

Underground Paper, 'Middle Earth', On Street Today

By MIKE KAUTSCH

The first edition of Middle Earth (ME), a bi-weekly "underground" newspaper to be sold in Iowa City, rolled off the presses Wednesday and went on sale immediately.

Its editor, David J. Miller, Iowa City, said Tuesday that ME was "underground" because it bypassed high-pressure, commercial news organizations.

"They lie," Everett C. Frost, New Coventry, Conn., said of such news organizations. He is ME's managing editor.

Newspapers traditionally consider objectivity a principle, Miller said, and they advocate nothing.

"But then nothing gets done," he said. ME volunteers are concerned, he said, and anticipate proposing action on local housing conditions, high prices and perhaps even police brutality.

Volunteers will hawk ME on the streets at 15 cents a copy, Miller said, and at the Paper Place, 130 S. Clinton St.

ME's first issue is an eight-page black and white tabloid. Intricate "psychedelic drawings" lace the front and back pages.

Stories Take Sides

About half of the paper presents news stories and "takes sides," in Miller's words. One story satirizes "pot" and the local "fuzz." In scatological terms it is alleged that there is pollution in Ralston Creek. Readers are urged to attend a ME "clean-in" there Oct. 14. A Detroit resident's purported eyewitness account of the Detroit riots is also in ME.

The rest of the issue is devoted to art and poetry. "Pohms on education" is the title of one page.

William B. Newbrough, editor of The Daily Iowan, said Wednesday that he liked different approaches to journalism, such as ME's.

"The idea is fine," he said, "even fantastic, and I look forward to more issues of it."

Miller estimated that 25 persons had helped to produce the first issue. Approximately 2,000 copies were printed by the Wilton Advocate at Wilton Junction.

He added, though, that ME was not primarily "situated" and was simply a "floating organization" for the time being.

Creativity Feared Lost
Miller said that in the past couple of years, many persons who have joined the community, have feared a loss of personal control over their lives, or an absence of creativity.

Government is too big for them, he said, and life too impersonal. Consequently they seek new approaches to life, perhaps with the hippies or in politics.

ME, he said, will provide a voice and a forum for this group.

The newspaper is almost like a missionary activity, Miller said.

"There are flower children in Iowa City," he said, "but they often don't know who they are."

When they see ME produced by volunteers, who depend on trust, the "flower children" may identify themselves with ME, Miller explained.

For the present the newspaper certainly depends on trust more than money or long-range plans, Miller said. It was started with loans that may not be repaid—at least for a long time, he said.

"I forecast the future as pretty hard," Miller added.

ME Interest Grows

But he said that interest in ME had grown. Four persons attended the first meeting about the paper, and about 45 attended the third, he said.

Miller said that ME hoped to eventually join the Underground Press Syndicate. In New Left terms the syndicate is a "parallel institution," according to Miller.

It parallels, or "bypasses" the wire news services because they are unreliable, high-pressure, commercial institutions, Miller said. About 25 newspapers like the Berkeley Barb and the San Francisco Oracle voluntarily share news through the syndicate.

Miller received an M.A. degree in English from the University in February.

Robert Sayre, associate professor of English, is ME's publisher.

Miller said that he advocated a paper like ME after attending a Students for a Democratic Society convention this summer where he learned of the underground syndicate.

The name Middle Earth just "popped out of nowhere," according to Miller. He said it was subject to many interpretations and allusions such as: underground; the personal pronoun, me; the Middle West; Middle Earth, a land in J. R. R. Tolkien's literary fantasy, "The Hobbit"; and even in Norse mythology, a place between good and evil.

Huit Says Senate 'Cuts Neck'

By BETSY BECKER and TED HENRY

The Student Senate's action Tuesday night was compared Wednesday by M. L. Huit, dean of students, to "cutting its own neck."

The senate approved an amendment which calls for the senators to determine policies regarding students' "personal lives" — without administration interference.

Said Huit: "When a student government simply declares it is going to be independent of the university, it cuts its own neck in a sense. It completely alienates itself from the lines of communication."

The controversial amendment, written in language reminiscent of the American Declaration of Independence, was approved by a vote of 19 to 4, but will not become ratified until it is passed again at the next regular senate meeting.

The senate will hold special sessions in the meantime to transact current business. The amendment would be added to the 1967 student constitution, which has yet to be approved by Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

Referendum Slated

The senate agreed Tuesday night to refer the amendment in a referendum to the entire student body. Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton said Wednesday he expected that the referendum would be held near the end of this month.

Huit said the referendum will be at least some clue to the senate whether there is a real interest on the part of students in what the senate is trying to do.

He added, "I think the University has made a great deal of progress with respect to student involvement in the past three years in terms of membership on committees."

Huit was not the only administration official to comment on the amendment. But there was, however, no word from Bowen's office on the subject Wednesday.

Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, whose son was one of the senators who introduced the amendment, made this comment:

"We were not alarmed. It's not exactly a novel proposal. But we must investigate it very carefully and get to the root of what the students really mean."

"The matter of student freedom and rights has been under discussion for a year or more. We have been considering the report of a national committee composed of members of the American Association of Colleges, the American Association of University Professors, the National Student Association and others."

"The report is very sensible. It takes into account conditions under which freedom can be maintained in an intellectual atmosphere."

Hard To Interpret

"We can accept the theory that the University shouldn't interfere in the student's personal life, but this is very hard to interpret."

"I assume that the idea of a second vote will give students time to discuss this and examine their basic objectives. We would like to come to a better understanding of what is a 'personal matter.' We must know what matters are completely personal and what matters are a part of concern to the University."

Hubbard added, "We encourage students to engage in dialogue with themselves and the faculty on this matter. I think it is misleading to set up the administration as a target. This is an intellectual enterprise and we must come to rational decisions."

Several senators Wednesday explained their stands on their votes concerning the resolution.

Sen. Michael Lally, Hawkeye Student Party (HSP) said:

"The citizens of the United States, under law, have the right to determine the course of their personal lives. But there are certain academic institutions, the University included, which attempt to interfere with this right. That is what our amendment is attempting to correct."

Introduced Resolution

Lally introduced the controversial resolution at Tuesday night's meeting.

dent David Judisch signed the statement Wednesday.

The Interfraternity Council, which is formed by presidents and representatives of all the campus fraternities, will prosecute any fraternity found going against the statement, Pelton said.

CSL also formed a subcommittee to consider the individual sorority chapters and their selection policies. Each sorority is being investigated separately because their selection practices vary. A report will be submitted to the committee and action taken later.

The committee also began studying the new student code written by Pelton. The code would replace the Code of Student Life, a statement of student rules and regulations formerly used by the University.

There was some question about what "personal lives" means.

Lally said that anything not concerned directly with academic affairs is what is meant by "students' personal lives." Grades fall into the area of academic affairs, he said.

Sen. Carl Varner, who voted against the amendment, said, "My main reason for voting no was simply that we were voting on the substance of that resolution. I am in favor of increased power for student government, but the most important element in getting that power is how you do it."

"I don't believe that the Hawkeye Student Party has the best way for getting that power. I think the HSP proposal fails to recognize certain fundamental realities, one of which is that the senate has no enforcement power; therefore, how can we expect students to obey Student Senate rules when it is the administration that has all the enforcement power."

Seeks Chance For Students

A supporter of the amendment, Sen. Carl Stuart, said, "I'm in support of it because everyone against it says students are apathetic. I say give them a chance."

"If they do not care, then the senate will go on as it has in the past, somewhat a sophisticated soapbox soundoff whose opinions are taken to the administration," he said.

"Philosophically I agree, let's test it out pragmatically," Stuart said, "I hope it works."

Jewish High Holy Days Begin Today

By JOHN BAILEY

Today is the first day of Rosh Hashanah, — the beginning of the greatest and holiest days for the estimated 1,000 Jewish students and faculty members at the University, as well as for Jews throughout the world.

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, inaugurates the holidays that end on Yom Kippur (sweetest day) Oct. 14. During these 10 days of penitence, the Jew proceeds with a self-analysis, according to the Bnai B'rith Hillel Foundation director, Rabbi Samuel S. Lerer.

Lerer said Wednesday, "The Jew engages in stock talking, asking himself what have I done, what am I doing and where am I going?"

In Iowa City, Rosh Hashanah services began Wednesday evening at Macbride Auditorium. Morning and evening services today and Friday and the Shabbat Service Saturday will be at the Synagogue, 602 E. Washington St.

Lerer said that the sounding of the shofar, or rams horn, is a ritual of commanding significance on Rosh Hashanah. Sounding the shofar reminds the Jew or events both "glorious and exorcising" in Jewish history, he said.

The shofar remind one of Divine revelation and of when the servants were released, Lerer said. Rosh Hashanah celebrates the "birth of humanity."

According to Lerer, the Jewish people seek forgiveness for errors of the past during these 10 days. The Jew longs to be one with God. He is seeking to maintain a "Father-son" relationship with God, Lerer said.

