Negroes To Start Campaign, March For Bankruptcy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aiming at launching a nationwide campaign to encourage bankruptcy filings by the poor, the militant civil rights organization ACT plans a mass march by some 200 Negroes and whites on the bankruptcy court here.

ACT says its goal is to "make shyster merchants behave better."

Julius Hobson, chairman of ACT, told the Associated Press the bankruptcy drive, after nearly a year of spadework, was picking up steam in Washington and elsewhere.

The threat has alarmed many loan companies, merchants and business groups. Personal bankruptcies have crept in 10 years, and credit organizations fear that a greatly accelerated rise could bring serious financial disruption in major cities.

The drive was endorsed by the Black Power Conference in Newark, N.J., two months ago. It is now being pushed in Chicago and New York by ACT's smaller chapters there, Hobson said, and by other groups in a number of cities.

ACT Has 3,000 Members
Hobson said ACT had about 3,000 registered members here and elsewhere, but worked mostly through other cooperating groups. The letters ACT, he said, stand for nothing but the word itself — act.

"The most successful campaign in the bankruptcy drive has been put on by local groups in Alameda County, Calif.," he reported. "Bankruptcy rates there have gone up 65 per cent through efforts of local groups."

"It has to be a slow and careful thing, otherwise you wind up getting a whole lot of people in trouble. But it is just beginning to roll."

In Oakland, Calif., Sheridan Downey, referee in bankruptcy, said he never had heard of ACT and that there had been no unusual increase in bankruptcy filings. He said 2,654 petitions in bankruptcy were filed in Alameda County last year. Through August of this year, he said, the total has been 1,761, and if this rate continues for the remainder of the year, the total will approximate that of last year.

ACT Against Bankruptcy
Frequently ACT recommends against bankruptcy, Hobson said. If a debtor stands to lose much property, a court-supervised plan of voluntary repayment might be better. And ACT's counselors must try to insure that those being helped are telling the truth.

Although the mere filing automatically makes the debtor a legal bankrupt, the court checks the statements of both debtors and creditors. And Hobson noted that if a debtor, in obtaining credit, has lied to a store about his other debts, the bankruptcy is void as far as that store is concerned.

Hobson said his campaign is intended in part to reform "the kind of merchant who takes advantage of people who can't read contracts or do arithmetic, who sells them $60 watches for $200 and gets them to buy $300 TV sets that are worn out before they're paid for."

No Harm To Economy
The bankruptcy drive couldn't destroy the national economy "because the poor don't have that much debt," Hobson told an interviewer.

But he added: "You could destroy an individual business, however. Suppose there's a store that makes a business of overloading poor customers with cheap goods at high prices, on low installments at usurious interest rates — the store that collects overdue bills by garnishing wages."

"You could go down to the court and look up the names of people whose wages are being garnished. You would advise them to ask for jury trials. That would delay the garnishments a while — long enough for them all to file bankruptcy and get the debts wiped out."

"Make Shyster Behave"
That hasn't been done and isn't likely to be, Hobson said. But the threat of wholesale bankruptcies, he predicted, "will make the shyster merchants behave better — it's a real truth-in-lending program."

In Washington about 80 have actually filed out the bankruptcy forms and only a handful have actually filed them so far, he added.

But about 150 have signed up with ACT for bankruptcy counseling, Hobson reported. "And in a couple of weeks more we'll be leading 200 or more of them in a body into the federal district court" to actually file bankruptcy.

Courtroom Killings Tape Recorded By Court Reporter

RAPID CITY, S. D. (AP) — A wild courtroom shooting, touched off by a divorce settlement, was captured Monday on a court reporter's tape recorder left running as the reporter fled in terror.

Shouted threats and screams accompanied the shooting in which Mrs. Ray Bivins, 53, the divorcee, and her lawyer, William Brady, 39, father of five, were killed. The presiding judge, Thomas Parker, 48, suffered a wound in the abdomen.

Ray Bivins, 63, husband of the dead woman, appeared in Municipal Court late Tuesday on two counts of premeditated murder. Judge Harold E. Shaw continued the hearing for a week to give Bivins time to get a lawyer.

This account was given by lawyers and attendants who were in the courtroom Monday when the shootings occurred.

Judge Parker had just finished reading the settlement of the divorce action requiring Bivins, the plaintiff, to pay about $3,000 alimony when Bivins allegedly shouted:

"You've had your say, now I'm going to have mine. I'm going to kill every S.O.B. in this courtroom."

Bivins then allegedly pulled a .38-caliber revolver from his pocket and opened fire as he stepped up to Brady, shooting him in the chest from a distance of about two feet.

Judge Parker picked up his leather-upholstered swivel chair and hurled it over the bench at Bivins. Mrs. Bivins, who had run from the counsel table to the jury box, was struck in the neck by a bullet and apparently died within seconds.

Judge Parker moved in on Bivins and the two grappled. R. James Brennan, Bivins' lawyer who had dived under the table, came out and joined the judge. Brennan wrenched the gun from Bivins' hand.

The judge kicked Bivins in the head and stunned him. A complete recording of the melee was made because Mrs. Frances Geyerman, court reporter, left her recorder running as she fled the courtroom in fright, ignoring Bivins' warning not to leave before he started firing.

News In Brief

ALSO IN THE NEWS LAST NIGHT:

BOSTON — Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, condemned by Negroes as a segregationist, emerged the leader in Boston's preliminary election for mayor. With more than half the city's 275 precincts tallied, Mrs. Hicks was 3-2 ahead of her nearest rival Secretary of State Kevin H. White, in a field of 10 candidates.

SIoux CITY — A shortage of $113,000 has been discovered at the First National Bank, the bank president announced. He said Gene R. Jake Bishop, assistant vice president of the bank, has "orally admitted he appropriated $113,000 in bank funds to his own account."

Krewson Resigns As Senate Veep

By BETSY BECKER

The first Student Senate meeting of the school year ended with a sudden adjournment to prevent confirmation of Eric Morris, P2, Bettendorf, as vice president to replace Lyle Krewson A4, Van Horn, who resigned at the meeting Tuesday night.

Krewson said he had not received a draft deferment and had decided to join the Air Force. On the motion of Sen. Chuck Derden, A3, Waterloo, of the Hawkeye Student Party (HSP), the senators applauded Krewson for the work he had done for the Senate.

Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton then announced his selection of Morris to fill the post. He said Morris had worked hard to bring about the recent coed dormitory action.

In appointing Morris and presenting him to the senate for approval, Pelton was acting under the by-laws of the code to be submitted to CSL in place of Pelton's code. Derden said the committee's code had been approved by the senate last spring, but had not been made legal. The resolution was referred to a committee for action.

Resolution Approved

The senate unanimously approved a resolution calling for Pelton to write to legislative leaders complaining about the 1967 appropriation to the University. The Board of Regents had asked for $185 million but the appropriation was $163 million. Higher student fees resulted.

Referred to committees were resolutions on the University Housing Committee report, changes in women's hours, recruitment of Negro students to the University, and recommended priorities in a new code of student life to be discussed and acted upon by CSL.

Senators absent were Glen Meredith, Bill Joy, Tim Hyde, Jim Hulbert, Tom Stone and Ken Krizan.

