Museum To Remain In Macbride

Stuit's Study Changes Bowen's Early Plans

By MARY CLARK

Put down your pencil and throw away that letter you've been writing to President Bowen. The Macbride Hall museum is not going to be closed, according to Deway B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

The museum has been the subject of an on and off controversy since Pres. Howard R. Bowen decided to close it in the fall of 1965.

Soon after Bowen's decision was announced his office was flooded with letters from children throughout the state. The children wanted Bowen to keep the museum open.

Bowen reconsidered his decision and set up a committee under Stuit to study the feasibility of continuing the museum.

Now the question has been asked again. At last week's Board of Regents meeting in Ames, Regent Jonathan B. Richards of Mapleton, said that he was concerned about the "wasted space in maintaining a place for embalmed animals."

He asked the University to prepare a report on the proposed use of Macbride Hall.

The regents discussed the museum after the University asked for and received approval of a mobile class room unit for the Education-Psychology Library.

Richards said that he thought the exhibit space in Macbride could be better used if it were converted into classrooms and offices.

Stuit said Thursday, "We are not planning to get rid of the museum."

Stuit said that after study his committee made three recommendations: to continue the museum; to improve the exhibits; and if the space situation should become critical, to reduce the amount of space which the museum occupies.

More space was needed, and in the spring the third floor Bird Hall Annex was converted into offices. The exhibits were moved into Bird Hall.

Stuit said that to convert the exhibit halls into classrooms would be impractical. The change would not only be expensive but would add to the between-classroom congestion, he said.

Richard V. Bovbjerg, chairman of a museum subcommittee, and professor of zoology, said the only possible use that could be made of the exhibit halls would be for lectures. He said, another lecture would add about 400 students to the one thousand who were congesting the halls when classes change each hour. He also said that only 15 per cent of the space in Macbride was used for the exhibits.

Bovbjerg said that at least 2,000 students in geology, zoology, anthropology, earth science, life science, and art used the exhibits in their regular class work. He said that if the museum were eliminated students would be missing an essential part of their courses.

The subcommittee has been working on improving the museum. Several new exhibits have been added and others revitalized in the last two years. Extensive improvements in lighting, display cases and explanatory information have and are being made.

Bovbjerg said that they were trying to do more than just display specimens and objects.

"You can look at a panda bear and say to the student, 'This is a panda bear,' but we are trying to tell the students more about the animals — where they come from, their living habits and interesting information," he said.

Macbride Hall Museum has been a part of the University since 1858, and the museum looks like its going to stay as a growing tradition, according to current reports.

U.S. Commander Gives War Report To Senate Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland conferred Thursday with President Johnson on the Vietnamese war and gave the Senate Armed Services Committee what was described as a cautiously optimistic report.

But Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, "does not see any early termination of the war" and suggested no timetable of when the fighting might end.

Committee Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) told newsmen.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) another committee member, said Westmoreland reported that although the North Vietnamese troops are better equipped now than before, they are not well led and their quality is going down.

"He feels quite confident," Jackson said of Westmoreland. "He sees the enemy losing steadily and continuously."

Westmoreland conferred with Johnson in his office for over an hour, but the White House made no report on their talks.

Westmoreland flew here from Vietnam Wednesday to confer with Johnson and other officials.

Before going into the President's office, the general stood by in the East Room as Johnson presented the Medal of Honor to Army Sgt. Charles B. Norris, a four-time wounded hero of the fighting in Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told newsmen at a Senate Appropriations Committee hearing there was no foundation for reports that Westmoreland would be placed in Vietnam.

McNamara said such speculation was natural after a general has served four years in such a demanding job, but he hoped Westmoreland would remain on for a long time.

Protesters To Be Sentenced Today

More than 80 of the 107 antiwar demonstrators arrested at the Union Nov. 1 are to appear in Police Court at 8:30 this morning to receive sentencing on charges of disturbing the peace.

The charge is a misdemeanor under Iowa law and punishment cannot be greater than a $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

As of Thursday, 99 of the demonstrators had appeared in court and several more are expected to be heard this morning prior to sentencing.

Of the 99, 81 have been found guilty. Most of them entered pleas of innocent, no defense, which automatically leads to a guilty decision, and several others entered guilty pleas.

An additional 18 demonstrators entered pleas of innocent and are awaiting trial dates.

Eight demonstrators pleaded innocent and requested trials Thursday. They were: Dan E. Schabillon, Al Van Meter; Kenneth W. Wessels, A2, Dyersville; Mary M. Gammon, A3, New Brunswick, N.J.; Glen M. Epstein, address unknown; Lory R. Rice, G, Iowa City; Oren A. Peterson, A1, Williamsburg; Fred Barnett, North Liberty; and Bruce A. Clark, A1, Des Moines.

Eight other demonstrators pleaded innocent with no defense and were found guilty. They were: Cynthia A. Carper, A1, Spencer; Mary A. Sowers, A3, Buffalo; Ruth A. Pushtonequa, A1, Iowa City; Eli J. Rosengard, address unknown; Ronald Lee Hillis, A4, Marshalltown; Howard I. Weinberg, A2, New York City; Richard C. Klausner and Ina Calloway, addresses unknown.

Jerold Best, address unknown, pleaded guilty to the charge.

Mary Beth Lee, A4, Muscatine, pleaded guilty Wednesday through her attorney, but was omitted in Thursday's story.

Changes In Parking Slated

The east row of the student reserve parking lot north of the Union is scheduled to become faculty and staff reserve parking Monday. This and several other changes in parking arrangements were announced Thursday by John Dooley, director of parking lot operations.

Dooley said the faculty-staff reserve lot north of the Union had been oversold by 10 per cent of its capacity and his office was having trouble providing enough parking space for those with permits for the lot.

Dooley said that usually a 10 per cent oversell on lots did not cause shortages of space.

Being Converted

He said the stalls in the student lot were being converted because parking space priority is granted to faculty and staff before students. He said more stalls would be provided for the students in the Old Iowa Field parking lot. Since a faculty-staff permit allows the holder to park in only a specific faculty-staff reserve lot, Dooley said, his office had no choice but to make more space available in the reserve faculty-staff lot north of the Union.

Student permits allow the holder to park in any student reserve lot on campus.

The additional parking spaces in the Old Iowa Field lot are scheduled to be open by Nov. 27. Dooley said the stalls would be provided by changing the center drive to a one-way-southbound drive and making parallel parking spaces on the other side of the drive.

Closed Monday

Dooley said the Union parking ramp would be closed Monday and Nov. 28 and 29 to accommodate conferences meeting at the Union. The ramp is to be closed from 7 a.m.

Militant Negro Refuses Drafting

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fred Brooks, 20, a Negro leader of the black power movement who says the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee "is behind the times," walked out of an Army induction center Thursday after refusing to be drafted.

But Senate investigators still want him in Washington next week for their probe of last summer's riots.