RECITING THE KIDDUSH over wine, a symbol of joy, Dr. Sidney Kripke is watched by his son Daniel, 6, as the start of the Jewish high holy days was observed Wednesday evening in the Kripke home at 233 Linden Ct. Kripke is an assistant professor of pediatrics and assistant director of State Services for Crippled Children. As part of the ceremony, Mrs. Kripke gave benediction over the candles which symbolize divine spirit. The ceremony is one of sanctification to elevate man's spirit to his maker. — Photo by Dave Luck

Top Campus Cop Wants His Men Armed Deputies

By JAN TEAGUE

The security police should be armed as well as deputized, John Hanna, chief of the University Security Department, said Tuesday.

The student-faculty Campus Parking and Security Committee has recommended that the security police should be made deputies of Johnson County but not armed. The Faculty Council voted Tuesday to ask the Faculty Senate to endorse this recommendation.

"The men patrol the campus at all hours of the day and night," Hanna said, "and should have some protection. They cover some of the same streets as the city police and this includes some potentially dangerous."

The security police drive marked cars, he said, so most people assume they are armed. This makes them prey to any type of potential criminal who happens to be passing through Iowa City.

Hanna said the men checked University buildings at night for unlocked windows and doors. "They could discover someone attempting a break-in, and would have no protection if the suspect attacked them," he said.

Only Two Injuries

Hanna admitted, however, that in recent years only two officers were injured in the line of duty — one in last spring's panty raid — neither of them seriously.

A citizen's arrest can be made by the security police if they see a law being broken, Hanna said, but they cannot arrest on suspicion. If a person refuses arrest, a policeman has nothing but his hands to use as persuasion.

The lack of authority to carry firearms or night sticks has caused problems in hiring men, he said. Men who have been peace officers in other cities do not like to relinquish their gun-carrying privilege when they start working for the University.

Hanna said several men with excellent qualifications had turned down job offers because of the no-gun rule.

"I would not take a job with this department for three times the salary if I had to go through the places my men check at night without any protection," Hanna said.

The men would probably have little occasion to use their guns, he said, but if the occasion arose, they would be prepared.

"The need for using a gun may come up tomorrow or two years from tomorrow," Hanna said, "but when the occasion arises, I think the men should be prepared."

Ten Men Qualified

Hanna said there were 10 men on the present force who he felt would be capable of carrying weapons. All of them have had previous experience with guns.

Several of the men had marksmanship training in the service and others have served with city police departments, he said.

"These men are all good, level-headed men," Hanna said, "and would be discreet in the use of weapons."

The security police were authorized to use weapons until 1964, Phil E. Connell, assistant to Pres. Howard R. Bowen, said Wednesday.

Connell said the use of guns was abandoned after the University received notice from the Iowa attorney general stating that Iowa statutes did not provide for arming University peace officers.

Hanna said the University Security Department owned a number of sawed-off shotguns, riot guns, night sticks and some tear gas. It would cost the University nothing to arm his peace officers, he said, if he proper authorities okayed the move.

At the present time the men cannot use the equipment even in case of a riot, Hanna said. All they can do is physically move the trouble makers and call on assistance from local police officials.

Connell said the parking and security committee felt it was not necessary for the police to be deputized, but that deputizing the men was worthwhile in as that it would give status to the security police. The committee was opposed to arming the men however, Connell said.

If the security police need help, they can call local enforcement officials, he said.

If the Faculty Senate approves the recommendations, they will be sent to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors and the Johnson County Sheriff for approval, he said.

The recommendations ask for 10 or 12 men to be deputized, Connell said.

Connell said the committee was not worried about riot control because they did not anticipate any riots on the University campus.

Johnson County Sheriff Maynard Schneider said he did not want to comment on the recommendations because the University had not yet informed him on the matter.

"When I have been properly informed of the situation, I'll be happy to comment," Schneider said.

Trial On Service Tax Continued For Week

DAVENPORT — Trial of a suit attacking Iowa's new tax on services was continued until next week in Scott County District Court Wednesday.

At the same time, Judge Nathan Grant delayed ruling on the state's motion to transfer the case to Polk County District Court in Des Moines.

The judge said he would rule on the location in the next day or two, and if the case is to be heard in Davenport it might resume next Thursday.

Europeans Sound Viet Peace Pleas At U.N. Assembly

UNITED NATIONS — Norway, allied with the United States in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Wednesday joined the list of countries calling in the U.N. General Assembly for an end to the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Norwegian Foreign Minister John Lyng, in a policy speech in the assembly's general debate, urged the United States "to take the chance and to use this possibility to initiate negotiations" for peace in Vietnam.

Hungarian Foreign Minister Panos Petter told the assembly, "Only an unconditional cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam can open the way to the negotiating table."

Austrian Foreign Minister Lujo Toncic-Sorinj appealed "to all parties concerned to take whatever initial step may appear likely to set in motion a process towards peace."

Sen. Attilio Piccioni, Italian minister without portfolio, later told the assembly it should adopt "a resolution calling on all the parties concerned to initiate peace negotiations" in a new Geneva conference. He explained that the moral pressure on the belligerents "could help to overcome the remaining obstacles — albeit superficial" — to peace talks. He said similar action by the Security Council "would be an even more positive step."

Britain Asks U.N. To Tighten Curbs

UNITED NATIONS — Britain called Wednesday for a strengthening of the U.N. Security Council's economic sanctions against its rebellious colony of Rhodesia but once again ruled out the use of force to topple Rhodesia's white-minority government.

D. E. T. Luard, a member of Britain's delegation to the U.N. General Assembly, told the assembly's Trusteeship committee that the selective, mandatory sanctions, imposed by the Security Council last December, "are biting deeply into the Southern Rhodesia economy."

But Foreign Minister R. C. Kamanga of Zambia, a neighbor of Rhodesia, declared in a speech in the assembly's general debate that the mandatory sanctions "have lamentably failed." Zambia has been hard hit by side effects of the sanctions.

Frats Affirm Independence On Selection Of Members

By MARY CLARK

The 20 campus fraternity presidents have signed a statement saying that their local chapters have no national interference in the selection of their members. The statement was accepted by the Committee on Student Life (CSL) Wednesday, according to Student Body Pres. John Pelton, a CSL member.

Last spring, CSL asked all campus organizations to prove that they were locally autonomous in their membership selection. There was strong objection by the fraternities and sororities against the University's interference.

The Student Senate had also conducted an investigation of an alleged "bias clause" in the national charter of the Sigma Chi fraternity. Sigma Chi president David Judisch signed the statement Wednesday.

The Interfraternity Council, which is formed by presidents and representatives of all the campus fraternities, will prosecute any fraternity found going against the statement, Pelton said.

CSL also formed a subcommittee to consider the individual sorority chapters and their selection policies. Each sorority is being investigated separately because their selection practices vary. A report will be submitted to the committee and action taken later.

The committee also began studying the new student code written by Pelton. The code would replace the Code of Student Life, a statement of student rules and regulations formerly used by the University.

Senate's action lauded

The action the Student Senate took Tuesday night making itself autonomous should be applauded by all University students. In effect, the Senate decided that if it were to continue to exist, it must have some real reason to do so.

The Senate has been mostly a mickey-mouse affair. The significant questions that were debated at its meetings were not matters over which the Senate's decisions made a great deal of difference. The final say came from the University administration on these significant matters.

The situation concerning student privileges at the University has been rather unusual. The administration, with the exception of a few individuals, seems to have been in favor of leaving the students' private affairs to the students.

But the excuse that was nearly always given to students trying to achieve student freedom was that any change must come gradually. Supposedly parents, alumni, legislators and other "friends" of the University prevented the administration from allowing any radical changes.

In other words, the University administration seems to have spent a lot of time worrying about what these groups think and yielding to many of their demands. It is about time the administration is forced to accept the fact that the students are far more important to the University than any of these other groups.

If the University is a great university, as Pres. Howard R. Bowen has said, and as the Senate's action indicates it is surely the students contribute far more to its greatness than the parents, alumni, legislators and other "friends." The Senate's action Tuesday night is the first step towards putting the students in their rightful position regarding the University. The other steps must be carried out.

Public discussion needed

An article by Christopher Levenson on this page Tuesday pointed out a condition many of us have been concerned about for a long time. Many of the buildings on our campus, especially the newer ones, have very little, if any, architecture. They are simply buildings with little aesthetic attraction, especially on the exterior.

Levenson suggested that the decisions about architecture should be made only after public discussion by the average student and faculty member. This idea sounds like a good one.

The plans for most new buildings are presented publicly for the first times at meetings of the Board of Regents. The regents then usually give preliminary approval to the plans as soon as they are presented.

There are at least two general ways in which discussion on the University campus could be carried on before any plans are approved: The plans could be presented to the student body and faculty via the mass media before they are presented to the regents for approval. Or, if the tradition of telling the regents first must be maintained, the regents could put off approving plans for a month, during which discussion could be conducted by the students and faculty.

There are disadvantages to both solutions. And there may be other solutions. In any event, the matter is something the administration should consider and take action on.