Deaths Reported At 34 In Mexico; Cause Unknown

TIAJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Pedro Miralles Malpica, attorney general of Baja California, said the death toll from a mysterious mass poisoning climbed to 34 by late Tuesday.

Police said 110 others were hospitalized.

Malpica announced 16 persons died Monday and 18 more on Tuesday. He reported the situation to Mexico's Atty. Gen. Julio Sanchez Vargas in Mexico City.

There was no confirmation of Malpica's figures from other sources. Mayor Lopez Gutierrez said there were only 14 dead. "There were about 60 new cases today," he said, declaring there were no new deaths.

The dead were mostly children between the ages of three months and 11 years.

The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, in reporting Malpica's statement, said authorities withheld word of the new deaths in fear of "a mass rush of evacuees to the border."

Authorities in Tijuana said that in every case the stomachs of victims were found to contain milk. All milk and milk products were recalled from retail stores.

State officials tested tissue specimens, milk and water. Other specimens were sent to the State Department of Agriculture in Sacramento to see if pesticides were involved.

"We are analyzing it in the search for heavy metals, such as lead, zinc or arsenic," a state official said. "While we don't know if it is a chemical or bacterial poison, we are leaning more toward the chemical theory at this time. But if it is a chemical it must be a very potent one."

No reports of these studies are expected until today.

N.Y. Teachers' Strike Tentatively Settled

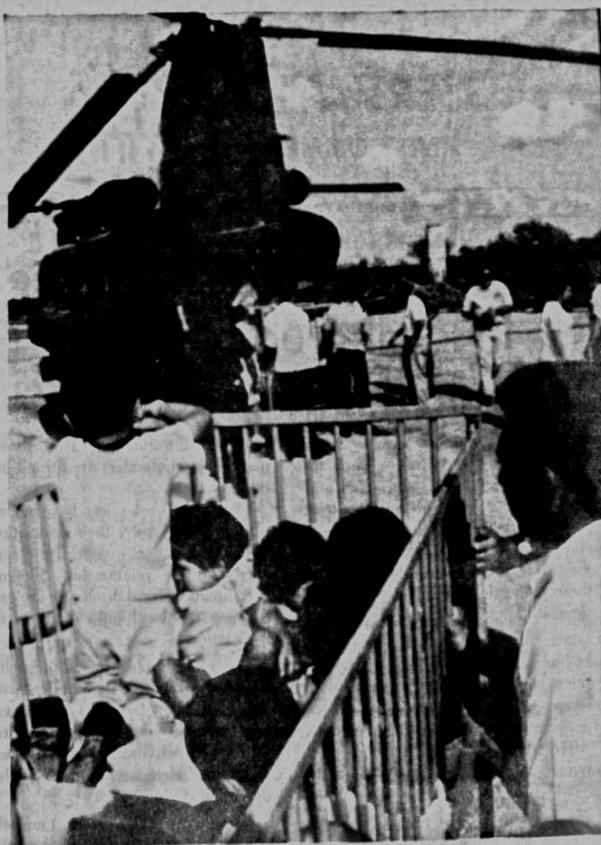

NEW YORK (AP) — The massive New York teachers' strike was settled on a tentative basis for the second time in a week Tuesday, and 1.1 million public school children were alerted for a return to regular classes possibly by Thursday.

"It's a fantastically good package," said strike leader Albert Shanker of an accord involving an added $135 million in teachers' wages over a 26-month period.

Then Shanker reported back to State Supreme Court for a hearing on contempt charges growing out of the nation's worst school crisis. The walkout of Shanker's 49,000-member United Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, has all but paralyzed normal operations in the city's 900 public schools for 12 class days — since the scheduled Sept. 11 opening of the new fall term.

Texas City Hit By Angry Waters Of Rio Grande

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The Rio Grande, breaking every manmade obstacle in its path, topped a levee north of Harlingen late Tuesday night and a new surge of floodwaters bore down on the already ravaged city.

Communications with Harlingen, in the middle of flood-ravaged Rio Grande Valley, were all but impossible.

A military radio message from Harlingen bumped all conventional traffic off the air for an urgent message.

"The floodway levee near Farm Road 506 has broken," the message said. The area to the east and west of Harlingen and LeFeria was taking more water.

The Rio Grande, on a record rampage with its crest still above Harlingen, topped emergency dikes as fast as they could be put up Tuesday.

KGBT television went off the air, its facilities wrecked by the flood. The Rio Grande was a great inland sea studded with floating houses, dead cattle and other debris from Hurricane Beulah.

Crews Lose Battle
Sandbagging crews lost a battle to keep the floodwaters, which were coming mainly from a floodway diversion area called Arroyo Colorado, out of Harlingen. Unhindered by their efforts, the floodwaters surged into the heart of this city of 41,000.

National Guard helicopters and trucks evacuated a state tuberculosis hospital as the floodwaters advanced inexorably. Some 70 miles to the north, Fallurrias remained isolated by floodwaters. The South Texas town of 7,000 — swollen with 4,000 refugees who sought refuge from Hurricane Beulah's winds — had been completely cut off from the outside world until Tuesday.

"No one is being let in the town unless they have passes and only today were we able to get telephone calls out," said Bill Burrows, program director of KPSS radio. From Burrows came the first word of the demise of big Miller Dam, a flood control project backing up usually placid creeks around Fallurrias. "About 50 to 70 per cent of the town was flooded by the rivers and there was three and a half feet of water downtown," Burrows related.

Then The Dam Broke
"Then the Miller Dam broke early Sunday and 95 per cent of the town was flooded."

McAllen was isolated to land travel at late afternoon. "We're evacuating one section after another as the water comes up," said Col. Ted Thomas of Civil Defense.

"We can't get in much worse shape," he said. "Water is almost as high in the southern part of the city as it is in the floodway. People are swimming to try to get stuff out of their homes. We're warning them with bull horns that the water they are swimming in is polluted with sewage."

State and federal officials had estimated the damage to Texas from Beulah at $500 million last week before the torrential rains hit.

Estimates now exceed $1-billion.

Gridiron Battle Fought To A Tie

By DEBBY DONOVAN

The battle of the gridiron guards ended in a tie Tuesday.

City Manager Frank R. Smiley announced Tuesday night that the controversy about providing patrolmen for Saturday football games had been solved.

Police Chief Patrick J. McCarney complained last week that University Athletic Director Forest Evashevski didn't ask for off-duty Iowa City policemen in time for him to have them patrol the Stadium for Saturday's football game.

Evashevski, in turn, said he thought he had enough protection already lined up but that publicity about comments made by Johnson County Sheriff Maynard E. Schneider had disrupted things.

McCarney and Evashevski met Tuesday, Smiley said, and agreed to vary the number of off-duty policemen according to what size crowd is expected.

Smiley said that about 12 off-duty officers would patrol games where small crowds are expected and that up to 24 men would be available if needed to direct traffic for larger crowds.

He said the police chief asked that the Department of Athletics give four or five days notice of the number of officers needed for each game.

