City Home Owner Refuses To Sell; UI's Parking Lot To Encircle House

By JERRY LEVINE
The new faculty-student parking lot is going to have a house — right in the middle of it.
The new parking lot, bounded by Madison, Capitol, Prentiss and Harrison streets, is expected to be completed by November, according to John Dooley, director of parking lot operations. The Boyd Brack home, 514 S. Madison, will sit in the middle of the lot until a settlement can be reached with the University.
Brack, who lives alone, said Monday that he was offered $17,000 for his property by the University: $15,000 for his lot and $2,130 for his two-bedroom home and three-car garage.

A sheriff's jury awarded Brack $17,000. Brack has appealed this settlement to the Johnson County District Court.
Brack can appeal to the Iowa State Supreme Court if he is not satisfied with the District Court ruling.
"I bought the place in 1942 and I'm here to stay," Brack said. He said he did not know what he would do if he was dissatisfied with the District Court ruling.
"This property is zoned for business. I've been thinking about starting a little tavern and I think it will do real good," said Brack.
The University has other plans.
"The parking lot will be built around the house. After a settlement has been reached, the University will clear the property and build more parking spaces," Dooley said.

"The lot will be open to anyone who wants to pay a special $30 fee for a parking permit," said Ray Mossman, University treasurer.
The University tentatively plans to lay rock on the lot so that it can be used for parking by Nov. 1, Mossman said.
"It won't be paved until summer, after the land has settled," Mossman said.
The land was originally designated to be used for a new coed dormitory, Harrison Hall, but the University has postponed action on the dormitory until housing conditions can be re-evaluated, Ted Rehder, director of dormitory administration, said.

Conspiracy Trial Begins In 'Mississippi 3' Case

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — The Justice Department said Monday it would prove during the current conspiracy trial of 18 men that three civil rights workers were chased and stopped by three cars, one driven by a deputy sheriff, then shot to death at close range.

"Evidence will show that a Klan group known as the White Knights of the Klux Klan, headed by Sam Bowers Jr., a defendant, was involved in a conspiracy," Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. John Doar told a federal court jury.
He told the jury that the Federal Bureau of Investigation paid money for information in developing the conspiracy case against the 18 defendants and that the jury would hear testimony from paid informers.

place and the bodies were put back into the station wagon for the trip to 15-foot deep graves at a dam on property owned by one of the defendants, Olen L. Burage.

Four Hours Needed
Attorneys needed only four hours to settle on a jury from a 50-member panel that included 17 Negroes and 33 whites. They settled on seven women and five men, all white.

Attended Church
Doar said Schwerner, Goodman and Chaney had been to the Mt. Zion Church about nine miles east of Philadelphia on June 16, 1964, to inspect the burned Mt. Zion Church.

Cox refused to delay the trial of one of the men, Frank J. Herndon, who was confined to Anderson Hospital here suffering from a herniated esophagus. He ordered Herndon brought to the afternoon session, and Herndon appeared wearing pajamas and house robe.

The judge broke off the 50-member panel of prospects from the main venire of 270. He had earlier excused 11 prospects, including a Negro woman who said she had participated in a civil rights march.

Another enrollment record, the eighth in a row, has been set by the 18,659 students who registered this fall at the University, Donald E. Rhoades, dean of admissions, said Monday. Last fall's enrollment was 17,755.

Most of this fall's enrollment, which came within one per cent of the number anticipated, is in the College of Liberal Arts where 10,424 are registered, 565 more than last year. The Graduate College is second largest, with 4,740 enrolled, a gain of 279 over last year.

The remaining 3,465 students are registered in the other eight undergraduate and professional colleges, which gained or lost students in lesser numbers as usual and in no discernible pattern.

There are 11,695 male students this year and 6,964 coeds.

Fifty-two of this fall's graduate students are candidates for master of arts in library science degrees, the first such degrees ever to be offered in Iowa. Courses are taught in the new School of Library Science which opened this fall.

The enrollment includes 270 students registered for off-campus residence-credit courses. Not counted in the total are another 476 persons enrolled in extension courses, taught off the campus and carrying full college credit but not regular residence credit.

University enrollment by colleges, with last year's figures in parentheses, is: Business Administration, 834 (706); Dentistry, 216 (215); Engineering, 477 (579); Graduate, 4,770 (4,491); Law, 440 (463); Liberal Arts, 10,424 (9,859); Medicine, 803 (773); Nursing, 418 (416); and Pharmacy, 277 (253).

Hubbard said, "The people who operate the University, faculty, administrators and others, are chosen because of intellectual and academic achievements, not political achievement. They don't look upon the University as a political organization, but rather as an academic enterprise."

"They try to make decisions according to intellectual norms and the general effect they will have on the intellectual atmosphere. The plebiscite is not necessarily the best technique to determine the best solutions most satisfactory from an intellectual viewpoint," Hubbard said.

Hubbard said students come from different backgrounds and need intellectual discipline. In the first one or two years

Senate Battle Predicted

By MARY CLARK
Tonight's Student Senate meeting may turn into a legal hassle, Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton said Monday.
The newly formed Students for Responsible Action (SRA) is expected to introduce an alternative to the amendment to the proposed senate constitution approved last week by the senate. The SRA would like its proposal — which calls for a faculty-student coalition chaired by the administration — added as an alternative to the student referendum slated for early November. The referendum was requested by the senate as a means of gauging student sentiment on the HSP amendment which calls for University non-intervention in students' private lives.

Pelton said, "HSP will undoubtedly question the legality of the move. We are going to try and get the SRA proposal on the referendum because now the students have no real choice. They can vote yes or no but they have no real alternative."
HSP Sen. Chuck Derden disagreed.
SRA Proposal
"We think that the SRA proposal is worse than the system we have with the University now," he said. "We feel that the referendum does give the students a choice. If they vote yes, they are voting in support of the amendment. If they vote no, they are voting in favor of the status quo — the system we have now."

Derden declined to comment on what the HSP action would be tonight when the SRA proposal is introduced. He said that the HSP senators read the proposal but that their final action would be decided in caucus at the senate meeting.
Derden said that he thought the SRA proposal was out of line.
"The senate has voted on the referendum and any addition would be against parliamentary order," he said.
Pelton said that he expected a fight to come out of the meeting and that two separate bills might have to be presented on the referendum.
There is also a possibility that the senate could vote to go into regular session, Pelton said. This would mean that the amendment would have to be voted on and passed or it would be "dead." Tonight's meeting is a special session.

A Hirsute Hughes? No, Says His Wife

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes says beatniks may wear beards, but it isn't the beard that makes the beatnik.
What's more, Hughes told a news conference Monday, he's thinking about growing one himself — if he can get around his wife's objections.
The governor said no state policy requires an employe to shave or cut his hair as a condition of employment if his appearance is "neat and clean" otherwise.

