Forecast

IOWA — Variable cloudiness and a chance of occasional showers and thunderstorms mostly in the east and south today and tonight. Cooler in the east today with highs in the 60s.

Students Begin To Trickle Back As Big Day Nears

The trickle of students coming into Iowa City this week will reach flood stage by Wednesday, Registration Day.

Some 18,800 students are expected to begin classes Sept. 25. The official opening of the 1967-68 academic year will be at 8:45 a.m. that day on the east steps of Old Capitol when Pres. Howard R. Bowen presides at the annual Induction Ceremony.

Classes scheduled for the 8:30 a.m. to 9:20 a.m. period that Monday will not meet so that all students and faculty may attend the ceremony.

Students arriving on campus this week include sorority and fraternity members, who are holding rush parties for one thousand prospective members of their groups; about 100 residence-hall advisers, who are attending a workshop in preparation for their duties this year, and many others who are looking for work, housing or a chance to get settled before schedules get too hectic.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Field House, and continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. next Thursday and Friday.

Academic orientation meetings for transfer and graduate students and for freshmen who did not participate in summer orientation and registration programs will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. A social hour for the new students will begin at 9 p.m. in the Union.

The Hawkeyes will begin their 1967 season at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 23 against the Horned Toads of Texas Christian University in the stadium.

Bowen will address all new students, including freshmen who took advantage of the summer orientation program, at a 7 p.m. mass meeting in the Field House Sept. 24. This meeting will bring the 2,600 freshmen together as a group for the only time until they are graduated in June of 1971.

Following the meeting, the students will split into small groups for visits to homes of 150 faculty and staff members.

A meeting of some 350 new members of the Honors Program will be held at 4 p.m. Sept. 25 in Shambaugh Auditorium, followed by a reception in the Union.

Other orientation activities scheduled for new students are an activities carnival, Sept. 29 in the Union; a recreation night, Sept. 30 in the Field House; church night, Oct. 1 in the various church student centers in Iowa City and a dance sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, Oct. 7 in the Union.

Infantrymen Hit Guerrilla Forces

SAIGON (Thursday) — American infantrymen clashed with the Communists in a fitful, 11-hour running battle Wednesday in the muddy Mekong delta and killed 69 of them, the U.S. Command reported today.

Far to the north, U.S. B52 bombers hit twice before dawn today inside the so-called demilitarized zone. They poured 150 tons of bombs on jungle gunpits from which the North Vietnamese have been launching heavy artillery and mortar fire on U.S. Marine positions.

Bad weather over North Vietnam limited air strikes for the second consecutive day.

In the delta fighting, about 40 miles south of Saigon, troops of the 9th U.S. Infantry Division encountered several small guerrilla units in the clashes that cost the Americans seven dead and 21 wounded.

The U.S. Command said the infantrymen first made contact about noon Wednesday during a wide sweep of the delta rice lands. They called in artillery and air strikes throughout the day to alternate with infantry thrusts.

University Coed Faces Charge Of Possessing Marijuana; 3 Cleared

By SALLY ALT
Assistant News Editor

A charge of possession of marijuana was filed against a University coed Wednesday by Iowa City detectives.

The girl, Luth M. Roser, A2, Williamsburg, the daughter of the Rev. Sherwood Roser, appeared in Iowa City Police Court Wednesday morning. Formal arraignment is scheduled for next Wednesday.

Police detective Sgt. Donald Strand told The Daily Iowan that marijuana was found in a search of the girl's apartment at 411 E. Market St. on Aug. 23. Strand said the search was made on the basis of evidence given the police by an informant. He refused to disclose how much marijuana was found.

Miss Roser shared the apartment with three other girls, all of whom have been University students. Some of the girls were present during the search, but Miss Roser was not.

Strand said that the filing of charges was delayed until the degree of involvement of the other girls could be determined. He said that the detectives had concluded that the other girls were not involved.

Miss Roser's attorney, Jerry Ralph of Des Moines, told the DI Wednesday night that she planned to plead innocent to the charge.

"The detectives found a substance which they believe to be marijuana. Miss Roser has indicated that she had no knowledge of its presence," Ralph said.

Miss Roser could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.

Strand said it was the first narcotics charge in Iowa City since last Sept. 30. Robert W. Jaesen, Johnson County attorney, said the case would be presented to the Johnson County Grand Jury. While medically classified as a hallucinogen, marijuana is legally classified as a narcotic.

Possession of marijuana is punishable in Iowa by imprisonment from two to five years, a fine of up to $2,000, or both.

Border Clash Persists

NEW DELHI (AP) — Forces of India and China fought patrol clashes and artillery duels Wednesday for the third day on the craggy Tibet-Sikkim border. Each side claimed the other ignored a cease-fire proposed by India Tuesday.

The Indian Defense Ministry said patrols clashed at Nathu Pass on the Sikkimese side of the border after a 12-hour lull. A Chinese barrage of mortar and artillery fire followed for three hours, a spokesman said, and firing went on intermittently after that.

India said China had ignored its proposed cease-fire. The Chinese news agency called the Indian proposal "a gross deception" and charged that Indian troops heavily bombarded the Chinese side of the border. A dispatch from Lhasa, capital of Chinese-occupied Tibet, said the Indians "frantically extended their fire into China's rear areas in the vicinity of the Kachuek monastery, causing losses in life and property of local inhabitants."

Indian government sources indicated the Indian death toll since fighting broke out Monday had risen to 20. The Chinese said 36 of their border guards were killed or wounded in the first two days of fighting.

The 14,000-foot Nathu Pass lies about 20 miles from Gangtok, capital of Sikkim. A tiny country with an armed force of 300 palace guards, Sikkim depends upon India for its defense. R. N. Haldipur, chief administrative officer in Sikkim, said in Gangtok that the country's civil defense organization was mobilized Wednesday.

The Defense Ministry said a noon Peking radio broadcast in English reported there was "not the slightest sign of Indian troops stopping their provocation. Events are still developing."

India and China accuse each other of provoking the fighting, the worst since Chinese soldiers invaded India's mountainous frontiers in 1962 in a dispute over boundaries. Indian frontier forces were badly beaten before the Chinese withdrew.

Groppi Defended By Archbishop

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Milwaukee, asked by white demonstrators to silence the priest who has guided open housing demonstrators for 16 consecutive days in the city, declared Wednesday that "as Christians we favor the same just cause."

About 650 youth white persons marched from the South Side to archdiocesan headquarters Tuesday night to demand that the church silence or otherwise discipline the Rev. James E. Groppi, white adviser to the militant Milwaukee Youth Council of the NAACP.

The Most Rev. William E. Cousins, spiritual leader of 700,000 Roman Catholics, said in an unprecedented editorial in the weekly Catholic Herald Citizen that "many persons are being sidetracked into a hate campaign against one man while the real problems of Milwaukee Negroes are going unsolved."

The archbishop's editorial, first such statement to be directed to Catholics in the newspaper's 97-year history, was prepared before the march to his residence. But copies of his views were distributed to newsmen in the form of a statement Wednesday.

"Do I agree with everything that Father Groppi has said and done?" the prelate wrote. "I certainly do not."

But, he added, "We are being diverted by emotion and mob psychology into fighting a straw figure while the real enemy goes unscathed."

The march to the archbishop's residence formed only a portion of city-wide activity on the 16th night of the demonstrations.

The white group marched from the South Side, then returned to join a crowd of some 5,000 sympathizers while 650 civil rights marchers were rallying at St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church in the Inner Core.

