Viet Cong Shell Airbase

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong gun squads shelled the big Bien Hoa airbase and other military targets around Saigon before dawn today. The attacks and reports of large enemy troop units in the area lent support to fears of another Red drive on South Vietnam's capital.

Fourteen persons were killed and 25 wounded when about 40 rounds of 122mm rockets slammed into the allied base at Bien Hoa, 15 miles north of Saigon, South Vietnamese officers said.

The South Vietnamese said 25 rounds of 82mm mortars hit a government army unit nearby, wounding one soldier. In a third attack at Bien Hoa, government sources said, Red shells hit the headquarters of an American Special Forces — Green Beret — unit.

One of the Communists' favorite targets, Tan Son Nhut air base, received two rocket rounds during the night. No casualties were reported and damage was described as negligible.

Infantrymen Fight

American infantrymen fought Viet Cong in the Mekong Delta 80 miles southwest of Saigon on Tuesday while announcement that Communist armored vehicles had been intercepted closer to the city contributed to the capital's jitters.

Amid rumors that Saigon was in for a second wave of the Communist offensive, planes and helicopters crisscrossed the sky over the city in the night and flares lit the outskirts.

South Vietnamese headquarters said three Communist tanks and a half-tracked armored personnel carrier had been spotted near the Cambodian frontier 50 miles northwest of the city in the deepest such armored penetration of the war.

A company of about 100 U.S.-advised Special Forces irregulars was reported to have blown up one of the vehicles with antitank rockets, killing 30 of the enemy in the explosion.

The U.S. Command listed the group not as tanks and a personnel carrier, but as "armored vehicles of an unspecified type" pending further information from the field. Previously the presence of enemy tanks in the country had been confirmed only in the northwest near the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh.

Vehicles Accompanied

American authorities said the vehicles were accompanied by an enemy detachment estimated at battalion strength, about 400 men. These were reported to have headed west, presumably into Cambodia, after a two-hour flight. Neither U.S. nor South Vietnamese spokesmen had any word that the armored vehicles opened fire.

The delta fighting flared Monday near Can Tho, a provincial capital, rice market and lumber center badly damaged in the Communists' lunar new year offensive.

Helicopters and Navy river boats ferried in men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division. Jet fighter-bombers and artillery helped to soften up positions of a sizeable enemy force.

Details were sketchy, but the U.S. Command said preliminary reports said 57 enemy troops had been killed. Two Americans died and 16 were wounded in a Communist counterattack in the night, the command said. Spokesmen would not disclose other American casualties on the ground that the fighting was still under way. Enemy fire felled a U.S. Air Force F100 Super Sabre jet. The pilot was rescued unhurt.

While main attention has centered lately on Hue and Khe Sanh in the north, South Vietnamese and American forces have been sweeping through rivers and canals to hunt down elements of the Viet Cong regiments that had attacked 11 of the Mekong Delta's 16 provincial capitals. Those attacks set off fighting in which reports said more than 1,250 civilians were killed, more than 3,000 wounded and 80,000 or more were left homeless. Fifty died in Can Tho.

American headquarters said the latest action began with a helicopter assault by one company — perhaps 180 men — three miles west of Can Tho.

After they ran into heavy opposition, they were joined by one company from the delta Riverine Force landing in boats and another company that was lifted in by helicopters.

Navy assault boats landed a battalion south of the combat area.

Wide areas of the Mekong Delta south of Saigon were ravaged in the new year offensive, and American troops in recent days have been probing deeper and deeper into delta regions. Much of the heavily populated delta long has been dominated by the Viet Cong.

Council Enacts Teenage Curfew For Coralville

CORALVILLE — The City Council unanimously approved a new curfew ordinance Tuesday night.

The curfew provides that all youths under 16 must be off the streets by 10:30 p.m., and all those under 17 must be off the streets by midnight. The curfew will be in effect seven days a week.

Parents will be held responsible for their children and can be prosecuted under the ordinance.

Chief of Police Wayne J. Winter said that he would not begin enforcing the ordinance until it received official publication sometime next week.

In other action, the council head a petition calling for immediate and positive action to rectify or replace the city's water system.

W. A. Folsch, representing apartment and property owners, demanded that the council take the action because of what he termed extremely high maintenance costs on pipes, storage tanks and water-heating systems.

The council decided to take the matter under consideration.

Winter said he did not expect any difficulty with the new ordinance.

"This week we will warn youths that the ordinance has been passed," Winter said.

"After it has received official publication, we will begin enforcing it, but even then we will have little trouble, because the youths will understand the situation," he said.

Rusk Reports Rise In Trade In Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China's trade with the non-Communist countries of the world increased considerably in 1966, Secretary of State Dean Rusk reported to Congress on Tuesday.

Peking's exports to the non-Communist countries, compared with 1965, increased by 20.5 per cent and its imports by 14.4 per cent. The percentages on trade with Western Europe are higher: imports from this area rose by 25 per cent, and exports to Western Europe by 36 per cent.

The figures are included in Rusk's yearly report to Congress on the Mutual Defense Assistance Control Act, popularly known as the Battle Act, which provides control over trade with nations "threatening the security of the United States."

Despite a substantial increase in 1966 — from $140 million to $198 million in exports, and from $141.6 million to $182 million in imports — U.S. trade with the European Communist countries represented less than three-fourths of one per cent of the total U.S. foreign trade.

LBJ Sees War Turning, No Weakening Of Will

DALLAS (AP) — President Johnson passed within sight of the Kennedy assassination scene Tuesday in a whirlwind trip to tell a convention group that America will show "no weakening of the will" in Vietnam.

The Dallas trip marked Johnson's first visit to Dallas since an assassin's bullet cut down President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963. At that time, Johnson was riding in an automobile two cars back from Kennedy's in the fateful motorcade past the Texas Schoolbook Depository.

The President's car went within sight of the memorial marking the assassination and made two trips past Parkland Hospital, where Kennedy was pronounced dead.

Johnson landed, amid tight security, at Dallas Love Field where he took the oath as President within hours of the assassination.

Johnson's two-hour trip took him to the Dallas Memorial Auditorium where he addressed the 10,000 delegates to the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association's convention.

He drew a round of applause with a remark that city dwellers and their rural counterparts must cooperate to build a "shining and peaceful land."

But most of the lecture-humping speech was devoted to the subject of Vietnam. He said the enemy in Vietnam has so far failed in the mammoth Tet offensive and has suffered terrible casualties because "thousands of our courageous sons and millions of brave Vietnamese have answered oppression's onslaught with one strong and united voice."

There will be "no retreat from responsibility," Johnson said, declaring that the Vietnamese war is now at a turning point.

"The enemy of freedom has chosen to make this year the decisive one. He is striking out in a desperate and vicious effort to shape the final outcome. So far he has failed in his major objectives; he has failed at terrible cost to himself and tragic cost to his civilian victims..."

Johnson sees no failing. Johnson was specific in saying there would be no "failing of our fighting sons. No betrayal of those who fight beside us. No breaking of trusted commitments. No weakening of will that would encourage the enemy and prolong the bloody conflict."