What's the real purpose of a committee study?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — One of the ways to solve acute problems in the United States is to study them. At this writing there are probably more committees making more studies of more problems than at any time in our history.

Prof. Heinrich Applebaum has just completed a study on people who make studies, and the results are fascinating.

Applebaum said, "I discovered that the average person making a study today has had five years of college, is married, has 1.6 children, earns $15,000 a year, lives in the suburbs, plays tennis or golf on weekends and believes in God."

BUCHWALD

"He will spend an average 8.9 months working on a study, 2.6 months discussing it in committee, 3.9 months writing a report which will be typed up by 5.6 secretaries and then it will be printed up and distributed to 1,250 persons who will read it in its entirety."

"That isn't to many people."
"It's a lot considering that only one out of every 23.6 reports is ever acted upon."
"What happens to the rest of them?"
"They're filed away and used as reference for other people who will be asked to make future study on the same subject."
"That sounds rather discouraging."
"On the contrary. The main purpose of a study is not to solve a problem, but to postpone the solution of it in hopes that it will go away. If it doesn't go away, at least people will have forgotten about it by the time the report comes out."

City Park zoo called obtrusive; animal treatment termed ugly

By WILLIAM LLOYD
For The Daily Iowan

Incarceration is an ugly thing, whether it involves human beings or animals. And incarceration is the only word I can use to describe the city's treatment of raccoons, rabbits, monkeys and various other animals which occupy several cell-like structures in City Park.

Perhaps it has not been brought to the attention of the people of Iowa City before, but if it has, let this be a reminder, their "zoo" — a questionable denotation at best — aside from its one virtue of amusing children, is about as distasteful a thing as I have ever seen. Animals, whether big or small, are copped up in cages of similar size with similar facilities (namely, none). For example, two large black bears are confined to an area no larger than a typical University dorm room.

There is nothing to amuse the animals so they all languish by their bars in obvious quiet desperation. Aside from the dark, forbidding cubby hole which the animals retire to when they are tired of being stared at, there is no privacy or protection from the elements. The cages are lifeless, except for their living captives. Trees and green grass abound within a few feet of the cages, as if to taunt the animals which have no access to them. In one section of the zoo — the worst — the cages are noticeably disintegrating. Defecation covers the floor. This particular section has, in addition to a link fence partition, vertical steel bars to protect the ferocious raccoons from the people, or vice versa. And, speaking of the raccoons, they look half starved.

City Park is a beautiful place and is in no danger of losing that status if it gives up its obtuse, half-hearted attempt to provide a zoo. It's either that, or improve the existing facilities, and provide the animals a true zoo — resembling their natural habitats on a reduced scale. There is no half way house: do it right or don't do it at all.

'Flim-Flam Man' called enjoyable

Any time George C. Scott appears in a film, it is an event worth attending. Even if the film itself is less than great, Scott's acting rarely is. Between Scott and Steiger we have the best of American acting.

"The Flim-Flam Man" is not a great movie, but it is very enjoyable. It manages to combine humor, pathos and cynicism to an engaging degree. It deals with a small chapter in the life of a southern confidence man per excellence, one Mordecai Jones, MB, SCS, DD: (Master of Back-stabbing, Cork-Screwing, and Double-Dealing). He takes in tow one AWOL blue-eyed youth, played by a newcomer named Michael Sarrazin, and vows to make him his partner and teach him about LIFE. Sarrazin, who bears a resemblance to both JFK and the young Henry Fonda, proves an apt pupil, until he falls in love with the blonde owner of their stolen car, Sue Lyon.

By far the best sequences in the movie are the chase scenes, staged not by director Irwin Kershner, but by the all time master of the art, second unit director Yakima Canutt. Canutt is so good that frequently his work overshadows the rest of a movie. In "Ben-Hur" his staging of the chariot race proved to be the most sensational part of the film. In "Flim-Flam" they turn Canutt loose with cars, and the results are not to be believed. Canutt is the rightful heir to the Mack Sennett mantle. This, coupled with Scott's blasé attitude behind the wheel of the car he drives with such unconcern — tearing up a whole mainstreet of a little southern town in one fell swoop — combines to make one of the greatest chase scenes since the Keystone days.

"Yup," says Jones, "I reckon they'll remember us in Clayton, boy."

Jones' motto: you can't cheat an honest man, seems a bit preposterous and syrupy, but when he goes on to prove to his ward that there is no such animal, one begins to grow uncomfortable. "Flim-Flam" is more than a chase picture. When Jones is through, one wonders whether everybody isn't corrupt.

Although most of the script and direction is not up to Canutt's sequences, the film is entertaining, moving, and generally diverting. Harry Morgan is very funny as the sheriff of Clayton and Slim Pickens delivers a nice character role. William Rose's screenplay lacks sufficient inventiveness, but his characters and dialogue are good. Kershner's direction — as always — is competent and satisfactory, without being inspired. Scott's performance is a joy, and for a lightweight fable, "The Flim-Flam Man" makes a diverting evening of film.

Playing at the Strand are two Jerry Lewis movies. I do not go to Jerry Lewis movies on principle.

Report shows change in suicide methods

WASHINGTON — Suicide — one of the 12 leading causes of death in the United States — was committed on an average of 56 times daily in 1964, according to a report on suicide trends (1950-1964) just released by the Public Health Service's National Center for Health Statistics. A total of 20,588 suicides, amounting to about 1 per cent of all deaths in 1964, was reported for the nation.

Suicides occur much more frequently among men than women. The rate for men was nearly three times that for women in 1964, the report said.

Methods of committing suicide have changed since 1950, according to the study. While firearms and explosives ranked far above all other means in 1950, 1960, and 1964, hanging and strangulation ranked second in those years. However, poisoning by pain-killing and sleep-causing substances increased from about 5 per cent of all suicides in 1950 to 12 per cent in 1964. "Poisoning by other gases" (primarily gas from the exhausts of motor vehicles) also increased, accounting for about 6 per cent of all suicides in 1950 and 11 per cent in 1964.

Forty-eight per cent of all suicides in 1964 was attributed to self-inflicted gunshot wounds. Hanging and strangulation ranked second at 15 per cent, and about 12 per cent of all suicides resulted from poisoning by pain-killing and sleep-causing substances. About three-fourths of these deaths involved the use of barbiturates.

The suicide rate for white men in 1964 increased with each successive age group, starting with a rate of 9.3 per 100,000 for ages 15-24 years and rising to 65.1 per 100,000 for those 85 years and older. This was true for each year from 1950 through 1964, according to the study. In contrast, suicide rates for white women reached a peak of 12.5 per 100,000 in the 45-54-year age group and then decreased. The highest rate for nonwhite men was 16.2 per 100,000 in the age group 25-34 years, and the highest rate for nonwhite women was 4.7 in the 25-34-year age group.

Nevada had a suicide rate of 26.8 per 100,000 — highest among the 50 States — for the years 1959-61. Other western states also had high rates. The suicide rates for the southern states, except Virginia and Florida, were among the lowest in the nation. Rhode Island, with a rate of 6.1, was lowest of all the states. The years 1959-61 were used in the study because detailed tabulations related to the 1960 decennial census were available.

University Bulletin Board

University Bulletin Board notices must be received at The Daily Iowan office, 201 Communications Center, by noon of the day before publication. They must be typed and signed by an adviser or officer of the organization being publicized. Purely social functions are not eligible for this section.

THE PH.D. GERMAN EXAMINATION will be given from 1-4 p.m., October 12 in Room 121A Schaeffer Hall. This exam is for those students who have made prior arrangements to prepare the work privately. Bring books and articles and ID cards to the exam. All those students who plan to take the exam must register prior to Oct. 10 in Room 103 Schaeffer Hall.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS for study at Oxford University are offered to unmarried men students who hold junior or higher standing. All fields of study are eligible. Nominations are to be made in October, and potential candidates should consult at once with Professor Dunlap, 108 Schaeffer Hall, 353-3871.

THE UNIVERSITY and the Rock Island Arsenal have recently established a five-year cooperative degree program. Students interested in this program should write to Mr. Terry McCleary in care of the Rock Island Arsenal, Rock Island, Ill.

UNIVERSITY CHOIR and CHORUS auditions will be held Wednesday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in 109 Eastlawn Music Building.

EDUCATION-PSYCHOLOGY Library Hours: Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

PARENTS COOPERATIVE Babysitting League: For membership information, call Mrs. Ronald Osborne, 337-9435. Members desiring sitters, call Mrs. Mervin Specht, 358-6277.

MAIN LIBRARY HOURS: Monday-Friday, 7:30 a.m.-2 a.m.; Saturday, 7:30 a.m.-Midnight; Sunday, 1:30 p.m.-2 a.m.

Morris Replaces Krewson As Veep

By PETSY BECKER

The Student Senate approved Eric Morris' nomination as student body vice president after one negative roll-call vote and an executive session at Tuesday night's meeting.

Morris, P2, Bettendorf, had been nomination by Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton at the Sept. 26 meeting following the resignation of Lyle Krewson.

