CON THIEN, Vietnam (AP) — It looks like a grim winter for U.S. Marines based on this and other outposts in the northern region of South Vietnam — an area where the Marines so far this year have lost about 2,500 dead and more than 20,000 wounded.

For the first time in the Vietnamese war, U.S. and enemy casualties may be approaching a 1-1 ratio in this area. Many of the enemy casualties are in territory the Marines can't enter, and so are not subject to tally, but a senior Marine says, "We believe he is suffering at least as many as us, and maybe more."

This 1st Corps area has had "a pretty unpleasant summer," as one senior U.S.

Harry H. Wade, Former UI Prof, Dies In Florida

From University News Service
MIAMI, Fla. — Funeral services were held here Monday for Harry Henchell Wade, former professor and head of the University of Iowa Department of Accounting, who died here on Sept. 30. He was 68.

Professor Wade spent 29 years on the University faculty, the last five as department head, before leaving in 1955 to join the staff of the University of Miami. He was the author of "Fundamentals of Accounting," a textbook which appeared in three editions in the 16 years after its publication in 1934.

He was born Feb. 1, 1899, in Pittsburgh, Penn., son of the late Dr. Charles Eugene Wade and Lillian Jane Wade. He received a B.S. degree in management engineering from Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1922, became a certified public accountant in 1929, and received an M.A. at the University of Iowa in 1931.

He worked in business firms before joining the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh in 1925 and coming to the University of Iowa in 1926. He was past vice president of the American Accounting Association, and belonged to the American Institute of Accountants, Iowa Society of CPA's, Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary business fraternity, and Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity.

Professor Wade served as an infantry lieutenant in World War I and lieutenant-colonel in World War II. In the latter war he was chief of the accountants branch in the Central Fiscal Office, serving in China, Burma and India.

He is survived by his widow, Rachel; a brother, Byron G. of Philadelphia; and a sister, Mrs. Walter Shaedle of Pittsburgh.

official puts it. Con Thien, a primitive outpost guarding possible invasion routes to South Vietnam, has become the war's lightning rod, drawing savage bombardment from hidden guns in the enemy's sanctuary in Communist North Vietnam, across the Ben Hai River border.

Close to North Vietnam, Con Thien is an easy target for the North's Communists. Senior Marines make little attempt to hide their concern that a need to repel Red thrusts at the demilitarized zone will destroy a concept of battling the Communists elsewhere in the big 1st Corps region.

Marine officers say that painstakingly acquired advantages in key areas already have been eroded because of a need to meet Communists pressure on the demilitarized zone dividing the two Vietnams.

"In the broadest sense," a senior Marine explained, "the enemy purpose is to draw U.S. forces away from the main thrust of the war-destruction of the Communist guerrilla infrastructure, and road and village security. In this he has succeeded. Midsummer last year we had two battalions up at the DMZ. Now we have most of a division. By having to meet the threat at the DMZ we are draining our strength from key population areas."

Results of the pressure are becoming obvious. The South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division in the two northernmost provinces has had to deploy nine of its 12 battalions to protect a handful of pacification teams, leaving few troops for military operations.

The Marine vacuum is partly filled by deployment of increasing number of U.S. Army regiments in the 1st Corps, south of the corps headquarters of Da Nang.

—Fern Aims Toward Tampico, Brownsville—

Texas Braces For Newborn Hurricane

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Newborn Hurricane Fern, following in the wake of her big sister Beulah, churned through the Gulf of Mexico Monday night aiming her might between Tampico and Brownsville.

Officials said that even a near-miss on the Texas Coast by the storm's great winds, high tides and deluges still could be disastrous.

Beulah's winds of more than 100 miles an hour — 160 m.p.h. at her center — hit nearby Brownsville only 13 days ago. Her worst weapon, however, was rains up to 30 inches that flooded a 40,000-square-mile area of South Texas.

Guard Back On Duty

Texas National Guard units, just beginning to rest up from the effects of Beulah's billion-dollar-plus devastation, were ordered back to the Lower Rio Grande Valley Monday night.

The changes deal with section 14, Article

Communication teams and other units from Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and McAllen were on their way again for expected hurricane duty.