To a roar of applause, Johnson spoke in glowing terms of America's future "if we only have the vision and the determination and the will to stick to it and do not allow the dividers among us to succeed."

He said a Tuesday report from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of American forces in Vietnam, showed the Communists have suffered 43,000 dead and 7,000 captured since the Tet offensive began.

The President also invoked again his "Great Society" theme, a term he has seldom used recently.

He said his hopes for a great America are advancing. "And," said Johnson to another burst of applause, "I predict the Great Society is here to stay."

Iowa 'Granny' Volunteers For, Gets Viet Duty

DAVENPORT (AP) — A Davenport grandmother has been accepted for an assignment in Vietnam by the Army Weapons Command headquarters at Rock Island, Ill., after she volunteered for temporary duty in that war-torn country.

Mrs. William B. Harvey will be assisting the U.S. Army in Vietnam in a program to improve the logistics system in Vietnam.

A computer systems analyst with more than 25 years of government service, the 54-year-old wife of a retired minister said she volunteered because:

"I thoroughly agree with our reasons for being over there. The Army called for civilian volunteers, and feeling qualified — I asked to go."

Mrs. Harvey holds a GS-12 rating in the civil service, which is equivalent to the rank of major. She is to be attached to the Army's 506th Field Depot in Saigon, and will be there for between four and six months.

Enactment Clause OK'd For Constitution Vote

The Student Senate cleared away the final obstacle to placing its new student body constitution on the March 13 all-campus ballot by passing by acclamation an enactment clause Tuesday night.

The enactment clause called for the constitution to be ratified upon a favorable simple majority of the students voting on the referendum and upon the signature of the student body president. The president signing would be John Pelton since the new president to be elected March 13, will not take office until March 19.

An amendment to increase the number of votes needed for ratification from a simple majority to a two-thirds vote was narrowly defeated 11½ to 12½.

Gary Musselman, G. Coralville, chairman of the Elections Board, said last week that the results of the referendum would not be announced unless the senate specified what would be considered student body approval.

The senate also passed a resolution to establish public programs on contemporary questions and one to extend Easter vacation.

The public programs resolution established a senate-administered program to present forums on contemporary issues.

The senate voted by acclamation to extend Easter vacation until Monday, April 22. The vacation is currently scheduled to be from Thursday, April 11, to Thursday, April 18.

Pelton reported to the senate that the Draft Inquiry committee had completed plans for the all-campus meeting at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Union New Ballroom. Lee W. Rosebrook, L2, Ames, was named as the fourth member of the panel which is to ask questions of University and Selective Service officials on new rules which eliminate deferments for most graduate students.

Senators absent were Tim Hyde, Charles Derden, Curt Cooling, Paul Eisner, Dave Hellewege and Charles Diegal. Those sending substitutes were Maureen Barry, Gary Goldstein, Robert Jomma, Mike Lally and Robert Rosenthal.

Parking Policy Aired At Senate

The Student Senate demanded Tuesday night that students be informed of the present parking policy of the student-faculty Parking and Security Committee.

Marjory McColgan, A4, Silver Spring, Md., presented a report from the Parking and Security Committee at the senate's meeting Tuesday night. A student member of the committee, Miss McColgan said she was concerned that the students were not being informed of parking policies and that recommendations for future action were being made without their knowledge.

Miss McColgan said that the committee estimated there were 5,297 parking places available on campus, but that there were 10,000 to 11,000 cars. According to her, the University considered a continuation of the city-university subsidy for the city's privately owned bus system too expensive.

She said she approached the senate so that students could be made aware of the problems and some pressure could be applied on their behalf.

Miss McColgan read to the senate a policy statement under which, she said, the Office of Parking Lot Operations and Campus Security operates. She said she received a copy of the statement in the mail Tuesday and that she assumed this policy had been in use for at least three past four years.

Miss McColgan said this was the policy formulated by the committee and Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

The senate then passed by acclamation a resolution calling for the policy statement to be publicized.

POLICY STATEMENT

Gross parking categories and priorities should be reaffirmed, with visitors first, faculty-staff second, and students third.

Grad Schools Ask Deferments' End, Lottery For Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Council of Graduate Schools in the United States appealed to Congress Tuesday to abolish all college draft deferments and turn to a random lottery of 19-year-olds to serve in the armed forces.

The council, which represents major universities across the country, also strongly opposed designation of certain subjects to which students would be eligible for deferment.

Under the new rules only those graduate students in the medical or related fields may be deferred in the future. Students in college or apprentice school may be deferred until they complete their training.

The council's position paper said the draft barring future draft deferments for graduate students imposes serious planning burdens on universities which rely heavily on graduate teaching assistants to teach some freshman courses.

The council stressed its acceptance of the principle that military service is an obligation of every able-bodied citizen.

"We believe that this obligation should be borne equally by all citizens and that neither graduate nor undergraduate students should be deferred or exempted from such service," the statement said.

"We believe that draft-eligible men should be inducted on the basis of random selection upon reaching the age of 19."

Evers Wins Runoff Spot In Election; 1st Negro Challenge In Deep South

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negro leader Charles Evers won a runoff spot against a white conservative Tuesday night in a special election for southwest Mississippi's congressional seat.

Running against six white opponents for the 3rd Congressional District post vacated when John Bell Williams became governor last month, Evers posed the first real Negro challenge of the century for a seat from this Deep South state.

Evers had 31 per cent of the vote with an estimated 80 per cent of the votes counted, with two white Democrats battling for the other spot.

Charles Griffin of Utica, who was on Williams' congressional staff, led State Sen. Ellis Bodron, Vicksburg, for the other spot in the runoff.

The 45-year-old Evers is on leave of absence as state field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The district has about 195,000 voters, with perhaps 70,000 of them Negroes. Many of the Negro voters were registered during civil rights drives spearheaded by Evers, who once said he would never be a political candidate.

The congressional seat became vacant when Williams, who held it for 21 years, resigned following his election as governor last November.

In Mississippi's special congressional elections, candidates run on an individual basis — not with any official party affiliation.

Demonstration Observers Discussed

A proposal to set up a faculty committee to observe future student demonstrations and possibly to act as a liaison between students, the University and law enforcement agencies provoked spirited discussion at the Faculty Senate meeting Tuesday.

Disagreement centered mainly around what such a committee of observers should do and whether or not it should be a standing or an ad hoc committee.

The committee could only observe the demonstrations and report their observations, or it could become actively involved in attempting to protect the rights of both the students and the University, acting as a mediator between students, the University and law enforcement bodies.

When the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) sent observers to the February antiwar demonstration, directed against Dow Chemical Co. recruiters, the observers became involved in the demonstration planning meetings as well as in the mere observation of actual demonstration activity. This was pointed out to the senate by Robert A. Corrigan, assistant professor of English and AAUP coordinator.

They ended up doing such things as tape recording planning sessions as evidence in the event that conspiracy charges were made after the demonstration, he said.

If a committee of observers is to be formed, it should be formed before the first week in April, several senators said. Students for a Democratic Society and other campus antiwar organizations are planning to hold demonstrations at that time.

The Faculty Council was asked to consider possible guidelines for an observation committee's action, suggest appointees for the proposed committee, and report their discussion on the matter to the senate meeting, which may be as late as May. An extra session of the senate could be called to discuss this matter however.