Teachers Strike Ends In Florida; Hope Elsewhere

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A week-long teachers strike in Broward County, Fla. ended Wednesday, and optimistic notes were sounded in negotiations to settle teacher walkouts that have crippled the giant New York and Detroit school systems.

But in Houston, Tex., Providence, R.I., and 18 Michigan counties, school disputes dragged on with no end in sight.

And in New York, the teachers' union, while talking hopefully of negotiations, continued to defy the courts.

Working against the ultimatum of a court injunction to reopen schools, Broward County teachers and school board officials accepted a compromise salary offer that would boost starting pay to $5,600. The teachers had asked $5,650 and turned down a school board offer of $5,508.

The county's 90,000 public school youngsters were told to report to class this morning after both sides announced a compromise had been worked out in conference with Circuit Court Judge L. Clayton Nance, who had issued the ultimatum.

In New York, behind the scenes negotiations were reported under way to end a three-day walkout that has disrupted classes for the city's 1.1 million public school youngsters.

At one point, Albert Shanker, president of the striking 49,000-member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers, said "something may happen soon."

However, a State Supreme Court Justice, after a vain effort at peacemaking, issued a temporary injunction prohibiting a continuation of the strike. The union ignored another antistrike order when it launched the walkout Monday — and a union leader said this one would be defied also.

In Detroit, negotiators for the city's 11,000 striking teachers and the Board of Education were looking to a two-year contract as a possible solution to the dispute that has kept 300,000 youngsters out of classes since last Wednesday.

But Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers, warned: "Any two-year contract would have to be fair to both sides."

Observers believed a two-year contract would give the school board time to keep its promises to voters for new classrooms, and grant teachers a pay hike in two steps.

In Michigan, teachers in three school districts were working under court injunction. In Flint's Beecher district, where a similar order was being sought, 220 teachers threatened to resign en masse. The Beecher school board, which had planned to seek an injunction, ordered any action withheld until today.

Political Arena Likely To Inherit Renewal Dispute

See Related Story Page 3.

As the files on the project closed shut Wednesday at the Civic Center, the urban renewal controversy appeared headed for the political arena.

City Planning and Renewal Director Barry D. Lundberg said Wednesday that the federal government would be notified that a court ruling issued Tuesday had halted City Council action on the proposed $16 million downtown renewal project.

Meanwhile there was speculation that urban renewal would be an issue in November's council election.

A statement issued by Citizens for a Better Iowa City Wednesday took a neutral stand on the controversy, noting that the businessmen who sought to halt the project were exercising a "cherished right." The statement also expressed "respect and appreciation" for the council.

Special Assistant City Atty. William Meardon said Wednesday that he had received permission from Johnson County District Judge Clair E. Hamilton to allow the council to pay existing renewal bills.

Hamilton was the judge who issued a temporary injunction Tuesday which prevents Mayor William C. Hubbard and Councilmen Richard W. Burger, Robert H. Lind Sr. and Loren L. Hickerson from taking further action on renewal matters.

The injunction was sought by 20 Iowa City businessmen and property owners who said the councilmen had a financial interest in the renewal program.

Permission to pay existing bills means that Hubbard and Burger, whose council terms expire this year, may cast their last votes on renewal matters. The bills amount to $23,420 and must be approved by the council.

Meardon said he also had permission from the judge to use renewal funds to appeal the injunction. Hubbard has said the case will be appealed to the Iowa Supreme Court, but it is estimated that it could be at least next January before the case comes up.

ENROUTE TO JAIL, Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee Chairman H. Rap Brown was heavily guarded Wednesday while entering a car in Alexandria, Va., for a trip to jail in Richmond. Brown was ordered held in custody after being granted a postponement of extradition to Maryland where he is wanted on charges of inciting to riot and inciting to arson.

—Buildup Brings Employment—

Viet War Creates Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The escalation of the Vietnamese war created more than one million U.S. jobs in the past two years, the Labor Department said Wednesday in the first such comprehensive report since the war began.

The sharp rise in employment due to the military buildup amounted to some 23 per cent of the total increase of more than four million jobs in the U.S. economy since 1965, the report said.

A further expansion of war work could create shortages of skilled workers of "considerable magnitude," said a companion report.

Defense work now accounts for 5.2 per cent of the nation's total civilian employment, up from 3.9 per cent two years ago.

But "this should not be interpreted to mean that one million jobs would be lost if the conflict in Vietnam were to end," said Richard P. Oliver of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

A switch of workers to production of civilian goods, the timing of cuts in military expenditures and federal manpower policies would cushion a drop in war work if the conflict ended, Oliver said in the report published in the Monthly Labor Review.

The report said civilian jobs in defense work rose from about 3 million to 4.1

million the past two years, with sharpest increases in the weapons, aircraft and communications equipment industries.

During the same period, Oliver said, the number of military personnel rose from 2.7 million to 3.4 million.

Thus, the total of civilians and military personnel whose jobs stem from the Vietnam war and other defense commitments totals about 7.5 million Americans — nearly 10 per cent of the total labor force.

Engineers In Demand

In a companion report, the bureau's mobilization expert, Max A. Rutzick, said about 18 per cent of all the nation's engineers are in defense work and some 22 per cent of electrical and electronic technicians. War work also takes up 14 per cent of all draftsmen, he said.

Oliver said the two-year Vietnam buildup created no general labor shortages, "although temporary problems did exist in some cases."

Rutzick said defense workers are more skilled than U.S. workers as a whole and "a continued climb in demand could create shortages of considerable magnitude among these workers who require both special aptitudes and lengthy training."

Noting that defense spending rose from some $48 billion in 1965 to about $70 billion this year, Oliver said "expenditures of this magnitude, of course, have a major effect on employment."

Brown Wrapped Away By Virginia Authorities

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Black power firebrand H. Rap Brown was jailed Wednesday as his attorneys temporarily blocked his extradition to Maryland but failed in two bids to keep him free on bond.

Brown was whisked by auto to the Richmond city jail, 100 miles south of Alexandria, by state troopers in what his attorney, Philip J. Hirschkop, called a "legal kidnapping."

Hirschkop said he had been assured by Alexandria authorities Brown would be held at the city jail here but then was told after the switch that officials there felt their facilities and personnel are inadequate for the task.

The transfer to Richmond came after Hirschkop and William M. Kunstler, a New York lawyer also representing Brown, won at least a 20-day delay in Brown's extradition to Cambridge, Md., where he faces two felony charges growing out of a July 24 riot.

Hearing Scheduled

Corporation Court Judge Franklin P. Backus set Oct. 3 for a hearing here on a writ of habeas corpus by Brown's attorneys seeking to permanently block his extradition on grounds he could not obtain a fair trial in Maryland.

Brown, 23, chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, is charged in Maryland with inciting to riot and inciting to arson. Each carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

The rioting in Cambridge, which resulted in the burning of a school and several other buildings, began shortly after Brown addressed a large Negro crowd.

At Richmond, after being processed and dressed in prison khaki, Brown told reporters "I might be in here until I break out. When? I don't disclose my plans to the enemy."

'Can't Get Justice'

Brown argued that everything connected with the charges against him, his arrest and his incarceration supported his feeling "the black man can't get justice in the United States." He contended the Alexandria court hearing "was a kangaroo court proceeding."

He contended he was whisked from Alexandria to Richmond to get him away from the Washington metropolitan area — Alexandria being a suburb of the national capital.