A warning went out from the Weather Bureau for persons on the Gulf side of Padre, Mustang and St. Joseph's Islands to watch for rising seas.

Hurricane Beulah hit at Brownsville, Tex., only 13 days ago, with 160 mile an hour winds. The worst effects of the storm, however, came from massive flooding across a 40,000-square-mile area of South Texas.

Levees Shored Up

Almost every Gulf of Mexico hurricane, like Fern, brings with it heavy rains, and weather-worn South Texans could suffer another disastrous blow from more rain.

Pelton To Seek Change In Senate Veto

By BETSY BECKER

A resolution calling for changes in the proposed University of Iowa Student Association Constitution is scheduled to be introduced by Student Body Pres. John Pelton at tonight's Student Senate meeting in the Union Yale Room.

The changes deal with section 14, Article

icle I, of the proposed constitution and minor changes in the writing of certain passages, Pelton said Monday.

The present section 14 states: "No non-academic regulations concerning students or changes in said regulations shall be made without express consent of the Senate."

Pelton said he thinks Pres. Howard R. Bowen would not sign the constitution with the present student veto clause.

Pelton explained that the power to grant veto to the Student Senate lies ultimately in the State Legislature through the Board of Regents.

The proposed change in section 14 would grant that in any matter or regulation concerning the student body, direct and appropriate consultation would take place among the Senate and other directly involved student personnel and the Administration.

"I don't agree with the proposed change completely, but to have Bowen sign the constitution it must be this way," Pelton said.

Pelton said he proposed a student veto

The International Boundary and Water Commission put its crews on alert, trying to shore up Beulah's damaged levees before Fern could strike.

"The whole watershed is saturated, and almost all the rain that falls will run off," said commission chief engineer Bill Walker. "This is a very dangerous situation."

At 3 p.m. Monday, the Weather Bureau said Fern was "an extremely small hurricane" and was moving toward the Mexican Coast.

Small craft warnings already had gone up for storm-hit Port Isabel and Brownsville. The Weather Bureau warned that Fern's gale winds could cause high tides during the night on the Gulf side of Padre Island, once glittering resort and fishing center laid in ruins by Beulah.

Supreme Court Opens Session With New Face

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thurgood Marshall — "kind of jumpy" beforehand, according to his 11-year-old son — took his seat Monday as the first Negro to serve as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

JUSTICE THURGOOD MARSHALL Takes Oath Of Office

President Johnson, who named Marshall to the tribunal in June, witnessed the ceremony at the opening of the court's new term.

Marshall, former chief legal officer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, swore in an oath administered by the court's clerk, John F. Davis, to "administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich."

Several resolutions which were referred to committees at the last senate meeting are slated to be brought to a vote. These include two similar resolutions which called for the senate to endorse the University Housing Committee's report.

FOUR ASSOCIATE DEANS are assisting Dean of Students M. L. Huit (center) in administering the reorganized Office of Student Affairs. They are Helen Reich, associate dean and associate director of the office, who is coordinating the orientation program for freshmen, advising Associated Women Students, and counseling sororities; Roger Augustine (far right), associate dean and director of student activities; Richard Trumpe (left), associate dean for University residences; and James Chapman, associate dean for off-campus residences. Reorganization of the Office of Student Affairs has been carried out to give the office greater flexibility in meeting the needs of the University's expanding enrollment, Huit said.

Business Normal, Despite New Tax

By JO ANN BOLTON

"Business as usual" seemed to be the prevailing atmosphere in most Iowa City stores Monday despite the new 3 per cent sales tax that went into effect Sunday.

The rise in sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent appeared to make little difference in the volume of sales.

"I don't think the public is that overly concerned to make a change in sales," said Steve Richardson, manager of Seifers clothing store.

He said that the only problem might be the transition that sales personnel had to make in figuring the tax. The only other change Richardson could foresee was a service tax covering alterations, which were not taxable before.

Mrs. Martha Wayne of Wayner's Jewelry also mentioned the service tax, which is now charged on repairs of things such as watches. She said the sales tax was causing no problems because she had posted a tax breakdown on the cash register and had briefed all her sales people.

