Assembly Agrees To 1-Week Break For Private Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly agreed Wednesday night to a one-week recess after hearing its president appeal for a face-saving resolution to help offset its failure to agree on any substantive Mideastern peace plan.

With the next session set for July 12, the delegates from 122 nations planned to use the interim for private consultations aimed at producing an acceptable measure containing guidelines for settlement.

Israeli Ambassador Gideon Rafael suggested that the recess be limited to 48 hours, but no other objection was raised to the longer period. The assembly adjourned at 7:44 p.m.

Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan, the president, made his appeal as the 122-nation assembly heard a final round of speechmaking before deciding on any course of action.

Speculation centered on a resolution that would merely appeal to Israel and the Arabs to exercise restraint and possibly toss the entire matter back to the U.N. Security Council, where it was when the emergency session was convened 2½ weeks ago.

The United States favored a return to the 15-nation council in the hope of working out a step-by-step approach to some kind of stability in the Middle East. This could include the appointment of a U.N. mediator by Secretary-General U Thant to sound out all parties to the Mideastern conflict.

Canada supported also a return to the council, with emphasis on the naming of a special representative by Thant as the next logical step to take.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg talked privately with Thant and later told a reporter the United States had not changed its view that the issue should never have been taken out of the council's hands in the first place.

The emergency session was convened at the request of the Soviet Union, which contended that the council was unable to go beyond a cease-fire appeal and force Israel to give up Arab territory won in the war.

As it turned out, the assembly failed Tuesday to agree on rival compromise resolutions seeking a troop withdrawal. The outcome was regarded by most U.N. diplomats as a Soviet setback, but Tass, the Soviet news agency, viewed it as moral and political defeat for Israel and its supporters, meaning mainly the United States. Israel saw it as a Soviet defeat.

Thant called in Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban to request a response to the resolution adopted by the assembly asking Israel to rescind its unification of Jerusalem. A U.N. spokesman said Thant had allowed a week for a formal response. A negative reply was expected.

Security Council Still Best Bet On Mideast: LBJ

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — In expectation that the Mideastern dispute will be bounced back to the United Nations Security Council, the Texas White House voiced hopes Wednesday for a lasting solution.

The administration position all along has been the Security Council was the place to try for a settlement and that the possibilities for one there had not been depleted.

Assistant press secretary Tom Johnson had no direct comment at the White House press center here on the negative votes in the U.N. General Assembly Tuesday. These produced no condemnation of Israel, no demand for unconditional withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab lands, and no solution to the crisis. They did produce a setback for the Soviet Union.

In the Security Council, the Soviet Union would be able to retaliate by using its veto to block action, as it did before. Still, the United States clung officially to a measure of hope.

"My only comment," Johnson said, "would be that, as you know, our only purpose is to seek ways to achieve a durable peace in the Mideast."

"As you know, this country believes that the Security Council is the best place for this to be handled, and we are looking forward to some solution which will offer lasting settlement."

Under questioning, Johnson advised newsmen against reading too much into the words "looking forward." He said they were used more in a sense of hope than expectation.

The other White House Johnson, President Johnson, was publicly silent on the Mideast situation and the U.N. deliberations.

In the midst of a summertime sojourn at the LBJ Ranch 75 miles north of here, the President gets daily reports from Washington advisers on the Mideast problem, Vietnam and other trouble spots. These included word Wednesday morning on fighting in the Congo.

Press assistant Johnson said the President was on the telephone with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, on the eve of the latter's departure on a ninth trip across the Pacific to review all aspects of the war in Vietnam.

From the foreign aid administrator, William S. Gaud, Johnson got word that an emergency shipment of 200,000 doses of polio vaccine has been sent to Nicaragua to immunize about 750,000 children in Managua, the focal point of an epidemic that hit last week.

Hired Soldiers Attack In Congo

KINSHASA, the Congo (AP) — President Joseph D. Mobutu said two planes landed foreign commandos Wednesday at Kisangani in the northeast.

He called the action an "aggression which dangerously threatens the sovereignty of the Congo" and decreed a state of emergency throughout the country.

Mobutu reported the commandos had seized the airport at Kisangani. The Congo government's radio station asserted that foreign mercenaries also had been parachuted into Bukavu, near the border of Rwanda 320 miles southeast of Kisangani, formerly Stanleyville.

Neither the radio nor Mobutu connected the reported commando landings with former Premier Moise Tshombe, now held in Algiers and facing death if returned to the Congo. But the radio said the landings were part of an imperialist plot.

The radio had asserted Tuesday that 200 Belgian mercenaries were ready to fly to the Congo and free Tshombe if he were extradited.

British Suspect Play
Some British informants believed Mobutu's announcement might be a play to enlist Algerian sympathies for his efforts to get hold of Tshombe.

Diplomats in Algiers doubted the reports of commando landings in Kisangani. They noted that Tshombe, seized last week after his plane from Spain was hijacked and flown to Algiers, would almost certainly be extradited by the Algerian government if it were convinced there was a pro-Tshombe plot afoot. Algiers holds Tshombe responsible for the death of the Congo's first premier, leftist Patrice Lumumba.

Tshombe was ousted as premier in October 1965 and has been living in exile in Europe since. He was tried in absentia by a military court in Kinshasa last March and sentenced to death for treason.

Congo radio said that "the dark forces of imperialism have set off the Machiavellian plan against the Congo."

The Soviet news agency Tass also called the landing an imperialist plot, saying "imperialist circles cannot pardon the Republic of the Congo for refusing to be the milk cow of Belgium's financial oligarchy."

Settlers Attack Army
In a radio address to the nation, Mobutu said foreign settlers also had attacked the Congo army in Bukavu and fighting was in progress.

U.S. Consul Trusten F. Crigler in Bukavu reported to Washington that the town was "under the control of mercenary-led national army dissidents." He earlier had identified the dissidents as Katangan soldiers.

Katanga, a province rich in minerals, lies south of Bukavu. It was there Tshombe led an unsuccessful fight to secede from the Congo when the country received its independence from Belgium in 1960.

No Details Given
Mobutu gave few details of the reported landings at Kisangani, which lies 775 miles northeast of Kinshasa. He referred to commandos without specifying their number.

There was no mention of a move on Kisangani, once a stronghold for rebels loyal to the slain Lumumba who fought the Congolese government.

Mobutu announced that the Congo had appealed to the U.N. Security Council and the secretariat of the Organization of African Unity against "this aggression."

Reward Seen As Cause Of Tshombe Kidnaping

ALGIERS (AP) — Informed sources said Wednesday Moise Tshombe's plane was hijacked and forced to fly to Algeria by members of his own entourage who probably wanted to collect a big reward offered by the Congo.

For the first time, authoritative sources pieced together what they said was a factual account of the kidnaping of the former Congolese premier the Congo wants to execute on a charge of treason. They gave this account:

A British twin-jet chartered plane took off last Friday from Ibiza to Palma de Majorca, both in the Spanish Balearic Islands.

Aboard were Tshombe, two Spanish policemen assigned as his bodyguard, two British pilots, a man of French nationality, a Belgian couple, and a Belgian former mercenary in the Congo.

When the hijackers struck, several shots were fired, but no one aboard was wounded.

Tshombe himself did not put up any resistance. The two police officers were as surprised as Tshombe and could do nothing to help him.

The coup was staged by one or at most two, of the plane's nine occupants. Both were members of Tshombe's own entourage.

They were believed to have turned against the former Katanga secessionist leader in return for an enormous reward offered secretly by persons connected with the Congolese regime of President Joseph D. Mobutu.

The principal conspirator was said to be a man of French nationality.

All except Tshombe were expected to be released in due course.

The Algerian government has asked Interpol, the International Police Organization, to make inquiries into the background of some of the passengers. They are believed to be held at the Algerian Air Force base near Boufarik, 25 miles south of the capital. The British sent an urgent demand to Algeria for information on the two British pilots.

According to the sources, Algerian authorities — at least at the Foreign Ministry level — had no advance warning of the plot.

Group Answers Parsons' Petition To Keep Rating

CHICAGO (AP) — The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools submitted written arguments Wednesday against a possible court injunction barring it from listing Parsons College as unaccredited.

The association's action was in answer to a petition filed in U.S. District Court by the Fairfield, Iowa, college.

The association maintained that Parsons' complaint did not cite personal bias on the association's part. It said Parsons was in no position to file a complaint because the school joined the association voluntarily.

On June 28, Parsons asked the court for a temporary restraining order to prevent the association from giving the school an unfavorable rating.

