

-Massive Withdrawal Of Forces Planned-

Union Jack To Descend In Far East

LONDON (UPI) — Britain announced Tuesday plans for a massive withdrawal from its Southeast Asia land bases and a one-fifth cut in all armed forces by the mid-1970's.

A government policy statement disclosed the pullout would take place in two stages:

• By 1970-1971 British forces in the vast region between the Suez Canal and the China Sea will be reduced by half from their present strength of 40,000 servicemen and 40,000 local civilian employees.

• By 1975-1976 British bases in Singapore and Malaysia will be shut down totally, leaving only airfields and naval port facilities open for future British use.

Empire Dismantled

The descent of the Union Jack in a region once dominated by the royal navy symbolized the final phase in the dismantling of the modern world's mightiest empire.

And it has been designed, too, to hustle the process of transforming Britain from a global to a strictly European power.

The decision, forced on Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government by dire economic need, was bannered in London's Evening Standard under the heading, "Farewell Far East." It reflected the nostalgia with which most Britons are kissing a phase of history goodbye.

It's an open secret the British cuts have deeply dismayed President Johnson's administration along with Australia, New Zealand, Malaysia and Singapore.

Washington Doesn't Like

Defense Minister Denis Healey acknowledged to newsmen that "no one in Washington wants to see a reduction of British forces in the Far East while the Vietnam war is still going on." But he added at once he knew no American who expects that war to continue until the mid-1970s.

But Britain's military retrenchment over the next eight years will be considerable.

Air, land and sea forces, now numbering 417,360 are to be cut by 75,000 or about one-fifth.

Civilian employees serving the military are to be reduced by 30,000 in Britain, 50,000 abroad — 40,000 of them in Singapore and Malaysia.

The defense budget now running at about $5.88 billion a year, will in 1970-1971 be pulled down by $560 million, and in 1975-1976 by about $840 million. These savings have been estimated on the basis of 1967 prices.

Spending Slashed

Defense research and development spending on new weapons systems will be slashed in the next three years by $84 million, freeing scientists, technicians and factory space for civil work.

Hong Kong, off mainland China, will keep its garrison and may even be strengthened.

The nation's main overseas defense effort, the White Paper said, will be vested in the "military efficiency and political solidarity" of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, underlining Britain's attempt to assume a European role within the Common Market. The British contribution to NATO will remain broadly on the current scale unless some East-West deal can be arranged for scaling down forces in Europe.

British Plan Seen As Blow To U.S.

An AP News Analysis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's Allied and Far Eastern policies suffered a severe setback Tuesday with the announcement of Britain's intention to withdraw all its forces from Malaysia and Singapore by the mid-1970s.

This move will leave the United States alone as the effective Western military power in an area where the British and French traditionally play decisive roles. The French lost out in 1954.

The Johnson Administration has tried to persuade the British not to abandon their Far Eastern position, and the President frankly admitted this at a news conference Tuesday. He indicated that he would still like to get the British government to modify its plan.

"We have expressed ourselves as very hopeful that the British would maintain their position in that part of the world and we would hope they would find it useful to do so," Johnson said.

Britain's shrinking power position means a parallel reduction in the extent of Allied cooperation between Washington and London, a process that has been going on since World War II.

U.S. officials say this has come about as the British gradually disposed of their empire and lacked the resources to compete with superpowers — the United States and the Soviet Union.

U.S. Resists Shrinkage

Nevertheless, the United States resisted the shrinkage policy where possible — even while at other times advocating the seemingly contradictory policy of Britain becoming a European power and leader in the European unification movement. That policy in recent years has been stalled primarily by the opposition of French President Charles de Gaulle.

Still, in the eyes of official Washington, Britain remains one of the best allies and the only one still partially committed to a global military-political strategy.

Trouble with other allies parallels or exceeds that with the British.

U.S. presidents and De Gaulle have been at odds for years over De Gaulle's determination to minimize American influence in Europe. One result has been to split the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to force its headquarters withdrawal from France.

More recently sharp differences have developed between the United States and A3, Boston, Mass.

The DRU was involved in a demonstration on May 18 at Ft. Des Moines to back former University student Kuris Raits of Marion.

Raits, who said he would not stop forward to be sworn into the army, reversed his stand at the Induction Center and was inducted peacefully.

