Riot Temperature Cools

DETROIT (AP) — Tanks and troops in force in a battle-scarred West Side area brought a semblance of calm Wednesday night to this riot-blitzed city of 1.7 million. Violence was at its lowest after dark in the fourth day of the nation's worst racial explosion in recent history. Solitary reports of sniper weapons, followed sometimes by gunshots by soldiers and police, still echoed intermittently in the darkness. But well past the 9 p.m. curfew hour the streets were empty except for police and troops patrolling with car and truck headlights off. A tense semi-peace enveloped the 92-block West Side area after National Guardsmen in battle dress poured into quell an afternoon outburst of sniping there.

Soldiers Wounded
Two soldiers and a civilian were wounded by the sniper. When the shooting erupted, all city policemen withdrew from the area — the section hit hardest by destruction and violence. Sniper bullets hit two Guardsmen and the civilian near a police precinct. Gunfire whizzed near the Herman Kiefer branch of Detroit General Hospital. Kiefer came under attack while fighting a blaze. Soldiers at one spot hidden behind a police bus. Jeeps with .30-caliber machineguns moved past, the soldiers warily scanning rooftops. Several blocks away, Detroiters — many who had come to work for the first time this week — were wending their way along traffic-clogged freeways to suburban homes. Elsewhere in the city and suburbs, hundreds of white persons showed up at gunshops to buy weapons, but had little success. Gun merchants apparently had imposed a gun sales embargo on themselves. Federal officials said the situation in the city was calmer than in the corresponding periods Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, and the East Side, where regular Army soldiers maintained guard posts at intersections, had little trouble while gun battles were blazing Tuesday night on the West Side patrolled by Guardsmen. "Don't attribute anything magic to the federal troops," Lt. Gen. John Throckmorton, commander of the Army troops, told newsmen. He said he had no plans to move them to the West Side.

Death Toll Climbs
The death toll climbed in the nightmarish shooting, burning and looting in devastated parts of the city where streets were battlegrounds and skies were marked by orange streaks of tracer bullets from tank-mounted machineguns. The toll included:
Dead, 35.
Injured or wounded, more than 1,000.
Property loss, an estimated $500 million.
Arrested, more than 2,750.
Businesses looted, more than 1,500.
Fires, more than 1,150.

Homeless, a "ballpark estimate" of 300 to 3,000. Leaping hopscotch across the city, fires left a crazy quilt of ruin — whole blocks studded with skeletal stumps of what once stood on them, others checkered with the whole and the destroyed. The seige of anarchy left thousands homeless. Scores of dwellings went up in smoke, but even more apartments were wrecked by firebombing of stores on the ground floor of tenement buildings.

Relief Agencies Set Up
Churches and other relief agencies set up emergency facilities and bread lines. They handed out canned goods and milk and clothing. Stores in some battered areas were selling milk at $1 a quart, officials said. At least 10 deaths Tuesday night pushed the fatality count to that of the 1965 Watts riot in Los Angeles, the worst previous racial violence in loss of life. A 1943 Detroit riot left 34 dead. Injured or wounded included 54 police officers, 19 soldiers, and 29 firemen. Tuesday night's blazing gunfire seriously wounded a policeman and killed a 4-year-old girl. Fires and looting dwindled. But in three days and nights of terror, the number of fires reached 1,205. Entire blocks and long sections of streets were virtually wiped out — the smoking rubble and debris like a scene from a war. The toughest job was flushing out hidden snipers. "You have to dig them out," said Cyrus Vance, President Johnson's special assistant who helped make the decision for placing U.S. Army regulars in Detroit. Gov. George Romney said sniper fire already had increased, ending the tense lull after hours-long, blazing gunbattles in the darkness before dawn. Gen. Throckmorton said he believed no more than 100 snipers were left.

Violence Spreads
Meanwhile, racial violence spread across Michigan — touching Grand Rapids, Flint, Saginaw, Pontiac, Muskegon, Benton Harbor and Mount Clemens. In Grand Rapids, three Negro men trying to calm an angry crowd of Negroes were greeted Tuesday by bullets. They were shot and wounded. There were these other developments:
● Gov. Romney accused President Johnson of giving the nation an inaccurate version of events leading to the deployment of U.S. troops in Detroit.

● The Pentagon ordered 25 helicopters from Ft. Riley, Kan., flown to Detroit at the request of Throckmorton "to support current operations." The craft were to be used for fast airlift of troops and for scanning rooftops for snipers.
● Business and industry, crippled by the paralyzing widespread destruction and violence, began picking up but were far below normal.
● Efforts were under way to aid a growing number — probably thousands — of refugees left homeless, hungry or jobless by the destruction. More than 400 grocery stores were burned in the rampage.

New Legal Group Elects Directors

Three low-income representatives were elected Wednesday night as directors of the Hawkeye Area Legal Services Society. Elected to the board were Mrs. Penny Bloom, 5 Riverside Ct., Joel Whitaker, 130 E. Jefferson St., and Mrs. Betty Ceynar, 812 S. Dubuque St. Wednesday night's meeting was the first for the newly-established society. About 25 persons at the meeting heard a discussion of eligibility standards, the extent of the free legal services and the approximate starting date of the program, which is Sept. 1. The Legal Services Society is one of the anti-poverty programs of the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP). The society has a federal grant of about $58,000 to operate in Johnson County during the next year. John C. Garfield and Dwayne C. Schaffner, president and executive director, respectively, of HACAP, presided at the meeting. The University's College of Law will work with the staff of the society. Seniors will provide free legal aid to those eligible under the program standards. The society will have a full-time director, a staff attorney and a deputy director, who will work half-time with the society and half-time with the College of Law. Society officials are looking for persons to fill these positions.

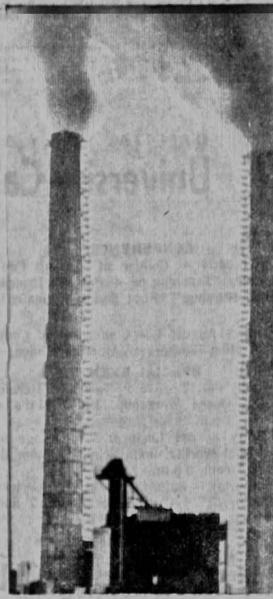

THEIR TOUR CUT SHORT, French President Charles de Gaulle and his wife wave goodbye to newsmen as they board a plane at Montreal's airport Wednesday. De Gaulle's visit to Canada was cut short Wednesday after he became target of criticism from Prime Minister Lester Pearson prompted by De Gaulle's remarks backing a "free Quebec."

De Gaulle Matches Snub For Rebuke, Ends Tour

MONTREAL (AP) — Matching a snub for a rebuke, President Charles de Gaulle flew home Wednesday, cutting short by one day a visit designed to honor Canada on its 100th birthday. He left Canadian officials to stew among themselves in the diplomatic crisis he set off by voicing fighting words in Quebec Province. None of the Canadian Cabinet came to the airport to see his DC8 take off. By skipping an originally scheduled trip to Ottawa, the French president in effect delivered a snub to Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson. Riding a wave of protests from many Canadians individually and through newspapers, Pearson issued Tuesday night a statement holding that De Gaulle viewpoints expressed in Quebec were "unacceptable." De Gaulle had said, "French Canada is a country which wants to be its own master," and later shouted a separatist war cry: "Long live free Quebec!" In his final Montreal speech, the French leader made an oblique reference to "shock" that had been produced by his statements, but did not explain the cancellation of his Ottawa appearance. He again urged French Canadians to become masters of their own destiny. The University's College of Law will work with the staff of the society. Seniors will provide free legal aid to those eligible under the program standards. The society will have a full-time director, a staff attorney and a deputy director, who will work half-time with the society and half-time with the College of Law. Society officials are looking for persons to fill these positions.

Canada on its centennial as a nation — resolved out of conflict between French and English-speaking citizens — wound up as strictly a tour of largely French-speaking Quebec Province. De Gaulle landed at Quebec City Sunday, steaming in on a French cruiser. He then drove to Montreal, the province's largest city, with acclaim along the way, and visited Expo 67. Cheered at the Montreal City Hall, he made the "Vive le Quebec libre!" statement that principally brought down the Canadian government's wrath. Quebec nationalists — those who favor separating Quebec from Canada — are a comparatively small minority, so far as all reliable measurements go. But many in Quebec, probably a majority, feel that they have a special place in the Canadian scheme of things. Quebec assumes tokens of authority that the nine other provinces willingly forego in favor of the national government. The nationalists cheered De Gaulle to the last as he made his farewell tour of Montreal Wednesday. Separatists shouted "Quebec, libre, De Gaulle l'a dit!" ("Free Quebec, De Gaulle said so.") The general, in an eight-minute talk at the University of Montreal, took an indirect poke at the United States. It is a colossal state, he said, and its very size places "your own entity in question."

SNCC President Nabbed, Freed, Arrested Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — H. Rap Brown, arrested by the FBI on a fugitive warrant but freed hours later, was nabbed on the federal courthouse steps Wednesday by Alexandria, Va., police and hustled to the city jail six blocks away.

The police said they were holding Brown, 23-year-old director of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), for Maryland authorities on charges of incitement to riot and arson.

Brown is accused of triggering the riot at Cambridge, Md., Monday night and the burning of the Pine Street Elementary School and other buildings.

Brown Challenges Officers
The Alexandria police dragged Brown down the steps of the federal courthouse after he and a small band of followers defiantly challenged the officers to arrest him.

