Spaak Portrays De Gaulle As Foe Of European Unity

By ROY PETTY

On war in Europe: "War breaking out is now practically impossible."
On French Premier Charles de Gaulle: "I do not think he is a great man. He is but an accident in the history of France."
On European unity: Atlantic Alliance nations cannot have "a common foreign policy in one area and opposing policies in others... Western nations must sacrifice some of their sovereignty" to gain political success in Europe.

The speaker was an old, sick man, seated and reading from a manuscript in a heavy French accent, but his name and record gave authority to his words. He spoke in the Union Ballroom to an audience of about 300 persons.

He was Paul-Henri Spaak — "Mr. Europe" — first president of the United Nations General Assembly, former secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), one of the authors of the U.N. Charter, leading man in Belgian politics for 35 years, and guiding spirit behind the European Common Market.

He spoke on "Crisis in the Atlantic Alliance," warning that Western political unity has fallen apart since its beginnings in 1949, and predicted that De Gaulle would drop France from the Atlantic Alliance completely by 1969, in defiance of pressure to admit Great Britain to the Common Market and out of hate for the United States.

Spaak, noted for his unbending distrust of the Soviet Union, warned that recent dormancy in Soviet policy in Europe should not be used as an excuse to weaken the military strength of NATO.

He said that steps should be taken to make the North Atlantic Alliance a "political as well as a military community."
"Moderation" in recent Soviet policies, he explained, was due to a fear of Communist China, since the U.S.S.R. might need Western aid in the future. A change in that situation, he implied, might lead to increased Soviet aggression.

He primarily blamed De Gaulle for the breakup of European unity since 1949, because of the French Premier's dream of making France a dominant atomic power. But, he added, "What De Gaulle is more important than what he does," since his "feelings and reactions" play the most important role in his statesmanship.

But the French Premier has increasingly lost followers in France and the Common Market, Spaak said, because (1) he has refused to even discuss Britain's entry into the Common Market, which would create a more realistic "united" Europe; (2) he has supported the Arab nations strongly during the Arab-Israeli war; and (3) he conducted himself badly in Canada earlier this year.

"As he (De Gaulle) grows older," Spaak said, "his faults become more and more visible."

School District Boundary Proposed

By MARILYN MILLER

A boundary proposal for the junior and senior high school districts was presented for consideration at the Iowa City Community Board of Education Wednesday night, but no action was taken on it.

William Bleeker, director of secondary schools, said that the main considerations in determining the boundaries were efficient use of school buildings, stability in the boundaries and the number of students to be transported to the schools.

The proposed junior high school boundaries would follow the Iowa River north to Cedar Rapids and Iowa City railroad tracks, west along the tracks to Rocky Shore Drive, then following the Iowa River to Coralville.

Students south and west of this line would attend West Junior High School. The line separating Southeast and Central Junior High School students would be east from the Iowa River along the Rock Island tracks to Summit Street, north to Court Street, east to Seventh Avenue, north to Rochester Avenue, west to Ralston Creek and following the creek northwesterly to the limits of the school district.

Students south and east of the line would attend Southeast Junior High and students north and west would attend Central Junior High.

Students transported by bus from Scott township would go to Southeast Junior High. Students from East and West Lucas townships Union, Sharon, and Liberty townships would go to West Junior High. Students from Newport and Penn town-

Young Democrats Kill Recruitment Resolution

A resolution asking Pres. Howard R. Bowen to bar from campus recruiters from Dow Chemical Corp. and other businesses manufacturing munitions for use in the Vietnam war was defeated by a vote of 18 to 25 Wednesday night at a Young Democrats meeting.

A resolution objecting to the "immoral war in Vietnam" was tabled until next week's meeting.

Bruce Clark, A1, Des Moines, president of Students for a Democratic Society, was a guest speaker. He explained his group's position on recent campus demonstrations and the Vietnam war.

In a special election, Julie Heinzelman, A2, Dubuque, was elected president of Young Democrats and Ivan Weber, A3, Davenport, was elected vice president.

About 50 persons attended the meeting.

Chrysler Strike Averted By Tentative Agreement

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. reached tentative agreement Wednesday night on a new three-year contract covering 95,000 hourly rated workers at Chrysler plants in 17 states.

The agreement, expected to exceed the record industry settlement of 6 per cent reached two weeks ago at Ford Motor Co., came only four hours before a midnight strike deadline and too late to avoid local strikes that already had crippled output.

The production situation of the nation's No. 3 auto maker was left in doubt because no agreement was reached on separate contracts covering 8,000 salaried workers.

"We were so totally absorbed in the major contract that we just ran out of time — and I think some of these people just ran out of steam," said a Jovial Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, as he emerged from a 34-hour nonstop session, second longest in industry history.

How many of the salaried workers, plus the more than 24,000 production workers who jumped the gun, would return to their jobs today was uncertain. Negotiations were expected to resume in the morning.

Strike Cancelled

The union cancelled its midnight strike deadline, which had held for the settlement of at-the-plant agreements, too, and said another would be set.

Local presidents throughout the Chrysler domain began hurried efforts to get their third shift workers apprised of the agreement.

The tentative contract was almost identical to the record industry pact won at Ford Motor Co. through a 46-day strike that ended two weeks ago, but included one major benefit not gained there—wage parity for Canadian workers.

The company said Canadian workers, now some 40 cents an hour behind their American counterparts, would draw even with the U.S. workers over the three-year life of the pact.

The Ford pact gave some 160,000 auto workers at that company wage and benefit increases over three years of roughly $1 an hour over the current scale of $4.70.

The pact was valued at 6 per cent. With wage parity the Chrysler pact likely will be somewhat higher — there are 12,000 Chrysler workers in Canada — but neither side placed an estimate on it.

Questions Unanswered

Sudden suspension of the talks left several questions unanswered as bargainers hastened home for sleep before a scheduled return to the table Thursday.

With the status of salaried workers still up in the air there was no way to gauge the impact on today's production.

Car output was reduced to 36 per cent and truck production cut to zero Wednesday as workers in four states jumped the gun on the midnight strike deadline.

How many of these would return to their jobs today was in doubt, but some were sure to stay away, including not only salaried workers but others disgruntled because at-the-plant agreements had not been reached.

There were also rumblings of discontent within the union even as bargainers remained locked behind the negotiating rooms at the Chrysler headquarters in suburban Highland Park.

A group of skilled tradesmen, charging Reuther had failed to fulfill promises, said they would run a candidate for union president against him at the UAW convention next spring, marking the first opposition Reuther has faced since 1955.

The skilled tradesmen hold a veto power over any contract signed with any of the Big Three, and although a campaign against ratification of the Ford contract failed, they are known to have more sway with skilled workers at Chrysler and General Motors.

The tentative agreement at Chrysler provides for pay raises of up to 93 cents an hour for the skilled tradesmen, same as the Ford pact.

Protesters To Face Draft

A student who takes part in antiwar demonstrations may be eligible to be drafted immediately if he continually tries to violate or disrupt the written law, according to Col. Glenn Bowles, Iowa Selective Service director.

Bowles said Wednesday that local draft officials will check their records on individuals who participate in antiwar demonstrations and "wait to see if the man is a violator of the law."

Bowles' comments came after Lieut. Gen. Reopen cases on this information and reclassify men as 1-A, a priority induction classification, instead of 2-S, a student deferment classification.

Bowles comments came after Lieut. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, U.S. Selective Service director, sent a letter to local draft boards recommending that college students who physically interfere with military recruiting officers on campus be subject to immediate drafting.

In his Oct. 26 letter, Hershey said that student deferments were "given only when they serve the national interest."

"It follows that illegal activity which interferes with recruiting or causes refusal of duty in the military or naval forces could not by any stretch of the imagination be construed as being in support of the national interest."

Hershey said in a press conference in Washington on Wednesday that his Oct. 26 draft deferment revocation order did not apply to persons legally protesting the draft or the Vietnam war, the Associated Press reported.

Hershey said that the order applied only to those individuals violating a 1967 law that provides for a jail sentence of up to five years and fines of $10,000 for those convicted of interfering with the draft law or its regulations.

Bowles said in a telephone interview broadcast over radio station WSUI that he could not say whether the order issued by Hershey would apply to the University students who demonstrated last week against Marine recruiters interviewing on campus.