"They anticipated black people from Washington would come over and protest my arrest," he said. "So it was more advantageous to them to put me out of communication."

When Brown arrived at the Richmond jail he complained because he wasn't allowed to make a phone call. City Sgt. Frank Cavado said a desk officer would make the call for him if he wished.

Brown turned down the offer, saying "I'm perfectly able to dial a phone."

Summer jobs called useful

Released To The Daily Iowan
Did you waste another summer? The question is not a facetious one. It is posed by a man with more than 40 years of experience in guiding the careers of America's top business executives, Lon D. Barton, president of Cadillac Associates Inc., Chicago and Los Angeles.

"Whether we like to think about it or not, my son's career and yours will be successful to the degree that he is able to zero in on a particular area of interest and learn all he can about it in the shortest possible time. It is part of the information gap, as our counselors call it—and summer work is a critical link in our young men gaining that knowledge," Barton explains.

Barton is fully aware that there are simply not enough jobs to go around, but he feels that almost any job is better than the "goof-off" which he says so many high school and college students have come to feel is their right during the summer.

"Don't 'put down' a job on a milk truck or work on a construction gang," he says. "In both cases it gives students an opportunity to learn economics at the grass roots in a fashion they simply can't learn in high school or college."

While he has been a frequent critic of youthful dreams of glory as regarding executive status, Barton refuses, in fairness, to level all the blame for this condition on our young men.

"Industry itself must share the blame for the alienation that has grown up between schools and the business community. On the one hand industry desperately needs the stimulation of new blood, yet it has done little to combat the latent hostility one finds on so many campuses."

"The informational gap starts here. Industry must get through to our young men to show them the attractiveness of a business career, educate them in terms of their own particular corporations through a massive institutional advertising and public relations program," he said.

Barton is not advocating a return to child labor, but industry is placing an increasingly high premium on basic intelligence—intelligence which simply can't be garnered in the classroom. He feels that compensated employment where there is time for the young man to absorb the knowledge around him is a "must" for future career executives and a procedure that might well be started early in high school.

"If it would accomplish nothing else, consistent summer jobs would serve to focus the minds of our young men on career objectives, give them a chance to think through the path or paths they wish to follow and eliminate so much of the aimless wandering that is so common now the first two years of college."

"Think how marvelous it would be if most of our young men knew the careers they wished to pursue by the time they were juniors in high school," he said, wistfully.

Barton noted that the all too common procedure is for young men, floundering in the pressure tank of passing courses to maintain their average finally having to come up with a yes or no decision on careers. The frequent result is panic.

"The information available to them simply can't be current. It is a well known fact that industrial research is at least 18 months ahead of the reporting in the trade press. Books reporting on this research are at least 18 months behind the trade press and, somewhere, out in this confusing arena is the teacher-vocational counselor, himself totally incapable of absorbing all of the new data and passing it along to his students and hampered by a jealous hostility to the business community."

"Let's pour one other element into this confusing decision-making situation—the industrial recruiters swarming the campuses, using all kinds of pressure tactics to buy the best brains they can find—with none of the preconditioning, educational program that might have helped them in their quest for management revitalization. Most of their recruiting is ineffective and confusing. It isn't much wonder that it takes three to five years for the 'boy wonders' they manage to hire to become productive for the corporation they join," Barton explained.

Barton hopes that when computers are more completely adapted to our learning processes, some of the informational lag can be eliminated. He feels that it is an industrial tragedy that so much of the vital information that would be so helpful to our young men in their decision making is still five years away on the transmission belts.

"It is a heartening thing to find that so much research is being devoted to cutting through this informational gap. But it is up to our young men to make the first steps in seeking out this information and then training themselves to absorb it. The machines can't do all of the work for them," he noted.

Barton also sees two distant areas where more work and cooperation is needed. Business schools with work semesters have proved their worth to both student, industry and the schools themselves. This approach should be encouraged, but if it is against the total policy of universities or is not possible, then some positive approach must be initiated within the curricula and among the teachers themselves in terms of a new orientation to the business community.

The hostility toward business which is still so prevalent must be abolished and firm steps taken for a partnership in educating our young men. This same approach must be taken by the federal government. While he is not in favor of government hand-outs, Barton feels that the federal government could be much more sympathetic to the business community in helping in this educational process than it has been in the past.

Too often he finds the federal government in direct competition with private industry, doing its best to abort or fragment such efforts at industry cooperation. In the long run this is extremely short sighted. It is axiomatic that the better informed our executives are, the greater the return for the entire government.

Finally though, it is the student himself who must call the turn. America's colleges and universities are now beckoning our young men again.

Some universities seen as neglecting disabled

WASHINGTON — When the Nation's college students return to school this month, many of those who have physical handicaps will be at an unnecessary disadvantage in getting a college education, the Administrator of Social and Rehabilitation Service, Mary E. Switzer, says.

Miss Switzer headed the Federal-State program of vocational rehabilitation for 17 years before being named on August 15 to the new position in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In an article in the July-August issue of the Rehabilitation Record, she mentioned some of the American colleges and universities which have outstanding programs for disabled students but said that, in general, the present arrangements for the education of the Nation's seriously handicapped youth left much to be desired.

Miss Switzer said that students in wheelchairs or on crutches cannot even enter the buildings on some campuses because of high curbs, steep steps and heavy doors. Inside the building, they cannot drink from the water fountains or use the restrooms.

"It is unreasonable," she said, "for a handicapped student to have to go 400 miles away to school simply because a nearby college continues to have these unnecessary architectural barriers."

"We have in many places the rather ridiculous situation in which a severely handicapped young person can be enrolled and complete his college work—but then cannot be hired by the university. The problem is multiplied by the same outmoded hiring standards in large numbers said.

She urged college administrators to give more attention to making higher education a milestone in the lives of promising young people whose promise must not be lost in the shadows of a disability.

SDS active at NSA meeting

By DAVID L. AIKEN
Collegiate Press Service

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Efforts by members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) to persuade delegates to the National Student Association (NSA) Congress to disband their organization did not succeed, but did serve to highlight the differences in "liberal" and "radical" tactics for educational and social reform.

The SDS members represented the "radical" extreme in the motley variety of political outlooks at the Congress. They came to organize their own "counter-Congress," drawing away such speakers as Andrew Kopkind and James Ridgeway of the New Republic from NSA programs to speak at SDS-sponsored programs instead.

They distrusted claims that NSA had completely purged itself of all ties with the CIA. Even if there were no ties with the CIA, they felt, NSA was still a "government front" because it took money from other government agencies like the Office of Economic Opportunity and had no real autonomy with which to challenge the policies of the government.

Many of the NSA staff members sounded just as radical as most of the SDS people, but wanted to work within the association rather than outside it.

There was Mike Vozick, for example, upbraiding James Ridgeway for not knowing about NSA's efforts to help set up experimental colleges to serve as "counter-institutions" to big, impersonal universities. Vozick, who said he was one of the students who helped found SDS (itself originally an outgrowth of the Liberal Study Group formed at NSA Congresses), pointed out that NSA had taken a leaf from the radicals' book by promoting these free universities and experimental colleges.

There, too, was Al Milano, running a seminar on draft resistance at the Congress, who was interested in finding ways for NSA to become involved in counseling men who were "up tight" about the draft—the same thing SDS is doing, he said, but presumably reaching students on campuses where SDS has no chapters.