Before Morris was approved under the rules of the 1967 constitution, which is still awaiting Pres. Howard R. Rowen's signature, a resolution setting up appointment by-laws was passed. The resolution calls for the president to appoint a vice president with two-thirds approval of the Senate.

There was some discussion of other candidates for the job. Sen. Gary Goldstein of Hawkeye Student Party (HSP), asked that someone from the senate be considered for the vice presidency.

Others Considered

Pelton said he thought Morris was the best man for the job and that although he had considered some senators he would present no other name.

The result of the first vote was 14 for and 11 against Morris.

Pelton accused some senators of playing games. "Some of you are playing a little politics," he declared. "It's pretty sickening; it's holding up the senate."

Because of dissension about Morris's grade point qualifications, the senate went into executive session. Later, Pelton said he thought Morris met the qualifications.

Another vote was taken and Morris' appointment was approved by a vote of 19 yes, 2 no and 7 abstentions.

Interpretation Questioned

A question of interpretation of the new by-law then came up. Senators asked what two-thirds of the University Student Association meant.

Pres. Pro Tem Ken Wessels said it meant two-thirds of those present and voting, and this resulted in a 14-14 tie which was ruled in his favor according to Robert's Rules of Order.

In other action, Pelton announced appointment of Bob Barrow as parliamentarian.

A request for a representative position from Mayflower Hall to the senate was referred to a committee for discussion and vote at the next senate meeting.

Legal Aid Started

—Free To Needy—

By TOM RAFTERY

About 20 per cent of the population of Johnson County, including University students, is eligible for free legal aid, Gary M. Veldey, director of the Hawkeye Area Legal Services Society Inc., said this week.

The Legal Services Society is a non-profit organization sponsored by the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP). Its office opened Monday at room 216, 105 Iowa Ave.

Veldey, a 1962 College of Law graduate, is responsible for the administration of the Legal Service Society. The society is governed by a board of directors.

The society has received its funds from a federal grant of $39,971, given by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), and from local contributions of $12,715.

Under income guidelines suggested by the OEO, a single person with an income of $1,600 or less qualifies for legal services. For each additional dependent,

GARY M. VELDEY
Legal Director

$500 is added. In a family of two, if the total income is $2,100 or less, each person qualifies for free legal aid.

Nine On Board

The board of directors consists of nine persons. Three members represent the poor, four are members of the Johnson County Bar Association, one is appointed by the College of Law and one is a representative of HACAP.

The three representatives of the poor are Miss Penelope J. Bloom, A3, Iowa City; Joel K. Whitaker, A2, Iowa City; and Mrs. Betty Ceynar, 317 Riverside Court. Mrs. Ceynar is also secretary of the board of directors.

Edward W. Lucas, chairman; William M. Tucker, vice chairman; and John W. Hayek, treasurer, represent the Johnson County Bar Association on the Legal Services board.

Vacancy Still Open

Veldey, a former bar association member resigned before submitting his application for the directorship. This vacancy has not yet been filled.

David H. Vernon, dean of the College of Law, represents the College of Law. John C. Garfield, president of HACAP, represents that organization on the board.

The society handles all cases except felony and fee-productive cases.

In Johnson County, the court appoints lawyers in felony cases for those who can not afford them.

Fee-productive cases involve suits in which the lawyer and his client agree on a fixed percentage to be shared between them if they win a settlement.

Violence Flares As Truckers Pursue Struggle

PITTSBURGH — Arsonists, gunmen and vandals challenged reinforced police patrols and an alerted National Guard Wednesday during the struggle to take all steel trucks off the highways.

Flames scorched four gasoline-drenched rigs in Ohio. Pennsylvania police counted 18 trucks damaged by rocks. Seven drivers in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania said they were shot at. No injuries were reported.

Fourteen hours after he ordered National Guardsmen to assemble in western Pennsylvania armories, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer let them go home. But he said they'll be recalled immediately if they're needed.

There was no end in sight to the seven-week-long strike by 10,000 to 20,000 owner-operators trying to prod the Teamsters Union into getting them a better contract.

No new negotiation have been scheduled since the truckers turned down a weekend proposal for a truce. Steel mill warehouses are piling up with finished steel that can't be moved.

Detroit's Top Cop Resigns

DETROIT — Ray Girardin, the police reporter who became Detroit's police commissioner, resigned Wednesday after riding out two grand jury probes of his 4,000-man police department and much criticism from the way he handled the July racial riots.

Girardin's resignation is effective Thursday on his 65th birthday. A city employee must retire at age 65 unless the Pension Board grants an extension on recommendation of his superior. Girardin was given a six-month extension apparently for him to stay until his successor is selected.

Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, who accepted Girardin's resignation "with great regret," attacked the grand jury probes, declaring they "operated generally in the glare of publicity, and exaggerated by headline more frequently than facts."

Phoenix Member To Speak

Mrs. Betty Boardman, a crew member of the yacht Phoenix, will tell of her three-month voyage to North Vietnam at 8 p.m. Friday in the Old Capitol Senate Chamber.

Last winter's trip was sponsored by the Quaker Action Group, which advocates efforts against the U.S. government's Vietnamese policy.

Mrs. Boardman is the mother of six and wife of a University of Wisconsin professor. She is a member of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the Madison Monthly Meeting of Friends, a Quaker organization.

The public lecture is sponsored by the Department of History, the University, and the Iowa City Friends Meeting.

Recreation Is Plentiful For Those Who Seek It

By JAN TEAGUE

Students, faculty and staff members don't realize how many recreational opportunities are available to them, according to James Berg, who is in charge of intramural and recreational sports.

Any faculty or staff member may check out volleyball, softball, football, basketball, badminton or horseshoe equipment by showing his identification card at the Intramural Office, 113 Field House. There is no rental fee.

Student groups that are participating in intramural programs may also check out equipment to practice with.

Reservations Needed

Handball, paddleball and squash courts are available to students, faculty and staff. Berg said. Reservations for these courts must be made in advance because of the great demand.

Reservations for the courts or equipment can be made at the Intramural Office the day they are needed. The phone number is 353-3494.

Office hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays. Reservations for Sunday afternoons from 1 to 5 may be made on Saturdays, he said.

"Play nights" are from 7:30 to 9:30 every Tuesday and Friday nights if there are no home varsity games.

Courts are open to all students, faculty, staff and their spouses. Children are not allowed, said Berg.

Family Nights

Wednesday nights from 7:15 to 9:15 are "family nights." Students, faculty and staff may attend with their spouses and children.

Children must come and leave with their parents, Berg said. All recreational facilities will be available for use on family nights.

Berg said persons should enter through the northeast door of the Field House and present their identification cards.

The University also owns canoes which can be rented in the fall and spring if the weather is appropriate.

The canoe house is on the west side of the Iowa River and north of the University Theatre.

Hemp Foray Nets Charge For Pickers

GUTHRIE CENTER — Four young men caught picking wild hemp — the marijuana plant — in a farm field were held in lieu of $5,000 bond each Wednesday on charges of illegal possession of the plant.

Sheriff Lester Peterson of Guthrie County said he found 55 to 60 pounds of green hemp in their car.

Motel Cache

State Narcotics Agent George B. McCloskey said a raid on their Des Moines motel room uncovered another 400 to 500 pounds.

Peterson identified the men as Yves Frank Hentic, 20, of Staten Island, N.Y.; Joseph Durkin, 21, Fort Worth, Tex.; John M. Blanchard, 20, Catlett, Va. — all students at Georgetown University — and Robert McKeever, 19, Water Mills, N.Y.

Pickers Sighted

Peterson said a woman spotted them in the field and notified his office. He said he was convinced they had come to Iowa specifically to pick hemp and believed they had made similar trips before.

Hemp grows wild in Iowa, where it was planted during World War II under government supervision for the production of rope.

Pollution Bill Hit By GOP

WASHINGTON — An increased attack on air pollution through research, federal financial incentives to state and local governments and tax incentives to industry was urged Wednesday by top Republican leaders.

The proposals were part of a series of studies of national problems made by the Republican Coordinating Committee.

The study rejected the Air Quality Act asked for by the Johnson administration. It protested that the act would centralize all control in Washington.

The administration's bill provides for regional commissions, but the Republican study said the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare would have authority to appoint and remove commission members and control commission budgets.

Varsity Swimmers Needed

Iowa needs varsity swimmers badly, according to swimming Coach Bob Allen. "I would like to extend an invitation to any student who has had any competitive background in swimming to come out," Allen said Tuesday.

While Iowa has a number of good swimmers and divers to open the season against Northern Illinois Dec. 2, Allen admitted, "there's not as much depth as I'd like to have."

He praised his freshman recruits, citing as potentially outstanding Bill Bergman of Cedar Rapids, Iowa state champion in the breast stroke; Rick McKuen in individual medley and Jim Cartwright, a diver. However, they will not be able to compete in varsity events until they are sophomores.

