waves; motivational control; transplanting of all organs, perhaps even the brain; and control of an infant's sex.

But, Fox emphasizes society's responsibility, saying that society applies scientific knowledge by a consensus, at least in the United States.

"Science just creates and disseminates knowledge," he asserts, and groups within society try to persuade others to reach a certain consensus.

Someday, Fox speculates, a preacher may try to convince you that chemical alteration of your personality is consistent with your religious values, perhaps love.

Poking the needle of an imaginary syringe into his arm, Fox depicts a preacher, saying: "Go and take the peace injection... Go the biochemical route!"

But, he adds, society will choose, through its laws, what is to be done with science's capability. "What do you want to let happen?" he asks, as a basic question regarding the use of science.

Fox spoke of religion as a basis for one appeal among many, all trying to influence the consensus on some issue.

And religion is already playing this role. No longer is there much open conflict between religious and scientific explanations of man's past, or predictions limiting his future. Rather, religious leaders voice concern about the need for love and what man may do to himself through science.

For example, George Forell, director of the School of Religion, expresses fear that man's future is chaos, that the modern emphasis too often is on efficiency and technological achievement.

"If something is possible, do it! That's the technological slogan," he says.

Man faces dehumanization, Forell fears. Already, researchers are experimenting "for mass production of the preferred human ova."

He notes that mechanization of the reproductive processes could eventually work to separate mother, sex and reproduction.

Also, he notes that an emphasis on efficiency may even raise questions about the usefulness of people over 40. Overpopulation may encourage society to dictate life and death for individuals, on easy terms of course.

Forell's speculations, incidentally, coincide with those in much current literature. Predictions there about future scientific capability include: breeding very intelligent animals for mental labor; creating living cells; and solving the purported mystery of how inanimate matter becomes animals, or conscious.

Forell warns about what man can do to himself. Self-destruction or total self-control seem possible.

"The only thing between us and that is our ability to say we have some choice," he says. He indicates that man is now capable of sacrificing that ability forever.

"Not everything that is possible should be done," he says.

But, to the degree that we can remake man, we must have a model. And we have one, he says: "Christ is the man all men ought to be."

Many persons would agree with Forell, although for different reasons. Many say they want to obey God, and others say they want to survive — to love, not to war.

But should man strive to imitate Christ? A military man was asked: "Would a U.S. society of model Christians, if attacked by an enemy, defend or martyr itself out of love?"

Science is making it possible for a society to ask itself such a question. Many think government could possibly make decisions as to the kind of people a nation will have. Possibly, breeding programs will predetermine disposition, physique and even intelligence.

This possibility, although hard to visualize, raises questions: Should man control himself to such an extent? Can he really?

These questions are part of the doubt and the uncertainty at the University about old ways of thinking and new capabilities. And these doubts are part of something else.

"In the three years that I've been here, I think I've seen a definite trend for students to be concerned about man's condition," says Mike Bird, a graduate assistant in a religion core course.

"They seem to be concerned in large part about the value and dignity of man," he says, and the rise of science caused them to question old concepts, to be uncertain and to doubt.

But religion hasn't been hurt much. Bird says: "Doubt is an indication that one is concerned." Religion, in whatever form, is rarely far from concern.

And, the greater scientific capability becomes, the greater the concern will probably be.

But what it achieves remains to be seen.

Teaching Group Vetoes Spring Break Extension

The campaign to extend Easter vacation has run into serious obstacles.

In a unanimous vote Tuesday, the Council on Teaching decided to recommend to Pres. Howard R. Bowen that he support the Calendar Committee's original decision not to extend Easter vacation.

The Associated Residence Halls (ARH), sponsors of the petition, voted Wednesday night not to let the matter die, however. The ARH set up a committee to study possible further action on the petition. It will meet at 5:30 today in the Activities Center.

The Council also recommended that the administration take steps to ensure that instructors do not cancel classes scheduled for the first two days of class following spring break.

ARH, anticipating a similar situation of a broken-up vacation period next year, discussed working for next year's changes now.

Michael Hallerud, A2, Fort Madison, president of Hillcrest, said the University should "show cause why a revised schedule could not be set up for next year."

Bowen Has Final Word

Petitions with 8,145 signatures requesting the extension were presented to the council by Thomas M. Robert, A3, Williams, spokesman for the ARH committee that drew up the petition.

The petition will still go to Bowen, who will make the final decision on whether the vacation will be extended.

The petition requested that spring break, scheduled from April 11 to April 18, be extended to April 22. The Student Senate passed a resolution in February supporting the extension, but the Calendar Committee decided not to change the present schedule. ARH then drew up a petition to present to the faculty and Bowen requesting that the Calendar Committee's decision be reconsidered.

The council's major reason for recommending that the present schedule remain unchanged was that students would be cheated out of an education they were paying for if spring break were extended.

"The Council on Teaching feels an obligation to provide instruction for students who contracted for it when they enrolled in February with the calendar set," Phillip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs and chairman of the council, said after the meeting.

