and his 24-year-old son.

McClelland is in jail in Cedar Rapids. Under Iowa law he cannot be executed if found guilty of the crimes. It is hoped, should he be found guilty, that he can be used in find out whether there is something in Texas that makes men do these things. Is the atmosphere in Texas conducive to producing murderers? Do people there think differently about a person's right to live? Or are these five cases simply coincidental?

A brief look at the World Almanac may help us to answer some of these questions — or it may bring up some more questions which we are unable to stomach.

Here are the rounded-off figures of the 1960 populations of Texas' four largest cities and the 1965 record of murders in those cities:

Houston	940,000	139
Dallas	680,000	116
San Antonio	590,000	53
Fort Worth	360,000	57

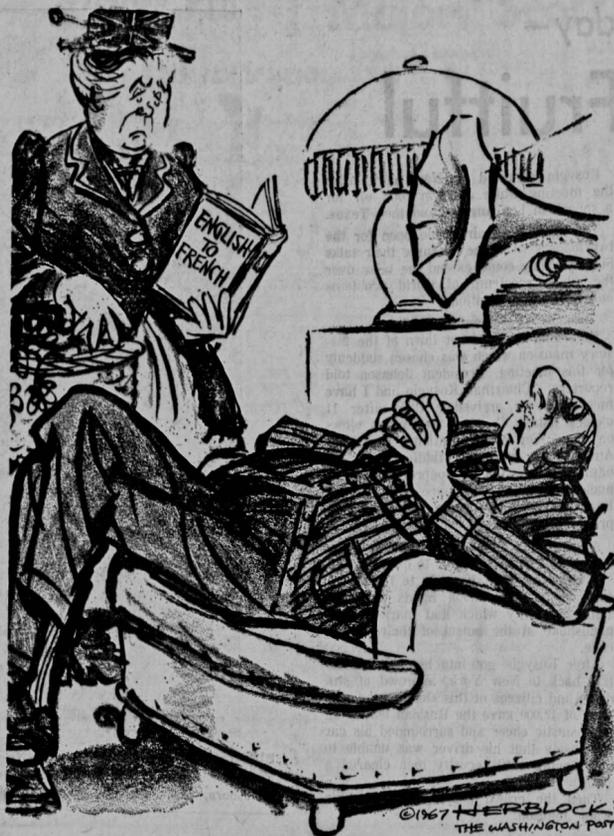

For a comparison, here are the figures for four comparably-sized or larger cities in the same years:

Baltimore	940,000	131
Milwaukee	740,000	27
San Diego	575,000	26
Minneapolis	480,000	23

From these figures — inconclusive though they may be — it can be seen that there were 365 murders in these Texas cities totaling 2.6 million people. This is about one murder for each 7,000 persons in these cities. On the other hand, there were 207 murders in the other four cities totaling 2.7 million persons. This is about one murder for each 12,000 persons.

Does this mean that it's about twice as safe to live in one of the latter four cities than in the Texas cities? Does it mean that Texas is inherently less law-abiding than the rest of the country? Does it mean that a Texan has more potential for becoming a murderer than people in other states? No one can tell from these figures.

What must be done if McClelland is found guilty is to study him and Speck. Maybe there is something somewhere inside them that can help answer these questions. Don Yager

'Now once more, Liza — La Plume De Ma Tante est dans le Market Common — a bas les Americains — vive De Gaulle —'

'War Wagon' called fun but without meaning

By NICHOLAS MEYER

Iowa City must be having a Summer Western Festival. A new shoot-em-up flick entitled "The War Wagon" rolled into the Englert Thursday, with John Wayne and Kirk Douglas riding the principle horses.

On the whole it is a good movie. It is not the best, but it is by no means the worst of a very well known genre. It has no meaning whatever, merely good guys and bad guys and some very well photographed action sequences.

John Wayne is an unjustly imprisoned convict who has been paroled for good behavior (the most difficult thing to believe in the whole movie) after three years. He comes back to the territory of New Mexico, where he was framed, to take revenge on the smooth operator who robbed him of his ranch and his extremely lucrative gold mine.

This no-good-nick is named Pierce, and he transports the mine's produce of gold dust to El Paso by means of a primitive armored car ("The War Wagon"), drawn by eight galloping horses. It is further protected by a swiveling Gatling gun atop it and 33 ornery horsemen before, beside and behind it.

