Sexual Revolution Called A 'Myth'

The so-called sexual revolution of the 20th century is a myth, according to Ira L. Reiss, professor of sociology and anthropology.

Reiss, whose book "The Social Context of Premarital Sexual Permissiveness" has just been published by Holt, Rinehart, and Winston, holds that sex was not so fully reserved for marriage in the 19th century as many believe, and he asserts that changes since then have not been so radical as is often declared.

Reiss finds instead, "a gradual increase in acceptance and openness about sexuality." He said, "The basic change is toward more equality between the sexes, more female acceptance of sexuality and more openness in discussing sexuality."

"It is probable that higher percentages of females were virgins at marriage," he concedes about the 19th century, "but it is equally probable that men had more frequent intercourse with prostitutes. The western world has never been able to bring up even the majority of one generation of males to physical maturity as virgins. Thus the major shifts in sexual customs have involved changes in the accepted types of female partners."

Reiss said attitudes and behavior seem closer today than they have for many generations. However, he does not foresee any radical change, such as "full achievement of male-female equality in premarital sexuality."

"Full equality in premarital male-female relations depends upon such equality in husband-wife relations. Such full equality is not likely in the immediate future despite some gains in this direction," he said.

Reiss's research, the first to use a national sample of people of a variety of ages, races, and economic classes, raises questions for several other accepted beliefs about sexual behavior in America.

Although Kinsey viewed the lower class as being high in sexual permissiveness and the upper class as low, Reiss found a high permissive group in the midst of the upper class — particularly in parents and children from homes where the father was a professional man.

Further, while critics of the Moynihan report on Negro families accused Daniel P. Moynihan of ignoring similarities between lower class whites and lower class Negroes, Reiss found far more premarital sexual permissiveness in lower class Negroes than in lower class whites.

He found only partial support for the notion that high sexual permissiveness in young people expresses revolt against their parents. Seventy per cent of the students in his sample who did accept premarital intercourse were not unhappy with their families, Reiss said.

Other findings in Reiss's research include these:

• Nearly two-thirds of the students sampled felt that "their sexual standards were at least somewhat similar to those of their mothers and fathers."

• "Respectable" college-educated people are one key support of the new permissiveness. These people have knowledge of contraception and stress the importance of affectionate ties. They tend to combine their sexual philosophies with a generally liberal position about the family, politics, and religion.

• People in love are more likely to be involved in sexual behavior than others. Parents who oppose sexual experience for their children often encourage them to have love experience, and thereby indirectly promote what they oppose.

• As parents' responsibility increases, they feel less permissive than they formerly did. "The almost inevitable clash of the generations is supported by the fact that by his early 20's the young person has reached the peak of his permissiveness whereas his parents are reaching the low point of their permissiveness."

UAW, Ford Seen Near Settlement

Industry Source Says Guaranteed Pay Won

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union and Ford Motor Co. reached tentative agreement Friday on contract provisions that could increase the average worker's wages 43 to 59 cents an hour, an industry source said.

For a small minority of workers — the 20,000 skilled tradesmen among the 160,000 UAW members striking Ford for the 44th day — the wage gain could amount to 95 cents an hour over the three-year life of the pact.

The UAW and Ford ended a marathon 31-hour bargaining session late Friday with neither confirmation nor denial of the source's report. They still operated under a news blackout the two sides invoked Oct. 10.

Another source said a few details remained to be worked out, but were not expected to greatly alter the total price tag.

Another Session

The UAW and Ford said another bargaining session was set for 11 a.m. today. On the basis of details outlined by the source, it appeared that the UAW pact may have fallen short of goals as announced by the union's president Walter P. Reuther.

Reuther did however get his main objective — guaranteed annual income, or a form of it, the source said.

Total value of the package could not be determined since some of the wage gains are geared to any fluctuations in the Cost-of-Living Index in the coming three years and may not even be known by either side until then.

Reuther reportedly is striving for a contract package which would, in his estimation, represent wage and fringe benefit gains worth $1 an hour over three years, a whopping 7 per cent increase over the $4.70 Ford says it paid in wages and fringes per hour under the old contract.

Deduction Involved

The source said the guaranteed income provision apparently involves a weekly deduction of $7.50 from a worker's pay to finance up to 95 per cent of wages he would draw if laid off for an extended period of time. The program is tied to seniority, but the source could reveal no further details about this phase.

On the basis of this information, however, the company has agreed to increase its contribution to an existing plan — the Supplemental Unemployment Benefit program — for paying a worker when he is laid off.

The old contract provided such a worker, at an average weekly pay of $136.40, about 62 per cent of his normal income through a combination of state unemployment compensation and the SUB program.

Mother Satisfied With Trial Result

NEW YORK (AP) — The mother of one of three slain civil rights workers praised the result Friday of the Mississippi trial for the killings.

Mrs. Robert Goodman, mother of Andrew Goodman, 20, who was killed near Philadelphia, Miss., in 1964, said, "For a Southern jury to convict a number of their peers was an act of great courage."

Besides Goodman, the victims were Michael Schwerner, 24, also a white New Yorker, and James Chaney, 22, of Meridian, Miss.

The Meridian jury Friday convicted a deputy sheriff, a Ku Klux Klan leader and five other men of conspiracy charges in the slayings.

Eight defendants were acquitted. The all-white jury of seven women and five men, who had deliberated more than 14 hours, reported a hopeless deadlock in the cases of three others.

The convictions marked the first time in Mississippi since Reconstruction that any jury had returned a guilty verdict in a major civil rights case.

Those found guilty included Deputy Sheriff Cecil R. Price and Ku Klux Klan leader Samuel H. Bowers Jr. Sheriff Lawrence A. Rainey was among the acquitted. Ethel G. "Hop" Barnette, the Democratic nominee for sheriff, was one of three on whom the jury failed to reach a decision.

Antiwar Protests Climax Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Battle-seasoned paratroopers and military police bivouacked in a growing throng near the Pentagon in Washington Friday, preparing with barricades and barbed wire for any possible violence during today's scheduled mass Vietnamese war protest. Estimates range from 40,000 to 70,000 expected demonstrators.

"We intend to maintain law and order," one official declared.

Meanwhile, 10,000 antiwar demonstrators failed to halt the delivery of inductees at the Oakland, Calif., induction center, while on the East Coast students demonstrated at Brooklyn College and Columbia University.

On the other side of an increasing debate over Vietnam, a weekend demonstration in support of the war was planned and flared into a massive, disorderly demonstration again Friday, when an estimated 10,000 demonstrators caused an hour's delay in the arrival of seven bus loads of inductees at the draft center. Police formed a human chute through which the buses eventually proceeded to unload the inductees.

Brooklyn College, scene of a bloody clash Thursday between student protesters and police, was relatively quiet Friday, although four of its departments were closed and four others nearly depleted by a student boycott.