Allen also expressed confidence in the returnees from last year's eighth place team, including lettermen John Scheda (a University record-holder in the 100-yard freestyle), Viggo (Skip) Jensen and Raymond Kearney.

Other promising veterans are Terry Swanson, Tim Barnes and brothers George and Charles Marshall in diving, distance races and breast stroke.

Depth, Top Fresh Promise To Boost Iowa's Wrestling

Better balance in all weight classes and a promising crop of freshman recruits should improve Iowa's wrestling record this season.

From a team hit hard by graduation last year, Coach Dave McCuskey has back 123-pound Ray Pastorino, 167-pound Russell Sill and 177-pound Verlyn Strellner, all lettermen.

Most notable of McCuskey's returnees is of course heavyweight Dale Stearnes. Stearnes was a third place finisher in the Big 10 championship meet last season.

A promising junior college transfer provides McCuskey with even more depth. Richard Miehall of Cedar Rapids, a national J.C. champion last year, will be used at either 152 or 160-pound divisions this winter, according to McCuskey.

Outstanding freshman recruits are:

John Gansky, a 123-pound former Iowa state prep champion, 123-pound Wayne Rogers, former Missouri state prep champ, 130-pound Don Briggs, runner-up in the Minnesota state finals and Steve DeVries, 167-pound runner-up in the Iowa finals.

Sports— Facts and Facets

By JOHN HARMON
Asst. Sports Editor

Iowa lost a ball game Saturday, and as so many have emphasized, Iowa lost badly. It wasn't the first time a Hawkeye football team had been crushed — only last year Michigan State bombed the Hawks by 49 points. Certainly, it won't be the last time the Hawks are whipped, especially with such teams as Notre Dame, Southern Cal, Washington State and Oregon State scheduled in future years.

Perhaps Iowa should lop these class teams off the roster in favor of clubs like Arizona or Panhandle A & M or Savannah State. Then the Hawks could sail into conference action with a perfect slate and Iowa followers could chortle over their team's success. Or could they?

What many people have overlooked in recent years is a very simple fact — you can't win them all and you're certainly not going to win all the time. Iowa had a great football machine for four years in the late '50s. They went to the Rose Bowl (and won) and they were one of the top football powers in the nation.

Now, Hawk fans, when was Indiana last a national threat? How many times has Purdue visited Pasadena Jan. 1 and when was the last time before 1966 that a Purdue team could come to Iowa as a nationally ranked power?

How long have Wisconsin fans been waiting for a grid dynamo? And when is the last time Minnesota put together a string of years comparable to the Hawkeye dynasty under Forest Evashevski?

Since Iowa led the Big 10 standings in 1960, five different clubs have had a turn on the top — Ohio State, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Michigan State. Only the Spartans could field teams with the "staying power" of the Hawk regime 1956-60.

If this "win and get lost" trend in the Big 10 continues, Iowa won't finish on the top for another four to six years. That means Indiana, Purdue, Northwestern and Minnesota are due for good years before the Hawks.

Another aspect of football today which should be rather obvious, especially after the Oregon State game, when Coach Ray Nagel had to use players who weren't even listed on the roster, is Iowa's "number" problem.

The Hawks, despite what has been said recently, have many very good football players. They just don't have enough. Of the 52 Iowa players on the field Saturday, 22 were all-state picks in their respective states, two were prep All-Americans and one was an All-America honorable mention choice.

Nagel was aware of this problem even before the start of fall practice. Only 59 reported to the Hawkeye camp, which was much less than any other Big 10 school. The number has shrunk to 55 and has fluctuated around that all fall, depending on how many players were injured.

Two reasons can be cited for this shortage of personnel, one being Iowa's position as the smallest Big 10 school and its location in an area which has no heavy industry or high-salaried jobs available for recruits.

With this shortage of players, the Hawks have been forced to scrimmage with the freshman team instead of the traditional "maumau" squad. Nagel doesn't see this as a handicap however, since he feels the freshman group does an adequate job. But the shortage does present the Hawks with a depth problem which was apparent in the Oregon State loss. This year's team is barely two deep at each position.

A second reason for the small size of the Iowa squads, is one that affects every Big 10 school — the limited number of scholarships.

So Iowa isn't the only Big 10 school weathering a storm these days. The fans can still be proud of the great era and at the same time look forward to 1968 when Nagel will have a crop of freshman "dandies" to complement those 22 all-state stars.

Iowa Braces For Notre Dame Passing

Iowa's offensive football units split their time between running and passing games and the defense worked mostly against pass plays Wednesday.

Coach Ray Nagel said three sophomores promoted to the first string this week definitely would start against Notre Dame Saturday. They are right guard Jon Meskimen, right tackle Mel Morris and left tackle Mike Phillips.

Fullback Cornelius Patterson, out of the Hawkeyes' first two games because of injuries, was running at full speed.

Bob Kuechenberg, 245-pound offensive right tackle, may be used at the injury-weakened defensive end position by Notre Dame against the Hawkeyes.

Listed defensive end starters against the Hawkeyes are a pair of juniors, 215-pound Brian Stenger and 225-pound Chuck Lauck.

ENTRIES DUE—

Jose Santiago, first Latin American to pitch a Series opener, did his best to win it alone with a 360-foot home run into the screen atop the left field wall at Fenway Park in the third inning.

Brock Starts

Brock's fourth single, opening the seventh, finally started the Redbirds on the way to the tie-breaking run. Brock, who led the league with 52 stolen bases, just barely beat Russ Gibson's throw into second for a stolen base on Jose's first pitch to Curt Flood.

When Flood grounded out to first baseman George Scott, Brock sped to third. Roger Maris, the ex-New York Yankee who had driven in the first run with an infield out, did it again when he rapped sharply to second baseman Jerry Adair. Adair came up with the ball, looked futilely at Brock nearing home plate and threw out Maris.

Run Produced

It was the same combination that produced the first Cardinal run in the third when Brock lined up his second single to center, romped to third on Flood's double to the left field corner and scored when Maris bounced out to first baseman Scott.

Bob Gibson struck out 10 in pitching a six-hitter for the National League champs.

Gibson, out of action with a broken right leg from July 15 to Sept. 6, came through with another nifty performance as he had done in earning the star role in 1964 against the Yankees.

The ex-Harlem Globetrotter held Carl Yastrzemski without a hit in four trips and struck out two men in each of the first, second, third and fifth innings. Rico Petrocelli was his strikeout victim three straight times.

Although Yastrzemski went hitless, the Red Sox's candidate for Most Valuable Player honors, made several fine defensive plays in left field.

He threw out Julian Javier, trying to score from second on Brock's single in the fourth with a perfect peg to Russ Gibson. In the fifth inning he made a leaping one-handed stab of Flood's hard smash for a spectacular out of what would have been a sure double.

Coach Comments—

Gilliam Sizes Up Notre Dame

Iowa's Assistant Football Coach Frank Gilliam witnessed Purdue's upset of Notre Dame last Saturday. Although Iowa plays Purdue later this month, Gilliam's notes deal mainly with the Hawkeyes' next foe, Notre Dame.

"Notre Dame's main threat," said Gilliam, "is its passing attack. They are a cinch to pass on third down situations, and pass a lot on first down too."

Commenting on quarterback Terry Hanratty, Gilliam said, "He's a fine passer and scrambles well when I. has to.

"Although Hanratty is a great passer, I would give the edge to Iowa's Ed Podolak in running."

"Defensively, the Irish are big and strong, but not what they were last year. They lost three of their front linemen and a linebacker."

"Their weakness," said Gilliam, "is that they have been unable to get a sustained running attack. The hard running backs, Larry Conjar and Nick Eddy, from last year's team are gone."

"The Irish have been hit all week with injuries, but I don't think these injuries are going to bother them," said Gilliam. "They have a great deal of depth which helps make them a great football team."

"We have worked a great deal this week on Notre Dame's pass patterns..."

INTRODUCING AN ASTONISHING LITTLE FM RADIO.

The new KLH Model Twenty-One.

The Model Twenty-One looks pretty much like a little FM radio. But looks can be deceiving. Turn it on and it will flood your room with music.

Turn it on and this incredible little radio produces an amount and quality of sound out of all proportion to its size and price.

The fact is, the Twenty-One is a complete FM receiving system. Besides its own self-contained speaker, it has outlets for external speakers (including a special KLH auxiliary speaker!), for making tape recordings or for use as a tuner in a separate sound system.

You can turn off the internal speaker when you want the tuning dial at hand and the sound from an external speaker across the room. Or you can play an extension speaker simultaneously in another room.

The Twenty-One isn't stereo. And it doesn't play records. It's just the best FM radio you ever heard.

We invite you to come in for a demonstration of the Twenty-One. We guarantee you'll be astonished by what you hear. And by the price.

IOWA GYMNAST Arnie Lazar is up in the air over Hawkeye fortunes this season. Lazar, a senior from Skokie, Ill., will furnish Iowa's Big 10 champs with some experience in the parallel bar competition. Coach Sam Bailie has said this is one area in which the Hawks must improve. — Photo by Dick Taffe

Bailie Introduces Gymnasts

Iowa's defending Big 10 champion gymnastics team held its second annual Press, Radio & TV day Wednesday at the Field House.