Even Gene Groves, last year's president, talked about how his predecessors "sellout" to the CIA was just another example of the powerlessness of students and other oppressed segments of society. A sizeable portion of the rank-and-file delegates—perhaps about 20 per cent—seemed to think along these same radical lines about the need for fundamental shaking up in "the system," even though they chose to do their shaking in NSA rather than SDS.

Most of the delegates, however, did not seem particularly concerned with issues much broader than gaining concessions on social rules or perhaps curriculum matters from the administrations on their own campuses. They regarded the CIA link as past history and did not seem particularly interested in hearing it reshaped.

These were the moderates, who looked for ways to improve the NSA mechanism, such as structural changes "to guarantee greater cohesion between individual campuses and the national office." They were not as interested in the kind of drastic separation of NSA into a "union" structure alongside a research and services agency, which even newly-elected president Ed Schwartz was backing as a long-term goal.

Finally, there were the out-and-out liberals and the out-and-out conservatives. Both these groups were at the Congress to engage in the annual legislative games of seeing who can put through a liberal resolution without having it emasculated by the conservatives.

They had less opportunity to engage in this sort of outwitting than usual, since this year's national staff had designed the Congress for more informal discussion of substantive issues. They were almost deprived of any legislation at all to fight about when a proposal was made to pass only program mandates, not "declaration and principle" statements. This was beaten down, but the support it attracted showed that NSA is moving away from its past role as passer of resolutions to one of more active involvement in social and educational problems.

No solution seems in sight for the "liberal-versus-radical" hangup, however. The liberals followed the lead of those who are organizing an effort to "dump LBJ" through the Democratic primaries. The radicals are more interested in building an independent political action movement outside the two-party system.

A great deal of common ground is found between the two groups in their ideas about what is wrong with American society. What to do about it is the problem, and "frustration" seemed to be the word on the lips of a lot of people in College Park last month.

As one delegate wrote in one of the newsletters: "There is no agreement—hardly even a community of sympathies—about what will work, or even about why we should work."

130 more join in city walkout

DES MOINES — A group of 130 civil service employees joined the six-day walkout of Des Moines city employees Wednesday, leaving city hall desks empty.

Robert Boos, president of the Municipal Civil Service Employees Association said 200 association members voted overwhelmingly at a meeting Tuesday night to join the work stoppage in support of demands for a bigger pay boost than the City Council has offered.

Officials said most of the 1,023 Des Moines civil service employees did not belong to the association.

More than 700 other city employees have been off their jobs since last Thursday in the wage dispute, cutting off all city services except police and fire protection.

The City Council has offered the workers a pay increase of 260 a year. They have vowed to hold out for $300 annually.

Many of the civil service workers who stayed away Wednesday were the clerks and secretaries. Several of them huddled under umbrellas in a parking lot across from City Hall while other employees braved a drizzling rain to picket the building.

Mayor George Whitmer said any strike by the Civil Service Association would be illegal. A state law says civil service workers are subject to discharge if they fail to perform their duties.

A hearing is scheduled in Polk County District Court Friday on the city's petition for an injunction to order the employees back to work.

Police started fueling patrol cars at privately owned service stations instead of the city garage. Police Chief Vernon Douglas said service at the city garage, with only supervisory employees working, had been "so spasmodic we can't depend on it."

Cigaret rule appealed

RICHMOND, Va. — The broadcasting industry Wednesday asked a federal appeals court to shelve an order of the Federal Communications Commission requiring the broadcasters and tobacco interests to supply time for antismoking announcements.

The National Association of Broadcasters and a West Virginia television station made the request to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court pending a judicial review of the FCC order. It asked the court to make such a review.

Court action was asked in the wake of the FCC's refusal Friday to reconsider its 6 to 0 decision that air time—free if necessary—should be made available for cigarette commercials.

The FCC ruling was an extension of its "fairness doctrine" on controversial issues.

Bird in a China shop

EAST LONDON, South Africa — "That was an expensive visit," sighed a jewel shop owner here surveying the damage caused by a pigeon which flew into his shop.

"It flew in like a bullet," jeweler J. Wolk said.

Efforts were made to entice the bird with food but it panicked and flew into a lamp costing $77.

"Fortunately one of the assistants caught the lamp as it fell, but it then flew into vases which crashed to the floor," said Wolk.

For 30 minutes Wolk and eight employees tried to chase the bird out of the shop. Eventually he sent for a pellet gun and a customer shot the bird.

Damage estimate: $88.

India gets more U.S. wheat

WASHINGTON — President Johnson released Friday another one million tons of American wheat to combat the threat of starvation in India.

This brings the total made available so far to 2.5 million tons, and another 500,000 tons have been authorized.

Johnson told reporters it would be determined at a later date whether the additional 500,000 tons could be made available. He said that would depend on such factors as the extent to which other nations match U.S. donations.

Today on WSUI

Rockefeller Lacks 'Ambition' To Run

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York says he has passed a psychological turning point in his life and now is totally uninterested in striving for the Republican nomination for president in 1968.

"Something happens in life and you lose ambition because you have a sense of fulfillment," Rockefeller said in an interview. "I have no ambition — no inner drive — to get in this thing again."

He said he considers his reelection as governor in 1966 a "climax" of all his political desires and he repeated the term, "fulfillment," several times during the conversation.

Rockefeller supports Gov. George Romney of Michigan for the GOP nomination.

Last week, Romney drew intense criticism for his statement that he had changed his position on the war in Vietnam because American diplomatic and military officers there had "brainwashed" him.

Rockefeller Endorsed
In the ensuing furor, the Detroit News withdrew its support for Romney's candidacy and said in an editorial:

"... It is time for George Romney to turn over the wheel of his handwagon to Nelson Rockefeller who did so much to create it and who, in recent weeks, has been responsible for any forward motion it has achieved."

Similarly, the New York Times praised Rockefeller's record in domestic and foreign affairs and said, "Logically, he would seem to be his party's strongest candidate."

Rockefeller said he was grateful for such expressions but that they in no way change his position. "I'm just not going to be a candidate," he said.

Of the Romney incident, he said: "It's too early to tell the effect of this thing. He has taken the offensive. He is bringing home to the American people the importance... of knowing all the facts. It's conceivable that he can turn this liability into an asset."

Support To Continue
"I will continue to support Romney," Rockefeller said he has never been so happy and relaxed as he is now. He looks it. Unquestionably, he has mellowed in the past year.

In part, he said, this explains his disinclination to make another try, it would be his third for the Republican nomination. Rockefeller said: "There are things that happen inside. I'm not a psychiatrist or a psychologist. I can't analyze it for you exactly. But I just don't have the ambition or the need or inner drive, or whatever the word is, to get in again.

"It's not an intellectual thing. I'm not doing this because of any fear or soreness. I achieved a satisfaction in the last gubernatorial election that meant everything to me. I've never been happier or more relaxed or getting more enjoyment or satisfaction out of what I'm doing now."

The 1966 campaign in New

GOV. NELSON ROCKEFELLER No Longer A Candidate

York was a searing experience for the governor. It severely taxed his physical and emotional resources.

Served Three Presidents

He pointed out that in 25 years he had served three presidents. "I've been close enough to the presidency to know the heartache and loneliness behind the glitter and glamor. I understand the problems of the country and the responsibilities of the President. But other people are seeking the nomination, I'm not."

Suppose his party should draft him?