"SNCC is behind the times," said Brooks, a former president of the Nashville chapter, after refusing to take the step forward at the center. "Black people are having to do things on their own now, like in Detroit and Newark."

Officials said Brooks will have plenty of time to testify before the Senate investigations subcommittee before they close in on him for refusing to take the Army oath of allegiance.

"First, his local draft board must declare him a draft delinquent," explained Col. Tom Ketterison, deputy state draft director. "Then, this office must forward that declaration onto the United States attorney's office. And, before he could be imprisoned, he must be duly indicted by a grand jury and convicted after a trial."

Federal law provides up to five years in prison for refusal to obey a draft call.

A spokesman for the U.S. district attorney's office said the case is similar to that of Muhammad Ali, former heavyweight boxing champion. Ali, who refused to be drafted by a Houston, Tex., board, was convicted of evading the draft — but is free on bond pending appeal.

Brooks headed last summer's controversial Liberation School for young Negroes in Nashville. He had been scheduled to testify Thursday before the Senate subcommittee which is looking into the causes of the summer rioting. But when the investigators learned of his draft call, they promptly postponed this week's hearings until Tuesday.

Notified that Brooks had refused to be drafted, Jerome S. Adlerman, chief counsel for the investigations subcommittee, said the former Detroit Negro still is scheduled to appear in Washington next week.

Fighting Marks Boston Protest

BOSTON (AP) — An assistant U.S. attorney, citing orders of the attorney general, refused Thursday to accept some 50 draft cards from four representatives of antiwar demonstrators.

The demonstrations were marked by two fights between the antiwar group and pro-government supporters.

The cards were brought to the federal building from the Old West Church where their owners had turned them in as a protest against the fighting in Vietnam. Some 200 persons participated in a memorial service for Vietnamese war dead at the church where a fight broke out on the steps.

The Rev. Jack Mendelsohn, minister of Arlington Street Church, Unitarian Universalist, said about 50 draft cards were turned in and another seven or eight burned.

On a half-mile march from the church to the federal building, the draft opponents were heckled and pelted with snowballs.

At first the demonstrators were locked out of the federal building. Later a Justice Department representative agreed to allow four to go to the U.S. attorney's office.

SRA Elects President, Passes Dorm Proposal

Steve Smith, A2, Jefferson, was elected president of Students for Responsible Action (SRA) at a meeting Thursday night attended by 25 persons at the Union.

SRA also passed a proposal which would exchange only one men's residence hall for one women's residence hall rather than the planned change which is to exchange two for two.

Jim Truitt, A2, Greene, was elected vice president and Linda Gorman, A2, Denison, secretary-treasurer.

Sorace, who first gave Brooks national attention in earlier Senate testimony, are scheduled to testify regarding rioting near Nashville's Negro college campuses last April.

In his August testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sorace testified the Liberation School was teaching hatred of the white race to Negro children of elementary school age. His testimony cost the school its status as a Nashville-Federal antipoverty project.

Brooks, Nashville chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee at the time of the rioting, was suspended from Tennessee A&I State University for his part in the disturbances. A faculty committee last month refused to readmit him, costing him his student draft deferment.

Brooks Wednesday night lost a bid for a federal court order to delay his induction pending a judge's decision on his appeal of his expulsion from A&I, and on other grounds including his contention that Negroes were systematically excluded from his draft board.

YD Convention Calls For End To Bombing

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A coalition of anti-Johnson forces and peace-seekers introduced a resolution at the national convention of Young Democrats Thursday night calling for "the immediate and unconditional cessation of bombing in Vietnam."

The coalition, which included college-age Young Democrats who previously had sought a strong statement calling for President Johnson to pass up a bid for re-election, gathered behind the candidacy of Allen Reed of Lincoln, Neb., for the Young Democrats' presidency.

Reed, an avowed peace candidate, said the coalition believed an immediate end of the bombing "should substantially improve prospects of negotiation while also serving the humanitarian purpose of limiting civilian casualties" in Vietnam.

The proposal was submitted by Joseph Berlant of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y.

Soon after the coalition force was announced, Thomas O'Brien of Boston, a spokesman for the college-age group, said he was sacrificing his draft resolution to keep Johnson from being the 1968 Democratic presidential nominee.

O'Brien said his proposal "would restore the unity of the peace forces. To introduce something you know would be beaten under those circumstances would be fruitless."

Earlier Mayor Richard G. Hatcher of Gary, Ind., said "political-racial maturity in America must await the day when Negro public officials are free to fail as well as succeed."

And, in an interview on the convention's major topic, Vietnam, Hatcher said, "Young Democrats have the responsibility to prick the conscience of the Democratic party."

CSL Proposes Easier Access In Dorm Visits

The girls will be able to go where the boys are — and vice versa — with less difficulty than usual, if an intervisitation recommendation made Thursday by the Committee on Student Life (CSL) is approved.

The recommendation, which was approved after a discussion by the faculty-student committee, still needs the approval of Pres. Howard R. Bowen before it can go into effect.

Intervisitation means that members of the opposite sex visit each others' rooms in dormitories and approved housing.

According to Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton, a CSL member, all regulations concerning intervisitation would be made and enforced by the governing bodies in housing units. He said that only notification of an event of intervisitation need be forwarded by dormitories' residents to the Office of Student Affairs.

Present policy is that such events must be registered with the Office of Student Affairs and that the housing unit must follow University regulations on intervisitation, Pelton said.

The recommended policy off-campus approved housing units would have only to notify the landlord of intervisitations and regulations, Pelton said.

Pelton said it was understood that any regulation or activity should not contradict other University policy or violate state or local law.

CSL will discuss housing at its next meeting, Nov. 30., Pelton said. He said Bowen's attendance was scheduled for that meeting.

Priority will be given to the question of dual prosecution and women's hours at later meetings. Concerning the matter of dual prosecution, Pelton said the committee would attempt to define "academic interests of the University," and discuss when the University should prosecute for students' violation of laws or regulations.

Riley Asks Court To Drop Charge; Hearing Date Set

By JERRY LEVINE

Sen. Tom Riley (R-Cedar Rapids) asked Thursday that the charge of disturbing the peace against him be dismissed.

Riley was named in a citizen's arrest made Nov. 1 by Jerrald Sies, A4, Valley Stream, N.Y. The charge was brought after Riley had appeared at the Nov. 1 antiwar demonstration at the Union with the hope, he said, "of preventing a riot."

The request for dismissal was filed Thursday in Iowa City Police Court by Riley's attorney, William Tilden of Cedar Rapids. The request was based on technical grounds.

Police Judge Marion Neely set 1:30 p.m., Nov. 24, for a hearing on the motion to dismiss the charge.

Neely said Thursday night that he will hear testimony from both sides and then decide whether or not the technicality is valid. He said that if he dismissed the charge on technical grounds it could be filed again on different terms.