"We're not going to run down and grab these men right now," Bowles said.

Bowles said that the local boards would have to scrutinize the list of University demonstrators from Iowa and then make the reclassification decisions.

Bowles said that a man involved in three or four antiwar protests would be more likely to be drafted than a man who had only demonstrated once.

House Committee Criticizes Goddard's Marijuana Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of food and drugs, met renewed criticism from some congressmen Wednesday when he defended his views that some penalties for possession of marijuana were too severe.

Goddard told the House Commerce Committee he did not believe marijuana was more dangerous than alcohol. "In terms of a health problem," he said, "it (alcohol) is a greater problem than marijuana."

"I think you have done a great disservice to all people who are interested in this problem," Rep. Albert W. Watson (R-S.C.) told Goddard.

"Your remarks have been taken as license," Rep. Clarence J. Brown Jr. (R-Ohio) said.

Goddard Defended

But Reps. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) and Brock Adams (D-Wash.) defended Goddard's right to discuss controversial issues.

While he said he favors severe penalties for possession of marijuana related to its sale, Goddard said he feared penalties aimed solely at possession might "make criminals of young people in our society who experiment with these drugs."

Goddard has previously testified against stepping up penalties for possession of hallucinogenic drugs such as LSD.

"Aren't severe penalties a deterrent?" Watson asked.

"I believe there is some argument about that," Goddard replied.

Resignation Demanded

Several committee members had demanded that Goddard resign after he discussed marijuana and alcohol at a news conference in Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.

Rep. Hastings Keith (R-Mass.) told Goddard "it looks to me you sort of asked for what you got," because he didn't reply at the Minneapolis news conference with "simple, straight-forward answers."

Keith then asked Goddard some of the same questions he asked at Minneapolis. Keith: "Is marijuana more dangerous than alcohol?" Goddard: "I do not think it is more dangerous than alcohol."

He added that it is difficult to compare the two.

Regents Discuss Student Housing, Take No Action

By BILL NEWBROUGH
Editor

AMES — The question of university housing regulations came up at the meeting of the Board of Regents at Iowa State University (ISU) here Wednesday, and at least one regent indicated that he thought many housing problems on the University of Northern Iowa (UNI) campus would be solved if the students were allowed to live where they wanted.

Board member Melvin H. Wolf, Waterloo, admitted, however, that letting students live where they wanted might create some new problems.

Wolf's comments came during talks of overcrowded dormitories on the UNI campus.

A report to the regents indicated that dormitories at UNI were overloaded — some as much as by 41 per cent. In the report, UNI Pres. J. W. Maucker said that the UNI dormitories were overcrowded by a total of 714 students. Maucker said that this overload seriously inconvenienced more than 2,000 students.

ISU Pres. Robert Parks told the regents that his university let students, regardless of age, live any place they wanted. Women students less than 21 years must obtain permission from their parents to move off campus, however.

Student Housing Study

Wolf asked University of Iowa Pres. Howard R. Bowen if his administration was studying the possibility of changing University regulations concerning student housing.

"No comment," Bowen told Wolf. Currently all University students less than 21 years have to live in University-approved housing.

The regents took no action on the subject. They plan to discuss university regulations over the non-academic lives of students including housing regulations at their December meeting.

In other action, the regents decided to study whether to stiffen entrance requirements at the University, UNI and ISU.

The question came up when Maucker presented to the board a study of enrollment and student housing.

Maucker said UNI's policy was to consider students who graduated in the upper half of their high school class to be academically qualified for entrance, and special consideration often was given to students in the lower half of their high school class.

Quota Suggested

Regent Jonathan Richards of Red Oak asked whether it might be advisable to think about restricting enrollments to a smaller per cent at the top of high school graduating classes.

He said California state universities demand that their students come from the upper 12½ per cent of graduating classes, and he said it might be desirable for Iowa to stiffen its requirements too.

Maucker said California could have very rigorous requirements for its universities because it had a full-blown community college system which took care of thousands of other students.

He said Iowa might be able to do the same if its fledgling community college system ever developed to the point where California's is now. But he said the whole question of restricting enrollments "gets into the philosophy of what role out state institutions should play."

Mrs. Joseph Rosenfield, board member from Des Moines, said it had been eight or nine years since the Board of Regents had considered stiffening its entrance requirements and she said another study might be in order.

The regents then directed their inter-institutional committee to look into the pros and cons of restricting enrollment, and in connection with it, to study what happens to persons who drop out of college in the decade or so after they drop out.

The committee is to report at a future meeting of the board.

Regents Greeted By ISU Pickets

AMES — A group of about 30 picketing Iowa State University (ISU) students greeted members of the Board of Regents arriving for their meeting here Wednesday.

The demonstrators were picketing against ISU for allowing the Dow Chemical Co. to recruit on campus. Dow manufactures napalm, which is used in the Vietnam war.

One of the signs carried by picketers read, "ISU kills people in Vietnam via its agent, Dow Chemical."

The demonstration was peaceful, and no attempt was made to obstruct those entering the main administration building on the campus, in front of which the picketing took place. The regents met inside the building in the afternoon.

Dow recruited all week in a building behind the administration building. The demonstrators picketed Dow on Tuesday.

There was active debate throughout the afternoon between demonstrators and passers-by. ISU Pres. Robert Parks said he thought such an exchange of ideas was good.

One of those picketing was former ISU Student Body Pres. Don Smith.

Several persons who said they were associated with Students for a Democratic Society also demonstrated.

Huit, Arrested Students Tangle Over Interviews

By DEBBY DONOVAN
Asst. University Editor and MARY CLARK

Letters have gone out requesting that the 26 students who were arrested Nov. 1 appear for individual interviews with the Office of Student Affairs staff.

Four of the affected students met with M. L. Huit, dean of students, Wednesday afternoon to ask him to hold a mass meeting in advance of the individual sessions. Huit offered to hold a mass meeting Wednesday night, but the students said there was not enough time to inform all the arrested demonstrators.

The four students were: Everett C. Frost, G. North Coventry, Conn.; Kay Rood, A4, Council Bluffs; Bruce Clark, A1, Des Moines; and Paul J. Kleinberger, G, Silver Springs, Md.

Frost said that the students were very upset about the individual sessions and that Huit's staff would be able to hold better interviews if they were assured ahead of time that the interviews were designed to gather information, not to administer punishment.

No Charges Planned

Huit told The Daily Iowan Wednesday night the students have "the impression that they are going to be charged, but this is not true." He said that it was only an initial interview to determine what charges if any would later be pressed.

Huit said that the initial meetings were to ascertain what the protesters were doing at the demonstration, if any of them had been harmed or if they had seen anyone harmed, and to pursue the investigation of incidents.

Huit said that his office had no concrete information, and wanted to find out if anyone besides those arrested did things that the University should investigate.

Frost told the DI that Huit had agreed Monday to meet with the demonstrators in groups of three and four.

Huit said that he had agreed but that the students had not contacted him again or made arrangements for the meetings.

He said that he had offered to explain his position at a mass meeting Wednesday night, but that the four demonstrators had refused.

Appointments Scheduled

Frost said that his group wanted to call those students scheduled to talk to Huit's staff today and ask them if they would agree to postpone their interviews so that a mass meeting could be scheduled tonight, but that Huit had refused.

Huit said, "The staff has scheduled these appointments. We're not to be told when and where we can meet."

Frost said that he thought Huit was trying to be responsible within the established procedures, but that he "lacked the wisdom to be flexible."

He said that no civilized counseling could be carried on under the present circumstances.

Huit said that letters requesting interviews would also be sent out to a few people who were not arrested. He said that his staff wanted to talk with anyone who had been involved in physically harming someone at the demonstration.

Speakers Announced

Richard F. Dole Jr., associate professor of law, and chairman of the student-faculty Parking and Security committee, announced Wednesday today's speakers at his committee's investigation of security during last week's demonstration.

Student Body Pres. John Pelton will speak as an eyewitness.

Kleinberger will speak as a demonstrator, as will Martin D. Farren, G, Iowa City, who participated in the demonstration but was not arrested.

Jerry J. Kollros, professor and chairman of the Department of Zoology, will speak as an eyewitness.

Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, and Phil E. Connell, assistant to Pres. Howard R. Bowen, will represent the administration.