"I'm not convinced that these things happen," he said. He was reminded that Adlai E. Stevenson was persuaded to accept the Democratic nomination in 1952, after he had said emphatically and frequently that he didn't want it.

Rockefeller shrugged, smiled and said, "Maybe, but history doesn't always repeat itself."

Doesn't Want To Be "Son"

In some states, Rockefeller's name could be entered in presidential preference primaries without his consent. "If that should happen," he said, "I will take whatever action is necessary to remove my name." He was asked whether he might go to the Republican nominating convention as a "favorite son."

"I would as a last resort," the governor said, "but I hope it won't eventuate. It's a technical thing, a means of holding the delegation together. But it will not be evidence of any weakening on my present position. I just hope it won't be necessary."

Politicians and political observers have expressed skepticism at times about Rockefeller's sincerity in saying he will not enter the race.

It has been suggested that he is engaged in an intricate set of political maneuvers designed to win the nomination.

He grinned and said he knew this.

"What I'm doing is too simple," he said. "The press has never understood or believed what I say. They think there must be something complicated behind it, but there isn't."

Coralville OK Granted For Construction

CORALVILLE — The City Council approved construction permits for a small restaurant and three other buildings at its Tuesday night meeting.

The restaurant and a retail facility will be housed in a $70,000 building on the west side of First Avenue immediately south of Clear Creek. The building is to be constructed by Streb Construction Co., 703 Benton Ct., Iowa City.

Also approved were a $15,000 warehouse addition to Robinson's Furniture on Highway 6 West and a utility building on Larry McCabe's property on the north edge of the city. The Triple-A Leasing Co. received permission to move two storage buildings into property on Highway 6 West.

A public hearing on the proposed rezoning of a triangular piece of property between Highway 6 and new Highway 6 from agricultural to commercial was set for the regular council meeting Sept. 26.

The rezoning was requested by Lantern Park, Inc. and recommended by the Coralville Planning and Zoning Commission.

Civic Group Lauds Council's 'Integrity'

Citizens for a Better Iowa City issued a statement Wednesday expressing "respect and appreciation for the services and integrity" of the City Council.

The group, organized last October as a discussion organization, is headed by the Rev. Roy Wingate, pastor of Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, and Simeon Strauss, an officer of Capital Oil Co.

The group's steering committee said that urban renewal advocates and opponents "desire the final good of our city."

"The right of given citizens to oppose a program supported by their city government is to be cherished," the statement said. "That this opposition be exercised according to due process of law is to be applauded."

"When the law by technicality calls in question the integrity of elected public servants, it is the responsibility of the general citizenry to affirm anew our faith in our democratic system, our respect for the due process of law and our appreciation of our elected officials.

"The Citizens Committee re-emphasizes the principle that representative government is dependent upon public service by citizens, and public trust and support for those who serve," the statement continued.

"At this time, Iowa Citizens should maintain confidence as well as interested concern until the legal right of representative government to make urban renewal decisions is determined by due process of law."

'Brain-Twisters' Whip Up Batch Of Prediction Woes For College Football Seer

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's like coming out of the starting gate and running smack into a concrete wall — this opening week for the college football seer.

If UCLA — Tennessee isn't enough in itself to bring a bloody nose, you have Southern Methodist-Texas A&M, Florida State-Houston, Baylor-Colorado and Nebraska-Washington, all brain-twisters.

Starting with a perfect 1,000 record, we plunge into the assignment fearlessly:

Friday Night
Houston 16, Florida State 13; Baylor 20, Texas A&M 14; Southern California 23, Washington State 7; Sophomore Quarterback Mike Holmren makes a dazzling debut behind the Trojans' beefy line.

Hawks Finish 2-A-Day Drills With 30-Minute Scrimmage

Iowa's football team closed its last regular twice-a-day workout schedule Wednesday with a 30-minute full contact scrimmage. Head Coach Ray Nagel was impressed by the work of the defensive unit.

"The defense showed very good improvement, especially the pass defense," said Nagel, who had special praise for the work of end Pete Paquette, tackle Bill Beville and Duane Grant and guards Greg Allison and John Hendricks.

Beville, a 6-3, 215-pound sophomore from Cedar Rapids, and Grant, a 6-4, 223-pound junior from St. Cloud, Minn., have been moved into the No. 1 defensive team in place of John Evenden and John Diehl, who have been hampered by injuries in recent practice sessions.

Nagel also was impressed with the running of sophomore fullback Tim Sullivan, who has been running with the No. 1 offense while Cory Patterson has been sidelined with a pulled hamstring muscle.

Veteran Bob Anderson drilled on place kicking out-of-bounds at Wednesday's scrimmage. Nagel is still experimenting in an attempt to find an answer to the new college punting rule.

Wednesday was also the first day of practice for Iowa's freshman team, which includes 23 players on scholarship and three walk-ons. More candidates are expected to report when school begins.

The freshmen went through light drills with coach Ted Lawrence instructing them on the Iowa "winning" with split end. The freshmen also took timings on 50-yard sprints. The freshmen also took timings are:

THE FRESHMEN
Louis Age, New Orleans, La. tackle, 225, 6-4

Native Diver Succumbs After Attack Of Colic

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Native Diver, California's famed "black horse" who just recently joined the turf's select millionaires' club, is dead.

The 8-year-old gelding succumbed from the colic early Wednesday after being rushed from Bay Meadows race track near San Francisco to the University of California at Davis' veterinary facility.

The Diver, who really was a deep brown shade, was stricken at Bay Meadows after being vanned from the Del Mar Turf Club in Southern California Tuesday.

News cameramen had taken pictures of the Diver upon his arrival at Bay Meadows where he was to have run Sept. 23 in the Leland Stanford Handicap. A luxury van rushed him to Davis.

A twisted intestine brought on by the colic sent a fatal toxin into the bloodstream.

Howe Signs Detroit Pact

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe, a 39-year-old hockey superstar slightly greying at the temples and admitting he is pushing his luck, signed a contract Wednesday for his 22nd season with the Detroit Red Wings.

Howe, who has set more records than any other player in the National Hockey League, increased the longevity mark he already holds. No other player in league history has played more than 20 years.

Described by rivals as the greatest hockey player of all time, Howe reportedly agreed to a $100,000, salary- and bonus package over the next two years.

Twins Tie Boston For Lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Chance came out of the bullpen in the ninth inning Wednesday night and saved a victory for the faltering Jim Kaat as Minnesota beat Washington 3-2 and remained tied for the American League lead.

The Twins are tied for first place with Boston, which won an afternoon game from Kansas City 4-2.

Kaat had shut the Senators out on six hits through the first eight innings, but singles by Frank Howard and Paul Casanova and a double by Fred Valentine in the ninth cut the Twins' lead to 3-1 with none out.

Tony Oliva left the game after crashing into the wall in right attempting to catch Valentine's double.

Chance then came in from the bullpen for his second relief job of the season.

Clemente Blames Players For Pirates' Poor Showing

SAN JUAN (AP) — Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, the 1967 National League batting leader and the circuit's Most Valuable Player last season, blamed some of his teammates Wednesday for the unexpectedly poor showing of the Pirates this year.

In a taped interview on a San Juan radio station, Clemente said several of his teammates are concerned only with the money they earn from playing baseball and forget about responsibilities to the club and the Pirates' fans.

He did not name any players.

The veteran outfielder, a native of Carolina, Puerto Rico, also said that some Pittsburgh players were responsible for the dismissal last month of Manager Harry Walker. Clemente called Walker "a good manager and a good man."

