7 Accused Of Conspiracy In Dec. 5 Demonstration

Eight persons — six of them students — appeared in Johnson County District Court Friday morning to answer charges brought against them through indictments handed down Thursday afternoon by the Grand Jury. Two other persons, also indicted by the jury, were not present in court and are being sought by police.

Seven of the 10 persons indicted — all in connection with the Dec. 5 antiwar demonstration — are charged with conspiracy.

Appearing in court Friday morning to hear the charges were: Paul Kleinberger, G, Silver Spring, Md.; Ross J. Peterson, A2, Des Moines; Albert G. Marion, G, North Liberty; Bruce Clark, A1, Des Moines; Dennis Ankrum; and Steve Morris. The latter two, both of Iowa City, are former students. Ankrum is a regional coordinator of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS); Morris is an electronics technician.

Also indicted on the conspiracy charge, but not present at Friday's hearing, was Jean Gammon, Iowa City, a former student.

Three other persons were indicted on charges of resisting an officer. They are: Fred McTaggart, G, Iowa City; Lory Rice, G, Iowa City; and Roy Harvey, address unknown. Harvey was not present in court.

2 Defendants Out Of Town

Both Harvey and Miss Gammon were out of town Thursday night — when most of those indicted were arrested — and Friday.

A friend of Harvey told The Daily Iowa City Friday night that Harvey and his wife Karen — who had been charged with the same offense on Dec. 5 in Police Court — had moved to Minneapolis and that he believed Harvey knew nothing of the indictment.

Harvey's friend, who asked not to be identified, said that the Harveys had left Iowa City about 10 days ago, planning to return in about 10 days, presumably to attend to Mrs. Harvey's case. The friend said he would contact Harvey and notify him of the indictment.

Miss Gammon's sister, Mary, also of Iowa City, told the DI that her sister, who is visiting the pair's parents in New Jersey, had been informed of the indictment. She said her sister had been in contact with Johnson County authorities and had agreed to return.

By late Friday night all of the eight persons who had appeared in court had been released on bond except for Peterson and Ankrum. Bond of $1,000 was set for those charged with conspiracy; $500 in the resisting an officer cases.

Both Kleinberger and Peterson, who had been charged on Dec. 5 in Police Court with conspiracy and were free on $500 bond, were required to pay only the additional $500.

6 Arrested Previously

Another four of the 10 persons indicted Thursday had been arrested on Dec. 5 and charged in Police Court. The four, and the previous charges, are: Marion, inciting a disturbance; McTaggart, Rice and Harvey, all disorderly conduct. All had been free on $100 bond.

Rice, a research assistant in physics, is a British citizen but his student visa has not been jeopardized by his arrest. Alien residents of the United States may be deported should they be convicted of a felony, according to W. Wallace Maner, counselor for foreign students at the University.

Conspiracy is a felony punishable by a maximum sentence of three years in the state penitentiary.

Resisting an officer is an indictable misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $50 to $1,000 or a maximum sentence of one year in the county jail.

The 10 warrants were issued at 3 p.m. Thursday by Judge Paul J. Naughton after the indictments were handed down by the Grand Jury.

Kleinberger was not arrested because William Tucker, his attorney, had assured County Atty. Robert Jansen that Kleinberger would appear in court Friday, according to Jansen.

Bond Reduced

The warrants stated bond was set at $2,000 for the seven charged with conspiracy. Hamilton reduced the bonds to $1,000 after Kleinberger and Marion were put under oath and testified that they would probably be unable to post bond because of their financial status. A $1,000 bond is the minimum bond under Iowa law for a felony charge.

The warrants for resisting an officer stated that bond was set at $500. Hamilton refused to reconsider the bond although Rice testified he would also be unable to post bond.

Miss Gammon's and Harvey's bonds will be considered when they appear in court. Hamilton continued hearings for both charges until 9 a.m., Jan. 26, after Tucker, who represented all the defendants except McTaggart at the hearing, requested a two-week delay in the proceedings to enable the defendants to obtain legal aid.

Police Court Judge Marion Neely, asked Friday night about the status of Kleinberger and Peterson in his court, said that a grand jury indictment preempted a police court charge and took the cases out of his jurisdiction.