Parsons alleged that North Central had not notified the college that it was in danger of losing its rating and that the school had never been presented with a statement of alleged shortcomings.

North Central's motion to dismiss the suit stated that the association invited trustees and faculty members to an April 6 meeting at which complete reports on colleges and universities were read. At this meeting the executive council of the association unanimously agreed to rate Parsons as unaccredited.

North Central also alleged that Parsons did not propose any administrative changes during two meetings held to hear the college's appeal of the decision.

Brezhnev Backs Cautious Policy In Middle East

MOSCOW (AP) — The leader of the Soviet Communist party defended a cautious Soviet policy in the Middle East Wednesday. Westerners said the speech was another sign of a Kremlin split over how much support to give the Arab nations.

General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev said the Soviet Union had acted correctly when it avoided direct military involvement in the six-day fighting a month ago. He indicated that future Soviet aid to the Arabs would stop short of military action.

Arab leaders have criticized the Soviet restraint, although their complaints have been muted recently by a new flow of Soviet weapons to some defeated Arab armies.

Informed sources said controversy also developed within the Soviet Communist party. Nikolai G. Yegorov was fired as head of the party's Moscow city organization, reportedly after he had spoken against Brezhnev's policy.

Westerners in the Soviet capital suspected that Yegorov was backed by someone within the Kremlin's collective leadership, which Brezhnev heads, and said the dispute still might be continuing.

Brezhnev spoke at a Kremlin reception for Soviet military academy graduates. It was his first published comment on the Middle East situation.

Brezhnev said talks that President Nikolai V. Podgorny had just completed in Egypt, Syria and Iraq "will undoubtedly facilitate the coordination of joint action in the political struggle in defense of the rights and interests" of the three Arab countries.

There was no mention of action other than political, although Podgorny was accompanied in his talks by deputy ministers of defense. Podgorny is reported to have urged restraint on the Arabs.

"Mutual understanding" was claimed by Egypt, Iraq and Algeria, but not with Syria. Syria has talked the loudest since the war about refusing to give up the goal of destroying Israel.

California Death Penalty Challenged In Court Test

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — All executions in California were halted Wednesday until Aug. 3 by order of U.S. District Judge Robert Peckham.

On that day Judge Peckham will hold a full-scale hearing into an attempt to declare the death penalty in California unconstitutional under present state laws.

A group of attorneys partially financed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Legal Defense Fund drew up the petitions. The attorneys challenged California law, particularly on its failure to specify standards by which a jury determines whether a man shall live or die after that jury has convicted him of first-degree murder.

Procedures specified by California law also are attacked because they do not provide appeal attorneys until after the prisoner himself has filed a petition. They also charged that the death penalty is cruel and inhuman punishment. The petition also attacked the exclusion from juries of persons who objected to capital punishment.

A similar petition recently halted 51 scheduled executions in Florida while federal courts there determined whether Florida death penalty laws were unconstitutional. The Florida case still is pending in the courts.

Smiley Expects City Take-Over Of Bus System

By ALBERT O. GRENDLER

"It looks as if the city will be taking over the bus system by next year," City Manager Frank R. Smiley said Wednesday in commenting on a $50,000 allocation in the proposed 1968 city budget.

Smiley did not term the allocation a subsidy because "we may have to use it for a variety of things, such as extending lines or a shuttle bus from the University's parking lot south of the Iowa City Service Building."

Other revisions in the $6.3 million budget proposed by the council at an informal meeting Monday include an additional $100,000 for traffic and street improvements for a total of $336,500.

A $75,000 federal grant for park improvements will be divided into $35,000 for specified capital improvements and $40,000 as a reserve fund.

Smiley estimates the city will receive a $50,000 increase in liquor profits which will be added to the salary adjustment fund of about $43,000.

The city manager predicted that from $50,000 to $75,000 of the $135,000 budgeted in 1967 for traffic improvements would be available to carry over into 1968, since the presently approved projects will not cost the entire $135,000.

In brief, it appears that the council deducted $118,300 in taxes from the proposed budget and added $50,000 in revenue from liquor funds for a net credit of $168,300.

Additional expenditures were $150,000 for traffic and bus programs.

The council will hold another budget session Friday. At that meeting representatives of the Visiting Nurses Association and the Library Board will present budget requests. A major cut was made in the library budget and the nurses are requesting a $10,000 increase in their budget.

Fireworks Dangerous Even After The Holiday

OSAGE, Ia. (AP) — Fireworks can be just as dangerous the day after the Fourth of July as on the holiday, two young Osage boys learned Wednesday.

Pat Dorsey and Brad Smith, both about 12, were injured when a piece of fireworks believed to have been a cherry bomb exploded. Both were admitted to Mitchell County Memorial Hospital, the Dorsey boy with severe injuries to his right hand and the Smith lad with an injured leg.

The youths picked up the small explosive at the fairgrounds where a fireworks display had been held Tuesday night.

New Gun Added To Hanoi Arsenal

ON (AP) — A new Soviet-made weapon, the RPG7 antitank gun, is backing the latest Hanoi effort to take northern Vietnam from the hands of South Vietnam from the hands of the Marines.

Marine intelligence officer said Wednesday that the gun had been captured one of the guns had been captured previously "on a special operation in the Ho Chi Minh supply trail south through the Communist-controlled eastern section of Laos."

Other Arms Used
An anti-aircraft gun and other arms are among other arms used by the North Vietnamese.

The figure of the summer offensive is an officer told newsmen. "He (the officer) starts it every year about this time."

The strategic area below the DMZ, the North Vietnamese want to use operations farther south, was a focus of the summer offensive.

Attention should be given to Galbraith's Vietnam ideas

Economist John Kenneth Galbraith has come up with a plan that he thinks would de-escalate the Vietnam war. It deserves some serious consideration by the makers of United States foreign policy.

Galbraith, a former ambassador to India and currently a professor of economics at Harvard, called for five major revisions in the current Vietnam policy by the administration. They are:

- The giving up of large areas of South Vietnam, such as the Mekong Delta, which have long been under Viet Cong control. These would be the areas most costly for the United States to gain and hold control of.
- The end of the bombing of North Vietnam. This, Galbraith says, would put an end to "the most reckless and violent aspect of our involvement and the one that always carried with it the temptation of yet more escalation."
- The disengagement of American policy from the generals in Saigon. Galbraith says this is necessary if any elections are to be meaningful in South Vietnam.
- The concentration of American effort in South Vietnam on the social and economic development of the area. Such concentration, according to Galbraith, should promote "the maximum of security, tranquility and well-being" in the populous areas of the country already free of Viet Cong.
- The accepting for fact that Vietnam is not a strategically important area for the United States.

Galbraith's plan implies that there would still be some military action used against the Viet Cong — via the maintenance of the enclaves in which the social and economic development objectives would be implemented.

Therefore, his plan would not mean a complete military withdrawal from South Vietnam like many of anti-war people want. But it would mean a substantial reduction of the American commitment to the war.

Implementing his plan could be an important first step in complete American withdrawal from the area. So, it would seem that all those opposing the war could support Galbraith's plan as a start towards their goal.

Likewise, those supporting the American policy in Vietnam should realize that although any victory obtained through the use of the plan wouldn't be what you could call a "total victory," there would be an element of victory involved. Therefore, the price the United States has already paid in Vietnam would not seem entirely wasteful.

Both sides on the Vietnam situation should appreciate one element of Galbraith's plan — its implementation would be entirely unilateral. No Communist cooperation is required.

The plan is obviously a compromise — it will appear completely neither side on the issue. And because of this, and because the current American policy in Vietnam makes neither side happy either, it deserves consideration by the makers of this country's foreign policy.

Bill Newbrough

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — Because of all the U.N. activity on television, a lot of us have been deprived of our favorite westerns. The only thing for us to do is make up our own western out of what has been happening in the Middle East and at the United Nations.

Fellow by the name of Jake owns a small piece of land where he's trying to farm and raise cattle. Trouble is, Jake's ranch is surrounded by a bunch of unfriendly landowners who keep sneaking on the property and sabotaging the wells and poisoning the horses.

These landowners are egged on by a large rancher named Red Boris who figures the more trouble he can cause among the small ranchers, the more embarrassing it will be for his arch rival Big Sam who owns a large piece of land down the way.

One day, at Red Boris' urging, a neighbor of Jake's named Abdullah cuts off Jake's water. When Jake raises Cain about this, Abdullah just laughs and tells Jake if he tries to turn on the water it will mean war.