The athletic department will pay $3 an hour for each officer to the Iowa City Policemen's Association. The money will be divided among the on- and off-duty policemen. Smiley said that $3 per man-hour is the standard fee for extra patrolling of special events like football games.

He said that previously the athletic department had paid a set amount for each game. Under the new arrangement worked out Tuesday, there will be more flexibility in the number of officers for each game, he said.

—Red Book Is 'Spiritual Atom Bomb' For The Red Guard—

Mao's 'Thoughts' Are Simple, Distinctive And Powerful

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Revolutionary violence must go on and on, indefinitely.

War is the highest form of struggle. Only war can abolish war.

Destruction must come before construction.

There is no such thing in the world as love for love's sake, or art for art's sake.

These are samples of the "thoughts" turning Red China upside down, turning cities into chaos, economy to confusion, politics to anarchy.

They are capsulized in a little book bound in red plastic and entitled, "The Thoughts of Mao Tse-tung." His followers call it a "spiritual atom bomb."

The bomb exploded not only in China but in the world of communism with such shattering force that it is questionable today whether there is such a thing as a "world Communist movement."

The "thoughts" are Mao, rather than Communist or even Marxist-Leninist. They express East and not West, China and not the Marxism or Leninism of Russia and Europe. They reflect ancient isolation and the superiority complex of the Chinese rather than acceptance of inherently Western ideas of socialism.

Mao's followers call him the "acme of Marxism-Leninism." To the detached observer, he is anything but that. Marxism itself is an outdated, largely outworn dogma in a world of scientific marvels. Marxism-Leninism represents an attempt of the Russians to revise Marx to make his doctrines fit contemporary needs. But the whole body of Marxism-Leninism is Western.

Mao is an Oriental who never saw the West. He never got farther away from China than Moscow. What he has produced is Maoism, a distinctive doctrine having little in common with Western ideas beyond the label through which Peking tries to lay claim to leadership of revolution in the whole vast, underdeveloped and nonwhite world.

Both inside and outside China, Mao's impact has been enormous.

Inside China, the book of Mao's thoughts constitutes a useful creed for a nation which officially frowns on religious creeds.

The "thoughts" are far from profound. In fact, they are often marked by almost overwhelming simplicity which suits them to being chanted by the indoctrinated adolescents of Mao's Red Guard.

"Anyone who stands on the side of the revolutionary people is a revolutionary," proclaimed Mao. "Anyone who stands on the side of imperialism, feudalism and bureaucratic capitalism is a counterrevolutionary."

What could be more black and white than that? And what could be more chilling than the spectacle of tens of thousands of youngsters chanting it by rote, in unison?

"To overthrow a political power it is always necessary first of all to create public opinion, do work in the ideological sphere," advised Mao.

Outside China, Mao's "thoughts" have contributed much to splintering, splintering and confusing revolutionary movements. They have done more than that.

Among Mao's disciples are people like Vo Nguyen Giap, the architect of guerrilla war in Vietnam who was Mao's pupil at Yanan in the days of Mao's "long march" in the 1930s to escape Chiang Kai-shek's troops. Another disciple has been Ernesto "Che" Guevara, the guerrilla-war expert of the Cuban revolution.

As Mao advises at home, so he preaches abroad "all power grows out of the barrel of a gun." To Mao there is no such thing as peaceful struggle, and only by violence can capitalism be overthrown.

The book of "The Thoughts of Mao Tse-tung" is a compilation of pithy quotations from his various speeches and writings over the many years of his chairmanship of the Chinese Communist Party. The book itself is a new phenomenon, evidently produced early in 1966, in millions of copies, to arm the Red Guards for the Cultural Revolution.

Rumors of organized crime in local drug business should lead to caution

There are rumors around Iowa City that organized crime groups are trying to get into the marijuana and drug distribution business in the area. Although these rumors have not been confirmed, the fact that these rumors exist deserves the careful attention of those who might be involved.

Those who deal with organized crime say that the infiltration usually begins with the supplying of wholesalers already working in an area with large quantities of good-grade marijuana at prices lower than average. After an association is developed between the outside groups and the local wholesalers, the association gradually becomes less of a voluntary one for the wholesalers.

The organized elements put more and more pressure upon the wholesalers to become pushers — that is, aggressive promoters of marijuana use. The prices charged the wholesalers also go up. And eventually, dangerous drugs are introduced and the former marijuana wholesalers are turned into dope pushers.

The local wholesalers have no opportunity to dissolve their associations with the outsiders except in the early stages of the relationship. Violence and threats of legal disclosure are used to keep the local individuals in the association.

The undesirable aspects of such a situation for the general public are obvious: the use of drugs is introduced into the area; young people are lured into illegal activities; and the chances of criminal elements infiltrating other activities are increased.

Iowa City seems to be unusually free of organized crime. Every caution should be taken by those who are in businesses in which organized criminals might be interested to see that things stay that way. Grass should be given away — not bought and sold.

A university isn't made of bricks and books; spirit is most important

Pres. Bowen's remarks at the Induction Ceremony on Monday were appropriately inspiring. At the outset of a new school year, it is the function of the president to light fires of enthusiasm under students, faculty and staff. Bowen did this.

It may seem a little extreme to suggest that the University "could be the greatest center of higher education in the world," but Bowen qualified his speech in the best academic tradition.

IF, he said, faculty, students, administration and everyone else pitches in with the old college try, we COULD be the best ever. Well, there might be some folks at Oxford, Harvard, Yale and a few other institutions who would raise their eyebrows at that, but it's unquestionably true that the more one gives to his education, the more he receives.

The rest of Bowen's address was a justifiably proud review of the state of the University. More funds, new buildings, more students, better faculty — they are appropriately feathers in his mortar board.

The University has, in fact, made significant progress under Bowen's leadership, and as students we should be grateful that he and his staff are in charge.

But as Bowen noted, bricks and books do not a university make. "They are only the means of a good education," he said. It is the intangible "spirit" of which he spoke that is most important. That has to come from us.

President's enthusiasm for University's future isn't an impossible dream

Pres. Bowen said Monday in his address at the Induction Ceremony that the University "could become the greatest center of higher education in the world." The President's remark may not be as much of an impossible dream as some people think.

In the past decade or so, more and more people have noted the increase in the quality of education available at the large public institutions of the country. The traditionally superior schools such as Oxford, Harvard and Yale seem to be slipping from their exalted positions when compared with many of the public universities, led by the University of California, Berkeley. Indeed, the comment that Berkeley is now the greatest university in the world does not seem to be far-fetched.

The better quality education being offered at the public universities is evident at gatherings of students from the various types of schools. At a recent gathering of newspaper editors from the major schools in the country, it was the editors from the University of Wisconsin and the University of Pennsylvania who stood out intellectually. And their knowledge seemed to be considerably more relevant to the problems of the world today than did the knowledge of the editors from the private schools.

The president's enthusiasm about the future of the University is not unrealistic. The degree of academic freedom existing here especially contributes to the greatness. But as the president said, it will take the combined excellence of the students, faculty, administration and facilities to make the University even greater.

Why are Californians native Midwesterners?

By WILLIAM LLOYD
For The Daily Iowan

"Californians just don't leave California," I've been chided. "They leave places like Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas — the Midwest is a place to leave from: California is a place to go to. It's no wonder so many Californians are native Midwesterners."