Considerable disagreement on whether or not such an observation committee should be formed had been voiced at the Dec. 12 Faculty Senate meeting, and at that time the Faculty Council was asked to bring the matter up at a future meeting.

Petitions Available

Additional places were announced Tuesday for signing petitions seeking an extension of the University Easter vacation. The petition will be available in the Library north smoking room from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., 4 to 6 p.m., and 7 to 10 p.m. today. Tables will also be in the Union and in the Pentacrest Thursday and Friday.

Dirksen Rides To Rights Bill's Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's Everett McKinley Dirksen riding again in the fanfare of trumpets, his curly locks askew in the political winds, to rescue a besieged civil rights bill from annihilation.

For weeks it has been accepted around the Senate that there would be no relief of the garrison of liberal civil rights supporters trapped by a filibuster unless Dirksen mounted a counter assault.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, marshaled the margin of votes needed for the necessary two-thirds to break filibusters in 1964 and 1965.

But in 1966 he opposed federal enforcement of open housing as a "matter of principle." Since he said then he couldn't compromise on principle, there was no bill.

In the current controversy, he has sat with folded hands while the Senate twice rejected filibuster-busting cloture resolutions, once by seven votes and once by six votes less than the required two-thirds margin.

Federal Enforcement Opposed

He told a news conference last week he is opposed to federal enforcement of open housing because he says this should be a state matter. Previously he had said that provisions of the House-approved bill for federal protection of Negroes should not be limited to them but extended to all citizens.

But time and circumstances seem to have arrived for a bit of bending of principle on Dirksen's part. He said Tuesday

SEN. EVERETT DIRKSEN Will back rights bill

he hopes to have a compromise bill ready for the Senate Wednesday.

If it is acceptable to the liberals, he said he would solicit his GOP colleagues for cloture votes that would insure its passage.

Teenager Killed Train Tracks

grade crossing by himself and three friends as a Rock Island freight train approached.

Barden, of Tipton, said the four youths stopped the car on the tracks. He said one told him they sat in the car "to see who would stay the longest." The ignition was turned off.

Willier's three companions, Dean Howard, Bryan Johnson and Robert Arn, all 15, got out when the train was 50 yards away, Barden said. Willier tried to start the car but failed, the ignition was turned off.

The youth then got out and began running parallel to the tracks. He was struck by the body of the automobile after it was hit by the train.

Willier was a sophomore at West Branch, played sports and a member of the Varsity Club. Besides his parents, a brother, sister and grandparents survive.

Draft inquiry meeting most worthwhile project sponsored by senate

What might be one of the most worthwhile projects of the Student Senate in a long time is scheduled for Thursday. It is the All-Campus Draft Inquiry meeting set for 3:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

The purpose of the meeting is to provide information on the new draft rulings concerning students. There will be two panels — one to ask questions and the other to answer them.

Col. Glen Bowles, head of Iowa's selective service system; Duane Spriestersbach, dean of the Graduate College; and W. A. Cox, director of the registrar's office, will be on the panel that is supposed to answer questions. The members of the other panel will be Willard L. Boyd, dean of faculties and vice president for academic affairs; Edwin B. Allaire, professor of philosophy; and at least two students.

There is no "debate" planned at the assembly, but the questions asked by the second panel as well as questions from those attending are bound to be more than just fact-seeking devices.

And the presence of high University administration officials is likely to help clarify the University's position on the new draft regulations.

The subject that is to be discussed should be of considerable interest to much of the academic community, because of the effect the new regulations probably will have on the University, and many individuals within the community. The Student Senate and the Draft Inquiry Committee appear to have provided a worthwhile service to the campus in organizing the assembly. It is up to the rest of us to make the event a success by attending it.

This draft inquiry assembly should be just the beginning of a series of inquiries into many important issues that are relevant to the University community. The range of subjects for the inquiries is almost endless. Sponsoring such inquiries would be a good service for many of the organizations on campus. — Bill Newbrough

Reader calls for support of vacation extension drive

To the Editor:

There has been a small amount of controversy on the subject of Christmas and semester breaks. As all of you students know, most of us were forced to travel on New Year's Day in order to be back in time for classes on Jan. 2 and for those of us who live any distance at all, we had to leave before New Year's Day to be back in time for classes. This forced many of us to relinquish an extended Christmas holiday. The same thing happened during semester tests. Finals began and ended on a Friday. For us who were unlucky enough to have tests on the first and last days, we had no semester break at all except a two day weekend before registration.

The same problem now exists for Easter vacation. Easter recess begins on April 11 and ends on April 17. Classes are scheduled to resume on April 18. There is much doubt that the administration's typical excuse that it would throw class schedules off a significant amount is really true. Since this seems to be very poor justification for the Easter holiday, we should be given an extra two days off, Thursday, April 18, and Friday, April 19. Most students have a very light schedule on Fridays, so they are able to go home early on Friday for the weekend. Coming back on Thursday would, in effect, mean coming back for a day and a half of classes before another weekend, a weekend that could just as easily be spent at home. And, of course, the problem of long travel exists if the situation stays the way it is now.

Since we were forced out of two vacations which most college students across the nation were able to take advantage of, I feel that now is the time to do something about our problem. Petitions will be circulated around the campus for students to sign in order to voice their disagreement about the administration's policy concerning vacations. We can only hope common sense will be used by the administration in regard to our feelings. Much action needs to be taken, and I hope the students respond successfully.

Iowa State Daily praises Action Studies Program

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following article appeared as an editorial in the Iowa State Daily at Ames.

Iowa State has prided itself lately on being one of the most progressive schools in the Midwest. And it is in many areas. But it looks as if the University of Iowa may be forging ahead in the area of a Free University.

When the Free University was begun at Iowa State, there were a few professors actively interested in the project. Although many administrators supported the idea, the administration did not publicly encourage the Free U. In contrast, at the University of Iowa, Pres. Howard R. Bowen has approved a steering committee that will "cut red tape" for those interested in study and action on current problems. Bowen issued a statement saying that the "purpose of the program would be to encourage thoughtful, timely and relevant study and discussion of contemporary . . . issues and to encourage constructive social service activities. Special emphasis would be given to the goals of American society and to policies designed to achieve these goals."

Another stride that the administration has taken is to give credit to students participating in the program. If a group of students can demonstrate to a faculty member that the work they are doing is worthwhile, they should be able to get University credit. This makes it possible for students who must carry a heavy class load to participate in the program without having to worry about the added pressure of his regular University load.

Not only does the University sanction the Action Studies Program, as they call their free university, it also has said that all of their programs will be eligible for consideration for special University funds. Funds from private foundations have also been mentioned as a possibility for projects. That's a far cry from the Free U. here which has to charge registration fees just to cover the cost of printing its catalog.

Perhaps the most admirable aspect of the Action Series is that it will end in some type of project or action. Students won't just be sitting around discussing the problems which face the world, but will try to arrive at some conclusions which they can act on. This may be in the area of social services such as working in slums or tutoring underprivileged children. Or it might be in a more academic area and result in the publication of their findings.