Wayne's idea is to rob this impressive caravan and get away with half a million dollars. To do this, he concocts a scheme more elaborate (though certainly less quiet) than the one used in "Riffifi," involving discontented Indians, an alcoholic dynamite expert (whose fingers shake) and one other super hero-man who hates his guts. Kirk Douglas doesn't really hate his guts, but they snarl at one another in their hero-man way, just so the audience doesn't really relax and start trusting either of them. (Although in point of fact, their mutual devotion is phenomenal.)

Nothing is new, and nothing is significant, but that doesn't prevent it from being fun just the same. It all depends on your personal response to this kind of nonsense (and it is well done nonsense), and how you react to John Wayne. If you like him and his craggy indestructibility and the way he settles all his problems with an inexorable projection of a closed right hand, then you will like "The War Wagon." If you like Kirk Douglas being Kirk Douglas, then you will like "The War Wagon." And mainly, if you miss the good old Hopalong Cassidy type westerns where the hero leaps onto his horse by vaulting over his rump, then you will love "The War Wagon" because everybody in the movie is doing it all over the place.

WEEKEND WANDERINGS

By SUE RICKEL

"Ichtius, will you stop that awful singing!"

Modene turned back to me. "This is the last summer," she said, "that I shall be able to allow myself the luxury of a good tan."

She hiked up her mini-skirt even higher and moved away from the shadow of our favorite bridge arch, near which we were sitting.

"The skin begins to dry terribly after 21," continued Modene, throwing a handful of grass into the Iowa River. "Hangs in desiccated pouches, lifeless flaps like leather or, in severe cases, suade. I am told."

"My cousin has a skin like imitation leather like in dime store handbags," said Ichtius, "and she's never been out in the sun in her life."

"Shut up, Ichtius," said Modene, trenchantly. Ichtius, an expert at self-effacement, the sweetheart, retired under the bridge arch so furtively that Modene didn't notice his departure.

"From now on it's milk baths and moisture creams for me," said Modene. "After this summer, no more sun, Sue. To be attractive in one's twenties, that's nothing — nearly anyone can do that, with minimal equipment. But to be a 45-year-old beauty — ah, now that's something."

She stretched her arms high over her head and lay back down, tall weeds rustling over her on either side. "That is something, indeed." I could no longer see her, just hear her voice, strangely soft, and watch the threadly outlines of smoke drift up when she lit a cigaret.

Modene's head reappeared suddenly above the waving grass, seeming to float there. "Ichtius, you're obvious," she said tartly. "It's the only thing that redeems you. Before you were obvious, you redeemed yourself by being pedantic."

She began to lie back down slowly. "Go away, disappear why don't you." She flicked her long fingers in a gesture of dismissal, irritated.

Ichtius was nonplussed. With a supercilious glance at me, indicating he felt he'd "gotten" Modene, he trailed away through the grass, rechanting the song which had so bothered Modene earlier:

"Fat legs, skinny legs, bow legs, knock knees, why no pretty legs in minimini-haha skirts?"

We reposed that way for quite a long time: Modene lying back and smoking, me pretending to do algebra but really mulling over the meaning of continued failure. When I glanced over at Ichtius he was attempting, with little success, to bite his toenails, taking on a variety of contorted postures.

Abruptly he rematerialized from the shadows of the bridge, a summer sylph. He pawed around Modene, digging into the earth with eager toes, soon slimy with mud.

"Modene, Modene," said Ichtius. "Modene soup tureen. You're just sore because Clarence Hindsight told you that you weren't pretty. That's why, I know."

Is a 23-year-old over the hill?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The trouble with the American Dream these days is that there has been such an emphasis on youth in our country that a man can be washed up at the age of 40 and not even know it. I didn't realize how serious it was getting until I started trying to find some jobs for friends who were victims of The World Journal Tribune closing recently.

The first question people would ask me was, "How old is he?" If I said he was 40 or older I'd get a shrug and some comment like, "He's too old for us."

It seems to me that if the trend continues the age gap is going to be one of the most serious problems this country faces. It's quite possible in another 10 or 15 years that the following scene might become very common.

Personnel manager: "I see your qualifications are in order except for one thing."

Applicant: "What's that?"

Personnel manager: "I'm afraid you're too old for the job."

Applicant: "What do you mean, too old for the job? I'm 23."

P.M.: "Yes, I see that. We don't hire anyone over 21 years of age."