The gymnasts now get down to serious practice for a 14-meet schedule which starts Dec. 9 with the Iowa Open.

"I think we've improved 25 per cent over last year," said head Coach Sam Bailie. Bailie wrote each member of his team during the summer, saying the Hawkeyes would have to improve just about that much in order to finish higher than last year's third place nationally.

Bailie's only concern at present is parallel bars. He'd like to have more depth and improvement at this position.

The Hawkeyes will have to adjust to a new rule this year. The rule limits the number of competitors which a team may have from 13 to 12.

"We have 19 boys on the team right now," said Bailie. "Since seven of them will be sitting on the bench, seven will be working hard for a position."

Iowa will be competing in intra-squad meets for the first time this year. The first meet is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Oct. 18.

AP Honors Namath

By The Associated Press

Joe Namath, the darling of New York's Jet set, can drive even the coolest defensive secondary slightly daffy when things are going his way.

Namath had Miami's defenders talking to themselves last Sunday when he completed 23 of 39 passes for 315 yards and led the Jets to a 29-7 victory over the Dolphins.

His dazzling show made Namath The Associated Press' choice as the American Football League's Offensive Player of the Week.

Green Bay Coach Reveals Cause Of Starr's Plight

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers has been injured since the start of the National Football League season. Coach Vince Lombardi admitted Wednesday.

"He's been playing with a multiple of injuries," Lombardi said. But Lombardi, who had denied their was anything wrong with Starr, did not discuss the nature of the injuries.

"Really, he's been playing under a severe handicap all year," Lombardi said.

"Although I've denied this a number of times, I've denied it in order to protect him, not from the fans or from the newspapers, but rather from the opposition."

"He's certainly displayed a great deal of courage in playing," Lombardi continued.

Starr, the NFL's Most Valuable Player last season, is considered a doubtful starter in next Sunday's match at Detroit with the Lions.

PERMANENT PRESS CLOTHES GET "JUST RIGHT" TREATMENT IN A NEW GAS DRYER!

- Easy-to-operate Precision Controls!
- Weatherproof Washways!

Modern fabric cycles on today's gas dryer are especially designed to prevent wrinkling in permanent press clothes. You don't even have to do any touch-up pressing on seams, collars or pleats. Wrinkles are fluffed out with just the right amount of heat and then cooled down at the end of the cycle to make sure the press stays in. Aside from that, a new gas dryer makes every day an ideal drying day—saves time, effort and clothes.

Jackson was awarded a B.A. by Niagara University and an M.A. and Ph.D. by Indiana University, where he has been a teaching associate. P.R. Srinivasan has joined the School of Art as a visiting lecturer for the current academic year. The recipient of an M.A. from Annamalai University, Madras State, India, he will teach the history of Indian art. From 1946 to 1959 he was curator of Indian art and archeology at the Madras Museum, Madras State, India. In 1959 he was appointed by the Archaeological Survey of India to write books on ancient Indian artistic monuments and inscriptions, and since 1960, he has written epigraphs for Sanskrit inscriptions for the Archaeological Survey of India.

-Education Subsidy Bigger-Veterans Get More $ $

By BRUCE MOST
Veterans attending the University this year under the new "Cold War GI Bill" will receive a major increase in monthly payments beginning in October. The new readjustment act, which went into effect Monday, will raise the monthly payments for a full-time student with no dependents from $100 to $130. Full-time students with one dependent will receive $155, a $30 increase, and students with two dependents will receive $175, a $25 increase. The new law also provides a full-time student with $10 for each additional dependent. There are also increases for part-time students and for disabled veterans. The bill is the second readjustment of the Cold War bill in two years, James J. Rauker, assistant registrar said last week. The original bill was intended to make education a permanent fringe benefit of military service. It made every serviceman, whether he had served in war or peace, eligible for education and training benefits. It was modified by the Veterans Readjustment Benefits Act of 1966. 675 Are Under Bill About 675 students attended the University under this bill in the fall of 1966. It is too soon to have figures for this semester, but it is expected to increase, Rauker said. Another major change under the new bill will probably make it easier and quicker for veterans to receive their monthly payments. Previously, a veteran had to send an IBM card to the Veterans Administration Center (Des Moines in Iowa's case) at the end of each month to certify his enrollment at the University for that month. Usually the veteran wouldn't receive his check until the 20th of the following month. Under the new bill the school certifies at registration the number of hours the veteran is taking and sends this information to the VA center. An IBM card is sent back to the veteran who fills out the necessary information and returns it. Payments then start and will continue until the center is notified by the University and the veteran that he has either dropped school or decreased his hours enough to lower payments. It is not yet known when the checks will be sent out each month. The University will be paid $3 for each veteran who attends the school in order to cover the cost of processing, Rauker noted. Old Rate Remains Payments for September of this year, which are received in October, will be computed under the old bill's payment schedule. A veteran may be eligible for payments if he has served on active duty at least 181 days, any part of which is after Jan. 31, 1955, or if he has been physically disabled as a result of service. The veteran is entitled to one month of payment for each month of active duty up to a maximum of 36 months. Weekends and scheduled vacations are not considered class days and are not computed into the payments. Also, a veteran may not transfer schools more than once, or he will lose his veterans benefits. Veterans must complete their training within eight years after discharge. In addition to the increased payments for higher education the new bill allows veterans to obtain high school diplomas without exhausting any of their benefits for advanced training. Benefits for apprenticeships, farm, flight, or on-the-job training, previously available only for World War II and Korean veterans, were made available to all veterans. BIOCHEMIST GETS AWARD Earle C. Stellwagen, assistant professor of biochemistry, has been named recipient of a research career development award from the U.S. Public Health Service.

Chorale Tickets Available Today

Travelers' Market Planned To Aid Goodwill Building

By LINDA ARTLIP
The Travelers' Market is coming Wednesday to Iowa City. The market, a bazaar sponsored by the Iowa City Women's club, is a fund raising project for the local Goodwill Industries' building project. The market will have displays in six Iowa City homes and will feature antiques, Christmas decorations, art work and needlecraft. The market is the product of 10 months work by the Women's Club, said Mrs. Joseph Howe, 1635 Ridge Rd., project chairman. "Our motto has been 'never throw anything away,'" Mrs. Howe said. The group has lived up to its motto. Pillows made of ribbons; Christmas wreaths made of acorns, pine cones and peach seeds; paintings on velvet; old books and pin cushions made of tin cans are a few of the many articles that will be for sale. Vice President Hubert Humphrey's wife sent an etching of the U.S. Capitol Building which will be for sale at the market. Mrs. Howe said that Mrs. Humphrey was interested in the market because the proceeds would be used to help retarded children. The Humphreys have a retarded grandchild. Each of the six homes to be used as shops for the market will be open Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Each home will be a specialty shop; one a painting and pottery store; another a holiday house and another for attic treasures. There will also be a farmer's market at the 4-H Grounds, one mile south of Iowa City on Highway 218. There will be a clothing shop at the Methodist Wesley House, 120 N. Dubuque St. Iowa City hostesses for the market are Mrs. John Van Bibber, 20 Lakeview Circle; Mrs. James Swanner, 4 Longview Knoll; Mrs. Robert Thoenes, 5 Ridgewood Lane; Mrs. J.F. Fairbank, 421 River St.; Mrs. Robert Thompson, Rochester Road; and Mrs. Emery Kelley, 1707 Muscatine Ave.

—Van Allen Remembers—

Sputnik Launched UI Space Research

Ten years ago this week, a University physics professor was aboard a Navy icebreaker headed for Antarctica as the leader of a scientific expedition to study cosmic rays.

While the ship plowed southward across the Pacific, its radio crackled with the news that Russia had launched an earth satellite. The scientist bent over the dial of the ship's radio receiver, and soon heard the beeping sounds of Sputnik 1.

For James Van Allen, these beeping sounds meant that the Russians had accomplished what he had been anxiously awaiting for years.

This wait, in fact, began in the living room of the Van Allen home in Silver Springs, Md., in early 1950 — the year before the physicist came to head the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

It was early that year that the noted British physicist Sydney Chapman visited Van Allen — then at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory — and remarked that he would like to meet other scientists in the Washington area.

Van Allen phoned a number of top scientists, who were soon gathered in his living room with the eminent Englishman. In their conversation was born the idea of an International Geophysical Year (IGY), and later the United States geophysicist Lloyd Berkner formally proposed the IGY project.

Armed with new research instruments — rockets, radar and computers — and bristling with questions about cosmic rays, upper atmosphere, ocean depths and even the possibility of space exploration, the world scientific community received the suggestion enthusiastically.

The International Council of Scientific Unions set the dates for the IGY from July 1, 1957 to Dec. 31, 1958 to correspond with a predicted period of maximum sunspot activity. Even the Soviet Union and the United States managed to bury the political hatchet for the sake of science.