Sies was asked Thursday night what action he planned on taking for the hearing.

Sies said that he had not heard anything about the information for dismissal. "I will talk to the assistant county attorney (John Hayek, Iowa City) tomorrow and see what action he wants to take," said Sies.

Riley contends that, while in Iowa City on business, he heard reports of the disturbance and went to the scene to help restore law and order. After being in the center of the shouting he was arrested.

Riley, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor, has since criticized University officials for not acting quickly to bring in law enforcement officers when the demonstration erupted into violence.

Fast To Protest Dow Recruiting

The Draft Resisters Union (DRU) plans to support a fast beginning Nov. 27 and ending when representatives of Dow Chemical Co. come to campus to recruit Dec. 4.

The fast will be in protest of the Vietnamese war and the presence of Dow on campus. Dow manufactures napalm, a chemical used by U.S. armed forces in Vietnam.

During its meeting, held Thursday night at the home of Lena Baker, 501 S. Capitol St., the DRU also decided to support a "camp-in" on the Old Capitol lawn during the week of fasting.

Persons supporting the fast will be asked to obtain tents and sleeping bags and camp out in front of Old Capitol.

The details of the fast and the camp-in will be worked out Monday night at the meeting of Students for a Democratic Society.

Patriotism for New Left also includes responsibility

"Those dirty rich young Commies all ought to be thrown in jail for 10 years. If they're too good to fight for their country in Vietnam, they certainly don't deserve Constitutional privileges," said a participant in last spring's Patriot's Day Parade, referring to conscientious objectors who choose jail terms rather than military induction.

Any discussion or evaluation of that statement hinges on motivation and definition. Conscientious objectors would label the speaker's patriotism "chauvinistic," while the Birchite obviously feels the leftist view totally void of any sense of patriotism.

Ironic as it may seem, patriotism for the New Leftist is a sacred and idealistic thing. It is with a sense of pride that he lives in a country in which he is allowed to criticize the structured bureaucracy which he allows to govern him. At the same time, there is also an obligation to his country that he has assumed the burden of responsibility for re-humanizing it. He is willing to go to jail instead of fighting in a war which he believes to be morally unjust. He realizes that his jail sentence does not consist merely of five years behind bars. This suggests that the New Leftist also has a great deal of faith that America will not allow herself to suffer through another era of McCarthyism; faith that the American conscience can and will be awakened.

The patriotism of the New Left, therefore, seems to contribute much to American society. Fear and suffering take many forms: it is unrealistic to believe that a soldier in the field has a monopoly on them. The patriotism of the New Left proclaims a willingness to die for the country, but not to kill immorally for it; to risk one's life for the ideals of democracy and free speech, but not to endanger others' lives because they will not agree. Thus Lewis B. Hershey, executive director of the Selective Service, was quoted in the New York Times last October 3 as saying that he, too, would serve a sentence in the penitentiary rather than "perform military acts he found it impossible to support."

No, a strong sense of conviction does not preclude patriotic loyalty. Instead it seems to nourish a healthy new growth.

Staging detracted from Edward II

By D. B. AXELROD

Edward II lived on the staging of the Studio Theatre Thursday night, in a performance of Brecht's historical drama bearing the king's name. The first of the Studio Theatre's productions this year was marked by several fine acting performances, and several highs and lows in directing and staging.

Raymond DiPalma, as Edward II, acted a most demanding part with admirable skill and versatility, turning from a queer and frivolous king, to a tyrant, and then to tragic hero, always the audience on his side. Richard Mariott, as Edward's lover, Danyell Gaveston, also interpreted an intricate role so well as to arouse the pity of an audience that could easily have disliked his character. The part of Mortimer, played by Dennis Lipscomb, was executed with equal skill, with mild-voiced and appropriately ironic inflections. In a demanding script and production, there were few moments when even the extras were not speaking and moving effectively.

Questions of staging were the only detractor from the otherwise moving performance. The best stage action was of a conventional sort, with well-blocked movement on and off the platform stage. Certainly, the final lowering of a staircase to allow a murderer to descend to Edward II was a well-directed and dramatic moment. But the use of the split levels, one actor viewing another from a balcony area above, was not always effective or to a purpose. Neither did the occasional use of arena techniques, bringing soldiers and all in through the house, add any particular depth to the drama which, as it was played in the studio setting, seemed to want a proscenium (regular stage) production in most instances. The real problems, however, seemed to be in the inadvertent but inevitable up-staging of the play by the cast moving in and out in plain sight. Even a semi-transparent scrim or simply draping might have helped block out distractions. The characters, seated in plain sight behind the stage, did not add anything to the dramatic effect of the production. Rather, their back-stage gestures and movements often distracted from actions which the audience insisted — whatever the playwright or company's intent — were sufficiently human and dramatic for empathy.

It was unfortunate as well that a Brechtian device of a narrator to keep the audience conscious of its role as audience and judge of the actions within the play, was not successfully used in the production. Brecht may have had his point — contemporaryizing and moralizing a bit in a narrative voice — but that point, too, was lost to distraction. An otherwise tight production was needlessly cluttered with lighting shifts to the narrator, whose waiting presence occasionally even intruded on the "regular" workings of the play.

Generally, it might be said that the actors, outacted the author's and the director's devices. Another attempt at embellishing the play also failed: annoyingly bright bands of light were flashed to indicate already-evident shifts of scene, or with the effect of over-emphasizing a dramatic moment (as in the three "No's" cried out by Edward II).

If the audience forgives these apparent attempts to be "bold" in presentation, there is no question that the play will "delight." The "moral instruction," always more or less overt in Brecht, comes across to a somewhat lesser degree, perhaps, as mentioned above, in part for the failing of the devices intended to keep the audience self-conscious.

Marijuana reaction Reader calls pot safe, cheap kick

To the Editor:
Your stand on marijuana is courageous and purposeful. However, like so many well-meaning liberals, you forget an important aspect of pot smoking — namely, it is sensually pleasurable.

Unfortunately, in the great tradition of American Puritanism, you come out with the argument:
"Isn't it possible that with the aura of conspiracy and glamour removed by the legalization of marijuana, its popularity might diminish? Hell, no, it wouldn't diminish. Prices would drop so that you wouldn't have to pay $20 an ounce for a weed. Everybody would be turning on. And I, for one, would be all the happier."

America already has legalized its great drug — alcohol. It is the accepted escape. It is also money, as William Childress' letter so aptly points out. But alcohol is messy, sloppy, vomit-inducing, hang-over producing, and dangerous to the point of killing innocent people in drunken brawls or, more often, in gruesome automobile accidents.

But marijuana? Man, it's a slow, easy trip downsteam. It's a heightened and beautiful sense of the tactile and visual, an easy-going good-will towards all. There's no vomiting, no hang-over. It's quiet, unassuming, tranquil, cool, placid. There's nothing boisterous or obscene at all. Perhaps its very serenity runs counter to the red-blooded American grain.