It's hard to argue against logic like that but, as far as Californians never leaving California, if my emigration is any indication, it's a myth. (Why, just this summer a very good friend of mine moved to Pennsylvania from California). Certainly I don't begrudge California for the 20 years I have called it home. But like anyone, one invariably tires of the same old scenery — though California's is considerable indeed. So I tell the skeptic Midwesterners, don't underestimate the allure of the cornfield, the miles and miles of geographical mediocrity — the plains — and snow in the winter, to one who has never experienced these before.

Of course, I didn't come over 1,000 miles just to extol the praises of the Midwest. I came to attend the University — another fact which seems incredible to some. They cite the fact that I could have gone to UCLA or USC for almost nothing because California state colleges are state supported. So I tell them UCLA has no degree in my major field and USC would cost me, as a commuter, as much as it is costing me as a resident at Iowa.

But, for all my efforts, an aura of disbelief seems to linger still. Somehow, they think, I must be putting them on. Anyone who's lived his life in Farmland U.S.A. knows that California is the unattainable ideal, the Utopian escape. Well that's just it, I haven't and don't know.

I will concede one thing, I would never submit to psychoanalysis. I, indeed, can never be sure of my hidden motivations. Coming to Iowa might have been a subconscious return to the cradle for me, whose parents, like everyone else, resided in the Midwest in the early thirties. Or, I keep thinking, if California is really where it's at, as they say, maybe I never was there — where it's at, I mean. Could I have been a failure as a Californian? I never was the teeny-bopper type, although I enjoyed and do enjoy rock 'n roll. I never demonstrated on the Sunset Strip nor rode the surf at Malibu (well, on a surfboard, that is). The closest I came to digging the hippie scene was attending a love-in and subscribing to the local free press. And I took — well, you know — only once.

So maybe I really didn't make the scene and Iowa was where I subconsciously thought I would. Well, if that was the case, the outlook doesn't look encouraging.

For what I've seen in only a couple short weeks here is certainly hearty testimony to the enterprising Midwesterners. With what little they, ostensibly, have to work with, they do an awful lot. The University is definitely where it's at — forward looking, a center of intellectualism. But what's important is what's made it that way — the kids — every bit as "where it's at," in my humble judgment, as the West Coast kids whom they seem to admire and some to emulate. They dress, act, and indeed look like Californians — or maybe I've got it all wrong and it is we native Californians who are the emulators.

At any rate, I am looking forward to my two years here in Iowa. (I have really tried my darndest to be a cynic. So many seem to be that I sometimes feel I'm missing the boat. But it's just that everything they tell me about Iowa is a curiosity to me, if indeed old hat to them). I really feel I could fit in here. But I must admit I have an ulterior motive. It will be a never ending joy for me to correct the misconceptions the Iowan has about California — as I'm sure it will be for the Iowan about Iowa to me — the correct pronunciation of Gov. Ronald Reagan's name (Ray-gan), what it's really like in sun, sand, and surf, or what is smog? You know, it may even be more fun telling about California than it was living there.

Coed replies to IFWC on hippie clampdown

To the Editor:
The State Board of Regents should clamp down on hippies in the Iowa Federation of Women's Clubs (IFWC) who want to become a bad influence on the students at state educational institutions.

The 18,800-member student body of the University should adopt a resolution proposing that the IFWC mind its own alleged business and leave the Board of Regents free to "exercise its rightful position" in matters of great concern to the university system in Iowa. The Board of Regents has enough problems dealing with pertinent, pressing matters in the state educational institutions without having to pacify a group of ladies who are concerned with maintaining someone else's "high standards of moral decency and health."

This letter was drafted after I considered reports of tranquilizers, sexual unattractiveness, general conformity — and dirty minds — among little old ladies in women's clubs.

Couple disagrees with movie review

To the Editor:
We disagree with Nicholas Meyer's appraisal in Friday's edition of The Daily Iowan of Jewison's "In the Heat of the Night" on at least two levels — whether the action was real, and whether the character which Sidney Poitier portrayed was genuine and believable.

Are the Mississippi small town and the actors who portrayed its town folks — the mayor, the industrialist's wife, the murderer, the young bullies, the patrolman — unreal or false? Is the ending of the story in which it is evident that the town folk have altered their attitude toward, opinion about, and relationship with Negroes little if at all, but that the one who had to work closely with a Negro and, realizing for the first time the black man's ability and humanness, had the courage to change — is this unrealistic or exaggerated? Granted, a middle-aged small town police chief does not usually change overnight, but that the racial attitudes of individuals, even bigots, cannot change in the situation and relationship in which Steiger found himself, fails to recognize man's freedom in overcoming social mores. Granted, the more typical situation may have been an unsolved murder, an early departure by a Negro detective, and a forever unbending police chief, but to accept this as universal is also ignorance.

Without commenting on Poitier's total acting ability, we feel the Negro detective was believable and genuine. Perhaps the criminological talents were stretched. We can't evaluate that. There is occasionally a stiffness in his manner, but on the whole he communicates a grace, and a reserve in keeping with educated and sensitive reactions to the emotionalism and blundering methods he encounters. The movie maintains an intensity in the complexity of its relationships which Poitier infuses with the controlled pride one would expect to see in a person of intelligence and skill who happens to be a northern Negro in today's transitional South.

Disposal creates municipal crisis in New York

NEW YORK — Those new paper mini-skirts, aluminum beer cans and no-return bottles are about to bring on a series of municipal crises in the United States, Fortune magazine reports. The convenience items are attractive to the people who use them, but they're a $3-billion headache annually to the cities that have to dispose of them when they go into the refuse can.

New Yorkers, each of whom generates some eight pounds of rubbish a day (double that of 40 years ago), pay in taxes about $30 a ton to have their garbage collected, carted away, and disposed of. That is three times the cost of a ton of West Virginia coal, mined and delivered in New York. The reason, in part, is that coal mining and distribution is a big, highly organized and mechanized industry; garbage disposal is an antiquated, piecemeal, hand-collection operation, seldom conducted on the big-scale regional basis that could lower costs and answer the where-to-put-it question.

Much garbage is burned — (particularly abroad) with valuable by-products of heat and salvaged materials. But no-return bottles and aluminum cans don't burn readily. Nor do paper dresses that have been fireproofed for safety. And incinerators present their own air-pollution problems.

A possible solution is cooperation by many communities to build a big, regional waste-disposal pipeline system. A new type of utility company — perhaps modeled after Comsat, the communications satellite corporation — would construct and operate a pipe network to which every plant and household's garbage grinder would be connected. The slurry of waste gathered by this network would be processed for salvage of heat and materials, with the residue converted into agricultural compost, irrigation water, and fertilizer.

-Institute 50 Years Old- 'Normal' Child Stars

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles written by Peter W. Roberts of the University News and Information Service.

Normal children tend to be seen but not noticed. Attention goes instead to gifted or handicapped children, the juvenile delinquent or the over-sized basketball player.

But the "normal" child is the primary concern of the Institute of Child Behavior and Development, and 1967 marks the 50th year it has done research on the psychological and physical characteristics of children from neonate (young infant) to adolescent.