Across the East River, in uptown Manhattan, several hundred Columbia University students held an antiwar rally, and marched on the office of President Grayson Kirk to demand a ban against military recruiting on Columbia's Ivy League campus.

Resignation Demanded

In front of the Northampton, Mass., City Hall, about 20 Vietnamese war protesters picketed for a fifth straight day, demanding the resignation of City Clerk James Faulkner, who also is the draft board chairman.

About 60 counter demonstrators appeared, carrying a banner which read: "Burn the Draft Card Burners."

A classroom boycott at the University of Wisconsin dwindled to a few dozen students Friday, in contrast to about 1,500 who took part Thursday. It began when the university suspended 13 leaders of an antiwar demonstration, which ended in a melee with club swinging police.

The Wisconsin State Senate named a seven-man committee to investigate the violence, in which about 70 protesters and a dozen officers and bystanders were injured.

Overseas, in Munich, Germany, a chanting crowd of 3,000 to 4,000 staged a sit-down strike near the U.S. Consulate General building to protest the U.S. role in Vietnam.

Four carloads of Iowa City persons were scheduled to participate in a mass antiwar demonstration today at the Pentagon, according to Everett Frost, spokesman for the University chapter of Students for a Democratic Society.

The caravan left Thursday night, and Frost estimated 30 persons were in the group.

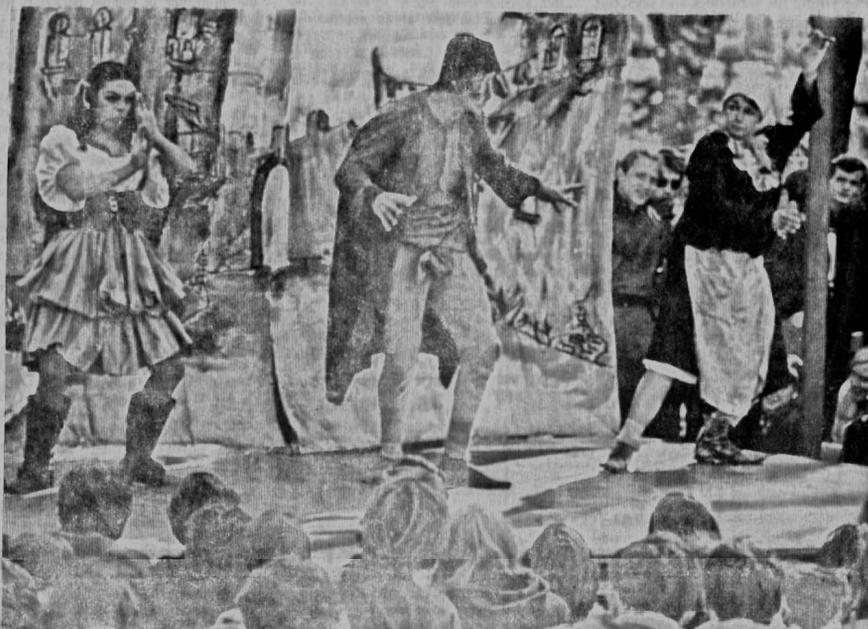

In New York by veterans groups, unions and fraternal organizations.

Parades and a two-day vigil at Battery Park on the tip of Manhattan were scheduled features of the New York rally.

Lights On

In St. Louis, the National Student Committee for Victory in Vietnam, urged a "lights on" demonstration by motorists today as a signal of support for U.S. troops in Vietnam.

College students throughout the nation were urged to drive with lights on during daylight today, and to keep lights on all night in administration buildings, dormitories and fraternity and sorority houses. The fifth day of antiwar protest in Oak-

Krassner Delights Instead Of Shocks With Irreverent Lenny Bruce Eulogy

By ROY PETTY

Paul Krassner, controversial editor of The Realist magazine, looked at the speaker's podium in the Union Ballroom and said, "Did you know there's a urinal behind this thing?"

What ought to have shocked the lecture audience instead delighted them, possibly because the subject of the talk was the late Lenny Bruce, a comedian whose irreverence for "decency" cost him many court battles and a successful career.

Krassner spoke Friday afternoon as part of the program of "The New Grotesque, or, Is There a Post-Realistic Fiction," a three-day symposium presented by the Department of English and Center for Modern Letters.

Bruce, who died in 1966, supposedly (although never proven) of an overdose of narcotics, was "not a comedian at all," Krassner said, but a man who tried to "communicate his consciousness to an audience, as an extension of his conversations."

"The audience often laughed at things he didn't mean them to laugh at," he said, recounting the time Bruce learned of Marilyn Monroe's death just before he went on stage in Chicago, and he began his performance with the announcement of her death.

Bruce's vulgarity was part of this attempt to gain "total freedom without compromise," said Krassner, who edited the comedian's autobiography for Playboy magazine.

Two addresses will be presented today at 10:30 a.m. in the Union Ballroom as part of the Second Biennial Conference for Modern Letters.

Carl Oglesby, an instructor at Antioch College and a former national president of Students for a Democratic Society, will speak on "The Contemporary Defeat of Fiction." Robert Scholes, professor of English, will speak on "Making Sense of It All."

Both lectures are open to the public.

Bruce worked like a novelist in using words in bad taste for a realistic effect.

When he first started as a comedian, Bruce used euphemisms for vulgarity in his act, according to Krassner, but found that "substitute words have the same emotional effect," and launched a career of attempts to shock and offend his audience.

Bruce himself had renegade definitions of what was obscene or shocking. Opposed to capital punishment, Bruce once said on stage that ministers who favored the death sentence "should stop bitching about the Crucifixion." According to Krassner, Bruce could not understand why that remark would be offensive.

When several obscenity trials made Bruce's bad reputation so widespread that nightclubs would no longer hire him, Krassner wrote an obituary for the comedian in 1964, two years before he died.

Krassner said a number of people called to offer condolences, saying "they wished they could do something to help. When Krassner told them that Bruce was alive, and there was a way they could help the jobless comedian, the callers hung up."

"They were furious because they had wasted their grief." It was an example, Krassner said, of why Bruce was unable to conform to conventional behavior.

Officer, I Didn't Know The Gun Was Loaded...

By MARY CLARK

"I didn't mean to do it. The gun just went off," confessed a University coed who entered the Union last week and fired several shots into a crowd of students. No one was injured and no charges were filed.

Why not? Well, the gun was only a prop for one of the skits for the Miss U of I pageant to be held at 7:30 tonight in the Union Main Lounge.

The "culprit," Nancy A. Stearns, A2, Kingsley, explained that she had trouble keeping the gun from going off. "It was pretty embarrassing," she said, "since the University Symphony was playing in the Main Lounge. Everybody just stared."

Things like that have been happening all week to many candidates and their campaign managers.

The girls from one house spent hours soaking gunny sacks in a fabric softener trying to get them pliant enough to wear. Their campaign manager said, "We just had a terrible time. Kids kept itching all the time — right in the middle of the skit."