The SNCC leader was taken to the Alexandria Police Department, which is in a predominantly Negro neighborhood. Negroes gathered at the steps, but policemen barred the door to them as well as a swarm of newsmen.

The FBI — one Negro and one white agent — arrested Brown in midmorning at Washington National Airport, not far from Alexandria, and placed him in a cell at the courthouse to await an afternoon hearing. He was picked up on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in Maryland.

'We'll Burn The Country Down'
As the agents led him into the federal building, Brown told newsmen, "We'll burn the country down, honkies and all." "Honkies" is a word Brown uses to refer to white people.

Prior to an afternoon hearing before a U.S. commissioner, the Justice Department dropped the federal warrant. Brown's attorney, William M. Kunstler, said the department did so because the warrant failed to specify whether Brown had crossed the Maryland state line with the intent to avoid facing the law.

H. RAP BROWN Argues While Arrested

Kunstler maintained Brown had "never been a fugitive from anybody" but had been in Washington. He was en route to New York when recognized by airport police who tipped the FBI, the lawyer added.

Although Brown was physically freed from his federal cell and was on the courthouse steps when Alexandria police nabbed him, a Justice Department official said technically he had been turned over to Virginia authorities.

Brown now faces extradition to Maryland.

Before the SNCC leader went to the courthouse steps, he and his followers made their challenge in a fenced-off courthouse area usually used by immigration officials and armed forces recruiting personnel.

AMIDST THE DESTRUCTION, some stores in Detroit's riot area have survived. J. W. Bolden, who operates a tailor shop and a nondenominational church on Detroit's east side, stands in front of his shop, one of the few to survive the firebombings during the past few days. He told a reporter Wednesday of his unsuccessful efforts to save other buildings and businesses from the bombings and looting. — AP Wirephoto

Reporter Spends (Caffeine Free) Night Out

By TOM RAFTERY
"All policemen do is sit around drinking coffee."

That's a familiar comment, but after spending a recent night accompanying Johnson County Deputy Sheriff Paul Welsh on his patrol car rounds, I know it isn't true.

I arrived at the Sheriff's office at 9 p.m. Welsh, who served with the elite 101st Airborne Division, introduced himself amid the crackling of radio reports.

He explained that there was a national, state and county radio hookup. The county hookup is shared by city police, the Highway Patrol, fire departments and the Sheriff's patrol.

Welsh showed me the teletype office and the files that contain the names of all the drivers and auto licenses in Johnson County.

A County Jail inmate put his hand on my shoulder and said, "I'll talk to you any time you want a story."

He was a trusty I met while going with Welsh to check on the prisoners.

The inmates and I traded glances of veiled interest. Among them were a man picked up on a charge of attempted rape, three youths charged with breaking into a service station and a suspected murderer.

We got into the patrol car, a 1967 Pontiac.

Hard and soft equipment kept in the patrol car symbolize the Sheriff's patrol. There is the hardness of a sawed-off shotgun barrel and the softness of first aid bandages.

As we headed out to serve subpoenas, Welsh explained that he was one of eight deputies. Others are the jailer, a deputy to handle formal complaints, two deputies to serve papers and three other patrolmen.

Our first stop was near the railroad tracks. The man we were looking for was accused of defrauding an innkeeper. We found that he was unknown at the address Welsh had obtained.

Accompanied by an Iowa City policeman, also working on the case, we went next door to a bar that appeared to be held together more by habit than by sound construction.

As Welsh entered the bar, activities ceased. The awkward silence ended when Welsh spoke to the bartender.

Then the jokes started. "Here he is, officer. . . ." "Hey, do me a favor and arrest my wife." A middle-aged woman gave her husband a lethal look.

We learned that the person we were looking for was no longer in the neighborhood. So we started looking for a student who failed to appear at police court to answer a traffic summons.

At the student's address, the woman answering the door looked distressed as she glanced at the two patrol cars and then at her neighbors' houses.

She assured us that the student no longer lived there, but she had his new address. We checked at the new address, only to be told by neighbors that he had already left for work.

We dropped off the Iowa City patrolman and headed for the Coralville Reservoir to check in people camping there.

As we drove along, the radio constantly crackled with police business.

An escaped mental patient from the Anamosa Reformatory Hospital was still at large. City, county and state police agencies were cooperating in the search for him.

As we neared the reservoir, Welsh whipped the patrol car off the main road onto an eroded trail that suggested cross-country army maneuvers.

We checked camp sites and conferred with the game warden. All was quiet. As we headed back to the Sheriff's office, the radio sputtered the announcement that the escaped patient from Anamosa had been picked up. Then the radio fell silent.

Back in Iowa City, we picked up Deputy Gene Shepard, who received a B.A. degree in 1962 and a LL.B. degree in 1965 from the University. We headed for the highway.

Soon Welsh had stopped three motorcycles for excessive noise. The drivers of the motorcycles were instructed to send in cards stating they had made necessary repairs. They will otherwise receive tickets for moving violations.

We spotted an apparently abandoned car on the shoulder of the highway. Inside was an elderly couple. The generator of their car had gone out, causing the lights to fade. We took them home in the patrol car.

On the way back we met the chief of police from Lisbon, who was accompanied by a Lisbon city councilman.

"The mayor thinks we do nothing but take coffee breaks," said the chief.

I looked at my watch. It was 2:30 a.m. We had yet to see a coffee cup.

While heading for Coralville, we heard from the radio dispatcher that a breaking and entering was reported in progress.

The tactics were plotted over the radio. Two Coralville cars, a Highway Patrol car and our car moved in on the house from different directions. Sirens were not used.

By now the speedometer was dancing at over 100 miles an hour, but a Highway patrol car passed us.

The house was set back from the highway. As we pulled in, Shepard, who had taken the wheel earlier, turned off the car's search light. The officers of all four cars left their vehicles and moved in on the house with guns drawn. Feeling a little nervous, I stayed in our car.

The grounds were searched, but no one was found. A young woman, wearing a nervous smile, came to the door after the officers knocked.

She said she had heard something at a second floor window. Welsh removed a ladder from a tree house — after checking it as a possible hiding place — and climbed to the porch roof.

He found a partially jimmied window lock. A further search of the grounds yielded nothing.

We drove about a half mile down the road, then doubled back with our lights out to a high point about 500 yards from the house. The woman was asked to leave some lights on in order to silhouette any would-be burglar.

For the next 20 minutes, we waited, peering through binoculars. When no one showed up, the officers left the house.

Back at the Sheriff's office, at 4:15 a.m., Shepard logged the night's activities. It was a quiet night, but still no coffee.

The deputies went back on patrol until 6 a.m. I went home, dragging, to bed. But first I stopped for a cup of coffee. It sure tasted good.

Listen to message of riots

Some of the so-called "white liberals" have been substantially shaken by the extent of Negro rioting across the country — especially in Detroit. These "white liberals" are blaming the disturbances on "young militants," "hoodlums" and "punks," who they point out are only a small portion of the Negro population.

These "white liberals" make these associations in an attempt to disassociate the riots from the movement for Negro civil rights and the problems of the Negroes in general. Such attempts can only be futile.

Even if the people involved in the rioting (excluding the looting, of course) are only a small portion of the Negro community, and even if they are mostly "militants," "hoodlums" and "punks," their actions are prompted by the positions most Negroes have always had in the social and economic structures of this country. That is to say that the reasons many of these people are "militant," "hoodlums" and "punks" may be related to the discrimination against Negroes by a white dominated society.

The tensions caused by being placed in subservient social and economic positions have finally reached the point of causing violent action instead of peaceful action or complacency.

This fact should not be relevant to anyone who is interested in getting social and economic equality for the Negro. That is not to say that the violence and destruction should be encouraged, although there are signs that some good things have come from the riots, but it is to say that the violence and destruction should not be surprising or unexpected.

White liberals should not act so shocked about the riots or try to disassociate them from the problems of Negro equality. Many of the causes of the riots this summer are the same that caused sit-ins and voter registration drives in the South during summers before. Let's listen to the message of the riots: discrimination against Negroes is about as extensive as it ever was and the resulting economic and social inequality must be immediately resolved, even if the discrimination cannot be.

EDITOR'S NOTE — A staff member of The Daily Iowan was invited to a "pot party" last week. Such gatherings, like parties of any sort, vary as sharply as do the types of people who attend them, but the reporter, who says he had never been to one before, had all sorts of wild expectations. They, and the party itself, fizzled out. But he had some interesting and amusing adventures along the way. The staff member, who wishes to remain anonymous, and The Daily Iowan offer this story not as an expose or a definitive piece on the "drug scene" in Iowa City or elsewhere but as a tongue-in-cheek and somewhat blurred view of "what's happening."

I was invited last week to a pot party. Unusual? Maybe not, there are a lot of pot parties in Iowa City, but as for invitations — this was the first I had ever received. It came from a rather attractive red-head whom I had offered to take to dinner. She countered from behind tortoise shell dark glasses by the cash register in a downtown restaurant.

"I can't make it this Friday, I'm having a party." Then, as a kind of afterthought — (looking me up and down as if for a suit of clothes): "Why don't you come? 10:30" (and the address), "it won't be a drinking party." She was studying me from behind those damn glasses. ME!! And I, who had only the vaguest idea of what she was about, took a debonaire and worldly pose (as soon as I could think of one) with my arm resting casually on the counter by the register, and stared back.