Walker was replaced by Danny Murtaugh on July 18. The latter piloted the Pirates to the NL pennant and a World Series victory over the New York Yankees in 1960.

Clemente, who has played in 132 of Pittsburgh's 146 games, has a .349 batting average. He already is a three-time batting titleholder.

Clemente said Wednesday night he had been misquoted in the radio interview that represented him as saying some of his teammates are only interested in money.

Intrepid Easily Defeats Australian Yacht Again

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The United States' Intrepid dashed Australia's hopes Wednesday by walloping the Dame Pattie for the second straight time for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series between the two 12-meter yachts for the America's Cup.

The white-hulled, 64-foot beauty, skippered by Bus Mosbacher, once again sailed off to an early lead and was in command all the way over the six-leg, 24.3-mile course on Rhode Island Sound.

Wisconsin's New Coach Says 'It's 'Ho, Ho, Full Steam Ahead,' For Badgers On Comeback Trail

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — At the University of Wisconsin, which has sailed some rough football seas in recent seasons, new coach John Coatta briefed a crew of Big 10 skywriters aboard a lake launch.

During a windy, bouncy tour of beautiful Lake Mendota fronting the Wisconsin campus, Coatta said it would be ho, ho and full steam ahead for the Badgers on the comeback trail.

Coatta, star Wisconsin quarterback in the early 1950s, was assigned the Badger helm after Mill Bruhn was torpedoed by three straight losing seasons and booted upstairs into the assistant athletic directorship.

"We'll be an improved football team, adequate on defense and showing our best offensive strength in pass receiving," said the 38-year-old Coatta, former aid to Bruhn after six years as a Florida State assistant.

back, although it's not an overnight proposition."

13 Starters Return

Coatta inherited 13 starters from Bruhn's 11th and last Badger coach, which tied Northwestern for seventh in the Big 10 at 2-4-1 and had an over-all 3-6-1 record.

er and Bill Fritz, Bill Yanakos and sophomore Mel Reddick at ends.

John Ryan, slowed by early injury, is favored to win on over John Boyajian, leading 1963 Badger passer, who lacks Ryan's skill on the pass-run option in Coatta's opinion.

Still a third seasoned quarterback is Chuck Burt, the nation's 10th best passer in 1965 but whose penchant for interceptions limited him to just one game last season.

Roll-Sprint Featured
"Both Ryan and Boyajian are excellent leaders," said Coatta. "Ryan does all things well, but Boyajian falls down a little on the option run. We'll feature the roll-sprint quarterback play, but also can go to the drop-back passing game."

"We will have to throw about 40 per cent of the time because we can't overpower anybody yet. What we need is a game-breaking type of runner."

Sports— Facts and Facets

By JOHN HARMON
Asst. Sports Editor

If it wasn't for Assistant Football Coach Frank Gilliam, there would be no end to the Iowa Hawkeyes. Gilliam, a former ace pass receiver for the Hawks and a veteran of football wars, is Iowa's offensive end coach.

This is Gilliam's second year as an assistant coach for Ray Nagel. He played at Iowa from 1953 through the Rose Bowl game of 1957 and was the Hawk's top pass receiver in 1953 and 1954. After sitting out the 1955 season because of a broken leg, Gilliam came back in 1956 as a defensive end and helped Iowa win the Big 10 title and the Rose Bowl game against Oregon State.

Gilliam embarked on a professional football career after he graduated in 1957. He played for the Vancouver Lions of the Canadian League until 1961, when he became a teacher and coached junior football.

Comparing the Canadian League with the pro football in America, Gilliam said, "The brand of ball is not as good a caliber as in the United States, especially since around 1960 when the American Football League was founded. The owners just won't let top players out of America any more."

After nearly an eight year absence, Gilliam received a chance to return to his alma mater when Nagel began forming his coaching staff in 1966. Gilliam jumped at the opportunity.

"It's always easier to come back to a familiar town," said Gilliam. "I like Iowa City very well. In fact, it's just like coming back home. I consider myself very fortunate in coming back to Iowa."

But coming back to coach college football after eight years in the professional leagues could have presented a problem for Gilliam. It didn't.

"Getting readjusted wasn't too difficult since the play hasn't changed that much from when I was here, except we'd run out of the single wing once in a while."

The toughest part of the new assignment was getting used to Nagel's training program.

"The most prominent aspect of Coach Nagel's style is the preparation for the games and the amount of work involved in getting ready. I would say that he does more along these lines than any other coach I've worked or played for."

Surveying his personnel for the coming season, Gilliam said, "Last year we had a lot of inexperienced players, but this year Paul Laaveg is the only new man since the rest of the boys have that added year of experience."

Gilliam said that Laaveg, as a sophomore, would play a valuable role since if he didn't push the veterans and gain a starting role, he could always fill in. Gilliam was right in this respect because Laaveg, who impressed the coaches during fall practices, was moved into the No. 1 tight end post that Paul Usinowicz used to occupy. Usinowicz was moved to center when Dean Schuessler suffered complications from an appendectomy.

Continuing on his end prospects, Gilliam said that only Larry McDowell has been lost through graduation, while Al Bream, Usinowicz and Gary Larsen return.

"Usinowicz is sound this year," said Gilliam, "and Larsen led his first spring of football without receiving a major injury. He also had a fine spring."

"All in all I think we now have the experience and can do better than last year. All the boys looked good in the fall. They had their timing and routes down in relation to the quarterback."

Gilliam added that he doesn't have much contact with the quarterback-end of the team.

"My main contact with the quarterbacks is having them know where to throw," said Gilliam, adding that Nagel and offensive backfield coach Bud Tynes take care of the when and hows of this aspect of the team.

The end corps is looking better, but Gilliam still has several points to stress, mainly the importance of an end's job.

"What I try to get across is that the end's job is a team proposition — when a pass is thrown, the team really needs it. The ends have a tremendous burden on their shoulders — they have to block like a lineman and run like a back."

"But I think the group of boys we have this year can shoulder this responsibility. They have the pride and the confidence. All I want to do is have them make the best of their natural ability."

If the rest of the Hawks can shoulder their responsibilities as well as Gilliam believes his ends can, the Hawks could raise a few eyebrows in 1967.

1971 Date Set For Bypass

A southwest bypass of Iowa City should be completed by 1971 and the Iowa City - Cedar Rapids freeway should be opened by 1970, Highway Commission district engineer Van R. Snyder said Tuesday.

Snyder, who addressed Iowa City councilmen and University representatives, said the city should expect the Melrose Avenue interchange with the bypass to be opened in the fall of 1971. Mayor William C. Hubbard said the city would have to move rapidly to complete the Melrose Court Bridge by that time.

The proposed bridge would connect the bypass and the central business district and would provide the first through east-west street in Iowa City.

Snyder also said the Iowa City-Cedar Rapids freeway should be opened in late 1970.

The freeway would connect with Interstate 80 about a mile west of the current Highway 218 interchange with 80. From the freeway - interstate interchange, the Iowa City southwest bypass would bend southeast to connect with Highway 218 at a point south of the fairgrounds.

Tribute Slated For War Hero In Burlington

BURLINGTON (AP) — This city will pay special tribute Friday to a hometown hero and three other Iowans who won glory in war.

Marine Gunnery Sgt. Jimmie Howard, 38, recently awarded the nation's highest military decoration—the Congressional Medal of Honor—for valor in Vietnam, will receive the homage and pride of Burlington in "Jimmie Howard Day."