To be sure, there are those who are using it as an escape (and what, may I ask, is wrong with an occasional escape?). And there are those who are using it as a means of illegal rebellion (and who, may I ask, wouldn't rebel against an Establishment afraid of "political suicide," but happy to see young lives ruined by felony convictions?).

Essentially, then, the question of marijuana's legalization is not a why question, but a how soon question. Since many of us seem to need a kick of some sort every once in a while, and since pot is the cheapest, safest, most enjoyable kick going . . . well then, to misquote a famous ex-hippie:

"When, oh when, America, are you gonna come round? Cause if you don't, baby, we're gonna 'burn' this town down."

DI argument 'in error'

To the Editor:
I would like to suggest that last Saturday in your editorial advocating the legalization of marijuana, a key argument was in error.

You blindly reiterated the old cliché that an outlawed commodity is more romantic and exciting — hence insinuating that it is more popular than if it were legalized. Liquor, cigars and girly magazines have never been more popular than they are now.

Granted, as long as there is a demand for a commodity, there are suppliers. However, it has not been proved that, in general, commodities are used in larger volumes, or are any more popular when they are outlawed.

Play needs more than director

To the Editor:
The burden of Wm. Crozier's letter in The Daily Iowan on Nov. 7 concerning the shortcomings of the University Theatre productions seems to me very much to the point. It seems somewhat less to the point to roast Mr. Sostek individually.

While I hold no brief for the director of "You Can't Take It With You," I would argue against Crozier's point that "without an imaginative and compelling director even the best theater will be prosaic or, worse, dull." By venting this unqualified statement Crozier shows that either he has been taken in by the myth of "the director's theater" or that he is confusing what is necessary in the cinema with what is useful in the theater.

Perhaps Crozier could enlarge his experience by reading "Letters From An Actor" by William Redfield, an uncommonly knowledgeable and articulate actor's actor. In his book, which might have been subtitled "Inside the Burton-Gielgud Hamlet," he muses at length upon his art and its foremost contemporary practitioners. It was generally conceded by the cast of the Gielgud Hamlet that Gielgud as a director offered little more than an exquisite absence. Nevertheless the production itself was smashingly successful from a commercial point of view and it had a good deal of art about it as well. For most of the art Shakespeare and the actors were directly responsible. What Gielgud contributed was mostly his honored name and a persuasive muzziness.

The cast of "You Can't Take It With You" could also profit from reading William Redfield. If the actor lacks inventiveness, energy, concentration and technique he'd jolly well better not look to any director to supply his wants. He would be well advised to seek another line of work. Perhaps the cinema.

Marijuana addictive?

To the Editor:
You don't think there is sufficient evidence against marijuana to warrant the existing penalties against it. How many thousands of addicts would you call sufficient? I suggest that you read the September issue of Christian Herald.

The facts brought out in questioning addicts at the Southern California state rehabilitation center (as quoted in this article) suggest that most of the addicts started on marijuana — then came heroin, crime, the gutter. Do you advocate that for Iowa young folks?

Antiwar ad discussed

To the Editor:
Behind the "war of words" waged over the spot on the ad in the November 5th Des Moines Register, there is a real issue. It is whether we willingly acknowledge part of our personnel, the graduate assistants, who have become increasingly responsible for the functioning of this institution. If they ceased to teach and perform their other tasks here, the university would be crippled, perhaps to the point of incapacity.

Those of them who do not hold rank may not qualify as faculty, but all of them with paid teaching or administrative positions unquestionably qualify as staff. And they have the right to a voice in declared university opinion.

Possibly the confusion of Fred Doderer and Dean Charles R. Mason on this point is shared by the general public. The coordinators of the Register advertisement would have been prudent, therefore, to have listed the signatories under two categories: "faculty" and "staff."

Committee asks Bowen to prohibit Dow here

Dear President Bowen:
As conscientious persons, believing morality to be worthy of greater consideration in our lives than the welfare of our national economy, or than the maintenance of an orderly and efficient system capable of greater atrocities than man has yet known, or even than the constitutional law of our government which permits slaughter to continue in the name of our country, we do hereby entreat you to search your conscience and to exercise your power on behalf of all that is morally just, and to prohibit the presence of Dow Chemical Corporation on the campus of this University.

If it is not your wish to comply with this request, we shall undertake a solemn vigil as well as a fast to last continuously from Monday, November 27, until that time when either you exercise your power to prohibit the presence of Dow on this campus or until Dow representatives have in fact left the University.

Let it also be understood that other measures of a more direct nature will undoubtedly be taken if the Dow representatives appear as scheduled. We present this as an appeal. May this spirit, by your actions, prevail.
Sincerely,
Ad hoc Committee to Stop Dow

Hershey's action condemned

To the Editor:
Government suppression of dissent has taken one more step toward fascism with Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's latest proclamation. No doubt most of the country's potential cannon fodder remains undisturbed by this new suppression of freedom of expression, having already accepted the denial of their freedom of choice imposed by the draft system itself. But this newest "official" escalation of suppression should frighten everyone, for it represents a dangerous new effort at thought control here.

Obviously Hershey wants war resisters (who use illegal means like blocking doorways) to be drafted not because they are breaking laws but because this form of resistance presents a greater threat to the war machine than does legal protest. If legal forms of protest somehow become a greater threat to the war machine, how unlikely is it that Hershey and local draft officials will apply this draft-punishment to these protesters too? (This kind of thing has already been done on local levels: e.g., the National Guardian reported several weeks back that a man with Conscientious Objector status was reclassified I-A after distributing antiwar leaflets at an induction center in Florida.)

Now the local boards have the public sanction of the national Selective Service director and thus, of course of the administration) to use the draft as a method of suppression which indicates at least two important developments: first, that the administration believes the people will accept such blatantly fascist tactics; second, that the administration is frightened by the growth of the antiwar movement. All of this should make more obvious than ever to Americans who oppose the administration's war in Vietnam that either they all begin now to use what freedom of expression they still have, or they may see this already limited freedom suppressed into non-existence.

The first issue of Spectator, a new student publication, is enclosed in today's Daily Iowan. Its estimated circulation of 10,000 will reach students, faculty and staff, alumni, government officials, state business and educational associations and other friends of the University. Students will receive the Spectator with their DI. Other copies will be mailed. The Spectator, an eight-page tabloid, will be published every other month, according to editor Loren Hickerson, director of community relations. Jack Magarell, former Des Moines Register education editor, is the managing editor, and Linda Weimer, a former Daily Iowan editor, is the editorial assistant. The purpose of Spectator is to reflect the stimulating life, the work, and the people of this University with a kind of friendly detachment, according to Hickerson. ## Des Moines Sought For Model City

WASHINGTON (AP) — Des Moines was selected Thursday as one of 23 cities to participate in the model cities program, central thrust of President Johnson's attack on urban ills. The cities, involving 65 projects in 33 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, will share $1 billion in initial planning grants, the amounts to be announced later. Des Moines had asked for $199,303 in federal money and planned to add $49,826 in local funds for planning. The effort is to center around a thickly populated, deteriorating section of the city at the northwest edge of the business district. Under the application accepted by the federal government, Des Moines proposed to create a 40-man task force to act as an advisory board to the city council on improvement of the target neighborhood. # University Individuals, Issues To Be Covered By Spectator

The first issue of Spectator, a student-run publication, is expected in today's Daily Iowan. Its estimated circulation of 10,000 will reach students, faculty and staff, alumni, government officials, state business and educational associations and other friends of the University.