Jake goes to see Big Sam who's supposed to guarantee Jake's water rights. Jake tells Sam he's going to have to fight Abdullah if he doesn't get his water back.

Sam says that's no way to solve the problem. The way to solve it is to call a meeting of the Cattlemen's Association and work it out there.

Sam calls a meeting, and all the cattlemen show up. But no one seems too upset about Jake's water rights. Red Boris says Jake's just using the water shortage to attack all the ranchers in the area. Abdullah says Jake has no right to own a ranch in the area, and the other ranchers say Jake's been a troublemaker since he moved in.

Big Sam says he's sympathetic to Jake's problem and tries to get other members of the Cattlemen's Association to support Jake.

But none of them shows much interest, and they all point out there's no sense going to war over Jake's water rights.

Jake listens to the discussions and figures by the time he gets any water all his cattle will be dead. So one night he attacks Abdullah's ranch with a handful of cowboys. Abdullah's henchmen run for the hills, and Jake's men take back their water rights. In the meantime, Jake's other neighbors attack, and Jake, in true western fashion, clobbers them. Pretty soon Jake finds himself holding land all around him that once belonged to his neighbors.

Red Boris, who wasn't much help to Abdullah, demands an emergency meeting of the Cattlemen's Association and demands that Jake be branded a horse thief, a cattle rustler and a dirty varmint. Abdullah, who lost all the horses and guns Boris gave him, charges that Big Sam was the one who really attacked him, and Abdullah's pals all demand that Jake pull out from their land immediately.

Jake says he's tired of being pushed around and before he pulls out he wants some guarantees that Abdullah and his pals won't attack him again. He points out that when his water was cut off the Cattlemen's Association didn't lift a finger to help him.

Big Sam is caught in the middle. He says Jake has to give up the land he took, but Abdullah has to recognize Jake's rights to his land as well as his water. This, Abdullah says, he'll never do.

So Jake says the hell with it then. He'll just sit there.

What everyone is worried about is that Red Boris and Big Sam may get into a real gun fight over the situation and wipe the whole valley out.

So everyone says the Cattlemen's Association has to settle the matter to everyone's satisfaction. But if you've seen any cowboy pictures before, you know this is damn well impossible.

Garner called weakness of 'Mr. Buddwing'

By NICHOLAS MEYER

"Who am I" is very much a preoccupation of contemporary writers, and melodrama has made significant contributions to this theme. People who have amnesia in a very real sense have to grapple with this question. There have been several movies dealing with the who-am-I notion in these terms: "Spellbound," "Mirage" and "Mr. Buddwing" to name but three.

Of the three, "Mr. Buddwing," the most recent, is the weakest. Yet even so, the amnesia gimmick successfully manages to arrest and capture the attention of the audience. Dale Wasserman (author of the book of the Don Quixote musical, "Man of La Mancha"), has done a good job on the screenplay version of the book by Evan Hunter.

Delbert Mann's direction is derivative. The first time we meet the amnesiac, we wake up from his point of view on a park bench in New York. We never see his face until five minutes later when he spies it in a mirror. This trick was used 30 years ago with Robert Montgomery in "The Lady of the Lake" and it is no more effective now than it was then, since it serves no purpose germane to the story it precedes. The minor roles are generally well played, the three stand-outs being Jack Gilford (who is surely the funniest man alive) as a cafeteria owner, George Voskovec as Washington Square nut, and Jean Simmons as a zany, fading blonde. Suzanne Pleshette is appealing in a preposterous role, as is Angela Lansbury, who overacts — a rarity where she is concerned.

The big weakness is the amnesiac as played by James Garner. Years ago Hitchcock used to complain about Robert Cummings and lament the results of putting an actor with a "comic face" in a serious or tense film. Mr. Garner is damned with just such a countenance and it limits severely the roles he can tackle with success. Mr. Garner's face is not only "comic," it is not an intelligent-looking face (however smart its owner may be).

and the only expression Garner can plaster on it seems to be one of frenzied puzzlement, and it doesn't look like a smart man being perplexed, which is what this script requires. When Mr. Garner is playing Maverick or the cynical and witty dog-robber in "The Americanization of Emily" he is at his best and hard to top. But when he tries seriousness done seriously he comes off very badly indeed, as he did in "36 Hours" and "Duel at Diablo," both pictures which would have been greatly improved with some other actor in them. In "Mr. Buddwing" he comes off as rather silly and not very believable, despite all the variations of squinting and bewilderment which he wears throughout the film, as a man who wakes up on a park bench and doesn't know who he is.

(Parenthetically, I ought to note that the film falls down in one further area. Being a native of New York City, I can testify that the residents — especially all the beautiful women depicted in this film as giving Garner monetary and physical handouts — are just not that friendly to total strangers, especially groggy amnesiacs, who just might be escaped mental patients. This is the city, remember, where 56 people stood by looking out of their windows while a girl was murdered. Considering the given circumstances of his plight, Garner's success in the big city is so enviable, one has the desire to go to New York, throw away wallet and identification and fall asleep on a park bench. If half of this film is true — which I say it is not — you couldn't spend a better day in the big city than the one which follows Garner's awakening.)

King of the road

Grad defends Caldwell

To the Editor:

At the risk of prolonging the dispute concerning Professor Caldwell's "long-standing rule," I would like to make a few comments. I realize that Caldwell's excellence as a teacher and the importance of his publications, which have established him as one of the country's foremost criminologists, are not in any way being questioned. These factors are only relative to the present controversy when we realize that Caldwell is not using the status that he justifiably enjoys as a weapon in a public battle with the student body president.

He merely indicated that the mode of attire in question was not conducive to efficient classroom procedure and he therefore made a "rule" requiring his students to respect his wishes. If Caldwell is being in any way "old-fashioned and ridiculous," as Editor Bill Newbrough believes him to be, it is in the fact that he assumed that his students would have enough respect for him to comform to his standards for one hour a day.

My main concern over the present controversy and the one that seems to irritate other students who have benefited from Caldwell's advice and personal concern is that he will be characterized as one who infringes on the rights of students. In all honesty, I would like to state that I have never met a teacher who has been more genuinely concerned with the student's welfare. He will be, and always has been, the first to support the student's legitimate rights. Again if he is "old fashioned," it is in his firm belief that the teacher's job consists primarily of helping the student to obtain a meaningful education. It is indeed strange to find such an individual in the modern academic world — a world saturated with incompetent and disinterested instructors who are concerned only with their own advancement or security. Caldwell's concern for the student is especially of note when we realize the obstacles he faces in the sociology department. He appears to be one of the few members of that department who believes that there are ways to build up a reputation other than flunking 80 per cent of your students on their comprehensive exams.

It is not my particular desire to attack Student Body Pres. Pelton or Newbrough and therefore I have not engaged in a discussion of the personal rights of the students and the instructors. My opinion on this subject is worth no more than theirs so I will dispense with it. My only purpose in writing is to attempt to picture the man (Caldwell) as he really is. Many of his former students who are in high positions in law enforcement, corrections, and the academic world surely feel as I do. He is one teacher whose lectures are worth hearing, even worth putting your pants on for.

Car Outlines Derby Rules

TERRY TAYLOR has a lot to do before the 30th Annual All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron.

Each entrant must be between 11 and 15 years old. He must build the entire car (with the exception of wheels) himself. Car and entrant together cannot weigh more than 250 pounds. The total cost of the car is limited to $30 dollars.

Other rules control car dimensions and construction of the body, cockpit, floorboard, brakes and steering mechanism.

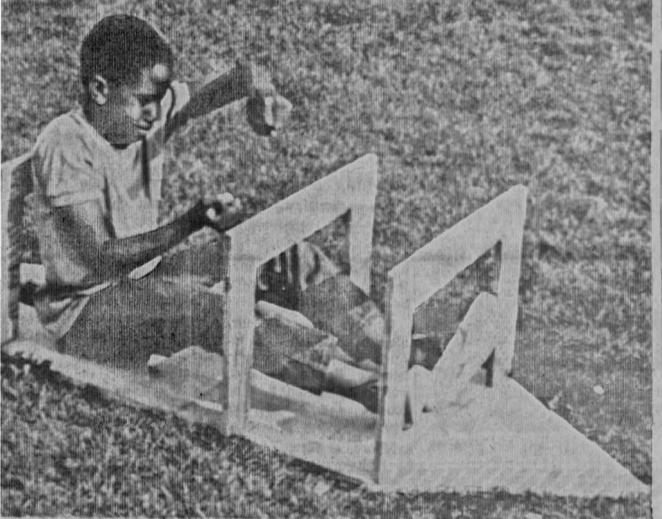

Although there are many rules to follow and car inspections to pass, there is still room for imagination in each car's design.

