Regents Begin Study On School For Western Iowa

CEDAR FALLS — The State Board of Regents Thursday directed its central office to investigate how other states have gone about establishing new colleges. The regents also pondered the effect of a new law on its institutions which requires opening up files to public scrutiny. The 1967 legislature appropriated $500,000 to the regents to investigate establishment of a new state college in western Iowa, and the regents ordered preparation of a budget for this study.

The central office in Des Moines was asked to make a study of newly established colleges and universities in other states and learn what problems were encountered and what consulting services were used. The report is to be presented to the board next month.

Specific points to be covered include the kind of institution, its location, primary areas to be served, academic fields to be covered, number of students and physical development of the school.

Regents Agree

There appeared to be general agreement among the regents that the appropriation passed by the legislature was a clear directive to proceed with studies looking toward establishment of the western Iowa college.

However, Regent William B. Quorton of Cedar Rapids, said he did not "believe the legislature meant that we should proceed with all haste to waste the money of the people of the State of Iowa."

In the past, the board had opposed establishing a new institution of higher learning at this time, saying the need for higher education could be best met by expanding existing institutions.

However, Ned Perrin of Mapleton, one of the two regents from western Iowa, said "the need had been determined for us" by the legislature.

Jonathan Richards of Red Oak, the other regent from western Iowa, said he believed that after a study the board and the legislature may find a new college is not advisable at this time.

Richards said he considered the legislative action "a directive to plan, but not to execute."

Study Proposed

Mrs. Joseph Rosenfield of Des Moines said she thinks the board should make all determination of the complete cost of a new institution in western Iowa, arrive at a budget and present this to the legislature.

Casey Loss of Algona said he agreed the matter will be "dumped back in the legislature's lap."

The regents also studied what Iowa's new open-recorders law means to state educational institutions.

Of particular concern to the board is the extent of exemptions provided for such records as those of students, of hospital patients, and of employees.

The regents named a committee of institutional representatives to meet with faculty members at the University of Iowa College of Law concerning the matter.

Appointment of a committee presumes a common policy on making records available to be adopted by all of the regents' institutions.

In their discussion of the matter, the regents pointed out that not only prospective employers, but government agencies, now are seeking information about students from the universities and academies.

The committee includes the academic vice presidents of the three universities, plus representatives of the School for the Deaf and the Braille and Sight Saving School.

Board Sells Bonds

In another action, the board sold $8,190,000 in dormitory bonds at Iowa State at an interest rate of 4.305 per cent. The total interest to be paid over the 40 years of the issue will be $10,417,669. The net interest rate offered by the successful bidder, a group headed by Lehman Brothers and Phelps-Penn of New York, was the lowest of six bids received.

Regents Quorton and Richards voted against the sale. Both said that while the bid is good considering market conditions, they felt that the interest rate is too high.

The bonds will finance construction of married student housing, and men's and women's dormitories now under construction at the Ames campus. More bonds will be sold by the regents at their next two meetings, Sept. 14 at Council Bluffs and Oct. 11 at Des Moines.

These are $3 million in dormitory bonds and $7 in fieldhouse bonds at Iowa State, and $1,335 million in student union bonds at Northern Iowa University.

The three representatives of the regents on the new state educational radio and television facilities board were appointed. They are Quorton, David A. Dancer, assistant executive secretary of the board, and Robert F. Ray, extension dean at the University of Iowa.

Kennedy Says Probe 'Distorted'

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said Thursday that Senate riot investigators are getting a distorted view of racial outbreaks, and urged that Govs. George Romney of Michigan and Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey be called as witnesses.

Kennedy made his complaint and his request after the Senate Judiciary Committee heard a fifth day of police testimony.

"To date, the witnesses have presented a distorted view," the senator said.

Joined by Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), Kennedy asked Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) to broaden the inquiry so that it will cover social and economic aspects of city turmoil, as well as racial agitation and law enforcement.

Eastland said he will take up their request at a closed session of the Judiciary Committee within a few days. "We've got to set down guidelines," he told newsmen. "We've certainly got to hear from people who oppose the bill."

Viet Candidates Irked

SAIGON — Most of South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates are reportedly discussing among themselves the possibility of pulling out of the race to rally behind one ticket, that of former Premier Tran Van Huong.

Informed sources said Thursday the mass pullout, if it comes, would be accompanied by a public denunciation of the government of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, who are running as a military team in the election Sept. 3.

They said Thieu and Ky would be charged with everything from police harassment of representatives of the civilian candidates in the countryside to sabotage of the election progress, which would be difficult to check out in the time remaining before the vote.

While the political pot boiled, South Vietnamese police sources reported the police have arrested 23 Viet Cong terrorists, seized several arms caches and broken up elaborate plans to spread death and destruction in Saigon before the election.

They said the crackdown developed after investigation showed a youth arrested at a suburban checkpoint July 26 — Nguyen Van Tam, 20 — was the leader of a Viet Cong special action platoon, the Communist name for a terrorist unit. Captured Communist documents revealed orders for action intended to disrupt the return of South Viet Nam to civilian rule through the people's ballots.

Seven of the 10 civilian candidates earlier announced they were boycotting the government's free transportation to the provinces. They had called off a trip last Sunday in Quang Tri, the first stop, and returned in a huff to Saigon, changing arrangements made by the government for the campaigning were inadequate.

They sent a letter of protest to Thieu and Ky, demanding that they insure adequate facilities and security and asked for an answer by midnight Wednesday.

When no answer was received, the civilian candidates met twice Thursday. First they decided to boycott the 22-stop trips to the countryside until they heard from the government.

In the second meeting they were reported to have decided to discuss the possibility of pulling out of the race. According to one source, this would be done "to show to the world that it is not a fair election."

One of Tran Van Huong's campaign managers, Vo Ling Trieu, told The Associated Press: "There is a 60 per cent chance at this moment that the civilian candidates may get out just before election to show that the military won't give them a fair election."

He said there were rumors that most would withdraw and support Huong.