Immediate payoff is not the emphasis of the Institute's research, although some findings can be used immediately by psychiatrists, dentists and others.

The Institute's dedication to basic research since 1917 has supplied information for 2,000 books and articles, the titles of which are now being compiled in a 50th anniversary bibliography.

Preschool Child Studied
Some research subjects are measurement of intellectual and physical growth, learning, motivation and perception of the preschool child. Others are parent education, personality and social development, and preschool education.

Charles C. Spiker, director of the Institute since 1960, is the Institute's fifth director. The late Bird T. Baldwin, was director for the first 11 years and did research in child psychology and the anatomical and physiological characteristics of children.

He was followed by George D. Stoddard, director from 1928 to 1942, whose specialty was intelligence, particularly as influenced by heredity and environment.

Stoddard later became president of the University of Illinois and is now distinguished professor of education at New York University.

Robert Sears, dean of arts and sciences at the University of California at Berkeley, was the director from 1942 to 1949, and a Boyd McCandless, now at Emory University, was director for the nine years before Spiker took the position.

Sears concentrated on personality development and child rearing, and McCandless specialized in social behavior, including fears of young children and the relation of personality and body build.

Staff Of 11
Spiker speaks with pride about the dedication of the Institute's staff, which has numbered no more than 11 full time professors at any one time since 1917.

To some extent the work of the Institute gets as little attention as the normal child. Spiker says that some of the best work gets the attention only of other scholars in the field. Some research which has attracted public notice are the intelligence findings by Beth Wellman in the 1930's, personality work by Sears in the late 1940's, and recent writings on preventive psychiatry by Ralph Ojemann, who retired from the University this year after almost 40 years of service, Spiker added.

The Institute has often provided leadership for the rest of the field, Spiker said. He said that some scholars had criticized research conducted by Stoddard, Sears and McCandless, and particularly to the Institute's extensive experimentation with children.

Institute Founder

Spiker recalls that with each innovation the critics "looked back with approval" on previous findings, forgetting that they had also found fault with them.

Now the Institute is being criticized for its extensive use of mathematical theory in the study of basic variables in child behavior.

"Iowa has gone off the deep end," some critics are saying, now looking back approvingly at "the good safe experimental approach," he explained.

Institute Proud Of Past
"The Institute usually pays a good price for its leadership role in terms of current popularity," Spiker said, "but we have an intense pride in the past achievements of this unit."

The history of the Institute, believed to be the first organization in North America devoted to the study of normal children, began with a struggle.

It was created by the Iowa legislature after a 16-year crusade by a Des Moines woman who wanted to "give the normal child the same scientific study by research methods that we give to crops and cattle."

Cora Bussey Hillis, a 20-year-old bride about 1900 found herself with the responsibility of rearing her crippled infant sister.

She discovered that "there was no well-defined science of child-rearing" and concluded "the oceans of stale textbook theory" through which she waded were the work of "bachelor professors or elderly teachers with no actual personal contact with youth."

Mrs. Hillis' ambition was to "establish an accredited child welfare research laboratory . . . study (the child's) inheritance, racially, physically, temperamentally, and socially; his prenatal development, infancy, childhood, adolescence, and youth."

"Learn how the normal child develops in body, mind and spirit, and gradually evolve a science of child rearing by accumulated, comparative data and by intensive study of selected groups carried on through the years under natural conditions and in a controlled environment."

Presidents Hesitate
But it wasn't easy.

Between 1901 and 1914 Mrs. Hillis approached four presidents of Iowa State University and the University without convincing them that immediate steps should be taken to put the study of child culture on the same level with the study of corn culture.

But then Thomas H. Macbride, president of the University, declared, "I believe we can do something along this line," and the idea won the support of Carl E. Seashore, dean of the Graduate College and a prominent scholar who developed psychological tests to measure talents in children.

The bill, submitted to the 1915 General Assembly, which would have appropriated $25,000 for establishing the child welfare bureau, was defeated at the same time the Legislature voted $25,000 for a sheep barn at the state fair grounds.

But during the 1917 session Mrs. Hillis' bill was enacted, and the Institute had become a neate itself.

The Institute's "block room" provides children a chance to spend a week building a "city" out of blocks — and they don't have to put their toys away. Read about it in the concluding article in this series in Thursday's Daily Iowan.

Chicago Lawyer To Defend Seydel

By SALLY ALT
Asst. News Editor
There is a chance that a Chicago lawyer will defend a West Branch youth who has been charged by Iowa City Police with possession and control (sale) of marijuana.

Police Court Judge Marion Neely said Tuesday that a young woman, whom he did not identify, had telephoned him that arrangements were being made for a lawyer from Chicago to handle the case.

The youth, Donald M. Seydel, 19, was arrested Friday along with Walter E. Kellison Jr., 20, Cedar Rapids; and Richard J. Roehlk, 20, Cedar Rapids.

Kellison is a University freshman and it is believed that Roehlk also is a University student, but the Registrar's Office could not confirm this Tuesday.

Released On Bond
Kellison and Roehlk have been released on $2,000 bond. They are being represented by Philip A. Left, an Iowa City attorney.

The youths' arraignment was scheduled for Monday, but Neely continued it until Friday at Left's request. Neely said at that time he would appoint an attorney for Seydel Tuesday if Seydel had not retained one by that time.

Neely said Tuesday that he would wait until today to hear if Seydel had actually retained the Chicago attorney before he would appoint one.

Seydel was still in Johnson County Jail Tuesday in lieu of $3,000 bond. Neely said that Seydel's bond was higher than that of the other two youths because Seydel was the "key man."

Under Surveillance
Police Chief Patrick McCarney said Friday that police had had one of the youths under surveillance for some time, but he declined to say which one.

McCarney said that Seydel's bond was higher because he had

In another marijuana case, Ruth Roser, 29, was indicted Monday by a Johnson County grand jury for possession of narcotic drugs.

Miss Roser, A2, Williamsburg, was arrested on Aug. 23 by Iowa City police who charged that they found marijuana in her Iowa City apartment.

Romney To Toss Hat In Ring

DETROIT — Michigan Gov. George Romney will visit Europe in November and plans to announce his candidacy for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination before leaving. The Associated Press has learned.

A source close to Romney said the governor will declare formally his candidacy after he returns from a tour of urban centers in the nation this weekend, possibly soon after.

Romney, in Atlanta Tuesday on stop No. 13 of his urban tour, commented on the report by saying "I'll make up my mind before the first of the year." He added "I haven't decided" when asked if he had a specific date for announcing his candidacy. Other Romney aides in Lansing, the state capital, declined to comment on any announcement of Romney's candidacy.

But Jonathan Moore, his adviser on foreign affairs who has been working on details of the European trip, said a schedule of stops that includes Poland and the Soviet Union behind the Iron Curtain "is roughly accurate."

Romney is also known to be trying to obtain prime television time to make a report to the nation on his current tour which has featured stops in cities that have experienced racial rioting or unrest.

Melrose Guidelines Set

The City Council established preliminary guidelines for the new Melrose Avenue at its informal council meeting Monday.