According to Tom, "Most of the racers have an oval curve from the bottom, but mine will have a floorboard shaped like a rectangle with points on the end. The bulkheads will give the body shape and hold the brake and steering."

Derby rules allow each boy to have a sponsor who contributes all or part of the cost of the car. The local winner will receive a $500 United States Savings Bond and the chance to compete in the All-American Soap Box Derby August 19 in Akron.

Russell Cress, local car salesman and director of the Iowa City Soap Box Derby, said Friday that the derby would take place on First Avenue north of Court Street right behind the Iowa City High School football field. He said time trials would be held at 11 a.m. and the final race would start at 2:30 p.m.

Cress said that car inspections would start Wednesday, July 12, and that all local entries must be ready by then. He said the Iowa City Derby was being sponsored by Nall's Chevrolet and the Iowa City Optimist Club.

Doctor Says HOPE Helps People To Help Themselves

BARBARA ANNIS says that HOPE, which stands for Opportunity for People here, is a "people-to-people" program to help and to train women in the emerging to heal their own," according to Dr. William B. Walsh, who originated the idea and the mission in 1958 with of private donations, volunteers, and the loan of a Navy hospital ship.

HOPE, which stands for Opportunity for People here, is a "people-to-people" program to help and to train women in the emerging to heal their own," according to Dr. William B. Walsh, who originated the idea and the mission in 1958 with of private donations, volunteers, and the loan of a Navy hospital ship.

over other aid missions is that the ship is equipped as a functioning hospital that can serve as an example to medical people in underdeveloped nations, said Flege.

"It is easier to expose them to modern facilities and methods and let them initiate changes in their local hospitals than to try to come as individuals and try to reform their facilities ourselves," he said.

When the ship arrived in February, 1967, there was a moderate amount of resistance from local individuals in the community, but it had almost disappeared by the end of the first four months, Flege said.

"We got a lot more cooperation than I had expected from the Colombian people," he said. "Once possible improvements were pointed out, they made changes themselves when it was possible."

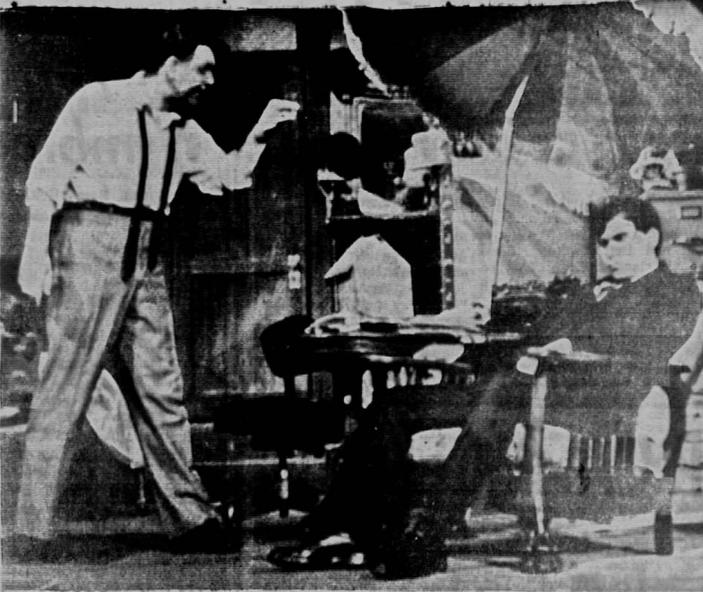

Flege also saw changes taking place in the community's attitudes toward public health and local hospitals. Before HOPE came there was no participation in these matters — no Grey Ladies or Candy Strippers, he said.

The wives of upper-class citizens, who helped with the organizing and planning of HOPE programs and also volunteered to serve as translators between the American staff and local people, were especially effective in promoting community action.

This work brought the ladies into contact with community problems that they never knew existed before, Flege said. They then helped organize community programs to cope with these problems and badgered their husbands at home to use their influence to make changes.

"It seems that there is a lot more benefit in trying to teach the people of underdeveloped countries to solve their own problems than in just giving them money, food or equipment," he said. "The equipment is misused, the money seldom benefits the common people, and gifts are soon gone without being of lasting help."

"But if you can teach people to cope with their own problems, you have left behind something that will be of lasting benefit, for they in turn will teach others, and the knowledge will spread in widening circles."

REHEARSING FOR THE University Repertory Theatre production of Herb Gardner's "A Thousand Clowns." The play concerns the attempted forcing of conformity upon Murray, the main character.

FCC Sets Range On Return-Profits For Utility Firm

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission formally set a profit range of from 7 to 7.5 per cent Wednesday for the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. It was the first action of its kind.

At the same time the commission ordered AT&T — the nation's largest corporation, with assets of more than $35.2 billion — to reduce its interstate charges by $120 million a year.

The FCC said also, in a unanimous decision, that it is not requiring any drastic changes in the manner of its regulation of the giant utility.

"The record and our decision confirm the regulatory standards we have generally applied over the years," the FCC said.

The FCC order sets a rate of return-profit-range on AT&T interstate and foreign earnings of 7 to 7.5 per cent. Earnings on intrastate services — local telephone charges for example — are regulated by individual state public utilities commissions.

School Must Accept Negroes

PHILADELPHIA — A federal judge made permanent Wednesday an injunction prohibiting Girard College, a private school for male orphans, from denying admission of Negroes solely because of their race.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joseph S. Lord, III, said the college must accept all qualified boys.

More And More Navy Men Taking Trips To See World

WASHINGTON — Navy figures show drug usage among sailors has climbed at a rate more than double that of last year. The hallucinatory drug LSD has been involved in 28 cases resulting in administrative discharges since February.

The figures, as well as a new anti-LSD directive issued last month, seem to indicate more and more Navy men are taking psychedelic trips on LSD — trips that in most cases carry them right out of the Navy.

In response to questions, the Navy said Wednesday that in the first five months of this year, 187 Navy men had been given administrative — nonpunitive but not honorable — discharges for wrongful possession or use of drugs.

This compares with 176 similar cases in all of 1966.

Apparently the Navy began keeping track of LSD cases only this year. No figures were available for 1966, but the Navy said records beginning in February indicated that 28 of the 187 administrative discharges given this year involved some use or mention of LSD.

According to the figures, drug usage among Navy ranks has risen at a monthly rate more than 2½ times that of 1966.

The Navy was unable to say how many had been court-martialed on drug charges this year. Last year there were 13 court-martial involving drugs — not specified in available records as to type — with 2 resulting in bad-conduct discharges.

The drug was recently banned by a new Navy regulation.

of Studies Language Indians

Associate professor of English is spending his second summer at Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories of Canada studying the language of the Dogonians.

Professor, Robert R. Howland, chairman of the linguistics department, is investigating the Indians who live near the lake, Canada.

He is working with a member of the tribe who speaks a small amount of English.

While talking with the natives and recording the conversations, Howland studies the construction of their sentences. He plans to give a description or grammar of the language.

Howland was awarded a grant from the National Museum of Canada and a Gold Fellowship for the summer.

Howland is a research assistant for the summer.

Niekro Duel Not 1st In Majors

NEW YORK (AP)—Straight from Cooperstown, N.Y., and the Hall of Fame comes the word that the July 4 battle of Atlanta's Phil Niekro and Chicago's Joe Niekro was not the first duel between brother stars in the majors.

Lee Allen, the historian of the Baseball Hall of Fame, still is eyeball-deep in box scores, dating back to the 1890s, trying to piece together the entire picture.

However, Allen had discovered that the Barnes brothers, Virgil and Jesse, big league contemporaries from 1919 through 1927, actually met 10 times, five times as starters.

Virgil pitched for the New York Giant's during those days and brother Jesse, also a right-hander, worked for the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers. Earlier, both had pitched for the Giants.

On June 26, 1924, Virgil started against Jesse, and the Giants beat Boston 8-1. They met again in the same series, June 29 with Boston's Jesse winning 4-1. In a third meeting, April 23, 1925, Virgil went all the way for an 8-4 Giant win.

Jesse had switched to Brooklyn by June 25, 1926, their next meeting, a 7-4 victory for the Dodgers. In their last clash, Sept.

11, 1926, Jesse pitched a shutout over the Giants 6-0. The rivalry wound up with Jesse 5-3 and Virgil 3-4 in the games in which they had decisions.