Lee Ann Burchfield, A1, Rockford, Ill., was the only manager who said that she didn't have any specific problems. "We just had trouble all over. We didn't have our props done. Girls didn't show up for practice. When we tried to get some music for the dress rehearsal, we couldn't find a phonograph. Finally we got a tape recorder, but then we couldn't find a plug!"

One candidate, in an effort to look her best, lost so much weight that her gown no longer fits. She was also found in the driveway, scuffing up the soles of her new shoes so that she wouldn't slip on the carpeting tonight.

Lights Go Out

During a suspense-filled, washbuckling sword fight at Thursday's rehearsal, the lights suddenly went out, and the hero had to kill the villain in the dark.

It turned out that the technician had a different set of lighting instructions. The girls were assured that he would have the correct ones tonight.

The three judges issued a stern warning to the candidates that they would be eliminated if they failed to be on time for their interviews Friday.

Unfortunately three persons failed to come on time and were disqualified. The three persons were — the judges.

After waiting several minutes, the 24 candidates unanimously voted to disqualify them.

Pentagon Calls In Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon was like a fortress preparing for attack Friday. Hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of paratroopers and military police were flown into camp areas nearby, awaiting today's antiwar demonstration.

If the sponsors' hopes are realized, as many as 70,000 demonstrators are expected to rally around the Lincoln Memorial and then swarm across the Potomac River to the Pentagon.

Top brass fear violence may disrupt vital defense operations.

Wry humor permeated otherwise serious attitudes in the huge, five-sided concrete bastion.

"We're going to have business as usual, even if we have to bring in the 82nd Airborne Division to make it that way," one officer remarked.

Some troopers from the 82nd are among soldiers who have been flown into the Washington area. Elements of the division were used in quelling racial rioting in Detroit last summer and it includes some veterans of the Vietnamese fighting.

War-Charity Feud Shaking 'Throne'

MOUNT VERNON (AP) — Cornell College is up in arms this homecoming weekend over the decision of a student committee to share funds raised in a campus charity drive between North and South Vietnam.

The Student Council has ordered the Campus Chest Committee discharged and another committee named to set up a new fund drive. But this left the question of the "Mr. and Miss Campus" contest; up in the air.

The winners were to have been decided by the largest amount of charity drive contributions placed in jars with the candidates' names on them. But most of the campus groups entering candidates have withdrawn in protest.

Most of the campus groups had withdrawn their candidates today, although a group defending the deposed committee has been circulating petitions calling for a campus referendum on whether funds should go to both Vietnams.

John Arthur, a senior from Denver, Colo., a member of the ousted committee, said the drive would "definitely be continued" and may be extended to the University of Iowa and other Iowa colleges.

The committee had decided to send half the money collected to the Red Cross for use in South Vietnam, and the other half to the American Friends Service Committee for medical and other supplies to treat North Vietnamese civilian casualties.

Student Council Pres. Joe Gebhardt of Des Plaines, Ill., said such a division of the funds was not in the best interest of the student body as a whole.

Gebhardt commented, "Though they say this is strictly for medical supplies to heal up civilians (in North Vietnam), there's a chance of healing up some boy who is now 15 or 16 and who will later infiltrate to the south and be shooting at our soldiers."

Today is Cornell's homecoming, and there was no indication Friday night of what would be done about naming a "Mr. and Miss Campus" to preside over the occasion.

Legislators' plans intolerable in UNI controversy

The actions of six Black Hawk County legislators in demanding the firing of Edward Hoffmans, a University of Northern Iowa (UNI) instructor who has been publicly voicing his opposition to the Vietnam war, cannot be tolerated. Their constituents would be wise to oust them from office at the earliest possible moment.

This possible solution — a massive outpouring of public opinion in support of Hoffmans — to the sticky problem of professorial loyalty and submission to every whim and wish of the state might sound overly radical. But the demands of the six legislators are so blatantly contrary to everything that has made Iowa's state-supported universities among the best in the country that bold and decisive action is urgently needed. The kind of thinking and requested action displayed by the six legislators can lead to a stifling of free speech, academic freedom and, possibly, to mass resignations by our most competent and thoughtful instructors.

The threat by the legislators of not allocating needed funds to the state universities if the Board of Regents does not comply with their wishes is childish and completely irresponsible. Such a threat, if carried through, would not only harm Hoffmans, but would also do irreparable harm to the students, the institutions and the state itself.

UNI Pres. J.W. Maucker is to be commended for his stand on this issue. Although he disagrees with the content of Hoffmans' views, he respects Hoffmans' right to express those views and refuses to censure him. The students and faculty of UNI are also to be commended for rallying behind their president.

Maucker summed up the essence of the controversy when he said, "... the most important thing at stake in this instance is the maintenance of freedom of thought and expression in the university community."

The six legislators are advocating that employees of the state universities — indeed, all state employees — be required not only to blindly accept everything the state does and says, but also to suppress all personal convictions that might in any way conflict with the policy of the state.

The attitude of the six legislators, hopefully, is shared by an extremely small minority of members of the legislature and the public. And if the voters of Black Hawk County disagree with the legislators, they should do their best to see that those six men are not returned to Des Moines for the next legislative session.

Authority must be responsible

Taking note of the recent disturbances at the University of Wisconsin and the bloody results of dissent on the campus, one can't help wondering what happened to the Voltairian principle of "I don't agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

It probably died in the phalanx of club-swinging, helmeted police that waded into the group of students who were protesting the recruitment on campus by the Dow Chemical Company, the makers of Napalm for the government.

The complicated turn of events that led to this irresponsible action on the part of the police will probably never come to light. The aftermath is easily visible, however.

Thirteen students who participated in the disturbances have been suspended from the university. Chancellor William H. Sewell told reporters, "I deeply regret that it was necessary to bring police to the campus. This was done only after our officers and staff found it impossible to maintain law and order."

It should be observed that Sewell's actions came after sharp criticism by the state legislature of student disorders. In his efforts to "avoid another Berkeley," the good chancellor has probably laid the groundwork for it. He also leaves his motives in doubt by timing his actions to coincide with unrest among the lawmakers (and fundgivers) of his state.

I question whether the decision to use riot police to settle the dispute was grounded in sincere concern for "law and order," or whether private considerations entered into it.

The major consideration here, though, is that Sewell has undermined the confidence of the students and placed himself in a dubious position that allows him neither to negotiate nor to compromise. What confidence can the students have in the personal freedoms when riot police with clubs swinging are the answers to their dissent? We've been taught that this sort of thing went out with the Fascist regimes of the 30's and 40's, but we wonder.

Has debate on Vietnam disintegrated to the point of warfare? I think we all have much soul-searching to do if we are to continue accepting this kind of reactionary force to guide our executive actions. Must we fall back into the very patterns of political action that so many died fighting against in World War II? Authority carries the responsibility of thought and cautious action. Government of the many is by their consent in this nation, and rule over a university is little different. It calls for understanding and face-to-face sincerity of purpose. Without these abilities a man has no right to rule.