Applicant: "But I just got out of college. I've never had a job. How can I be too old?"

P.M.: "According to our pension planners who have the final say as to how old our employees should be, anybody older than 21 years of age is over the hill."

Applicant: "How can I be over the hill if I've never been on?"

P.M.: "There's no reason to get testy about this. We have nothing personal against you. It's just that we have found through experience that men of your age really don't do their best work when they reach 23 or 24 years of age. Oh, there have been exceptions, but on the whole we'd rather take our chances with the younger man who can stand up under the physical and mental pressures of the job."

Applicant: "I appreciate your thinking, but I can assure you I can do anything a 21-year-old can do. I'm still very strong. I play tennis twice a week. I'm in excellent health and I was even captain of my football team last year."

P.M.: "Sir, I don't doubt everything you say, but we can't judge you as an individual. Statistics show your age group is prone to colds, backaches and bursts. Even if we wanted to hire you, our group health insurance advisers wouldn't let us. They can't afford to take the risk with a 23-year-old man, no matter how healthy he may look."

Applicant: "But if I can't get a job now that I've finished college, what am I going to do the rest of my life?"

P.M.: "Why don't you retire and move to Florida?"

Applicant: "What the hell am I going to retire on if I never worked?"

P.M.: "That's not our fault, is it? Don't forget, this company is in a fiercely competitive market and if we hire older people like yourself we'll have to explain it to our stockholders. Besides, it looks bad when a customer comes in and sees a 23-year-old man hunched over his desk."

Applicant: "Let me ask one more question and then I'll go. How old are you?"

Personnel Manager: "13."

Killebrew's Homer Kills White Sox, 1-0

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Harmon Killebrew blasted his 22nd home run in the seventh inning, breaking up a pitching duel between Minnesota's Dean Chance and Chicago's Joel Horlen and lifting the twins to a 1-0 victory over the White Sox Friday night.

Killebrew's blow pinned the first loss of the season on Horlen, who had won eight games in a row.

The homer also gave Killebrew the American League lead over Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who has 21.

Until Killebrew's 375-foot blow with one out in the seventh, neither Chance nor Horlen had permitted a runner past second base. The Twins had not moved a man past first, and had left only one man on base as Horlen was aided by two double plays.

Baseball Roundup

Cubs Beat Astros

CHICAGO (AP) — Lee Thomas delivered a pinch single in the bottom of the ninth inning that lifted the Chicago Cubs to a 9-8 victory over Houston Friday.

Ted Savage walked with one out and reached second on a passed ball before Thomas, swinging for winning pitcher Chuck Hartenstein, lined Dave Eilers' first pitch for the winning hit.

The Cubs tied the game with two runs in the bottom of the eighth on singles by Don Kessinger, Paul Popovich and Billy Williams and a sacrifice fly by Ron Santo after Jimmy Wynn's two-out, two-run single had broken a 6-6 tie for Houston in the top half.

Earlier, Wynn had smashed a two-run homer, his 18th of the year and 11th in the month of June, highlighting a four-homer Astro salvo. Julio Gotay, Jim Landis and Rusty Staub had the others.

Foy Paces Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Joe Foy led a 13-hit Boston attack with two triples and two singles as the Red Sox battered Cleveland 8-4 Friday night.

Foy scored three runs and drove in another as the Red Sox routed four Indian pitchers. Lee Stange allowed just two hits over the first seven innings but lost his shutout in the eighth when the Indians bunched four hits for two runs. Cleveland scored two more in the ninth.

Pirates Wins

CINCINNATI (AP) — Maury Wills' pinch single brought home the tying run and reliever Bob Lee's wild pitch allowed the winner to score as Pittsburgh rallied for three runs in the ninth inning and defeated Cincinnati 4-2 Friday night.

Jim Coker's eighth-inning homer had given the Reds a 2-1 lead but Andre Rodgers opened the Pirate ninth with a single, knocking out Sammy Ellis. Pinch runner George Spriggs

$100,000 Up For Grabs At Aqueduct

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A pair of swift front-running 3-year-olds, Dr. Fager and Furl Sail, are the odds-on-choices to win the major share of the two $100,000-plus purses which head today's thoroughbred racing program.

Lightly campaigned Dr. Fager, winner of six of his eight career starts and $192,803, takes on five other 3-year-olds in the one mile of the Arlington Park Classic.