John H. Hanna, chief of Campus Security, will also speak in his capacity as a University official.

Brenneman Resigns From Student Senate

Student Sen. Lee Brenneman resigned from the Senate Tuesday night. He said he was disillusioned by alleged "inaction" on Student Senate housing committee proposals.

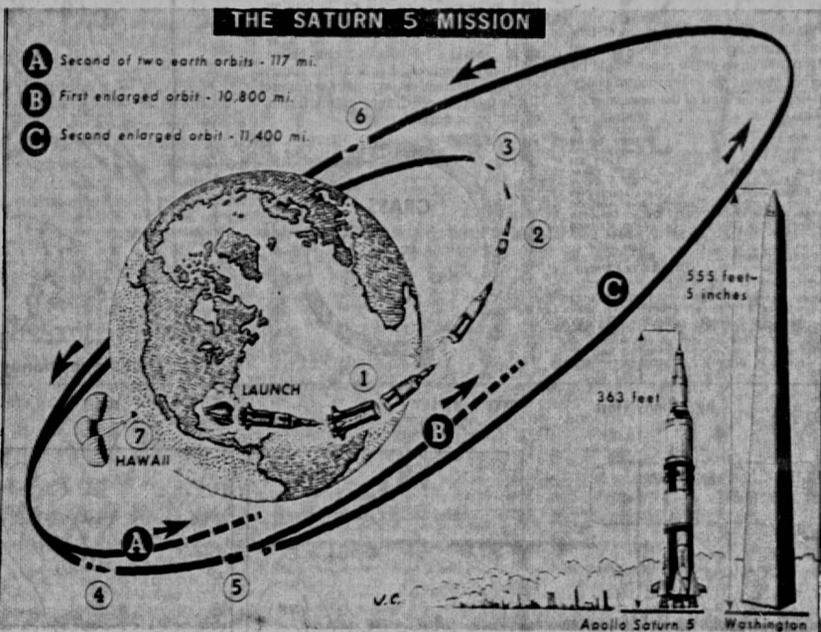

The committee, of which Brenneman was a member, had recommended liberalized off-campus housing policies for students under 21.

"The Student Senate cannot take initiative concerning policy on student life — they can't even make suggestions," he said.

He charged that the senate had submitted the committee's suggestions to the University Housing Committee several months ago, but no action had yet been taken.

Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton answered Brenneman's charges by saying that the senate's recommendations had caused a strong reaction by the University Housing Committee in the form of a 240-page report on the situation.

He said that University policy changes took time and consultation, since at present the entire concept of the Code of Student Life was "up in the air."

SPA needs to state its guiding principles

Students for Patriotic Action (SPA) seems to be a rather dubious name for an organization which doesn't seem to know what its purpose is. What's even more interesting is that so many people seem to be willing to support the organization.

The organization, according to one of its founders, Patrick O'Connor, was established to counter the recent anti-war demonstrations on campus and around the country. This seems like a logical and possibly worthwhile thing to do if you're inclined in this direction. However, SPA's first overt action as an organization was to circulate a petition supporting the U.S. soldiers in Vietnam but in no way taking any side on the U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

It should be mentioned at this point that most persons, possibly including many of the 108 arrested at the Union last week, would support "our boys" in Vietnam. After all, it's not their fault that they're in Vietnam — they have been caught up in the manipulations of a democratic government which feels compelled to act as referee and even as participant in all the world's conflicts.

If one is to follow this line of reasoning it would appear that SPA has failed miserably in getting signatures supporting only the U.S. troops in Vietnam.

There could be several reasons for this poor showing. Perhaps SPA didn't have enough workers or enough time to adequately cover the University community. Or perhaps many potential signers were unsure of what they were asked to sign. Was this just a statement in support of our troops or did it also imply support for the war? Was SPA organized just to support the troops or to also support U.S. involvement? Is SPA a legitimate organization or is it an offshoot of some hawkish group?

What is needed at this point is a concrete statement from SPA stating exactly what its guiding principles are. It cannot say in one breath that it was formed to counter the anti-war demonstrations — which implies support for U.S. involvement — and in the next breath say it is only interested in supporting the U.S. soldier without taking a stand on U.S. involvement.

Street sign additions are a welcome sight

The placement of turning lane signs for the eastbound lanes at the Burlington-Gilbert Street intersection is a welcome sight.

There is a very slight swerve in Burlington Street immediately east of this intersection. In the past there has been a number of close calls and near-sideswipes when two eastbound cars, travelling abreast through the intersection, tried to squeeze into a space large enough for about one and one-half cars.

The city has now hung signs over

Burlington Street warning that left lane traffic must turn left, middle lane traffic must go straight and right lane traffic must turn right at the intersection.

Now, if the city would clarify whether eastbound traffic on Burlington from Gilbert to Governor is supposed to occupy one lane or two lanes and if they'd made the necessary alterations to the double yellow line in these blocks, it would clear up a lot of confusion.

'Whitman Portrait' called poor beginning for series

By D.B. AXELROD
For The Daily Iowan

"A Walt Whitman Portrait," billed as a biographical drama was a poor beginning for the University Lecture Series. The script, written by Paul Shyre, was a seldom dramatic, presented in its declamatory and formal fashion.

There is something to be said for attempts at putting together the poetry and other writings of one or more authors with the intent of making the poetry less of an exercise for the layman and more of a human, dramatic experience. Such literary scripts often are produced for the classroom or radio in recorded and listenable form. The four-character presentation of Whitman's writings mingled with biographical facts, however, failed in most cases to be even as dramatic as a reading-aloud record. Indeed, the players often overread the poems to the point of ruin, reducing an already dramatic situation to mere melodrama. Little was added visually or in the chorus-like alteration of voices reading (speaking). The "energies" might even have enjoyed identifying pieces of poems as they occurred, if it weren't for the melodramatic plunking of banjos or thumping of kettle drums.

Where was the drama of a man who lived so full and active and controversial a life? The script managed to mask even the physical potency of Whitman, avoiding the controversial, selecting its poems with a surface biographical intent. Descriptions of the Civil War dead, and Lincoln's assassination were, apparently, inherently dramatic enough to carry an emotional effect despite the overbearing growl of the character of Whitman or the posed sweetness and "mother's tears" of the character of The Woman.

With so many other, good events scheduled for the same night, this reviewer was tempted to skip out early for "Advise and Consent," or Ralph Dickey reading — live and more dramatic I am sure than the Whitman presentation. But after the first hour, or act, entitled "Youth and the Civil War" I could project the aging, overdone Good Gray Poet lumbering about the platform in the Main Lounge — a poor enough place for drama — losing Whitman fans slowly but surely.

Marijuana's effects are still debated; pot smoker's high is unpredictable

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following is the second in a series of special articles on marijuana.

By DEN ISHIBASHI

Much of the current alarm about marijuana has concerned the increase and spread of its use. It is a drug being used by the young, and it appears wherever they are: from hippie sectors of big cities to college campuses, from concrete ghettos to suburbs and small towns.

As Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, has said: "The alarming rise in the abuse of stimulant, depressant, and hallucinogenic drugs cuts across all strata of society."

The actual use of marijuana, however, is not new. It was used throughout many parts of the world for centuries, but was not widely used in the United States until the 1930s.

Groups of bohemian artists, writers and musicians were using the drug in the thirties, often saying that it heightened experience and enhanced creativity. Many Mexicans and Negroes were smoking it to escape the experience of ghetto poverty. And for Prohibition-era college students, the days of bathtub gin were fading with the flappers; some students were beginning to use marijuana.

"Sure there was hemp on this campus in the thirties," says H. L. Dean, associate professor of botany. "Only in those days it was called tea."

"Marijuana is nothing new... it's just an 'in' thing now."

Marijuana may be an 'in' thing now, but in the 1930s it was considered 'out' — especially by Harry J. Anslinger, then commissioner of the Federal Narcotics Bureau. Anslinger labeled marijuana a dangerous narcotic and promoted campaigns to eradicate the "marijuana menace."

"Scare" stories were circulated about marijuana labeling it a "killer drug" that led to sex orgies, violent crimes, and insanity. When marijuana was successfully outlawed under the Marijuana Tax Act of 1937, it was classified as a narcotic.