Three Iowans, who won the medal for their courageous action during World War II, will be riding with Jimmie in the parade.

They are Ralph Neppel of Iowa City, employed in the Veterans Hospital there; Herschel Briles, Colfax farmer; and Francis Pierce, formerly of Earlville and now a Grand Rapids, Mich., police captain.

Neppel and Briles received the Medal of Honor for action in Germany; Pierce for heroism as a Navy corpsman in the Pacific.

Howard won the medal for saving the lives of 12 fellow Marines when a battalion-sized group of Viet Cong attacked their outpost near Chu Lai in June 1966.

The unit held off an enemy assault for 12 hours, killing about 200 Viet Cong. Five Marines were killed and all the others, including Howard, were wounded.

On hand for Friday's celebration will be military units from nearby cities, Gov. Harold Hughes, State Adj. Gen. Junior Miller and members of Iowa's congressional delegation.

East Germans Hold Student

BERLIN (AP) — Ronald Wiedenhoef, 30, a Columbia University instructor and graduate student from Wisconsin, has been arrested by Communist authorities in East Berlin on undisclosed charges, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

Wiedenhoef, a Milwaukeean, has been doing research on Berlin architecture for a Ph.D. degree, his Berlin-born wife, Renata, 24, told newsmen. He went to East Berlin on Sept. 5 and did not return, she said.

GOING from one extreme to another, Springfield, Ohio, high school junior Joseph Apone had his head shaved after his principal objected to his long hair. But was anybody satisfied by the gesture? No — and now the youth has been barred from school until his hair grows back. —AP Wire photo

Senate Unit Says Military Lacks Pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, Navy, Army and Marines all have a shortage of pilots — nearly 17,000 in all — and the deficit will continue well into the 1970s, a Senate armed services subcommittee reported Wednesday night.

The chief cause is the unexpected airpower demands of the Vietnamese war, said Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), chairman of the group. Another cause given was the lure of higher paying and more comfortable jobs in commercial aviation.

All cockpit requirements at the battle front have been met, Stennis said, but he added this was accomplished by drastic actions which should have been unnecessary.

The detailed 23-page report was made to the parent Armed Services Committee after secret testimony and months of investigation.

The eight-senator panel said statements by some defense witnesses "failed to face up to the facts and were better calculated to obscure than to inform."

-Chattanooga Wins Round- Choo-Choo Stalled

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Chattanooga won a skirmish Wednesday in its battle with Georgia over the final resting place of the General, a famed locomotive stolen by Union soldiers during the Civil War.

Chancellor Ray Brock, after a spirited hearing on a temporary court order to prevent removal of the antique wood-burner to Georgia, ruled that Chattanooga had made a strong enough case for him to keep the order in force.

This means that Chattanooga, temporarily at least, gets to keep the General — which it has come to feel is the original Chattanooga Choo-Choo.

But the Louisville & Nashville Railroad immediately filed a new motion to sidetrack the injunction. And, Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox already had announced that his state will appeal an adverse decision.

But Judge Brock turned down the second L&N motion, too — and bowed to Chattanooga protests over a request that the L&N be permitted to take the General to Georgia under bond for ceremonies scheduled there today.

Georgia Wants Relic
Georgia wants the relic enshrined at Kennesaw, Ga., where the Union soldiers swiped it from under the noses of the Confederacy in April 1862.

Chattanooga, which swiped it again early Tuesday, wants it returned for keeps to this city where it was on public display for some 70 years.

At one point during the hearing, Chattanooga City Atty. Eugene Collins suggested that nobody has title to the locomotive because it was Civil War contraband.

At another, Georgia officials laid claim to it on grounds that it is the property of the Georgia-owned Western & Atlantic Railroad, which is leased by the L&N. The General, apparently, was leased as part of the deal.

But, if this is so, argued Collins, why was the L&N planning to present the title to Maddox on behalf of Georgia in ceremonies scheduled today at Kennesaw?

Submitted as part of Chattanooga's evidence were two pamphlets, indicating the old Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad — since merged with the L&N — intended to enshrine the General in Chattanooga as a public trust.

Funds Collected
It also was noted that public funds were collected to restore the General in Chattanooga in 1891, and it was maintained by funds dropped in a coin box outside the Union Station where the General was displayed for some 70 years.

Brock denied a petition by James Harrison Fuller of Chattanooga, grandson of the conductor of the train at the time it was heisted 105 years ago, to intervene and get the locomotive for himself.

Chattanooga, meanwhile, filed another lawsuit in Circuit Court, this to acquire the General through condemnation proceedings.

"I think it is well established that the City of Chattanooga has the right to acquire property through condemnation proceedings," said Chattanooga Mayor Ralph Kelley. "The General will stay here."

De Gaulle's Trip To Poland Seen As Disappointing
PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle told his Cabinet Wednesday he is satisfied with the results of his visit to Poland but diplomatic sources here said the trip was a setback for the French leader's European policy.

The sources described De Gaulle as privately disappointed with the trip but still convinced that he is on the right path in trying to relax European tensions by seeking to loosen rival East-West blocs.

A government spokesman said De Gaulle reported to the French ministers that he had hoped during the week he spent in Poland starting Sept. 6 to renew the friendship between that Communist country and France. De Gaulle was quoted as saying the visit had "answered all the desires France had formulated."

De Gaulle told the Cabinet he had discussed with Polish leaders his formula of "detente, entente and cooperation" for settling European problems.

Cold Spell Ahead In Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — When the sun goes down over Amman these days, the chill breath of winter wafts in from the surrounding hills and, for King Hussein and his Arab subjects, despair deepens.

The 31-year-old monarch, who didn't really want a war with Israel, finds himself custodian of thousands of hungry refugees and bereft of his richest lands.

Dotting his kingdom are nine new refugee camps with some 40,000 inhabitants living in tents given by the United States. There are five old camps of mud huts where some refugees have lived as long as 19 years.

There were 320,000 United Nations-registered Palestine refugees on the east bank of the Jordan River when the Arab-Israeli fighting started June 5, and 400,000 on the west bank. Now 470,000 are registered on the east bank or Jordanian side of the river, 300,000 on the west bank.

Youngsters To Get Sales Tax Handout

DES MOINES — Nonworking Iowans — youngsters included — could be in line for a $12 handout from the state treasury. So say experts who have examined every line and word of a controversial sales and service tax law which becomes effective Oct. 1.

This could come about, they say, under a provision of the law which permits a refund to persons with little or no income — a refund designed to lessen the bite on sum purses as a result of the stiffer tax.

The 1967 Legislature hiked the sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent and extended it to a host of services never touched before — like shoe shines and haircuts.

Rebates would range from $12 to those earning $1,000 or less a year to $2 for those with incomes between $6,500 and $7,000. No rebate would be due those earning more.

Heads of households could claim separate rebates for all dependants. Sen. Tom Riley (R-Cedar Rapids) says the law requires payment to anyone meeting income and residence requirements who cares to file a claim.

Riley, a lawyer who voted against the measure, has urged a special session to repair it. The rebate is intended to be applied as a credit against state income taxes. However, a person with no income — hence no taxes — would have to be paid $12 cash.

Provision Cited The law specifies that "every resident individual shall be entitled to a sales tax refund . . . whether or not such resident individual is required to file a personal income tax return or pay such tax."