Furl Sail, with eight victories, one second and one third and a bank account of $178,290 to show for 10 races this year, opposes nine other 3-year-old fillies in the 14 miles of the Coaching Club American Oaks at Aqueduct.

Dr. Fager, who has raced only three times this season and includes a narrow triumph over Belmont Stakes-Preakness winner Damascus among his conquests, will be making his first start since being disqualified out of first money in the Jersey Derby at May 30.

With six starters, the Classic will be worth $106,000 and first place $81,000. Under 120 pounds, including jockey Braulio Baeza, the Tartan Stable star will give two pounds to Diplomat Way and four to the mud-loving Disciplinarian. Lightning Orphan, Suteki and Pointmenow complete the field.

Furl Sail was made the 3-5 choice Friday to complete a sweep of New York's Triple Crown for sophomore fillies. She already has won the Acorn and Mother Goose.

With 10 starters it'll be the richest Oaks in the 51 runnings of the stake. Gross value will be $131,750 with $85,637.50 going to the winner.

Lower Liter Limit Announced By ISC

PARIS (AP) — Prototype sports cars racing for the manufacturers' championship next year will be limited to motor sizes of three liters, according to a decision announced Friday.

The International Sporting Commission, which set the rules for the manufacturers' competition, made the decision at a closed meeting here last June 13, just two days after a seven-liter Ford prototype, driven by Americans A.J. Foyt and Dan Gurney, won the 24-hour Le Mans race.

A spokesman for the International Automobile Federation, the sporting commission's parent group, said the decision had been under consideration since last year, when seven-liter Fords finished 1-2-3 at Le Mans.

The spokesman said the five-liter commission made up its mind when it learned that the French government was considering setting a motor-size limit in the Le Mans race.

Concerned with the speeds realized by the Fords over 214 miles per hour on the long Mulanne straightaway and 4.7-liter Ferrari prototypes 198.8 m.p.h. on the same stretch, the government was thinking about setting a two-liter maximum, the spokesman said.

"To head off government regulation, we decided to regulate ourselves," he said.

Hard Driving Girl Wins Golf Meet

CRESTON (AP) — Medalist Bobbe Lichty of Waterloo used an outstanding driving game Friday to offset shaky putting and win the Iowa junior girls golf tournament by a whopping seven strokes.

The slim, 16-year-old brunette, who led all the way in the 54-hole event, carded a 44-42-86 for a total of 253.

Lynn Sandeman of Creston, last year's medalist who trailed by three strokes going into the final round, shot a 44-46-90 for a final score of 260.

Yates Takes Tourney Lead With Back 9 Birdie Barrage

CLEVELAND (AP) — Young Wayne Yates, refusing to buckle under pressure, birdied four of his last holes Friday for his second straight 66 on the way to a two-stroke halfway lead in the $103,500 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament.

The 25-year-old Georgian, turning in another four-under-par performance, had a sparkling 132 total after 36 holes, eight under par for the distance.

Palmer Takes Lead
The Atlanta pro, with earnings of only $3,781 this year, had not even teed off yet when Arnold Palmer charged home with a 68 and a 135 total for the early lead.

And a short time before the rangy Yates began his birdie barrage, veteran Gardner Dickenson birdied the last three holes to come in with a 66 and a 134 total.

Dickinson, whose only flaw was a missed three-foot putt on No. 5 for a bogey, was in second place behind the unheralded leader.

Henning Trails
Palmer, the tour's leading money winner, was three back, followed by a quartet of pros bracketed at 136. They were Alan Henning of South Africa, New Zealander Bob Charles, Homero Blancas and Bert Weaver.

Blancas and Steve Oppermann both fired hot 65s on the 6,611-yard Aurora Country Club layout to tie the course record, but Oppermann, who shot 75 Thursday, stood at 140.

Lionel Hebert was five strokes off the pace with 137.

Nicklaus 9 Down
At 138 were Miller Barber, Ken Venturi, Bob Stanton, Masters champion Gay Brewer, Johnny Pott and Dick Lotz.

U.S. Open king Jack Nicklaus tacked a 69 onto an opening 72 for a 141, while Billy Casper was among a group of players tied at 142.

Progress Made In Salary Talks Of Big Leagues

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league players and owners reported Friday they are making progress in negotiations on the players' proposal to raise the minimum salary from $7,000 to $12,000.