Stimulated by the mood of the world scientific community, the U.S. government began working toward earth satellites as geophysical tools.

Jupiter Developed
The Army developed its Jupiter-C rocket and the Navy went to work on its Vanguard. When the Pentagon decided in favor of Vanguard for the first U.S. satellite launch, Van Allen and his colleagues at Iowa were commissioned to provide space instrumentation.

Van Allen carried on cosmic ray research here in the early 1950's which he had conducted with the aid of German V-2 rockets following World War II and

This research first was carried on with instruments tied to balloons launched from the running track in the Stadium, and later with rockets launched from balloons over the ocean.

As early as 1951, when the first balloons appeared in the sky near Iowa City, Iowans became aware of Van Allen and his associates.

Newspapers began to carry accounts of the unusual research at the University, and residents were told to notify the University physics department upon finding transparent plastic gondolas in fields or woods nearby.

Later Van Allen developed the "rockoon" technique for upper-air research. This technique used a balloon to lift a small rocket through the more dense 15 miles of atmosphere before the rockoon fired and climbed another 50 or 70 miles through the diffused rim of the atmosphere.

But the rockoons could not be fired in Iowa for fear that the spent rockets would spike an Iowan or his house, so the University arranged to have its experiments transported to sea.

Rockoon Expedition
Van Allen's first rockoon expedition was in 1952 aboard a Coast Guard icebreaker. The expedition went into the Arctic Ocean near Greenland, where cosmic rays are deflected toward the earth's magnetic pole by the planet's magnetic field.

On this expedition Van Allen celebrated what has been called his "orange-juice victory." His balloons rose properly to 70,000 feet, but the rockets hanging under them did not fire, it was found.

On the theory that extreme cold at high altitudes might stop the clockwork which was supposed to ignite the rockets, Van Allen heated cans of orange juice, placed them in the rockoon's gondola, and wrapped the firing mechanism with the orange juice in the gondola. The rockets fired.

University rockoon and balloon experiments continued through the 1950's, and in the fall of 1957 Van Allen was heading a rockoon expedition to the Antarctic when Russia launched Sputnik 1.

Following Sputnik, the free world cried for satellite action. With the Navy's Vanguard program faltering, the Army was granted permission to try its satellite.

The University adapted its space instruments to the requirements of the Jupiter-rocket, and in 1958 the first earth satellites went up.

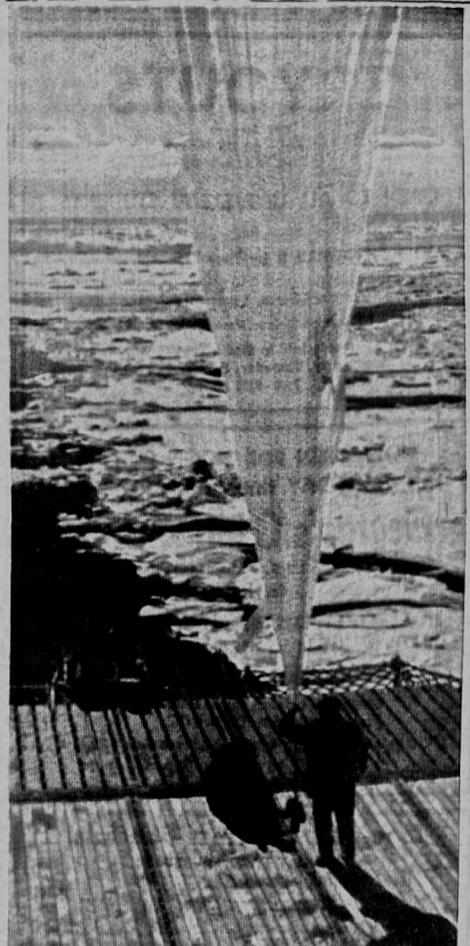

These launches led to the discovery of the famous Van Allen belts of radiation which encircle the earth.

PHARMACY COEDS MEET—

Cathy Roth, P3, Ackley, and Molly McShane, P3, Mount Vernon, Mo., represented Gamma Chapter of Kappa Epsilon national professional fraternity for women in pharmacy, at a national convention recently at the University of Mississippi.

VAN ALLEN

ARCTIC ADVENTURES WERE commonplace for James Van Allen and his University colleagues during the 1950's as they sent rockets aloft in balloon devices to test cosmic rays in the upper atmosphere. As a result of these experiments, the Van Allen radiation belt was discovered.

—'Good Cooperation'— Civil Defense Plans Emphasize Shelter Around Campus

By JOANN BOLTON
The University Civil Defense Board and the Johnson County Department of Civil Defense are receiving greater cooperation than ever before in pinpointing campus fallout shelters, according to Wayne D. Walters, Johnson County Civil Defense Director.

Walters said this week that fallout shelters were marked this summer, including 24 University buildings licensed after a check by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The campus buildings could accommodate 30,000 persons. Thirty-six tons of supplies have been moved into some of the buildings. Another 65 tons of supplies are to be delivered as soon as space can be cleared for them, Walters said.

The supplies include food, medical kits, sanitation kits and instruments for measuring radiation.

The shelters are being stocked with enough provisions to last two weeks. After that time it is anticipated that the radiation level will have dropped enough to allow people to leave.

Walters said that the instruments would be installed upon completion of a 16-hour course for radiological monitors which is to begin as soon as volunteers can be found and assigned.

Managers To Be Trained
Shelter managers are also to be trained as soon as the University designates persons as managers, he said.

Walters said the shelters were not bomb shelters and would not withstand a direct or near hit. They would only protect persons from nuclear fallout, he said.

Walters noted that the shelters were good protection, but that living conditions would be poor.

"It would be austere living with nothing to eat but crackers and carbohydrates," he said.

For this reason, he said he hoped soon to get a community shelter planning project done in Iowa City by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The community shelter project would include a survey of small buildings suitable as shelters, and would involve assigning persons from specified areas to designated shelters.

Students Considered
Eventually, Walters said, students would be assigned to larger structures such as dormitories so that the University could have better control and so that more food would be available to them.

A home shelter survey recently conducted here by the Census Bureau informed home owners of the protection factors in their houses and suggested ways of improving protection.

Walters said that if residents could remain in their own homes during a nuclear emergency, space problems would be alleviated and they would be more comfortable.

"The response by the public to the survey was excellent," said Walters.

Meeting To Draw Smiley, Millsap

City Manager Frank R. Smiley and Assistant City Manager Kenneth F. Millsap will attend the International City Managers' Association conference Sunday through Thursday in New Orleans.

Smiley said Wednesday that more than 850 city managers from the United States and Canada would examine problems in labor relations, fiscal reform, city-school relations, civil rights and the increase of individual involvement in city government at the conference.

Smiley is to be one of seven city managers to moderate panel and workshop sessions. His will be about labor relations for managers from cities of 25,000 to 75,000 population.

14 Professors Join Business Administration Staff

Fourteen new staff members with the rank of assistant professor or above have joined the College of Business Administration.

Charles R. Klasson is a new professor of business administration. New associate professors are William P. Dommerruth, business administration, and Victor H. Tidwell and Albert R. Mitchell, accounting. New assistant professors and their departments are: M. Richard Roseman, Alex Maurizi, John R. Morris, Jr., Samuel H. Williamson, Dean S. Dutton and Darwin Wasink, economics; and Richard A. Stevenson and Gary Wicklund, business administration.

H. Keith Hunt, a new assistant professor, will hold joint appointments in the College of Business Administration and the School of Journalism. The new program director of the Center for Labor and Management, Harry E. Graham, assumed his position as an assistant professor in May.

In addition, three professors of business administration who formerly taught at the University will return to the college. They are Jack F. Culley, who has been at the University of Liberia as dean for two years;

George Calvin Hoyt, who has been associated with the school of Management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology the past year, and William A. Knoke, who was a visiting professor of marketing at California State College at Los Angeles the past year.

Taught At Texas
Klasson earned his B.S. from Ohio State University in 1953, his M.B.A. from there in 1956 and his D.B.A. from Indiana University in 1960. Before coming to the University, he was an assistant professor and associate professor at the University of Texas.

Tidwell, who is a certified public accountant, earned a B.S. from Illinois College in 1960 and his M.B.A. and D.B.A. from Indiana University in 1962 and 1966.

Mitchell was awarded a B.S. in 1965 from the University of Colorado, an M.B.A. in 1957 from the University of Denver and a Ph.D. in 1966 from the University of Missouri. His experience includes positions as an instructor and assistant professor at the University of Denver, as an accountant and as an assistant professor at Eastern New Mexico University and assistant professor at the University of Missouri.

Won M.A. At Harvard
Roseman earned his B.S. in 1953 from the University of Wisconsin and his M.A. in 1957 from Harvard University, where he is currently working on his Ph.D. He has been an instructor and assistant professor at Tufts University and an assistant professor at the University of California at Santa Barbara. He has also worked for the U.S. Department of the Treasury in the Fiscal Economics Department and has been a member of the consulting research staff of the RAND Corporation.