Most medical experts now agree, however, that marijuana is not a physically addictive narcotic. It is generally considered a mild hallucinogen — the mildest of a category of drugs that includes mescaline, psilocybin, DMT, LSD, and STP. Medical experts do consider marijuana to have the possible habit-forming tendencies of alcohol and cigarettes, but with no development of a tolerance level or withdrawal symptoms.

"Cannabis is not a true narcotic," says professor Dean. "A true narcotic has tremendous action and effect. Hemp does not."

Also, says Dean, the use of marijuana does not result in one of the most marked effects of true narcotics — sexual debilitation.

No evidence of such debilitation has been found, and many marijuana users have said that marijuana acts as an aphrodisiac to intensify sexual desire and prolong pleasure. The validity of this assertion, however, has often been questioned by medical authorities.

This point of debate is one example of the mystique surrounding marijuana, for it is often a drug of myth and misrepresentation rather than one of fact and evidence. This has been especially true of the marijuana experience. Much of the curiosity about marijuana has concerned the effects of the marijuana "high."

The "high" and its effects may vary considerably, according to research presently available. After the drug is smoked or eaten, it passes into the blood stream and begins to produce psychological effects on the brain.

The first reaction is a light-headed sensation some users refer to as "the buzz." Then comes a relaxed feeling with increased perception of colors and more awareness of musical sounds merging into patterns. The sounds separate and merge; everything flows and drifts like a swirling dance of dreams and sensations.

The effects have been described in a booklet published by the National Education Association (NEA) as a "feeling of euphoria, exaltation and a dreaming sensation accompanied by the free flow of ideas. Senses of time, distance, vision and hearing are distorted. Sometimes panic and fear are experienced. Hallucinations may develop with large doses."

The booklet also states, however, that "once the user has established the amount of marijuana needed to achieve his particular 'high' there is little tendency to increase the dose."

Weekly users are said to sometimes experience giggling spells, carelessness, elation or depression, and fascination with a single object or idea. The daily user is said to sometimes experience paranoia, lethargy, inertia, hallucinations, and anxiety or depression.

Some medical authorities think the effects of marijuana may depend more on the inclinations of an individual than on the properties of the drug. Their observations have indicated that the same dose of marijuana can affect different people

These effects have been described as rather slight and transitory in duration. They are said to include a rise in pulse rate and blood pressure, a lower body temperature, lower blood-sugar levels, and slower breathing. Some dehydration may occur, and the user may feel a more frequent need to urinate. Eye membranes are often slightly reddened, and a loss in coordination is generally observed.

Carew cautioned that there have been reports of slight eye and lung irritation resulting from prolonged use.

However, the NEA booklet has stated that "to date, available information indicates that marijuana has few detrimental effects on any individual's personal health."

Some supporters of marijuana have cited this apparent absence of detrimental effects and have stated that marijuana is not as damaging as alcohol and cigarettes. Medical authorities are still debating this argument, but many do agree that marijuana may not be as habit-forming as cigarettes or as damaging to internal organs as alcohol.

"Whether marijuana is a more dangerous drug than alcohol is debatable," says Goddard. "I don't happen to think it is."

Medical authorities agreeing with Goddard have said that marijuana does not result in the heart, circulatory, and respiratory illnesses often attributed to the use of alcohol and cigarettes. (Especially heart conditions, emphysema, cirrhosis and death.)

But the effects and apparent safety of marijuana are still being debated.

One of the most thorough scientific studies ever made on marijuana was a report submitted to Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York City in 1944. The LaGuardia Report was compiled by 15 M.D.'s and 2 Ph.D.'s from the New York Academy of Medicine who found that:

• Smoking marijuana does not lead directly to mental or physical deterioration;

• The habitual smoker knows when to stop, as excessive doses reverse the usually pleasant effects;

• Marijuana does not lead to addiction (in the medical sense), and while it is naturally habit-forming, its withdrawal does not lead to the horrible withdrawal symptoms of the opiates;

• No deaths have ever been recorded that can be ascribed to marijuana;

• Marijuana is not a direct causal factor in sexual or criminal misconduct.

These findings were attacked and denounced by the American Medical Association shortly after they were released and published.

This summer, however, the AMA Committee of Alcoholism and Drug Dependence released a report admitting that there is no evidence that marijuana causes lasting physical or mental damage.

The AMA did caution against chronic use of marijuana by saying, "Persons who use marijuana continually and as a symptomatic expression of psychological conflict, a means of gaining social acceptance, or a way of escaping painful experience of anxiety or depression may be said to be psychologically dependent on the substance."

This possible psychological dependency has been stressed by some medical authorities, although it is generally agreed that marijuana is not an addictive drug. There is still debate, however, as to whether the use of marijuana can lead to addiction to more potent drugs.

"I don't believe smoking marijuana leads to an addiction to stronger drugs," says Goddard. "It is true most heroin users have smoked marijuana, but it is also true most heroin users have drunk milk. I have seen no proof there is any connection."

Several experts have opinions that agree with Goddard's, saying that most chronic marijuana users (known as "potheads" or simply "heads") do not become addicted to hard narcotics. Some of these experts, however, have said that chronic users may often come in contact with other hallucinogens — especially LSD — which might result in experimental use of other hallucinogenic drugs.

And despite the growing agreement that marijuana is non-addictive, many doctors oppose chronic use of the drug. One of them is Dr. Arnold Goldberg of the Northwestern University student health clinic.

"Habitual users show a lot of emotional deterioration," says Goldberg. "They tend to lapse into the world of their own feelings. They are reliable and dependable, except that they are often not interested in anything but the personal sensations they are having under the influence of marijuana."

Many experts hesitate to approve of marijuana use because of the lack of research evidence to back its use.

"Published clinical research of marijuana in this country has been very limited," says Carew.

He says much of the research performed on marijuana has been done by European researchers, and that they often did their work on the stronger forms of Cannabis — ganja, bhang, charas, and hashish — rather than on the strains of marijuana available in the United States.

As for the effects of marijuana, Carew says that researchers "know more about what it does than how it does it."

There is still no knowledge of exactly what it does to nerve cells, according to Carew. This is one reason why many medical authorities say there has not been sufficient research to provide enough assurance for the use of marijuana.

One problem confronting researchers has been the legal red tape involved in obtaining marijuana for laboratory research. However, Princeton biochemist Dr. Edward C. Taylor has succeeded in synthesizing one of the active ingredients of marijuana, which might permit more controlled laboratory tests on people.

This synthesis may be an important breakthrough, says Dean, for such a development "can lead the way to make hemp predictable." The key word with marijuana, says Dean, has been "unpredictable."

Carew agreed, saying, "One of the major problems is its unpredictability. This unpredictability makes it dangerous."

Marijuana can be a useful drug, says Dean, "if you can take a known dose and get a known effect."

Up to now, that has not been possible. However, new research and controlled laboratory tests may lead the way for marijuana to be a useful tranquilizer rather than an outlawed drug of dreams.

differently, or the same person differently, depending upon the person's mood, physical condition and surrounding circumstances.

Russell Noyes, assistant professor of psychiatry here, has said that the effects of marijuana can vary with different personalities — that it can cause varied hallucinations, lead to anxiety or relaxation, and sometimes reveal inner psychosis or instabilities.

David P. Carew, University professor of pharmacy, has said this about marijuana: "We pretty much know the symptoms one will get, but the effects vary."

One of the reasons for this variance, says Carew, is that the potency of the resin contained in marijuana can vary from dose to dose.

Dean says this resin content is highly dependent upon the climate, temperature, and humidity of the region where the marijuana is cultivated. This resin content is what primarily determines the potency of marijuana, but other factors are the methods of preparation and the way it is smoked, says Dean.

Medical authorities think that the degree of resin potency is a factor in the varying range of psychological effects experienced by marijuana users. The physiological effects, however, have been more consistently observed.

Correction

In the marijuana story on this page in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Iowan it was stated that State Agriculture Secretary L. B. Liddy this fall charged that the State Highway Commission had failed to control the growth of marijuana along Iowa highways. Liddy said on Wednesday that his department had been critical of the highway department for failing to spray roadsides for noxious weeds before the weeds matured. He said that later, and in a different context, the Agriculture Department placed hemp, or marijuana, on its list of noxious weeds.