Trieu is a former minister in Ky's government. He resigned with six other ministers last October in what was called a "Cabinet revolt" to embarrass the premier.

With backing of the nation's armed forces, the Thieu-Ky ticket is considered to have the best chance of winning. Even if rivals back Huong to face Thieu alone, most political analysts consider it is doubtful Thieu would lose.

GOP Governors Offer Solutions To Urban Woes

NEW YORK — Eight Republican governors, charging Thursday that the federal government has failed to supply adequate solutions to the nation's urban problems, offered solutions of their own, including an urban action center to "tailor specific programs to the needs of individual states."

The federal government is "not providing financial resources on a scale commensurate with the dimensions of the problem," the governors said.

"In many cases, the effectiveness of federal programs is inhibited by unnecessary inflexibility in their administration."

The governors met to discuss ways to ease racial tensions in American cities.

Several of the governors, including Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and George Romney of Michigan, have experienced serious mob violence in their states in the past month.

"The lesson of the Michigan experience," Romney said, "is that prompt action must be taken."

Recent violence in Detroit was the most costly in its toll of life and property that the nation had ever experienced.

The urban action center, as outlined by the governors, would be funded by two foundations. It would have a team of experts in each of nine areas discussed by the state executives which would channel information back and forth so that each state could benefit by the experiences of the others.

Rockefeller said the concepts contained in the plan put forth at the meeting "reflect the thinking of all of the nation's governors."

They suggested several programs of their own including a pooling of local enforcement and fire officers and their equipment so that a city in trouble can call on the men and equipment of neighboring cities if needed.

They also recommended the strengthening of the state police to better assist local authorities.

De Gaulle Scoffs At Policy Critics

PARIS — President Charles de Gaulle disdained his critics Thursday night as afflicted by a "strange passion for absence" and laid down a vigorous defense of his foreign and domestic policies.

De Gaulle, 76, in one of his longest speeches in recent years, scorned "apostles of decline." He gave no sign of bending under criticism of his support of the Arabs in the Middle East crisis or of his open encouragement to French-Canadian separatists on his trip to Quebec last month.

Nor did he indicate that he will alter his controversial social and economic program.

De Gaulle appeared on the state radio and television network at the height of the French vacation season. He said he chose this time because it is a good period for reflection.

Popularity Declines

But in the background were public opinion polls indicating his popularity had slumped in the past six weeks and that, specifically, Frenchmen objected to his recent foreign policy stance and to his social and economic reforms.

Only Monday, his Cabinet gave final approval to decrees which will reform the social security system and institute profit sharing for certain industries. The social security reforms will cost workers and employers more in contributions while some benefits will be reduced.

Unions and management are skeptical of the profit-sharing system, with unions preferring wage increases and companies fearing greater government control.

Criticism Criticizes

De Gaulle laid into his critics by saying: "Everything that is realized concerning the development of the country, in no matter what domain, at no matter what moment, in no matter what fashion, is fought in principle, without exception, always and always by these experts in disparagement."

He went down the list of his recent foreign policy stances — on Vietnam, the Middle East, the European Common Market, relations with the East, French Canada and others — and said the fact that France takes its own independent positions on these questions "stupifies and exasperates the apostles of decline."

De Gaulle hit out again at American intervention in Vietnam — comparing it with a spreading fire — but he did not dwell on the subject.

SNCC Head Snubs Florida Governor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Pushing aside an unexpected welcoming hand from Florida Gov. Claude Kirk, Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee leader H. Rap Brown urged a crowd of Jacksonville Negroes to "loot yourself a gun store."

Although Kirk's office said he was there to help keep the peace, the governor offered only to shake hands and Brown charged Kirk was trying to take over his meeting.

"Get ready, that's the whole thing," Brown told a Negro rally Wednesday night at Jacksonville. "You got to get yourselves some guns, brothers. I don't care if it's a BB gun with poison BBs. You better get yourselves some guns."

"If you are gonna loot, brother, loot a gun store," Brown said. "Don't be running around here looting no liquor, cause liquor's just for celebrating. We ain't got nothing to celebrate about."

Brown continued, "Loot yourself a gun store, brother. Get yourself armed. That's the only thing that'll keep that man off your back."

When the rally ended Kirk was asked about Brown's call to arms and said, "He didn't really say that. That's what I came here to find out."

"Too often the media reports what he did rather than what he said," Kirk said. "I said he knew very well that inciting riot is against the law here in Florida and he didn't incite any riot so there is no problem."

Later Kirk went on live television — accompanied by one of Florida's 35 Negro National Guardsmen — and said, "Brown is incapable of inciting a riot. The thing to do with him is put him on national television for three hours, let everybody see him and that will be that."

Brown addressed a ball park rally highlighted by the unexpected appearance of Kirk. The governor and a few reporters were the only white men at the ball park which seats 1,500 and was more than half full.

Parking Regulations To Remain In Effect

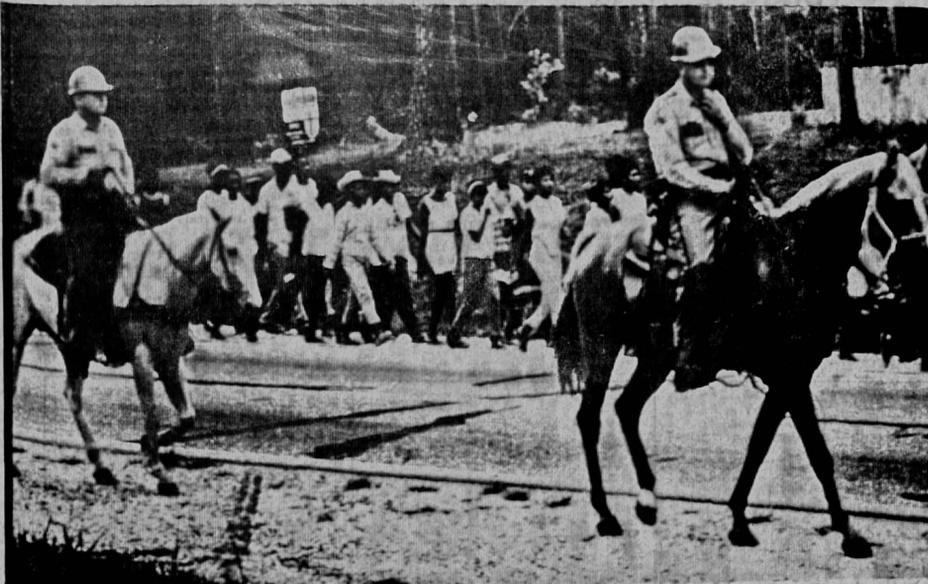

Student parking regulations will be enforced as usual until the end of the 12-week summer session Aug. 30, according to Mrs. Margery L. Moffitt, clerk in the University Parking Operations Office.