He said he had not been notified officially of the indictments, but that he would transfer all his materials on the cases to District Court when he was notified.

Neely said he was "sure" he would be notified before Monday, when a preliminary hearing for Peterson is scheduled in Police Court. He said the preliminary hearing would not be held.

Neely said that a demurrer Kleinberger had filed in Police Court contesting the constitutionality of the charge would not apply to District Court. Neely said that a new demurrer would have to be filed because an indictment was a different and more detailed legal instrument.

Jansen said all arrests resulted from testimony given during Grand Jury hearings lasting most of the week. He said the findings of the Grand Jury confirmed what he had charged Dec. 6. Jansen had said, "It was a well-planned, well-organized disturbance."

ISU Atomic Scientist Announces Retirement

DES MOINES — Noted Iowa State University scientist Frank H. Spedding is stepping down as director of the university's Institute for Atomic Research and the Atomic Energy Commission's Ames Laboratory.

His retirement, effective July 1, was announced Friday by the Board of Regents, which named the chairman of the university's chemistry department, Robert S. Hansen, to take over the dual post.

Spedding, 65, a pioneer in the nation's atom program, will continue his research activities. He was the first director of the two facilities, which were created after World War II.

On Thursday the regents put off any action until next month on changing University of Iowa housing regulations and dormitory rates. Pres. Howard R. Bowen asked for the delay, saying that further study may be needed concerning the proposed dormitory rate changes. The changes would increase the yearly board

The Grand Jury indictment charged that those arrested for conspiracy had "conspired and confederated, with a wrongful and malicious intent, to do an illegal act injurious to the police on or about Dec. 5."

Place, Time Not Known

Jansen said no place or exact time of the alleged conspiracy was known.

When asked if other indictments were planned in connection with student demonstrations, Jansen said the Grand Jury had delivered only the 10 indictments. He noted, however, that "a grand jury can be recalled at any time."

Nine University students were among witnesses at the Grand Jury hearings.

They are Michael J. Murphy, B2, Reinbeck; Terry Branstad, A3, Webster City; William T. Wharf, A1, Ankeny; Patrick C. O'Conner, A1, Waterloo; David Dallman, A4, Iowa City; Wesley E. Etheridge, A4, Iowa City; James Dorley, A1, Reinbeck; Thomas E. Lyon, L3, Coralville; and Gerhardt Musselman, G, Coralville.

Eleven University Security policemen also testified at the Grand Jury hearings.

They were Leslie Bell, patrolman, Iowa City; Wayne Krouth, sergeant, Solon; Thomas Burns, patrolman, Oxford; Oscar Graham, captain, Iowa City; Ronald Jamnins, detective sergeant, Iowa City; Donald Wilson, detective sergeant, Iowa City; Marilyn Mohr, patrolman, Iowa City; Billie Mitchell, patrolman, Iowa City; Carl Arndt, sergeant, Iowa City; William Fuhrmeister, lieutenant, Iowa City; and Clayton Singleton, sergeant, Coralville.

Ten Iowa City policemen were also witnesses at the hearings. They were Chief Patrick McCarney, Chief of Detectives Donald Strand and director of traffic bureau Capt. Kenneth Stock.

Other Iowa City policemen were Thomas Crowley, David Harris, Ronald L. Evans, Lt. Charles H. Snider, Larry Spicer, Robert Vevera, and Richard Weber.

Johnson County Sheriff Maynard Schnelder was also a witness at the hearings. Glen R. Kohler, a photographer for the Iowa City Press-Citizen, also testified.

Protest Program On As Planned, Despite Arrests

The conference among antiwar demonstrators and legislators was still scheduled for 10 a.m. today in Shambaugh Auditorium — even though some of its organizers were in jail Friday.

Bert Marian, G, North Liberty, who was free on $1,000 bond on a charge of conspiracy, said that the fact that he and some of the demonstrators were in jail part of the day should "only add in interest" to the conference.

He said that Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, was scheduled to moderate a panel discussion at 10 a.m. to include State Sen. Thomas R. Riley (R-Cedar Rapids); Edwin M. Allaire, professor and chairman of the Department of Philosophy, and Winnett Hagens, G, Iowa City.