How good are troops from South Vietnam?

By RICK GARR

State Department sources announced last week that the army of South Vietnam (ARVN) was making steady improvement, but news accounts from the battle zone do not seem to back up these official statements.

In its bi-monthly Foreign Policy Briefs, the State Department quoted Gen. William Westmoreland as saying that the morale, discipline and battlefield performance of the ARVN forces were continuing to show steady improvement.

The general supported this with some statistics, several of which are of dubious validity when viewed in context.

"During the first six months of 1967," Westmoreland said, "the ARVN initiated approximately 1,600 multi-company or larger operations without suffering a single defeat."

Any one person remotely informed about Vietnam knows that "defeat" (or victory) can hardly be said to exist in the war, and knowing what we do about the nature of the war, it seems logical to assume that Westmoreland meant that none of the 1,600 operations was a major encounter with Communist forces.

Basically, however, the general's statement did not give an accurate picture of the nature of the ARVN role in the war.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett, who has been with the troops in Vietnam for five years, wrote in September that ARVN forces seldom are engaged in any operations that could be serious enough to have a "victory" or "defeat."

Arnett wrote, "They (ARVN) perform this mission from mud... outposts, often cringing in fear at an approaching enemy, only occasionally attempting to fight off an attacking force..."

And he charged that ARVN troops do little more than guard duty while our GIs are the active combat forces.

Thus, casualty figures released in Saigon this week seemed to back up Arnett's case. These figures indicated that American boys now make up about 70 per cent of the allied deaths in the war, a good indication of which group is the most active, or the worst soldiers.

It seems hard to prove, moreover, that American forces are not performing excellently in Vietnam. All the available information indicates that we just have tough opponents.

ABC correspondent Ted Koppel wrote in July that American soldiers, though having little respect for ARVN forces, had grudging respect for the Viet Cong.

"When you consider," Koppel said, "that Communist forces in South Vietnam are vastly outnumbered, that they have no effective counter measures whatsoever to American fighter planes and bombers, and that they have no aerial observers to help them pinpoint their artillery and rocket fire, then you get some indication of their fighting effectiveness."

The general didn't mention this.

Our official sources have said that American bombing has greatly reduced the infiltration of combat personnel from North Vietnam, and desertions from the Viet Cong are rising every month. Thus, the enemy seems to have a decrease in manpower along with his increase in casualties.

It doesn't seem logical that increased American casualties would result from any lack of fighting ability in our troops. And, as we have seen, enemy strength is falling off.

It would follow that the VC and North Vietnamese regulars are shying away from direct encounters and reverting to the traditional shoot-and-run guerrilla tactics of former years. Only it appears now that the Communists may be fighting harder.

The significance of this situation was well put by Koppel in his July dispatch: "... the most glaring problem remains: one day, the South Vietnamese are going to have to provide their own security, perhaps even fight their own war. Before that day comes, there will have to be a decrease, not an increase, in American troops here... Every additional 10,000 troops that are brought from the United States to Vietnam are, in a sense, a tacit admission that South Vietnam is that much further from being able to handle its own problems."

The general didn't mention this.

South Vietnamese forces perform mostly a holding action. Fighting only during the day, five and one-half days a week, ARVN troops try to hold ground that has either been gained from Communist forces or has been controlled by their own government. Thus, one would not expect ARVN troops to have any "defeats."

Westmoreland also stated that seven enemy troops are killed for every soldier of the ARVN forces. He neglected to say, however, who had killed these enemy forces.

And if they were killed by ARVN forces, this would indicate that the Viet Cong were fighting even harder to drive the South Vietnamese troops out of their entrenched defensive positions.

Westmoreland also neglected to say that Communist forces are so often outnumbered that any direct confrontation is close to group suicide.

The State Department finally quoted Westmoreland as saying that during the first half of 1967 the average monthly loss by the enemy as a result of ARVN action was more than 3,500 killed, compared to 2,800 during the first six months of 1966.

Once again, this quote hints that the Viet Cong are becoming more aggressive or are increasing in numbers. If ARVN forces are inflicting such heavy losses on the enemy, why have the Americans casualty figures increased so much? Whom are we killing?

Our official sources have said that American bombing has greatly reduced the infiltration of combat personnel from North Vietnam, and desertions from the Viet Cong are rising every month. Thus, the enemy seems to have a decrease in manpower along with his increase in casualties.

Mimers take the pants off politics

By D.B. Axelrod
For The Daily Iowan

The San Francisco Mime Troupe was here Thursday and Friday with two performances of "L'Amant Militaire" in Macbride Auditorium and a free show on the Old Capitol lawn entitled "Olive Pits."

As theater, there was little question of the competence of the troupe. The aims of their presentation, as the players expressed them during and after their performances, were of a more controversial nature: to prevent what might be termed "politics with its pants down."

Starting with the physical movement of mime (the non-verbal kind), the troupe went on to add the dialogue, song and dance to produce something in the tradition of the commedia dell'arte, a Renaissance Italian form. The physical exaggeration, the bigger-than-life movements of the players, drew a constant stream of laughs from the audience. The stamping, the pratfalls, the lapses into ballet-like moments came close, however, to losing the intended comic effect, bordering on and crossing into the realm of just plain gimmick.

What the mimers were after, of course, was an uninhibited and comic presentation of their more serious matter. Accepting their (and the comedian's) raucous attitude, the troupe was most successful when, in reaching even the least sophisticated theater-goers with their exaggerated and often sexual movements and remarks, they also pleased their more seasoned viewers.

The delicate balance of high and low comedy — both requiring much dramatic skill and imagination, was achieved at times, but as often was violated, bringing cries of indecent from the conservative, or sophomoric from the even more tolerant.

When it comes to content, the plays the troupe adapted and performed, a similar balance of parts is needed. The players, some in half-masks, often hardly make up, complicated any evaluation of the plays by occasionally removing the dramatic masks, entirely, to state their social and political philosophies.

"L'Amant Militaire" (from a play by Carlo Goldoni, 1752) presented what its title promised: a man in love with the military for its monetary rewards, and a man with a general's love of war.

In sundry digressions within the play and frank contemporary comments by a caustic "Punch" (a puppet), the plot of the play was unquestionably related to the current Vietnamese war and draft crises. The love of the military as it was presented by the mimers is a mixture of lust — for property and penis, sexual adventures of a soldier and the money and power to be gained by the men who make war.

The premises of the troupe are simply stated, and sum up the message they played for: private property is bad, war (in Vietnam and in general) is bad.

Those who negate one or both of the premises (or objected to the sex in public) were probably not pleased by the San Francisco Mime Troupe. For most, however, the additional emphasis on "moral instruction" the Mime Troupe put into its performance was a shot in the arm for theater. The results were a lively and comic commentary on our times, as well as a worthwhile dramatic experience.