"Ah ha!" I thought, as I finished my bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich. "What on earth will this turn out to be all about?" Visions of bacchanalian revels danced through my head, and the shrieks of a thousand gorgeous women, (summer session yet!) with jewels in their navels, all screaming in some kind of ecstasy, just about pierced my ear-drums.

I told a friend about the invitation. "What on earth was she talking about? 'It won't be a drinking party?'" "Pot, you dope," my well-rounded acquaintance informed me.

"What happens at them?" I persisted. "Just everyone sits around smoking grass and interspersing?"

"Heck no. The pot part only takes 15 minutes or so. Then —" he trailed off.

'Just like in the ads — we put you in the driver's seat and leave the driving to us'

Reader contradicts letter, calls publication disturbing

To the Editor:

This is in reference to Mrs. Erika Young's confused attempt (in a letter to the editor in Saturday's edition of The Daily Iowan) to indicate a view contradictory to that expressed by Edward Bassett regarding the play "Underpants."

"Contradictory" is the ideal word to describe Mrs. Young's letter from beginning to end. At the beginning, Mrs. Young modestly states: "I don't want to say mine is brilliant, (her letter) I am no professional." This is the understatement of the year. In fact, this piece of writing could be called "brilliant" only as an example of faulty grammar, non-sequiturs, meaningless generalizations and complete disorganization.

To deal first with grammar. It seems I read somewhere that a sentence should have a verb. In several of Mrs. Young's conglomerations of words, I could find no such thing. Witness the following and try to divine its meaning:

Maske, the civil servant, thinking of his job only in terms of scheme A, scheme B, outside his job with thoughts circling around his family, showing prejudice, having his little moderate joys.

As if statements like the above are not enough of a burden for the reader, there are the sentences which have absolutely no connection with those that preceded them. For example: "Mandelstam . . . more a doer than a thinker in his love affair with Mrs. Maske. When Mr. Maske accuses him of just talking nonsense, he replies that the customers expect it."

To further complicate matters we get "profound" statements such as the one in which the characters are called "underdeveloped" because "they did not lead to a broad resolution with a happy end." After pondering over this for several minutes, one realizes there is no "resolution" to such a statement.

Following a number of similarly "pithy" statements, Mrs. Young states that the author's intention in writing the play was not too clear to her. It seems to me that in order to criticize someone else's review and to make all the judgments she has made, one must first have an idea of the overall effect or attempt of the play. Secondly, to express one's views in public writing one must be clear as to what these views are and must be able to set them down lucidly and cogently. Otherwise, why write at all?

It is obvious that Mrs. Young cannot write. What is additionally disturbing, however, is the publication of such a letter by a university paper.

Is younger generation going to the dogs?

By GORDON YOUNG
News Editor

This is a review of the auditory mayhem perpetrated by a bunch of clowns at a local pub the other night.

I don't know the name of the combo, nor do I care to. The Boston Monkees, the Leopoldville Leapers, the Iowa City Drum and Bugle Corps — it doesn't really matter. To one who rather admires the Brandenburg Concertos, they're all indistinguishable.

To say that such teeny-bopper combos play with careful abandon is inaccurate. They mean business, baby. They've got more sound amplification apparatus than the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and they play their music with a ferocious dedication that would put Handel to shame.

One has to pay two bits to get inside to hear these adolescents, but since I get off work at the print shop around midnight, I usually stop by for a beer before going home. So I suppose I can't complain; we all have a masochistic side.

What of their quote music quote? Well, it consists of shrieks, twangs, thumps, moans, whoops, gargles and a-one-and-a-two-and-a-three and a hack, cough and a spit.

Some sociologists say the lyrics to these songs are sexy. I'm sure I've no idea about that. Since no one can understand them anyway, I guess they could be downright pornographic and no one would be the wiser.

Besides, a psychiatrist once told me you can sexualize any frustration, and I rather suspect such lyrics represent the final Armageddon of the id versus the super ego.

The music itself is played on a variety of instruments; the most noticeable is what I used to know as a gee-tar. Nowadays such instruments are so wrapped up in electronic wiring I'd be terrified to touch one for fear of being electrocuted.

The most pronounced characteristic of such music is the decibel level.

It is as though all the fiends of hell had conspired to sound the final judgment day. The musicians grasp their microphones, scream into them as though they were being set afire, and then amplify the sound ten-fold.

The result reverberates throughout Iowa City and surely must set seismographs in Bombay a-tittering.

One does not attempt to carry on a conversation while such combos are performing. At best, one grasps the ear of one's companion and hollers desperately, "Which way to the men's room?"

The reply is likely to be something like, "I don't have a hen's broom."

were already level with the ground and I told Red as much.

"I mean they're on a trip," she looked at me. "Acid. LSD. Get it?"

I got it. I looked at the prone couple with renewed interest, then sat down at the table and picked up a comic book.

"How long will they be — tripping?" — how long will they be tripping?"

I was cunningly casual, and seemed absorbed in "Secret Love."

"About 20 hours. But I only have to stay for about the first five. Those are the hard ones. Watch."

She led me into the next room and picked up a liberty silk scarf from a swivel chair as she went, and waved it in front of the girl, who had sat up and was staring intently at the candle. She gasped with pleasure and delight as the scarf went back and forth, and then put it on her head and over her face. Red meanwhile asked yellow T-shirt how he liked the music.

"What music?"

She smiled at me.

"Pete, I want you to meet somebody."

"Who?"

She introduced me as Edgar Allen Poe. "Is that really — ? Are you Edgar Allen Poe?" He stared at me hard from thick lensed glasses.

"Quoth the raven 'nevermore,'" I said, curious to know what his reaction would be.

"Well, for heavens' — I thought you were dead."

"Except on Fridays." He stared at me and then pulled out a liberty silk scarf of his own and put it over his head.

"Where do you get this stuff?" I inquired as we went back to the kitchen.

"The guy downstairs is a pusher."

"Oh, that must be convenient."

Not a smile.

Of course, being at something like this is rather like talking to someone long distance. Before and after the call itself you can think of all the important things you want to say and questions you want answered, but while you're there, you can't remember one of them. Rather, questions from other conversations you've always meant to have get tossed in instead. Items like: "How did a beautiful girl like you get mixed up in a business like this?" I bit my tongue.

I stayed for a while and then went home disappointed, and in need of a haircut. One night maybe it'll come off, and then

One last try. Over my shoulder on the stairs:

"How was 'Snow White'?"

"We couldn't get it. It was sold out."

The final blow.

B52s Bomb Red Positions Above DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — B52 squadrons churned up nearly four square miles of North Vietnamese territory just above the demilitarized zone with tons of bombs Wednesday in an effort to knock out the guns and wreck the bunkers of Hanoi's 341st Division.

The high-flying, eight-jet Stratofortresses struck in waves two hours apart at enemy positions ranging from seven to nine miles north of Con Thien, one of the U.S. Marine outposts below the zone that has been hit hard and often by Communist barrages.

The 341st is among three North Vietnamese divisions that intelligence officers think are poised for an attempt to invade the border province of Quant Tri with the help of local Viet Cong and infiltrated Northern regulars.

Other Action Reported
A few hours after the B52 raids, Communist gunners elsewhere laid harassing fire on the U.S. Marine base at Dong Ha, 10 miles southeast of Con Thien.

AP correspondent John Lengel reported from the field that about half a dozen shells were lobbed at Dong Ha, the biggest of four outposts delineating a sector that the Marines call Leatherneck Square.

There was no immediate word about casualties or damage there.

Nor was there specified information about what the Stratofortresses' saturation bombing had accomplished. The U.S. Command declined to disclose how many took part.

The Stratofortresses have struck only a few times in the Communist North since their first raid on the Mu Gia pass, an outlet to the Ho Chi Minh trail through eastern Laos, in April, 1966.

40 Raids Staged
They have staged more than 40 raids within the zone, though there was a long interval this year when they avoided the entire border region because of the threat of Soviet-made surface-to-air (SAM) missiles the North Vietnamese trucked in.

U.S. fighter-bombers and artillery have worked over the SAM sites, however, and it evidently was felt the danger of missiles had been eliminated, at least for the time being, in the area of the 341st Division. Though five of the big $8-million planes have been lost in accidents in the war, none has ever been felled in combat.

Spokesmen said that in the ground war, action was light and scattered. Thirty-six allied operations of battalion size or larger were reported under way across the country.

A task force of 3,000 South Vietnamese troops stirred up the heaviest action Tuesday with a sweep near Hue, the old imperial capital 400 miles north of Saigon. They said that while suffering light losses, they killed 75 Communist soldiers in a series of running fights.

Powell Calls Negro Riots 'Cleansing'

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP) — Harlem's runaway congressman Adam Clayton Powell said Wednesday of rioting in Detroit and other American cities: "Violence is a cleansing force. It frees the native from his inferiority complex."

Powell called the disorders "a necessary phase of the black revolution."

A tourist attending Powell's news conference by the sea asked, "You wouldn't be starting riots if you were in Harlem?"

"I don't know," Powell replied. "If they arrest me, they'd burn New York down."

The Negro politician, ousted from Congress March 1 and wanted for a 90-day jail sentence on criminal contempt charges in New York, made his comments during the conference he called at his self-exile in the British West Indies.

Sticking to a discussion of the rioting, Powell read from the poem "If we must die" by the late Claude McKay, a Jamaican who lived in New York.