Riley was placed under a citizen's arrest on a charge of disturbing the peace by Jerald Seis, A4, Valley Stream, N.Y., at the Nov. 1 demonstration.

Riley is regarded by some as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Allaire recently helped plan the organization of a local chapter of Resist, a national antiwar organization. Hagens is a member of Students for a Democratic Society and has written for Middle Earth, an underground newspaper with pacifist leanings.

Marian said that he was unable to recruit representatives of the mass media or law enforcement authorities to speak on proposed panel discussions on the role of the press and police.

A panel discussion is scheduled for 1 p.m. to include Dick Dickens, E4, Iowa City, a member of Young Americans for Freedom, and Ware Smith, G, Honolulu, who was charged with disorderly conduct in connection with the antiwar demonstration, Dec. 5.

Marian said that besides Riley, other legislators who have indicated an interest in attending the conference are State Sens. Robert Burns (D-Johnson County), John Ely (D-Cedar Rapids) and State Rep. Minnette Doderer (D-Iowa City).

The conference, which Marian emphasized is organized by no single student group, is titled "Student Demonstrators — Peaceniks, Pacifists or Prophets?"

and room rate for double and triple rooms at most dormitories from $915 to $954 and start an experimental plan under which students would not have to pay for all meals served in the dining halls.

Under the experimental plan, a student could receive only breakfasts and lunches with a dormitory room for $736. The cost for breakfasts and dinners would be $912. And the cost for lunches and dinners would be $300. The full $954 figure would include all meals now served in the dormitories — three each day and two on Sundays.

Extra charges are made for single rooms, air conditioned rooms and rooms with baths. The rates now being charged for these additional items also would be raised.

At the meeting, concern was expressed over the effect of the new plan on revenue used to pay off the bonds which financed the building of the dormitories.

Draft Suit Challenged

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department asked U.S. District Court Friday to dismiss a lawsuit filed to prevent draft boards from hastening induction of individuals who interfere with the operation of the draft.

The action was brought by the National Student Association (NSA) last December after Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, recommended that draft boards reclassify as 1A those who interfere with the draft.

The Justice Department attacked the NSA suit on two grounds:

1. That the court does not have the jurisdiction to review reclassifications of Selective Service registrants before they are actually inducted, and
2. That the student association, because it is not directly affected by any actions of a draft board, has no standing to bring the case into court.

The department said in a 29-page paper that a 1967 amendment to the Selective Service Act specifically removes jurisdiction from the federal courts to review the classification and processing of any draft registrant before he receives an order to report for induction.

In addition to the National Student Association the suit also was joined in by Students for a Democratic Society and Campus Americans for Democratic Action. Joining the organization were 16 persons, all said to be students at various colleges. The suit is being pressed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Draft Law Violations Leap

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — President Johnson leaped through a report Friday that showed draft card burnings and other Selective Service law violations jumped 77 per cent in 1967 to a 20-year peak. There were 952 convictions resulting from the violations.

The report also said riots and other extremist activities have put a severe strain on the Justice Department's intelligence efforts. Plans are under way to enlist the help of computers and the FBI and the strain may result in a bid for more legislation.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark gave Johnson the report when he conferred with him Thursday about the Justice Department's budget.

19,637 inmates in federal prisons, compared with 19,277 a year earlier. Until 1967 the number of prisoners had been gradually dropping from a high of 23,309 in 1962.

The department said there were more admissions and fewer paroles last year, but it said Bureau of Prisons records showed "another factor was longer sentences for Selective Service violators: an average of 32.1 months compared with 25.4 months in 1966."

Hershey Cancels Date To Protect Boy Scouts

PHILADELPHIA — Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service, has canceled a speech today in suburban St. Davids because of the threat of an antiwar demonstration.

Hershey was to address the annual business meeting of the Valley Forge Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He said it was the "first time" he had been forced to cancel a speech because of protesters. But he said, he had "a responsibility as a Boy Scout leader to see that scouting does not get involved in a controversy," unrelated to it.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Justice Department said that inmate population of the nation's federal prison system rose last year for the first time in five years. The department said one factor was stiffer sentences for draft dodgers.

The department, in its annual year-end report, said at the end of 1967 there were 250 per cent above 1965.

There were 1,648 draft-law prosecutions begun in 1967, 62 per cent more than in 1965 and 226 per cent above 1965.