Bowen Has Dim View Of HSP Interpretation

By BETSY BECKER
Pres. Howard R. Bowen has indicated that he does not agree with the Student Senate autonomy amendment on its interpretation of how much of the student's life is non-academic. He has also said he did not know what would be done in the event of massive student resistance.
Bowen met Saturday in Old Capitol with several student leaders, most of whom are members of Hawkeye Student Party (HSP), who support the autonomy resolution. There were no representatives of the press at the meeting because, as Bowen put it, it was just a meeting between himself and interested students.
Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, discussed the meeting Monday. He told The Daily Iowan what Bowen and he had said to students at the meeting.
The president, Hubbard said, told the students that academic enterprise required certain discipline. It is necessary for students to have some discipline, but it is not necessarily to be supplied by the University for all students, according to Hubbard.

University officials try to get them on the right track and provide disciplines in dormitories, Hubbard said.
According to Hubbard, the students posed the question of massive student resistance to Bowen. Bowen said he didn't know what would be done if such a situation arose.
The amendment to the proposed new senate constitution, passed at last week's senate meeting, says that the student government has the right to determine policy concerning matters of non-academic personal lives of the students.
According to Hubbard, Bowen said that in an intellectual enterprise, decisions should be made on intellectual grounds.
Hubbard said, "The people who operate the University, faculty, administrators and others, are chosen because of intellectual and academic achievements, not political achievement. They don't look upon the University as a political organization, but rather as an academic enterprise."
"They try to make decisions according to intellectual norms and the general effect they will have on the intellectual atmosphere. The plebiscite is not necessarily the best technique to determine the best solutions most satisfactory from an intellectual viewpoint," Hubbard said.

SRA Starts Canvass Today; Rally Scheduled Wednesday

By MIKE FINN
Students for Responsible Action (SRA) will hold a political rally Wednesday and begin a door-to-door canvass today to explain their position on the upcoming student referendum, according to Linda Glazer, A2, Des Moines, temporary SRA secretary and referendum campaign manager.
The rally is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Old Capitol Senate Chamber. Myron Yorra, G, Boston, SRA spokesman, will speak on "Student Power."
Miss Glazer said that the SRA counterproposal to a Hawkeye Student Party (HSP) amendment to the new student body constitution would change the present system by placing a joint Student-Faculty Senate as an intermediary body between the Student Senate and the University administration.
The HSP amendment states that the senate has the power to form policies governing students' personal lives, regardless of what the administration says.

According to temporary SRA chairman Sen. Carl Varner, A3, Centerville, "proposals passing through the proposed University Community Senate would have a much greater influence with the administration because they would have the added legitimacy of faculty support."
Varner also announced that he would meet with Phillip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, at 8:30 a.m. today to present SRA's proposal. According to Varner the dormitories and fraternities were to be informed Monday night about SRA's general philosophy and its position on the referendum.
Varner said that meetings have been scheduled today with Panhellenic Council and the Central Party Committee. The purpose of the meetings is to explain SRA's proposal and to solicit support.
A similar meeting is scheduled Wednesday with the Associated Women Students.
A debate is scheduled with yet unnamed members of HSP Thursday at Burge Hall.

Must Be Approved Twice
The senate has to approve the amendment at two consecutive regular sessions before the amendment can be adopted. The amendment was approved last week and the next regular session is not scheduled until Nov. 7.
Pelton said he hoped that the meeting tonight would not go into regular session. If it doesn't, the senate can then wait and vote on the amendment after they learn what the students think of the bill from the November referendum, he said.
Pelton said that he would also introduce a resolution to set up a scholarship fund with the money collected from traffic violations. He said that the bill would probably be referred to a committee for study.
The creation of a senate seat to represent Mayflower Hall, the University approved housing complex, also is scheduled to be discussed.

Forecast
IOWA — Partly cloudy today and Wednesday. Cooler south today, warmer east Wednesday. Chance of freezing temperatures tonight. Highs today in the 40s.

Council Candidates Differ On Urban Renewal Issue

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
Today is the final day that Iowa City residents can become candidates for the City Council. Nine persons have already announced their intention to run for the three seats which will fall vacant Jan. 1.
Should more than six of them file candidacy petitions by the 5 p.m. deadline today the number will be reduced to six in a primary election Oct. 24. Those six would then vie for the three 4-year terms Nov. 7. As of Monday night only four of the nine announced candidates had filed petitions.
One of the major problems facing the new councilmen will be the future of the city's urban renewal program — now blocked by a court injunction.
Three of the nine council candidates have said they favor an urban renewal program, two candidates have said they are against urban renewal, one candidate has said he feels that urban renewal is not an issue in the election, two candidates have said they have no opinion on the urban renewal question, and one candidate has refused to comment.
The candidates' views were expressed in interviews Friday, Sunday and Monday.
4 Councilmen Under Injunction
Four of the five current council members are under temporary injunction issued by Johnson County District Court Judge Clair Hamilton. The injunction forbids them from taking action on any urban renewal questions because they have interests in the urban renewal project.
The terms of Mayor William C. Hubbard and Councilmen Richard W. Burger and James H. Nesmith expire at the end of this year. Hubbard and Burger have been temporarily enjoined from any action on urban renewal.

Councilmen Loren L. Hickerson and Robert H. Lind Sr., whose terms expire in 1968, have also been temporarily enjoined.
The nine who have announced their candidacy are Brooks W. Booker, 315 Woolf Ave.; Tim Brandt, 427 S. Governor St.; Leroy C. Butherus, 209 Linden Ct.; Mrs. Alan E. Ganka, 700 First Ave.; Howard J. Gilroy, 1017½ Diana St.; Don A. Graham, 312 Kimball Rd.; John B. Harper, 1025 Woodlawn Ave.; Gerald Stevenson, 130½ S. Clinton; and Clifford J. Stubbs, 3229 Friendship St.
Booker, director of conferences and institutes at the University, said Sunday, "I am in favor of an urban renewal or redevelopment program with sufficient depth to insure that our downtown district would remain the dominant, central point of community life."
Booker said that he did not favor an urban renewal program "at just any cost."
'Costs Should Be Borne Equally'
"I believe that the costs involved should be borne equably by all residents and that the final interests and rights of property owners in the redevelopment zone must be safeguarded," Booker said.
Brandt, who is chairman of the City Park and Recreation Commission and president of Brandt Heating and Air Conditioning Co., Monday refused to comment on the urban renewal question.

Butherus, owner and operator of the Beckman-Butherus Funeral Home, 507 E. College St., said Friday that he was not campaigning on the urban renewal issue. He said that he did not consider urban renewal a campaign issue because it was "tied up in the courts."
Butherus said, "I have feelings on the urban renewal issue, as I am sure all citizens do. If I am elected, I want to go to the council with an open mind. Since this issue is tied up in the courts for at least 12 to 18 months, I feel that there will be a lot of changes in the issue before it is brought before the council again."
Mrs. Ganka said Friday that she was in favor of an urban renewal program. Mrs.