Although the regulations are still applicable after that time, the strictures are somewhat relaxed.

Capt. Oscar Graham of the Campus Security Force said after the 12-week session the lots would be patrolled less frequently because he would have fewer men available.

"We normally give fewer tickets and make fewer patrols because there are fewer violators here to be ticketed," said Graham. "During this slack time we get staff vacations out of the way and plan for the next year's traffic problems."

Graham said that problem parking areas such as University Hospital are patrolled as frequently during the break as during the academic sessions.

National Guard To Boost Recruitment Of Negroes

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's special commission on riots recommended Thursday that more Negroes be recruited into the National Guard. The President promptly asked the Defense Department to move toward this goal.

The National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders recommended also that riot-control training of both the Guard and the regular Army be improved and expanded, and that greater care be used to insure that the Guard has competent officers. Johnson acted affirmatively on these requests also.

In a memo to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Johnson called the commission's first recommendations "a matter of the highest emergency" and added, "I know you will give it your immediate attention."

Actually, a movement to intensify National Guard training was started by Johnson shortly after the Detroit outbreak and the Pentagon announced plans Thursday to help the Guard meet what it called a new dimension in civil disturbances.

Training To Increase — At the heart of the plan — announced apparently by coincidence a few hours after the commission released its letter — is an increase in the minimum riot-control training for guardsmen to 32 hours a year. This compares with about six hours now devoted to this subject in most Guard units. State Guard organizations were ordered to get in this year's 32 hours during August and September.

The commission, named last month in an aftermath of the rioting which scoured Detroit and other cities, is not expected to make its first over-all report on the causes of and possible cures for the disorders until next March.

But David Ginsburg, the group's executive director, told reporters it was decided to make these interim recommendations after hearing testimony Wednesday from Cyrus Vance, Johnson's special representative in the Detroit crisis.

Statistics Reviewed

Ginsburg said the commission decided to write to Johnson after reviewing a state-by-state statistics chart which showed that as of Dec. 31, 1966, only 1.15 per cent of the Army Guard and only .6 per cent of the Air Force Guard is Negro.

The charts show 404,996 officers and enlisted personnel in Army Guard units in China studies H-bomb significance

CHINESE PEOPLE celebrating the successful explosion of China's first H-bomb.

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following article was written by a reporter for China Features of Peking, a propaganda arm of Mao Tse-tung.

By CHUN SHIH
From China Features

Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the great leader of the Chinese people, pointed out in June, 1958, that he thought it was entirely possible for some atom bombs and hydrogen bombs to be made in ten years' time.

This brilliant prediction and great call has materialized a whole year before the scheduled date. By her own efforts, China has successfully tested atom bombs and now the first hydrogen bomb has been successfully exploded. To the 700 million Chinese people, armed with Mao Tse-tung's thought, it is another of the rich fruit of the great proletarian cultural revolution.

On the morning of the red-letter day, June 17, 1967, a five-star red flag flew over the testing ground in the western part of China. A large portrait of Chairman Mao Tse-tung was conspicuously displayed amid clusters of red flags and placards inscribed with appropriate quotations from Chairman Mao.

Hours before the explosion, commanders and fighters of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, workers, engineers, technicians, scientists and other personnel meticulously worked in accordance with the pre-arranged plan of procedure.

Those in the control room gave the apparatus and equipment a final check-over.

The world-shaking moment arrived. China's first self-designed, self-made hydrogen bomb exploded with complete success.

Its explosion represents another leap in the development of China's nuclear weapons, and marks the entry of the development of China's nuclear weapons into an entirely new stage.

The fact that China has her own atom bombs and guided missiles and now the hydrogen bomb greatly heightens the morale of revolutionary people throughout the world and deflates the arrogance of imperialism, modern revisionism and of all reactionaries. Reports of the world-wide response reaching the Chinese capital show that the success of the test is a very great encouragement and support to the people of Vietnam, Asian, African and Latin American countries and to all revolutionaries throughout the world.

After the explosion, Premier Chou En-lai declared that China conducted nuclear tests in order to ultimately eliminate nuclear weapons. The significance of the success of China's nuclear tests lies in the fact that they have broken the U.S.-Soviet nuclear monopoly. However, at no time and under no circumstances will China be the first to use nuclear weapons, the Chinese Premier reiterated.

China's H-bomb test was conducted under the solicitous concern of Chairman Mao and his close comrade-in-arms Lin Biao. It marks a victory for Chairman Mao's proletarian revolutionary line on the science front. This victory has smashed the revisionist line on science pursued by the handful of top Party persons in authority taking the capitalist road.

To speedily mount the peaks of world science has been an arduous task for China, still an economically backward country.

Chairman Mao says: "The people, and the people alone, are the motive force in the making of world history."

Working in the revolutionary spirit of "seize the day, seize the hour," every department, every unit and every person participating in the tests contributed to the enormous successes of the nuclear tests.

It has taken China only two years and eight months to cover the entire course from her first A-bomb explosion in October, 1964, to the successful H-bomb test. It took the United States, however, seven years and four months to do the same thing, the Soviet Union four years and Britain four years and seven months. China's speed, therefore, is the fastest in the world.