The Covelski brothers, Harry and Stan, were involved on Sept. 4, 1916 in a game between Cleveland and Detroit. Stan started for Cleveland and was knocked out in the first and charged with the defeat.

The first meeting of brothers that Allen could find — John and Frank Freeman — happened April 18, 1896 in a game between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

Germany Only Match Away From 1st Wimbledon Title

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)— Even the great Baron Gottfried Wilhelm Bunge of West Germany and John Newcombe of Australia qualified for the men's singles final in the 81st Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships Wednesday, and Bunge had the chance of making a little bit of history.

No German has ever won this hallowed crown of lawn tennis.

Even the great Baron Gottfried Von Cramm never landed the title for Germany.

Von Cramm made the final three times, in 1935-36-37, and three times he went down.

Australians have won the title nine times since the end of the second World War. So it would be no great surprise if Newcombe, seeded No. 3, took it again and made it 10 times for the Aussies with a victory over unseeded Bunge.

Beats English Ace

Bunge defeated Britain's No. 1 ace, Roger Taylor, 6-4, 6-8, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4 in a tough match where the German's shrewdness paid off in the end. Newcombe knocked out left-hander Nicola Pietrangeli of Yugoslavia 9-7, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The girls go on court in the singles today, and it's a case of three Americans against one Briton.

Mrs. Billie Jean King, the defending champion from Long Beach, Calif., meets Kathy Harter, Seal Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones of Britain plays Rosemary Casals of San Francisco.

Mrs. King and Mrs. Jones are the only seeds left in the women's singles in one of the most devastating Wimbledon in the championship's 90-year history.

Some fell like autumn leaves in both the men's and women's singles — and today it is up to top-seeded Mrs. King and third-seeded Mrs. Jones to restore a little pride to the seeding committee.

Newcombe found himself the only ranked player left in the semifinals. That was the first time such a thing had happened since seeding started 40 years ago.

Taylor had the partisan home crowd on his side in the match against Bunge, but for the German it was third time lucky.

Bunge, now 28 years old, was a losing semifinalist in 1963 and 1964. In the fifth set, Bunge, who served 15 double faults in the match, pulled his game together in the vital final game of the fifth set and took the match with a service winner and a volley.

Runners Aren't Underrated, Says Ex-College Star Little

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)— Floyd Little, Syracuse halfback who will wear his famous No. 44 in Saturday night's Coaches All-America game, said Wednesday he doesn't believe runners are underrated in all-star battles.

"Oh, sure, they talk more about passers in all-star games," the All-America runner said after a workout with the East. "But I'll get all the opportunities to run that I want to Saturday."

"I think runners get plenty of chances to show their ability in these games," added the man who cracked running records at Syracuse set by Jim Brown and the late Ernie Davis.

The elusive, 195-pounder ran for 2,704 yards during his Syracuse career which he capped with a blazing display of speed in a loss to Tennessee in the Gator Bowl last winter.

Little's only other all-star appearance was in the Hula Bowl and he said he is enjoying getting ready for the All-America battle, which starts at 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Little and Notre Dame fullback Nick Eddy are expected to handle the running chores for the East, with Steve Spurrier of Notre Dame and Bob Griese of Purdue sharing passing assignments.

East Coach Tom Cahill of Army said he would start tapering off his workouts today to avoid "any chance of injury on this hard sod."

West Coach Bob Devaney indicated his team still needs plenty of work.

Devaney said, however, that he has been pleased by the play of the West defensive unit headed by a pair of Arkansas standouts, tackle Loyd Phillips and halfback Martine Bercher.

The West spent the afternoon working on long pass plays, which Devaney said were designed to get the defense ready for the long throws expected from the East's heralded quarterbacks.

Bradley Cage Tour Off

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)— A proposed seven-week tour by Bradley University's basketball team through Australia, the Orient and Europe was canceled Wednesday by the sponsoring People-To-People Sports Committee.

Cancellation of the tour, scheduled to start July 24 at Brisbane, Australia, was announced in a letter to Bradley Coach Joe Stowell from Herold F. Moore, executive director of People-To-People group.

Moore, of New York, said the committee's volunteer basketball chairman, Frank Walsh of San Francisco, was not able to complete plans for the late summer tour.

Moore said his group, which operates on nationwide donations, hoped to be able to send Bradley's Braves on a similar trip next summer.

Bradley players were scheduled to start practice Monday for the tour through Australia, the Philippines, Hong Kong, India, Greece and Holland.

Tests On Governor Still Being Taken

HOUSTON (AP) — The director of the cancer clinic where Gov. Lurleen Wallace of Alabama is undergoing tests for a new malignancy said Wednesday it might be several days before they know the full extent of the tumor's growth.

GOV. LURLEEN WALLACE Undergoing Tests

Dr. Randolph Lee Clark, the chief surgeon of the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, told newsmen that diagnostic examinations have just begun.

The 40-year-old governor, who underwent surgery for cancer of the uterus 18 months ago and thought the malignancy had been stopped, checked in to the hospital Tuesday after a flight from Montgomery, Ala.

She brought with her the findings of her own physicians in Montgomery and turned them over to Dr. Clark and members of his staff for evaluation.

Clark, in the first of a planned series of daily medical bulletins, said, "At this time, it is not known what further examinations will be indicated nor how long the complete diagnostic workup will require."

He said Mrs. Wallace is resting comfortably and that the hospital staff was "delighted with her mental attitude. She is a very remarkable person."

In response to questions, Clark said it was possible that the diagnostic tests would indicate as early as Wednesday night whether further surgery is necessary. But, he added, it may take several more days before they reach that decision.

Mrs. Wallace was able to walk around and visited with members of her family who accompanied her to Houston.

Romney Would Fight To Win In New Hampshire, If He Ran

MIRROR LAKE, N.H. (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney, personally surveying the New Hampshire political scene, said Wednesday he would fight to win if he entered the state's presidential primary next year.

New Hampshire's primary, earliest in the nation, is on March 12 in 1968.

Addressing a news conference from the scenic lake-front estate of Mr. and Mrs. J. Willecting the 1968 Republican presidential nominee.

But the Michigan governor said he did not think any one primary would be decisive.

Marriott, the governor's host, is a Washington hotelman and long-time friend.

Romney arrived at the 150-acre Marriott estate, The Anchorage, Tuesday night. He has a full schedule for his four-day working vacation.

At his side were David Goldberg, a Boston attorney who engineered the stunning victory of Henry Cabot Lodge in the 1964 New Hampshire primary, and two of Goldberg's assistants, John Deardourff and Doug Bailey.

GOV. GEORGE ROMNEY Would Fight To Win

To Meet With Groups
Deardourff, formerly with an other possible GOP presidential contender, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, said Romney would meet with various groups from New Hampshire, mostly young businessmen.

Romney, accompanied here by his wife, called himself an underdog in New Hampshire, pointing out that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon had "been here many times and is well known."

The Michigan governor declined to say when he would decide whether to enter the New Hampshire race, but in answer to a question he said he felt that any candidate should make up his mind before midwinter.

Family Night To Feature Hootenanny

Hootenanny... Virginia reel... dart throws — that's what Family Night at the Union will be made of Friday.

Signatures for hootenanny leaders are now being taken at the Union Activity Center. Although one doesn't have to sign up in advance to lead songs, it would be appreciated, according to Gary E. Bartlett, Union program adviser. The hootenanny will begin at 7 p.m. in the Terrace Lounge.

At 8 p.m. Jules S. Friedman, A3, Chesterfield, Md., will lead recreational folk dancing in the Ballroom. Such American dances as the Virginia reel, the twist and round dancing will be done. Also international folk dances from Russia, Sweden and Israel will be demonstrated and practiced.

Also beginning at 7 p.m. family games such as bean bag tossing and dart throwing will be played in the Lucas-Dodge Room.

A movie, free candy from Popo the Clown and cafeteria specials will complete Family Night activities. The film, "Boy 10 Feet Tall," will be shown at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in the Illinois Room. Tickets are 25 cents. Popo will distribute candy from 6 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

To See Governors

Romney, saying he was here to "meet people of significance in the state," also has scheduled meetings with Rhode Island Gov. John H. Chafee Thursday and Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe Friday.

Romney criticized the pace of the Vietnam war and said the United States had not made "the degree of progress the military people had been expecting."

"We're not any closer to establishing military control than we were a year and a half ago," Romney said.

He said that while the American effort had prevented defeat, it had resulted in a stalemate. "Pacification efforts have not succeeded to the extent they should," he said.

