Computer To Aid Air War Efforts

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. 7th Air Force will put into operation soon a multimillion-dollar forward looking communications system linking its 15 major fighter bases in Southeast Asia, it was learned Friday.

Jets Hit Heavily In Monsoon Break

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bomber pilots utilized breaks in monsoon clouds over North Vietnam's heartland Thursday for their heaviest visual raids in two weeks on objectives between Hanoi and the frontier of Red China.

The U.S. Command announced Friday two Air Force F4 Phantoms were lost from undetermined causes and a Communist MIG17 was destroyed by a Phantom's missile fired up its tailpipe during wide-ranging attacks north of the Communist capital.

Jet crewmen, who depend largely on radar guidance when winter storms blanket the countryside, had direct sightings for runs on such objectives as a radar site, the Bac Giang power plant, the Kep air base and the Ha Gia highway bridge, all 20 miles or more from Hanoi.

Two 10-truck convoys in the southern panhandle were among supply line targets in 112 missions. Pilots said they set off two secondary explosions, numerous fires, and destroyed or damaged many of the trucks.

The convoys perhaps were to supply North Vietnamese divisions in and near the demilitarized zone, the border sector in which U.S. Marines have said they expect a major Communist offensive to erupt before the truce for Tet, the lunar new year holiday Jan. 30.

Some 400 Marine riflemen, helicopter gunships and artillery all but wiped out a detachment of about 200 North Vietnamese regulars a little more than a mile south of the DMZ Thursday in the heaviest fighting of the past week. Spokesmen reported the Marines killed 39. Eight Marines were killed and 39 wounded.

Officials Assail Teacher Placing

DES MOINES (AP) — Officials of the State Department of Public Instruction Friday expressed concern over the number of Iowa teachers who either lack state certification to teach or are not teaching in their assigned areas.

Donald Cox, associate state superintendent, called the situation a "prevalent practice" in both public and nonpublic schools.

In some cases, he said, the situation was getting worse. State Superintendent Paul Johnston said that some teachers might lack certification, more prevalent was the case of persons not teaching in their assigned area.

Johnston told a meeting of the Board of Public Instruction the problem was not new, but he said that if the state was going to have certification rules, it should live up to them.

He recommended getting a "complete picture" of the situation and then looking into it to see what could be done as far as the law is concerned.

Eartha Kitt Isn't Sorry For Outburst But First Lady Regrets 'Shrill Voice'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Entertainer Eartha Kitt insisted Friday that President and Mrs. Johnson don't understand juvenile delinquency. And the First Lady said she regrets "the shrill voice of anger" obscured other aspects of a somewhat stormy distaff luncheon at the White House.

These were highlights of a day-after verbal tempest stirred by the Negro singer's impromptu, dining-table denunciation of the Vietnam war and its impact on American families and their sons.

Miss Kitt said at an airport news conference in Los Angeles Friday she isn't sorry she declared youngsters are angry because their parents are angry about a costly war they don't understand. She added she'd do it again.

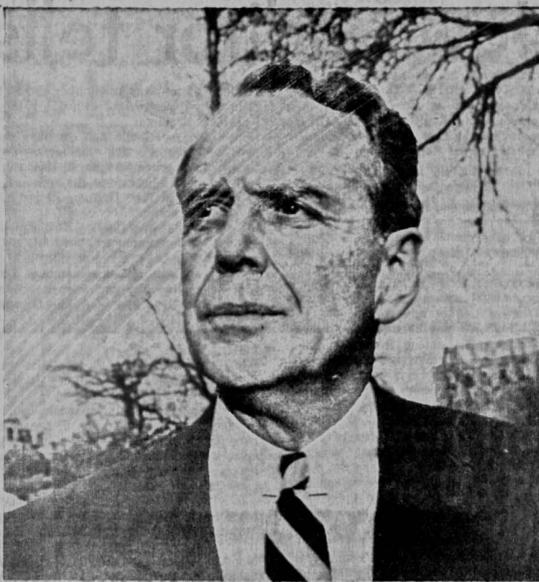

"It will give us at least 1,000 per cent improvement in our capabilities to process data and to process the frag orders," said one Air Force officer. This is Air Force terminology for fragmentary orders that detail and outline a particular strike that is part of an over-all long-range plan.