The demonstrators, however, kept deputy U.S. marshals busy and during the day five protesters were evicted from the grounds.

The demonstrators plan to meet at the Iowa City Post Office at 4:15 to 4:45 a.m. Thursday to discuss the alternatives and objections to service with those leaving on the bus for Des Moines.

The group will meet outside Ft. Des Moines from 6 a.m. until noon to distribute leaflets and to establish a picket line at the gate of the induction grounds, Mrs. Duskey said.

The meeting to plan Thursday's events will be held at 7:30 tonight in the Union Wisconsin Room and is open to the public.

Railroaders Return To Work

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's railroad men went back to work at congressional order Tuesday and their less-than-highball pace returned in serious service problems on several main lines.

Pickets still marched from Ohio to California as President Johnson appointed a conciliation panel to mediate the wage dispute that resulted in the first coast-to-coast rail strike in 20 years.

About 15 per cent of the nation's 76 big railroads reported resistance in getting their schedules started again after the two-day stoppage. Included were the New York Central, the Santa Fe and the Baltimore & Ohio. The Central said it would go into court for an injunction to halt picketing in Cleveland.

Union men, some calling the act that ended their walkout "the strike-breaking law of 1967," carried placards in Los Angeles, St. Louis, Little Rock and through Texas, New Mexico, Michigan, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Despite the return-to-work order, some coal mines in West Virginia began to close down for lack of rail transport, and supervisory personnel handled on a limited basis the movement of perishables throughout the West.

Jersey Trouble Spots Calm; Police Watchful

Miscellaneous notes on strike, LBJ, trains, fruit and flying machines

Two stories in Tuesday's edition of The Daily Iowan bring to mind a very interesting question.

In one story, Joseph W. Ramsey, vice president of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists which initiated the nationwide railroad strike, said of the action taken by Congress and President Johnson to end the strike, "It's the strikebreakers act of 1967." In the other story it was stated that a poll of the AFL-CIO's 13.5 million members over the weekend overwhelmingly favored the re-election of President Johnson next year.

It would be very interesting to see another poll taken now.

Who said the railroads were dead or dying? Although I can't agree with some news accounts that the one-day strike was "crippling" the nation, it is apparent that a prolonged strike would be more devastating than the airlines strike last summer.

Although the airlines strike caused disruption in some mail service and trip plans by thousands of people, it did not result in an insurmountable stoppage of merchandise shipments.

However, the railroad strike in just one day caused extreme worry to most of America's industries. The Uni-ion Pacific Railroad reported it had 921 carloads of fruits and vegetables in danger of spoiling before the day was over. Some produce dealers reported that shortages were imminent and that prices already were going up. Almost 500,000 persons in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago had to find alternate means for getting to work because the commuter trains were idle. A Chicago official said that city would lose $40 million a day if the strike had continued. Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien announced a general moratorium on second, third, and fourth class mail.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara said 1,000 ammunition-carrying freight cars hauling supplies for shipment to Vietnam had been interrupted. Ford and General Motors reported if the strike lasted very long, some 20 assembly plants would have been shut down for lack of steel. Even Iowa City would be seriously handicapped if the strike were prolonged because local industry gets 25-30 railroad cars a day. The list goes on and on.

No matter what they say about those new-fangled flying machines, the good old noise, dirt and tales of the railroad will be around for a long time.

2 Repertory Theatre plays called unsuited, good

By EDWARD BASSETT
Publisher

One of the offerings of the Summer Repertory Theatre, "The Underpants," is not suited for the University Theatre and I cannot think of a theater in which it should be offered.

A contrived incident sets the stage for four acts which contain no illusion and scarcely any direction. The roles are wooden, underdeveloped, and with absolutely no resolution.

The players do make something of a bad situation. Marla Friedman provides the audience with a radiance that is a feature of "The Fantasticks" this summer. It is a pity her singing voice was not utilized somehow in "parts." Donald Muench sparks some neat turns as a consummate counterpoint to the characters played by Tal Russell and Henry Strozier. The latter, but for a lapse into a sudden Barrymore-type characterization, provides the stage with glitter as a gallant all too willing to be diverted by the next distraction.

"Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" is another cup of tea. Obvious comparisons may be drawn with "The Pawnbroker," but "Slow Dance" contains its own qualities.