$914 Million Saved, Says McNamara

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Wednesday claimed savings of $914 million in the just-completed fiscal year and declared his intention to bring out any excess costs in this year's $73 billion defense budget.

McNamara's claimed savings for fiscal 1967 were the lowest of any of the past five years.

In 1966, the secretary told newsmen that stringent cost reducing efforts had resulted in $4.5 billion in savings. McNamara's report to President Johnson said total savings under the first five years of his cost reduction program came to more than $14 billion but such achievements "are not likely to be duplicated in the succeeding five years."

In a memo commenting on the report, Johnson described himself as "particularly pleased with the alertness shown to the opportunities for cost reduction despite the pressure of combat operations" in Vietnam.

Honeymoon Ends As Death Cuts In

FERGUS FALLS, Minn. (AP) — Death has broken up one of the world's most enduring marriages. Ole M. Sholberg, a Norwegian immigrant, died at his home in this west-central Minnesota city Monday night. He had been bed-ridden the past year.

Sholberg observed his 105th birthday on June 16 — the same day his wife, Otilia, was 103 years old. The couple observed their 81st wedding anniversary last Jan. 5.

Iowa Quartet 3 Social Workers Join Staff To Perform Of UI Psychopathic Hospital Wednesday

A contemporary American composition which was given an enthusiastic reception by European audiences during the Iowa String Quartet's tour of Europe last spring will be on the program for the group's concert Wednesday.

The quartet will play Leon Kirchner's "String Quartet," written in 1949; Haydn's "Quartet in G Major, Opus 54, No. 1," and Mendelssohn's "Quartet in E Minor, Opus 44, No. 2." The program will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge. Tickets will not be required for the concert, which will be open to the public.

Kirchner is now teaching at Harvard University. His quartet is recognized as one of the outstanding contemporary American works.

Members of the Iowa String Quartet, all on the faculty of the School of Music, are Allen Ohmes and John Ferrell, both associate professors, violins; William Preucil, associate professor, viola, and Charles Wendt, assistant professor, cello.

The group will fly to Florida each of the last three weekends in July to take part in the Daytona Beach International Music Festival. On each of the weekends, they will give a concert and coach chamber music students at a school held in conjunction with the festival.

Appearing with the quartet in two of the Florida concerts will be several first-chair players from the London Symphony Orchestra, which will be in Daytona Beach to present a number of concerts at the festival. The Daytona Beach festival is similar to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass.

3 Social Workers Join Staff Of UI Psychopathic Hospital

Henry P. Powers, Floyd H. Sariff and Mrs. Patricia Ann Morgan have been appointed to the social service staff at the Psychopathic Hospital.

Powers comes to the University from Los Angeles, Calif., where he has been a psychiatric social worker with the California State Department of Social Welfare. He received a master's degree in social work from the University of California in 1966. He has a B.A. degree from the University of Alaska.

Before taking graduate work, Powers was a social worker for the Bureau of Public Assistance in Los Angeles.

Sariff, a native of Logan, was an instructor in sociology at Mankato (Minn.) State College during the spring semester. After receiving an M.A. degree here he was a social worker at the Veterans Administration Mental Hygiene Clinic, Des Moines, from 1963-67 and was a part-time instructor in sociology at Drake University.

182 Enrolled For Study Of Libraries

A record enrollment of 182 students are taking courses in School of Library Science during the summer session.

Of the total, 47 are candidates for master's degrees in library science, 33 for master's degrees in education with emphasis on library science and 51 for certificates as school librarians. Undergraduates and special students comprise the rest.

Courses being given during the summer are in reference and cataloging, history of books and libraries, book selection, library administration, children's literature, school library problems and the school library as a materials center.

Foundation Aid To Be Launched

Plans to establish a companion to The University of Iowa Foundation were announced Wednesday by the Foundation's executive director, Darrell D. Wyrick. The Foundation is the University's agency for developing financial support from corporations, alumni, and other individuals.

The new non-profit organization, to be known as The University of Iowa Facilities Corporation, will assist the University in acquiring properties needed for educational purposes through gifts and purchases, Wyrick said.

The initial directors of the new corporation, all currently directors of the Foundation, are W. W. Summerwill and George H. Rigger, both of Iowa City; Philip Adler of Davenport and Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

Mini-Skirt Is Revolting To Women Who're Midi-Aged, Maxi-Figured

NEW YORK (AP) — For the aged woman with a maxi-skirt, the miniskirt is a revolution.

Women would like to re-against fashion houses that are stuffing them into bosomy baby dresses that end in a short of their expectations.

Designers who showed off creations Wednesday, the day of New York Couture's four-day program of pre-made the point that short are right for the young.

There are many women the courage to admit that are not among the young?osing longer hemlines to tattooing birthdates on their foreheads.

So the midi-aged found friends among style houses early portion of the school. Though Townley's designer, Chuck Howard, was chincy chest room, his skirts were, most often, ample.

Can't Ignore Young

Since no one can ignore the young altogether in today's youth-oriented society, his show, too, produced several long-stemmed beauties in tunics overights. The stems in these instances were stockinged in bright paisleys, broad stripes or bull's eyes to match what little was left of the costume.

In general, though, Howard was as jumpy as a yoyo about his hemlines. Sometimes they dropped to midcalf length, with which Christian Dior demolished wardrobe budgets two years ago. One reached nearly to the ankle bone. With its white stain blouse, wide cummerbund and a gathered yellow skirt, it resembled a costume for a school play.

Scissors Skirt

Brownell ran true to the form of the fully endowed female, promising to cut some sizes to

20. Along with modest hemlines, the house was also benefactor of the scissors skirt — a single pleat beginning at the midriff and opening wide to the hemline which flatteringly conceals a widened hipline.

At the Junior Sophisticates house, a name composed to take in all ages, skirts are short but with enough fullness to keep the situation from being embarrassing. Most necklines here as well as at other houses are high and wide, also flattering to the woman with age and wrinkles to hide.

Suspect Gobbles Up The Evidence

KEOSAUQUA (AP) — Van Buren County sheriff's officers had a hard time identifying a youth they stopped on charge of speeding and throwing beer cans — especially after he ate his driver's license.

Authorities said a young man, later identified as James Bailey, 19, Donnellson, was spotted speeding and hurling beer cans Tuesday from his car in Lacey State Park. The park custodian gave chase until sheriff's officers stopped a youth in Keosauqua.

The youth then ate his driver's license. Deputies said they later learned it wasn't his own license but one he was using to show he was old enough to buy beer. The youth threw his own identification out the squad car window while riding to town, officers said.

Bailey was fined $45 for speeding in town, $25 for speeding in the park, $10 for running a stop sign and 15 days in jail for illegal use of a driver's license.

Litter War Starts

LONDON (AP) — War has been declared on litter during "Keep Britain Tidy Week" starting July 17. The government-sponsored campaign will involve distribution of litter bags, paper sacks, posters, bumper stickers, sugar bags with anti-litter slogans and a pop record titled "Why Aren't You Antilitter?"

Headaches Ahead For Pill Pushers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission opened Wednesday to bar deceptive advertising for headache pills and other pain relievers.

The agency proposed a trade regulation rule aimed at what it called "unfair and deceptive advertising practices which the commission has reason to believe are being used for non-proprietary pain relievers.

The proposed rule and notice accompanying the case mentioned names of products, companies and specific advertisements.

The commission said all products now offered for over the counter appear to be essentially the same in their effectiveness.

"It appears," the FTC said, "each of the various anal-gesic products now offered to be essentially the same degree as all other competing products, supplying an equivalent quantity of an analgesic ingredient or combination of ingredients."

Targets Listed

The commission said the targets of its proposed rule are:

1. Claims of effectiveness or safety which contradict or exceed statements or directions for use on labels.

2. False claims of comparative strength, speed, and duration of relief.

3. Attributing beneficial effects to specified ingredients without substantiation or without identifying them by their common or usual names.

The commission said one of its prime duties was to protect the public from false, misleading, deceptive or unfair advertising, especially for products that might endanger health or safety.

Deadline Fixed

It fixed Sept. 15 as the deadline for the filing of written comments on its proposed rule which would label advertisements falling within any of the three target areas as an unfair method of competition or an unfair or deceptive act or practice.

The proposed rule says a company may not advertise its product as faster, stronger or longer lasting unless it can demonstrate that a significant difference does exist because of an increased quantity of analgesic ingredients in the recommended dosage.

This fact, the proposal says, must be "clearly and conspicuously" disclosed in the advertisement.