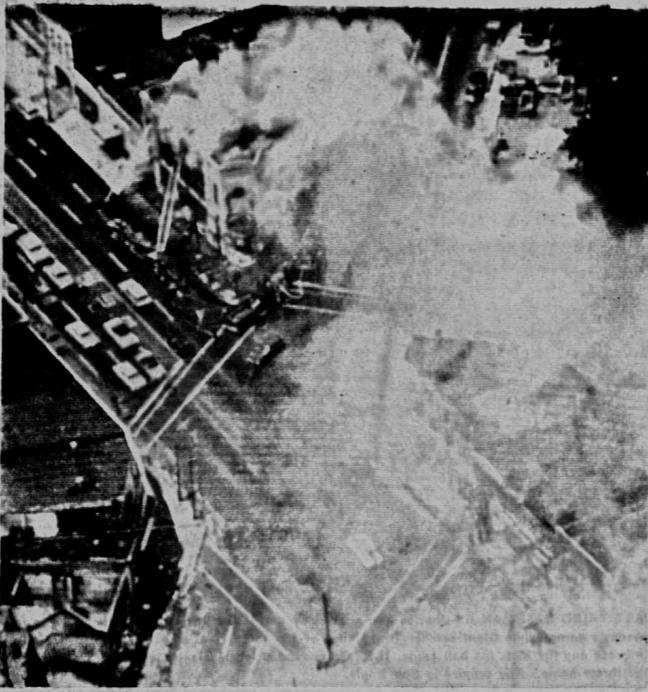

"If we must die, let it not be like hogs," Powell read.

Powell said he had some remedies to the Negro rioting. He called for construction of "black ghettos" of government offices, businesses and factories "to provide jobs, not job training, but jobs for black people."

Another "constructive remedy," Powell said was the "nomination, within 30 days by both parties, of 12 black men and women to Congress."

"If this is not done by Sept. 1 there will be an explosion in some of these cities," he said.

Powell listed the places which he said should send Negroes to Congress: Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant, The Bronx, Newark, Atlanta, St. Louis, Cleveland, Chicago's 6th Congressional District, two districts in Mississippi, one district each in South Carolina, Richmond and Baltimore. Powell did not explain how nominations could be accomplished in August.

FIRE DOWN BELOW rages in Detroit at the busy intersection of Grand River and Fourteenth St. on Detroit's near northwest side. In the lower left corner is a building burned out in a previous bombing. A tremendous traffic jam developed as a result of the fire, which was set despite patrols of National Guardsmen, police and federal troops. — AP Wirephoto

Food Price Hike Nudges Cost Of Living Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big jump in food prices helped push living costs up three-tenths of one per cent in June and preliminary reports for July indicate prices are still climbing, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said its consumer price index rose to 11.60 last month, meaning that typical family living expenses cost $11.60 for every $10 worth in 1957-59.

At the same time, the average weekly paycheck of more than 45 million American workers rose to a record high of $101.88 a week, but it was worth 44 cents less than a year ago because of rising prices.

Over-all food prices in June rose one per cent, the bureau said. Meat prices went up 4.1 per cent and fresh fruits and vegetables 4.7 per cent.

Blackout Cure Is Financial, FPC Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Utilities need to spend much more than they now plan if they are to prevent massive power failures, the Federal Power Commission said Wednesday night.

The commission suggested $8-billion worth of extra high voltage transmission lines by 1975. It said that is about $3 billion more than utilities "apparently" plan to spend on transmission by 1975.

The commission says inadequate transmission lines are a primary cause of such massive blackouts as the one that hit New England and New York in 1965 and the power pool failure last June 5 in eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the Delaware-Maryland peninsula.

A sagging line that caused a short circuit triggered the June 5 disruption. An inadequate relay triggered the New England-New York blackout of Nov. 9, 1965.

But the commission says if these power pool areas had had adequate transmission lines to handle sudden surges of power the failures would have been limited in area.

The FPC has asked Congress for legislation giving it authority to regulate installation of extra high voltage lines, those which carry 500 kilovolts or more.

Under the proposed electric power reliability act, the commission could require interconnections between power pools. Extra high voltage lines could serve as interconnections.

If a part of one power pool area went down, it would draw electricity from another area and extra high voltage lines would transmit the resulting sudden power surge.

Wednesday's report from the FPC was to President Johnson. It is the final study resulting from the 1965 blackout.

Fire Damages Iowa Theatre Early Today

A fire of undetermined origin caused smoke damage to the Iowa Theatre, 124 S. Dubuque St. early Thursday morning.

Maureen Slickety, A2, Cedar Rapids, turned in the alarm at 12:15 a.m. She said she saw smoke pouring out of the box office.

Firemen said the theater was unoccupied at the time. There was no immediate estimate of the damage.

Bosox Edge Toward 1st With 9-6 Win

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski's three-run double climaxed a six-run seventh inning as Boston defeated California 9-6 Wednesday night and snapped the Angels' seven-game winning streak.

Trailing 4-1 going into the seventh, the Red Sox shelled starter George Brunet and relief ace Minnie Rojas for six hits and were aided by two Angel errors.

Tony Conigliaro's double and George Scott's triple finished Brunet, and Rico Petrocelli's sacrifice fly made it 4-3. After Reggie Smith singled and an error by Bobby Knopf, Mike Andrews laid down a perfect squeeze bunt to tie the score.

Joe Foy's single loaded the bases and Yastrzemski's shot off the left field wall scored all three runners. Yastrzemski attempted to score but was out at the plate.

The Red Sox sewed it up in the eighth on consecutive homers by Conigliaro, his 18th, and Scott.

MET THIRD BASEMAN Ed Charles and a baseball are engaged in a race to home plate in Wednesday's game, while Giant catcher Tom Haller awaits the arrival of either or both. Charles won the race and the Mets the ball game, 11-5. On ground at left is Giant pitcher Ron Herbel who made the throw home. The umpire is Bob Engle. — AP Wirephoto

Browns' Attorneys, Players To Review Contracts Friday

HIRAM, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for the Cleveland Browns and five holdout players will meet again Friday morning in an attempt to reach a settlement.

Browns' attorney James Berick said that he met Tuesday with the five players — Leroy Kelly, John Wooten, John Brown, Mike Howell and Sid Williams — and their attorney, State Rep. Carl B. Stokes, but that no agreement was reached.

Browns owner Art Modell has made no comment on the situation since Monday when he issued his ground rules for negotiations with the holdouts.

The five players were scheduled to report to the Browns' training camp here last Saturday, but didn't show up. They face $100-a-day fines during their absence from camp.

the players said Wednesday that the holdouts are about ready to forget all issues except salary in negotiations.

The five players have been demanding that all of them must be traded if one is, that Williams be given the promise of playing three pre-season games at linebacker so he can have a chance of becoming a regular and that Wooten be offered a new contract, even though he has a year to go on his present pact.

Modell said in issuing his ground rules that there would be no discussions on Wooten's contract. He also said that the players must agree to eliminate from the discussions the stipulation that if one of the five is traded the others must be.

Finkbine To Host Golf Meet

Iowa City's South Finkbine course will host the 65th annual Iowa Amateur Golf Tournament this weekend and nearly 200 of the states best golfers are expected to compete.

It will be a first for Iowa City, with the tournament getting underway with an 18-hole elimination round Friday. The field will be cut to the lowest 125 scores and ties for Saturday's 18-hole round.

Only the low 50 scores will be included in Sunday's 36-hole wrap-up with trophies and merchandise prizes going to the top finishers.

Although the defending champion, Dennis Smith of Cedar Rapids won't compete because he is in the army, the field will include such names as Rod Bliss, the 1965 champ, Tom Chapman, a top Iowa golfer and John Liechty of Marshalltown, the runner-up in last year's tournament.

Baseball Roundup

Howard HR
 Tops A's, 6-3

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home runs by Frank Howard and Ken McMullen helped Washington to a 6-3 triumph over Kansas City Wednesday night.

Howard's 26th homer led off the third inning and McMullen hit his 10th of the season in the fifth.

Joe Coleman, 8-6, won his fourth straight game, allowing two runs on seven hits through the first eight innings, but he was replaced by Darold Knowles after walking the leadoff batter in the ninth.

Reds Beat Braves
 By Tune Of 7-1

ATLANTA (AP) — Deron Johnson's two-run homer sparked the Cincinnati Reds, held to a bunt single by Phil Niekro through six innings, to 7-1 victory over the Braves Wednesday night in the first game of a doubleheader.

With two out in the seventh, Vada Pinson and Tony Perez singled and two wild pitches sent Pinson home with the tying run. Johnson then followed with his 11th homer.

Indian Reliever
 Sent To Portland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians sent relief pitcher Steve Bailey to their Portland farm club Wednesday.

Bailey, a right-hander, had won two and lost four, his latest defeat coming at 2:15 a.m. Wednesday at Chicago when he was tagged for a two-run, game winning homer by Ken Berry of the White Sox.

U.S. Pulling Away At Pan-Am Games

WINNIPEG (AP) — The United States swept the women's springboard diving at the Pan-American Games Wednesday and won gold medals in individual dressage (horse exercise) and the English rifle match team competition to run its first place total to four.

Canada and Chile have one each.

Sue Gossick, a 19-year-old blonde from Tarzana, Calif., and Micki King, an Air Force second lieutenant from Ann Arbor, Mich., finished one-two in the diving. Kathy McDonald, the Canadian champion, was third.