Turner Shuns Service Tax Case, Wants Suit Moved To Des Moines

DES MOINES (AP) — Atty. Gen. Richard Turner disqualifed himself Monday from defending Iowa's new service tax against a legal attack on its constitutionality.

Turner, who said in an advisory opinion last week that at least one section of the act was illegal, bowed out in favor of an as yet unnamed private lawyer.

In a related development, Turner filed a petition in Scott County District Court asking Judge Nathan Grant to move the suit from Davenport to Des Moines. Turner also asked for a continuance of at least two weeks on the hearing for a temporary injunction to block collection of the new tax so he could hire outside counsel.

Meanwhile, Earl Burrows Jr., chairman of the State Tax Commission, advised merchants and service trades to collect the three per cent levy which took effect midnight Saturday.

Burrows said if the courts threw out the tax it would be refunded to those who paid it. "If in doubt," Burrows advised, "charge the tax."

The service tax is the object of a suit filed Friday in Davenport by a group of publishers, broadcasters and advertisers who are seeking to have it nullified on constitutional grounds.

Judge Grant scheduled a hearing Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. on a request for temporary injunction to halt collections.

Turner's advisory opinion, which has no legal standing, said the section of the law extending the tax to advertising was so vague as to render it unconstitutional.

His decision to step aside, he said, stemmed from his duty as attorney general to defend the law's constitutionality.

Bill Booker, a cashier at the Maid-Rite Cafe, had the same trouble.

"It seems to aggravate people," said Booker. "They think I'm shortchanging them if I give them a penny less."

Roxana Ullick, a clerk at Things & Things, said she thought people had shown a general lack of awareness about the tax.

"When did this happen?" was a common question, she said.

Rick Daily, another employee of Things & Things, said, "There is a general feeling of unhappiness about the tax."

Charles Claranian, who works at the Hawkeye Barber Shop, said he had received no complaints from customers about the rise in the price of haircuts. But it was a nuisance for him to figure the tax, he said.

The tax on services seems to pose a greater problem than the sales tax. Many are confused on whether their services will be taxed and have adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

Another dispute surrounds the tax on advertising which is imposed on newspapers, radio and television stations. The advertising tax is to be collected until a suit filed by advertising media.

Roy Dunsmore, business manager of Student Publications, Inc., which runs The Daily Iowan, said, "We hate taxes on advertising." He said he hesitated to say more until the hearing was completed.

"When did this happen?" was a common question, she said.

Rick Daily, another employee of Things & Things, said,

CORALVILLE — Voters here will decide today if their city should annex 10 square miles of land.

Much of the land under question has already been approved for annexation in other votes by both Coralville and Iowa City residents.

The Iowa City annexation is now in the courts. If Iowa City's claim is approved, the land will automatically be removed from the tract voted on today, should it be approved by the voters.

If Coralville's annexation is approved the city will increase in size by seven times. The land under question is north, south and west of the present city limits.

Both Iowa City and the University have objected to the proposed annexation. Iowa City objects because of the court proceedings now in progress and the University objects because it favors annexation of the contested area by Iowa City.

A Coralville lawyer, Donald Diehl, said that Coralville had decided to undertake the annexation for self-protection. If Iowa City wins in its court contest, the only direction Coralville can expand is north.

Coralville To Decide On Annexation Today

By MARY CLARK

The Office of Student Affairs has a new face. The offices of counselors to men and women have been eliminated and four associate deans working under M. L. Huit, dean of students, will be involved in general counseling of both men and women.

Instead of separate counseling services for men and women, the new system provides for a dean of university residences and a dean of off-campus housing. Huit said Monday that this will make it easier to help more students more effectively.

Richard Trumpe, former coordinator of student activities and associate professor of psychology at Illinois State University, is the associate dean of university residences. Trumpe handles the counseling programs with the aid of William Arbes in the men's residence halls, and Barbara Cochran in the women's halls.

James Chapman, associate dean of off-campus housing, is in charge of off-campus housing, fraternity and sorority counseling and their business affairs. Chapman came to the University from Spring Arbor College, Mich., where he was dean of students.