The new central computer at the 7th Air Force command center at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport, will feed instant information from the other 14 bases via sophisticated digital communications equipment. It also will give the air war planners an after-the-fact analysis of what happened.

"It will tell them not only what happened, but why it happened," the Air Force officer said. "The key is communications."

The new system, called the Pacific Air Force Interim Automated Command and Control System, will link Pacific Air Force Command headquarters at Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii with major fighter bases in Southeast Asia. The 7th has operational control over air strikes against North Vietnam. The bulk of these strikes are flown from the five fighter-bomber bases in Thailand.

The system will be operational this spring, informants said, replacing the present IBM 1410 computer doing some of this work now.

NEW MAN IN DEFENSE POST — Washington lawyer Clark Clifford, shown as he walked to the White House Friday from his nearby office, is the new man in the Pentagon — or soon will be. He was nominated to succeed Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara by President Johnson Friday. Confirmation of his appointment by the Senate is expected.

Clifford Named Pentagon Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clark Clifford, an adviser to presidents since Harry H. Truman, was chosen by President Johnson Friday to be the new secretary of defense.

Johnson said Clifford "helped put the place together" when the armed services were reorganized into a unified Defense Department after World War II.

Appointment of the 61-year-old Washington attorney to succeed Robert S. McNamara at the Pentagon won quick endorsement from key Congress members.

Clifford's nomination to the Cabinet post will require Senate approval, and that seemed assured on the basis of Capitol Hill reaction.

In his new post Clifford will receive $35,000 a year. Clifford has served as a consultant on diplomatic, intelligence and defense matters.

McNamara will become president of the World Bank and, Johnson told a news conference, he will be out of the Defense Department no later than March 1.

President Praises McNamara The President saw both Clifford and McNamara during the day and had words of strong praise for each. Later Clifford came to the White House and had a news conference of his own at which he said he is in no position to answer questions on policy or substance in advance of Senate committee hearings on his nomination. Asked how he characterized his position on Vietnam — whether he is a hawk or dove — Clifford replied: "I am not conscious of falling under any of those ornithological divisions."

Yes, he said, he believed Johnson had talked to him about some Cabinet post. Asked what made him change his mind, he smiled and answered: "When the President of the United States looks you in the eye and says the time has come for you as a citizen of this country to assume this burden I don't think you turn it down."

Clifford said he had no detailed information on Pentagon operations at this point, but did not contemplate any changes in the administration of the Defense Department now.

He said he intends to "carry on the remarkable and unique accomplishments" of McNamara, whom he credited with coming close to the goals of the law which unified the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Strategist For Truman Clifford was one of the chief strategists of the campaign that won an upset victory for Truman in the 1948 presidential election. But he expects to be out of politics in his new position.

"In my opinion," he said "this is about as nonpolitical an appointment as President Johnson has ever made."

As for running for some office after his tour of duty as defense secretary, Clifford grinned and said: "I'm 61 years old and I'm sure this will finish me off."

The Pentagon post has no set tenure, McNamara has held it for seven years, the longest yet. Clifford said he intends to sever all connections with his law firm and dispose of any stocks, securities, or other assets that would interfere in any way with his using completely objective judgment as defense secretary.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called Clifford's selection "an excellent choice," and Chairman L. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.) of the House Armed Services Committee said, "I am confident that the defense of the nation will be in good hands."

Johnston said he had checked with both Russell and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, the ranking Republican on the Senate committee, before announcing the appointment. He termed their reaction "very good."

Bromwell To Air Campaign Intent

DES MOINES (AP) — Former U.S. Representative James Bromwell of Cedar Rapids apparently intends today to make good his pledge to run for the Senate if Bourke Hickenlooper retired.

Republican Bromwell, who was swept out of Congress in the Democratic landslide of 1964, has scheduled a 2 p.m. news conference here.