Chairman Mao has said: "On what basis should our policy rest? It should rest on our own strength, and that means regeneration through one's own efforts," and "we stand for self-reliance. We hope for foreign aid but cannot be dependent on it; we depend on our own efforts, on the creative power of the whole army and the entire people."

MAO TSE-TUNG
Prediction Called Brilliant

Is pacification working in the U.S.?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The worst thing the United States could have done was to introduce television to South Vietnam. It has given the South Vietnamese an opportunity to watch American news programs and these have raised many questions in the minds of our friends out there.

Two South Vietnamese couples were watching a news show on a set the other night, a few miles outside of Saigon. The news had to do with Newark, Detroit, East Harlem, Cambridge, Md., and Plainfield, N.J.

"Well," said one of the Vietnamese, at the end of the show, "they seem to be doing very well militarily, but their pacification program leaves a lot to be desired."

The other Vietnamese man said, "I think the trouble is that you want results overnight. You have to remember that the United States is a young country, and they were under the domination of the British until 1775. They can't be expected to resolve their differences in less than 300 years."

The other wife said, "Because it takes two sides to talk and the government in Washington just doesn't seem to be getting through to the people in the countryside. Isn't that right, Cao?"

"That's true. I think the political structure of the United States is very weak at the moment. Rather than resolve their problems, the political parties are blaming each other for the fighting in the cities."

"But why don't we do something about it?" the Vietnamese wife asked.

"The South Vietnamese can only advise the United States on how to run its affairs. We can't get involved in American politics or they'll accuse us of a colonial policy. All we can do is urge them to have elections in 1968 and hope they put in people who sincerely care about the country."

"I disagree with you," the Vietnamese husband said. "South Vietnam has a great stake in the United States and I believe we should get actively involved in their problems. There is obviously a revolution going on there and they are in no position to put it down themselves."

"Are you trying to say you would advocate sending South Vietnamese boys to Detroit?"

"Yes, I am. We have a commitment to the United States and if they're in trouble we should honor it."

One of the Vietnamese wives was adamant. "I believe the sending of South Vietnamese troops to the United States at this time would be a tragic mistake. If the United States is ever going to learn how to govern itself, it should use its own troops. I think we should offer advice, but not soldiers."

"But if President Johnson and Governor Romney can't agree on the use of troops, how are you ever going to pacify the country?"

"I agree," said his wife. "You're not just going to let the United States go down the drain."

The other husband was adamant. "I don't think you can do it with troops. You've got to win the hearts and minds of the American people. You've got to convince them that bombing and burning down their own cities can only be destructive in the long run."

"We can say that, sitting here in Vietnam before our television sets. But I wonder whether you'd feel the same way if you were in the United States right now, wondering what tomorrow was going to bring."

Varner replies on 'injustices' of business office

To the Editor:

Kenneth Wessels' letter (in the August 1 edition of The Daily Iowan) was an excellent philosophical statement, but ignores certain salient facts and realities and completely misses the point of my earlier letter. If he is right about men and systems, then why not fire Waldo Geiger and solve the whole problem? The fact is, of course, that such an action would solve nothing. The real problem is not the personality of Waldo Geiger but the procedures of the business office, particularly the mandatory use of that office by student organizations.

Wessels says the Student Senate's alienation of Geiger is about like Lincoln alienating the slave owners. One big difference — Lincoln accomplished a substantive good, while the Student Senate accomplished nothing by the ill-fated blast at Geiger. Students for a Democratic Society still isn't going to get their money for Allen Ginsberg. Student organizations still have to use the outmoded procedures of the business office.

One final appeal to Hawkeye Student Party — I hope that it will join with the efforts of the Student Senate to free student organizations from mandatory use of the business office. I submitted a resolution to the Senate last May doing precisely this and I'm sure it is compatible with the HSP ideology. Only when this is done will we no longer have to worry about any injustices of the business office.

Starting from scratch, the Chinese people have had to put in strenuous labor and engaged in arduous struggle at each stage. They have had to struggle against obstruction and sabotage by bourgeois representatives within the Party, and by U.S. imperialism, Soviet modern revisionism and reaction.

In these struggles, commanders and fighters of the PLA, workers, technicians and scientists broke away from foreign stereotypes and old conventions, introduced many new methods and produced large quantities of apparatus and equipment.

The creative power of the masses is inexhaustible; the masses are the masters of science and technology. Chairman Mao instructed all those engaged in the work to cooperate closely with each other and do the work well. The successful tests are the splendid result of close cooperation and collective work; this is a dramatic illustration of what can be accomplished by a mass movement.

It must be pointed out that the making of nuclear weapons and guided missiles and the necessary tremendous battery of precision apparatus and equipment embodied the sweat and blood of all the Chinese people. Every sack of cement, every battery, every piece of timber, every nail is the product of diligent labor by the people.

Across the 9.6 million kilometers of China, the proletarian revolutionaries and revolutionary masses have pooled their wisdom and strength for the manufacture and explosion of their first H-bomb out of their boundless love and admiration for the great leader Chairman Mao and out of their infinite faith and allegiance to him.

Today, the Chinese people are getting still higher goals on this field and daring to take the untrodden path, to climb unscalable peaks. It is just like what Chairman Mao has said:

"We are engaged in a great and most glorious cause, never undertaken by our forefathers. Our goal must be attained. Our goal can certainly be attained."

Salzburg combines old, new most skillfully

SALZBURG, Austria — Crossing from Italy to Austria is like reading bad prose — there are almost no transitions. One moment you are traveling through parched countryside gouged with dry river beds (ironically labeled "Torrents") and dotted only sparsely with thin, deliberate forests of scrawny trees; and the next minute, after the formality of crossing what we had always considered to be artificial frontiers, you are in the Austrian Alps with such typically beautiful and verdant scenery that you expect Julie Andrews to pop up over the next hill filling the refreshing mountain air with strains of "Edelweiss" or something.