Training Deadline Set For Riot Control Squad

DAVENPORT — An elite riot control squad of sheriff's deputies should be trained by this spring, Scott County Sheriff William (Blackie) Strout said Friday.

The committee recommendations will be presented to the association's board of directors at a meeting next month, Strout said.

He said organization and training of deputies in the eastern quarter of the state will begin soon and should be completed within six to eight weeks.

The committee has not decided who will do the training, but it could be provided by sheriffs or Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel, Strout said.

The Iowa State Sheriff's Association decided to establish its own riot control force after some sheriffs expressed dissatisfaction with the work of the State Highway Patrol during an antiwar demonstration at the University of Iowa last month.

The association's directors, who also met in Waterloo, put the group on record as opposing "any and all restrictive firearms legislation," contending such laws have "proven completely ineffective as an aid to law enforcement."

A special association committee meeting in Waterloo Thursday, decided the state should be divided into four sections for training purposes. It also agreed on the uniforms to be worn by squad members.

The directors said they would favor a law requiring a mandatory 30-year sentence for anyone committing a crime with a firearm or other deadly weapon.

Physicists To Hold Conference Here

More than 100 leading U.S. space physicists are expected to gather at the University for a Midwest Cosmic Ray Conference March 1 and 2.

at the University since 1959, will be devoted to discussion of solar cosmic rays and solar and interplanetary physics. Sessions are scheduled all day March 1 in the Union Main Ballroom, and March 2 in the Chemistry Building Auditorium.

The conference will be held during the year of America's 10th anniversary in space. On Jan. 31, 1958, an 18-pound satellite, Explorer I, was fired into orbit from Cape Canaveral carrying instruments built by James Van Allen, professor and head of the Department of Physics and Astronomy, and his colleagues.

Morning sessions on both days will be reserved for invited scientific papers and discussion, and afternoon sessions will be devoted to 10-minute contributed papers.

This event, and subsequent Explorer-satellite launches, led to the discovery of the earth's radiation belts by Van Allen and his associates.

Peterson said in court that he had secured an attorney in Des Moines.

The conference, the first such meeting

Co-chairman of the event are Van Allen, and S.M. Krimigis, assistant professor of physics and astronomy.

Invitations to attend the conference have been sent to physicists from eight countries, including the U.S.S.R.

Views from other colleges on new draft proposal

UT paper sees increase in grad school problems; criticizes draft's indecision

The increasing demands of the war in Vietnam — in the arenas of both finances and manpower — are spelling trouble for graduate schools across the nation. The University of Texas Graduate School is a case at hand, according to a recent speech by Lorene Rogers, associate dean of the Graduate School.

In the last several years, the Graduate School has been earning a name of distinction and boasts the fastest rate of growth at the university. The current enrollment is more than 5,000 students.

Yet, already the Graduate School is feeling a tremendous amount of pressure in the area of finances — especially in the realm of fellowships. Federal grants have been reduced by about 50 per cent for the next year.

Officials are also forecasting a drain of finances from the state. Professor Rogers said that although good financial support had been the major reason for the success of the Graduate School, legislators "can't sell" graduate school to their constituents.

Of course, another big worry of graduate students — or potential graduate students — is the draft since deferments have been taken away.

It would be entirely possible for a student to start graduate school and then be suddenly called up for service. Although many believe that graduate school has been simply a method of evading the draft for a great number of students, there is quite a bit of dislike for the new ruling.

It will probably put a lot more women into the teaching profession, which is neither good nor bad, except for the feeling that men had just begun really to penetrate the business of education especially in the elementary and high school grades. This was helping men demand higher salaries thus benefiting all teachers and because many excellent teachers have been added who would not have considered the field in earlier years.

It will also put a drain in other fields which require special education above the bachelor's degree.

Perhaps the greatest fault of the present military draft plans — excluding claims of some that is "slavery" — is that for the average man there is a great deal of indecision.

His future is suspended for a while after the first degree. Will he be drafted? Should he continue in school? What will happen if he decides to make a major purchase such as a house or automobile? Who will hire a man who may or may not be drafted within the next few days or weeks or months?