But the comment by the troupe, when the masks came off at the conclusion of the performance, could be turned back on the performance itself: "It's your society. If you don't like it, change it. If you can't change it, destroy it."

How would you act?

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (U) — What would a man do if he found a dead alligator at the back door of a night club?

John Winfield slammed the door and called police.

Police theorized the 7-foot reptile got the wanderlust and was killed by a surprised pedestrian.

The alligator was owned by Steve Colet, leader of a rock and roll band, who planned to use the beast as a prop for a song — "How Would You Act if You Found an Alligator in the Bathtub?"

Coming attractions

Two new features, one to inform and one to amuse, will begin next week on this page. One of them will be Iowan ACTION, a problem-solving column for our readers. The other will be a button of the day — a slogan or comment on nearly any subject.

If you have a problem that you can't solve, send a letter or card with all the facts involved in your problem (please don't phone) to Iowan ACTION, The Daily Iowan, 201 Communications Center, Iowa City. Iowan ACTION will respond only to signed problems which must include addresses, although it will use only initials in the column. All answers will be in the column. There will be no mail or phone replies.

Iowan ACTION will not be an advice column. Rather, it will attempt to give complete answers to concrete problems.

The button of the day will feature timely — or untimely — comments on today's state of affairs. Some of them might be semi-serious, but most of them will be intended only as an amusing comment on the times. Some of them, more than likely, will be a waste of space.

They will be presented in the form of a button slogan so you can cut them out and wear them or use them for coasters or target practice. But they will be mainly intended for your own enjoyment. Contributions for this feature, as for all parts of the paper, are welcomed.

Reader encourages end to Selective Service

To the Editor:

The 18th amendment to the United States Constitution says: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

In light of this amendment, every person truly concerned with the draft should use his right of petition to encourage his representative in Congress to uphold his oath of office by discarding the antiquated Selective Service System.

Planners OK Big Addition To UI Library

The Campus Planning Committee approved Friday the plans for an addition to the Main Library, and looked at plans for a new physics building and a sports building, which were approved during the summer.

The library addition plans were submitted by George L. Horner, University architect. He said the construction cost of the addition would be $6.4 million. He said it would provide room for about 1.8 million volumes and 4,000 students. The library now holds about 900,000 volumes.

The physics building will provide lecture, classroom and research facilities, and will probably be used by other departments, Horner said.

He said the sports building will provide recreational space to help meet needs of the faculty and students. The building will have an inside track with 12 basketball courts that also can be used for tennis and other games.

CHINESE TO AID ZAMBIA—
LUSAKA, Zambia (AP)—President Kenneth Kaunda announced an advance party of Communist Chinese engineers will arrive early next year to begin surveying a proposed rail line to link landlocked, copper-producing Zambia with Tanzania, which has Indian Ocean port. Kaunda had just returned from talks with Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere.

— Critics Seen In Trouble — Bourjaily Defends Novel

By BETTY BOWLSEY

Novels and their audiences are not in trouble, but critics are, novelist Vance Bourjaily said Friday. Bourjaily acted as moderator at a morning seminar featuring novelists Sol Yurick and Robert Stone which was part of the Second Biennial Conference for Modern Letters on "The New Grotesque" being held at the Union.

Bourjaily, an associate professor of English in the Writers Workshop and author of the recent best-selling novel "The Man Who Knew Kennedy," was commenting on a lecture presented here Thursday by Warner Berthoff, Harvard University professor of literature.

Berthoff said that present novels disappointed readers in today's complex and troubled world.

Reviews Rehash
Bourjaily said that too many authors depend on the criticism of book reviewers. Reviewers only rehash the book, and many do not even like to read, he asserted.

According to Bourjaily, novels in the past 25 years have been extraordinarily full of life, vigor and variety. He said that he hoped he did not have to wait 100 years for critics to grow up.

Yurick, author of "The Warriors" and the recently published "Fertig," commented that novels used to be written for entertainment but now are written to "move people."

Novelist In Trouble
He said that if the novelist wanted to move people, he was in trouble because readers were not being moved. Good novelists are anti-establishment, Yurick said.

Stone, author of a recently published, highly acclaimed first novel, "A Hall of Mirrors," said that authors have to work in a "society that is breaking down all around them."

He said that today's political and social systems are changing, and the novelist can not depend on the old system, but rather must cope with the change.

House Group Finally OKs Poverty Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—An anti-poverty bill that would put more control over the community-action programs in the hands of local officials was approved Friday by the House Education and Labor Committee.

After months of struggle, including sessions lasting until midnight this week, the committee finally adopted the bill expected to bring on an even fiercer fight in the House.

The bill would authorize a two-year extension of the several anti-poverty programs administered by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) at a funding level of $2.06 billion.

Approval was by a roll call vote of 18-13, split largely along party lines after the Democrats had used their majority to roll over most amendments put forward by the Republicans.

The proposed spending level is not regarded as realistic even by the most optimistic of the bill's supporters. The economy-minded House has already served notice it intends to slash deeply into the program when it gets a chance.

Drastic changes in other parts of the bill are possible when the House takes it up in two or three weeks. Republicans and conservative Democrats have combined to maul the OEO at every opportunity recently, even voting to deprive its employees of a federal pay raise that would go to every other agency.

Mime Troupe Director Asks Study Of Society's Motives

In its Friday morning program, the Conference for Modern Letters on "The New Grotesque" presented two more points of view on the state of contemporary art and literature.

R. G. Davis, director of the San Francisco Mime Troupe, using his innovative theater company as an example of contemporary trends, stated the need for a personal investigation of our society's underlying motives.

Only by examining the issues behind the overt, physical actions

Auto Mishap Suit Brings No Award

After four days of hearing evidence, a jury made no award to George Ellis, 1019 3rd Ave., and his son Gary William, 22, who were seeking car accident damages of $62,000.

The verdict for no award was reached late Thursday night in the Johnson County District Court.

Defendants in the case were Dennis Kent Jarvis and William J. Jarvis, both of Linn County.

The suit grew out of a two-car collision on Apr. 10, 1965 on Highway 218 near North Liberty.

Ellis sought $60,425 in damages for his son who, he claimed, suffered a broken nose, permanent injury to his jaw and other facial injuries.

Ellis also sought $2,500 in damages for payment of hospital bills incurred by his son.

Criticism Of Union Movies Rallies Defense From Board

By JAN TEAGUE

Films shown by the Student Union Board are reflecting the tastes of the students on campus, according to a letter written to the members of the board's movie committee.

The quality of Union Board films was recently criticized by Donald Kaul, author of "Over the Coffee," a column in the Des Moines Register.

Kaul called the entertainment films "outright dogs" and the art films "old hat." He said the documentary films were "incomprehensible."

Maryls Balanoff, A4, Des Moines, director of the movies committee, said the members sent Kaul a letter in which they explained the film situation at the University.