There was no council meeting Tuesday night, the regular meeting time, because a special session has been set for Friday afternoon to authorize City Manager Frank R. Smiley to proceed with planning for the Melrose Avenue project.

Melrose Avenue is expected to be the principal entrance to Iowa City from the west when Highway 218 is relocated as the west bypass. At its east end, Melrose Avenue will cross the Iowa River on the proposed new Melrose-Court Bridge.

The guidelines included two sets of two 12-foot lanes divided by a 25-foot median through the Iowa City portion of Melrose Avenue west of Sunset Street to the new Highway 218 relocation.

Two sets of three 12-foot lanes, divided by a median wide enough to permit "storage" of left-turning cars at intersections, are planned for the avenue between the Iowa River and University Heights.

Councilmen said they believed University Heights planned to build its portion of the new street within the existing 80-foot right of way, thus reducing the median strip to a minimum.

Smiley asked that the guidelines permit city engineers to proceed with planning and acquisition of right-of-way.

-Wheeler Eyes Haiphong- Port Bombing Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Earle G. Wheeler described as a "peanut" target the one North Vietnamese port raided by American warplanes and he called for action against the now-forbidden harbor of Haiphong.

Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reported a difference in judgment within the administration on this and said: "I have come down on the side that we could undertake actions against the port of Haiphong."

His suggestions on the nature of those actions were deleted by Pentagon censors.

His Aug. 15 testimony before the Senate preparedness subcommittee, made public Tuesday, acknowledged that raids on the harbor could hit Communist bloc shipping and pose the danger of a wider Vietnamese war.

Shipping Damaged
"On (deleted) two occasions," he noted, "our air strikes on target areas near the harbor areas have accidentally damaged Soviet shipping."

But he said militarily, action against Haiphong is one of the most important steps the United States could take.

"The other two ports, Cam Pha and Hon Hai, are peanuts," Wheeler testified. "They are not."

GEN. EARLE G. WHEELER

ing of any great importance. Haiphong is the important port."

On Sept. 11, nearly a month after Wheeler's Senate appearance, U.S. navy bombers struck Cam Pha, a port used primarily for the export of coal.

Dealing with other aspects, Wheeler said the Vietnam war would end in a relatively short time if the Communists could be denied support from the Soviet Union, estimated at about $670 million in military aid this year.

Soviet Aid Cited

"There is no question but that lacking support in the Soviet Union—that is, getting the means of war—that any sizable conflict would be impossible for the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong, there is just no question about it," Wheeler said.

He said the same thing is true, to a lesser degree, of Red Chinese support, estimated at about 25 per cent of North Vietnam's supplies.

Dr. Edward E. Mason, professor of surgery, will lead the program with a discussion of the physiology and biochemistry of sodium in man.

9 Engineers Join Faculty Of College

Nine new faculty members have joined the College of Engineering.

They are William F. Ames, professor of mechanics and hydraulics; Bernard L. Meyers, associate professor of civil engineering; Richard R. Dague, assistant professor of electrical engineering; Ching-Jen Chen and Paul D. Scholz, assistant professors of mechanical engineering; Ernest Larisch, visiting associate professor of mechanical engineering; John S. Ramberg, lecturer in industrial engineering; and George W. Brown, part-time assistant professor of civil engineering.

Ames earned his B.S. in mathematics from the University of Wisconsin in 1949 and his M.S. in mathematics from there in 1950. Since 1959 he has been a research assistant professor and professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Delaware. In 1963-64 he was a National Science Foundation science faculty fellow and visiting professor of chemical engineering at Stanford University. He has also been a service engineer and senior engineer for E.I. duPont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del.

Meyers was awarded his B.C.E. from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn in 1958, his M.C.E. from the University of Missouri in 1960 and his Ph.D. from Cornell University in 1967. From 1958 to 1964 he was an instructor and assistant professor of civil engineering at the University of Missouri.

Lecturer at Kansas State

Dague, a native of Little Sioux, was awarded a B.S. from Iowa State University in 1959, an M.S. from there in 1960 and a Ph.D. in environmental nuclear engineering from the University of Kansas in 1967. While working on his doctorate, he was an assistant professor at Kansas State University.

Malik, who graduated from high school in Cedar Rapids, earned a B.S. in 1959 and an M.S. in 1960 from the University and a Ph.D. in 1964 from Iowa State University. Since then, he has been an assistant professor at Kansas State University.

Chen received a diploma in 1957 from the Taipei Institute of Technology, an equivalent B.S. in mechanical engineering in 1961 from Kansas State University and an M.S. from there in 1962. He was awarded his Ph.D. from Kansas State University in August.

Scholz earned a B.S.M.E. from the University of Washington in 1960, an M.S.M.E. from Northwestern University in 1965 and a Ph.D. there this month. From 1960-62 he was a mechanical engineer at the U.S. Naval Ordnance Test Station at Pasadena, Calif.

Larisch, a native of Romania, was in the French Office of Aerospace Research from 1963 until becoming a visiting professor of mechanical engineering this fall. From 1954 to 1962 he was in the aerodynamical department of the Institute of Applied Mechanics of Bucharest. He studied aeronautical engineering at the Polytechnic Institute of Bucharest and theoretical physics at the University of Bucharest. He has a doctorate in sciences apptiques degree from the University of Paris.

Ramberg received a B.E.E. in 1961 from the University of Minnesota and an M.S. in 1966 from Cornell University and will be a candidate for a Ph.D. from Cornell in February. He has been a teaching and research assistant at Cornell as well as a lecturer in the summer session there. From 1961 to 1963 he worked in the applied statistics department of the Procter and Gamble Co.

Brown, who is a clinical assistant professor of anatomy in the College of Medicine, joined the University faculty in 1966, earned B.A., M.S. and Ph.D. from the University in 1940, 1942 and 1952, respectively.

Waterloo Police Cracking Down

WATERLOO (AP)—Police officials say they are cracking down on troublemakers following four straight nights of disturbances by marauding bands of Negro youths.

Twenty eight Negroes were arrested and charged with disturbing the public quiet or violation of the city's 10 p.m. curfew for minors Monday night when trouble broke out at the National Dairy Cattle Center.

Officials said a number of people were roughed up as they left the Congress grounds. One purse was snatched and a Congress booth was robbed of $400, they said.

10 Profs Join Dentistry Staff

Ten new persons with the rank of assistant professor or above have joined the College of Dentistry, including two who have taught at the University previously. In addition, Dr. Eigil Moersch of Denmark will join the college in October to head a new Department of Community Dentistry.

Dr. Klaus Nuki is a new professor who will head the histology-histochemistry dental research laboratory at Oakdale.

New assistant professors and their departments are Drs. William C. Rubright and Surendray Mankodi, periodontology; Stephen Hon Yin Wei and Ronald Johnson, pedodontics; Robert D. Fleming, oral diagnosis; Harold L. Hammond, oral diagnosis and oral pathology; Theodore L. Ludwig, denture prosthesis and Jagdish Chadha and John M. Grewe, orthodontics.