Still, it's not hard to understand the decision not to give deferments to graduate students just on the basis of that they are students. Education is vital to the growth of this nation. And the concept is growing that the government should take more of a hand in furthering education for those who want it. Yet, should this paternalism keep going indefinitely? Should it extend through one degree? Two? Three?

The current program was undoubtedly adopted in an attempt both to equalize the chances of men from all social classes going into the military service and to make more men eligible for the draft.

Hopefully, the graduate schools of the nation have enough of a head start that they will be able to pull back up after the demands let up some.

Texas Tech newspaper sees confusion of values in new deferment proposal

The tentative decision recommended to the National Security Council to offer draft deferments to graduate students in the fields of natural science, mathematics, engineering and health while withholding such privileges from graduate students of the "humanities," again shows the imbalanced attitude of government officials in making the nation's draft policies.

This decision of the Council, headed by President Johnson himself, is expected to state that deferments will be given in virtually unlimited numbers to those studying in the sciences "vital to national interest."

According to this criterion, history, economics, sociology, fine arts and law are non-critical occupations, and their study would be neglected, creating a future world much like Aldous Huxley's.

An even more immediate consideration is the effect the drain would have on teaching and studying the humanities in the future.

According to the proposed policy, special attention will be given to those who study the concepts necessary to make and aid war and defense but little aid will be given to those who study instead the non-war aspects of life.

Such preferential treatment can only complicate the already confused idea that a nation's strength is in its physical power, not in its people's intellect and sense of values.

Indictments questioned

Conspiracy has ominous connotations.

According to its Latin roots, to "conspire" means merely to "breathe together"; it has come to mean planning with someone else to commit some act, usually of a criminal or anti-social nature.

It is the planning with someone else, rather than the actual commission of an act, that distinguishes conspiracy from other criminal charges, and there lies the rub.

America's history is stained with examples of hysterical authorities' imputing unto others charges of conspiring to do one thing or another, usually to the detriment of civil liberties.

One thinks, for example, of the Salem Puritans' accusing helpless persons of conspiring with the devil to commit witchcraft; of federal agents' accusing German socialist immigrants of conspiring to aid the Kaiser during World War I; of Sen. McCarthy's demagogic assertions that Communists in the State Department were conspiring to sell out to the Soviet Union.

Those concerned with maintaining the integrity of the Bill of Rights, especially the cherished freedoms of speech and assembly, are particularly disturbed when the charges of conspiracy involve plots that are of essentially a political rather than a criminal nature.

No sensible person, for example, would deny that the government should prosecute a gang of thieves caught conspiring to rob a bank. But when the conspiracy charge is leveled at a group of students who plan — or conspire, if you prefer — to stage an antiwar demonstration, the situation becomes considerably more sensitive.

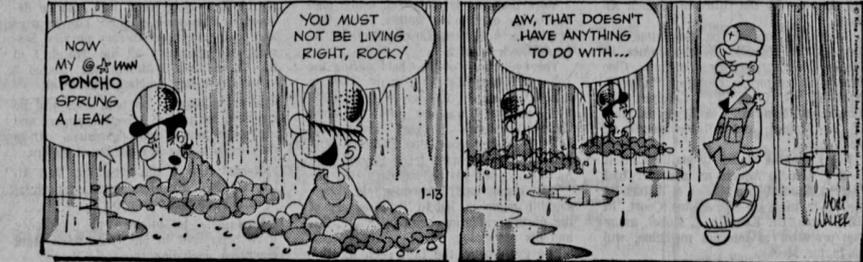

It was disturbing to sit in the courtroom Friday morning and listen as the six young men, clad in their dreary jail jeans and denim shirts, were accused of conspiracy. It was all the more alarming to realize that each could receive a maximum of three years in the penitentiary if found guilty.

Whether the six actually were guilty of conspiracy remains, of course, a decision to be made by a judge and jury. But surely our society has a more sophisticated means of dealing with dissenters than to threaten them with a penitentiary sentence.