No Other Comments
The movies committee "will not make any comment on Kaul's column other than through the letter," she said.

The letter which Kaul received made the following points: University students were polled last spring on the movies they wanted to see. Over 50 per cent of the films scheduled this fall were student choices.

Film attendance has been good and many showings have been sold out.

The movie committee is under the impression that students like the films because it has heard nothing against them.

This committee has certain problems which it cannot alter. The main one is the budget. A certain amount of money is allotted for films and this amount cannot be exceeded.

Films Limited
The number of films available is limited. The ones which fall into the movie committee's price range are usually five to ten years old. Newer movies are usually too expensive. Local theaters would object to their showing even if they were within the price limit.

The movies are selected by students who are not always experienced in selecting films. However, the purpose of Union Board is to give students training in programming. If this job were taken away from them, the purpose would be defeated.

The movies committee realizes its short-comings and is trying to overcome them.

UI Directory Sale To Begin Monday

University directories, commonly called "herdbooks," will go on sale Monday, according to Robert D. Leahy, associate director of admissions and records.

The directories will be on sale for $1.50 in all bookstores, campus stores and dormitory stores.

All University students who registered before noon on Sept. 27 will be included. Their names, home and school addresses, school phone numbers, student numbers and classifications will be listed.

A separate section lists similar information about the faculty and administration.

Nadar Blasts Triviality Of Automobile Makers

DES MOINES (AP)—Automobile makers seem to compete to see who "can come up with the most trivial feature," auto critic Ralph Nader said Friday.

The 33-year-old lawyer, whose book "Unsafe at Any Speed" preceded federal auto safety laws, addressed the 23,000 teachers and others attending the Iowa State Education Association convention.

Nader said new auto styling charges are considered standard equipment each year, while many safety features are "optional at extra cost."

He criticized the role of "stylists" in "subversion of engineering integrity" in manufacture of new autos.

For example, Nader said the auto bumper originally was designed to absorb shock and reduce property damage in low-speed accidents. Now, he said, it serves neither purpose — and today guards are produced to protect the bumpers.

Earlier, in a news conference, Nader criticized what he called "ear muffs," or body panels that extend behind the rear window of some late-model cars. He said this styling innovation reduces visibility to the rear so that "you

Delay Granted In Mayflower Bid

By SUE VAN HULL

The Board of Adjustment voted Friday morning to continue until Oct. 31 a hearing on a request by Mayflower Hall to install a cafeteria in the University approved, private apartment complex at 1110 N. Dubuque St.

Attorneys requested the delay to have time to prepare written arguments.

Operators of Mayflower want to install a cafeteria, but since this was not in the original plan which was approved by the city, they must get the board's permission.

The city contends that Mayflower is in a residential zone which does not permit construction of dining facilities, while the Mayflower management asserts that this is an unreasonable interpretation of the city's high-rise apartment ordinance.

The Oct. 31 meeting will be held at 11 a.m. in the Civic Center.

FOR PROGRESS

- Urban Renewal — The future of Iowa City is dependent on the success of the central shopping district. The successful solution of city-wide growth, traffic patterns, sewer and other utilities, and economic prosperity are dependent on the development of a central business area that can be a source of civic service and public pride. All resources, private and public, local and federal, must be utilized as necessary to meet this challenge.
- Municipal Government — The Council-Manager form of city government allows elected citizens to establish policies and laws and provides for the fulfillment of these policies and ordinances by trained professional managers.
- Urban Parking — We need immediate construction of additional ground level parking to meet the needs of consumers and businessmen. The need is now. This need can be met now without conflicting with future plans and potentials.
- Regional Planning — Our neighbors are our friends. We are engaged in a common enterprise — a better life for all citizens. This requires broader long-range planning. While respecting the rights of our own citizens, we must look to wider boundaries for the services that justify the development of city government — police and fire protection, economic progress and prosperity, education and cultural growth, public utilities and services, and beauty and recreation.

Bob Kennedy Signs— Former Cub Boss To Pilot Athletics

CHICAGO (AP)—Charles O. Finley announced Friday the signing of Bob Kennedy, former Chicago Cubs' head coach, to a two-year contract as manager of Finley's new Oakland Athletics.

Finley said Kennedy, last season a coach for the Atlanta Braves, had been signed two weeks ago, but the announcement was held up pending approval of the shift of Finley's Kansas City franchise to Oakland.

Finley declined to mention the salary involved, stating, "It is not our policy to announce salaries."

Earlier in the day, Kennedy's appointment had been announced by the Oakland Tribune and confirmed by Kennedy's wife at Mesa, Ariz., where Kennedy is working at the A's instructional camp.

Kennedy, 47, replaces Luke Appling, temporary A's manager after Finley fired Alvin Dark in August.

Finley also named three coaches, Bill Posedel, former San Francisco Giant pitching coach; Johnny McNamara, now with the A's, and Sherman Lollar, last season a coach for Baltimore.

Finley said there was no substance to speculation that Joe DiMaggio, former New York Yankee great and an idol in the San Francisco area, would join the club in any capacity.

Kennedy piloted the Cubs to seventh place in 1963 and eighth in the National League in 1964.

Yanks Prevail In Ryder Cups

HOUSTON (AP)—A miracle shot by Arnold Palmer and a streak of phenomenal putting by his partner, Gardner Dickinson, paced the United States to a 5½-2½ lead over the pride of Britain's golf professionals Friday in the 17th biennial Ryder Cup matches.

Palmer and Dickinson scored two triumphs in the 18-hole Scotch foursome matches as did another strong-armed U.S. pair, Bobby Nichols and Johnny Pott.

The team of Tony Jacklin, 23-year-old rookie, and big Dave Thomas provided the invaders with their strongest resistance.

This smooth working duo won both its tests while the split point was the result of a squared match in the morning between Britain's rugged George Will and Brian Huggett on one side and America's highly rated Julius Boros and Bill Casper on the other.

By coincidence, Will and Huggett were thrown against Boros and Casper again in the afternoon. Again, they fought it out tooth and nail to the final hole, the Yanks winning 1-up.

Eight best-ball matches will be played Saturday with 16 singles duels on Sunday climaxing the series which the Yanks have lost only three times since it was started in 1927.

Hawks Favored At Madison

Meet The Hawkees...

MELVIN MORRIS

TIM SULLIVAN

MELVIN MORRIS is one of Iowa's outstanding sophomore prospects. Morris, 6-2, 241 pounds, gained a starting role in the Hawks' third game of the year at power tackle. Morris, who hails from Lake Charles, La., was an all-state performer in 1966 and received an outstanding citizenship award from the Lake Charles Chamber of Commerce in his senior year.

TIM SULLIVAN moved into the starting fullback spot this year when injury forced veteran Cory Patterson to the sidelines. Only a sophomore, Sullivan has carried 24 times for 69 yards. He attended St. Joseph's High School in Shawnee, Kan., where he was an all-stater. Sullivan is 6-2 and weighs 215.