The players extract much of the value of the play from their lines, and they are more than adequate in conveying their individual tortures to the audience. Henry Strozier conveys the anguish of a man who cannot expiate old sins; Michael Henderson plays the brittle Mod with fresh sin on his hands to the hilt; Rhonda Newitz's "Rosie" conveys the confusion of a young woman about to commit a mortal sin.

The characters are permitted to develop certain dimensions. Some of their oaths are scabrous and seem unnecessary to the not-so-delicate mind, but the dialogue has force and the actors gain empathy with their audience. Henderson's breathless delivery requires the playgoer to listen carefully so as not to lose large segments of his discourse and Miss Newitz occasionally slides out of her "New York" accent, but these are minor faults. The three actors offer a strong evening of theater.

De Gaulle comes to Expo 67 as world watches and waits

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — President Charles de Gaulle is coming to Expo 67 on July 23 and everyone is very excited about his appearance. His itinerary for the fair has not been set yet, but based on his recent behavior I can only guess what he will do.

9 a.m.: First stop, the Soviet Pavilion, where he will praise Soviet exhibits as the only ones fulfilling the theme of Man and His World. He will announce that France and the Soviet Union will continue to co-operate at Expo 67 and will consult each other on all questions arising from other foreign exhibits.

10 a.m.: President De Gaulle will hold a press conference at the French Pavilion where he will read a statement attacking the size and shape of the United States Pavilion and will accuse the United States of wrecking Expo 67 by refusing to get out of Vietnam. He will blame the United States for the large crowds that have been attracted to Montreal and will call for the immediate withdrawal of American tourists from the Expo amusement area. De Gaulle will also use the press conference to appeal to neutral nations exhibiting there to join the French in rejecting any attempts on the part of the United States to "Americanize" the fair.

11 a.m.: President De Gaulle will receive a delegation from the British Pavilion, making application to join the French Pavilion in a Common Souvenir Market. He will tell the British that France is opposed to the British getting into the French Pavilion at this time. De Gaulle will point out that as long as the British keep co-operating with the United States Pavilion by exchanging visitors and souvenirs, they will not be welcome in the Common Market Pavilion trade areas.

12:10 p.m.: President De Gaulle will make a tour of the Arab Pavilion where he will once again back the Arabs in their condemnation of the Israeli Pavilion. He will blame the Israelis for cutting off visitors to the Arab exhibits and for committing aggression against the U.A.R. Pavilion. He will announce that the French will boycott the Israeli Pavilion until the Israelis get out of the west bank of the St. Lawrence River, where Expo 67 is taking place.

1:30 p.m.: The French president will meet with the leaders of the Latin-American pavilions and offer them cut-rate meals at the French restaurant if they will agree to stop eating at the United States Pavilion.

2:15 p.m.: President De Gaulle will visit the Bank of Montreal where he will demand gold for all the dollars left at the French Pavilion by Americans.

3:00 p.m.: The French president will visit with Expo 67 officials and then call for a Big Four conference to settle the question of open shipping through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

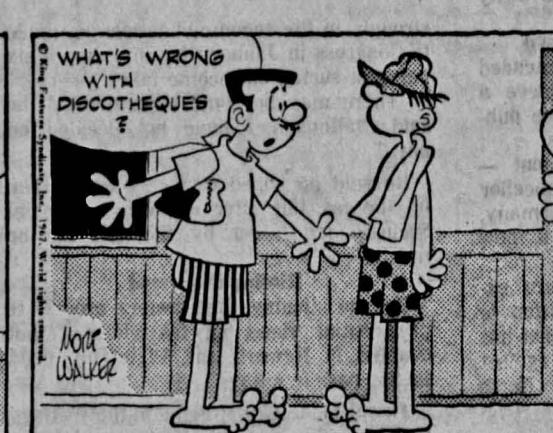

3:30 p.m.: De Gaulle, while visiting the world science exhibition, will announce that France will set off an atomic bomb test over the French Pavilion to celebrate the birthday of Joan of Arc.

4:30 p.m.: The French president will participate in a giant water and fountain display climaxed by his walking across the St. Lawrence River and laying a wreath at the foot of the American Express.

5:00 p.m.: De Gaulle will leave the fair and fly to Cuba just to see whether Kostygin told Castro anything that he didn't tell him.