'Fitzwilly' called a waste of time

By NICHOLAS MEYER

From the beginnings of theater and literature, servants, perfidious and loyal — and especially the loyal ones — have fascinated authors and readers alike. D'Artagnan had Grimaud, Fog had Passpartout, and entire families possessed either admirable Crichtons or our man Godfreys. From Plautus' wily slaves to Terry Thomas serving Jack Lemmon with impeccable British aplomb, servants make great additions to many plots. In particular, the loyal butler who serves a widowed or maiden mistress and spends his energy keeping up her illusions as well as her house is theme which doesn't seem to dry up easily. The most bizarre reworking of it was seen in Billy Wilder's masterpiece, "Sunset Boulevard," where Erich von Stroheim was butler (and erstwhile director and husband) of Gloria Swanson, a faded silent screen star, living her days in the mad seclusion of a rotting mansion. Von Stroheim attempted to maintain her past by mailing her fan letters constantly, giving her reason to believe that her popularity still existed, years after its actual demise.

Such a theme is inherently romantic or at least sentimental, and demands careful treatment. "Fitzwilly," in which Dick van Dyke spends all his energies on fantastic robberies to keep his mistress (Edith Evans) from knowing she hasn't a penny, fails because if the idea isn't actually being burlesqued, neither is it really being taken seriously and audience reactions must fall in a vacuum somewhere in between the two possible responses.

The film is unbelievable from every aspect. Why handsome, intelligent Dick van Dyke (with a cum laude degree from Williams, yet) should be butler to Edith Evans in the first place is beyond me. Where that devoted staff of a dozen servants who daily risk prison for her none-too-sweet sake come from is likewise unclear, especially when one considers the problems with most domestics these days.

There might be some justification if the robberies themselves were interesting, but they are neither ingenious nor once believable. Van Dyke is a capable actor and comedian, but he is miscast. Edith Evans is beautiful as always, but she has a thankless role and one that does not give her much opportunity to show off her tremendous talents. Barbara Feldon, new to movies, mars the role of the innocent secretary who falls in love with the butler and in the process stirs up a hornet's nest by discovering the source of the family income, by over-acting terribly. And the whole thing is fouled by Delbart Mann's saccharine handling which seems designed to out-goo Walt Disney at his worst.

A modern day humorous treatment of the butler-who-keeps-mistress-in-chips-and-dreams is not a bad idea, but like so many Hollywood films it gets gummed up with bright colors, wide screens and poor writing. There is a laugh here and there, but the tears when they could conceivably come are studio applied synthetic drops. One gets the feeling that the filming had to stop after every sugary line so that the actors could take time out to guffaw for five minutes and recover their nerve.

The short playing with it is a beautifully photographed ad for Germany which comes without narration and is stunning to look at, but don't waste final-study-time by staying for the feature.

Rubber Band made promising city debut

By JOHN LOWENS

The Rubber Band, a jug band formed two months ago at the University of Northern Iowa, made a promising Iowa City debut Thursday. The group's lively sound kept feet tapping at Stan and Mary's Nutshell for a highly enjoyable hour.

The Nutshell, if you've not heard, is that smoky cavern beneath Burlington Street where, at irregular intervals, local poets, authors, and musicians read and play and where the entertainment and the peanuts are free.

The six-member Rubber Band showed its inexperience in several ways but this did not detract from a fine performance. All the numbers played Thursday night were borrowed from the Kweskin Band, the acknowledged leader in the jug music field. The costumes and stage manner of the group mimicked Kweskin as much as its repertory, but the Rubber Band offered several original touches. They are just too talented to remain mimicks for long.

They use a piano in all their numbers, something Kweskin does not do, and they use the kazoo sparingly, relying on the megaphone voice of their leader, John Steffa. Their rendition of "Wild About My Lovin'" was carried by Steffa's voice which made the suggestive lyrics downright erotic.

The best voice in the group, though, is the rich bass of mandolinist Rod Clarkson. Clarkson's talent was emphasized far too little in the band's arrangements.

Iowa, Ohio State Play Here Today

Vivid hues of Big 10 basketball splash onto the TV screens of 11 midwestern states at 1:15 this afternoon as Iowa and Ohio State perform before Sports Network's color cameras.

Iowa plays its 27th televised game since its inaugural match Jan. 22, 1955. The Hawkeyes have a 17-9 record on TV. In games with Ohio State, the record is 3-0, with wins in 1963 at Iowa City and in 1966 and '67 at Columbus.