Hawk's Club Forms Liaison For Medical Staff, Students

By BARBARA ANNIS

An education evaluation committee, known as the Hawk's Club, was formed during the last year at the suggestion of the College of Medicine's Medical Education Committee.

The organization was started in an attempt to establish dialogue between students and faculty for the improvement of medical education at the University.

"The whole idea of the thing is constructive criticism," said William L. Jackson, M1, Iowa City, a freshman member of the committee. "This is merely another form of feedback between the instructors and the instructed."

The committee is an advisory group to the Medical Education Committee, a committee of 12 medical faculty members appointed by the dean of the medical college to examine medical education at the University and make suggestions to the faculty as to how it could be improved.

The faculty committee suggested that students form the club by electing members from the student body, and elections were held for the first time in the fall of 1966.

Hawk's Club Is Key

"Our view is that the Hawk's Club is the key to what we have to do in the future — to establish as much dialogue as possible between the students and faculty," said Dr. Daniel B. Stone, associate dean of the College of Medicine and a member of the faculty committee.

In evaluating and trying to improve the teaching program, the Hawk's Club and the faculty committee are trying to swing some of the emphasis in medical education from research to teaching, according to Jackson.

"We hope to encourage the Hawk's Club to be a parallel with the Medical Education Committee so students can express an opinion on changes in the teaching program. They have been very helpful at making suggestions, and the interaction has been very productive," said Stone.

"The faculty committee asked us to provide them with an organized insight into what students thought about what needed to be changed and how to improve the quality of the medical college," said James W. Hanson, M3, Jefferson, Hawk's Club chairman.

Club Formed Last Year

"Since the club was only formed last year, we are still making changes in the organization," Hanson said. "Last year representatives were elected from each class to form a committee of 12 seniors, 6 or 8 juniors, 11 sophomores and 2 freshmen.

Each class' representatives evaluated a different department of the medical school last year. Different departments will be evaluated each year.

The committee made up a questionnaire on all aspects of each department and distributed it to medical students. The questionnaires asked for students' evaluations and comments on such aspects as classes, labs, tests, administration of departments, class facilities, amount of busy-work, quality of teaching and ability and attitude of instructors.

The students were encouraged to make comments and to provide constructive criticism for the professors concerned.

"This was not meant to be a back-biting session," Hanson said.

In addition, members of the committee interviewed 20-25 per cent of the members of each medical class and asked them four or five basic questions about how they thought medical education programs could be improved.

After the questionnaires were returned, the student committee wrote a report of the responses and gave an evaluation of their probable validity.

"We tried not to give a biased viewpoint of the report," said Hanson. "We wanted to get across the opinions of the entire class."

Club Reports

Also included in the Hawk's Club report were recommendations on general problems that members of the medical faculty or the faculty Medical Education Committee had asked their opinions.

"We'd like to give the faculty as much detailed information as we can," said Hanson. "The great majority of the faculty we have been in contact with have been very cordial and very receptive to our suggestions, but since this is a new thing, we don't know yet how much weight our report will carry."

After the report was finished, it was sent to the dean and the faculty committee for their comments. The faculty will make an informal and a formal reply to the Hawk's Club within about a week and then take the report to the faculty for their opinions. The faculty reaction will be reported to the Hawk's Club by the faculty committee.

The report will then be given to the heads of the departments evaluated who may discuss it with individual professors involved. The report will not be published or circulated except to the faculty.

Meeting To Be Held

A meeting will be held in September when the faculty will be asked for their opinion of the committee's work. Stone said he thought the faculty would approve of the system, however.

Actions have already been taken at the suggestion of the student committee, said Stone. For example, students suggested that a counselor should be provided to help freshmen medical students having academic trouble. The medical college is now seeking a counselor and will provide one this fall if the faculty approves.

"The Hawk's Club has been a great group and we have had a very productive exchange of views," said Stone.

"We have been completely free in expressing ideas, mostly in informal meetings at the home of faculty members, and several good things have come out of it," he said.

"We feel that this evaluation system could serve as a worthwhile model for other departments in the University and other medical schools," said Hanson.

"This is a part of the progressive movement to allow students a greater voice in evaluating their departments," he said.

Hanson emphasized that there was no connection between the Hawk's Club and Biopsy.

Supply Groups Protest Hike In Freight Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) said Wednesday it had received more than 200 protests to a proposal by the nation's railroads to increase freight rates by an estimated $300 million a year.

The ICC is scheduled to hear arguments on the increases, which generally run three to five per cent, starting next Tuesday.

Protests have come from virtually every major commodity group in the nation including producers of a variety of goods ranging from wine to cotton and sugar beets to lumber.

Included were eight of the nation's largest meat packers.

"In the face of slim profit margins by both the packers and their customers, the proposed increases" of the railroads will encourage more private packers to start their own private truck fleets, they said.

Grain shippers throughout the Midwest complained proposed increases on the Eastern and Western railroads would put them at a competitive disadvantage with shippers in the Southern territory.

IVORY SURRENDERED

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — More than 60 tons of illegal ivory from elephants shot by poachers were surrendered in a two-month amnesty period just ended, officials announced. The government paid $1 a pound for the ivory and plans to sell it for export at about $2.80.

Mrs. Bowen Keeps Busy As Hostess

By JAN TEAGUE

"Many people visualize the life of a president's wife as living in a fairy tale," Mrs. Howard R. Bowen, wife of the President of the University, remarked recently.

"Nothing could be further from the truth. I find that being the official hostess of the President's House in addition to regular household duties is a full time job."

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen do a lot of entertaining during the year and Mrs. Bowen plans the menu and table decorations.

She keeps a detailed file of every party they host throughout the year for future reference.

The biggest duty in being a president's wife is acting as hostess for so many functions, Mrs. Bowen says.

Entertains Many
Every year she entertains faculty members, alumni, members of the State Board of Regents, the deans and their wives and members of the administrative staff at numerous teas, luncheons and dinners.

Mrs. Bowen has a coffee for alumni every June after Commencement. She usually plans a luncheon before every home football game or has a party afterwards.

Recently she hosted the presidents of Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa and their wives.

Mrs. Bowen says she plans several student parties every year because they enjoy meeting University students.

Since it is impossible to meet everyone attending the University, she tries to invite different groups of students to each party.

Freshmen Meet Bowen
Freshman and transfer orientation groups are invited to the President's House during Orientation Week.

This past year two get-togethers were held at the President's House for campus leaders. They also entertain foreign students.

Through these parties we are able to find out how students feel about various topics, Mrs. Bowen said. It is very enjoyable to talk with young people, she explained.

Mrs. Bowen said that being a dean's wife for five years at the University of Illinois was good training for her present position. She said that basically her job was the same as before, only on a larger scale.

"As a president's wife you really assume your husband's responsibilities," Mrs. Bowen said. "My first duty is to the University, just as his is."

Blended Lives
We find that we are living in a blend of public and private life and there is not much left we can call our personal life, she said.

Mrs. Bowen provides her husband with companionship and maintains family ties. Often she becomes a sounding board for his latest idea.

Ad Man Barton, FDR Foe, Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Bruce Barton, a pioneer of modern advertising and a Republican congressman who bitterly opposed the New Deal of Franklin D. Roosevelt, died Wednesday. He was 80.

In the years preceding World War II, Roosevelt in public speeches used to refer sarcastically to "Martin, Barton and Fish"—an allusion to the then House Speaker Joseph Martin and Congressman Barton and Hamilton Fish—all GOP opponents of the administration.

Barton was the last surviving founder of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Inc., one of the best known names on Madison Avenue. He founded it in 1919 with Roy S. Durstine and Elex F. Osborn on a borrowed $10,000.

"I try to be as helpful as I possibly can," she said.

In the spare moments they find together, the President and Mrs. Bowen enjoy physical activity such as tennis or walking. When they have time they drive into the country and take a five-mile hike.

Mrs. Bowen said she enjoyed the fast pace of her life. However, when she is entertaining about fourteen times a week around Christmas, she wishes there were more time to savor the events.

"I often find myself spread too thin," she said. "However, socializing is an important part of my job and I enjoy meeting people."

Likes Small Functions
Mr. and Mrs. Bowen attend as many social functions as possible and like to attend private parties. She said it is much easier to meet people at small functions.

Mrs. Bowen said they tried to attend as many University events as possible.

"Since we cannot possibly attend every event, we try to sample a little bit of everything. The University has an excellent cultural program and should be very proud of it."

Hamburger University Offers Meatiest Courses Available

By DONNA ENSLOW

Walt O'Brien received his M.H. degree this spring from Hamburger University.