Ganka is a real estate salesman for George Paul Realty, 222 E. Benton St.
Mrs. Ganka said that she favored a vote by the citizens of Iowa City to determine if they favored or opposed the issue.
If the citizens were in favor of urban renewal, Mrs. Ganka would like the city to build a municipal center in the middle of Iowa Avenue, one block down from the Pentacrest. This building would be "dedicated to God."
Mrs. Ganka said that the upper floors of the building could house all municipal offices and the lower floor of the building could be a business center. She said that she would like to put a chest in the top of the building.
Feels Unqualified
Graham, treasurer of Paris Cleaners and Shirt Laundry, 121 Iowa Ave., said Sunday that he did not feel qualified to take a stand on the issue.
Graham said, "I doubt very much if it (urban renewal) will be before this council. At this point, I feel that anyone who hasn't studied the entire plan is not in a position to take a position. If I took a stand on urban renewal, I would be ruling out any objectivity of decision."
Graham also said that he would not want to be held to any campaign promises when the question of urban renewal came before the council. He said that circumstances might change the entire question before it came under council consideration.
Harper, an administrative assistant in the University's Department of English, said that he was aware of the need for an urban renewal program.

In the chest, Mrs. Ganka would put a seed, a dog's or cat's tooth, leaves, grass and flowers. She would also include "other things that came from God."
Gilroy is a salesman for a local soft drink firm. He said Friday that he opposed the urban renewal project.
"I am definitely against the urban renewal project. I believe in keeping local business people and local businesses in operation and centrally located as they are now," Gilroy said.
Gilroy said that he thought a few of the downtown buildings needed improvement, but the improvement should be done by the owners of the buildings.

Harper said Friday that he favored the principle of urban renewal.
"There are some serious questions in the present proposal that I would like to study further before completely committing myself," Harper said.
Harper stressed consideration of the aesthetic and functional questions of urban renewal, relocation of businesses in the renewal area and relocation of the individuals in the renewal area as his primary points of interest in the program.
Stevenson, owner of the Paper Place bookstore and publisher of the Iowa Defender, said Monday that he was against the present urban renewal program.
Stevenson said, "At the present time, given such information as I have on hand or have been able to obtain, I oppose the present federal program of urban renewal."
Stevenson also said that he did not think that the citizens of Iowa City had been properly informed on the urban renewal question. He said that Iowa City residents should have a chance to voice their opinion on urban renewal.
Stubbs, a meatcutter for a local supermarket, said that he had no opinion on the urban renewal question.
Stubbs said, "I really can't say that I am for or against urban renewal. I haven't had access to all the information, and until I know it all, I can't voice an opinion."
Stubbs said that he realized that the downtown needed improvement and that it should be improved. He said that when he learned all the facts on urban renewal, he would be able to "give it a fair and just rating."

2 More Hopefuls Enter Council Race

Two more city businessmen have joined the field of avowed candidates for the three City Council seats to be vacated Jan. 1, swelling it to nine.
Gerald Stevenson, 44, of 130½ S. Clinton St., and Tim Brandt, 36, of 427 S. Governor St., announced their candidacies Monday and said that they would file papers today.
At 5 p.m. today, all candidates must have returned nomination papers to the City Clerk's Office. Should more than six candidates file, a primary election will be held Oct. 24 to reduce the field to six.
The six candidates who receive the most votes in the primary election will compete for three four-year terms in an election Nov. 7.
Stevenson is owner of the Paper Place bookstore and publisher of the Iowa Defender, a weekly newspaper which starts publication Monday.
Brandt is president of Brandt Heating and Air Conditioning Co. and chairman of the City Park and Recreation Commission.
By Monday four candidates had returned their papers to the City Clerk's office. They are Mrs. Alan E. Ganka, Leroy C. Butherus, Brooks W. Booker and Don A. Graham.

Keeping records secret is administration bright spot

The University administration's position on keeping confidential most information on its students is one bright spot in the battle of students for their rights. Furthermore, it appears that the administration had taken an enlightened position on this matter even before the controversy of the confidentiality of student records began.

The University releases to groups outside the University the following information only: whether a person is a registered student and whether he has received any degrees. Any other information is released only after the student has given written consent.

The issue of the confidentiality of student records came up last year when the House Committee on Un-American Activities received from the University of Michigan and the University of California at Berkeley the membership lists of all student organizations opposed to the Vietnam war. After this, some national groups suggested that universities not keep such information in order to keep them out of positions in which they might be forced to release it. Our university has not kept such information in recent years.

According to Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, the University will comply with the law if a subpoena is served requiring the disclosure of information. But Hubbard says the University will even provide legal counsel to students who are financially unable to protect their rights in court.

All this goes to show that the administration is not completely opposed to helping students protect their rights. It is too bad, however, that the administration is not more concerned with students' rights in other areas of their personal lives. Far more students are affected by such things as paternalistic off-campus rules than the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

SRA has its drawbacks but proposal is interesting

The proposal by Students for Responsible Action (SRA) that a committee of students and faculty be set up to eliminate the University's paternalistic regulations on the non-academic lives of students is an interesting one. But it does have its drawbacks.

Such a plan would be much like an expanded Committee on Student Life with legislative powers and without the possibility of a veto by the University president or the Student Senate.

SRA argues that the faculty is generally in favor of eliminating University-imposed restrictions on the private lives of students. This is probably true. But it doesn't mean that faculty representatives on a student-faculty legislative group would be so inclined.

Probably the only practical way to select the faculty members of such a committee would be to have the administration appoint them. It is doubtful that faculty members would be interested enough in such a thing to have a meaningful election.

And if the administration appointed the members, it would be quite easy for it to select only those people who agreed with it on the important questions. Similarly, it would be easy for the administration to influence the votes of any faculty members of such a group, although this possibility is highly unlikely to occur here.

So such a group might not be as committed to eliminating paternalistic non-academic controls on students as the SRA says it would be. A coalition of just one or two "conservative" students and the majority of the faculty members could effectively block any progressive attempts to free students from the old-fashioned and needless controls now placed upon them.

The problem also arises as to the legitimacy of faculty representation on a group concerned with the private lives of students. If the administration has no right to impose restrictions on students outside the classrooms, as most of us including SRA believes, what right does the faculty have to do the same thing?

SRA in a statement written by one of its organizers, Sen. Carl Varner, justifies a student-faculty group because it would be more influential with the administration and regents than, as he puts it, "just a group of students." This seems to be an inconsistency in the SRA position. If there could be no administrative veto to the actions of the student-faculty group, as SRA implies, why would influence with the administration be important?

The apparent belittlement of the students and the Student Senate in the phrase "just a group of students" is also unfortunate. It is hoped that the use of the phrase was carelessness on the part of Varner and not the attitude of SRA. The Student Senate is far more important than Varner's phrase implies. And the importance of even individual students should not be underestimated by a group of students that calls itself responsible.

All students should carefully consider the proposal for a faculty-student group to control students' private affairs. It doesn't seem to be as good a deal as SRA says it is.

Romney called vigorous, slightly tender-hearted

By RICK GARR

Michigan Gov. George Romney brought his peculiar combination of political campaign-religious crusade to Iowa City Saturday and impressed the audience in the Union with his apparent sincerity, righteousness and masculinity.

With the KCRG lights glaring in his eyes and his gray-crowned pink face twisted in anguish, Romney condemned the Johnson Administration for not living up to its promises and thus creating a "crisis in credibility."

Looking from right to left, cocking his limp-like face to the side, Romney clung his hands in front of the barrage of microphones to emphasize a long list of LBJ's promises which have not come true.