By JOHN HARMON
Asst. Sports Editor

If the Iowa Hawkees are hungry for a victory, the Wisconsin Badgers are starved. The Hawks (1-3) and Badgers (0-4) clash at 1:30 this afternoon at Madison. Iowa is a one-touchdown favorite to gain its first conference victory.

The Badgers have lost to Washington (17-0), Arizona State (42-16), Michigan State (35-22) and Pittsburgh (13-11). According to Iowa Coach Ray Nagel Wisconsin played well enough to beat Pitt, which gives the Badgers something in common with the Hawks, who out-played Indiana in nearly every department but the final score last Saturday at Bloomington.

After an opening game victory against Texas Christian, the Hawks have lost three straight to Oregon State, Notre Dame and Indiana. First half shortcomings have been the Hawks' tale of woe this year; opponents have nailed 83 first-half points to the scoreboard, while the Hawks have managed only 20. Iowa holds a slight second half edge, however, 45-43.

Wisconsin's No. 1 problem has been the lack of a consistent ground attack. The Badgers have been outtrushed in every game this year and have been able to gain over a 100 yards only once.

Because of the ground deficiencies, the Badger attack will be concentrated in the air where capable John Ryan will be the pilot. Ron Stark, the member of the Iowa football staff who scouted the Badgers, rates Ryan as a good passer.

"Ryan, like Podolak, is a good scrambling quarterback," said Stark, "but I would give the edge to Podolak in rushing." Ryan's prime targets are wingback Tom McCauley and sophomore end Mel Reddick, who doubles as a Badger basketball prospect.

The Badgers' offensive formation, which features a split backfield with a wide flanker and a split end is geared to the passing game. An indication of how much Badger Coach John Costta relies on the passing game is that the aerial attack has out-produced the ground game in each Badger loss.

On the ground, Ryan, fullback Wayne Todd and tailback John Smith will carry the load. Their favorite play is a fake pitch to Todd and a hand-off to Smith with fullback Todd clearing the path.

Iowa's squad will be the same as last week with the exception of No. 2 right defensive tackle where Rich Stepanek will replace the injured Duane Grant. Second team tight end Gary Larsen, who missed last week's game, will be out of action again today because of a leg injury.

Larsen's absence may again cause center Paul Usinowicz to shift to his old tight end spot should sophomore Paul Laaveg be injured. Greg Barton would become the center should this happen. Laaveg suffered a neck injury against Indiana necessitating the shift, but Nagel said Laaveg was ready for action.

If the Hawks are able to win today (they're rated as favorites for the first time this year) it would not only end a five-year Badger win string but also provide a happy ending to an otherwise dismal road trip.

The Hawks return to Iowa City next Saturday for their Homecoming game against Purdue.

Iowa Runners Lose Twice

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa's Big 10 title-defending cross-country team finished third in a four-team meet here Friday, placing behind Drake and Minnesota. The Hawks salvaged a win over Wichita State.

Drake had 41 points, Minnesota 45, Iowa 59 and Wichita State 77. Iowa, favored to repeat as Big 10 champs, now has a 2-3-1 record.

Hawkeye Larry Wiczorek had the best individual time — 19 minutes 55.5 seconds — over the four-mile course.

YAZ SIGNS—BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox slugger Carl Yastrzemski signed a one-year contract Friday and said the salary was "the kind of figure I always dreamed about as a boy." Most guesses put it at $100,000.

Where does an engineer intern?

Before you decide on the job that's to start you on your professional career, it's good to ask a few point blank questions... like:

- Will this job let me rub shoulders with engineers doing things that haven't been done before, in all phases of engineering?
- Will I be working for an engineering oriented management whose only standard is excellence?
- Will I have access to experts in fields other than my own to help me solve problems and stimulate professional growth?
- Will I be working with the widest range of professional competence and technological facilities in the U. S.?
- Are engineering careers with this company stable... or do they depend upon proposals and market fluctuations?

Why not ask these questions about Bendix Kansas City when Mr. R. E. Cox visits the

Spartans, Gophers Top Big 10 Slate

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big 10 football race today uncorks its first key game of the season with defending champion Michigan State's invasion of Minnesota.

Two other unbeaten contenders, Indiana (2-0) and Purdue (2-0), are in action against Michigan (0-1) and Oregon State respectively.

Other contents today include Ohio State (0-1) at Northwestern (0-1) and Iowa (0-1) at Wisconsin (0-1) in conference play, and Notre Dame at Illinois (0-2) in a big non-conference joust.

After a rocky start against Houston and Southern California, Michigan State perked suddenly and sharply in launching a bid for an unprecedented third straight perfect Big 10 season.

The Spartans rolled over Wisconsin 35-7 and Michigan 34-0 and invade Minnesota a nine-point favorite over the Gophers, who nipped Illinois 10-7 in their conference debut last Saturday.

Gophers Favored
However, huge and defensively-strong Minnesota has been reckoned a strong title contender and could derail the Spartans' try for their 17th successive Big 10 victory which would tie Ohio State's 1954-1956 record.

Although the over-all campaign reaches the halfway mark today, the conference race scarcely is under way. Gopher Coach Murray Warmath has predicted the Big 10 champion may wind up with as many as two or three defeats.

Purdue's Rose Bowl champion Boilermakers, rated No. 2 nationally behind Southern California, seemingly hold the title key in successive collisions with Minnesota, Michigan State and Indiana in the season's final three weekends.

Hoosiers Face Wolves
Indiana, whose 4-0 record includes conference victories over Illinois and Iowa, surprisingly is a three-point under-dog at Michigan even though the Wolverines have been staggered by three straight defeats. Indiana's longest winning streak in its 82-year football history would be established if the Hoosiers triumph at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Purdue which returns to conference skirmishing at Iowa next week is picked by 20 points in today's outside clash with invading Oregon State.

Ohio State's visit to Northwestern is rated a tossup between two teams trying to rebound from wallpops by Purdue and Rice respectively.

Colorado Out For Big Upset At Lincoln

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unbeaten, fourth-ranked Colorado, seeking to end Nebraska's four-year Big 8 football dynasty, heads for Lincoln, Neb., Saturday along with about 4,000 of its fans. It could be the league's game of the year, and 65,000 persons including some bowl scouts will be on hand.

Nebraska was shocked 10-0 by Kansas last week and a loss to Colorado would shove the Huskers near the brink of elimination.

Colorado, on the other hand meets Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State on successive Saturdays, immediately after handing Missouri its first loss, 23-9.

Coach Bob Devaney warns that his club won't give up the crown without the fight of its life, but admits "Colorado is a great team." Coach Dan Devine of Missouri said the same thing and rated Colorado much better than the 1961 Big 8 champions, the last title team at CU.

Nebraska, however, may have an even stronger defense than Missouri, with Wayne Meylan, All America middle guard, the ringleader, and the Husker attack moved well until the disaster at Kansas.