With such thoughts in our heads we decided to chart our whimsical course so that we would arrive in Salzburg where "The Sound of Music" was filmed and where we could get in on the festivities at the beginning of the annual Mozart Festival at the composer's birthplace.

If you should arrive in Salzburg during the "Festspiel," then it is true, the hills really are filled with the sound of music. There is a major performance of one kind or another every evening for 36 straight nights whether it be grand opera, symphony concerts, plays, recitals or the famous Salzburg Marionettes. The best orchestras in the world journey at one time or another to Salzburg to remember Mozart in music, including the Vienna Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony and such well-known soloists as Isaac Stern and Arthur Schnabel.

Even if you are not fortunate enough to be there during the festival, Salzburg is one of the finest and, to us, the most characteristically European cities on the continent (and, by the way, a pint of Lowenbrau costs a ridiculous 15 cents). It is a pleasantly small city visible in its entirety from the massive Hohensalzburg Fortress (1066) atop a hill in the middle of the old section. The antique, narrow streets in the shadows of the Fortress are crowded with people, not cars, and they are all searching for and finding some of the best quality clothing and gift items in Europe.

On the outskirts of the city are those 17th and 18th century palaces where you might imagine the gilt Austrian military officers dancing the minuet in very ornate surroundings and stepping out for a stroll in intricately manicured gardens. We find that it all remains except for the grandeur of the old Austrian army. When we stopped by Klesheim Palace, for example, there were only a few drab looking policemen waiting to receive none other than the President of Austria who arrived a few minutes later, not in a carriage drawn by four white horses, but in a black Mercedes bounded by four quite typical motorcycle police.

Another noble residence outside Salzburg is the Leopoldskron, a rather unbecoming name for the house that is better known as the home of Baron Von Trapp and his children. We needn't waste any description on this familiar landmark except to say that, although in the musical it seemed to be situated well out in the country, this lovely old place is only about six blocks from downtown Salzburg and no more than two from the nearest gas station. Obviously the old must be forced to coexist with the new as in all tradition-filled European cities, but perhaps Salzburg does it most skillfully.

Lebanese student discusses communications gap

To the Editor:

The opportunity I have had to live in distant communities has made me realize the huge communication gap that exists between such communities and the importance of the role of the press in diminishing this gap. It is amazing that people can perceive the same messages differently. For example, some of the statements I made in Iowa about the United States in front of people who did not know me well made them view me as being anti-American, yet the same statements uttered here in the Middle East caused me to be branded as a CIA agent. Those who accused me of being anti-American were not John Birchers, nor were those who labelled me as a CIA agent Communists (Despite most U.S. press reports to the contrary, the people here are not Communist in ideology or even pro-Communist. The fact that they are against the U.S. Middle East policy does not necessarily make them anti-American or pro-Communist. They are more committed to the ideas of democracy and freedom than is the average American. But they have less opportunity than the average American to practice these because of a host of reasons.)

If we ever can attain world peace, we have to diminish this serious communication gap. We have to base world peace on understanding. There is no doubt in my mind of the serious role newspaper editors have to play in this mission. The U.S. press has done a terrific job locally by covering local news and diminishing the gap between the local government and the public. But this press is still way behind in attending to the communication gap between the locally-oriented United States and the outside world. The American public is not in a position to question its government's foreign policies (Vietnam is an exception) because this public is not properly informed.

To my mind the success of an editor does not merely depend on his success as a gatekeeper who selects what his readers need and want but also depends on his success as a searcher for facts, facts that go beyond false stereotypes and beyond wire reports that are, in most cases, managed. (A foreign correspondent here showed me a copy of what he had cabled to his paper and what his paper printed. The paper used the correspondent's byline but the story it ran was not the one he filed.)

Cretzmeyer Has Work To Do, This Time It's Sheer Labor

By MIKE BARRY
Sports Editor

Iowa track Coach Francis Cretzmeyer has work to do. For once, it has nothing to do with recruiting or coaching.

Nope, this time it's labor, sheer labor. Peek into his office sometime and you'll see.

Walking into Cretzmeyer's office is like walking into The House of Mirrors. Everywhere you look, your face is reflected off polished metal.

Trophies, bright shiny ones collected by his Big 10 outdoor and NCAA mile relay championship teams last spring, stand wherever there's room.

"One of these days, I'm going to take those down to the trophy case," he said.

When he does, he had better be feeling up to the task. He has a lot of carrying to do.

Cretz peered out from behind a row of trophies on his desk and discussed Iowa track fortunes recently. What about next year?

Can Iowa Do It Again?

"We probably won't win it," he said, "but we've still got a fairly good nucleus coming back."

Cretzmeyer has enough talent returning to give anybody in the conference real trouble. But the creation of another track champion at Iowa depends upon much more — depth and the development of front-line field specialists and middle distance runners.

Long jumper Dick Gibbs, shot put-discus thrower Tom Knutson and pole vaulter Bill Burnett have graduated. All three earned points in the Big 10 outdoor meet last spring.

Gone also is the gifted Jon Reimer. Reimer won the 1965 intermediate outdoor hurdle championship, was second in 1966 and last spring won the 440-yard event with a :50.8 clocking. He also earned Iowa a fifth place point in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Fred Ferree and Ted Brubacher, 440 and 880-yard runners, have departed. Ferree and Reimer were members of the record-shattering mile relay team.

Returning however, are All-Americans Larry Wiczorek and Mike Mondane, as well as Carl Frazier, Rollie Kitt, Curt LaBond and Ron Griffith.

Wiczorek ran the mile and three-mile for Cretzmeyer last year. Mondane was even busier.

He competed in the 220 and 440. He and Frazier formed the other half of the mile relay team.

LaBond and Griffith are capable distance runners. LaBond finished fourth in the conference outdoor three-mile run. Griffith took fifth in the mile.

Newcomers Jerry Stevens and Steve Dertinger are promising, but inexperienced middle distance runners. Both were Colorado prep champions who were kept out of competition last year with leg injuries.

Stevens was an 880 champ in high school, Dertinger a 440 titleist. Senior Dale Teberg could also provide middle distance depth. He too missed last season with a leg injury.