Students will receive the Spectator with their D.I. Other copies will be mailed.

The Spectator, an eight-page tabloid, will be published every other month, according to editor Loren Hickerson, director of community relations.

Jack Magarrell, former Des Moines Register education editor, is the managing editor, and Linda Weiner, a former Daily Iowan editor, is the editorial assistant.

The purpose of Spectator is to reflect the stimulating life, the work and the people of this University with a kind of friendly detachment, according to Hickerson.

Individuals, Issues Featured

Hickerson said Thursday that articles will feature individuals connected with the University and issues of concern to students, faculty and staff in an objective way.

The Spectator is provided without cost to its readers through the combination of the budgets of two University publications which have been discontinued.

Publication of the Staff magazine for faculty and staff members, and Today at Iowa, a periodical for alumni, has been suspended.

Spectator hopes to reach the same audience that these two publications did, and to fulfill the function of both through one publication, Hickerson said.

Two of the articles in today's Spectator deal with law studies at the University and a proposal that helicopter ambulance service might be an answer to Iowa's shortage of doctors.

The article about the College of Law says the faculty regarded a new program for first-year students as the most novel in the country.

'Conflict Resolution' Introduced

Dean David Vernon said that one of the new courses, "Conflict Resolution," was an attempt to borrow from psychiatrists and others in the area of dispute resolution. He said the course introduced students to "non-legal learning."

Traditional first-year law courses emphasize law suits, so students tend to tackle problems in terms of whom to sue for what, Vernon said.

"As graduates," he said, "they learn very quickly that in the resolution of disputes, litigation is the last step, not the first; that disputes can be resolved in many ways other than by filing a law suit."

Other features of the new law curriculum include:

A required course in international law, more emphasis on statutory law rather than law made by judicial decisions, and a criminal law course broadened to demonstrate the relationship between law and the social sciences.

Helicopters For Rural Iowa

In the article on the proposal for helicopter ambulance service, Dr. Robert Hardin, vice president for medical affairs, noted that helicopters have successfully been used in Vietnam to evacuate casualties to field hospitals.

The article suggests that a similar service might benefit rural Iowans because the basic problem was how to get patient, doctor and equipment together in the right place at the right time.

Hardin commented, "There should be studies of the need for a state-supported transportation system to take a patient wherever he ought to go — and this should include air transportation, preferably helicopters."

Widespread concern over the lack of physicians in many small towns prompted action by the Iowa Legislature earlier this year.

A $200,000 state fund was set up to make loans to medical students in Iowa, with half the loan to be forgiven after five years of general practice in the state and the full amount to be forgiven if the doctor continues five more years.

The Spectator articles quote Hardin as expecting little from this kind of approach to the doctor-shortage problem.

Even without any special subsidies, Hardin said, a young physician could make a good income in small-town general practice. But, he continued, in a time when medicine has become highly complex, young physicians believe they can practice better medicine as specialists in group practice in cities where they have well-equipped laboratories and hospitals.

This kind of career decision by individual medical students is not changed by offering financial subsidies for small-town general practitioners, nor will it be changed by merely increasing the total number of new physicians, Hardin said.

"What I see," he said, "is health care oriented to hospital centers, and a corps of workers for each physician so he'll have more eyes and ears and hands."

Hardin said the University has a number of studies under way to determine the health-care needs and resources of Iowa and seek ways to fill the gap between these needs and resources.

Library Board Votes Raise Con Men Selling VA Grave Lots

The Iowa City Library Board voted Thursday to adopt a new pay scale conforming to a city salary increase scale under consideration by the City Council.

The move followed recent deliberation between the board and the City Council on library employee salary increases. The new scale will be referred to the City Council for final approval.

Board President William Tucker said the members of the board were anxious to meet with members of the Coralville Library Board to discuss the possible entry of the Coralville Library into the Seven Rivers Library System. Tucker suggested that no further action be taken on Coralville's joining the system until after Jan. 1 in order to give the council a chance to indicate its attitude on the matter.

The board decided that a letter to former library card holders would be released Monday informing them of the availability of non-resident library cards for $18 a year.

The Veterans Administration has warned Iowa City residents not to be fooled into buying cemetery lots that are supposedly being sold by the VA.

According to Ralph Neppel, contact officer in the VA Hospital here, "fast buck promoters" are selling cemetery lots and giving the impression they represent the VA.

Neppel said anyone confronted by the promoters should report it to the FBI or the VA.

One "fast buck" offer features one free lot for every lot purchased, Neppel said. However, these lots are presently owned by a United States Army national cemetery.

Des Moines Selected For Model Cities Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Des Moines was selected Thursday as one of 63 cities to participate in the model cities program, central thrust of President Johnson's attack on urban ills.

The cities, involving 65 projects in 33 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, will share $11 million in initial planning grants, the amounts to be announced later.

Des Moines had asked for $199,303 in federal money and planned to add $49,826 in local funds for planning. The effort is to center around a thickly populated, deteriorating section of the city at the northwest edge of the business district.

Under the application accepted by the federal government, Des Moines proposed to create a 40-man task force to act as an advisory board to the city council on improvement of the target neighborhood.

Half of the members of this task force would be residents of the target area.

A separate 24-man staff would actually plan a "model neighborhood" program.

City officials emphasized Thursday that funds received as a result of Thursday's announcement would be used for planning only and that money to carry out the program would be requested later.

The cities selected from 193 applicants for the experimental, "total attack" on single neighborhoods range in size from Pikeville, Ky., with 5,000 residents, to New York City, with 8 million.

Robert C. Weaver, secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), who announced the selected cities, said that the six-year program would provide the basis for a national effort to rebuild American cities rivaling the Marshall Plan for European recovery after World War II.

Podolak Returns To Lineup

Iowa quarterback Ed Podolak, who has missed two games due to a cracked rib, will start against Ohio State at Columbus Saturday, Coach Ray Nagel announced Thursday.

Podolak sustained the injury during the Wisconsin game Oct. 21, and since then, has had to watch two Iowa losses from the sidelines as a play mapper. He will play Saturday wrapped in a plastic corset with foam rubber padding designed by team physician Dr. W. D. Paul and team therapist Tom Spaul. According to Paul, the device will not hamper the quarterback's direction of Iowa's offense.