World Records Tied
In dressage, Mrs. Kyra Downton, a 54-year-old housewife from Atherton, Calif., outdrew two Chilean Army officers to capture first.

In the English rifle match competition, Alf Mayer of Canada took the individual first with a score of 598 that tied the world record. Capt. Randy Nornberg of San Antonio, Tex. took the silver medal second place, and led his team to first with a total score of 2,379, which beat the world record of 2,376.

Mrs. Downton put her grey gelding flawlessly through intricate maneuvers that won her 597 points for a two-day total of 1,352. Maj. Guellermo Squella, who led Tuesday with 787 points as compared to Mrs. Downton's 755, dropped to 492.5 and a third place total of 1,279.5. His compatriot, Capt. Patricio Escudero, was second with 1,309.

Yank Swimmers
America's super swimmers continued to break records but aquatic honors went to Canada's 16-year-old Elaine Tanner. Miss Tanner defeated the Olympic 100-meter backstroke champion, Cathy Ferguson of Burbank, Calif., in their qualifying heat of the 200-meter backstroke.
Miss Tanner's time of 2:27.6 was automatically a Games record as this is the first time the event has been competed. Miss Ferguson did 2:29.3. Miss Tanner plans to swim in six individual events and two relays and poses a formidable individual threat to American swimming supremacy.

Catie Ball of Jacksonville, Fla., led the qualifiers in the women's 200 meter breaststroke with a time of 2:46.2, exactly 10 seconds under the Pan-American record set in 1963 by Alice Driscoll of the United States.

Mark Spitz of Santa Clara, Calif., broke Carl Robie's 1963 Games record by one-tenth of a second in winning his 200-meter butterfly qualifying heat in 2:11.2.

Liston Denied Fight License

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The State Athletic Commission today denied former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston a license to box in California.

The commission, voting unanimously, said there was insufficient evidence that Liston had severed all connections with unsavory persons in the boxing world.

Liston, 35, appealed in person July 12 for a license. He had been denied permission to box in California in the past.

R. L. Turley, the commission's executive officer, said the decision was based largely on the fact that Liston isn't licensed in New York State for the same reason.

Tennis Team Lacks Stars, Ashe Says

WINNIPEG (AP) — Arthur Ashe said Wednesday the United States representation in the tennis tournament of the Pan-Am Games is a "joke."

"We are playing on soft clay, and our best clay court player, Cliff Richey, and our best doubles team are back in the States," the Negro star from Richmond, Va., added.

"We are representing our country in an international event and making no attempt to use our best men against a field that includes such strong players as Thomas Koch and Edson Mandarino of Brazil."

RICHEY
A Yank Who Stayed Home

Ashe, an Army lieutenant now stationed at West Point, N.Y., is the country's No. 1 player but if he'd had any say-so in picking the team he wouldn't have picked Ashe, he says, he'd have picked Richey.

Also, he added, he would have made sure the U.S. doubles team was Marty Riessen and Clark Graebner.

"Herbie Fitzgibbon and I are playing doubles — we've never played together in our lives," he added bitterly. Fitzgibbon and Bailey Brown, neither in the top 20 in U.S. rankings, are the other U.S. representatives.

Discussing America's collapse in Davis cup zone play the last two years — losing to Brazil in 1965 and little Ecuador this year, Ashe said the trouble could be traced to the court surfaces.

"We will always have trouble getting through these zone matches as long as we play on clay," he explained.

"In the first place, few of our top players get a chance to work much on clay — Richey is the exception."

Mets Slam Giants As Jones Shines

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cleon Jones and Bud Harrelson drove in a total of seven runs and collected six hits between them, sparking the New York Mets to an 11-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday.

Jones, who entered the game batting .192, drove in four runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly and Harrelson batted in two with a pair of doubles and two singles as the Mets built a 9-0 lead through 4 1/2 innings.

Morgan's Single Beats Phils, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Morgan's single drove in the second run of a ninth inning rally and lifted the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night.

Philadelphia had taken a 2-1 lead on Richie Allen's 14th homer in the eighth, but the Astros countered with singles by Dave Vlesch, Bob Aspromonte, Julio Gotay, Jackie Brandt and Morgan to win the game.

University Group To Present Drama

By LINA ALBERTI

A unique University drama group "interested in making people think about the church" will present a program Aug. 6 in the Little Brown Church, Nashua, according to director Albert Marian, G. North Liberty.

"Acts 2:12" will be a feature of the 15th annual reunion of couples married at the Midwestern landmark.

The drama group, which calls itself "Project Vanguard," is a one-year-old, non-profit organization formed by 15 students in the drama department. The group performed last May in the First Presbyterian and United Church of Christ in Iowa City.

"Project Vanguard" has sister groups in California and Alabama, formed by colleagues of Marian's at the University of California. The purpose of the groups is to form a nucleus of people that can provide, through dramatic communication, insights into man's problems, Marian said.

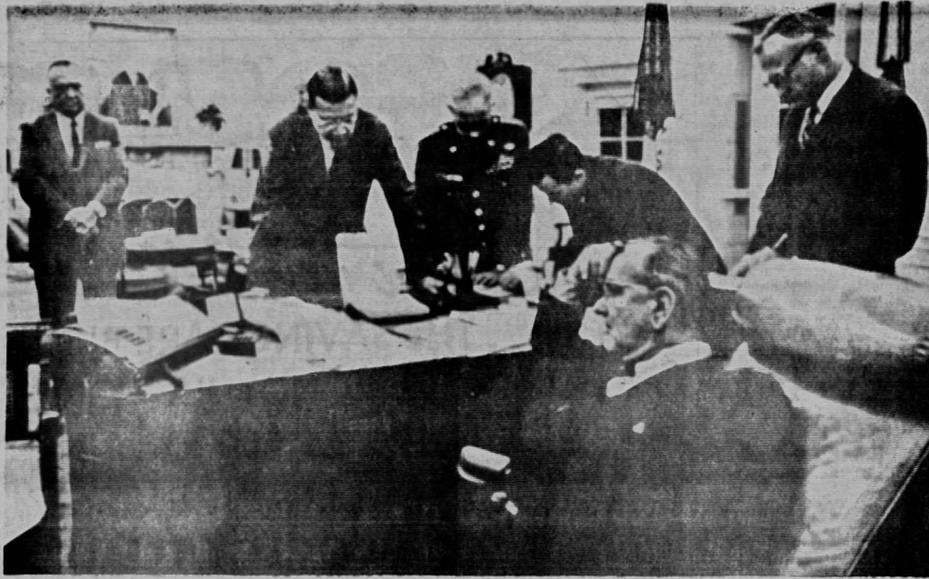

"Project Vanguard" will present works written by the director of the Alabama group. The works deal mainly with man's relationship to other men and God.

"Acts 2:12" is a one-hour dramatic-musical production based on the Biblical quote, "And all were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, 'What does this mean?'"

Marian described the production as a revue for the church comprising 12 sketches and poems which combine satire and music.

The majority of the cast has had no dramatic experience, Marian said. Reasons for joining the group vary from member to member. Members may have religious reasons or an interest in performing a work that is "different."

Marian, 30, is working in the Ph.D. program of the Department of Dramatic Arts. He will be ordained soon as a minister in the United Presbyterian Church.

Clinical Training Site Added To Physical Therapy Program

By DONNA ENSLOW

This month, the University added Western Illinois University at Macomb, Ill., to its list of practical training sites for the physical therapy program.

After a physical therapy student completes nine months of classroom work here at the University, he is required to train for three months at three of the school's 12 clinical training sites, according to Eugene C. Rembe, clinical supervisor and coordinator of the program.

During this training period, said Rembe, students serve as interns under graduate therapists. "This gives them a great deal of valuable practical experience," he said.

Upon completion of their clinical training, students are regarded as certified physical therapists and can obtain their license to practice after passing the state board examination, said Rembe.

The training program was established in 1942 as a war emergency measure. At the time, students were given a six-month course, after which they entered the armed forces. After the war, however, the training period was increased to 12 months, said Rembe.

He said that the number of students enrolled in the program has increased from 10 at the start, to 30 at present.

According to Rembe, some of the University's other training sites are located in Des Moines, Nebraska and Dubuque, Veterans, Mercy and Children's Hospital as well as the School for the Handicapped are local training sites.

GM Sales Down For 2nd Quarter

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., the world's largest manufacturing firm, Wednesday reported second quarter sales of $5.6 billion, up slightly from the second quarter of 1966 despite a 6 per cent unit sales drop.

Worldwide sales of 1,789,000 cars and trucks were six per cent below the same quarter of 1966.

Net income in the 1967 second quarter was $522 million.

Pentagon Announces Policy For 90-Day Vietnamese Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — A soldier with as little as 90 days left to go in his tour can be sent to Vietnam, the Pentagon said Wednesday.

The Army's 90-day policy applies only if the man is in a unit ordered to Southeast Asia.

An individual will not be plucked out of a stateside unit as a replacement for Vietnamese service if he has less than six months to go in his enlistment.

Like the Army, the Air Force also distinguishes between individual and unit assignments.

An airman, for example, will be singled out for a Vietnam tour only if he has at least nine months remaining — but he can be sent to the war zone with as little as seven months left to serve if his unit is ordered there. The Marines have a nine-month minimum arrangement which applies whether a man goes singly or with a unit such as a battalion or brigade.

Pentagon spokesmen indicate, however, that the Marines may lower their minimum-time policy since the Corps currently is strapped for manpower to meet war needs.