Public called ignorant of Iowa City poverty

By SUE BOUDINOT

A tour of Iowa City off the beaten path can be a real eye-opener, as far as housing conditions are concerned.

Some of the houses in the southern part of Iowa City and in the North Dodge and Benton Street areas look like they're unoccupied and should be part of the setting for a Steinbeck novel; but 7,200 people, those belonging to families whose income is less than $3,000 a year, live in these similar dwellings.

Many of these houses have no screens on the doors or windows, no sewage disposal system and no hot running water. The dwellings are sometimes surrounded by junked cars, tall weeds and sandy-haired children playing in the dirt.

Washing machines turned over on the lawn and washing hanging in the yard soaking up the aroma of burning trash are also part of the scene.

The rent for such houses averages $70 a month.

The housing occupied by low income families in Iowa City is hard to find. The first clue to its existence is a row of mailboxes lining the rutted gravel roads. Looking carefully between the trees and behind the small shops, one can see the unpainted, Jerry-built houses which these people call home.

Why do Iowa City families, whose level of poverty is considerably better than other areas in Johnson County, live in such conditions? According to Bryant Mills, assistant director of the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP), the real cause of poverty in Iowa City is not unemployment but low wages.

"It's not that the poor are lazy or unemployed — in fact they work more hours than most people, but they simply can't make enough to keep up with the cost of living," Mills said.

Some of those who are categorized as poor by the standards set by the Office of Economic Opportunity lack a high school education and are not trained in a service or skill. For them, finding a good job is difficult.

The HACAP office works directly with five "target areas" where many low-income families live. A representative from each target area is a member of the advisory council to community action. Here HACAP workers and low income representatives work together to help the families.

According to HACAP officials, the high cost of housing in Iowa City has forced low income families out of the city, creating a problem for the social agencies who work with them.

"It's even difficult to get the children of low income families to attend school because they have to walk so far to get to where the school bus stops," Mills said.

A special problem are the elderly poor who cannot hold a job and haven't the energy to provide for the upkeep of their homes.

At present, many social services are being extended to low income families through the HACAP office. These include visits by homemaking experts, legal service aides and teacher of consumer education. HACAP is considering a program in employability to make people in the low income bracket aware of jobs available to them and to provide them with the necessary training for these jobs.

A low income housing committee, under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Robert L. Welsh of the First Christian Church, is studying ways to subsidize housing for the poor in Iowa City.

The problem, it seems, is that the public is ignorant of the fact that poverty exists in Iowa City, just a few blocks off the main roads.

"People are unsympathetic — their eyes are open but they fail to see," Mills said.

To the Editor:

We the undersigned would like to express our agreement with Steven E. Geralt in Friday's issue of The Daily Iowan that the Union be returned to its owners. Since the Union is supported by student funds it would seem rational to ask that it be run for the benefit of those students, rather than for various visitors and con-ventioners.

It would seem only right that the students should demand fair and courteous service especially in the River Room Cafeteria. We support a boycott of the food service.

Question moving of motorcycle lot

To the Editor:

The recent moving of the motorcycle lot beside the Chemistry Building, to an area north of the Union, has been justified by John Dooley, Director of Parking Lot Operations, as being needed for the increased number of motorcycles on campus. The areas of both lots are nearly identical, so that additional cycles will not be able to park in the new lot. Additional space for one cycle does not justify the added inconvenience for all users of the lot.

Also, if past experience is any indication, the vacated area will not be occupied by bicycles. We don't recall that the space reserved for them was even close to being filled during any part of the second semester of last year.

SPORTS6th-Place Pirates Replace Manager

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manager Harry Walker was fired Tuesday by the sixth-place Pittsburgh Pirates and ex-manager Danny Murtaugh was called in to try to get the team back in the pennant race.

General Manager Joe L. Brown said he shuffled the field bosses so quickly that not even the players and coaches were told before-hand.

MURTAUGH

Walker's locker in Forbes Field had not been cleaned out when Brown made the announcement at a hurry-up news conference, and said Murtaugh would take the reins for Tuesday night's doubleheader against San Francisco.

To Manage Temporarily

Brown said Murtaugh will remain as manager only until the end of the season. Presumably, Brown will go shopping for another manager.

The Pirates were favored by the Las Vegas bookies to win the National League pennant. But they haven't been able to put everything together and were eight games off the pace before Tuesday's action.