Passover Observance Cited

Problems raised by the present schedule for Jewish students who plan to observe Passover were pointed out to the Council by Peter Dreyfuss, A1, Ottumwa. During the eight-day Jewish holidays, all foods must be specially prepared and no work is to be done for the first and last two days of Passover. This year the last two days of Passover fall on the first two days of class after vacation, Dreyfuss said.

In the past the rabbi and his wife prepared kosher food for students at Hillel, the Jewish student center. This year there is no rabbi at Hillel.

Jewish students make up about seven per cent of the enrollment, but not all of them observe Passover strictly, Dreyfuss said.

"I was very discouraged with the results," Tom Robert commented after the meeting.

"I would like to thank those members of the council who listened to our requests, but I think the greater part of the council was closed to the issue before we even presented our case," he said.

"They treated this petition far too lightly. They acted as though 8,000 signatures meant nothing," Robert said.

Two major reasons for the change in the vacation schedule were given by the petition: The change would give students living further than one day's travel from the University more time at home; the change would eliminate the probability of a large number of absences following spring break.

Varner, Shuey Win Top Jobs; Constitution Approved 2-1

By SUE SANDERS

Students for Responsible Action (SRA) candidates Carl Varner, A3, Centerville, and Gordon Shuey, A2, Jefferson, captured the positions of student body president and vice president by a 500-vote margin in the all-campus elections Wednesday.

The student body also voted to accept the Student Association Constitution by a 1,500-vote margin. The results indicated approval of the constitution by a ratio of over 2 to 1. Ratification, which puts the constitution into effect without the signature of Pres. Howard R. Bowen, has the effect of declaring student body autonomy from the University administration.

SRA candidates also won four of the five senator at large positions, while the Hawkeye Student Party (HSP) took 11 of the 15 of the town men, town women and married student senator positions.

Varner and Shuey defeated HSP candidates Ken Wessels, A2, Dyersville, and Phillip Hubbard, A3, Iowa City, and independent candidates Doug Elden, A3, Glencoe, Ill., and Les Jelinek, A3, Glencoe, Ill. The vote totals were 2,592 for Hubbard, and 209 for Elden and Jelinek.

20 Per Cent Of Students Vote

Approximately 20 per cent of the student body voted, with a turnout of 4,910. This was short of last year's total of 5,050 students voting, which was 30 per cent of the student body.

CARL VARNER
Student Body President

Varner thanked his campaign workers and expressed hopes for a progressive government in a statement prepared for publication.

"I now hope that my opponents will join with me to provide sound and progressive student government," Varner said.

GORDON SHUEY
Student Body Vice President

Wessels said in a written statement that the presidential campaign had begun a new grassroots movement on this campus.

Wessels called in his statement for a meeting of all his supporters. He said that he would "remain dedicated to student rights and to providing a solution to the problems we face as citizens and students."

Elden had one comment on the results of the election.

"We lost," he said.

Current Student Body Pres. John Pelton called the results of the constitution vote a mandate by the students.

Pelton Satisfied

"The student body has clearly expressed its opinion. We have a constitution now," Pelton said.

Elections Board Chairman Gary Musselman said.

Mark Stodola, A1, Cedar Rapids, was the only independent senator at large elected. The others elected were SRA candidates: Hank Feir, B3, Springfield, Ill.; Gary Sissel, A2, Davenport; Tim Finn, A1, Jefferson, and Jim Dougherty, A1, Anamosa. All of the winning candidates had more than 2,000 total votes.

Defeated Candidates

Defeated were: Leanne Harney, A2, Oxford; Jim Robbins, A3, Des Plaines, Ill.; Ellen Heywood, A2, Estherville; Dan Bohlen, A2, Monticello; Jim Smith, A2, Ladonia; Dennis Larson, A2, Harlan, and Ken Swain, A2, Columbus Junction.

Candidates elected for Student Publications, Inc. were: Bill Doherty, G, Wilmette, Ill., for a one-year term; and Robert Reynolds, A2, Osceola, and Jerry Patten, A2, Perry, for two-year terms.

Doherty defeated Betsy Becker, A3, LeMars, and Reynolds and Patten won over Esther Ekstein, A2, Morton Grove, Ill.

Students elected as town men senators were: HSP candidates Tom Van Gelder, A2, Grundy Center; Ken Dobbs, A2, Coralville; Lyman Piersma, A3, Inwood; Paul Eisner, B2, Highland Park, Ill.; Steve Smith, A2, Jefferson, was the only SRA candidate elected for the position. Bob Lehman, G, Cedarhurst, N.Y., won as an independent.

The defeated candidate was Dave Schleidt, A3, Montross (SRA).

Students elected as town women senators were: HSP candidates Erica Schrauer, A3, Katanah, N.Y.; Cynthia Dierks, A2, Monticello, and Linda Gassman, A2, North Liberty.

SRA candidates Linda Gorman, A2, Clinton, and Kathy Leinaw, A2, Clinton, were defeated.

Married Senators

Elected as married student senators were HSP candidates: Mike Lally, A4, Iowa City; Jim Sutton, G, Iowa City; Jim Robertson, A3, Iowa City, and Leroy Searle, G, Iowa City. Independents Chris Huff, A2, Monsey, N.Y., and Bruce Nieman, A4, Iowa City, were also elected.