Disregarding his monumental "brainwashing blunder, Romney made a great deal of noise about the Democrats in Washington and the falsehoods they have presented to the citizenry in recent years.

He gave several examples of statements about the Vietnam war, all of which made a nice case against LBJ and his policies.

Romney blasted the Johnson Administration for its inability to solve such problems as economic escalation (spending), riots in the streets, the plight of farmers, and, of course, the war in Vietnam.

His methods, however, were not the standard political haymaking one generally hears at campaign time. The Romney approach is one of half-sermon reprimands with political charges couched in moralistic terms.

When analyzing the problems of America today, Romney attributed them to a deterioration of moral and social values, not a lack of political leadership per se.

For example, he said the greatest danger to the country today was not communism but decay from within affecting our major social institutions of family, church and economy.

The puzzling thing about Romney, however, is that he doesn't tell us how this decay can be halted. He implies that by electing him to the presidency we can nip this moral deterioration in the bud, but he has yet to propose how he can do it.

As an unannounced candidate for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination, Romney displayed a commendable knowledge of economics, labor-management problems, governmental procedures and such, but in other matters he left many minds fogged.

Romney took great advantage of the many blunders made by the Johnson play-it-by-ear Vietnam foreign policy, and perhaps the President's vulnerability should be exploited. But, the Michigan governor offered nothing new as an alternative to the LBJ way.

Political observers have been waiting since April for Romney to present a different approach to the Vietnam migraine, but he has only given them the feeble brainwashing excuse for his shift from hawk to dove.

He told the Iowa City audience that he didn't regret the brainwashing statement, and he courageously brushed aside the political damage saying it wasn't important what happened to George Romney, but what happened to America.

"We must restore faith, trust and confidence in America at home and abroad," he said. "The American people are strong; they can stand the truth."

A former Mormon missionary, Romney won the hearts of the audience with his condemnation of declining America, but as one Iowan said after the speech, "He'd be OK if he could live up to his promises."

Romney's trouble seems to be that the only promises he will make are those in areas he knows a great deal about. In all the rest he resorts to the sidestep.

There was no press conference after the speech Saturday night, so there was no opportunity to ask for his opinions on Vietnam, race riots and so forth. If he could go through a presidential campaign without facing the press for live questions he would probably be a good candidate.

Any political figure can make major speeches and condemn the opposition. Moralists have decry the condition of our society for years, but pious negativism is hardly a plan of action against complex problems.

Romney seems to be trying to present an image of a strong, apolitical, humanitarian, dynamic figure who can lead the nation with truth and honesty. His major fault, however, is that he asks us to have as much blind faith in his potential as he has in the nation's.

In spite of the brainwashing charge and its resulting limbo, Romney is still a force to respect in the Republican party.

A proven vote-getter in all his gubernatorial races, the Michigan governor is an impressive speaker with a strong image. He seems firm, vigorous, puritanical, homey and slightly tender-hearted.

Romney's speeches thrill the listener and stir demands for a change in Washington, but when the governor's words are analyzed one discovers that nothing of substance has been proposed.

The primary race in New Hampshire next spring will be the greatest test of Romney's political ability in his career. He must translate his popularity with audiences into credibility with GOP professionals and the press.

If he doesn't, it will be a sad trip back to Lansing in March.

Zoo appalls reader

To the Editor:

I am writing in responsive agreement with William Lloyd's article in Thursday's edition of The Daily Iowan. I, too, was appalled by the City Park Zoo. My husband and I were there last Sunday; the weather was unquestionably beautiful, so we thought it would be nice to stroll around the zoo.

It is a shame to see such sweet looking animals as raccoons in such miserable confinements. Unfortunately, my unfair comparison is made from the National Zoological Park in Washington. But, even so, I have seen far more comfortable zoological quarters in some very small town zoos in other cities.

I was most disturbed by the uncleanness of the cages, their far too narrow area and, most of all, by the complete lack of interest in the welfare of the animals. There is not so much as an old log for them to climb on. Surely the cost would not be prohibitive to provide a few simple bits of nature for them to play with. It also seems inexcusable to me that they did not seem to have any fresh water either to swim in or to drink. It was a hot day and this oversight seemed very wrong.

The rest of the park is so pretty. Why couldn't the animals have the benefit of clean cages, fresh water and some playthings with which to amuse themselves while they entertain the public all day?

Unfair treatment of caged animals (unfair really because they are caged in the first place) is indeed a serious injustice on the part of man.

'Way West' called remarkable film

By NICHOLAS MEYER

"The Way West" is a remarkable movie. It takes material which has assumed the qualities of a cliché both as an era in history and as a seemingly never-ending era in films, and it has breathed new life and believability into what — when the dust has been blown off — is really a very exciting story.

The story is the tale of the first settlers making their dangerous way to Oregon from Independence, Mo., in 1843. Its characters are rich and real; its situations plausibly set forth and enacted, and a general air of credibility and involvement hangs over the whole, with only a sour note or line sounded every so often along the way. Even actors who are familiar to us from roles in other Westerns seem to take on new life in "The Way West."

Kirk Douglas portrays the leader and organizer of the wagon train, a cross between Ahab and Queeg, with a monomania about setting up a dream city in the wilderness of Oregon, and willing to sacrifice anything and anybody to the fulfillment of this ambition. He does very well in depicting a man so caught up with ideals that he is unable to contemplate or deal with day-to-day reality, and with people more simple and foolish than he.

Robert Mitchum does one of his best acting jobs in years as the elderly guide of the train, going through his last years in a melancholy but never maudlin quietness, inconsolable but not, as is usually done with such a role, wearing his mourning in his sleeve in the part for the death of his Indian wife. He goes through the film with a dignified calm, and succeeds by underplaying the role delicately. Richard Widmark and Lola Albright have the toughest times representing the "norm" of settlers, but they, too, manage.

"The Way West" is inspiring and heart-breaking. Characters are built up carefully before they meet their fates so that we are not glancing without feeling at the death of a Hollywood extra. The people for once begin to resemble people we are familiar with, people with problems similar to those one encounters in life:

the man with the frigid wife, the girl discovering she is beautiful, the woman with the husband who comes home tight, a widower and his son. Credit must be given to A. B. Guthrie Jr.'s Pulitzer Prize-winning novel from which Ben Maddow and Mitch Lindemann derived their excellent screenplay, and to Andrew McLaglen who directed the proceedings with such a fine eye for composition and detail and who elicited such fine performances from his cast.

The movie is more than beautiful to look at. One gets the feeling — as with the screenplay — that the scenery and props have been assembled with painstaking accuracy. If the land is beautiful it is not picture-postcard-pretty, but stunning the way it was seen by the intrepid settlers, wandering through the wilderness to find the land of Milk and Honey. Indeed, the Biblical comparison runs through the film. The character Douglas plays strongly resembles the Bible's depiction of Moses, a prophet dedicated and impatient. Like his Old Testament counter-part, Douglas is destined never to see the land of Milk and Honey. He is not allowed to cross the Willamette, just as Moses was not allowed by God to cross the Jordan.