Bromwell, 47, was quoted Dec. 1 as saying "If Sen. Hickenlooper doesn't run, I will." The veteran Hickenlooper announced Dec. 28 that his fourth term, which expires at year's end, would end 24 years of Senate service for him.

Bromwell had served two terms from Iowa's 2nd District before being beaten by Rep. John Culver, also of Cedar Rapids.

In 1966, he surprised political allies by announcing he would not be a candidate for either his old seat or the governorship, both of which were considered potential targets.

Bromwell's entrance into the race would make it a two- and possibly three-way contest for the GOP nomination. Muscatine attorney David Stanley has already announced his candidacy and Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) has hinted he may run.

Gerber Gives Support To Dismissal Proposal

By MARY ANN McEVROY John C. Gerber, professor and head of the Department of English, said Friday he agreed in principle with proposals written by graduate teaching assistants in rhetoric and core literature regarding suspension or dismissal of teaching assistants.

Approximately 25 rhetoric and core literature graduate assistants have been working for three weeks on proposals to guide the administration in cases of suspension or dismissal of teaching assistants.

Gerber said that the graduate assistants needed protection from arbitrary acts on the part of the University administration. The proposals, which the graduates hope will eventually become official policy for the College of Liberal Arts, consists of the following main steps:

• Any complaint, other than teaching incompetence, made against a graduate teaching assistant would be made to his supervisor.

• If action were necessary, the supervisor would inform the teacher of the complaint. If no mutually satisfactory solution could be reached, a board of inquiry would be established by the department head to determine if there were sufficient cause to investigate the complaint.

• Whether there was sufficient cause for an investigation or not would be determined by a majority vote of the board.

• If there were cause for investigation, another committee would be appointed for it by the department head. This committee would hear testimony pertaining to the case and would have to complete its investigation within 30 days.

• The investigating committee's meetings would be open or closed according to the desire of the chairman.

• After the investigation the committee might exonerate the instructor, put him on probation, suspend him with or without pay or dismiss him.

• The teacher then would have the option of appealing to the executive committee of the College of Liberal Arts. This committee recently agreed to act as an appeal board in cases of suspension or dismissal of graduate teaching assistants.

No Official Procedures The reason for these proposals is that the University has no official procedures to suspend or dismiss graduate teaching assistants. The case of Paul Kleinberger, G. Silver Spring, Md., caused interest in this point because some graduate assistants thought the procedures used in Kleinberger's case were unjust.

Kleinberger is the rhetoric instructor who was dismissed Jan. 3 after he was charged with conspiracy in connection with the Dec. 5 antiwar demonstration.

Antiwar Mood At ISU Said Growing Stronger

There haven't been any spectacular demonstrations like there's been in Iowa City and other university towns across the nation, but the antiwar mood has been taking hold in Ames just the same.

This was the assessment of Robert Muehlmann, instructor in philosophy at Iowa State University, and one of four persons who "turned in" their draft cards on Jan. 12 at the ISU Union.

Muehlmann, a Ph.D. candidate in philosophy at the University here, was in Iowa City Friday visiting friends. He told The Daily Iowan that he was heartened by the growing antiwar mood at ISU, noting that when he joined the ISU faculty in September there was little noticeable antiwar sentiment on campus.

Hostility towards the war in Vietnam and the draft has grown "quite a bit" in recent months, Muehlmann said. He noted that the recent antiwar demonstrations in Iowa City had heated fuel on the growing fire of antiwar sentiment at ISU.

Muehlmann, who has completed all his coursework toward his doctorate at the University and is now at work on his thesis, is co-chairman of the newly organized Ames Resistance Movement (ARM).

Last Friday, ARM sponsored an antiwar meeting at the ISU Union in which four persons publicly deposited their draft cards in an envelope which was later sealed and sent to the U.S. marshal in Des Moines. Also included in the envelope was a letter of complaint in the "turn in" (being without your draft card is a federal offense) signed by 32 students and faculty members who also pledged continued resistance to the draft.

Those who mailed in their cards, beside Muehlmann, were Norris Yates, professor of English, and two students: Ernie Mebler, a graduate student, and Jim Ryan, a sophomore.