Maurizi earned his B.A. in 1962 from Knox College, his M.A. in 1964 from Stanford University and his Ph.D. in 1967 from Stanford. He has worked as a research and teaching assistant at Stanford University.

Morris, who has been an instructor at Adelphi University and Purdue University, earned his B.A. from Cornell University in 1961 and his M.S. and Ph.D. from Purdue University in 1962 and 1965.

Williamson earned his B.S. and M.S. in 1962 and 1964 from Purdue University, where he earned a Ph.D. this year.

Dutton earned his B.A. from the University of Utah in 1964 and his M.A. from Michigan State University in 1966. He is finishing work on a Ph.D. from Michigan State.

Wasink earned a B.A. from the University of Minnesota in 1962 and an M.A. from Stanford University in 1965. He is working on his Ph.D. at Stanford. He has been a teaching assistant and instructor at the University of Minnesota.

Was Research Analyst
Stevenson earned a B.B.A. from St. Bonaventure University in 1961, an M.B.A. from Syracuse University in 1962 and a Ph.D. from Michigan State University in 1965. He has been an instructor at Jamestown Community College, a research analyst for the Household Finance Company in Chicago and a part-time lecturer in economics at DePaul University.

Wicklund earned a B.S. from Iowa State University in 1963, an M.B.A. from the University of Denver in 1965 and is working on his Ph.D. at Northwestern. He has been an instructor at the University of Denver and Northwestern University.

Hunt, who holds a joint appointment in business administration and journalism, was awarded his B.A. and M.B.A. from the University of Utah and is completing requirements for a Ph.D. from Northwestern University. He has been a management assistant at the University of Utah and an instructor at Imperial Valley Junior College in California and at Northwestern.

Graham earned his B.A. and M.A. from Hunter College in 1962 and 1964. He was awarded a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in August. He has held positions with the New York Shipping Association and the Savings Banks Association of New York State.

UI Professor Says 'Rights' Not Defined

By PEGGY McGAFFEY
Whether anthropologists can even talk about human rights was the subject of a talk by an anthropologist on human rights Tuesday night.

David H. Andrews, assistant professor of anthropology, told the new interdisciplinary graduate seminar meeting in the Board Room at Old Capitol that human rights were derived from values held by society.

Since modern cultural anthropology is concerned with values, he said, the "situation" of human rights has been brought into the scientific realm.

However, he asked if such values were really a concern of the discipline? Some anthropologists would say "yes," others "no," he said.

Despite these differing views, the American Anthropological Association has offered resolutions regarding human rights. Last November the association issued a statement condemning the use of napalm, torture and other war atrocities.

Such resolutions are obviously definite stands on human rights and nature, Andrews noted, but the problem is that anthropology has never really defined human nature.

Until a definition is found, human behavior can't be judged accordingly and the question of human rights will be outside the anthropology's realm, he said, and the time is not right for anthropology to judge human behavior.

The seminar, which is held at 7:15 Tuesdays in the Old Capitol Board Room, is open to interested faculty and students other than those enrolled. Each session features a different lecturer who focuses on some aspect of human rights.

Student Wins Scholarship, Chair Again

By CINDY HOWELL
A $3,000 music scholarship and a chair with the Center for New Music has been awarded for the second straight year to trumpeter Edwin L. Harkins, G. Campaign, Ill.

The scholarship, established in 1961 by Sutherland Dows Sr. of Cedar Rapids, will enable Harkins to continue composing and performing while working for his Ph.D.

The piece that Harkins is composing for his dissertation is a large-scale work for performance by a large group.

"I'm writing it with the people of the Center in mind," he said, referring to the 12 other performing members with whom he works.

Traditions Helpful
Though the music produced by the Center is new and experimental, Harkins said he draws from his study of traditional music back through the classical composers.

He said that jazz may have some effect on the new music as applied to extending the limits and possibilities of an instrument.

"The main reason for the Center is to expose people to the wide styles of the 20th Century," Harkins said. There is an electronic music studio for the group at Eastlaw.

Harkins has had one of his works performed by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. In 1965 he appeared as guest soloist with the Hartford Symphony at the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York. Harkins called the Lincoln Center performance "one of my greatest thrills."

Deeply Studies Music
He studied music theory under composers Gunther Schuller, Allen Forte of Yale University and Leonard Meyer of the University of Chicago.

Harkins earned his B.M. at Illinois Wesleyan, where he studied composition under Robert Schallenberg, who now directs the University's electronic music studio. He got his M.M. at Yale.

Harkins' wife, Bonnie, is also a musician, though now she is working toward a master's in elementary education.

11 New Profs Named To 4 UI Departments

Eleven persons with the rank of assistant professor or above are new faculty members of the College of Nursing, Institute of Child Behavior and Development and Departments of Psychology and Home Economics.

New nursing faculty members are Hope Solomons, associate professor, and Marjorie Gould, Dorothy Stewart and Sister Sheila Lyne, assistant professors. New faculty at the Institute are Michael D. Zeller, associate professor, and William L. Croll, assistant professor.

The five new psychology appointees are Nickolas B. Cottrell, an associate professor who will join the staff in December Ira J. Semler, visiting associate professor; and assistant professors James V. Hinrichs, John R. Platt and Donald K. Routh.

Mabel Skjelver is a new assistant professor in the Department of Home Economics.

Mrs. Solomons, whose specialty is clinical psychology, has been Iowa City public schools psychologist for the past four years. She earned a B.A. in 1952 from Clark University, an M.A. in 1954 from Wellesley College, and an E.D.D. in 1957 from Boston University. From 1960-1962 she was an assistant professor at Rhode Island College, Providence.

Miss Gould earned a B.S. in 1939 from the University and an M.S.N.E. in 1947 from Boston University. She has been supervisor of orthopedic nursing at University Hospital since 1950.

Was Assistant Here

Mrs. Stewart earned a B.S. from Wheaton College in 1951 and an M.A. from the University of Chicago in 1953. She was employed as program assistant in Health Occupation Education at the University before joining the College of Nursing faculty.

Sr. Lyne earned a B.S. in 1962 and an M.S. in 1965 from St. Xavier College. She will conduct the graduate program in psychiatric nursing, using the facilities of the Scott County Mental Health Center, Oak Knoll and Mercy Hospital in Davenport for the graduate students' clinical work with patients.

4 Universities To Participate In Intramurals

An intramural activities schedule involving four Iowa universities is being planned by the Iowa College Council (ICC).

The ICC, which met Sunday in Toledo, Iowa, comprises representatives from the University of Northern Iowa at Cedar Falls, Iowa State University at Ames, Drake University at Des Moines and the University.

It was started "because the Iowa colleges have a lot in common," according to the University's co-ordinator, Jim French, A2, Davenport.

Meeting once every two months, the council has also been planning a booklet for the names and addresses of the officers of all of the clubs and organizations from the four colleges. This booklet is expected to be published in October, 1968, and will be distributed to the officers of every college organization.

ICC also serves as a meeting ground for student body presidents to discuss campus controversies and mutual problems. At Sunday's meeting, the presidents discussed the advisability of lowering the drinking age in Iowa.

One of the committees involved in ICC is the Student Legislation Action Committee. This committee is most active when the legislature is in session. The campus members act as hosts and hostesses during visits by legislators and their wives. After every election committee members visit the new legislators and personally present them with a pamphlet listing the problems of Iowa colleges the Council would like to see corrected.

Although only four colleges are now represented, French said that plans are being made to include other Iowa colleges.

Zeller was a psychology faculty member at Wellesley College for five years before joining the Department of Psychology. A 1954 graduate of Stanford University, he earned his M.A. and Ph.D. from the New School for Social Research in New York City in 1958 and 1962.

Croll earned all his degrees at the University — the B.S. in 1964, the M.A. in 1966 and the Ph.D. in 1967.

An assistant professor of psychology at Kent State University, Ohio, Cottrell earned a B.A. from Swarthmore College in 1958, an M.S. and his Ph.D. from the University of Washington in 1960 and 1963. From 1963-1965 he was a National Institute of Mental Health post-doctoral fellow at the University of Michigan.

Worked In Cedar Rapids

Semler has been a psychologist and director of research in the Cedar Rapids Community Schools for the past seven years. A 1949 graduate of the University of Northern Iowa (then Iowa State Teachers College), he earned his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University in 1953 and 1957. In 1957-1958 he was an assistant professor at Chico State College, Calif., and from 1958-1960 he was an assistant professor at the University of Texas.

Hinrichs earned a B.A. from the University in 1963, and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Stanford University in 1964 and 1967.

Platt earned a B.A. from the University of Kansas in 1964, and a Ph.D. from the University of Texas in 1967.

A 1962 graduate of the University of Oklahoma, Routh earned an M.S. in 1965 and a Ph.D. in 1967 from the University of Pittsburgh.

An associate professor of interior design at Indiana State University for the past three years, Mrs. Skjelver is a 1951 graduate of the University of Nebraska. She earned an M.A. in 1955 from Michigan State University, and a Ph.D. in 1963 from Florida State University.