Sometimes the movie sags a bit, and sometimes there is a line that doesn't belong, and the film reserves the right to be boring when things were boring, but "The Way West" using Guthrie's novel as a backbone, has created a kind of dramatized documentary style which is moving and informative, with the exception of the paucity of maps to explain the route taken by the settlers. For the first time I found myself realizing, or being made to realize, the enormity of the pioneers' undertaking, the sacrifices they made to achieve their goals, and the heartbreak they endured along their way. Details may have been fictionalized but emotionally the movie has the ring of truth, and it is this quality which can transport dry statistics and otherwise meaningless dates into a history that has real, PERCEIVABLE significance and relevance to our lives.

BEETLE BAILEY

IT WAS MUDDY at the Amana Colonies Oktoberfest Saturday and the attendance was much less than expected, but those who showed up for the traditional German harvest festival drank about 50 kegs of beer. Doing their bit to tidy up the beer tent are Gary Goldstein, A4, Chicago, and Sharon Zander, A1, Waterloo. They were among several University students who danced the polka, toured the colonies and ate delicious German food. — Photo by Dave Luck

Road Director Sees 'Threat' From Aid Cut

AMES (AP) — The Johnson Administration's threatened 50 per cent cut in federal highway aid would cripple Iowa's road program and probably delay completion of the interstate system by one year, State Highway Director Joseph R. Coupal Jr., said Monday.

"Any cutback would severely cripple our program, particularly on the interstate highway system," Coupal said. "I don't like to say it would be catastrophic, but it would be pretty nearly so."

Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd asked the states what the impact would be if the $4.4 billion federal-aid program were cut by as much as one-half. Boyd said cuts of $1 billion or $600 million also are being considered as an economy move.

Coupal said a $2.2 billion reduction nationally would cost Iowa $33 million; a $1 billion cut would cost $16 million and a $600 million cut $9 million.

"The severe impact on the state's economy is obvious," he said. Iowa is slated to receive $66 million in federal highway funds for the fiscal year.

WAVING GOOD-BYE to the Dolphins is Roxene Heddens, A1, Mediapolis, Zeta Tau Alpha sorority's candidate for Dolphin queen. Forty-three freshmen and transfer coeds competed for the title Monday night at the Union. The 10 semi-finalists will be announced today. The five finalists will be selected Saturday and will appear at the Dolphins' Homecoming show, where the queen will be announced. — Photo by Dave Luck

4 Frats Receive Awards At IFC Banquet

By JIM JOHNSTON

Four fraternities received awards for scholarship and service at the third annual Inter Fraternity Council (IFC) recognition banquet in the Union Monday night.

Sigma Pi received the Sigma Chi chapter scholarship award for earning the highest over-all scholastic average, 2.582, among University fraternities last year.

Sigma Nu received the fraternity chapter improvement award for the most improved chapter grade point from 1965-1966 to 1966-1967.

Alpha Epsilon Pi received the Delta Chi pledge award for having the greatest percentage of pledges scholastically eligible for active membership. The fraternity activated 18 of 19 pledges last year.

Pi Kappa Alpha received the Alpha Tau Omega service award for its service to the campus and community.

Roy M. Adams, a Chicago lawyer, told the 600 men at the banquet that if fraternities here and on other campuses were going to last, their purpose must be consistent with the purpose of the universities.

The first annual IFC housemother recognition award was given to Mrs. Herbert Ballard, the Delta Upsilon housemother for 19 years.

Fourteen fraternity men were initiated into the University chapter of Phi Alpha Mu, national honorary scholastic organization for members of social fraternities.

The initiates are: Lawrence D. Fabian, A3, Skokie, Ill., Phi Epsilon Pi; David L. Faulk, A3, Mendota, Ill., Beta Theta Pi; Craig H. Haesemeyer, A3, State Center; Sigma Nu; Delos D. Hansen, A3, Hampton, Sigma Pi; James M. Hauck, A3, Kingsley, Lambda Chi Alpha; Douglas J. Kreutz, A3, Davenport, Beta Theta Pi; Gary L. McMinimie, E4, Carroll, Sigma Pi.

Michael M. McShane, P2, Mount Vernon, Mo., Sigma Nu; Grant L. Paulsen, A3, Davenport, Sigma Pi; Thomas A. Renquist, A3, Fort Dodge, Sigma Pi; Fred M. Ruefer, A3, Davenport, Sigma Pi; Thomas E. Salisbury, A4, Cherokee, Beta Theta Pi; Thomas R. Schirman, A3, Perry, Phi Kappa Sigma; Michael A. Shea, A4, Iowa City, Phi Kappa Sigma.

Coed Is In Critical Condition

Three University students were in University Hospital Monday night, one in critical condition and one in serious condition, as a result of a two-car accident Friday at Coralville.

Diann L. Fox, A1, Des Moines, was in critical condition with a spinal fracture, and Linda C. Grimes, A2, Des Moines, was in serious condition with internal injuries and fractures. Kristina Joonsar, A4, Waterloo, was in fair condition with a broken jaw.

Miss Fox and Miss Grimes were passengers in a car driven by William A. Balvanz, A1, Des Moines. Coralville police said Balvanz and a third passenger, Alan Andersen, A2, Des Moines, were treated and released.

Officers said a car driven by Joe A. Preuss, B4, Cedar Rapids, collided with the rear of the Balvanz car. Miss Joonsar was a passenger in the Preuss car. Preuss was treated and released.

The accident occurred on Highway 6 east of the intersection with Fourth Avenue.

Owen S. Tuttle, 17, 1217 Melrose Ave., remained in serious condition at University Hospital Monday night as the result of a motorcycle accident Oct. 1. He is the son of Sherwood D. Tuttle, chairman of the University's Department of Geology.

A total of 194 entries have been received for the Intramural Golf tournament Saturday, according to the Intramural Office.

A maximum of five men may be entered by any organization. The team championships will be determined on the basis of the four best scores on each team.

Medals will be awarded accordingly: (1) to the first three places in each league; (2) to the medalist, or low scorer in each league, and (3) to the top three teams for the all-university division.

The all-university championship will be determined on the basis of the scores of the team champions in each league.

Starting times for the Town, Rienow, and Hillcrest Leagues will be posted today in the Intramural Office. The Social and Professional Fraternity Leagues will receive their schedules in the mail either today or Wednesday.

The one-day tournament will be held on Upper Finkbine.

Notre Dame Ties Iowa In Cross Country Meet

Notre Dame tied Iowa 28-28 in cross country at South Bend, Ind., Saturday.

Iowa's Larry Wiczorek captured the individual meet championship. But the best Iowa's other runners could do was third, sixth, seventh and 11th place by Steve Szabo, Curt LaBond, Ron Griffith and Rollie Kitt respectively.

Rugby Club Loses Twice

By CHUCK STOLBERG

Iowa's Rugby Club competed in the Rose City Invitational Rugby Tournament in Windsor, Ont., Saturday.

The Iowa Club lost two matches playing in the strongest section of the tournament. Toronto Scottish Rugby Club beat the Hawkeyes 11-6 and Balmy Beach Rugby Club did it 12-0.