Helen Reich, former assistant director of the Office of Student Affairs, is now associate dean and associate director of the office. She will serve as coordinator of the freshman orientation program, and adviser to Associated Women Students as well as adviser to sororities, which she was formerly.

Because of her added responsibilities, Miss Reich's former work with student organizations is being done by Roger Augustine, associate dean and director of student activities. Augustine worked on student activities since joining the Student Affairs staff last year. He will also serve as adviser to the Student Senate.

Huit said of the changes: "We needed a new organization that would be more flexible in order to meet the changing needs of students as individuals and in groups."

Undertaker Joins Race For City Council Seat

Leroy C. Butherus, 33, of 209 Linden Ct., became the third announced candidate for the City Council Monday.

Butherus, who owns and operates the Beckman-Butherus Funeral Home, 507 E. College St., took out nomination papers for himself from the City Clerk's Office Monday.

Butherus is seeking one of three four-year council terms to be filled this fall. The election will be held Nov. 7, and deadline for filing nomination papers is Oct. 10.

In a statement, Butherus said, "I feel that our city finds itself in a very trying period of its history and there is a need for candidates for City Council."

He said that he hoped other Iowa City residents would offer their services by running for council positions.

Nomination papers were also taken out by Donald D. Wagner, of 226 Forest View Trailer Park. Wagner said that the papers were for someone else.

Resolution should be passed concerning Negro enrollment

The Student Senate is scheduled to vote on a resolution tonight directing Student Body Pres. John Pelton to check into the University's policy regarding the enrollment of Negro students. Specifically, the resolution directs the student body president to find out what the University is doing about recruiting Negro students and making their attendance at the University possible.

The resolution also directs the student body president to see what the Student Senate can do to help create or expand a program for the recruiting of Negro students.

The introduction of the resolution at the Senate meeting a week ago has brought reaction from some of the University administration. President Howard R. Bowen told a group on campus last week that the University was working to recruit members of minority racial groups, but was having a difficult time succeeding in its attempts. Other administrators have made similar general comments.

It is apparent that more specific information should be made available to the students and the public. If the Senate approves the resolution tonight, it will be Pelton's job to get this information. For this reason the Senate should approve the resolution. The administration probably has been doing a great deal to increase the percentage of Negro students. Certainly the cooperation between the University and Negro colleges in the South along with other activities shows that the University is working to improve relations between Negroes and whites.

But the fact that student action was needed to spark publicly the administration's interest about the problem of too few Negro students here is unfortunate. The administration should have taken the initiative to report to the students and the general public what it has been doing to bring more Negro students to the University. Similarly, if the administration has kept such things quiet because of the fear of white backlash among the alumni, legislators and the general public, the injustice done to the students and society is even worse.

But the future is what really matters. The Student Senate should approve the resolution. The administration should cooperate with Pelton to see that we all know just what the University is doing. And the Student Senate should work with the administration and possibly the Faculty Senate towards a more effective program of increasing the percentage of Negro students at the University.

Why dislike Highlanders?

For the past four years I've been wondering about a curious phenomenon which shows itself about this time every year. That phenomenon is the apparent dislike — generally on the part of male students — of the University's Scottish Highlanders.

This question came to mind again at Saturday's game. When the Highlanders were introduced there was the usual amount of snickering and unfavorable comment in the student section. A student sitting near me even raised his arm and gave a thumbs down sign of disapproval.

Why? How did this all come about? Has the institution of disliking the Highlanders been around ever since the Highlanders themselves?

There seems to be no apparent reason for this disliking other than that it's "the thing to do."

Although I've always enjoyed the Highlanders, I too, as a freshman, was caught up in the habit of talking disparagingly about them. After all, everybody else was doing it.

— Don Yager

Game music is superb

The Scottish Highlanders made their debut for the season at Saturday's football game. Their performance that afternoon showed them to be considerably improved compared with two years ago.

The Hawkeye Marching Band's performances at the two games so far this year were superb, as usual. Although operating now without Fred Ebbs, the group remains one of the country's finest.