Iowa was beaten by Northwestern last Saturday in its conference opener, while Ohio State dunked Purdue 108-80. So this game is extremely important for the Hawks. Another loss would saddle them with a big burden.

Williams, Hosket Duel
An anticipated highlight of the game will be the scoring duel between Iowa's Sam Williams and Ohio State's Bill Hosket. Williams is averaging 24.9 points per game, Hosket 22.2.

Hosket is a 6-7, 228-pound forward. He has been making 50 per cent of his shots. Williams was the No. 3 scorer in the conference last year with a 25.2 average. But Hosket was right behind him with a 22.8 mark. He compiled 47 average despite a bad knee.

The Buckeyes are a physically strong club. Four starters range from 6-4 to 6-7 and weigh from 200-228 pounds. Iowa's hope to win, as usual, rides on breaking the Bucks with pressure.

But pressure defense won't mean much unless the Hawks get some scoring help to go with Williams. Forward Ron Norman and sophomore guard Chad Calabria have 11.2 and 11.0 averages, but it seems like hardly enough to offset the Ohio State scoring potential.

The Bucks' Steve Howell is averaging 18.8 and Dave Sorensen 16.3 per game. As a team, Ohio State is hitting at a 49 per cent clip, Iowa 41 per cent.

Ohio State Coach Freddie Taylor has never beaten Ralph Miller-coached teams. Miller has defeated the Bucks five straight times. The overall series between the schools is tied at 32 wins apiece.

ALI APPEALS—HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Muhammad Ali's appeal of his June conviction on draft evasion charges will be heard by a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Feb. 19.

Coaches Entertain Recruits

The football coaching staff is hosting six promising high school football players this weekend. Four of the athletes are from the Chicago area, two from Pennsylvania.

The players are Pat Hendron, 6-2, 190-pound tailback from Marian Catholic High School of Chicago Heights; Lorin Lynch, 6-2, 220-pound guard from Joliet West, Joliet, Ill.; Joe Baranick, 6-0, 200-pound tackle-fullback from Monroeville, Pa., Gateway High School; Sonny Allen, 5-11, 180-pound halfback from Westinghouse High, Pittsburgh; Carl Calandra, 6-1, 230-pound lineman from Weber High, Chicago; and Tom Wanat, 6-1, 225-pound tackle from Weber.

Hendron ran for 900 yards in 150 carries last season, scoring 30 points. He caught seven passes for 90 yards and threw two times for two completions and 60 yards. Lynch has the size and quickness to become a fine Big 10 lineman, according to the coaches. He has excellent speed which has made him a top pursuit man and downfield blocker.

Allen has been an outstanding performer for the perennial Pittsburgh City League champs. He is a game-breaking type of runner, possessing outstanding speed.

Both Wanat and Calandra were outstanding performers for Weber in the always tough Chicago Catholic League. They were all-conference selections. Baranick played tackle until his senior year, then was moved to fullback where he too was all-conference.

Solon Clubs U-High

Solon High School rode the 24-point firing of Tony Krucic to a 67-43 victory over University High in the Eastern Iowa Hawkeyes Conference Friday night.

Jerry Doyle chipped in with 19 points for the Spartans. U-High's high point man was Stan Campbell with 13.

Wrestlers, Fencers Compete Today

By JIM JOHNSTON

The Iowa wrestlers meet the University of Minnesota in dual competition at Minneapolis today without the aid of the top men in two weights.

Dave Mayberry, who has started at 130 pounds for the Hawks this year, is sick and will be replaced in the lineup by Bob Machacek.

Also, John Neumeister, Phil Henning and Russell Sill, who are the leading wrestlers in the 167 pound division, are sick and will not be able to compete.

Sill, who was a standout for the Hawks last year has been bothered by a knee injury all season and has not wrestled yet this year. He recently recovered from the injury but has been sick this week and probably won't compete against the Gophers.

Coach Dave McCuskey said that if none of the regulars at 167 were better by meet time, then Jerome Lee would have to fill in. Lee, whose wrestling weight is 152 pounds, would thus have his work cut out for him if he is pressed into action.

Minnesota has a strong team but, it is not one of the top contenders in the Big 10, according to McCuskey. He said that the Hawks and Gophers were pretty evenly matched.

son and there are eight lettersmen from that team competing this year.