Iowa opened play against Toronto Scottish. Too many mistakes and Toronto's stout defense kept the Hawkeyes from winning.

The Iowa rugger enjoyed an early lead of 3-0 when Bill Dawson booted a penalty kick through the goal posts. A long run by Kent Greishaber brought the Hawks close to another score, but Toronto's defenses stiffened.

Toronto scored three tries and an extra point soon afterwards. Iowa couldn't quite come back.

Iowa Coach Dennis Heard attributed his team's losses largely to inexperience.

"Toronto was more experienced, tackled well and forced mistakes in handling from which they gained advantages," he said.

Balmy Beach captured an early lead of 6-0 when Iowa defenders had trouble handling high kicks. Both times a Balmy Beach player fell on the ball in the end zone for easy tries, according to Heard.

Long runs by Greishaber and Steve Welter allowed Iowa to threaten briefly in the second half. The defeats made Iowa's record 0-2-1 to date.

Bosox Come Back With Lonborg, 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jim Lonborg rescued the staggering Boston Red Sox with his second straight victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday 3-1 and sent the World Series back to Boston for at least a sixth game Wednesday.

A few days of rain and a couple more super jobs by Lonborg and the Sox may become the fourth club ever to bounce back all the way after losing three of the first four.

Lonborg appeared on the way to a second straight shutout until Roger Maris hit a home run with two out in the last of the ninth. As it was he set a record by allowing only a total of four hits in two consecutive Series games.

It was the third brilliant effort by the handsome Stanford grad in only nine days. First, he won the pennant by beating Minnesota on the last day of the season. Next, he shut out St. Louis with only one hit in Thursday's second game. Monday's three-hitter in a most desperate situation was the third.

Already ticketed to work the seventh game Thursday, if the Series goes that far, Lonborg may wind up in the sixth game if bad weather should force a postponement. Today is an open date for travel but both teams will work out at Fenway Park.

Brewer Wins Alcan Tourney

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Gay Brewer, the U.S. Masters champion, threw five birdies at Billy Casper, former U.S. Open king, and walked off with the $55,000 first prize Monday in a playoff for the Alcan Golfer of the Year title.

Brewer, from Dallas, Tex., fired a four-under-par 68 over the Old Course at St. Andrews for a four-shot edge over Casper, who had a 72. They had tied over the regulation 72 holes Sunday with 283.

Nineteen golfers, 11 Americans, seven British and New Zealander Bob Charles, competed for golf's biggest prize.

The Texan's putter caught fire on the first hole where he rammed in one from 25 feet for a birdie three, and the touch never deserted him.

He canned another 25-footer for a birdie at the fourth and a seven-footer for yet another birdie at the fifth. Brewer went out in 33 and was 4-up.

He came back in 35 against Casper's 37-35-72.

Sailing Club Claims Booty In Big 10 Championships

Iowa's Sailing Club brought home a second place team trophy and Class A division high point skipper trophy in the Big 10 championship regatta at Madison, Wis., Saturday.

Michigan won the team trophy with 92 points, followed by Iowa with 87 and Michigan State with 76. Wisconsin, Northwestern, Ohio State and Purdue completed the field of competition in that order.

A point was awarded to each boat starting a race and to each boat finishing. An additional point was given for each boat beaten per race.

The regatta was divided into A and B divisions with each team racing alternately for seven races. The schools raced a different boat each time.

Mark Hesselschwerdt, A1, E. Grand Rapids, Mich., skipper for Iowa's A division, was high point skipper for the regatta with 55 points. His crew included Dick Des Camps, A2, Cedar Rapids, and Ruth Hesselschwerdt, A2, E. Grand Rapids.

Racing for Iowa in B division were Chip Bellamy, A4, Knoxville, Gaye Ferris, A1, Lake Geneva, Wis., and Kathy Watson, A3, Des Moines.

'Twas A Great Day For The Irish

By MIKE BARRY
Sports Editor

Irish eyes were smiling again Saturday after the Iowa debacle. Notre Dame had beaten the Hawkeyes, early, easily, terribly. A paper boy armed with evening copies of the South Bend Tribune, leaned against a tree at the center of the campus, the news tucked under his arm.

"We made quite a few mistakes against Purdue, but not today," he said. "We got the big play when we needed it."

He went on. "We were confident through the line for more yardage. In an adjoining room, Notre Dame's head Coach Ara Parseghian was calling the game his team's best of the season.

"It's been a rough week," said

Nagel leaned against pillar outside the Iowa dressing room after the game. The wind had blown his hair awry and his top coat was hanging open.

He smiled weakly, then began. "Gentlemen, I'm going to say one thing. Notre Dame has a fine team, a fine coaching staff, fine everything. I did a terrible job."

With that, he turned abruptly away and joined his team behind locked dressing room doors.

Signs of the times at Notre Dame also hung in the locker room: "Will You Pay The Price?" asked one; "Pride," reminded another; "Notre Dame's Spirit And Traditions Will Not Be Entrusted To The Weak," warned still another.

After the reporters had gone and he had erected a throne of well-wishers outside the dressing room, Hanratty joined his parents for dinner at a downtown restaurant. Dinner music on the juke box included the Notre Dame fight song.

Of course, someone pined for the Irish. . . .

that we could run and pass on 'em. We'd just hit them where their defense had over-shifted."

Hanratty was remarkably successful with his passing Saturday. He wasn't sensational, the 60 or 70-yard kind of sensational. He was nearly perfect — 9 for 10.

"We used the curl-hook pattern," explained halfback Bob Bleier. Seymour (Jim) would break into the flat and the flanker would go straight down and curl or hook.

"This is how we picked up most of our yardage. When Iowa began to cover, we'd go off tackle."

There was no razzle-dazzle to it. Notre Dame beat Iowa with speed, accurate throwing, sure-handed receiving and more talent.

Hanratty riddled Iowa's secondary with short bullet passes. Then once in awhile, he'd send Bleier or Dan Harshman popping

Parseghian as he shook hands with Athletic Director Moose Krause. "I'm glad to get back on the winning side."

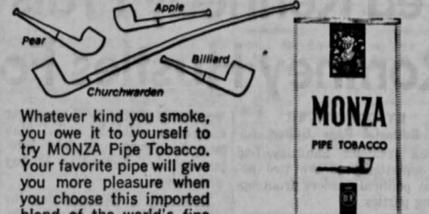

"This was the first time this year that we were able to combine our running and passing games. We got every possible break in the first half and were able to break the game wide open."

"I told Ray (Iowa Coach Ray Nagel) after the game that I thought his kids fought like hell. They played a heckuva game being so far behind after the first half."

"We got to the quarterback more times this week, than we did the week before. This hurt the continuity of (Ed) Podolak's game," said Parseghian.

"Iowa has a good offense. Podolak is a fine quarterback, a dangerous runner and passer," said Parseghian. "But they're a little thin on defense."

automatic landings are here!

At 9:45 P.M. EST on February 27, a Pan-American Boeing 727 jetliner with 98 passengers on board made a fully automatic landing at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York — the first operational automatic landing in the history of aviation in the United States.