It goes on to say that any resident exempt from filing an income tax return can claim his refund "upon furnishing the Department of Revenue with proof of his taxable income and the number of his personal exemptions."

"I don't think there's any question about it," said Riley. "It looks like every child a year or more old who is a resident individual of Iowa could claim the payment."

There was no estimate of what Court Stays Fines For 3 On Contempt

DES MOINES — Payment of fines by three North Mahaska Community School Board members was stayed by the Iowa Supreme Court Wednesday pending an appeal of their contempt of court convictions.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Theodore Garfield sternly warned attorneys for the board members that "I don't want any monkey business" about trying to reopen two small grade schools involved in the court fight that led to the convictions.

The schools at Barnes City and Lacey were ordered closed for consolidation last year by the Mahaska County superintendent of schools and the order was confirmed last April by the District Court.

The board members, Caleb Hargis, Dick Vanderwilt and Paul Rice, were fined $500 each earlier this month by District Judge Harold Fleck for opening the schools as attendance centers at the beginning of the present term.

Vincent Johnson of Oskaloosa, attorney for the board members, has asked the Iowa Supreme Court to review the conviction. The motion was opposed Wednesday by Harold Heising of Oskaloosa, representing Judge Fleck.

Pope May Have Surgery

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul VI, who will be 70 years old in two weeks, may undergo surgery to correct what a Vatican informant described Wednesday as an enlarged prostate gland. This ailment is not unusual for a man of his age.

The Pope's personal physician and two of Italy's most famous doctors raised the possibility of an operation after an examination Wednesday.

They said the Pope had "improved notably" from an inflammation in the urinary system described as acute cystopyelitis and that their present treatment, presumably doses of antibiotics, would be continued.

Prince Worries

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia — Prince Norodom Sihanouk told a crowd Wednesday he is recalling his envoys from Peking "to avoid incidents if there is a demonstration against our embassy."

The ruler of Cambodia stressed that he was not breaking diplomatic relations with China.

Course In Iowa Lit To Be Offered By Mail

"The Literature of Iowa," a course in fiction, drama and poetry by and about Iowans, will be offered by correspondence for the first time this fall.

Clarence Andrews, associate professor of English, will teach the two-hour course. He said the course will cover writers who lived in the state and wrote about Iowans, including Hamlin Garland and Octave Thanet (pen-name of Alice French), who were not natives of the state but wrote significant works about it.

Other authors to be studied will be James Norman Hall of Colfax, R. V. Cassill of Cedar Falls and Carl Van Vechten of Cedar Rapids. Cassill is a former faculty member in the Writers Workshop. Andrews revived the Iowa literature course, which had not been taught for 15 years, during the spring semester and summer session. He hopes to give it on alternate years to resident students, as well as by correspondence.

The course includes discussion of Paul Engle's novel

PLEDGING A BILLION DOLLARS to aid in financing renewal projects in big city slums, Gilbert Fitzhugh, chairman of a newly-created life insurance committee, explains the program to reporters outside the White House Wednesday. Fitzhugh said he hoped the plan would encourage rent supplement projects and individual home purchases. — AP Wirephoto

Insurance Industry To Aid City Slums

WASHINGTON (AP) — The life insurance industry promised President Johnson Wednesday it will invest $1 billion of mortgage money in big city slums normally shunned by conservative lenders.

Johnson got the pledge from industry leaders at a White House meeting and praised them for making what he termed "a historic contribution to your country."

Since the industry makes about $16 billion of investments each year, the diversion of $1 billion into slum projects represents a significant commitment.

So long as the money lasts, the industry program is expected to give a marked boost to efforts to improve slum housing.

The $1 billion is a one-shot commitment, however. The industry is taking a wait-and-see attitude toward the possibility of replenishing the kitty when the initial $1 billion is gone.

Sacrifices Made
Insurance companies are making a financial sacrifice to launch the program, although their loans will be insured by the Federal Housing Administration. While they expect to make a profit on the loans, they will receive lower interest rates in some cases than they could collect if they invested the money in other ways.

Johnson, enthusiastic about the program, told insurance executives:

"I hope we can start to announce the first projects under this plan — not within months or weeks, but within a few days."

Nearly 350 insurance companies are participating in the program, each contributing in proportion to its assets. The largest contributions — about $200 million each — will be made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

Although the federal government has a number of programs to insure mortgage loans in slum sections, little private money has been available for such loans because of reduced risk and higher interest rates in other areas.

Critics of Johnson's rent supplement program often have argued there was no need to authorize an ambitious program because of a shortage of private mortgage money to finance it. A portion of the insurance mortgage fund will go into rent supplement projects — a fact that conceivably might have an influence on Congressional attitudes.

Weaver Held Talks
Creation of the fund grew out of discussions between Secretary of Housing Robert C. Weaver and Gilbert Fitzhugh, chairman of Metropolitan Life and head of a newly created life insurance committee on urban problems.

"This is not an iffy program," Fitzhugh told reporters at the White House. "We've got the billion dollars."

Fitzhugh also said he knows the program is going to work but, when asked if the industry would commit more funds once the initial $1 billion is gone, he said, "we'd like to see what happens."

Attorney General To Decide Whether Tax Law Is Legal

DES MOINES (AP) — Atty. Gen. Richard Turner said Wednesday he will decide whether the rules under which Iowa's new sales and service tax will be enforced are legal.

In fact, Republican Turner said he will also make a finding on whether the Iowa Tax Commission was illegally delegated legislative authority in the law.

Traffic Rises On Interstate

AMES (AP) — As Iowa's interstate highway system grows, so does the traffic volume it carries, the State Highway Commission was told Wednesday.

A survey made by commission engineers showed an average increase of 17 per cent — from 8,090 to 9,490 vehicles per day — on the whole, and a whopping 82 per cent jump on a segment of Interstate 29 from Council Bluffs to U.S. 30.

The commission said the I-29 traffic growth was caused by completion of Interstate 80, which connects with I-29 at Loveland. The actual traffic count was 8,710 vehicles per day compared with 4,790 a year earlier.

The survey showed a portion of I-80 east of Avoca was carrying 53 per cent more vehicles this year than last. The daily count was 9,180 compared with 6,010 a year earlier.

Commission engineer Eugene Mills said surveys now are being made that probably will show a traffic volume as high as 25,000 vehicles per day on I-235, the Des Moines Freeway.

The commission asked the attorney general's office for an opinion whether the Iowa toll bridge law passed by the 1967 legislature is constitutional.

The commission is now considering rules for administering the law, which boosts Iowa's sales tax from two to three per cent and extends it to a myriad of services for the first time.

The commission itself is divided on whether the service tax covers new construction "for the improvement of realty" as mentioned in the law or is meant for improvements only.

Turner said he would — as required by law — issue an advisory opinion on the legality of the rules when they are formulated.

In addition, he will look into the legislative angle, which he said would alone make the law unconstitutional.

GOP Veep Poll Shows Preference For Reagan, Percy

BOSTON (AP) — The Christian Science Monitor reported Wednesday that a poll showed Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois as the leading contenders for the Republican vice presidential nomination next year.

Godfrey Sperling Jr. of the Monitor's Washington staff, basing the report on a survey of political leaders in the 50 states, said the choice between the two men likely will depend upon the political coloring of the presidential nominee.

The poll showed Percy would be the choice if the presidential nominee was a conservative like Reagan or former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Reagan would be the choice with moderates like Percy, Gov. George Romney of Michigan or Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.