Hawk Pole Vaulter Improves

Pole vaulter Don Utzinger improved quite a bit toward the end of the season. He failed to place in the conference meet, but turned in a 16-5 inch effort in the Iowa Federation meet here.

This team must also perform up to its greatest potential. Supreme effort is a must. It made the Hawkeyes a winner last year.

Recalling his team's splendid effort in the outdoor meet, Cretzmeyer said:

"We had a lot of desire. We all hit at once and Kitt's victory in the steeplechase really gave us momentum. Running at home helped too."

Cretzmeyer is anxiously awaiting construction of Iowa's new sports complex.

"The new building should help a lot. We've usually done better outdoors than inside. Because we just haven't been able to get enough done inside during the winter," he said.

Installation of a new $50,000 all-weather track, more scholarship money from the University, plus the proposed sports arena, are making Cretzmeyer happier with what he has to work with here.

He has no complaints. If he does, he's not saying anything about them.

He says that differences in the amount of track assistance conference schools give their athletes have made some schools stronger, namely Wisconsin, Michigan and Michigan State. But he isn't letting it worry him. Nor does he think the situation will change.

"Some coaches just don't want a uniform aid rule," he said. "I'm having no trouble."

"I've received more scholarship help here, but that doesn't always make a difference. I got four guys one year and not a one finished school."

Cretzmeyer has awarded five scholarships for the coming season. A sixth tender was offered, but has not been accepted yet.

Scholarships have been awarded to: Bill Michels, Akron, Iowa, hurdler and long jumper; Bruce Pressley, Fort Dodge, hurdler; Phil Wetman, Villisca, pole vaulter; Craig Donath, Lombard, Ill., distance runner; and Dave Eastland, Iowa City, distance runner.

Michels Breaks Reimer's Marks

The sixth tender was offered to a top Indiana prospect, Ken Butts of South Bend. But the boy has still not accepted it.

Cretzmeyer describes Michels as being "a lot like Reimer."

"This kid comes from a little school in northwest Iowa that has little or no facilities. But he broke Reimer's (high school) records in both hurdle events this year."

Wertman is a prize catch. He is one of the finest prep pole vaulters the state has ever turned out. He has already cleared 15 feet.

Cretzmeyer compares Donath to his middle distance star Mondane.

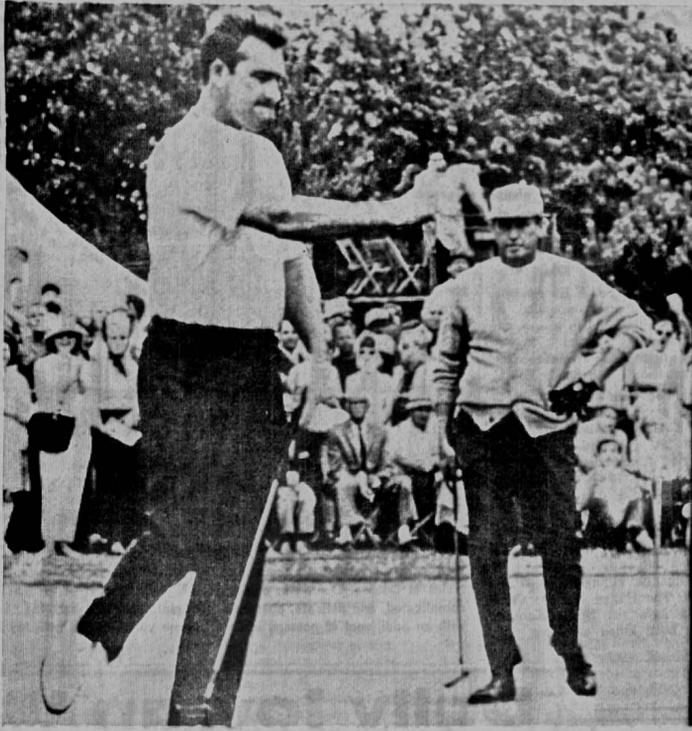

"I've got a guy in Chicago who scouts the area for me," he said. "He spotted Mondane and says this kid (Donath) is a good one."

"Like Mondane, he didn't do that much in high school. But he shows an awful lot of promise."

Iowa was also the Big 10 champ in cross country last year. And Cretzmeyer is really looking forward to this season.

Members of his eight-man team are returning — Wiczorek, the conference champion and four-mile record holder, LaBond, Kitt, Steve Szabo and Frazier. Pete McDonald and Ted Brubacher have graduated.

"We'll be in pretty good shape," said Cretzmeyer. So is the track program here. . . .

Rex Baxter's 66 Tops Golf Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Rex Baxter Jr., who has only one tournament victory to his credit in 10 years as a pro, conquered treacherous winds Thursday to shoot a 34-32-66 and take the first round lead in the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

While his more illustrious opponents were struggling over the 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course, playing longer than usual because of a brisk north wind and recent rains, Baxter dropped six birdie putts, including a pair of 40-footers on successive holes.

The 31-year-old Texan, surprised at his own showing, needed only 26 putts and missed trying the course record by one stroke.

Baxter's only tournament victory came in 1963 when he won the Cajun Classic. He also won the NCAA championship as an amateur in 1957 and was a member of the Walker Cup team last year.

Baxter's brilliant round put him three strokes ahead of the field, of which only five others managed to crack par of 35-35-70.

Bunched at 69 were George Archer 35-34, Billy Martingale 36-33, Jack McGowan 34-35, Bill Collins 36-33 and Randy Glover 36-33.

U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer matched par with 70s.

Following today's second round of the 72-hole tournament which ends Sunday, the field of 124 will be cut to the top 70 professionals and ties. Top prize in the classic is worth $20,000.

Yanks Get Pitcher In Howard Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Klimkowski, 23-year-old right-handed pitcher now with Pittsfield, Mass., in the Eastern League, was sent to the New York Yankees Thursday by the Boston Red Sox as a part of the Elston Howard deal.