Sperry Flight Systems Division participated as a member of the Boeing-Sperry engineering team which made this event possible. Our SP-50 Automatic Flight Control System played a key role. It put the Boeing 727 down "smooth as a feather," less than four feet to the right of the runway's center line under conditions of snow and fog — with a crosswind of twelve knots.

This is just another reason why Sperry Flight Systems Division is recognized as the leader in the development of Flight Control Systems and Flight Instruments and Displays. Our engineering team is second to none.

Join Sperry Flight Systems Division upon receiving your degree in Engineering and take that big first step toward fulfilling your professional and academic goals. We are looking for engineers with B.S., M.S. or Ph.D. degrees in E.E. or M.E., to work in the areas listed below.

Sperry Flight Systems Division, located in Phoenix, Arizona, leads in flight systems for airline and business aviation, and also provides such systems for vital military aviation and space programs. Since opening our plant in Arizona 10 years ago, we have grown from 50 to over 3,000 employees, with four plant expansions to accommodate our growth.

About Phoenix: It's a great place to live, with a dry, sunny climate that lets you enjoy year-around outdoor sports and hobbies. Nearby Arizona State University — with present enrollment of approximately 23,000 — offers programs leading to advanced degrees in all engineering fields. To assist you in pursuing your further educational goals, Sperry Flight Systems Division will pay your full tuition and book costs.

Ted Kennedy Praises Today's Youth; Romney Hustles For Votes At Union

BY DON YAGER
Editorial Page Editor
Area residents Saturday had the opportunity to see two national political leaders from opposing parties.

Giving the dedicatory address at the new John F. Kennedy High School in Cedar Rapids Saturday afternoon was the late President's brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.)

In the evening, Michigan Gov. George Romney, obviously campaigning for the Republican nomination for president, spoke at a fund raising dinner at the Union.

Kennedy's 10-minute address was full of praise for the younger generation which he called "the most intelligent, articulate, independent and demanding of any generation."

Referring to criticism that the young generation is unpatriotic, Kennedy said they were the most involved and committed on the important issues of our nation.

Youth Praised

"Look at the Peace Corps worker giving of himself because he believes in America, the VISTA volunteer in the Appalachian coal mining towns or young people trying to bring education to the disadvantaged in our cities," he declared.

Kennedy said young people were greatly interested in civil rights.

"The young generation wonders why rights aren't equal. They want at home the same rights for which we're fighting in Vietnam," he said.

After thanking school officials for naming the school in memory of his brother, Kennedy left for a reception for Second District Rep. John Culver, a Democrat, and then gave the main address at a Democratic fund raising dinner in Des Moines.

Tour Ends Here

Romney ended his Iowa tour in Iowa City before about 500 persons gathered for a Johnson County Republican Central Committee fund raising dinner.

Repeating and emphasizing former policy statements, Romney said, "I've been told that I shouldn't raise the issue of whether the American people are being sold a bill of goods about Vietnam or about other parts of our national life."

"The columnists and the pollsters contend that it's politically dangerous for me to call attention to the great American snow job. But I've always called a spade a spade, regardless of the political consequences."

Romney went on to say that America was suffering from a crisis in credibility. He said the Johnson administration was not being candid with the people.

Referring to a comment he made recently about being "brainwashed" on the Vietnam situation, Romney said, "I'm not talking about a Russian brainwash but about the LBJ brainwash."

"I'm talking about public officials who slip and slide and duck the issues, and I think they understand that in agricultural Iowa . . . I'm talking about unkept promises and unfulfilled opportunities and the unrealized potential of America."

Gap Cited

Departing from his prepared text, Romney said there was an appalling gap between promise and performance from the present administration. He said frustration, bitterness and anger set in this summer in ghettos around the country because of unkept promises.

This frustration became the "explosive tinder for agitators and revolutionaries" which resulted in the riots of Newark and Detroit, Romney said.

He also spoke of excessive power in the hands of both employers and unions and pointed to what he termed the great disparity between agricultural and industrial prices.

Romney accused President Johnson of using Congress as a collective bargaining agency on a day-by-day, strike-by-strike basis, in referring to Johnson's pledge that he would deal with strikes harmful to the national economy.

Speaking of Vietnam, Romney said, "The sad story today is that we now have suffered more than 100,000 American casualties. We have a half million boys tied down in a land war in Asia, fighting where our President said three years ago that Asian boys ought to be fighting."

Issue Predicted

"If any major public figure today simply repeated Johnson's Vietnam statements of the 1964 campaign," he continued, "he would be classified as the doves; dove in the whole flock."

Romney said the "greatest credibility gap was in relation to Vietnam. He predicted that Vietnam would be an issue in the 1968 campaign.

"No one will make it an issue," he said, "it just is. The whole Vietnam situation requires a new look. America should review what we are doing, how we're doing it, and why we're doing it."

Council Debates Merits Of College Street Parking Ramp

BY CHERYL ANDERSON
The proposed College Street parking ramp — under consideration since 1962 — again came up for City Council discussion at an informal meeting Monday afternoon.

Mayor William C. Hubbard said that a preliminary study undertaken in 1963 had resulted in the College Street location, site of the present city parking lot.

A year later the council began studying urban renewal, and Hubbard recalled Monday that a "larger and better ramp" was thought possible through the federal urban renewal plan.

Because of a court injunction which prohibits the council from further action on urban renewal, the parking ramp question had been postponed.

Monday the council decided that some action should be taken, either to provide the city with additional surface parking spaces or to further investigate construction of the 340-space parking ramp.

Cost Estimated
Barry Lundberg, director of planning and urban renewal, told the council that the ramp on College Street would cost about $1.5 million, excluding land cost. There are presently 160 parking spaces in the city parking lot. Lundberg estimated that each of the 340 parking spaces gained by constructing the ramp would cost about $3,900.

Lundberg said that the same number of parking spaces could be obtained in a surface lot at a cost of $1,000 for each space.

Hubbard said that the cost of 32 million parking ramp could be shared by the city and the businessmen who would benefit from the ramp.

Revenue bonds could be issued to pay $1 million of the ramp's cost, according to Hubbard, but the businessmen could be assessed for the other $1 million.

Councilman James Nesmith said that he did not think that businessmen should have to pay half the ramp's cost.

Decision Urged
Nesmith said, "The council can plan and plan and plan, but there comes a time when you must make a decision."

Hubbard then asked the council to weigh the possibilities of surface parking lots, the College Street ramp construction and the cooperation of businessmen in paying for half the ramp.

In other informal business, Lundberg presented the council with a report of the first phase of a Community Renewal Study. He called the report "an atlas of existing conditions in Iowa City."

The study defines the city's population density and distribution, land use, transportation facilities, property conditions and community facilities.

Lundberg said his study showed that 70 per cent of the Iowa City population was composed of University affiliated persons. Lundberg said that 35,000 of Iowa City's 50,000 people are students, faculty or employees and their families.

MARKET IS BIG—
COLOGNE — Organizers of the International Exhibition of Fine Foods said 251,850 persons came to see the array of delicacies provided by 3,000 companies from 64 countries. Visitors to the nine-day exhibition called it "the biggest super market in the world."