The U of I Action Studies committee is on the right track. While coordinating the ideas of the students and faculty, they are planning a series of courses not limited to discussions of psychedelics and sex. They are planning discussions on the state of the world and the society they live in and then they are going out to do something about it.

Solution for peace seen in rearmament

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Last week Israel and Jordan had a shoot-out. After it was over, Israeli political circles were quoted as saying they feared that the decision of the United States to supply Jordan with arms would upset the armament balance in the Middle East. At the same time, Israel would not make any protest since it preferred the Jordanians getting arms from Washington instead of from the Soviet Union, which is hostile to Israel.

It may be just grabbing at a straw, but perhaps the solution for peace may be that instead of nations holding grudges, they could meet to discuss "rearmament." If they could agree on how much they were going to rearm, some of the suspicion about disarmament could disappear.

Let us suppose that Jordan and Israel met in Geneva to discuss the problem.

"We're getting 50 F-100s from the United States," the Jordanians say.

"That's perfectly all right with us," the Israelis reply. "We're getting 50 American F-5s. They're much faster and can also carry rockets."

"Is that so? Maybe we should get F-5s as well."

"Well, we don't want to tell you how to run your defense, but you're crazy to take the F-100s if you can get the F-5s," the Israelis say.

"That's good of you to warn us. By the way, our intelligence reports indicate that those new American tanks you bought won't stand up against the antitank guns the Americans gave us."

"No kidding? Where are the weaknesses?" the Israelis ask.

"In the turret. Maybe you could add some armor in the turret to compensate for the deficiency."

"I think we could. Oh, by the way, we read in the newspapers that the Jordanians are buying some 105 artillery guns. They're pretty expensive, you know."

"You don't think we should buy them?"

"Well, we looked over your military budget, and you would be much better off investing your money in mortars. There is a new AK mortar we purchased and we're quite satisfied with it."

"Of course, why didn't we think of mortars?" the Jordanians say. "Do you have any hope on anti-aircraft missiles?"

"Be careful about which missile you select. The Americans have sold us an anti-missile missile system that's pretty good, and you'll just be throwing your dough away on an anti-aircraft missile."

"That's really a valuable piece of information. Why are you being so helpful?"

"Well, we'd rather you get your stuff from the United States. If you're dissatisfied with what you get from the Americans, you might turn to the Soviet Union for help."

"By the way," the Jordanians say, "one of our biggest items is the cost of shipping the hardware to Jordan. Sometimes when Israel doesn't have a full shipload, perhaps we could put some of it on your ships. After all, it's going to practically the same place."

"That makes sense. If we could pool our shipping expenses, we'd have more money to spend on the M-16 rifle."

"Hold off on the M-16 rifle. There are still bugs in it," the Israelis say. "In spite of what they say, it still jams."

"I don't know whether this makes sense or not," the Jordanian says, "but if your minister of defense and our minister of defense could fly over to Washington together, then they could lay out their needs and there would be co-ordination on what we bought."

"I'll bring it up with General Dayan. It could save us a lot of trouble. The beauty of the arrangement is if one or the other of us runs out of spare parts for the American equipment, we could borrow it from the other."

'Master and Margarita' satire on Russian life applies to all mankind

By BRUCE MOST
"The Master and Margarita," by Mikhail Bulgakov, Harper & Row Publisher, 394 pages, $5.95. Available at Iowa Book & Supply.

On the front jacket of Mikhail Bulgakov's novel, "The Master and Margarita," is a picture of a paunchy black cat. One eye is closed, his mouth is curled in a sneer, his frazzled whiskers look like a burnt-out forest, his claws are hideously long and in one hand he holds an automatic pistol. His name is Behemoth and he likes to drink vodka and eat pickled mushrooms. He is the Devil's left-hand man (cat?), and he is one of the main characters in this bizarre, satirical novel on Communist life in Russia in the 1920s.

Few things in Russia escape Bulgakov's sure satirical aim. Medicine, Russian literary societies, the evils and stupidities of communism, bureaucracy, theater and human weaknesses all fall under his scrutiny. Ironically — but yet appropriately — it is the Devil himself who brings out these many flaws when he visits Moscow. He appears near a quiet pond in Moscow one fine spring day and soon engages in a discussion with a poet and an editor about the existence of God. Thinly disguised as a professor of black magic, the Devil claims that he can prove the existence of God. To prove it, the Devil predicts the immediate death of the editor — whose head is severed minutes later by a streetcar.

From then on Moscow becomes a city of strange happenings: People disappear or are killed, others are spirited away to distant lands, still others go insane. Rubles change to champagne labels, witches fly naked on broomsticks and a cat takes potshots at policemen. The antics are swiftly served up in a plot of Devil's brew which jumps back and forth between the harried Muscovites like an enchanted frog.

As the Devil (or Woland as he is known) and his sidekick Behemoth and a wall-eyed character named Fagot drive Moscow to near mass hysteria, Bulgakov takes his potshots at communism and man. Bulgakov writes in a why-don't-you-look-over-my-shoulder-at-these-stupid-people attitude, and the approach helps milk the satire for all it's worth.

The targets are numerous. Bulgakov neatly pricks Russian orthodoxy as we watch the poet, nearly insane after watching his friend beheaded, madly chase the Devil with a candle in hand and an icon pinned protectively to his chest. And then there is the impeccable bureaucrat who sits rigidly at his desk in his pin-striped suit, still assiduously writing, even though his body has long since disappeared through the Devil's handiwork.

Often Bulgakov's feathery satire turns to sarcasm. He alludes to the Russian secret police as a form of witchcraft, and "witchcraft once started, we all know, is virtually unstoppable." But Bulgakov saves his biggest satirical guns for Russia's literary society, MASSOLIT, the official literary organization, is a society for orgies, housed in a private mansion and which has "All-Inclusive Writing Holidays, from two weeks (short story, novella) to one year (novel, trilogy) . . ." Appropriately, Bulgakov has Fagot and Behemoth burn the mansion. Watching their handiwork, Fagot says, "How lovely to think of so much talent ripening under that roof." "Like pineapples in a hothouse," adds Behemoth.

The delicious satire of "The Master and Margarita," however, is undercut by the very real terror and evil of the Devil, and by a religious theme. The religious theme appears in the form of a novel which a man called the Master has written. Despondent over the rejection of his book by crusty Communist publishers, the Master has burned his novel and has voluntarily entered an insane asylum. His mistress, named Margarita, becomes a witch for the Devil in hopes of saving the Master and helping him rewrite his novel. The novel, which appears in section throughout the book, tells the story of Pontius Pilate and his torment over the execution of Christ. The novel, along with the struggles of the Master and Margarita, tells the story of Christian salvation as the hope for man.

The religious theme is not surprising considering Bulgakov had a religious background and was one of the many Russian moralistic writers silenced in the 30s under Stalin. His religious convictions must have held him together during those silent years until he died in 1940, and it is certainly the religious theme which holds his novel together. Bulgakov worked intermittently on "The Master and Margarita," and it is doubtful he had completely revised his novel at the time of his death. Consequently, the plot is slipshod; it lacks any structural unity, becoming only a number of incidents barely tied together.