At least three other ISU students have turned in their draft cards in recent months, Muehlmann said, including Jim Rundle, a former ISU student who two weeks ago refused induction at Ft. Des Moines and has subsequently been indicted on a draft evasion charge by a federal grand jury.

Muehlmann predicted that antiwar activities on the ISU campus would continue and increase in size and scope.

He said that at least four other students at ISU were planning on turning in their draft cards in the near future.

Chamber Warned Downtown's Fate 'Hell In A Bucket'

"Downtown Iowa City is going to hell in a bucket, unless businessmen get together and give people the downtown they deserve," City Manager Frank Smiley declared Friday night.

Smiley, addressing the Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet, warned those assembled in the Union that some day the federal government might tell Iowa City that the more than $8 million allocated for urban renewal here was no longer available.

"1968 may be the year we hear some other smart city has gotten our urban renewal money," Smiley said.

Smiley also warned Chamber members that one day the University might write off the business area as "a lost cause."

"A downtown renewal program will take sweat, money and working together — it isn't going to be easy," Smiley said.

Smiley told those assembled that their help was needed to work for a better Iowa City. "If you don't want to help, please don't block the door," said Smiley.

"The principle job of a city manager is to develop a climate of confidence in the city," Smiley said.

David Hartwig, 1967 Chamber president, said the principle accomplishment during his year as president was upgrading the structure of the Chamber.

In six months the Chamber is to move to new offices in the Jefferson building, Hartwig said.

Robert Bennett, the new Chamber president, called on members to "do your share" and ask "What help shall I give the Chamber?"

"Iowa City must fight hard enough to insure proper growth," Bennett said.

Heart Transplant Bank Signs Up Potential Donors

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Western Pennsylvania Heart Association optimistically began signing up potential donors for a heart transplant bank Friday, but said it might be years before the bank becomes a reality.

John J. Griffith, an association official, indicated at a news conference the donor registration was designed to eliminate any legal obstacles that might crop up later when time would be a critical factor in an operating room.

The donor, thus, would have agreed in advance to give his heart. Upon his death, the heart could be removed and placed in the chest of a needy heart patient.

While announcing the drive to reporters, the association signed up its first volunteer, Mrs. Joseph M. Barr, the wife of Pittsburgh's mayor.

Griffith didn't know if it was the first heart donor campaign in the world. "I can say we have heard of no other heart registry," he said.

Tone Lightens In Baker Church Trial

As sounds of a rehearsing choir drifted through the walls of the 100-year-old First Presbyterian Church, the bizarre church trial of Joseph E. Baker moved into phase four Friday night.

Baker, professor of English, and his wife, Matilda, are being tried for disturbing the peace and unity of the First Presbyterian Church.

The heated tone of the first two hearings seemed to be replaced with a lighter note Friday. The approximately 125 trial observers applauded, laughed and commented among themselves during the course of questioning. Baker himself laughed and smiled during prosecution questioning of witnesses.

The Rev. Roscoe Wolvington, judicial commission moderator, proposed a time schedule to the prosecution and the Bakers to save what he termed "money, time and human resources."

Wolvington said his time proposal was to allow for a fair and equitable decision within a reasonable time limit.

Baker objected to the time limit suggested because he said the defense could not be presented in the time allowed.

Wolvington referred the matter to the six other commission members who ruled that a time schedule be adopted subject to amendment.

According to the schedule the prosecution will conclude with its witnesses at noon today. Baker's defense will begin at 1:30 this afternoon and continue until 4 p.m.

Trial sessions scheduled for Jan. 27 and 28 will include defense testimony. The defense case will conclude at noon, Jan. 29 with both prosecution and defense arguments limited by 4 p.m.

A limit on cross examination time was also set. Cross examination of a witness can last only twice as long as the questions asked by the witness' caller.

College Of Dentistry Eyeing Computer-Assisted Teaching

A tutor, private and tirelessly patient, may be in the offing for University dental students of the '70s. The tutor is a computer, an IBM 1500, which is presently being used to teach reading to children in California, math to high school students, and subjects ranging from psychology to foreign languages in some universities.