He Feels Great
"It feels great to be back," said Podolak Thursday. "My timing was off early in the week, but it has come along and I'll be ready Saturday."

Podolak has had plenty of time to rest his ribs during the two-week layoff. So his running game should be better against the Buckeyes.

His return to the lineup is obviously a real shot in the arm for the luckless Hawks. Podolak was second in the Big 10 Conference in total offense at the time of his injury.

Since Podolak has been out, sophomore Mike Cilek has been filling in at quarterback. Cilek completed 38 per cent of 67 passes against Minnesota and Northwestern.

Hawks Drill
The Hawkeyes worked out in sweat clothes for an hour Thursday, limbering up with calisthenics followed by work on timing and ball handling.

Nagel also reported that defensive tackle Duane Grant would not make the trip to Columbus Saturday. Grant is out with a shoulder injury.

If there was anything the old bus didn't need, it was more room on the inside. Which brings us to the first thing you should know about the new box. There's more room on the inside. In fact, the Volkswagen Station Wagon has almost twice as much room inside as conventional station wagons. On the outside (which is a little bigger, too) we replaced the 13 little windows with 8 big ones. And one of them is a wrap-around windshield. What next? A wrap-around bumper to help you step up into the driver's compartment through wider front doors. As for the 2 side doors, they're not there anymore. We replaced them with a single sliding safety door. It locks when it's open and locks when it's closed. An aisle through to the back is now standard equipment. (After all, what's a bus without an aisle?) If you'd rather do without the charm and convenience of an aisle, it'll cost you. But you'll get 2 more seats (total: 9) for your trouble. Only Volkswagens would give you fewer windows. Fewer doors. Fewer seats. And call it an improved wagon.

Iowa State. According to Lawrence, the Cyclone freshmen could be tougher than Northwestern.

NU Was Tenacious
"Northwestern was tenacious and hard-hitting," said Lawrence. "but didn't show much speed. As for Iowa State, I think their defense is better than Northwestern's and that we will find it tougher to move the ball against them."

The Iowa coaching staff recruited many backs and ends last year. Today Lawrence is hoping to show many of them off.

One player he is anxious to test under game conditions is halfback William Powell, 5-10, 180 pounds, from Gaffney, S.C. Powell was held out of the Northwestern game because of slippery field conditions.

The remaining members of Iowa's starting backfield today are: Denny Green, tailback; Larry Lawrence, quarterback; Tom Wallace, fullback and Kerry Reardon, wingback. The freshmen will operate the Wing-T offense.

2 Players Injured
Two of the freshmen, tailback Raciore Cavole, 5-11, 180 pounds and tackle Dave Link, 6-4, 220 pounds, were injured in last Friday's game. Cavole suffered a shoulder separation and won't play today. Link's injury was not disclosed, but he is scheduled to start against the Cyclones.

The Big 10 Conference allows freshmen teams to play only two games. This game is Iowa's second.

"As far as we're concerned," says Lawrence, "the season starts this week. I can promise you one thing, we'll be ready."

Iowa State has already played two games. The Cyclones defeated Missouri 40-7 and lost to Nebraska 27-15.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Beban opened the 1967 football season heralded as one of the nation's best. Steve Sogge's sketch wasn't even in the pressbook. ## Tiger Favored To Light Heavyweight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Africa's aging Dick Tiger places his world light heavyweight championship on the line tonight and is favored to retain it in a 15-round fight with the No. 1 contender, Roger Rouse of Anaconda, Mont.

Nearly 7,000 persons are expected to see it in the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The 38-year-old Tiger, from the new state of Biafra, defeated Jose Torres in a rematch in New York last May. A veteran of 75 matches, he twice held the world middleweight crown before losing it to Emil Griffith early in 1966.

Rouse, who doesn't look his 32 years, has been clamoring for two years for a title chance, first with Torres, who stalled him off, and then with Tiger.

Tiger has been guaranteed $75,000. The money and the title may be all he has left. He fears his interests in his native Nigeria, from which Biafra seceded in the current strife in Africa, may have been confiscated.

Rouse is boxing for a $15,000 guarantee, twice larger than any previous purse.

Most observers think the fight will go the full 15 rounds. "I've trained to go 15," Tiger said. "If I knock him out that will be lucky."

Iowa State. According to Lawrence, the Cyclone freshmen could be tougher than Northwestern.

NU Was Tenacious
 "Northwestern was tenacious and hard-hitting," said Lawrence, but didn't show much speed. As for Iowa State, I think their defense is better than Northwestern's and that we will find it tougher to move the ball against them."

The Iowa coaching staff recruited many backs and ends last year. Today Lawrence is hoping to show many of them off.

One player he is anxious to test under game conditions is half-back William Powell, 5-10, 110 pounds, from Gaffney, S.C. Powell held out of the Northwestern game because of slippery field conditions.

The remaining members of Iowa's starting backfield today are: Denny Green, fullback; Larry Lawrence, quarterback; Tom Wallace, fullback and Kerry Reardon, wideback. The freshmen will operate the Wing-T offense.

2 Players Injured
 Two of the freshmen, tailback Raciore Cavole, 5-11, 180 pounds and tackle Dave Link, 6-4, 220 pounds, were injured in last Friday's game. Cavole suffered a shoulder separation and won't play today. Link's injury was not disclosed, but he is scheduled to start against the Cyclones.

The Big 10 Conference allows freshmen teams to play only two games. This game is Iowa's second.

"As far as we're concerned," says Lawrence, "the season starts this week. I can promise you one thing, we'll be ready."

Iowa State has already played two games. The Cyclones defeated Missouri 40-7 and lost to Nebraska 27-15.

Bruin Quarterback Bids For Stardom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Beban opened the 1967 football season heralded as one of the nation's best. Steve Sogge's sketch wasn't even in the pressbook.

On Saturday these two quarterbacks oppose each other in the game which could decide the national championship and definitely will tell whether Beban's UCLA or Sogge's Southern California goes to the Rose Bowl.

A crowd of 94,000 and a national television audience will watch the duel between the top ranked Bruins with their 7-0 record and the No. 4 rated Trojans at 8-1.

Beban Is Key
 Beban has netted 295 yards on the ground and 1,041 through the air this year, again proving himself the key man in the high scoring Bruin attack and outstanding candidate for the Heisman Trophy emblematic of the outstanding collegiate gridders.

Sogge, better known until this fall as a star baseball player, got his chance when Toby Page was injured in the opener. Steve netted only 26 yards rushing but 962

Tiger Favored To Retain Light Heavyweight Crown

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Africa's aging Dick Tiger places his world light heavyweight championship on the line tonight and is favored to retain it in a 15-round fight with the No. 1 contender, Roger Rouse of Anaconda, Mont.