Klimkowski, now in his fourth season in pro ball, was immediately turned over to Syracuse, the Yankees' farm in the International League.

Hawkeyes To Host Title Meet

The University of Iowa has been designated as the host of the 59th annual Big 10 tennis championship tournament May 16-18, 1968. Iowa officials have been informed.

Iowa has never been the site of the title event. It will be held on the new courts now being completed west of the Field House. Michigan State is the defending champion of the title.

Scheduling the tennis meet at Iowa means that the Hawks will host two championship events in 1968. The wrestling tournament already has been assigned to Iowa City for March 1 and 2. In 1967 Iowa held the gymnastics and outdoor track meets and won both titles.

Iowa Secondary Has Experience, Desire

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first of six stories about Iowa football candidates by positions prepared by the University Sports Information Service.

A fair amount of experience and large degrees of desire will help University of Iowa defensive backs during the 1967 season.

Although there are only six lettermen on the roster, four of them are major lettermen and three of these have played their positions previously.

Assistant coach Gordon Lee, in charge of the defensive halfbacks and safety men, points to Captain Tony Williams of Davenport as the "tough and developed key man of the outfit."

Williams, a Kinnick scholar and winner of several other awards, is a 182-pound senior who was a defensive regular in 1965, shifted to tailback in 1966 and now is back to his defensive position.

Bilek To Start

"He still has some learning to do under our system, which differs from that of his sophomore year, but he will be a fine defensive halfback," said Lee. "Williams is quick and active, a smart ball player and an excellent open field tackler."

Guy Bilek, a 172-pound native of Brookfield, Ill. and a 1966 letterman will be a defensive right halfback this year. Bilek was a starter in 1966 and fought hard to hold his job in the spring. He has the experience to make the position a solid one and he teams well with Williams.

The third letterman at halfback is Andrew Jackson, 173-pounds, from Des Plaines, Ill., who has been shifted to the new position after a year as defensive end. Jackson will have to learn quickly this fall because he had limited spring drill because of baseball. He was a regular outfielder and the leading hitter on the Iowa team as well as fourth in the Big 10. Jackson has good moves and tackles well.

Wilson Changes Position
Steve Wilson from Rock Island, Ill., won a letter in 1966 as a sophomore for his work as a safety man. A converted quarterback, Wilson has fine reactions and quickness. He was a high jumper on the track team and is able to use his leaping ability on pass defense, although he weighs only 168 pounds and is 6-1. He was the number one safety man at the end of spring drills.

Behind Wilson is Alan Schuette, 175-pound, 6-2, from Staunton, Ill. Lee said that Schuette had a fair spring for a freshman and should develop into a good backup man for Wilson. Schuette, also a baseball player, is a talented punter and place-kicker. Last spring he consistently kicked the ball into the end zone on kicks.

The other defensive halfback is sophomore Chris Hamilton, a 185-pound sophomore from Davenport. He is classed by Lee as a fine athlete who learned quickly in the spring and developed a good "feel" for his position.

Hamilton now ranks behind Bilek at right halfback and will become increasingly valuable as he gains experience.

Error Aids Cub Win
CHICAGO (AP) — A two-base error by John Briggs in the eighth inning paved the way for the tie breaking run Thursday and the Chicago Cubs went on to defeat Philadelphia 3-2, snapping the Phillies' eight-game winning string.

Briggs, dropped Adolfo Phillips' fly leading off the eighth, and the Cub center fielder trotted into second. One out later, Don Kessinger's third hit of the day sent him to third and he rode home on a single by Glenn Beckert.

Most accidents happen within 25 miles of home

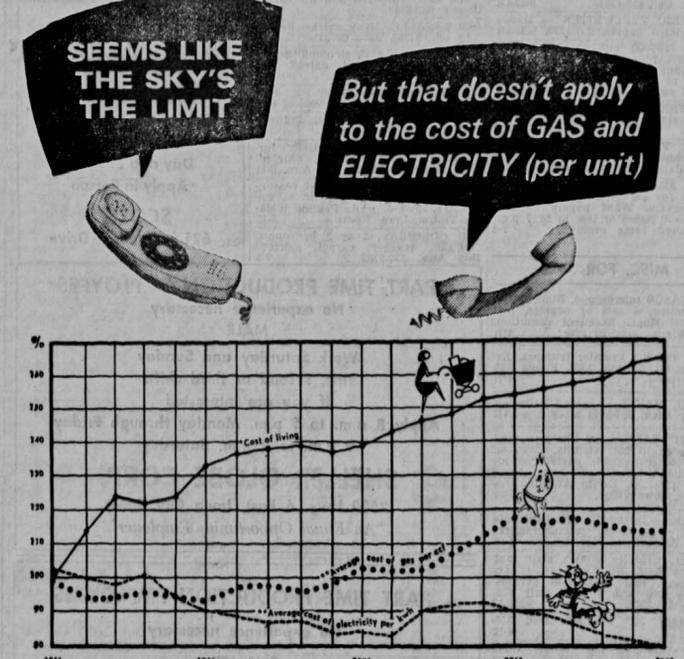

It's a fact. According to the National Safety Council, 4 out of 5 auto accidents happen within 25 miles of home. Happen during those local shopping trips, or while taking the children to school. Happen on the way to work... or the way home. So be smart. Always buckle your seat belt—every time you drive.

Remember, according to the National Safety Council, if everyone had seat belts and buckled them all the time, at least 5,000 lives could be saved each year and serious injuries reduced by one-third.

Always buckle your seat belt

Published to save lives in cooperation with the Iowa Department of Public Safety.

Prices of many basic items in the family budget have more than doubled during the past 20 years — and they are still going up. By contrast, the price of gas and electricity (per cubic foot, therm, or kilowatt hour) has stayed surprisingly low — in spite of ever-increasing costs of materials, operating expenses, and taxes.

Increased usage in the home... on the farm... in industry... and in business is a major factor in holding down the cost of these two vital services.