But, in a sense, the religious theme becomes the book's salvation and unity. For the conglomeration of the Devil's antics proves — as the Devil set out at the start of the book to prove — the existence of God. God exists, the Devil ultimately says, because the Devil exists. In a supernatural discussion with Matthew the Levite, who has come to ask the Devil to grant peace to the Master and Margarita, the Devil says, "Where would your good life be if there were no evil?"

Bulgakov's view that good is proven by the existence of evil is a moot question, but few will challenge that good and evil do exist. And this is where Bulgakov's novel becomes more than a satire on Russian life. The Devil's adventures bring out the worst in man, his greed, his cowardice, his stupidity and lack of passion. Just as cowardice — "one of the worst of human sins" Bulgakov's Christ says — applies to writers of MASSOLIT, so too does it apply to all mankind. Bulgakov's satire on Russian life becomes a satire on the weaknesses of all mankind.

As a footnote it should be mentioned that there are two translations of "The Master and Margarita." The Harper & Row version is by Michael Glenny and includes 23,000 words which were not included in the version published in Moscow last year. Another version is put out by Grove Press (who usually handles those rack books and the translation is by Mirra Ginsburg. The Grove Press edition follows the Moscow version but many critics seem to feel the translation is better than Glenny's. Both versions are the same price.

Coed says editorial failed to take stand on problem

To the Editor:

After reading the editorial, "Danger to higher education cannot remain unchallenged," published in the Feb. 20 issue of The Daily Iowan, I cannot help wondering how Don Yager came to the conclusion that the University, particularly Pres. Howard R. Bowen, should take a public stand condemning the American policy in Vietnam.

In the first part of the editorial, Yager explains that the Johnson administration has refused to permit draft deferments for graduate study in any fields other than medicine or the ministry. He continues by describing how this will affect higher education. Because of the change in deferment rules, he states that there will be a sizeable reduction in the number of graduate students.

I would agree with him that this change in the deferment rules does present a problem and a threat to higher education. I also agree that the administration of the educational institutions of the country should take a stand against this policy. At this point our opinions differ.

Yager now concludes that this stand should be made against the American policy in Vietnam. He also asserts that the University should discontinue cooperation with the Selective Service System and the related military groups which have been using the University's offices for recruitment activities.

I would like to ask: How is this stand going to affect in any way the situation caused by the refusal to permit draft deferments for graduate study? I claim that it will not affect this situation to any measurable degree. Wouldn't it be better to take a stand against the problem itself, rather than just against the Vietnamese war in general?

Margarita' sian life mankind

Workmen were expected today to have sucked up most of the remaining 50,000 gallons of fuel oil which has poured into Rapid Creek since a pipeline was broken near Interstate 80 Thursday night.

Employees of Williams Brothers Pipe Line Co., working around the clock, have prevented the oil from draining into the Iowa River and causing a major water pollution problem.

C. W. Yandell of Coralville, a maintenance gang foreman for the pipeline company, told The Daily Iowan Tuesday night that a crew would stand by a temporary earthen dam on the creek throughout the night to prevent the oil from leaking into the river.

He said that large suction hoses would be used today to sop up the rest of the oil from the ice-coated creek. What remains on top of the ice will be burned off, providing there is no danger of starting a grass fire, Yandell said.

Creek Drains Into River

Rapid Creek runs north of town and drains into the Iowa River. The rupture in the pipeline occurred near a tiny creek a few hundred yards east of Prairie du Chien Road and about 100 yards south of Interstate 80.

From there it drained into the creek. A dam erected with a bulldozer a few hundred yards above the river has prevented the oil from leaking into the river. Water, however, flows from a pipe in the base of the dam.

Yandell declined to discuss what may have caused the break. Other company officials were reported Tuesday to have attributed the break to other workmen — not their employees — using heavy equipment in the vicinity of the pipeline.

Suction Hoses Used

Workmen have used suction hoses since Friday when the break was discovered to transfer the oil from the creek surface to trucks which hauled it to the Williams Brothers terminal in Coralville.

By Tuesday afternoon only a small amount of oil could be observed at the surface of the creek where the rupture occurred.

Yandell commented that the pipeline company was "doing everything it could" to prevent pollution.

'Politics' Tarnishing Image, Peace Corps Recruiters Say

Peace Corps volunteers are being asked not to get involved in the politics of their host countries because foreign countries resent the United States' tendency to intervene, a Peace Corps recruiter said Friday.

The recruiter, Vince O'Hern, and Tom McBride, Peace Corps director for the Latin America region, commented on a story titled, "Crisis in the Peace Corps" by Walter Grant of the Collegiate Press Service. The two-part series appeared in Wednesday's and Thursday's Daily Iowan.

McBride said the incidents "have made the Peace Corps think through its position and it has come out on the right side for free expression."

O'Hern said the Peace Corps volunteers were invited guests in the 58 countries that they serve and their prime consideration should be to avoid issues that would embarrass the host countries. Therefore, O'Hern said, they should not become involved in local politics.

"The Peace Corps," said McBride, "doesn't serve U.S. policy goals. It serves the people of the foreign countries and leaves it to them to define their own goals."

Corps Less Attractive Now

O'Hern said he thought the image of the Peace Corps was less attractive now because "the issues our government is involved in are more complex than they were in the past."

"Vietnam isn't just a thing you read about in the newspapers, but it has become personally pertinent to everyone," he said.

O'Hern said the Peace Corps would be more attractive to students if they would find out more about it.

O'Hern said that recruiters were trying to keep a more lasting contact with campuses and student bodies.

Grant's story claimed that the Peace Corps was losing its appeal to students because of the "Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people."

Grant stated that a series of incidents last summer in which volunteers were dismissed from the Corps for their involvement in political issues has also caused uneasiness in the minds of many young people.

Corps Allows Freer Expression

Since the incidents, criticism of the action taken against the volunteers has forced the Peace Corps to liberalize its policy on political expression, the story said.

According to Grant's story, volunteers are now free to write individual letters to officials and newspapers in the United States, but they are still asked to stay out of local politics of the host countries.

McBride said the incidents "have made the Peace Corps think through its position and it has come out on the right side for free expression."

Seal Of Approval Lost

NEW YORK — Sometimes seals act almost like humans. And in the case of Frank Giordano, vice versa.

A waiter, Giordano appeared before Criminal Court Judge Amos Basel Tuesday, accused of stripping to his underwear and joining the seals in their Central Park pool at 5 a.m. last July 25.

"Were you stewed?" Basel inquired.

"I wasn't drunk, but I was on my way," Giordano conceded.

"How long were you in there?" "Am I going to get charged by the minute?" the defendant asked. "Fifteen minutes."

"Did you have rapport with the seals?"

"I guess I did have rapport with the seals," Giordano said.

Despite the rapport, Basel fined Giordano $50 for annoying the seals.

Indiana Favored In Swim Tourney Starting Thursday

Iowa and the eight other Big 10 schools will be battling for runner-up positions behind the powerful Indiana Hoosiers in the conference swimming championships starting Thursday at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Hawkeyes will also be trying to improve their last place finish of 1967.