7 Demonstrators Plead Innocent; 6 Found Guilty

Gary E. Goldstein, A4, Highland Park, Ill., pleaded innocent Wednesday in Iowa City Police Court to the charge of disobeying an officer. Goldstein was arrested last Wednesday following the antiwar demonstration directed against Marine Corps recruitment at the Union. He is being represented by Hari, Shulman, Phelan, Tucker and Boyle law firm of Iowa City. No trial date was set.

Six other antiwar demonstrators pleaded innocent with no defense to the charge of disturbing the peace and were found guilty by Judge Marion Neely. They were: Michael D. Lally, A4, Iowa City; James R. Naiden, G, Seattle, Wash.; James Moore, G, Decatur Ill.; Dave Margoshes, G, Iowa City; Ilya T. Margoshes, A3, Iowa City; and Judy Ann Lawson, A3, Des Moines.

Neely delayed sentencing until Nov. 17 when all of the 107 demonstrators charged are expected to have appeared in court.

Highlanders Plan Evanston Display

The Scottish Highlanders will play before and at the half-time of the Iowa-Northwestern football game Saturday in Evanston, Ill.

They will also perform Friday night at the Bloom Township High School game in Chicago Heights, Ill. The group will eat lunch Saturday with the Northwestern Band.

At Saturday's game the group will do the Highland Fling and various marching routines and will play the Beethoven "Yellow Submarine" while marching down the field in the shape of a beetle.

Honorary Society To Go To Drake

Sixteen members and two advisers of Mortar Board, national senior women's honor society, will attend the organization's annual sectional meeting Friday and Saturday at Drake University in Des Moines.

Members will attend various meetings to discuss such topics as recent protest demonstrations on various campuses, founders day plans in the various chapters, and the personal growth of Mortar Board members.

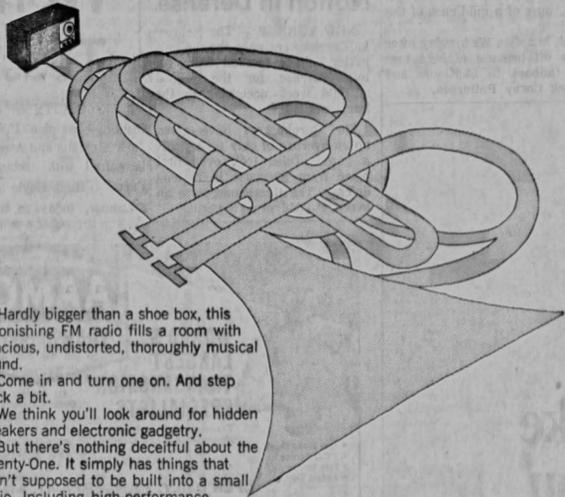

THE NEW FOLK will present concerts, sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ, in the Phillips Hall auditorium at 8:30 Monday night and at 8 Tuesday night in the Union Main Lounge. Tickets, at $1 each, are available at the Union, Whetstone's Drug Store and Campus Record Shop. The group has appeared on several campuses and in television appearances.

The first time you hear the KLH Model Twenty-One FM Radio you won't believe your eyes.

Hardly bigger than a shoe box, this astonishing FM radio fills a room with spacious, undistorted, thoroughly musical sound.

Come in and turn one on. And step back a bit.

We think you'll look around for hidden speakers and electronic gadgetry.

But there's nothing deceitful about the Twenty-One. It simply has things that aren't supposed to be built into a small radio. Including high-performance solid-state circuitry and a unique miniature speaker that covers the full range of musical sound. Plus output jacks for extension speakers and for making tape recordings off the air. All neatly hidden in its oiled walnut cabinetry.

Come in and be astonished—and delighted.

Men, this weekend bet on Andes by London Fog . . .

. . . it's one coat that always give you the right look—the right protection rain, snow or cold.

"Andes" is a famous London Fog Maincoat; more than a raincoat—better looking than the usual all-weather coat.

Unlike ordinary all-weather coats, its shoulders fit perfectly with or without the lining.

It's the right coat when it's cold and windy because it features a warm zip-out liner of 75% Acrylic and 25% Modacrylic pile.

When it is chilly, but not real cold, make it right—just zip out the liner.

When it rains, depend on the fine Claeth Cloth to repel the water. London Fog's exclusive Third Barrier construction puts 3 layers of cloth in the shoulders where you catch the brunt of the storm.

See the Andes at Stephens. Try it in 36-44 regular, 40-44 long, and 36-44 short in natural, olive and navy. It sells for $45.00. Once you see it you'll agree it's a bargain when you want to be warm and well-dressed. Charge one at Stephens and enjoy it this weekend. Pay for it in January.

Mira May Switch Leagues

MIAMI, Fla. — George Mira, the forgotten quarterback of the San Francisco 49ers, may become a test case of the unwritten rule that forbids player jumping between the National and American Football Leagues.

Creighton Miller, attorney for the NFL Players' Association, told the Miami Herald Wednesday that when Mira plays out his option with the 49ers May 1, 1968, he should be free to deal with any club that wants him.

If not, Miller said, he would recommend "without reservation" to the Players Association that we take Mira's case to court. That would be restraint under the anti-trust laws.

Mira, a sensational quarterback at the University of Miami, has occupied the 49ers' bench for three seasons and says "there is simply no future for me here." Miller said he didn't believe the rule that every NFL club must waive on Mira would survive in court, or even that the NFL would risk a test.

Jury Still Out On Podolak

Mike Cilek quarterbacked Iowa's number one offense Wednesday night in a two-hour practice in which passing was stressed.

No word was available on injured quarterback Ed Podolak, who was scheduled for X-rays Wednesday afternoon, but now will be examined this afternoon by team physician Dr. W.D. Paul.

Paul did say Wednesday however, that Podolak's injury would require more time to heal, but an official announcement on the junior quarterback's condition is due to be released today.

Cilek, who has been steadily improving, according to Coach Ray Nagel had most of his first team offensive backfield mates in gear Wednesday, after a rash of minor injuries struck the Hawk camp early this week.

Sophomore Tim Sullivan was at practice, but did not participate. Sullivan, who has been running in the No. 1 fullback position most of this year, had bruised ribs from the Minnesota game and spent Tuesday in the infirmary because of a mild case of the flu.

Back in action Wednesday after a day off because of sore toes were tailback Si McKinnis and fullback Corny Patterson.

JIM PEDERSEN

GREG McMANUS

JIM PEDERSEN is a 6-3, 203-pound offensive end from Exira. When fall drills began, Pedersen was listed as a defensive tackle but when tight end Paul Usinowicz was moved to center because of an injury to Dean Schuessler, Pedersen became the Hawks No. 2 tight end. Pedersen is labeled an "ambitious" player by the Hawkeyes coaching staff. His defensive line coach, Lynn Stiles, said Pedersen was a fine competitor who wants to play and if he lives up to expectations, he could see plenty of action for the Hawkeyes in the next three years.

GREG McMANUS is in his second year as a Hawkeye offensive center. He prepped at St. Paul Cretin High School in St. Paul, Minn., where he was named to the all-state team as a senior center-linebacker. St. Paul Cretin won the Central Catholic Conference title for the seventh consecutive time during McManus' senior year and finished undefeated for the eighth straight time. McManus, who is 6-3, 223 pounds, was the Hawkeyes' No. 2 offensive center last year until he received a knee injury in the Wisconsin game which put him out for the season. This year he has been one of several Hawks battling for the first-string center job.

Nebraska Paces Nation In Defense

NEW YORK — The Nebraska Cornhuskers pace the nation's major college football teams in total defense for the second straight week according to the latest statistics.

The Cornhuskers have given up an average of only 144.3 yards a game. Tulsa took over first place from Syracuse in rushing defense. The Hurricanes have an average yield of 48.5 yards.

World Cup Golf Tees Off Today

MEXICO CITY — The defending champion U.S. team of Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer is paired with Ireland's Ryder Cuppers, Hugh Boyle and Christy O'Connor, today in the opening round of the 15th World Cup golf competition.

The millionaire Americans jetted to the scene Tuesday in their private planes and found themselves rated solid 2-1 favorites against 39 other hand-picked teams from throughout the world.