Other factors are: the development of more efficient facilities and techniques... the use of modern data processing and other improved systems... constant research and development... larger generating units... participation in vast networks of interconnected electric systems and a skilled, as well as dedicated employee organization.

You can depend on this Company in the future, as in the past, to put forth every effort to keep you supplied with plenty of good, dependable gas and electricity — at reasonable cost.

Frazier Chosen Fighter Of Month

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Joe Frazier of Philadelphia was named Fighter of the Month and boosted to the top spot among the heavyweight contenders by Ring Magazine Thursday for his fourth round technical knockout victory over Canada's George Chuvalo.

Editor-publisher Nat Fleischer of the monthly boxing publication still recognizes Cassius Clay as heavyweight champion.

Frazier, ranked third before his bout with Chuvalo, was voted ahead of Ernie Terrell of Chicago and Germany's Karl Mildenberger.

Behind Frazier, in order are Mildenberger; Thad Spencer, San Francisco; Terrell; Patterson, New York; Manuel Ramos, Mexico; Jimmy Williams, Louisville, Ky.; Jerry Quarry, Los Angeles; Oscar Bonavena, Argentina, and Chuvalo.

Ground Breaking Ceremonies Held For Goodwill Building

By NORMA PARKER

Despite an interruption by a train at 11:15 a.m. Thursday, the ground breaking ceremony of Goodwill Industries and Offices went smoothly and as planned.

Speeches by seven people had just been completed when the train went by on the track several hundred yards from the new Goodwill Industries building site on First Avenue two blocks north of Lower Muscatine Road.

After the noise had abated, the shovel was presented and the ground breaking began.

"This is the beginning of what can be and should be a worthwhile rehabilitation center," said Col. Brooks W. Booker Jr., (U.S.A.F.-Ret.) president of the board of directors of the Iowa City Goodwill Industries, in his welcoming address.

Booker is retired professor and head of aerospace studies and is the new associate director of Conferences at the University.

Construction is to begin in a few days and the building is to be completed in December, Booker said.

A formal dedication dinner is planned Jan. 12 in the new building, he said.

"The rapidity with which this planning has come about is amazing," said Mayor William C. Hubbard, one of the guest speakers.

Other speakers included Mrs. Juliet Saxton, head of the Iowa Facilities Division of the State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation; Dr. John C. MacQueen, associate dean of the College of Medicine; Edward L. Kessler, chairman of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors; Maurice D. Schnell, associate professor of pediatrics; Warren Van Eschen, district representative of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation; and Larry Betts, a member of the Goodwill Industries staff.

Missing Girls Found Slain In L.A. Area

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bodies of two little sisters — described as "lovely, happy children that everyone liked" — were discovered Thursday among weeds of a vacant lot in Watts far from their homes.

An autopsy later disclosed the girls, partly nude with scarves twisted around their necks, had been strangled and sexually molested.

Dr. Theodore J. Curphy, Los Angeles County's chief medical examiner, said there was no apparent evidence that the children had been beaten.

Roberta Ann Barili, 6, and Cecilia Renee Barili, 7, had been missing since Wednesday afternoon from their neighborhood in suburban Altadena, 25 miles away.

"It looks like the bodies were placed where they were found, not just dumped," said Lt. Norman Hamilton of the sheriff's homicide squad.

The two daughters of Richard Barili, 38, a purchasing agent, and his wife, Rosalie, lived in a racially mixed neighborhood with their brother, Richard, 8, and sister, Ruth, 2½.

"The neighborhood is full of very nice people and everyone gets along well," Barili told newsmen.

Asked by a newsmen if someone may have taken his daughters in an attempt to start a racial incident, Barili replied: "It's a poor way to do it."

Watts, where the bodies were found, is a predominantly Negro area, scene of bloody rioting in August 1965.

Youth Charged In Auto Accident

Dennis E. Krantz, 17, of 930 Westhampton, Coralville, was charged by police Thursday with driving with defective brakes after hitting a traffic light on the southwest corner of Highway 6 and Rocky Shore Drive.

Also involved in the accident was a car driven by Randy D. Vance, 16, of Rock Island, Ill.

Krantz's car was a total loss, police said. Vance's car received $50 damages, and the traffic light received $350 damages.

3 GIs Killed In 2 Attacks By Koreans

SEOUL (AP) — Three American soldiers were killed and about 16 injured Thursday in two attacks by North Koreans across the demilitarized zone, a U.S. 1st Army spokesman said.

At least one South Korean soldier was reported wounded in the latest incidents in a stepped up Communist campaign of violence along the armistice line between North and South Korea.

The two ambushes brought to 15 the number of Americans reported killed in border clashes since last November. The last previous attack occurred July 16, when about 10 North Koreans overran a U.S. position and killed three Americans.

The Communists have carried out about 110 attacks on South Korean border forces in the past nine months, killing about 80 soldiers. The United Nations Command says 162 North Koreans have been killed or taken prisoner.

WORK TO UNTANGLE a train wreckage began Thursday after the rear-end collision of two express trains at Odense, Denmark, earlier in the day. Workmen used a large crane as they began the complicated, and delicate, operation. Officials said at least nine persons were killed in the crash, with an additional 40 persons injured. Some victims were believed to be still in the wreckage. — AP Wirephoto

Legislature To Be Probed

DES MOINES (AP) — The Legislative Research Committee has agreed to probe some legislative activities, but disagreed on how to go about it.

The proposed inquiry would cover such things as conflict of interest, lobbying and political campaign contributions.

With Senate Majority Leader Andrew Frommelt (D-Dubuque) absent, the committee named Senate Minority Leader Robert Rigger (R-New Hampton) to head the study group.

But some Democrats apparently had second thoughts about having a Republican head the potentially controversial subcommittee.

At a committee meeting Wednesday, Frommelt threatened that Democrats would walk out and leave the committee without a quorum if it went ahead immediately with plans to complete formation of the study group. Action was delayed, at least until another meeting later this month.

The original plan was to have 10 legislators and 12 other citizens on the study group.