—Area Printers Help Make Iowa City A Literary Center—

Grants To Three Private Printers Promote Fine Books

By BRAD KIESEY

The $10,000 grants issued this summer to three Iowa City area printers will mean one of them will no longer receive "12 cents an hour" for his work.

K. K. Merker, a lecturer in the Department of English, who owns The Stone Wall Press, was one of three owners of quality private presses who got the grant in August from the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. Merker said that the grant would enable him to pay himself a wage.

The others were Carroll Coleman, 111 Lusk St., former University editor and director of publications who runs The Prairie Press; and Harry Duncan, associate professor of journalism and head of the typography laboratory at the School of Journalism.

Duncan is proprietor of The Cummington Press.

The three men do much to give Iowa City its reputation as a literary center because they publish books which are notable both for their content and their quality.

The only strings attached to the federal grants were that the money must be used to publish books and that the printers must report next August on how the money was used.

Private Printers Praised

David Dempsey, writing in his column "The Publishing Scene" in the Aug. 12 issue of the Saturday Review, said, "The small independent presses do what the big publisher doesn't do — that is, print fine books."

"For 'small' read 'one-man operation' and for 'independent' read 'impooverished.' There are some 40 to 45 such presses in this country. In order to qualify for a Council grant they must have a non-profit status — not difficult when one considers that poetry comprises much of their output."

"Of the 11 presses selected for grants," Dempsey continued, "all have established notable records in advancing the cause of the unknown, obscure or difficult writer."

Only Three Grants Given

Considering that three of the 11 grants went to Iowa City, Duncan said, "I suppose it was something more than coincidence. What the three of us (Coleman, Merker and Duncan) share is an interest in printing worthwhile books that would not otherwise be published because they are economically unfeasible for the commercial publishers to bring out."

Merker said, "The unique part about the presses in Iowa City is that we are all not only concerned about trying to create books that are handsome, but also ones that have literary value."

"The content comes first with me," Coleman said. "But I am certainly interested in the design and printing of books. The Prairie Press covers works that no commercial publisher is interested in. A lot of it is poetry, which generally has a limited market."

Coleman said he printed between 600 and 1,500 copies of his books, depending on how many he thought he could sell. Merker and Duncan estimated that they printed 250.

"From all the books I've done over 32 years of printing, I have no more than 200 copies left right now," he said. "It takes an average of six years to sell out the small editions I do print."

Advertise Books

Coleman sells his books, as do the others, by advertising in direct mail flyers to public and private libraries, special book clubs and private individuals.

Another reason for the limited production is that fine printing is hand printing. All three printers set their type by hand. This means they must align the printed matter letter by letter, space by space, line by line, in a composing stick.

Duncan and Merker use Washington presses, lever-type, hand-pulled presses that must be pulled hundreds of times for each copy of each book printed. Coleman's 20-year old platin press is power-operated.

Duncan credits three men with the growth of printing and publishing of limited circulation books in Iowa City. They are Wilbur L. Schramm, director of the School of Journalism from 1943 to 1947; Coleman, who was a professor of journalism before he became University editor; and the late T. Henry Foster of Ottumwa, who endowed the School's of Journalism typography laboratory.

lab opened, Coleman became University editor and director of publications. Duncan took over as head of the lab in the fall semester of that year, 1956.

Merker became interested in printing when he was a student in Duncan's lab.

Merker is now in the process of establishing the University's Windhover Press, to be part of the new School of Letters. Windhover Press will handle about the same kind of material Merker prints under the Stone Wall Press name.

Although Merker has the job of setting up Windhover Press in 16 English-Philosophy Building, he has already selected several books of poetry to print.

Duncan, whose Cummington Press is at his home in West Branch, said that he would take a leave of absence in the spring and summer semesters this year to devote full time to his printing. He said that he had one or two manuscripts of books to print, but that he wanted to do more.

Creation Of Laboratory

It was Schramm who got administration approval for the lab, Foster who gave the funds for the needed equipment and Coleman who headed the lab.

It was in this lab where the three award-winning printers met. "It was their idea," Duncan wrote in an article for the April, 1965, issue of the University Library publication Books at Iowa, "that a great university might properly include apparatus for studying what is still, after 500 years, the chief technique for propagating knowledge: typography."

Coleman, then a resident of Muscatine for more than a decade, had already established his private Prairie Press and was, he said, "subsidizing my own press with my earnings as a commercial printer."

He was persuaded to leave his commercial printing shop in Muscatine to become a professor of journalism and to organize and lay out the new lab.

The lab opened the fall semester of 1945. Coleman continued to operate The Prairie Press.

Paul Engle Credited

Duncan credited Iowa poet Paul Engle, former head of the Writers Workshop, with providing encouragement for private printing and publishing here. He said the Workshop provided a "congenial atmosphere" for publishing.

Ten years after the typography lab opened, Coleman became University editor and director of publications. Duncan took over as head of the lab in the fall semester of that year, 1956.

Merker became interested in printing when he was a student in Duncan's lab.

Merker is now in the process of establishing the University's Windhover Press, to be part of the new School of Letters. Windhover Press will handle about the same kind of material Merker prints under the Stone Wall Press name.

Although Merker has the job of setting up Windhover Press in 16 English-Philosophy Building, he has already selected several books of poetry to print.

Duncan, whose Cummington Press is at his home in West Branch, said that he would take a leave of absence in the spring and summer semesters this year to devote full time to his printing. He said that he had one or two manuscripts of books to print, but that he wanted to do more.

To Devote More Time

Merker said, "With the grant, instead of making 12 cents an hour, I can pay myself a wage."

Coleman said that since his retirement from the University he had been subsidizing his own press with an income from designing and printing books for private book clubs and other organizations.

He said his grant would allow him to devote more time to his own press. He said he had three manuscripts to print and was looking for more.

What is the future of small private printing and publishing in Iowa City?

Many Have Been Taught

"Well, look at how I learned," Merker said. "Carroll (Coleman) set up the lab, recommended Harry (Duncan) to run it and then Harry taught me. Carroll taught many students in his years there, Harry is still teaching them and I have taught a few myself."

"I know of seven or eight private presses set up by students," Coleman said.

"To run a personal press, you have to want to and you have to have lots of time," Coleman said.

Medical researchers say one cannot possibly have printer's ink in his veins. However, if Duncan, Merker, and Coleman are any test, the art of fine printing is definitely contagious.

lab opened, Coleman became University editor and director of publications. Duncan took over as head of the lab in the fall semester of that year, 1956.

Merker became interested in printing when he was a student in Duncan's lab.

Out on your own?

Being on your own has some holes in it. Whether you are a student at Iowa U or starting your first full time job, living your own life means you have all the duty. To "mind your own business" and still have time to enjoy your independence, you'll have to be organized.

Money will be a concern. You'll want to control it; watch the income and outgo. A First National Checking Account will tell you what you've spent, when, where and how much you have left.

A First National Bank checking account won't buy anything that money won't buy, but it is safer. Only you can cash your checks. Do a better job of "minding your own business." Open a checking account at the First National Bank.