The Navy likewise does not distinguish between individuals and units.

Navy officers with as little as 12 months left can draw Vietnam service, but for enlisted men it's 16 months.

The maximum tour in Vietnam is basically one year. In the case of the Marines it's 13 months.

Pope Says Prayer At House Of Mary

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI returned Wednesday night from Turkey where he issued a new call for Christian unity. Before leaving he made a pilgrimage in the hot sun to Ephesus where his namesake, St. Paul, once preached to pagans.

The Roman Catholic pontiff returned in the Pan American World Airways jet "Clipper St. Paul" that landed him at Istanbul Tuesday for talks to promote Christian unity and to solicit the help of Turkish officials in settling the Mideastern crisis.

His presence and prayers at the so-called House of Mary underscored his support for devotion to Christ's mother.

Pope Paul flew the 600 miles from Istanbul to Izmir and covered the final 60 miles to Ephesus by limousine with four motorcycle escorts, over snaking mountain roads.

It was the fulfillment of a dream for the Pope. He wanted to visit ancient Ephesus, now an unpopulated clump of ruins near the Turkish town of Selcuk, to see the site of the Third Ecumenical Council in 431. That council proclaimed that Mary was the mother of God.

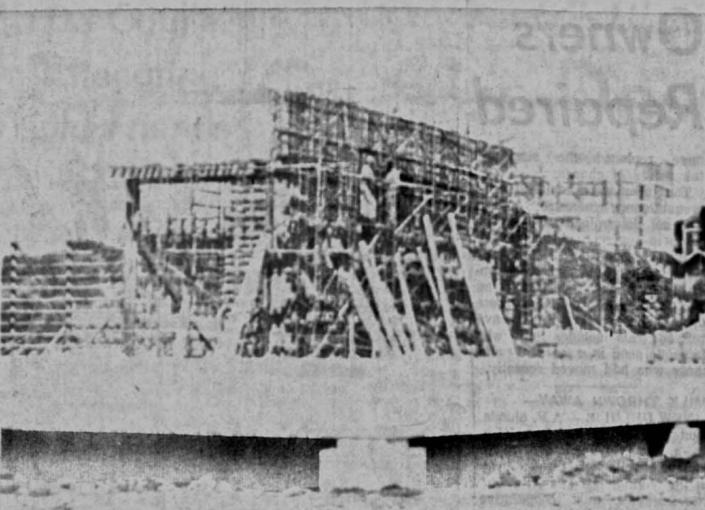

Before 2,000 persons at the council site, the modern-day Paul quoted from St. Paul's letter to the Ephesians — Eph. 4, 5-6 — on the unity of all Christians in one Lord, faith and baptism.

Japanese Prof To Teach At UI

Rokuro Okawara, professor of applied chemistry at Osaka University, Osaka, Japan, will teach and conduct research at the University for seven months starting in February 1968.

Okawara's stay will be sponsored by the National Science Foundation through its Senior Foreign Scientist Fellowship Program.

While carrying out his own research program, Okawara will act as a consultant to groups studying in his educational field, organometallic chemistry. He will also lecture and participate in seminars.

EXPRESSIONISTIC SCULPTURE? No, but some will probably be housed inside. It's the new art museum, under construction adjacent the Art Building on the west bank of the Iowa River. The building, which is to cost nearly $1.5 million by the time the last bill is paid, has a target date for completion of late 1968. Fane F. Vawter and Co., West Des Moines, is the contractor. Workmen swear it'll look different when it's done. None of the workmen, by the way, are art students. — Photo by Ken Baxter

UI To Clear Up Air, Clean Smokestacks

By SHEILA CRAWFORD

Hawkeyes don't hack, cough or wheeze — yet — because Iowa's air is relatively pure. But all that could change if steps are not taken soon to keep industrial air pollution from stinking up the atmosphere.

Iowans have, in fact, moved ahead of their city cousins in studying the problem of air pollution, and the University is in the forefront in the battle against hacking, coughing and wheezing.

Air pollution in Iowa City has been studied for the past 18 months by University officials, and a solution is rapidly being formed.

The University's physical plant, distinguished by its two black smokestacks at the Burlington Street Bridge, is the object of improvement. University officials hope that by the end of summer of 1969 no more black smoke will be belched out of the two funnels.

According to Henry T. Bar-batti, assistant director of the Physical Plant, the University has been aware of the problem of the great amount of soot pouring from the smokestacks for the past few years.

The preliminary studies are now in the final stages of design, Barbatti said.

East Stack First

Barbatti said that the first phase of the air pollution control would be concentrated on the east stack. A gas and oil burning boiler will be installed next summer with a new air-cleaning machine called a precipitator on one of the smokestacks.

The precipitator will shoot particles into the smoke which will knock soot particles into a hopper. The "fly ash" thus cleaned out of the smoke will be vacuumed into covered trucks and hauled off to the city land fill.

The cost for cleaning up the east row of boilers and accompanying stack will be approximately $150,000, according to Barbatti. However, the west side of the plant presents a greater problem.

Morris, who was in on the ground floor of plans to set up the commission and to draft the state law, said no members have yet been appointed to the new unit.

No Measurement Made

No one has measured the particles emitted from smokestacks, automobiles, or the like, nor does anyone know its effect, Morris said. However, he admitted, "The physical plant is a very obvious source, yet every stack is a source."

Morris added that the combined home heating of all the houses in Iowa City may be the cause of more pollution than the physical plant.

"We do not know the air pollution sources in Iowa City, nor do we know them in any city in Iowa," he said.

Commenting on the air pollution bill, Morris said, "The $71,000 granted is not enough, but it is a pretty reasonable start. We do not have a serious problem, but we do have sources, and I am proud that our legislature recognizes the problem."

Iowa City officials said they did not think pollution was a problem in the city.

Complaints Infrequent

Keith Kafer, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that there had been infrequent complaints by residents regarding air pollution.

The few complaints received have been primarily directed at the smoke of the physical plant and the odor from the National Byproducts Co., Kafer said.

Kafer added that the National Byproducts Co. will be moved to Clinton within the next few months, thereby alleviating that source of that complaint.

"Actually, the issue of air pollution is not one of great anxiety in this community," Kafer said. "I do not think people were conscious of air pollution 15 years ago, and thus it is a new issue in this area."

City Manager Frank F. Smiley said, "There is no air pollution in Iowa City as I see it."

He said that he had not received any complaints regarding air pollution since he took over his job in February.

However, Smiley said he thought the University could do something about the Physical Plant.

Smiley said he was pleased that the relatively new industries, such as Proctor and Gamble and Sheller Globe Co., have no major problems with air pollution.

Mayor William Hubbard agreed with the other officials. "There is no particular problem, but I wish the University would do something about its smokestacks," he said.

Hubbard's wish is apparently coming true.

Smoke Cloud Above Physical Plant Caused By Smoldering Fuel In Boiler

The black smoke which appeared above the physical plant about 1 p.m. Wednesday, and an accompanying odor, was caused by smoldering fuel in the plant boiler, according to Henry T. Barbatti, assistant director of the University Physical Plant.

An electric company power line was not working, so University generators were put into use. Safety devices on the boiler automatically shut off the burners and fuel fans when the boiler is overloaded, said Barbatti. The fuel, however, keeps flowing into the boiler.

After workmen had repaired the utility line, the University's boiler expelled excess fuel through the smokestacks.

There was a slight difference in light intensity, according to Barbatti, but the physical plant generators managed to produce enough light for campus buildings.

Area TV Owners Get Sets Repaired

About 30 Iowa City television owners have been affected by Surgeon General William H. Stewart's recent announcement that certain new General Electric color sets are suspected of emitting harmful X-rays.

The 18 to 23 inch console and table model GE's purchased between Sept. 1, 1966, and May 31, 1967, are suspected of emitting radiation from a small vacuum tube.

The warning from the Surgeon General went out last week when it was discovered that 9,000 large-screen color sets which were sold nation-wide were not located and repaired.

Iowa City television retailers were notified of the danger six months ago and have called known owners of these sets and have replaced the suspected tubes free of charge.

The tubes were replaced as a precautionary measure, and it was not determined whether the tubes in any sets sold locally actually were emitting X-rays.

According to a local sales representative, the recent warning was publicized to catch those owners the retailers might have missed. This includes those who failed to send in a warranty and those who had moved recently.

MILK THROWN AWAY—

NEW DELHI (AP)—A.P. Shinde, food minister of famine-stricken India, has told Parliament 36,740 gallons of milk were thrown away in this capital last year. He said New Delhi's milk cooperative had power failures at refrigeration centers and the milk spoiled.

Library Map, Atlas Collection Displays Pioneering Efforts

BY DONNA ENSLOW

A bird's eye view of everything from the topographical conditions of Great Britain in 1360 to "the true and revised" America of post-revolution days can be seen in the University Library's display of part of its valuable map and atlas collection.

The display, which is in the lobby of the Main Library, opened July 17 and is to end Aug. 18.

Richard M. Kolbet, map librarian, said last week the maps and atlases chosen from the library's collection for display were especially important because of the "pioneering effort" involved in making them.

Some of them changed the course of history, he said.

Kolbet said that five of the maps and atlases on display were originals; the rest were photographic reproductions. Most of the originals were hand printed and hand colored steel engravings.

The maps and atlases on display come from all the European countries and the Americas. Most of them are labeled in Latin. However, one facsimile displayed, Le Grande Atlas, is in French and is one of the first atlases in a language other than Latin.