Nuki earned an L.D.S. from the Royal College of Surgeons in London in 1954, a B.D.S. from the University of London in 1955 and an M.S. from the University of Illinois in 1961. From 1961 until he came to the University, he was a lecturer in oral medicine, pathology and periodontia at the London Hospital Medical College, University of London. Other positions he has held have been with Queen Victoria Hospital as resident dental surgeon, 1954 to 1956; the University of Illinois in the Department of Oral Pathol-

Negro Enters Training Class For Troopers

DES MOINES (AP)—The Executive Council authorized the Iowa Highway Patrol Tuesday to convene a training class for new troopers Nov. 12.

There are 30 applications for the 20 current vacancies on the patrol, reports Public Safety Commissioner Jack Fulton, and one of them is a Negro.

No Negro has ever reached the ranks of patrolmen. Two applicants for the last class, in 1965, were rejected before entering training, Fulton said.

The six-week training course is to be conducted at Camp Dodge. Candidates will be fed, housed and paid $50 a week during the course of instruction. Starting pay for patrolmen is $25 a month.

Bias Charged

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored people charged in 1965 that Negroes were "systematically excluded" from the Highway Patrol.

Robert Wright, president of the Des Moines chapter, urged that the state make an effort to recruit Negroes to insure that the patrol is "not all lily white."

Fulton, who was not public safety commissioner at that time, said Tuesday he was not aware of any systematic exclusion of Negroes.

He said he sees no particular advantage or disadvantage to having Negroes on the patrol.

Screening Begins

District lieutenants will begin screening interviews for the applicants next week, said Fulton. He said by the time the class opens there may be 25 vacancies.

The patrol has an authorized strength of 400. Training classes are scheduled when vacancies—through retirement or resignation—reach a number large enough to make up a class, he said.

"We are interested in a man who wants to make a career of public service," said Col. Howard Miller, chief of the patrol. "We challenge you to see whether you are good enough to become an Iowa Highway Patrolman."

Applications still are being accepted.

HACAP Hires New Official

The appointment of Mrs. Wynon H. Hadley to an associate director position with the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP) has been announced by Duane C. Schaffner, HACAP director.

Mrs. Hadley, 31, of Daytona Beach, Fla., will have primary responsibility for two HACAP programs, the Johnson County Youth Corps (NYC) and the Neighborhood Outreach program.

The NYC is a work-training program established by the Economic Opportunity Act. It offers gainful work experience for disadvantaged youth between the ages of 16 and 22.

The Bureau of Work Programs of the U.S. Department of Labor has granted HACAP $32,190 to operate the NYC project for 1967-68.

The first youths enrolled under the new grant started work Monday. Thirty youths from Johnson County will be assigned to one of these work stations:

DI Joins New Group Of Student Papers

The Daily Iowan is a charter member of a new student newspaper organization for the newspapers of the nation's largest colleges and universities.

The organization, called the Student Editor's Association (SEA), was formed in Detroit last week. According to DI editor, William B. Newbrough, the organization will provide news of activities and controversies on other campuses to member papers and will be a mutual assistance organization for the editors.

Newbrough said Tuesday that many editors faced administration pressures concerning policies of their papers. Some editors have been fired because of what they printed in their newspapers.

SEA will help any editor who is fired, according to Newbrough, by setting up a newspaper not directly dependent on the school. This assistance will come in the form of manpower contributed by other member papers and money

Griffith's Managers Hope Flags Will Psych Fighter Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Griffith's managers feel that the former middleweight champion is physically ready to dethrone Nino Benvenuti Thursday night and all that he needs now is a psychological lift to beat the Italian.

So they will distribute 5,000 American flags at the gates of

"But Emile was burned up just as much by the rooting for Benvenuti as in losing the fight. The Italians waved Italian flags and yelled Nee-no all through the fight.

"This is Emile's home and he was very upset that there was more rooting for the foreigner than there was for him.

"He is very emotional and that could have been a factor in the fight. Co-manager Gil Clancy and I feel, too, that this kind of rooting has a tendency to influence the judges. They hear all that noise and they must figure that Benvenuti did something they didn't see, perhaps.

"Anyway we're going to give away 5,000 flags — linen ones nine inches by six inches — and encourage the fans to root for A-meeel. That should help counter-act the Italians yelling for Nee-no.

"The fighting Emile will take care of. He knows the mistakes he made in losing — especially that he didn't punch enough and throw enough punches to the body. It's going to be different Thursday night."

Italians Arrive
While Albert was getting his flags ready, Italians by the plane loads started arriving at Kennedy Airport from Milan, Bologna and Rome. Garden officials said they expected 2,000 or more to come in for the 15-rounder.

Maybe in anticipation of the Italians coming with money to bet on their pride and joy, the odds on the fight swung in Benvenuti's favor in Reno, Nev., where betting is legal.

A Reno bookmaker made the champion from Trieste a 7-5 favorite, while Griffith was held at even money. In the man-to-man odds, it was 6-5 favoring Benvenuti.

The fighters, meanwhile, limbered up at their Catskill Mountain training camps. Both have finished their boxing preparations.

EMILE GRIFFITH
'He's Very Emotional'

Shea Stadium before the fight, to help promote rooting support for the high-strung New Yorker.

"Emile is as ready as he'll ever be," said Howie Albert, one of his co-managers, Tuesday. "He admits he fought a lousy fight when he lost to Benvenuti at the Garden last April 17.

Chicago Will Win AL Flag Chase, Says Card Boss

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals indicated Tuesday that he expects to be back in Chicago next week to start the World Series against the White Sox.

Schoendienst, whose National League champions are in town for a two-game series with the Chicago Cubs, did not come right out and pick the White Sox for the American League pennant.

"All I can tell you is what our minor league managers and major league scouts told me when they were in St. Louis recently for an organization meeting," said Schoendienst.

"They picked the White Sox on the strength of pitching alone."

The season ends Sunday.

Injuns Scalp Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Light-hitting Chico Salmon drove in three runs with a homer and a double to offset Carl Yastrzemski's 43rd homer as the Cleveland Indians jolted Boston's pennant hopes with a 6-3 victory over the Red Sox Tuesday.

Salmon, who carried a .222 batting average into the game, hurt the Red Sox by doubling home the first run and then scoring himself in the second.

He capped his personal slugging spree by hoisting a two-run shot into the left field screen in the sixth for his second homer of the season.

Cleveland scored its third run on a throwing error as the Boston defense collapsed behind starter Gary Bell in the third. Chuck Hinton's 10th homer leading off the sixth against Jose Santiago accounted for the Indians' other run. The Red Sox were unable to break through Cleveland right-hander Luis Tiant until the seventh.

Jose Tartabull launched the three-run uprising with a one-out pop single to shallow right. Jerry Adair followed with a line single to the same sector, Tartabull stopping at second.

Yastrzemski, who lined his 31st double to right center in the fifth, looked at a ball and then lifted a tremendous drive into the centerfield bleachers.

The blast boosted Yastrzemski's league lead in homers and in runs batted in to 115. He also leads in batting with a .319 average in a bid for the triple crown.

In addition, his 43 homers tied him with Ted Williams for the most hits by a left-handed hitter in Red Sox history.

Bell, who had defeated his former teammates three straight times since being acquired from Cleveland in June, ran into trouble in the second inning.