Hawk Coach Bob Allen predicted Tuesday that the Hoosiers would dominate this year's meet. Last year they beat second place Michigan by 48 points, but Allen thinks that Indiana's winning margin this year will be even greater.

Allen said the Hoosiers had not only dominated the Big 10 relays earlier in the year, winning every relay event, but the also set new records in every relay event.

"Indiana is about five or six men deep in every event," said Allen.

The three-day meet will end Saturday night.

Louisville Joins Elite With Rousing Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three of the nation's ranking college basketball teams, including top-rated Houston, got off to excellent starts this week. But Marquette stumbled just as it started to climb.

Houston lifted its season record to 26-0 Monday night by defeating Hardin-Simmons 105-82, Kentucky, No. 4, clinched the Southeastern Conference crown with an 89-57 triumph over Auburn.

Louisville, the only new team in The Associated Press' poll this week, trounced Memphis

State. The Cardinals had moved into ninth place.

Marquette, however, was beaten by Xavier of Ohio 88-83 in overtime. The Warriors had climbed from 10th to eighth place in the latest vote based on games through last Saturday.

Houston received 25 first-place votes and 321 points in the balloting by a national panel of 33 sports writers. UCLA, 21-1, held second place. The Bruins collected eight votes for the No. 1 spot and 305 points.

North Carolina, 22-1, accumulated 258 points in the voting and held onto third place. There were no changes either in the next four positions as St. Bonaventure held fourth place followed by Kentucky, Columbia and New Mexico.

"Devi"

Made by Satyajit Ray after his famous Apu trilogy, this film is set in modern India and deals with the attempt of a father to set up his daughter-in-law as the reincarnation of a goddess, of the girl's coming to believe it, and of the tragic results. The film is a study in religious psychology and in the clash of the old and the new in modern India. New York Times: "a haunting experience."

Easy Triumph Gives Hawkeyes Sole Possession Of Big Ten Lead

By MIKE EBBING
Sports Desk Associate

Iowa surged into sole possession of first place Tuesday night by defeating Michigan State 76-58 before a sell-out crowd at the Field House.

The Hawks were also aided by Michigan's 104-84 upset victory over Purdue. Purdue was tied with the Hawks for first with an identical 7-3 record, but the Boilermaker loss left them in third with a 7-4 mark. Iowa is now 8-3.

The Hawks built up what proved to be an insurmountable lead in the first half. Harrison Stepler of Michigan State countered Chad Calabria's opening basket to tie the score at 2-2. For the next 7 minutes, however, it was almost all Iowa.

In that span, Iowa outscored the Spartans 16-2 with the aid of some unbelievable scoring by sophomore Calabria.

Calabria fired in shots from all parts of the court to account for 11 of the 16 points. Meanwhile, the Spartans went the full seven minutes without a field goal, scoring only two free throws and falling behind 18-4.

The Spartan offense started to pick up midway through the half as it battled to within nine, 21-12, with 8:26 left. Another cold spell combined with the red hot shooting of Calabria, the game's high scorer with 25 points, widened the Hawks' lead to 33-19.

Although the Spartans out-bounded the Hawks in the first half, they were like ice from the field making a dismal 19.4 percentage. Lee Lafayette, Michigan State's leading scorer with a 17.6 average was held to only two free throws in the first half.

On the other hand the Hawks, led by Calabria's 19 and Sam Williams' eight points, shot a 34.1 percentage including 9 of 11 from the free throw line.

It was the Hawks who cooled off at the start of the second half, after leading at halftime 37-21. The teams traded baskets in the opening minutes of the second half with the more consistent Spartans narrowing the margin 51-40 with 15:29 left to play in the game. Lay-ups by Glenn Vidnovic and Williams and two free throws by Dick Jensen put the Hawks ahead 47-32.

At this point it looked like the Hawks were on their way, but the Spartans came battling back to within 48-40 at 12:45. Calabria went to the bench 30 seconds later with his fourth personal foul and it looked like the Hawks might be in for trouble.

The Spartans stayed within striking distance until Williams, the Hawks' second leading scorer with 22 points, hit a jump shot. Vidnovic, who scored 15 points, followed with a jumper and came right back with a driving lay-up to give the Hawks their biggest lead of the night 65-48.

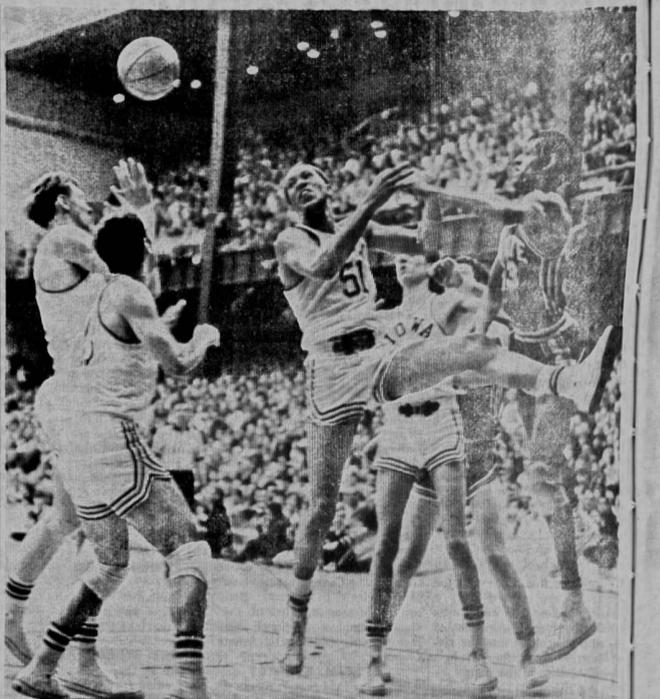

From that point, the Spartans were doomed as Miller substituted freely and coasted to the 76-58 final.

The Hawks shot a mediocre 36 per cent from the field, a figure which is actually impressive when compared to the Spartan's 29 per cent. Iowa appeared, however, to overcome one problem Tuesday night which has been hindering them in their past few games — free throws. The Hawks had one of their best nights of the year at the line hitting 24 of 29 for a classy 83 per cent.

Pressure's On Hawks Now, Miller Says

"All the pressure is on Iowa's scrap and hustle well and this ball club now," said Coach Ralph Miller after the Hawkeyes' 76-58 victory over Michigan State Tuesday night in the Field House. "We can't be classified as a powerful ball club... true hustle and desire has carried us this far."

Miller credited the play of Sam Williams and three sophomores, Dick Jensen, Chad Calabria and Glenn Vidnovic as major factors in the Hawkeyes' victory that pushed them into the Big 10 lead. "Dick, Glenn and Chad aren't blessed with an abundant amount of ability, but they've learned to use superlatives, did just that when speaking of the first half play of Calabria.

"Chad's first half was fabulous," the Hawkeye coach said. Calabria made seven of nine attempts in the first half, including nine joints in a row en route to a 25-point night.

The Iowa dressing room was filled with young autograph seekers and countless well wishers after the clutch victory. As usual, Sam Williams was the center of attention.

"We all really thought about this game. We knew the position we were in before the game, and we were able to maintain a champion's attitude."