Nearly 7,000 persons are expected to see it in the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The 38-year-old Tiger, from the new state of Biafra, defeated Jose Torres in a rematch in New York last May. A veteran of 75 matches, he twice held the world middleweight crown before losing it to Emil Griffith early in 1966.

Rouse, who doesn't look his 32 years, has been clamoring for two years for a title chance, first with Torres, who stalled him off, and then with Tiger.

Tiger has been guaranteed $75,000. The money and the title may be all he has left. He fears his interests in his native Nigeria, from which Biafra seceded in the current strife in Africa, may have been confiscated.

Rouse is boxing for a $15,000 guarantee, twice larger than any previous purse.

Most observers think the fight will go the full 15 rounds.

"I've trained to go 15," Tiger said. "If I knock him out that will be lucky."

Sig Eps Capture Swimming Crown

Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity scored 13 points and won the All-University intramural swim meet Thursday in the Field House pool.

The next three finishers were Sigma Pi's social fraternity, 10 points; Floor (6) of Rienow, 7 and Black of the Town League, 6 points.

The Sig Eps won two of the meet's eight events. Kevin Kelly won the 50-yard backstroke in 27.1 seconds. The Sig Ep relay team, composed of Kelly, Jeff Dailey, Don MacLean and Chuck Reich won the 200-yard medley in 1:57.1.

Sigma Pi also had first-place winners in two events. Craig Clark won the 50-yard breast stroke in 34.1 and Tom Renquist won the 50-yard free style in 24.4 seconds.

Chuck Cross, swimming for Black of the Town League, accounted for all his team's points. He placed second in both the 50-yard butterfly and the 50-yard free style. Cross also led Black to the Town League championship last week.

Six teams tied for fifth, scoring five points each: Higbee, (Hillcrest), Delta Upsilon and Phi Kappa Sigma, (social fraternities), Alpha Kappa Kappa, (professional fraternity), Grimes (Quadrangle), and South Quadrangle.

Other teams scoring points in the event include: Briggs, (Quadrangle) and Van Der Zee, (Hillcrest), three points and Kirkwood, (Quadrangle), one.

Other first place individual and relay winners include: Diving — Rod Newsom, Briggs; 50-yard butterfly — Bruce Howe, Phi Kappa Sigma, 26.6 seconds; 100-yard free style — Joe Lickteig, South Quadrangle, 1:00.4 and 200-yard free style — Delta Upsilon, Randy Egbert, Bob Caughey, Al Encks and Duncan Harvey) 1:45.9.

SKI CLUB and Union Board are sponsoring a dance and raffle between 8 and 12 p.m. tonight in the main lounge of the Union. Proceeds from the event will be used to finance a feasibility study of a proposed "Ski Town" on the Lake Macbride Field Campus. Hank Feir, B3, Springfield, 111., (above) is spearheading the campaign. ## Gym Team Does Well, Says Bailie

This year's gymnastics team is performing better than it was at this time last season, according to Coach Sam Bailie.

The team scored 185.5 points in Wednesday's intra-squad meet and Bailie called it a good score, since it only took 183 points to win the national championship last year.

Bailie was surprised that the team scored so many points since stars Terry Siorek and Bob Dixon did not compete. Siorek, who was the leader in still rings competition going into the Big 10 finals last year, is injured and will be out for the season.

Dixon, who was the number one man in all-around competition last year, has a shoulder injury and might not compete until after Christmas.

Bailie said that he was impressed with the sophomores and thought the team had a good chance of winning the Big 10 championship for the second consecutive year.

Everyone May Scatter, But Rifle Club Stands Pat

By PEGGY McGAFFEY

It used to be that when a woman picked up a gun everyone would scatter. That still may be the case, but the women in the Women's Recreational Association Rifle Club stand their ground.

Reestablished this year, the club consists of 22 female amateurs who try their hand at shooting Wednesday nights on the Field House rifle range.

According to Delyte L. Morris, assistant professor of women's physical education and club adviser, there was a club on campus at one time.

Although most of the women are beginners, Prof. Morris said the club was working toward intercollegiate competition. She said that postat matches with the University of Rhode Island and the University of Massachusetts have already been scheduled for next semester.

The clubs shoot on their home ranges in a postal match and then exchange the bullet-ridden targets through the mail. In this way, the clubs can compare scores.

Although indefinite, the club is planning additional postal matches, she said.

Also on the list of hopefuls for the regenerated club are meets with nearby schools so club members can personally compete.

Describing the Wednesday meetings, Prof. Morris said the sessions consisted of instructions and practice since only a few of the members have done any shooting.

For practice, the women use .22 calibre target rifles which are provided for them. Shooting is done with a 50 foot target range from prone, sitting, kneeling and standing positions.

"There is a lot more to shooting than is at first apparent. You need physical and mental control and you are competing more with yourself than anything else," said Prof. Morris, who holds three national scoring records.

In her 15 years of competition shooting she has been national intercollegiate women's champion in 1958 and national women's champion in 1962.

All her competition shooting has been done with .22 calibre target rifles.

Finley Sued By K.C. Man

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Kansas City concessionaire for the American Baseball League Athletics sued Charles O. Finley Thursday for $10 million charging breach of contract.

Judge Roger Peckham granted a temporary restraining order against Finley's entering an agreement for concessions for the Athletics' games at the Oakland Coliseum.

Twin City Sportservice, Inc., filed an action in U.S. District Court asking a restraining order to prevent Finley from signing an agreement with a California concessionaire.

New University Archives Agency Collects Worldwide Public Opinion Data From Last 30 Years

A new university agency has begun collecting studies of public opinion gathered during the past 30 years. The Social Science Data Archives will eventually include any information about people which can be expressed in "machine-readable" form, according to George R. Boynton, associate professor of political science and chairman of the archives committee. But it is starting with public opinion studies gathered all over the world by professors and poll-takers. The archives, which opened Sept. 1, are a service organization providing a permanent collection of data and the facilities for converting the data into an easily usable form. In its first year it will concentrate on the development of procedures and computer programs for performing these services. Among the University data available through the archives will be poll results about the U.S. Supreme Court, attitudes about the Iowa Legislature and citizens' expectations of obtaining satisfactory action from local and other governments. Boynton said that beginning in 1968 the archives will begin an active program to obtain data from research done elsewhere in the country and the world. The archives are not competing with University Library and will not collect books, he said, but will assemble information first on cards and then on tape.

The archives already have the Iowa Poll data gathered by the Des Moines Register and Tribune since 1948 and other data for a longer period by the Wallace Farmer Poll.

They also have data collected about four U.S. presidential campaigns and data about political participation in Europe, India and Japan. Boynton said public opinion polls developed from the start made by George H. Gallup, a University alumnus now president of the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The archives belong to the Council of Social Science Data Archives at Columbia University.