Now the computer is being eyed by the College of Dentistry as an efficient way to teach ever increasing amounts of subject matter to ever growing numbers of students.

"Dental educators recognize that the explosion of knowledge, the obsolescence of present teaching methods and the rise in the number of dental students are problems urgently demanding attention," says Dr. Devore Killip, director of continuing education in dentistry.

It is called CAI. And in the hope that the computer will solve some of these problems, Dean Donald J. Calagan of the College of Dentistry is making plans for what is called

Final Exam Time Can Be Anytime

No regulations force an instructor to give his final exam at the time indicated by the final exam schedule, according to the Evaluation and Examination Service.

Hugh Kello, associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said Friday that faculty and staff were encouraged to give the tests at the scheduled times although no rules enforced the practice.

Instructors who do not abide by the schedule are required to inform their students when and where the final exam will be held.

According to the Office of Space Assignment, only 220 rooms have been reserved to give tests to students in classes that have only one section.

City Library To Present Silent Movie

For those who enjoy old movies, the Iowa City Public Library will present "The man of a thousand faces," Lon Chaney, in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at 8 p.m. Thursday in the library auditorium.

This movie, produced in 1923, is the third in the current American Film Classics Series being sponsored by the library. Unlike the films shown earlier in the series, "The Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," which were known for their expansion of film techniques, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" offers an audience only entertainment and Chaney's performance, according to library officials.

Chaney's film career consisted primarily of roles calling for physical deformities and villainous behavior. He opened the vista of American horror movies to his successors such as Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi.

Lon Chaney, who was already established as a character actor by the time this movie was made, had an opportunity to display his talent as a master of make-up.

"We must remember," says S. Schoer, "that the computer is really just a big, dumb piece of machinery. It's the intelligence put into it by people that counts."

"At the present time," Schoer says, "we simply need more people to explore its possibilities in many fields of teaching, and to work at developing its potential."

"This is what the dentists here are doing," he said.

HUD MOVES

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has announced that it has received a $3 million grant from the federal government to fund a proposed urban renewal project in Iowa City.

Barry Lumbberg, the city's planning and urban renewal director, said the grant would be used to fund a study of the city's urban renewal program. The study would be completed by the end of the year.

HUD gives a city that has received an urban renewal grant a month planning period to get underway. Iowa City's planning pines in February. Thus far, low received an $3 million grant but has taken no action on the new project.

In September, 20 local balled the council's action on renewal measures by petitioning County District Court Judge Clayton for issuance of an injunction to stop the city from proceeding with the project.

The temporary injunction was joined by former councilman Rieger, former mayor William C. Councilman Robert Lind and Mayor Loren Hickerson from taking action because of an alleged "injunction" in redevelopment.

A court hearing is scheduled to determine whether the injunction is permanent or lifted. T. of the three new city councilmembers, Jim Brandt and Lee have been timed as defendants.

The city's letter from HUD said the injunction be upheld or set aside. The court act by Jun reservation will be cancelled."

City Atty. Jay Honohan said he would file a motion to set aside the court's injunction. He said the injunction was not permanent.

"The letter speaks for itself," Honohan said. "It is clear that the city is proceeding with the project and that the injunction is not permanent."

"It is suggested that you (the city) expediently to avert this situation," Honohan said.

GREENLAND CR
COPENHAGEN — Foreign Hans Tabor reminded the United States that planes loaded with devices are not allowed to fly over land or any Danish territory.

On the eve of national elections, demonstrators appeared on the main Parliament — saying signs continued Danish neutrality and the United States.

Meanwhile, in Washington the reported Monday night that son wreckage of the Air Force B-57 crashed in flames off Greenland night had been observed on the ice by helicopters.

The plane had been carrying four unarmed hydrogen bombs. Six of the seven crewmen perished. The seventh was killed.

WAR
SAIGON — A handful of U.S. and South Vietnamese men were trying to defend the low Sanh in South Vietnam's northern Monday after a weekend North Vietnamese attacks.

The withdrawal of the defense of an exodus of civilians who fled would be at the mercy of the North Vietnamese.

Khe Sanh is a district town north of the DMZ.