Hermann said that today's lineup probably would be picked from among co-captain George Bergeman, Phil Carter, Doug Corey and Rod Paine in foil; co-captain Kent Grieshaber, John Schewepe, Bill Walz and Jim Hoener in epee; and Karl Lunekkas, Nile Falk, Roy Ritzmann and Jon Rasmussen in sabre.

Gymnasts, Swimmers Undergo Road Tests

All the weekend athletic activity of Iowa teams takes place today. Five teams compete in seven contests.

Aside from the basketball, wrestling and fencing teams, the gymnasts and swimmers are also in action. The swim team left Friday with the wrestlers for a dual meet with Minnesota. The gymnasts are at Columbus, Ohio, to meet Ohio State and Ball State.

The swimmers have defeated Northern Illinois in their only dual meet to date. The gym team is unbeaten in five dual meets, including Big 10 opponents Wisconsin, Indiana and Minnesota. The gymnasts defeated Western Illinois here Wednesday.

Quakes Rumble Through Sicily Kill Nearly 300

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — A shallow succession of earthquakes rumbled through the snowy and mountainous area of Sicily Monday. Police estimated nearly 300 persons were killed. Many of the stricken communities still out of touch, and officials feared final death toll might be 500 or more. About 10,000 persons were left homeless and spent the night outdoors under tents pitched by the Italian army.

The quakes toppled houses, hospitals, medieval castles and churches in worse disaster to hit the island since a hospital at Montevago collapsed, killing 200 persons. Police said most of them were killed.

Aid, Relief Sent In
Spurred by police reports of almost 300 deaths in the rubble of half a dozen towns and villages, the Italian government mounted a massive rescue and relief effort.

Trucks, cars, ships and planes loaded with tents, blankets, food and medicine made their way through freezing weather to the disaster zone. Hundreds of helplessly huddled in the cold. Many built fires.

The stricken area, considered a stronghold of the Mafia, is formed by a triangle of the towns of Salemi, Poggioreale, Santa Margherita di Belice. Several small hamlets, fearing new shocks through the volcanic island — the largest and most populated of the island.

Five tremors shook the region Sunday as it was digging out from one of the worst snowfalls of the century. Seven more tremors came Monday starting at 2:34 a.m.

Tremors Were Strong
Some of the tremors recorded 9 p.m. on the 10-point Mercalli earthquake scale — strong enough to knock down buildings. "It was like going on a ship and dreadfully seasick," said a Palermo man who joined crowds fleeing the capital for the countryside.

Interior Minister Paolo Emilio Tullio from Rome. Pope Paul VI sent the Vatican called a "conspicuous" aid to the victims.

As dusk the mountainous farming region was a scene of death and desolation. In Montevago, where the hospital lapsed, volunteer rescue teams and men reinforced by army troops were digging mangled bodies out of the rubble. Most of the town was destroyed.

Gibellina, a town of 7,000 inhabitants was totally ruined. Sulphur fumes blew through several cracks in the mountain side. Also wrecked was Salaparuta, a 1,300 farmers lived.

LONDON (AP) — Protests by five national forces Prime Minister Harold Wilson forced Monday to consider basing nuclear air-force in Singapore — beyond a general pullout by 1971.

Wilson's weary Cabinet also pondered cancellation of an order for 50 American F-111s, with most signs suggesting billion-dollar contract for the swing-bomber has been axed.

In a day-long session, British ministers approved the final shape of a package state spending cuts transforming Britain's once-proud world role and the face of welfare state.

Policy A 'Cure-All'
Wilson is due to present the new policy to the House of Commons today as Labor government's cure-all for the nation's chronic economic ills.

At the center of the program was a basic decision to abandon Britain's military role east of Suez — which was meant in practical terms quitting Southeast Asian bases in Malaysia, Singapore and its Persian Gulf bases Bahrain and Sharjah. This major political decision was intended in part to win backing of rank-and-file Laborites massive retrenchments at home, not in the social service.

A reaction of deep dismay arose at a time five of Britain's key partners — the United States, Malaysia, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

President Johnson would privately Wilson saying he had no wish to in here but stressing his view that this an ill-timed moment to announce Britain's withdrawal from the area.