My only complaint about the group is its name. The sound it produces on the football field seems to make it misleading to call it a marching band. It's more like a good concert band that marches extremely well.

— Bill Newbrough

The group, in general, was quite precise Saturday. It was even possible to hear the bagpipes from atop the press box. I'm looking forward to even more in the future.

University building called ad hoc

By CHRISTOPHER LEVENSON
For The Daily Iowan

An aspect of life in Iowa City that one hopes would depress every new student is the almost total absence of architecture. Buildings, certainly, ever more of them, but architecture, no. The only more depressing thing is that nobody seems to care.

Provided the air-conditioning works and the elevators run on time, the average student doesn't even notice that buildings that he has to live with for a few years and that Iowa City might have to live with for several decades. And most of this has been the University's fault. With a few notable exceptions, which I shall mention later, University building seems to have been ad hoc, constructed with no clear plan as to the general development of the campus or the inter-relations of individual buildings. Quite apart from their functional effectiveness, the aesthetic results of this haphazard approach should be enough to make any one with normal vision take the next plane to Rome or Bath or Oxford. However, and this is the shameful part of it, he need only go as far as Grinnell or Decorah to see much more satisfying new buildings on Iowa liberal arts college campuses. It is strange that the same students who intelligently discuss camera angles in the latest art films lack enough vision to see through and beyond the pompous shams and pseudo-modernities of the buildings where they study, attend classes or sleep.

In terms of individual buildings, what one objects to most in so much campus architecture is its insincerity. Take the English-Philosophy Building, our latest showpiece, which should be renamed Shakespeare Hall. With its feeble suggestion of castellations along the roof line, its monotonous rows of would-be mullion windows with their concrete frames successfully blinding the view from the offices within and its drawbridge type north entrance, its "architecture" does a radical disservice to the aims of its English-teaching inmates. In its context it jars massively with the relatively elegant spiral and arch of the footbridge over Riverside Drive just across the river and is altogether far too tall, heavy and narrow for its strategic waterfront position. If we are charitable we could assume it meant in some way to match the more vigorous arachizing of the Hydraulics laboratory and the Power Station or the Early English cathedralizing of the University Hospital tower.

This excuse cannot be made for the Union, which is as bland and nondescript a bungle as I ever hope to see. The original building, still to be seen on some postcards on sale in Iowa City, is attractive enough in its nouveau New Orleans way, but subsequent "improvements" have given the accretions three different roof levels with clumsy transitions sprawling across four unrelated facades. As well as making an insipid chaos of its muzak-ridden Grand Hotel interior, they have ruined the magnificent possibilities of its riverfront siting — one of the campus' few natural assets. Expensive ($75,000) landscaping can merely hide but not, alas, rebuild the Memorial Disunion.

Not, of course, that unity is the only criterion. I have nothing against a juxtaposition of styles, which can be very harmonious. The Great Court at Trinity College, Cambridge, where medieval, renaissance and neo-classical happily co-exist, is a case in point and many of the finest old squares and townscapes of Europe happened in a sense by accident. But at least let the co-existing styles be real, not watered-down committee compromises! Within the limits imposed by its scale, setting and dominant materials, whether stone, concrete, steel, glass, or wood, any honest piece of architecture should be able to maintain itself without ostentation next to any other honest building. Unfortunately to many buildings on campus seem to start from a fear of giving offense, the University Library is a conspicuous offender in this way, making fussy concessions to modernity in the steel panels over the entrance and trying to redeem an unimaginative facade with small-scale decorative work. Yet the library's planned expansion is doomed to continue the same thirtyish cinema styling — for the sake of unity!

One could list many more examples of tragically wasted opportunities — the College of Law, glassy, dated patchwork of colored glass, the monumental facelessness of Phillips Hall and the new Physics Building — but it is more important to single out the few examples of good architecture on and off campus. Of these, easily the most striking is the new Saint Thomas-More Church on Riverside Drive, which uses its hillside site to splendid effect and neatly alternates a series of glass and beige concrete horizontal surfaces with the verticals of its two-level entrance and its guardian sculpture. Best of all is the imaginative way a vast oak has been incorporated into the total design so that by sheer juxtaposition it takes on symbolic value.