A joint statement issued by Joe Cronin, president of the American League and chairman of the player relations committee for both leagues, said the Players Association and the committee "had a satisfactory negotiations meeting" here Thursday and will continue negotiations in Anaheim the morning of the All-Star game, July 11.

At a meeting last Dec. 1 the players proposed an increase in the minimum salary to $12,000. Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said the two sides still are talking about the $12,000 figure.

Heavyweight Bout Set For September

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Karl Mildenberger, the European heavyweight champion from Germany, signed Friday to meet Argentina's Oscar Bonavena in September at a site and date to be determined.

Mildenberger's manager, Wolfgang Mueller, said the fight will be part of the elimination tournament to determine a successor to Muhammed Ali in the areas where Ali no longer is recognized as heavyweight champion.

Mildenberger is ranked No. 1

by the World Boxing Association, which stripped Ali of recognition for his refusal to enter military service after he had been drafted. He also is ranked the No. 1 contender by Ring magazine, which still recognizes Ali as champion.

Unbeaten Joe Frazier of Philadelphia, ranked second by the WBA and fourth by Ring, and Canadian champion George Chuvalo of Toronto, ranked 10th by the WBA and fifth by Ring, will meet in a 12-rounder at New York's Madison Square Garden July 19.

DES MOINES (AP) — Rep. Cecil Reed (R-Cedar Rapids) presided over the Iowa House for a time Friday, thus becoming the first Negro in history to do so.

Reed took the chair when House Speaker Maurice Baringer (R-Oelwein) stepped down for a conference with other representatives.

Prof Awards Meet Delay

Final selection of the three professors who will receive $1,000 awards for teaching excellence probably will be made either this summer or early in the fall, according to Philip Hubbard, dean of academic affairs.

The decision, originally planned for last May, was referred back to the Committee on Teaching Excellence, said Hubbard, after information concerning the awards was disclosed "prematurely" by a student member of the committee.

Lory R. Rice, G. London, England, reported in May that Donald L. Barnett, former assistant professor of sociology and anthropology who became well known for flunking all his first semester students in protest of the Vietnam war, received the second highest number of votes.

Hubbard said the committee did not then make a decision.

The committee also plans to review the procedure for selecting the winners of the award, Hubbard said.

Nazi Drawings Exhibit Starts In Capitol City

The "Nazi Drawings" by Maurice Lasansky, Virgil M. Hancher professor of art, will be exhibited at the Des Moines Art Center Sunday through July 16.

The drawings have been shown at art museums in New York and Philadelphia earlier this year. After the opening in Philadelphia, the drawings brought acclaim from art reviewers.

Henning Cohen in The Reporter Magazine:

"Without captions but constituting a sequence, they are a subjective, specific and coldly furious response to the Nazi outrage in terms of the agony of the tortured and the self-destruction of the torturers."

The series of 30 drawings depicts life-size or large figures, sketched with an ordinary lead pencil on large sheets of commercial paper and colored with dark brown and rust-colored washes.

The drawings are not intended to be realistic, but to symbolize the effects of murder and bestiality on both the Nazi killers and their victims. Done over a period of five years, they were finished in 1966.

Lasansky, 52, made the drawings not only to condemn the Nazis but mainly to remind the younger generation of the brutality and evil of which man is capable.

In a preface to the exhibition catalog, Lasansky writes:

"Dignity is not a symbol bestowed on man, nor does the word itself possess force. Man's dignity is a force and the only modus vivendi by which man and his history survive. When mid-20th century Germany did not let man live and die with this right, man became an animal."

"No matter how technologically advanced or sophisticated, when man negates this divine right he not only becomes self-destructive, but castrates his history and poisons our future. This is what the Nazi drawings are about."

House Passes Vo-Tech Bill

DES MOINES (AP) — A compromise plan to lift Iowa's area vocational-technical schools and community colleges out of the red teetered on the brink of defeat but finally passed the House 67-46 Friday.

Motions to reconsider were promptly filed, however, by Reps. Paul McCray (R-Davenport) and George Pierson (R-Oskaloosa) keeping the bill from going to the governor.

The measure ran into a hornet's nest of opposition from representatives insisting a three-quarter mill local property tax for operation of the schools be repealed and strict controls the House had placed on the bill be restored.

The compromise, worked out by a conference committee, scraped through the House by one vote 58-57, and the lawmakers then voted final passage.

The bill would appropriate $4.5 million to speed up payments of state aid to the 15 area schools.

Grad To Present Recital Sunday