Murtaugh, 49, brought the Pirates their last pennant and World Series championship in 1960. He was succeeded by Walker in 1965.

Brown, who backed Walker the reason.

strongly at a news conference only two weeks ago, wouldn't give any reason for giving him the boot.

Repeats Message

Instead, he repeated the gist of what he told the players at a special team meeting on June 30:

"The success of the team is as much the responsibility of the players as it is the manager."

"I stated earlier in the year I thought this was a team that could win the pennant. I still do."

There have been rumors of team dissension, but the only thing definite was catcher Jim Pagiaroni's statement that he wanted to be traded.

The Pirates finished third both seasons Walker was in command, and were in the thick of last year's race until the next to last day.

Acquisitions Help

That ending, plus the off-season acquisition of pitchers Dennis Ribant and Juan Pizarro, and Maury Wills, made the Pirates as much as 8-5 favorites in the Las Vegas book.

But the Pirates' big bats have never made up for the spotty pitching, and the team has been buried in the second division for more than a month.

Murtaugh, a second baseman with the Pirates and the Boston Braves, took over as Pittsburgh manager in 1957 from Bobby Bragan. When he left in 1964, a stomach ailment was given as

Lawmaker Backs Secret Sessions

By TERRY TAYLOR

Rep. Minette E. Doderer (D-Iowa City) Tuesday defended the secret session between legislative leaders and Gov. Harold E. Hughes which marked the last days of the 1967 State Legislature.

Addressing the Iowa City Kiwanis Club, Mrs. Doderer said that the closed-door meetings were the only way the politicians could get together and avoid the "harassment" of special interest groups.

Mrs. Doderer remarked that the closed-door sessions, held to decide the new tax structure, were decided upon after several months of attempts to come to an agreement in open meetings.

According to her, Hughes arranged the meeting because he would not accept proposed property tax relief at the expense of those with lower income.

"Although large businesses and wealthier citizens will now assume more of the tax burden, the taxpayer below the $7,000 level will actually pay less tax than before," Mrs. Doderer said.

"Even though the proposed progressive tax will require more from industry, these increases do not place Iowa at a disadvantage compared to other states' taxes."

In explaining legislative proceedings, Mrs. Doderer said the failure of the legislature was in its refusal to cut down the size of the two houses.

"The House and the Senate are much too large to operate efficiently in present facilities," she said.

She remarked that the property relief provided for in the new tax bill could not have been accomplished if the legislature had not made up for it elsewhere, for example closed door sessions.

Mozart Concert Scheduled

Several University musicians will present a concert of sacred music by W.A. Mozart at 7 p.m. Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church, 26 E. Market St.

Most of the Mozart works in the program have never been published in concert editions and have rarely been performed. The works were edited from historical volumes by Mrs. Rosella Duerksen, director of music at First Presbyterian Church.

The summer concert is being prepared by about 45 University faculty members and graduate students and Iowa City residents who are chorus and orchestra members and soloists. The concert, which will be presented for the third consecutive year, is free to the public.

"Most people are familiar with Mozart's concertos and operas, but he wrote a tremendous amount of beautiful church music that is seldom performed," Mrs. Duerksen said.

The lecture will be open to the public at 8 p.m. in 210 Law Building.

It will be the 14th John F. Murray memorial lecture under sponsorship of the College of Law.

A professor of law at the University of Minnesota, Auerbach is currently the Visiting Murray Professor of Law here.

Auerbach, who had also taught law at the universities of Wisconsin and Utah and at Columbia University, was general counsel in the Office of Price Administration and associate general counsel in the Office of Economic Stabilization. He has also served as consultant for the Department of State's Agency for International Development in a number of South and Central American countries.

Grad To Present Singing Recital

Alan Peters, G, Des Moines, a candidate for a doctor of musical arts degree in performance and pedagogy, will present a vocal recital at 6:30 p.m. Friday on North Music Hall.

The bass-baritone's program will include Carlisle Floyd's "Blitzkrieg's Player of Repentance" and songs from Franz Schubert's "Winterreise." He will be assisted by tenor Delbert Simon, G, Bellingham, Wash., and accompanied by pianist Vernon Gould, G, Spencer.

"Most people are familiar with Mozart's concertos and operas, but he wrote a tremendous amount of beautiful church music that is seldom performed," Mrs. Duerksen said.