Downtown, the only building of architectural distinction is the Old Capitol — what distinction? From any angle in its proportion, its details inside and out and its general elegance and dignity it is a standing rebuke to the pomposity and solemnity of its surroundings and, one would hope, an inspiration to present campus architects. Yet among more recent campus architecture only the New Chemistry Auditorium, the Alpha Delta Pi sorority house on Bloomington, the Communications Center and the Water Processing Plant can in their vastly different ways be singled EPB — too tall, heavy, narrow?

Reader calls 'Marat/Sade' superb

To the Editor:

The never ending struggle of the human mind against its own limitations, in a passionate search for truth, is superbly portrayed in "Marat/Sade."

Although the basic plot of the film is about the ideas of the French Revolution, Marat's and Sade's argumentation of two opposing philosophies goes far beyond the borders of any specific era. Is the morality of life based on striving only towards the fulfillment of our own personal needs? Or does our getting benefits from the organized society in which we live result in a moral obligation towards this society? The film simply poses the conflict; the task of resolving it is ours.

The balance to this fairly intellectual interplay of thoughts, is provided by the drama of the inmates, temporarily leaving their world of madness with tremendous effort, to act as spokesmen for a reality of striking truth. The emotional impact of this partially symbolic situation hits us with all its power. Here we are, passively witnessing the effort of the insane to portray a reality which directly concerns us because it is OUR reality. One of the madmen, who fervently advocates for what should be to us a positive set of values — freedom among them — has his hands tied; are ours tied or not?

out for praise, while the town contributes its modest share in the clean, low form of the Hawkeye State Bank on Burlington, the Public Library and a few shop fronts.

With the prospect of widespread urban renewal it is surely important for the average citizen (and for nine months of the year that includes the average student) to know what sort of visual environment he likes to live in and to make his opinions and protests felt. As it happens, the last three years have seen a change of policy in the area of University architecture: distinguished out-of-state architects are being employed for purposes of consultation and long-term planning and in the office of Merritt Ludwig, the Director of Planning and Development, there is no lack of interest in the visual quality of new campus architecture. The first results of this concern should be apparent once the new art gallery is at long last finished.

But such concern should not be left to a handful of enlightened administrators. Architecture is a thoroughly public art and it is we who have to live with the results of any blunders that are made. If it is necessary, as I believe, that good decisions about architecture are made automatically by a small number of informed men, it is also necessary, in the absence of any school of architecture on campus, that the decisions when made are not only publicly discussed by the average student and faculty member, but preferably before it is too late.

Kappas Win Sorority Bowl

By SALLY HOLM

Kappa Kappa Gamma captured the Panhellenic Scholarship Bowl for the highest overall sorority average, a 2.77, at Panhellenic Council's 29th annual Scholarship Banquet Monday night.

Second place went to Pi Beta Phi with a 2.76 and third place to Alpha Delta Pi with 2.75.

The overall sorority average for last year was 2.66. All 16 sororities were separated by a mere 0.4 difference in total grade point average.

The attending sorority members, who numbered almost 1,000, responded enthusiastically to the wit and challenge offered by the featured speaker, the Rev. John B. Bremner, assistant professor of journalism.

Bremner praised the group, calling them leaders and scholars on the campus.

"May I suggest that you are great and beautiful because we love you and we hope you keep it that way," he concluded.

Highest individual honors for the evening went to three cords who earned 4.0 grade point averages for both stars last year. They are: Maureen J. Kirby, A3, Strawberry Point; Terri C. Wissler, A2, Nevada, and Janice J. Zimmerman, A3, Adair.

Prof's Son Injured In Cycle Accident

An Iowa City youth remained in serious condition at University Hospital Monday night as the result of a motorcycle accident Sunday evening. The youth, Owen S. Tuttle, 17, 1217 Melrose Ave., is the son of Sherwood D. Tuttle, chairman of the Department of Geology.

Tuttle was injured when his motorcycle struck a car driven by Randall P. Patterson, Wellman, at the intersection of the IWW road and the Coralville cutoff. The eastbound Tuttle was knocked across the road into a car driven by Richard Bain of Coralville, who was stopped to make a right hand turn.