Nicklaus took a quick exploratory swing around the 7,216-yard, par 72 Club de Golf Mexico, but Palmer delayed his first practice until Wednesday.

The length of the course, the longest ever has been played, and the fact that the ball flies farther in the 1 1/2 mile-high Mexico City altitude has made the two long-hitting Yanks almost prohibitive choices.

Both are expected to reach the par five holes easily in two shots and reduce many of the par fours to simple wedge approaches.

Chief threat to the Americans is the South African pair of Gary Player and Harold Henning, who swept both the team and individual titles in 1965.

Coach Comments—

Wildcats Feature Good Secondary

Iowa will be facing the Big 10's toughest pass defense this weekend when they travel to Northwestern, according to Hawkeye Assistant Coach Lynn Stiles, who has been scouting the Wildcats for two weeks.

"Northwestern's main asset is their rugged pass defense," said defensive line coach Stiles.

The Wildcats split the two games in which Stiles saw them, beating Wisconsin 17-13, Oct. 21, and losing to Michigan last Saturday 7-3. They are 1-3 in the Big 10.

The Wildcat defensive secondary, which leads the Big 10 in passes broken up, has a great deal of depth with three lettermen and several reserve sophomores, according to Stiles.

4-4 Defense Used

"They have one of the better safety backs in the conference in Tom Garretson," said Stiles.

Northwestern uses a 4-4 swarming type defense similar to Notre Dame. This formation has a four-man front line with four linebackers and a deep three-man secondary.

"Two big sophomores, Harvey Blue and John Brandt, add a great deal of strength to their front line," said Stiles.

Blue is 6-4 and weighs 285, while Brandt is 6-3, 251.

"Opposing teams have had most success against Northwestern by running to the outside and off-tackle," said Stiles. "We will probably run McKinnie and Sullivan until we have to pass."

Cats Run More

Stiles said that the Wildcats have converted to a running game in their last few games. They use a straight-T formation with a split end.

"Their most successful offensive plays have been off-tackle, short dives and power plays," said Stiles.

Halfback Chico Kurawski and fullback John Anstey carry much of the Wildcat rushing load.

The Wildcats also have depth at quarterback. Bill Melzer has been Northwestern's No. 1 quarterback since mid-season last year. Melzer has gained over 800 yards this year in total offense. He is backed up by senior letter-winner Denny Boothe.

"Melzer's top receivers have been alternate split-ends Don Anderson and Bruce Hubbard," Stiles said.

Stiles said he was also impressed with the place kicking of junior Dick Emmerich. He kicked the ninth field goal of his career last week which broke a Northwestern record.

Finnish Gymnasts To Perform Here

Twelve Finnish women gymnasts will present a program of rhythmic gymnastics which has been described as a "symphony of movement" at 8 p.m. Nov. 18 at the Field House.

Sponsored by the Finnish government, the University of Helsinki Women's National Gymnastic team will appear here while on a tour of the United States. Tickets are on sale at $1.50 for adults and $1 for University and high school students at the Women's Gymnasium and at Wheelstone Drug Store, 32 S. Clinton St. They will also be sold at the door at the Field House.

Fundamentals Included
Sponsored by the Department of Physical Education for Women, the program will include gymnastic fundamentals and movements with balls, clubs, hoops, ropes and drums, as well as Finnish rhythmic gymnastics.

The performers, all teachers of physical education in Finland, will also present rhythmic compositions and a group of Finnish folk dances. Designed to promote total fitness of the individual, the Finnish program of physical education stresses relaxation exercises, enabling the student to become able to relax at will, and includes exercises to develop strength, flexibility and coordination.

The gymnasts' tour was set up under the patronage of Finnish President Urho Kekkonen and Mrs. Kekkonen in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the independence of Finland.

One of the teachers who will appear here, Miss Siiri Kekkonen, is a sister of President Kekkonen. The director of the team is Mrs. Elna Kopponen, head teacher of educational gymnastics in the Department of Physical Education at the University of Helsinki.

Madeleine Lundin, a graduate of the University of Helsinki and now a graduate assistant in physical education for women at the University, is in charge of arrangements for the program here. She is working for an M.A. under a Fulbright grant.

CORRECTION

A story about the Iowa City Human Relations Commission in Tuesday's edition of The Daily Iowan misquoted statements made by Mrs. Donald R. Volm, commission chairman.

The story said that Mrs. Volm wanted to change the ordinance regarding fair housing so that landlords would be forced to answer at commission hearings on discrimination complaints. Mrs. Volm said Wednesday that both the landlord and the person who complains about discrimination are always represented at such hearings.

The story also said that complaints must be filed within three months of the alleged discrimination; it should have been 60 days.

The Iowan regrets the errors.

Tobacconist Gets Lawyer

PHILADELPHIA — The pudgy tobacconist accused of strangling John Green 3rd of Des Moines will have court-appointed counsel to defend him on a first degree murder charge.

Judge Joseph Sloan declared Stephen Z. Weinstein, 29, a pauper entitled to free counsel Wednesday after Weinstein said he was without financial means.

He is charged with drugging and strangling Green, 18-year-old son of a Des Moines pathologist and a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania. Authorities, who found the boy's body in a trunk floating in the Delaware River, said Green had been sexually molested.

Two psychiatrists and a psychologist examined Weinstein Monday and declared him legally sane, Dist. Atty. Arlen Spencer said. Further tests were scheduled.

Weinstein remained jailed without bond.

Aerospace Prof To Be Promoted

Maj. Norris W. Overton, associate professor of aerospace studies, was notified Tuesday that he will be promoted soon to lieutenant colonel.

Overton came to the University in July 1964 after serving three years in Turkey with the Air Force Security Service.

After serving in World War II, he attended Indiana University and received a ROTC commission.

He served in the Korean War, and later earned a masters degree in economics at the Air Force Institute of Technology at Columbus, Ohio.

He also has been a special contract coordinator for the Air Force in Milwaukee.

Unclaimed Funds Eyed

DES MOINES — Bank deposits totaling over $1.3 million may become part of the state general fund under Iowa's new unclaimed property act, State Treasurer Paul Franzenburg said Wednesday.

The law, passed by the 1967 Legislature, requires banks and certain other institutions to report bank deposits and similar accounts which have been inactive for seven to 10 years.

If the listed account owner does not respond to an advertisement placed in a local newspaper by the state treasurer, the money eventually becomes part of the state general fund. The owner can still reclaim his property, however, by filing a claim with the state.

House Refuses Gross Proposal

WASHINGTON — The House narrowly rejected Wednesday an Iowa congressman's attempt to send a compromise $2.67 billion foreign aid authorization bill back for further consideration.

It turned down, on a 201 to 196 vote, a move by Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) which would have insisted upon a ban on aid to nations dealing with North Vietnam.

Gross also insisted that the legislation not grant favorable trade status for Poland. Both points had been met to Gross' satisfaction by the House but were dropped in a House-Senate conference over the controversial bill.

Council Confirms Election Results

The City Council approved the election abstract of Tuesday's voting results in a formal meeting Wednesday.

City Atty. Jay Honohan said that the only change from the unofficial results announced Tuesday night was that Brooks W. Booker received 3,776 votes, one vote less than had been reported.

The three new councilmen are Robert J. (Doc) Connell, Leroy

C. Butherus and Clement L. (Tim) Brandt. They will begin their four-year terms Jan. 1.

Councilman Robert Lind Sr. and Loren Hickerson have two years remaining in their terms of office.

HAVANA — The city announced Wednesday it has canceled the annual carnival here because of the death last month of Ernesto Che Guevara.

Troop Exit Voted Down

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — This first major city in the nation to vote on Vietnam policy smashed down by a nearly 2 to 1 margin Tuesday the idea of a ceasefire and immediate withdrawal. The vote was 132,402 no and 76,832 yes by citizens of an area where there have been several massive antiwar demonstrations — the most recent an October attempt to force a shutdown of the Army Induction Center in Oakland.

Attorney Joseph Alioto, the fisherman's son who won out Tuesday as mayor, shouted "good" over the outcome of Proposition P, the Vietnam issue. In Washington, congressional supporters of President Johnson's Vietnam policy hailed the result as a victory. But advocates of de-escalation termed the result meaningless.