North, South Reversed

Other maps on display include one by Munster of Amsterdam, in which the south is at the top and the north is at the bottom following the fashion of the 15th century; the first map of the United States after independence; and the first printed sea atlas, which introduced some of the map symbols still used today.

Kolbet said that some of the maps are more important for the decorations around them than the information on them, since the art is the only source of historical knowledge about the courtyards, costumes and buildings of different parts of the world.

Accuracy Cited

"The accuracy of the maps is quite good for the time they were made," Kolbet said, adding that the Gough map of 1316, a facsimile which shows the topography of Great Britain, gives mileage lines that were used for two centuries. It is the oldest map on display.

He said that many of the original valuable maps in existence are in the Library of Congress, several national libraries and a few other "learned institutions."

Kolbet said the library hoped to get more maps in the collection gradually, but that many were expensive and hard to acquire.

The prices of original maps can be more than $12,000, he said. Book dealers and publishers are the usual sources.

Sen. Clark Asserts America Should Feed Its Own First

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) said Wednesday the United States should feed Americans who are hungry before it undertakes to feed the rest of the world.

Clark, chairman of the Senate poverty subcommittee which has been investigating reports of hunger in Mississippi, also said there should be no charge for persons living in poverty who want food stamps.

Clark and Orville L. Freeman, secretary of agriculture, were panelists during the annual convention of the International Platform Association, one of the oldest professional speaking organizations.

"I have always supported our foreign aid bills which have brought food to the mouths of the hungry all over the world," said Clark. "I shall continue to do so. But our first obligation should be to feed thousands upon thousands of hungry men, women and children right here in the United States of America."

He said his subcommittee found "stark, horrifying hunger" in the Mississippi Delta.

Clark said his subcommittee persuaded Freeman to reduce the minimum charge for the purchase of food stamps from $2 to 50 cents.

He also said emergency legislation to authorize the Agriculture Department and the Public Health Service to spend $25 million to feed the poor has been approved by his subcommittee and he expects it to pass the Senate next week.

Freeman, defending his department's food program, said "the record will show that in the past six and a half years, this administration has made more and better food available to more hungry people — at home and abroad — than all previous administrations combined."

LEARNING FORWARD—

MONTREAL (AP)—Getting tired standing in lines at Canada's Expo 67? Lean forward a bit and you'll feel better, says L.C. Johnston, a posture expert from Toronto. He says many people "lean too far back and put their weight on their backbone, which can't take it."

Scott County Welfare Staff Cancels Planned Walkout

DAVENPORT (AP)—Clerical workers in the Scott County welfare office called off a threatened walkout after wages Wednesday after arranging a Friday meeting with Gov. Harold E. Hughes.

The workers, with support and sympathy reported from others in Dubuque and Louisa counties and elsewhere, said earlier, "If no satisfaction is received by Wednesday, the staff will not report to work."

However, they did report to work Wednesday. And after a series of conferences and telephone calls to Des Moines, they said the governor agreed to meet with their representatives Friday afternoon.

Similar complaints about pay have come from Polk County welfare workers.

The workers received a $12-a-month pay raise last Friday, but Hughes said earlier they might have some basis for expecting a two-step raise. But he reportedly held the increase to one step to keep it in line with other state departments.

As to the walkout, Hughes said, "If they walk off their job when we are trying to work out their problems and can't get it done in 24 hours, as far as I am concerned, they will be replaced."

Parking Problem Relief Remains Distant Goal

That never-ending problem — student parking — will become even more difficult to solve this fall.

Returning students will find more city streets closed to parking and may find it easier to buy a University parking sticker than to walk the extra blocks to classes.

City Manager Frank R. Smiley said this week that residents in the vicinity of the Law Building began petitioning the city council last fall to eliminate parking on either one or both sides of a number of narrow or dead-end streets in the area. Among those streets were Richards, Maggard, Magowan and Ferson.

It has been a common practice for students to park their cars in residential areas to avoid paying the parking fee charged to use University facilities. The area surrounding the Law Building has been one of the more popular areas for this practice.

"There isn't much we can do," John D. Dooley, director of Parking Lot Operations, said Tuesday. "We can suggest that the students use University facilities, but we cannot coerce them to do so."

He said that vehicles parking on the side streets could not be ticketed by the campus police, and the city police could do nothing unless the Iowa City council voted "no parking" rules for them.

Dooley said that there were two lots for students to use in that area of campus — the lot south of University Theatre and the lot west of the Law Building.

"We only have jurisdiction while the car is on University property," he said. "If the car is parked on a city street, then it is a city problem."

Smiley said there was nothing much the city could do, either. "City property is just that," he said. "If we have parking, we have it for everyone and if we have parking for no one, then we have parking for no one."

He said that residents of blocks farther and farther from the Law Building have petitioned the council for "no parking" signs in front of their homes, hoping to arrive at a situation where too long a distance remains to walk back to campus.

"We will gladly put up the signs to prohibit parking," said Smiley, "so long as the residents know that the restriction also applies to them."

Such restrictions, he added, make parties and social gatherings difficult because the city police have no choice but to hand out tickets once the signs are up.

He said that to post the no-parking signs just for the residents' benefit was discriminatory, adding that public streets were public property.

Most residents feel that the situation has subsided during the summer session, but expect the problem to arise once school begins in the fall.

One resident within walking distance of the Law Building said, "Until the 'no parking' signs went up, I could set my watch by the changing of classes."

She said that her corner lot looked like an extension of a University parking lot.

Another area resident said he and his neighbors missed the privilege of parking in front of their houses, but that the peace and quiet was well worth the trouble to get the "no parking" signs up.

FOX SAVES MONEY—COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—A fox apparently has been saving American Confederate money, the game keeper of a large estate says. He was investigating a fox burrow when he found several scraps of paper that turned out to be dollar bills. More digging produced 1,100 Confederate dollars, the gamekeeper says, but he still doesn't know how they got there.

Hearings On Bill To Curb Riots Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee announced plans Wednesday for three days of hearings next week on a bill passed by the House making it a federal crime to cross a state line with intent to incite a riot.

Police officials from Detroit, Newark, N.J., Cambridge, Md., and other cities recently hit by racial rioting are among the witnesses expected to testify at the hearings starting next Wednesday.

De Gaulle Alienating Old Friends

An AP News Analysis By WILLIAM L. RYAN

The De Gaulle affair in Canada is unlikely to leave many footprints in the sands of history, but it leaves many friends of France wondering anew about his penchant for building up hostility among traditional allies.

The 76-year-old general hailed "free Quebec" in terms which could be judged as encouraging to a separatist movement. Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson found De Gaulle's remarks "unacceptable," and De Gaulle found the word "unacceptable" to be unacceptable. He decided to leave Canada without seeing Pearson.

Now in his 10th year at the helm of France, De Gaulle can lay claim to yanking France out of a state of near political anarchy and setting it on the road to stability.

His other achievements are less affirmative. France committed the Treaty of Rome when De Gaulle took over. Among its objectives, along with economic integration in Europe, were moves toward political integration.

De Gaulle tugged, pushed and bent the European Economic Community to his will. There would be no political integration.

He slammed the door to the Common Market in Britain's face. De Gaulle thought Britain was too closely associated with America. To him the United States — which twice rescued France from disaster — was the "economic imperialist" spreading dollar domination at the expense of Europe.

Abruptly De Gaulle withdrew France from the integrated military command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, chased U.S. troops from France and banished Allied bases.

China Recognized De Gaulle decided to recognize Red China, but France's relations with Peking are bad.

De Gaulle set about improving relations with Moscow. He sided with Moscow on a variety of issues, but he could not satisfy the Russians' questions about European security and Europe's future.

He set out to improve relations with Germany. France's old foe. He made superficial progress. West Germany fretted about De Gaulle's courtship of Moscow, suspecting he was ready to recognize World War II boundaries and thus weaken the German position in bargaining with the Communists.

With the Middle East crisis and the Arab-Israeli war, De Gaulle became an even more painful thorn in the side of France's old friends.

-Tessell, UI Alum, Returns From Mideast- Quaker Describes Arabs' Plight

By NORMA PARKER

Recent headlines have emphasized the Mideastern War yet the story of the refugees who have lost their homes is equally important.

Loren E. Tessell, a 1941 University graduate who returned to Iowa City Monday, said that the plight of those who have lost their homes and families is a long-range problem of international significance.

Tessell should know. He spent the last part of the Arab-Israeli fighting in June holed up with other Americans in a hotel in Cairo, and subsequently toured Jordan as a representative of the American Friends Service Committee.

Tessell is chairman of the Department of Economics and Political Science at the American University of Cairo. He has lived in Egypt, off and on, for four years.

He had planned to join his wife and family in Iowa City at the conclusion of spring semester, but the Mideastern crisis put an end to those plans and he remained, after the initial fighting, to survey the needs of refugees.

To Speak At Union Tessell will speak at 8 p.m. Aug. 1 in the Union Harvard Room. His lecture, "The Arab-Israeli War: A View From Cairo," is sponsored by the local Friends Meeting and the Department of Political Science.

It was known in Egypt that a crisis was brewing two weeks before the actual war broke out. Tessell told The Daily Iowan this week, American women and children were evacuated at that time at the urging of the U.S. embassy in Cairo.

"I wanted to stay as long as possible or at least until the date I had planned to leave for my summer home leave," he explained.