It certainly should be the toughest test so far for rookie quarterback Bob Anderson, already hailed as a superstar of the future.

A POLICEMAN USES HIS NIGHTSTICK TO subdue an antidraft demonstrator at the Oakland (Calif.) Army Induction Center Friday. Some 10,000 demonstrators were on hand during the fifth day of protest at the center. The police were pelted with soft drink cans and picket signs as they tried to clear the area. — AP Wirephoto

Assistant Director Named For Union

The appointment of R. E. Waide as assistant director of the Union has been announced by Loren Kottner, Union director. Waide will act as coordinator of the various Union departments beginning Dec. 1. Waide presently is director of Auxiliary Enterprises at the University of South Dakota at Vermillion. He previously was director of South Dakota's Student Center. He was also union concessions manager at Kansas State University in Manhattan, and at one time was a district sales representative for Continental Oil in Wichita, Kan.

Governors Won't Back Viet Policy

ABOARD SS INDEPENDENCE — Republican governors blocked a Democratic effort Friday to have the nation's governors declare themselves "committed to the successful conclusion of the struggle for freedom in Southeast Asia." At a stormy session of the 50th National Governors Conference, each side accused the other of playing partisan politics with the Vietnamese war. Texas Gov. John Connally, a Democrat, likened the GOP governors who prevented action on the measure to dissenters who he said have created problems during every war in American history. When the crucial vote came, Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio was the only Republican siding with 25 Democrats to have the conference consider the resolution. Adoption would have required 31 votes — two thirds. Eighteen Republicans voted against a rule suspension to permit action. As it was, the measure voted on was a toned-down version of a resolution Republicans had vowed to resist. The new version eliminated direct reference to President Johnson's Vietnam policy. Gov. Calvin L. Rampton formally proposed the resolution. It sought a conference declaration of wartime unity "above partisanship and beyond any question of approval or disapproval."

Air Attacks On North Curtailed By Typhoon

SAIGON (AP) — Rough weather generated by Typhoon Carla, which killed 112 persons in sweeps across the Philippines and Formosa, is curtailing the U.S. air offensive against North Vietnam. The ground war Friday seemed to be in another of its periodic lulls. A U.S. spokesman reported the possibility of a break in the storm clouds by Sunday. Still to come, however, is the full force of the northeast monsoon, which ordinarily veils enemy objectives in North Vietnam for much of the time from fall to early spring. Candidates Studied In the political field, interest centered on the election Sunday of a 137-member House of Representatives, which will share legislative duties with the 60-man Senate elected Sept. 3. Nearly 1,200 candidates of varied hues are in the running. Most have said they look for peace with victory. Ten have the dove as their symbol. Though confused by the number of aspirants and general vagueness of their pronouncements in a brief campaign, analysts in Saigon believe the House probably will be middle road and skeptical of any dealings with the Viet Cong. Jets Grounded Rain and wind kept U.S. Navy jets aboard their carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin Thursday, though Carla had declined to a tropical depression rating after crossing Red China's Hainan Island. Maintenance of the offensive was left to land-based Air Force and Marine squadrons. They managed to execute 77 missions, including a bombardment of a bridge 70 miles northeast of Hanoi that is one link in a railway line between the Communist capital and China. U.S. destroyer gunners joined American airmen in blasting at Communist holdings within and north of the demilitarized zone. Pilots said they destroyed or damaged 17 military structures, set off nine fires and stirred up one secondary explosion such as comes from a direct hit on an oil or ammunition cache. Marine outposts below the DMZ said they counted only 22 incoming shells that day. Two Marines were wounded.

Pilots Report Less Firing

SAIGON (AP) — Pilots bombing North Vietnam report an encouraging sign in the air war in the area of their deepest concern — the amount of anti-aircraft fire the enemy can mass. A U.S. Air Force spokesman said Friday that, because of transport difficulties, North Vietnamese anti-aircraft batteries apparently are having serious trouble getting enough ammunition during peak air raid days. These batteries, made up of conventional guns, are the major foe of American jets. The spokesman said targets from near the demilitarized zone to the approaches to Red China's frontier still are heavily defended but, after two or three days of raids, the guns are not able to maintain the volume of fire on succeeding days. But a day or so pause in the bombing because of bad weather or a shift in target emphasis, and the North Vietnamese are able to bring their stockpiles up again, he added. That could change the picture over the winter. Bad weather has cut lately into the number of sorties the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps can launch on a given day. This will continue, with minor breaks, for six or seven months.

CORRECTION

Our statement concerning Federal Urban Renewal in Keokuk, Iowa, published in a political advertisement in the Daily Iowan, Oct. 20, 1967, endorsing "Doc" Connell Cliff Kritta and Dale Erickson for City Council was not entirely correct. We regret the error. It was not intentional. The Keokuk story, furnished by the mayor's office in Keokuk, is as follows:

1. The city of Keokuk started purchasing property in a five square block area late in 1964.
2. Demolition by the city was completed Dec. 28, 1965.
3. The area was sold to an out-of-town developer from Des Moines. They took title during May, 1966.
4. A building for a department store was started in August, 1966, and was occupied in April, 1967.
5. One other building is under construction now. The remainder of the five block area is undeveloped.

Iowa College Enrollment At New High

Enrollment in Iowa colleges and universities rose to a new high this fall, with 86,556 students on campuses, but there was a leveling off in the rate of increase compared with recent years, according to a report Friday to Iowa college presidents.

Public and private junior colleges continued to make a strong showing as the educational starting point for more and more students; they reported enrollment increases of 12.2 per cent.

The state-supported universities had an increase of 8.4 per cent over 1966. Twenty-eight of Iowa's 29 private colleges and universities had a collective enrollment increase of 1.4 per cent. A decline of nearly 3,000 students at Parsons College made a net enrollment decrease of 6 per cent for the private colleges.

The public junior colleges enrolled 7,346 freshmen this fall, an increase of 17.9 per cent, while private junior colleges had 1,826 freshmen, up 18.5 per cent from last year.

Private colleges, excluding Parsons, gained 1.4 per cent and now have 34,174 students enrolled.

The state-supported schools — the University, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa — increased in enrollment by 8.4 per cent to 43,739, and have 7,906 freshmen. The freshman percentage increase in state schools is 1.3, the same as the 1966 increase over 1965.

This fall's total enrollment throughout the state — which includes three new colleges — is 2.9 per cent greater than last year's total of 93,324, the report said. The new schools are the public Area 10 Community College at Cedar Rapids; Charles City College, Charles City, and Sioux Empire College, Hawarden, both private junior colleges.

The public junior colleges enrolled 7,346 freshmen this fall, an increase of 17.9 per cent, while private junior colleges had 1,826 freshmen, up 18.5 per cent from last year.

Private colleges, excluding Parsons, gained 1.4 per cent and now have 34,174 students enrolled.