Workshop On Retarded Slated

A workshop will be held Friday and Saturday at the University to discuss how the mentally retarded can take an active part in community recreation and physical education programs.

The workshop will bring together Iowa community recreation leaders and physical education specialists from six states who will speak and lead discussions on topics such as "Understanding Mental Retardation," "Activities for the Mentally Retarded," and "New Horizons in Mental Retardation."

The principal speaker will be the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Elmer H. Behrmann, director of special education for the Archdiocese of St. Louis. He will speak at a 6:30 p.m. banquet Friday at the Highlander Restaurant.

Other featured speakers include George Boswell, project director for Progressive Action for the Retarded, a state organization; G. Lawrence Rarick, professor of physical education at the University of Wisconsin; and Helen B. Henderson, a director of the Iowa Association for Retarded Children.

Enrollment Sets Record For Spring

Second semester enrollment at the University totals 17,707, Dean of Admissions Donald E. Rhoades reported Tuesday.

The total, a record for the second semester, represents a 5.2 per cent increase over the enrollment of 16,829 a year ago.

Last fall's enrollment was 18,659, also a record. The graduation of 747 students at mid-year commencement accounted for most of the second semester decline.

As usual, most of the enrollment is in the College of Liberal Arts, where 9,753 students are registered. The Graduate College is second largest, with 4,621 enrolled.

Selective Service, Viet War, Ky Discussed At Soundoff

The intended topic for Tuesday's "Soapbox Soundoff" — how the University would be affected by the changes in the draft — was overshadowed by talk of U.S. government policy in Vietnam. South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and the use of napalm in Vietnam.

The only person to talk about the draft was Mike Seydel, a former University student from West Branch.

"The draft in general is a bad thing," Seydel said. "Because the United States is a military country, it needs an army to continue the American way of life."

Seydel said that men should dodge the draft, write nasty letters and flunk physicals.

"People should refuse to go on killing for the government," he urged.

Seydel is free on $2,000 bond pending appeal of conviction for illegal possession of marijuana.

Jon Randall Miller, A4E, Cedar Rapids said the election of Ky and President Nguyen Van Thieu last September was "definitely fixed."

Electorate "Instructed"

According to Miller, the Vietnamese electorate was instructed to vote for Ky and that 700,000 army votes "assuredly" went to Ky.

Miller added that the American people were being fed a "bunch of junk" by the White House. This, he said, was unfortunate because "fascist mentality formulates policy like that."

Charles Boldt, Iowa City, a Naval Communications Technician 3/C, home on leave before going to Spain, said he believed the Vietnamese had elected Ky because they wanted him in office, not because they had to.

He added that the "majority of them say, thank God for the U.S. armed forces."

66 Communist Parties Meet; Session Off To Rocky Start

BUDAPEST (AP)—A meeting of 66 Communist parties got off to a rocky start Tuesday. The Soviet Union and Romania were widely split over how and when to hold a world conference meant by Moscow to restore Soviet-led unity to the Red movement.

Soviet ideologist Mikhail A. Suslov was said to have told the delegates in closed session that a world Communist conference should be held in November. He was supported by Gus Hall of the United States.

Paul Niculescu-Mizil of Romania argued that the conference should not be held unless all parties agreed to attend. That, in effect, would delay the conference indefinitely.

Romania also contended that any world Communist conference should be confined to "definite tasks of the fight against imperialism."

The Soviet Union has pressed for a more general conference to endorse its position in the dispute with Red China over interpretations of Marxist-Leninist principles.

The dispute erupted on the second day of the consultative meeting inspired by the Russians. The first day was devoted to formalities.

The Romanians, fence-sitters in the Moscow-Peking dispute, came to Budapest only after being assured that pro-Soviet parties would not use the meeting as a forum to condemn Red China.

Romania's desire to avoid any step that might antagonize China was stated in an editorial in the Romanian Communist party newspaper Scinteia in Bucharest. Romanian sources here made sure foreign newsmen knew of it.

The Chinese and 14 other parties stayed away from Budapest. China has rejected the idea of a world Communist conference as part of Soviet efforts to harden the differences between the Moscow and Peking factions.

Joint Chiefs "Sign"

He added, "It seems a little irregular that Johnson would have the Joint Chiefs of Staff sign a document to take responsibility for anything that happens in Khe Sanh."

Johnson was reported to have made the Joint Chiefs sign a statement saying that Khe Sanh could be defended against an expected North Vietnamese attack.

Samuel M. Kramer, A3, Des Moines, said it was his understanding that there are not a large number of people being burned from napalm. He quoted an article in the New York Times that said there were more burns from gasoline explosions than from napalm.

Michael Lally, A4, Iowa City, refuted this saying that the opinions recounted in the article came from only one member of a commission studying the effects of napalm in Vietnam and that the other members disagreed with him.

Solid Connection.

It just makes good sense for the graduate engineer or scientist, contemplating the direction of his professional career, to make sure that he has all the information he needs about every company he is considering—that he has total input information—before he makes a connection.

If you're good. If you're really good. If you have learned to use the knowledge you have acquired as a starting point from which to launch new ideas, you probably know already that your talents are in demand. There is always a seller's market for intellect.

But there can be more to your future than buy and sell. Satisfaction is a commodity that cannot be exchanged.

When you are considering where you will start in the complex world of aerospace, while you are gathering input information, we urge you to investigate the opportunity for a satisfying career here at the Pomona division of General Dynamics.

Here are five reasons why it would be a wise move for you now:

1. You will work side-by-side with nationally recognized engineers and scientists who are pioneering advanced concepts in missilery. Your reputation will be balanced by association.
2. Your compensation and fringe benefits will be on a par with the top in the industry.
3. You will pursue your profession in an area where living is pleasurable year 'round—one of the top vacation areas in the nation. Beaches, mountains, desert, a great city nearby, universities and colleges for advanced study, an atmosphere of growth and achievement.
4. Your ability will be applied to creating universally important products of engineering imagination.

5. Here at the nation's largest facility for development and manufacture of tactical guided missiles, your talents will be evaluated, recognized and rewarded.

Mailmen's School Opens

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in its 192-year history the American postal system finally has a school of its own. Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien dedicated it officially Tuesday.

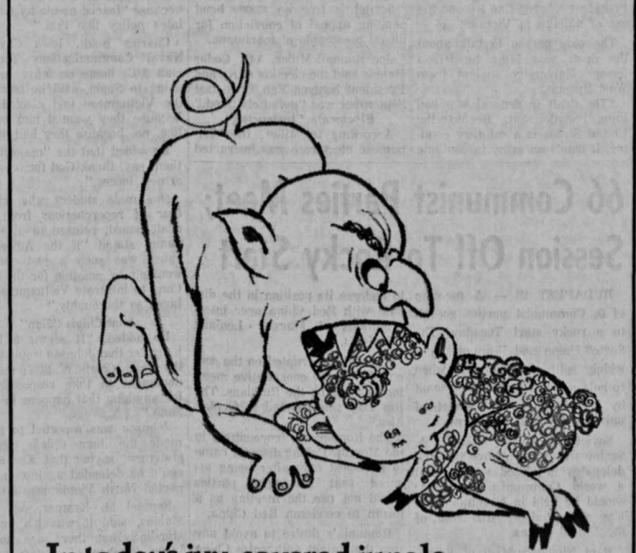

The school — called the Postal Service Institute — will teach a wide variety of courses ranging from professional matters such as maintenance and mechanization to social problems affecting the post office.