Hamburger University?

O'Brien and his father, William E. O'Brien, are co-managers of McDonald's Drive-In, 817 S. Riverside Dr. He received his M.H. (Master of Hamburgerology) degree in a formal ceremony at the training school operated in Chicago by the McDonald's chain for management trainees.

O'Brien, who also graduated from Creighton University this year, is following a family tradition. His father attended the training school when it first began. At that time, according to the senior O'Brien, it offered practical experience.

O'Brien said that Hamburger U. now offers students courses in the "science" of making hamburgers, French fries, milk shakes and other specialties of the restaurant chain.

The training lasts two weeks. Students attend class for 80 hours. The first week consists mostly of practical work. The second week is spent in the classroom.

O'Brien said that the courses taught how to choose ingredients and how to care for equipment.

"They make a science of knowing about how to use the equipment and keep it in peak performance," he said.

Hamburger University also offers courses in public relations, personnel selection and restaurant management.

Star-Gazers Get Sight Of Comet

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The discovery of a bright comet, visible in the Southern Hemisphere, was announced Wednesday by the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.

The comet is officially named Mitchell-Jones-Gerber for its three independent discoverers.

In the United States, it is visible from Florida and Southern California immediately after sunset. It appears in the constellation Hydra just below the bright star Regulus in Leo.

Railroad President Asked About Proposed Merger

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Counsel for the Union Pacific (UP) and Southern Pacific (SP) Railroads concluded cross-examination Wednesday of Western Pacific President Myron M. Christy at an Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) hearing on proposed merger of Union Pacific and the Rock Island Line.

Western Pacific contends that without various safeguards it would lose some of the traffic it now exchanges over the Rock Island-Denver & Rio Grande Western route.

UP and SP questioning was aimed at showing that potential loss estimates were exaggerated.

Two Western Pacific vice presidents, F. A. Tegeler and James W. Baker, are scheduled to testify next.

The ICC hearings, which also embrace a proposal to unite the Rock Island and Chicago and North Western, began in Chicago more than a year ago. They are supposed to conclude here this week.

Iowa Heart Association Awards Grants Sugar Content In Cigaretts Is Risky Researcher Reports

The Iowa Heart Association has awarded over $73,000 in research grants to 15 University research scientists.

Dr. Alfred J. Herlitzka of Mason City, incoming president of the association, announced the awards last week.

He also made public the funding of a $2,000 Nursing Fellowship and a statewide cardiac nursing instructional program, both of which will be conducted at the University College of Nursing.

Herlitzka said the Iowa fundings "serve as an overwhelming vote of confidence as to the important role the Iowa medical research community and cardiac nursing education can provide in the total effort to combat heart disease."

Dr. John B. Flege, assistant professor of surgery, was awarded a $5,000 grant for study of artificial implants used in heart surgery. Another $5,000 research project under the direction of Dr. Mark L. Armstrong, associate professor of internal medicine, involves studies dealing with body cholesterol content.

Others receiving grants-in-aid were: Dr. Frederick L. Benoit, assistant professor of internal medicine, $4,999; Dr. Joseph D. Brown, assistant professor of internal medicine, $5,000; Dr. William E. Connor, associate professor of internal medicine, $5,000; Dr. John W. Eckstein, professor of internal medicine, $5,000; Dr. Edgar Folk Jr., professor of physiology, $4,995; Dr. John C. Hoak, assistant professor of internal medicine, $5,000; Dr. Frank W. Kroetz, associate professor in cardiovascularology, $3,165; Dr. Gabriel L. Plaa, associate professor of pharmacology, $5,000.

Dr. George B. Theil, assistant professor of internal medicine, $5,000; Dr. Charles M. Tipton, assistant professor of physiology, $4,995; Dr. Bruce A. Warren, assistant professor of pathology, $4,935; Dr. Harold E. Williamson, associate professor of pharmacology, $5,000; and Dr. William R. Wilson, associate professor of internal medicine, $5,000.

The $3,400 grant for a Cardiac Nursing Program will involve the selection of nine outstanding nurses in Iowa. These nurses will receive an intensive two weeks of schooling in cardiac nursing in Iowa City, Pearl Zemlicka, assistant professor of nursing, said.

"Following completion of the two one-week sessions the nurses will return to their home medical facility, knowledgeable in most recent techniques and nursing advances in the area of cardiac care and able to instruct others of the nursing profession in this most vital area," she said.

Sugar Content In Cigaretts Is Risky Researcher Reports

LONDON (AP)—British may run twice the risk of Americans in contracting lung disease because the sugar content of their cigarettes is twice as high, says a British researcher.

Prof. Richard Passey of Chester Beatty Research Institute sets the sugar content of American cigarettes at about 8 per cent; and that of British cigarettes at 16 per cent.

The 72-year-old professor's report to the British Empire Campaign for Cancer Research, which was published Tuesday, gave the fruits of his 15 years' work studying links between smoking and cancer. His conclusion: Countries in which the sugar content of cigarettes is lowest also have low lung cancer death rates; conversely, countries where cigarettes have a high sugar content, have high lung cancer death rates.

He thinks the modern method of drying tobacco by heat, which results in a milder and less pungent smoke, also leaves the sugar content high.

Discussing his work in an interview, Passey stressed his conclusion was only a preliminary one.

Passey said they had been able to analyze only the cigarettes they could get hold of—a few well-known brands from each country. The American brands examined included Lucky Strike, Camel, Chesterfield and Pall Mall.

"But even there," he said "if you buy two packages at different times, the content is not always the same. Even two cigarettes from the same package may not give the same result. Every batch of tobacco from which cigarettes are made up is different."

Passey said French cigarettes were more like cigars and generally had a low sugar content, around 2 per cent. Popular brands from Spain and Portugal also were low in sugar, he said. In all those countries the lung cancer rate is lower than in Britain.

He emphasized his work was far from completed, and the public should not jump to hasty conclusions.

Canada, for example, had cigarettes with about the same sugar content as Britain's, yet its lung cancer death rate was low, he said.

Employees Of Parsons Cut Wages

FAIRFIELD (AP)—Employees of Parsons College are taking a voluntary salary cut in a move to help the once rapidly growing school out of its troubles.

Dr. William Munson, acting president of the college, said Wednesday that faculty and staff members voted overwhelmingly to defer up to 25 per cent of their pay in the coming year. The amount to be withheld mounts with a person's salary.

Only 20 of the about 300 persons at the Monday night meeting opposed the move, said Munson. He estimated it would save Parsons some $200,000 or more in payroll costs.

Affects All Employees

Since more than the required 80 per cent voted for the move, it will affect all employees.

The voluntary pay cuts will be restored when the college's fiscal situation improves, said the president, and Parsons will acknowledge the withheld money as a legal debt.

Munson also confirmed Parsons enrollment had dropped sharply since the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (NCA) revoked its academic accreditation. The action is being fought in federal court at Chicago, and a hearing is scheduled for Friday.

Enrollment Drops

The college, previously regarded as a pace setter in educational innovations, had a summer enrollment last year of about 3,780 under its schedule of year-around classes. Enrollment this summer has dropped to about 1,900, Munson reported.

Meanwhile a Parsons professor of English, Charles Sloca, has circulated letters demanding Millard G. Roberts be recognized as still president of the school.

Roberts, a former Presbyterian minister, led the Parsons upsurge until the board of trustees executive committee ordered him removed from office last month in the wake of the NCA action.

Sloca, who ran for governor last year and also has challenged Iowa income tax laws without success, contends it takes a two-thirds majority of the full board of trustees to remove a president.

Birchers Say Float Vetoed For Parade

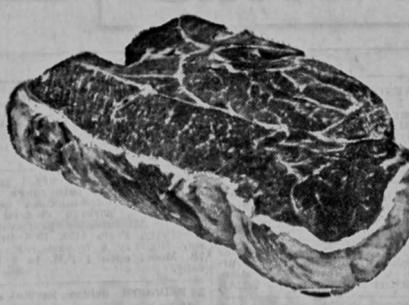

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The John Birch Society complained Wednesday that the Dallas Chamber of Commerce refused to let it enter a float in the Independence Day parade here Tuesday.

Rex T. Westerfield of San Marino, Calif., public relations director for the society, said Maj. Gen. Harley B. West of the chamber rejected the float permit because the society was "controversial."

"It is incredible that patriotic citizens be denied permission to participate in a public parade," Westerfield said, while other elements "defame and destroy our flag and the Constitution."

He said the proposed float was to have printed on it "God, Country, Family" and below that, "The John Birch Society."