Nixon's Aides See Tough Races

WASHINGTON (AP)—Richard M. Nixon's political strategists expect to face well-financed, professionally managed campaigns for California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the New Hampshire and Wisconsin presidential primaries next year.

Anticipating the challenge for the Republican nomination along with personal campaigns by Michigan Gov. George Romney, one Nixon aide said Thursday.

"We don't view it as anything but a tough, vigorous horse race," Romney is expected to announce his presidential candidacy Saturday, Nixon in mid-January. Reagan insists he is not seeking the 1968 GOP nomination.

But Reagan has said also that because he is running in the California primary as a favorite son, he will not file the disavowal of candidacy required to keep his name off the ballot in Wisconsin.

In New Hampshire, Reagan supporters intend to enter a slate of delegates favoring the Californian for the 1968 nomination, a step which Reagan cannot block.

"There is substantial sentiment for a Reagan candidacy on the part of party people in various states," one Nixon associate said.

Hughes Defends Tax Bill, Won't Call Special Session

DES MOINES (AP)—Political aid or not, there'll be no special legislative session to remove the kinks from Iowa's new tax law, Gov. Harold Hughes said Thursday.

The governor took dead aim on critics of the law in a speech to the Iowa Association of School Boards, saying they "abruptly dismounted from the bandwagon when they discovered that their own special interests were . . . to be taxed as well as . . . benefited."

Hughes, a Democrat, said he had been told that to defend the controversial law would be political suicide. "If this is so, then I can only say that I am expendable, but the future of this state is not."

Hughes said there were parts of the bill he did not like, but was "convinced that this school-aid revenue program, in its overall structure, is the greatest single reform in tax and school legislation in the history of the state."

The governor accused some legislators, two tax commissioners, newspapers and the Republican attorney general of helping to undermine the measure.

The bill, designed to alleviate the property tax burden and increase state aid to schools, was passed in the closing hours of the 1967 Legislature. It increased the state sales tax from two to three per cent and extended it to many services, and increased the income tax, beer and cigarette taxes.

Hughes said the measure provided enough state funds to replace 18 mills of property tax on the average over the state, and put a ceiling on property taxes levied on the homes of older persons on fixed incomes.

In addition, he said, the measure exempted household goods and personal effects from personal property tax, and in effect exempted as well most merchants' inventories, farm livestock and equipment, and the tools and equipment of many industries.

The burden of sales and income tax on the poor was alleviated, he said, and state aid to schools increased from 13 to 35 per cent of expenditures under "the fairest distribution formula ever devised in the history of our state."

Hughes accused newspapers of using their "impressive resources" to blast the entire school aid and tax program.

Tax Commissioners Lynn Potter and X. T. Prentiss have helped to undermine the tax program "wittingly or unwittingly," the governor said, "by ruling that the new law was intended to apply to every service under the shining sun, regardless of whether or not it explicitly says so."

Hughes charged that Atty. Gen. Richard Turner has not been objective in dealing with the bill and is guilty of "interpretation that exceeds the legislative intent."

How could there be a more appropriate gift?

Sens. Moss, Mansfield Defend LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Frank E. Moss (D-Utah) called Thursday for a halt to what he termed vicious, irresponsible and vulgar attacks on President Johnson.

He told the Senate these attacks "seem to arise out of near hysteria and obviously degrade the office of the presidency and hence the nation."

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield applauded Moss' speech, saying he is disturbed by the type attacks being made not only on the President but on Mrs. Johnson and the secretaries of state and defense.

Mansfield, like Moss, said he is all for dissent that is constructive and reasonable, but he said a small minority "has gone way beyond the bounds of decency."

He expressed hope that out of Moss' speech would come "a sense of responsibility on the part of all Americans."

The 77 Anti Given $

Seventy-seven persons — most of the students — convicted on charges of disturbing the peace, were fined $50 by Police Judge Marion Neely Friday.

The 77 were among a group of 108 persons arrested Nov. 1 following an anti-demonstration held outside the Union protest the presence of Marine Corps recruiters on campus. In all, 84 persons had been found guilty during the last two weeks by Neely, but only those present in court Friday morning were sentenced. An additional 20 persons have entered pleas innocent and are to receive trials. No trial dates have been set.

A hearing has been set for Friday to hear a motion by State Sen. Tom Riley (R-Cedar Rapids), the 108th person arrested, that the charge that he disturbed the peace be dropped. Riley has been charged in a citizen's arrest brought by demonstrator, Jerrold Sies, A4, Vall Stream, N.Y.

Sentencing was continued until Monday and Tuesday for the 7 convicted persons who failed to appear Friday. Neely indicated that these persons would be given the same sentence but insisted that they appear.

Court Costs Levied
Court costs of $4 per person were levied. Appeal bond was set at $100. Prior to sentencing, Neely heard the cases of five demonstrators.

Two persons pleaded innocent and requested trials. They were Douglas Britton, A4, Iowa City, and Charlene Britton, A4, Iowa City.

Hubbard, Frost Slate 'Dialogue' On Recruiting

Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, and Everett C. Frost, G. Nor Coventry, Conn., a leader of the anti-demonstrations earlier this month, will hold a public dialogue on "The Moral Responsibility of the University on Campus Recruiting Activities" at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Union Lucas Dodge Room.

Louis G. Hoffman, associate professor of microbiology and one of the organizers of the dialogue, said Friday that the sponsoring campus religious organization wanted to provide a neutral ground where alternative positions open to the University could be considered.

He said that the organizations wanted to throw light instead of more heat on the situation.

Hoffman said that the idea for the dialogue originated in the Anglican community that is being formed on campus and was coordinated through the Associate Campus Ministries.

The sponsors of the dialogue are: B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, Catholic Student Center, Christ Reformed Student Fellowship, St. Paul's Gamma Delta Lutheran Student Congregation, University Anglican Community and Wesley Foundation.

Get your bumblebee degree

Enroll in one of three exciting classes. Charger R/T, Coronet R/T, or Dart GTSport. Each has its own distinctive sporty style, but all three have a lot in common. Like automatic transmissions, wide-tread red line tires, special handling packages, and a long list of other standard and optional features.

To help you make the grade, the standard engines for the Scat Pack include a 340-cu.-in. V8 for the Dart GTS. And for Charger R/T and Coronet R/T, a 440 Magnum V8. Or for a more accelerated course, you can order the optional 426 Hemi.

All three members of the Scat Pack offer distinguishing marks at no extra cost. Bold bumblebee stripes wrapped around the rear. Or Rallye stripes along the side. Or if you prefer to be a little more modest, no stripes at all. It's your choice. Ready for class? With the Scat Pack, you've got it. Why not sign up at your nearby Dodge Dealer's and get your Bumblebee Degree, today?

To add some color to campus, get your Official Dodge Scat Pack Jacket in the official "Dodge Red" Color—with the authentic embroidered "bumblebee" design on front and back. Send for yours today.