Americans Evacuated However, on June 6, the second day of the war, Tessell and about 550 other Americans in Cairo were notified that they were to leave by train in five hours.

"That meant two hours to pack up after three years in Egypt," he said.

Those evacuated were instructed to take only what personal possessions they could carry. They were then taken to Alexandria on a blacked-out train.

Americans spent four nights there in a hotel and then took a Greek ship to Athens.

Despite what many publications reported, the Americans were not treated with hostility, Tessell said. Most Egyptian officials showed only concern for the safety of the evacuees, he said.

From Athens, Tessell started for home. When he got to Geneva, the Friends asked him to go back to do a survey and to find a project for the organization to undertake.

Goes To East Bank Tessell went back to the Jordanian East Bank (a section still under Arab control). There he talked to agencies and visited five refugee camps.

"Individuals who behave well toward them (those policing the area) are received courteously, welcomed and protected," he explained.

Although in a dangerous zone, Tessell was never harmed.

He also said he had no feeling of risk or danger even when walking the streets of Amman alone.

In the refugee camps, Tessell found that the basic food and housing needs were being met or were about to be met.

About 200,000 people fled across the Jordan River when the Israelis took over the West Bank. Of these about 70 per cent are refugees from the 1948 war, moving for the second time, Tessell said.

Sees To Needs On behalf of the Friends, Tessell helped satisfy some of the refugees' immediate needs, however. For example, he obtained water buckets for several hundred refugee families who were using petrol cans to store water in their tents, the only housing in the camps.

He also got tea glasses because many persons were drinking from rusty tin cans.

In one camp Tessell found a 5-year-old boy with his leg in a cast. A victim of a bomb, the boy had been treated at a hospital and immediately released because of the space shortage. Tessell saw to it that the boy got some extra food.

However, the West is not the only one helping the refugees, Tessell pointed out.

"Lots of help comes from the Middle East itself," he said.

Arabs Also Help For instance, in one camp three agencies were operating. Libyan boy scouts were keeping the area clean, and members of a Jordanian YWCA were helping to feed the refugees and British nurses from a Commonwealth Save the Children organization were providing medical care.

While Tessell was on the East Bank, two other investigators were on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

Wherever possible the Friends work on both sides of a conflict. Tessell explained. However, in this case researchers were concerned with Arab refugees on both banks because they were the war's chief victims, he added.

Besides, gifts and aid to the Israelis have been many times the amount to the Arab refugees, Tessell said.

For this reason the Friends were looking for a deeper, long-range project to help the Arabs, according to Tessell. Jordan's Ministry of Social Affairs asked that a children's hostel be established. The Jordanian government is to take over and support the hostel in one or two years, Tessell said.

While conducting his survey of the Jordanians' needs, Tessell found out much about their attitudes.

"The general mood is that of uncertainty about the future," he said. "There is also hostility and bitterness."

The refugees are wondering whether and when they can go back to their West Bank homes and under whose administration.

Israelis promised those from the West Bank they could return from July 10 to Aug. 10. However, all who appeared at the bridge July 10 to cross over were refused, Tessell said. The Israelis require application and identification, something almost impossible for many of the Arabs who fled in haste.

Detroit Braces For Refugees

DETROIT (AP) — Shots still echo and fires smoulder as this city of nearly two million braces for an outpouring of refugees from neighborhoods ravaged by three nights of bombing, arson and shooting.

"We are preparing for several hundred, perhaps thousands of homeless," said Philip Rutledge, director of a mayor's committee that is coordinating efforts of several organizations to aid the victims of the riot.

Already in the works are lists of available housing, food distribution depots and grocery stores still open near the riot area.

Industry has offered furniture to fire victims.

The State Employment Services Commission, the Department of Labor and the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity are trying to find jobs for those whose places of employment were bombed and looted.

The U.S. Small Business Administration is looking into the possibility of declaring Detroit a disaster area, thus qualifying owners of stores and homes damaged in the rioting for long-term, low-interest loans.

"We are in good shape to deal with the problems when mopping up time comes," Rutledge said. But the best of mopping-up plans can't help Dalton Williams in his time of need, which is now.

Dalton is 2 years old. And he has no shoes. The Negro boy, his five brothers and sisters and his mother were burned out of their apartment Monday night.

"I got the kids out," Mrs. Williams said wearily. "The fire was almost out when I started back toward the building, but then the snipers started shooting at firemen, and they had to stop their work."

Mrs. Williams had managed to get clothes on her youngsters, but five wore no shoes.

Mrs. Williams, who is estranged from her husband and on welfare, put her family up for the night with two neighbors. Families in the block donated food to provide breakfast and lunch for the youngsters.

Johnnie Maye Mayfield and her five youngsters walked the two miles from their burning neighborhood to a church shelter.

Dead on the floor of their apartment was her husband, Prince.

He had been ill "and the excitement was too much for him." Exact cause of death has not been determined. Neither has the future of the Mayfield family.

Similar accounts of tragedy fill Detroit.

—Rookies Sought— Need Job? Apply At Police Station

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the late night record show Louis Armstrong ends on a blue note. Then, with a mood change as jarring as the flash of a police badge, comes this message: "This is Chief of Police John B. Layton of the Metropolitan Police Department. I should like to remind all young men of the Metropolitan police training program.

The chief's radio appeal aimed at pocketbook and security, shows how police departments in the United States—usually as conservative as the station house spittoon—are trying Madison Avenue techniques to solve manpower shortages.

Practically every large police department in the nation, according to the President's Crime Commission, is substantially below authorized strength "due to the great difficulties of attracting capable personnel."

In a sampling by The Associated Press, cities such as Chicago and New York reported little if any manpower trouble. Some, such as Baltimore, saw an improving situation. But many others, including Detroit and Los Angeles, told of continuing, sometimes critical shortages.

Many cities have reduced standards for recruits—but not to the point some applicants would believe.

"You should see them come in here," said a Washington officer. "Beards, sandals. I guess they think we're hard up for people. We'll never be that hard up."

But the capital force is 350 short of its authorized strength, 3,100.

To make police work more appealing in a turbulent, changing society and its soaring crime rate, police forces are trying a variety of ploys: Higher pay; raises for college credits; air-conditioned patrol cars; easier residence requirements; intensive—and sometimes far-ranging—recruiting campaigns—even sharper uniforms.

Departments place help-wanted ads hundreds of miles away, display posters in cabs and buses, seek out newly discharged servicemen. Rival recruiting units even cross each other's paths many states away from home.

"We've run across teams from Los Angeles and Oakland out on recruiting trips," says a Washington officer who ranges as far west as Illinois, as far north as New England, and as far south as Tennessee.

"We ask the local officials if it's all right to come in," said one recruiter. "Sometimes they will say, 'Look, I've got 20 vacancies myself, how about going someplace else?' So we make other plans."

Uniform Help
The uniform, recruiters feel, can help sell the job, if it is sharp enough.

"That's why a lot of guys want to be state troopers," said an Eastern officer. "They get a big hat, boots and a bay look sharp."

Police officials blame a variety of factors for their difficulties in getting and keeping good men:

Pay that is not competitive with industry or even with neighboring forces; irregular hours and days off; married or irritated wives; lack of community support; even hostility; court decisions limiting police power; racial tensions and pressure groups; and competition from the military draft.

In Washington, a police private earns a $3,700 less than a bus driver. But with years on the job, it goes up to $9,420. A sergeant's pay ranges from $8,975 to $11,015, a captain's from $12,852 to $15,527.

5 Grad Students To Give Recitals

Five graduate music students are to present recitals in North Music Hall this weekend.

At 4 p.m. Friday, Theodore Heger, G. Huntington, W. Va., will give an oboe recital, accompanied by Norma Cross, associate professor of music, at the piano. Heger will play works by Haydn, Britten and Beethoven and Alessandro Besozzi's "Sonata in C Major."

Paul Smoker, G. Davenport, will present a trumpet and flugelhorn recital at 4 p.m. Saturday. He will be accompanied at the piano by his wife Judith and assisted by trombonist David Glas-mire, G. Iowa City, and a brass ensemble directed by John Hill, assistant professor of music.

Smoker will play works by four modern composers and Purcell's "Sonata."

Pianist August Wegner, G. Saginaw, Mich., will give a recital at 8 p.m. Saturday. He will play works by Bach, Beethoven and Copland, and "Quanderno Musicale di Annalibera" by Dallapiccola.

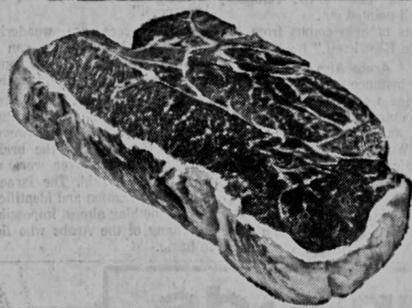

Helen Smith, G. McI. Ash, Ga., will present a piano recital at 2 p.m. Sunday. Her program will consist of works by Bach and Schubert and Bartok's "Improvisations, Opus 20."

At 8 p.m. Sunday, Thomas L. Swanson, G. Bemidji, Minn., will give a trombone recital. He will play works by Vivaldi, Saint-Saens, Bassett, Hartley and Jones.

FRIENDLY FILMS SHOWN—
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Libyan Embassy says Libyan movie houses closed since the Arab-Israeli war last month are now being allowed to show films produced in "friendly countries that did not support Israel in its attack on the Arabs."