In addition, there will be correspondence courses and extension centers across the nation to help postal workers learn their jobs and work toward advancement.

It's even possible that postal workers may be required to complete certain courses before being promoted.

In dedication ceremonies, O'Brien noted that the Post Office Department, with about 716,000 employees, is the nation's third largest civilian employer.

In today's ivy-covered jungle, if you don't fall with it, the competition will eat you alive.

Let's face it. You can't afford to be drowsy. Not in class. Not in your room. Not ever.

So when you feel the grip of drowsiness pulling you down, fight it off.

Get out the NoDoz. It'll help you spring back—your recall, your perception, your ability to solve problems—without being habit forming. So you can pad through the jungle. Alert. And ready to strike.

After all, you're the lion, not the lamb.

Supremes' Swinging Sounds Signal Spring's Surprises

Along with showers and flowers, spring will bring Diana Ross and The Supremes, Simon and Garfunkel, and Peter, Paul and Mary to the University.

Central Party Committee (CPC) will present Diana Ross and The Supremes at 9 p.m. March 8 in the Field House. A number of changes in the procedure for purchasing tickets will be tried for the Supremes' performance. The new system will be continued if it works satisfactorily.

Ticket sales will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday at the University box office. All five ticket windows will be open for faster service and signs will designate the price and location of tickets sold at each window. The limit will be six tickets a person.

Twelve thousand seats, all reserved, will be available. Seats on the main floor and the north, south and east bleachers will be $3.50 plus 3 per cent sales tax. All balcony seats will be $3 plus tax. The prices will be the same for all the spring concerts.

Mail Orders Accepted
Mail orders will also be accepted from anyone outside of a 25-mile radius of Iowa City. Those ordering should enclose a check to University Box Office — CPC — and indicate first, second and third seating preferences. No mail orders will be filled until after the first day of box office sales. Notification will be sent if orders cannot be filled. All mail order tickets not picked up at the Union box office by 5 p.m. March 8 will be transferred to the Field House box office. The box office will open at 7 p.m., and the Field House doors at 7:30 p.m.

The Supremes first gained national fame in 1964. Diana Ross and Mary Wilson, the two original members of the group, were neighbors in the Brewster Projects of Detroit. Cindy Birdsong, who replaced Florence Ballard last summer, is from Camden, N.J.

They all started their musical careers in church groups and at community functions. They first auditioned for the Motown Recording Company in 1960, during their senior year of high school. They were told to return after graduation but were given work during the year as background singers.

More Concerts Planned
In a period of less than two years they had seven gold records, including "Baby Love," "Stop in the Name of Love," "I Hear a Symphony," and "You Can't Hurry Love." Their albums are also top sellers.

The coming months will also bring Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel for a CPC concert set for 8 p.m. April 7 at the Field House. They are well known for the folk rock sound they produce on singles and in the albums "Wednesday Morning, 3 A.M.," "Sounds of Silence" and "Parsley, Sage, Rosemary and Thyme."

Simon and Garfunkel currently sing Simon's compositions in the movie, "The Graduate."

Peter, Paul and Mary will perform May 4 at the Field House for the Mother's Day weekend. This leading folk group, composed of Peter Yarrow, Paul Stookey and Mary Travers, helped to stir national interest in folk music with "If I Had a Hammer," "Puff," "Go Tell It On the Mountain," and numerous albums including "Moving" and "In the Wind." They recently changed pace with "I Dig Rock and Roll Music."

Cuban Vessel Rams Lifeboat With 3 Aboard

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A Cuban ship lowered three men in a lifeboat into the Atlantic Ocean off the Virginia Capes Tuesday, then rammed the boat and fired on the men in the water, the Coast Guard reported.

A Coast Guard journalist said that the cutter Point Brown was on the scene searching for survivors but had not reported finding any.

Journalist Dwayne Tarsi said the Cuban ship, the 292-foot 26 de Julio, also was in the area and that American naval aircraft were overhead.

The site is eight miles east-northeast of Cape Henry, five miles beyond the three-mile territorial limit claimed by the U.S.

Tarsi said the Point Brown was five miles away when the Cuban vessel lowered and then rammed the lifeboat.

He said that after the ramming it appeared that two occupants of the boat were in the water and the third was clinging to the boat. He said the 26 de Julio then made a second pass at the boat, after which the man disappeared from sight.

The lifeboat was water-filled but still afloat at last report, the journalist said, and the Cuban vessel had indicated that it intended to pick it up.

Tarsi said a second Coast Guard cutter, the Chock, was en route to the scene with immigration officers, but he could not say whether it had arrived.

The 26 de Julio had radioed the Coast Guard before the ramming incident that it was en route to Norfolk, Va., but gave no reason.

It was reported 21 persons were aboard.

At the time of the ramming the Point Brown was preparing to rendezvous with the Cuban ship. It was assumed at the time that anti-Castro dissidents were in control of the vessel.

City Detectives Report Robbery At Local Store

Iowa City Police detectives are continuing their investigation of a $2,400 burglary at Stereo Village, 7 W. Benton St., Friday night or Saturday morning, Detective Donald Strand said Tuesday.

The thieves stole car stereo tape machines, speakers, tapes, records and cash, Strand said.

Entry was gained through an open window in an adjoining part of the building, according to Strand.

Depends on the giant. Actually, some giants are just regular kinds of guys. Except bigger.

And that can be an advantage.

How? Well, take Ford Motor Company. We're a giant in an exciting and vital business. We tackle big problems. Needing big solutions. Better ideas. And that's where you come in. Because it all adds up to a real opportunity for young engineering graduates like yourself at Ford Motor Company.

Come to work for us and you'll be a member of a select College Graduate Program. As a member of this program, you won't be just another "trainee" playing around with "make work" assignments.

You'll handle important projects that you'll frequently follow from concept to production. Projects vital to Ford. And you'll bear a heavy degree of responsibility for their success.

You may handle as many as 3 different assignments in your first two years. Tackle diverse problems. Like figuring how high a lobe on a cam should be in order to yield a certain compression ratio. How to stop cab vibration in semi-trailer trucks. How to control exhaust emission.

Soon you'll start thinking like a giant. You'll grow bigger because you've got more going for you.

A network of computers to put confusing facts and figures into perspective.

Complete testing facilities to prove out better ideas.

And at Ford Motor Company, your better ideas won't get axed because of a lack of funds. (A giant doesn't carry a midget's wallet, you know.)

Special programs. Diverse meaningful assignments. Full responsibility. The opportunity to follow through. The best facilities. The funds to do a job right. No wonder 87% of the engineers who start with Ford are here 10 years later.

If you're an engineer with better ideas, and you'd like to do your engineering with the top men in the field, see the man from Ford when he visits your campus. Or send your resume to Ford Motor Company, College Recruiting Department.

You and Ford can grow bigger together.

What's it like to engineer for a giant?

Rather enlarging!