Mayor-elect Alioto said the result could not be interpreted as a victory for the "hawks" — those who favor escalating the war effort. Alioto, a Democrat, conceded "This is a war we all hate," but he denounced the wording of the proposition as "sloppy."

Women Mix With Politics, Win Community Leadership

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A number of U.S. communities have elected their first women mayors. A survey of Tuesday's balloting showed that other women scored pioneering victories for city and county offices in places on municipal councils and school boards.

In Hartford, Conn., Republican Miss Antonina P. Ucello, 45, a department store executive, defeated Mayor George B. Kinsella, a Democrat. Miss Ucello is the first woman mayor in the history of Hartford, a Democratic stronghold and the home of John M. Bailey, the party's national chairman. Voters of Indianapolis elected an expectant mother as city clerk. Marjorie H. O'Laughlin, 38, a Republican, defeated the Democratic incumbent, Angeline Allstatt.

The vote entitles her to the office of mayor, the second female mayor in the city's history. Mrs. Foley's mother, the late Mary Dondoro, was Portsmouth's first woman mayor. She was mayor from 1945 to 1947. "It's going to give women a new stature," Mrs. Foley, mother of three, said of her victory. "I didn't expect to become mayor, just wanted to get on the council."

Some Appalled
"Some people were a little appalled when they found out their clerk candidate was expecting a child," said Mrs. O'Laughlin, already the mother of six, ages 7 to 16. She said she would take time from her new job in about six weeks to have the baby. In Portsmouth, N. H., Eileen Foley, 49, followed in the footsteps of her mother by finishing with the top vote in a nonpartisan race for nine City Council seats.

Mother Of 4 Mayor
A Democratic distaff slant of our housewives displaced the Republican mayor and half the council members in Sayreville, N.J. The new mayor, Mary M. Peggy Kerr, has four children. In Sheridan, Colo., Jane E. Rosenbach ran on a platform opposing an alleged speed trap and sent Mayor Wilfred D. Corbin down to defeat. "If a speed trap exists I will eliminate it," vowed the mother of six.

GOP Declines Support To Antipoverty Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans declined Wednesday to support a proposal to cut funds for the antipoverty program to a level the administration says would end the program's usefulness. At a strategy meeting held in connection with the antipoverty bill now before the House, a majority of the GOP members indicated they preferred to try to change specific programs rather than vote for an across-the-board cut in spending. The result of the meeting is believed to have improved the chances for House passage of a bill that would leave intact most of the programs now administered by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). No votes or firm decisions were reached at the GOP meeting, but participants said sentiment was strong against a proposal by Rep. William H. Ayres, (R-Ohio) to cut OEO spending to $1.2 billion. It is now funded at $1.6 billion and President Johnson has asked for $2.06 billion for fiscal 1968. Some cuts will undoubtedly be made and supporters of the bill indicate they expect to see the House put the figure at around $1.6 billion. The Senate has passed a bill authorizing $2.2 billion and a final compromise figure in the neighborhood of $1.8 billion is considered likely.

Indian Resolution On Mideast Vetoed

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban flatly rejected Wednesday an Indian resolution aimed at promoting a Mideastern settlement through the U.N. Security Council. He also expressed reservations about a plan introduced in the council by the United States, and East European sources said they thought the Soviet Union would veto the U.S. proposal if it appeared to obtain enough votes to pass. Eban told a news conference that Israel "cannot in any circumstances give any consent, support or cooperation" to the Indian plan, which calls for the withdrawal of Israeli armed forces from "all the territories" seized in the Arab-Israeli fighting in June.

Asked if this meant Israeli refusal to cooperate with a special U.N. representative to work out a settlement under this resolution, he replied he had no quarrel with this interpretation. The Security Council is scheduled to meet at 3:30 p.m. today at Egypt's request to debate the Mideastern situation after several weeks of intensive but fruitless negotiations for a settlement. In Cairo, a government spokesman told newsmen that Israeli withdrawal from the captured Arab territory was an essential first step to any Mideastern settlement. He urged the council to show the world that "aggression does not pay." Asked about this frequently stated Arab view, Eban said it was "so irrational that it is amazing even to see it proposed."

Students Try To Save School

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Southern College expires on schedule Nov. 30, Winston Parker, 18, can show a personal telephone bill of $150 to prove he tried to save it. Parker, a freshman from Camden, N.J., will not be alone. A hard core of 20 Kentucky Southern students, out of 800, are determined to block the bankruptcy-motivated merger of the private Baptist school with the large University of Louisville. As of Wednesday morning, the students had collected $152,000 in cash and pledges, $137,000 of it pledged Tuesday by four anonymous businessmen. Their goal is $500,000 in two weeks and another million by the end of the month, before legal details are wrapped up and the merger consummated. The fight began when their sobbing and hymn singing stopped. That was a week ago, when the students cut morning classes to sing "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past" outside the board room while inside the trustees voted to merge the five-year-old school. KSU President Dr. Rollin S. Buhans explained: "We just ran out of money." He told the students the only way the decision could be reversed was if some wealthy philanthropist came to Kentucky Southern's aid, with about $1.5 million.

Vocalist To Interpret Sephardic Music Here

Medieval Sephardic music, preserved by oral tradition from generation to generation, will be brought to the University by the internationally known vocalist, Sofia Noel, at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Phillips Hall Auditorium.

The program, sponsored by the School of Music, Department of Spanish and Portuguese and the Graduate College, will be open to the public and free of charge.

Miss Noel has been termed by European music critics as the "world's finest interpreter of Sephardic song," and as possessed of a "prodigious talent for empathy."

She received the Degree of Philosophy and Letters from the University of Brussels, her birthplace, and now lives in Madrid, Spain.

The Sephardites are the Jews of Spain and Portugal who, at the time of the Inquisition in 1492, were expelled from the country by King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella. The 800,000 Jews scattered, taking with them their treasure in song. To this day, they have continued to use the ancient Castilian language.

Miss Noel's program will also include 16th century Spanish songs, and contemporary Latin America and Hebrew songs. She will be accompanied by Jesus Gonzalez, Spanish guitarist from Madrid.

Research Experts To Begin Talks

One of a series of visits to the University by internationally recognized leaders in chemical research will take place Monday through Nov. 17.

Delivering a series of lectures and consulting with faculty and students will be Donald J. Cram, professor of chemistry at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA). Cram will deliver an evening lecture at 8 p.m. Monday in the Union Illinois Room. He will speak on "The Oddities of Paracyclophanes."

Lectures on Tuesday through Nov. 17 will be in 225 Chemistry Building.

Cram, 48, received an M.S. in 1942 from the University of Nebraska and a Ph.D. in 1947 from Harvard. He has been at UCLA since 1947.

In 1958, Cram's work was chosen as one of three fundamental organic chemistry exhibits shown by the United States at the Brussels World Fair.

Archaeological Lecture Set

The Iowa Society of the Archaeological Institute of America will present an illustrated lecture on "Some Indian Influences on the Art of Romanesque Europe" Tuesday.

Millard B. Rogers, who is currently editing "Studies in Asian Art in Honor of Ludwig Bachhofer," will present the lecture at 8 p.m. in the Art Building Auditorium. The lecture, which is co-sponsored by the Graduate College, will be open to the public without charge.

Rogers is a former associate director of the Seattle Art Museum and a former assistant in anthropology at the Chicago Museum of Natural History.

The president of the local society is Roger A. Hornsby, professor and head of the Department of Classics. Mrs. Robert L. Alexander, assistant professor of classics, is secretary.

Cinema 16
"Woman is A Woman"

The director is Jean Luc Godard. A "neo-realist" musical, the stylizing of the action and of the characters, with their self-consciousness in playing to the camera, establishes insight into the characters that would not be possible if they were presented in a different manner. By the end of the film, one feels that Godard has been able to understand, at least in part, the indefinable mystique that belongs to a woman.