Today is the last day to drop or add courses without paying a $4 penalty.

City To Be Relit By 1969

By CHERYL ARVIDSON

City Manager Frank R. Smiley said Monday that he hoped improved lighting for the entire city would be completed by 1969.

At an informal meeting of the City Council, Smiley gave details on the street lighting project.

Smiley said that the incandescent lights that the city now has will be replaced by 7,000, 10,000 or 20,000-lumen Mercury vapor lights.

The new lights will provide brighter lighting for streets and intersections, according to Smiley. He estimated that by replacing the city's present 4,000-lumen incandescent lights with 7,000-lumen Mercury vapor lights — $15 would be saved on each light yearly.

Smiley has sent a letter to Alpha-Illinois Gas and Electric Co. listing lighting priorities for the project.

In the letter, the council gave the power company the authority necessary to begin the project and listed these priorities: lights for all unlighted areas, replacement of any bare bulbs on city streets, replacement of the 4,000-lumen street lights and lighting of all major traffic arteries.

Smiley estimated that the city lighting project would add over 1,000 street lights.

Residents of any area of the city can request new or improved street lighting by presenting their request to the council.

In other discussion, Barry Lundberg, director of planning and urban renewal, presented a report on the planned rezoning of an area west of the proposed West High School lot.

The council's discussion centered on whether Melrose Avenue should be commercially developed. Present plans of an ordinance before the council call for a neighborhood commercial shopping center at Melrose Avenue, close to the Coralville cutoff road.

Councilman James Nesmith suggested the possibility of changing the location of the commercial shopping center. He said that the shopping center could face the Coralville cutoff road and have a frontage road constructed as an entrance for the shopping center.

The council said that the location Nesmith suggested would have the advantages of better access and would also keep all commercial developments off Melrose Avenue.

Further discussion of the matter is scheduled for the council's meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Civic Center.

Steve Richardson, a member of the Iowa City Polo Club, asked the council whether city employees could mow an area of the airport grounds before a polo game. The game is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 15.

Poor Recruiting Campaign Bursts Texas Grid Bubble

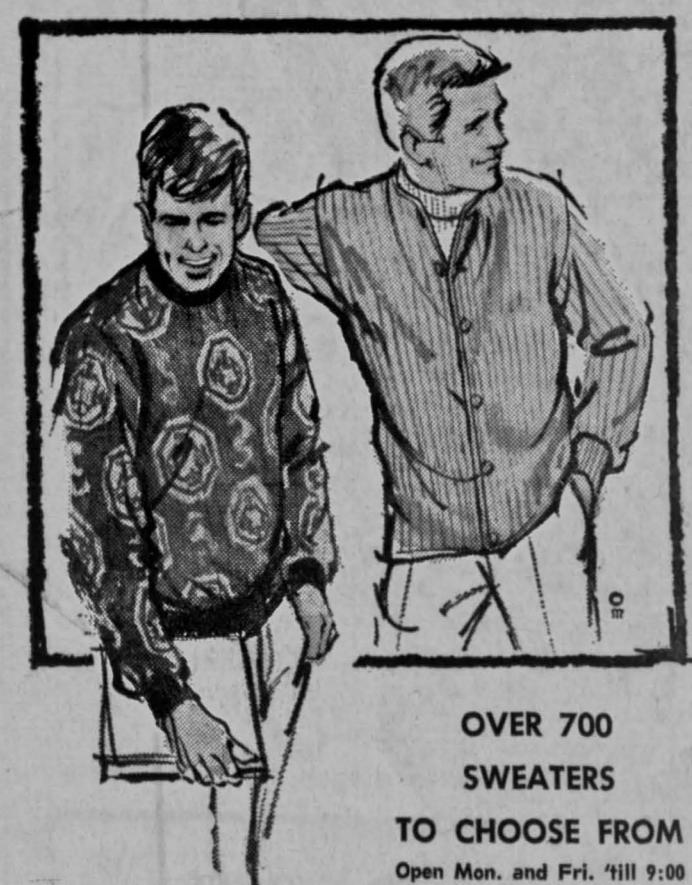

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Darrell Royal surveyed the probable wreckage of Texas' dreams of a Southwest Conference football championship — even a national championship as many had predicted — and said "I tried to tell you folks I didn't have all those great players."