Tony Horton, sent to Cleveland in the Bell deal, singled and scored as Salmon lined his double into the left field corner. Salmon came around on two in-field outs.

Tiant was credited with a hit when his soft liner popped out of Jerry Adair's glove to start the third. Bell retired the next two batters, but Max Alvis lifted a high fly to short center.

Reggie Smith, Adair and Rico Petrocelli converged on the pop, but the ball fell safely. Smith then uncorked a throw into the Cleveland dugout permitting Tiant to score.

Meet The Hawkeyes...

GREG ALLISON

EDITOR'S NOTE: 'Meet The Hawkeyes' is a series of sketches about current Iowa football players. This introductory series will be run throughout the season in The Daily Iowan sports section.

GREG ALLISON, 6-1, 210-pounds, from San Diego, Calif., is an outstanding sophomore prospect. He is Iowa's starting defensive guard and coaches predict a bright future for him.

BOB ANDERSON

Head Coach Ray Nagel calls him, "one of the best defensive guards in the conference."

Allison is strong, quick and loves contact. He played at Lincoln High School in San Diego and was Southern California's prep Lineman of the Year in 1965. He played in the Shrine Game in the Los Angeles Coliseum, one of the top prep all-state attractions in the country.

BOB ANDERSON, 5-11, 195-pounds, from Chatfield, Minn., is Iowa's senior place kicking specialist. He has led the Hawkeyes in scoring the past two seasons, with 28 points as a sophomore and 24 as a junior.

His record to date is 12 of 18 field goals and 22 straight extra points. His longest kick is 42 yards.

Anderson is a dedicated worker, practicing the year round. He did not play high school football.

Florida Back Tops Nation In Offense

NEW YORK (AP) — Kim Hammond, the Florida State quarterback who rolled up an astonishing 325 yards passing and rushing against Alabama's usually air-tight defenses, is pacing the nation's major colleges in passing and total offense.

The 6-foot-1 senior from Melbourne, Fla., stunned the formidable Alabama football team by completing 23 of 40 passes for 280 yards and three touchdowns in the shocking 37-37 tie Saturday night.

In two games, Hammond has amassed 470 yards in total offense. He leads the passers, with 38 of 69 for .551, 407 yards, and five touchdowns.

Completions determine the leaders, reported the National Collegiate Sports Services in releasing the official statistics Tuesday.

MacArthur Lane of Utah State tops the rushers with 332 yards in two games. Jim Cavanaugh of William and Mary is first in pass receiving with 19 grabs for 214 yards in three games.

Ken Juszkowich, a soccer-style hooter from West Virginia, paces the scorers with 28 points in three games on six field goals in seven tries and 10 of 10 extra points.

Lolich Cuffs Yankees, 1-0, As Tigers Stay Alive In AL

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Lolich kept Detroit's dim-pennant hopes alive Tuesday night when he shut out New York on four hits and beat the Yankees 1-0.

The victory ended a two-game losing streak for the fourth place Tigers and kept them 1 1/2 games behind first place Minnesota, which defeated California 7-3 Tuesday.

Detroit which has only four games left to play, also is one-half game back of both Boston and Chicago. The Red Sox were beaten by Cleveland 6-3 and the White Sox were rained out at Kansas City.

Lolich, who evened his record at 13-13, struck out five. Stottlemyre allowed just three hits in the eight innings he worked and lost his 15th.

Cincinnati Gets Okay For New AFL Team

CINCINNATI (AP) — Milt Woodard, president of the American Football League, announced Tuesday night that Cincinnati had been awarded officially an AFL franchise and it went to Paul Brown and his associates.

Woodard said that it was purely "an academic situation," that the proposed Cincinnati Stadium might not be available until the 1970 season.

With his regular jockey, Braulio Baeza, in the saddle and paced by two stablemates, Buckpasser went the first eighth in 12-3/5 seconds, the quarter in :24-3/5, the three-eighths in :36-1/5, the half mile in :47-4/5 and the five-eighths in :59-4/5.

"We wanted him to go in about 1:12," said trainer Eddie Nely. "But I have to be pleased with the work."

Iowa Runners Open Defense Of Big 10 Title

Iowa's defending Big 10 Cross Country champs open their season at Illinois Saturday — with the same five runners who streaked to the title in 1966.

No. 1 on Coach Francis Cretzmeyer's list of returnees is of course Larry Wiczorek. Wiczorek is the conference champion and record holder for four miles.

He'll lead a supporting cast of veterans Steve Szabo, Curt LaBond, Rollie Kitt, Ron Griffith and Carl Frazier through a season of nine dual meets, the conference championships and the NCAA title meet.

Wiczorek broke two course records in dual meets, in addition to his Big 10 championship. He was also a third place finisher over a six-mile course in the NCAA meet.

Cretzmeyer, now in his 20th season here, had another conference championship team in 1966. He has groomed five second place teams, three of which finished third in the NCAA. In 1966 the Hawkeyes were fourth.

THE SCHEDULE
Sept. 29 — At Illinois.
Oct. 7 — At Notre Dame.
Oct. 14 — Indiana, Ohio State at Bloomington.
Oct. 21 — Drake, Minnesota at Des Moines.
Oct. 28 — Chicago Track Club, Nov. 4 — Minnesota.
Nov. 11 — At Northwestern.
Nov. 18 — Big 10 at Evanston.
Nov. 27 — NCAA at Laramie, Wyo.

Buckpasser Steps 6-Furlongs In 1:11

NEW YORK (AP) — Buckpasser, 6-5 choice to whip Damascus and Dr. Fager in Saturday's $100,000 — added Woodward at Aqueduct, stepped six furlongs in 1:11 in his final workout Tuesday.

With his regular jockey, Braulio Baeza, in the saddle and paced by two stablemates, Buckpasser went the first eighth in 12-3/5 seconds, the quarter in :24-3/5, the three-eighths in :36-1/5, the half mile in :47-4/5 and the five-eighths in :59-4/5.

"We wanted him to go in about 1:12," said trainer Eddie Nely. "But I have to be pleased with the work."

Big 4 Ministers Meet With Thant

UNITED NATIONS — The Big Four foreign ministers met privately here Tuesday night with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant to discuss world problems.

But none would venture to predict that the meeting would produce an agreement on Vietnam, the Middle East or anything else. The occasion was a "discussion dinner" in Thant's office suite with no set agenda and every participant entitled to raise any subject he pleased.

Ministers Meet
Secretary of State Dean Rusk, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and British Foreign Secretary George Brown arrived at U.N. headquarters in that order and took an elevator to the 38th-floor suite. Vietnam and the Middle East were expected to dominate the discussion.

But the positions publicly stated on those questions here lately were so hard that little hope was held out for any progress on either.

'Balance Sought'
Britain's Brown, speaking in the U.N. General Assembly Tuesday, called for a "balanced settlement" of the war in Vietnam based on the 1954 Geneva agreements. He said negotiations should start immediately even before the shooting and bombing stop.

In a 47-minute policy speech in the 122-nation assembly's general debate, Brown complained that North Vietnam "has declined to grasp the many opportunities to negotiate which have been offered." He said his position was similar to the one U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg stated in the assembly Thursday.