November 9 and 10
7 and 9 p.m. in the Illinois Room. Tickets available at the door, and in the Activities Center for 50c.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

Photographer Sees Pictures As Scary

By MARY CLARK
 "It's scary. People look at my photographs and see things they don't want to face."
 That was the way that Wayne R. Coons, G. Rochester, N.Y., described his collection of photographs now on display at the Gallery for the Advancement of Photography (GAP) located in the First Congregational Church, 30 N. Clinton St.
 Photographs by Ellen Woller, G. Rochester, New York, are also in the show which will run until Nov. 25.
 GAP was started in September by graduate photography students and is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.
 Woods said that he had used harsh background lighting to dissolve part of the form of his pictures. This, he said, gives the pictures an incomplete, hazy effect that usually bothers many people when they look at them.
 This is how he can get into people's minds and present them with a picture of reality, he said.
 Photography is a good medium through which to express reality, Coons said, because the newspapers and television have used pictures so much that it is hard for persons to deny what they see in a picture.
 Coons said that photography was becoming an accepted form of art and for many artists could be a more expressive medium than painting.
 Some of Mrs. Woller's photos was trying to express reality. Her pictures are of events and objects that anyone can understand, she said.
 Some of Miss Woller's photographs are color, but Coons' are all in black and white.

5 Schools To Offer Community Programs

Five Iowa institutions of higher learning have announced they will offer community services and continuing education programs—costing nearly $300,000 during the 1967-68 fiscal year. Included will be 35 programs in fields like water pollution control, health education curricula for elementary schools and music lecture-recitals.
 Robert F. Ray, dean of the Extension Division, is administrator of Iowa Community Services, which administers the programs in the state. Federal funds which amount to half the total were allocated under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965.
 Some $148,000, the other half of the total, is to be provided by the five schools; the University, Iowa State University, University of Northern Iowa, Drake University, and Cornell College.
 The individual appropriations, including both federal and institutional matching funds, include:
 The University, $145,073; ISU, $64,462; UNI, $34,783; Drake, $15,599; and Cornell, $7,122. The three Regent institutions will collaborate on a state welfare program costing $29,236, making a total of $296,365.
 The 1967-68 community services and continuing education programs are in the categories of government, health, education, economic development, culture and recreation, and social services.
 Examples of each school's activities follow:
 The University Institute of Public Affairs will spend $14,104 on a survey of the statewide needs and resources for in-service education of personnel in local and county government management. The program is designed for long-range coordination of in-service education, rather than piecemeal efforts.
 ISU's agricultural engineering department will spend $6,835 to develop a training program on sanitary waste collection and best use of water resources. The program will be for health boards, well contractors, plumbers, and sewer and septic tank installers.
 UNI will spend $20,609 on a curriculum development program in health education for pupils in elementary and junior high schools.
 Drake is to spend $15,599 on 10 to 12-week seminars for central Iowa city employees on public relations, supervision, and relations with county, state and federal government.
 Cornell plans to spend $7,122 on a program to send faculty groups to suburban and rural communities to give musical lecture-performances.
IOWANS DONATE—
 Iowans boosted American Cancer Society programs by $855,376 during the year ending Aug. 31, Iowa Crusade Chairman Robert M. Kretschmar, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology, reported recently.

Cleveland's Mayor Is Negro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans firmed up their base for the 1968 presidential contest by capturing the Kentucky Statehouse in Tuesday's elections, but Democrats were cheered by retaining their holds on the big cities of Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Democrat Carl B. Stokes, a Negro, demonstrated by his election as mayor of Cleveland that it is possible for one of his race to take the top office in a major city even where Negroes are a minority.

He takes a place in history as the first Negro to accomplish that.

The 40-year-old lawyer could be one of the big guns of 1968 Democratic campaigning, particularly in areas with a large Negro vote.

Mayor James H. Tate's reelection in Philadelphia is another important one for the Democrats. The patronage and power that go with the mayor's office can be decisive in a close statewide election.

For President Johnson, who presumably will seek another term in the White House in next year's election, it was heartening that San Francisco decisively turned down a ballot proposition for U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

The referendum vote was 2 to 1 against a pullout.

A Vietnam vote was also on the ballot in Cambridge, Mass., but the result may not be known for three weeks or so.

Cambridge elects a city council by proportional representation with second and third choices. Election officials said this complexity will be sorted out before they get around to looking at the Vietnam vote.

On the other side of the Vietnam question, there was the factor that Louie B. Nunn, successful GOP candidate for governor of Kentucky, had made it an issue in his campaign.

"Tired of the War?" one of his slogans asked. "Vote Nunn."

In other city contests which attracted particular national attention, Richard G. Hatcher, Negro Democrat, was elected mayor of Gary, Ind., and Kevin White won in Boston over Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, foe of busing Negro children to white schools.

In Gary, where the outcome teetered uncertainly through much of the night, Hatcher was certified Wednesday by the Lake County Election Board as the winner by 1,389 votes in the city of 180,000 population.

But Republican Joseph Radigan, a white businessman, kept open the possibility of a court challenge.

Democrat segregationist John Bell Williams won as expected elected governor of Mississippi by a whopping majority.

Looking to 1968, Nunn's election as governor of Kentucky means that when he takes office next year the Republicans will hold a majority of 50 governorships for the first time since 1954.

The division by parties will shift from the present 25-25 to 26-24 for the GOP.

Those 26 Republican states will have a total of 304 electoral votes, 34 more than needed to name a president.

LONDON (AP) — Ten national beauties settled in London Wednesday with their eyes on the Miss World title and the crock of gold that goes with it.

VA Volunteers Fete Vets' Day

Forty member of the Veterans Administration (VA) Voluntary Service, representing the Iowa City VA hospital, attended a Veterans Day program in Des Moines Wednesday.

The Iowa City members, who were representatives of organizations such as the Red Cross and Veterans of Foreign Wars, attended the meeting with VA voluntary Service members of the Knoxville and Des Moines VA hospitals.

Elbert E. Beaver, director of volunteers at the Iowa City VA Hospital, said that the meeting provided for an early observance of Veterans Day and gave the Volunteer Advisory Committee a chance to meet.

KAULA LUMPUR (AP) — Nine persons were killed Wednesday when a Malaysian air force helicopter crashed and burned soon after taking off.

Professor's Test Determines Musical Aptitude Of Young

By CINDY HOWELL

What may be the best test yet for discovering a youngster's musical aptitude has been developed by Edwin Gordon, professor of music education.

Called the Musical Aptitude Profile (MAP), it is a battery of seven tests designed to determine objectively the musical aptitude of youngsters in grades four through 12.

Albert Hieronymous, professor of education and a specialist in educational measurement who has helped Gordon prepare the exam, said he was convinced that the new test is the best of its kind.

Gordon began work on the test 10 years ago. Since then, it has been administered to 15,000 students across the country in order to standardize it.

Though no standard scores have been developed for college students, it has been found to predict their musical strengths and weaknesses fairly well, Gordon said.

MAP is designed to test tonal imagery, melody and harmony; rhythm imagery, tempo and meter; and musical sensitivity, phrasing, balance and style.

Students who take the test listen to tapes recorded by Stuart Canin, violin; Charles Treger, violin; and Paul Olefsky, cello. Treger is a professor of music; Canin and Olefsky are former music faculty members.

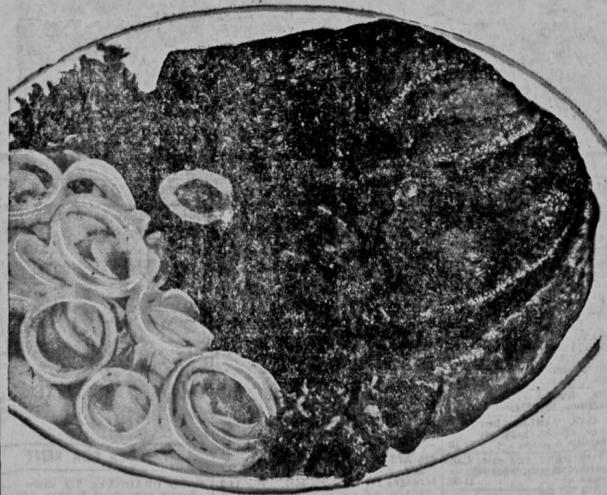

Each of the seven exams is 15 minutes long.

The tests predict success in school music among groups of students with an accuracy of 55 per cent, considerably higher than any similar tests.

The accuracy figures were determined by administering the tests to about 250 fourth and fifth grade students, then loaning them instruments on which to learn for three years, Gordon said.

The scores on the MAP were compared to achievement ratings given the students following their three years of instruction.

Gordon is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in New York and received his Ph.D. in education at the University of Iowa.