Texas, overwhelming favorite for the conference title and ranked third nationally in some polls, took a 19-13 licking from Texas Tech for its second defeat in a row — the first time Texas had dropped its two opening games since 1938.

"We just didn't do good enough recruiting. We do not have the quality seniors necessary for a championship team. We are at least two years away from being great," he declared.

Retired Fireman Keeps*'Tensed For Action'

By GAIL DRAUDE

Old fire dogs leap up at the sound of a fire bell.

Edwin Knoedel, who reached retirement age two weeks ago after 28 years with the Iowa City Fire Department, said recently that retired firemen react in the same way.

Knoedel, 55, of 824 E. Jefferson St., said that he still tensed for action at the sound of a siren, but he was glad to be relieved of the responsibility for fighting fires.

He remembered when the University's Chemistry Building caught fire about 10 years ago. Water pumped on the fire reacted with certain chemicals causing further explosions.

Big fires are tiring, of course. Knoedel has worked for as long as 48 hours without relief.

"But a call that someone is trapped in a burning building takes the most out of you. You know you have to find the place and get the person out, that every second counts," he said.

He remembered when the department began using face masks about 20 years ago, and shortly after he used them to help rescue two children caught in a west side fire.

"If you can save one life in 28 years, it's worth the effort," Knoedel said.

Panhellenic To Welcome Pledges

Pan-Hellenic Council will throw out the welcome mat for nearly 300 new sorority pledges at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Shambaugh Auditorium. Attendance of all pledge classes is required.

representatives of Associated Women's Students, Union Board, Central Party Committee, Student Senate, Mortar Board, the Theatre and Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman scholastic honorary for women, will attend.

Board Wants Miss UI To Reign Whole Year

Miss U of I Pageant Board members expressed determination at a Sunday meeting to make Miss U of I a campus queen for the entire year, rather than a homecoming queen.

The Pageant Board's public relations director will try to get Miss U of I a place at the head table at all-campus functions such as Mother's Day, Dad's Day and Orientation. The Board is also planning a 15-minute live television show about the pageant and the queen.

The Board decided that all 23 contestants for the title of Miss U of I will receive a gift. In the past only the 10 semi-finalists have been given a memento. Contestants not reaching the semi-finals will receive a gold charm bracelet and a matching charm. The five finalists will receive an additional gold charm, as well as a silver bowl.

It was also decided to change the questions upon which candidates are partially judged to once again have an open day of campaigning, Oct. 25.

Board members decided they would prefer having a permanent queen's float constructed, rather than a temporary one. Alpha Phi Omega, a service fraternity, will be asked to build the float.

Tickets for the Pageant will go on sale at the University Box Office, Oct. 16. Seating in the front 15 rows will cost $1.50. All remaining seats will sell for $1.00.

Groom Balks

LONDON (UPI) — Who is right — his wife or the mother-in-law?

The age-old battle flared in Britain again this weekend.

A bridegroom called off his wedding only a few hours before the ceremony Saturday because he said the bride's mother insisted on picking his best man.

And Joseph Jones, a Roman Catholic priest, ruled that in clashes between wife and mother, a husband must always take his wife's side.

David Powis, 24, an insurance agent of Dittom Priors, Shropshire, was the man who decided he wouldn't have his future mother-in-law "stage-managing the whole affair."

Just before he was to go to the local Anglican parish church to marry sales clerk Dorothy Childs, 20, he called the whole affair off.

Mary Childs, the bride's mother, denied she stage-managed everything.

David and Dorothy will meet in a week to talk it over.

In a parish letter, the priest told his parishioners:

"The mother must go if someone has to go. The mother must be silenced if someone must be."

Top Iowa cadet at the camp was John H. Lantz, A4, Iowa City, who totaled 92.9 points to rank first in his platoon and second in his company.