Defeated was Chuck Troe, B3, Solon (SRA).

Elected for Associated Women Students officers were: Randa Robertson, A3, Iowa City, president; Carolyn Vanden Brink, N2, Sheldon, secretary; and Judy Kappy, A2, Richardson, Tex., treasurer.

Defeated were: Saly Jones, N3, Decatur, Ill.; Mary Layton, A1, Iowa City, and Vicki King, A2, Cedar Rapids.

The College of Liberal Arts senior class officers elected are: Dennis Schuelke, Sioux Rapids, president; Sally Holm, Iowa City, vice president; John Boyd, Boone, secretary; and Cheryl Arvidson, Des Moines, treasurer.

Those juniors also running were: Ann Breuninger, Waterloo; Pat Cadwallader, Ottumwa; Anne Fister, Carroll, and Mike Versackas, Des Moines.

Kennedy Weighs Odds Of Jumping In Race

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The clear protest of New Hampshire voters against President Johnson's policies prompted Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) Wednesday to reassess the possibility of running against the man in the White House.

Johnson's failure to muster even half of the more than 54,000 Democratic votes in a presidential popularity contest with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.) foretold the difficulties the President may face in his expected bid for re-election.

In Washington, Kennedy told reporters outside a Senate hearing room that "I am reassessing my position as to whether I'll run against President Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination."

"I think that the election in New Hampshire has indicated a great deal of concern in the Democratic party about the direction our country is going," he said.

He added that his reassessment also is based on evidence that the Johnson administration intends to continue on its present course in Vietnam and that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is the probable GOP nominee.

White House Declines Comment

At the White House, press secretary George Christian declined comment on Kennedy's statement.

The heavy turnout of about 106,000 Republicans in New Hampshire, who gave Nixon 79 per cent support at the polls in a virtually uncontested election, gave striking indication that Republicans are sensing that Johnson is in political trouble and may be vulnerable in November.

Kennedy clearly sensed the same thing. But McCarthy showed no inclination now to let Kennedy push him aside and claim the torch of dissent within the Democratic party.

McCarthy earlier had acknowledged that the brother of the late President John F. Kennedy could conceivably become the beneficiary of his (McCarthy's) efforts in the primaries.

Few political strategists were saying that because Johnson won over McCarthy by a scant 3,527 votes, the party is likely to dump the President. Johnson got 48 per cent of the vote, McCarthy 42.

Substantial Dissent Seen

But they were saying that the 22,810 votes McCarthy racked up against Johnson's 26,337 indicates substantial dissent among Democrats to the way the President is conducting not only the Vietnam war but the Presidency itself.

McCarthy's headquarters in Washington was claiming that the Minnesota senator actually got more votes than Johnson. They contend that there were 4,640 write-ins for him on the Republican ballot, where they said Johnson got none. That write-in vote will not be known for at least a week.

Turnout Decrease Noted

When the administration assesses the extent of the desire for more student power within the student body, it likely will take into account the decrease in voter turnout in this year's election compared with past years.

Twenty-eight per cent of the student body voted in this year's election, 2 per cent fewer than last year. Although the figure of 28 per cent is larger than those of 1965 and 1966, one would expect an even larger turnout with the much-discussed increase in student activism and the growing acceptance of the idea of giving students more say in University matters.

But the administration probably would be incorrect to interpret the results of the election as indicating very little desire for increased student power. Although only a minority of students voted for a constitution that some people interpreted to be quite radical, this minority has shown that its feelings on the matter are quite intense. And this minority includes some of the most respected and influential members of the student body.

Varner Election Expected

The election of Carl Varner to the presidency surprised few people. He has successfully organized what in the past was the major voice in campus politics — the Greek system — and added to it.

But the size of the support for Hawkeye Student Party candidate Ken Wessels and the party's town and married student senators indicates that the once apathetic students who live off campus have also been moved into campus political activity.

Although Wessels was probably the more radical of the two, Varner promises to be progressive in working for the interests of students. One can conclude that just because students are not yet storming Old Capitol demanding their rights as citizens does not mean they do not want them.

Grad Assistants Accept Proposal On Firing Policy

A new policy before the Faculty Senate regarding procedure for dismissal of graduate teaching assistants was accepted with reservations Wednesday at a meeting of graduate teaching assistants from the Core Literature and Rhetoric programs.

The procedure for dismissal of teaching assistants has been a highly controversial issue at the University since the suspension and later firing of Paul Kleinberger, G, Silver Spring, Md., following his arrest in connection with the Dec. 5 antiwar demonstration. Kleinberger, who was ultimately reinstated, was not present at the Wednesday meeting.

The 20 graduate instructors from various departments who did attend the meeting discussed the Faculty Senate proposal in detail and suggested several minor changes in its text.

Richard Lloyd-Jones, professor of English, and Jerry J. Kollros, professor and head of the Department of Zoology, represented the faculty at the meeting and agreed to present the assistants' recommendations to the Faculty Senate for consideration.

The proposed policy lists regulations for the dismissal of teaching assistants whose student status is revoked for academic or disciplinary reasons.

It states that a teaching assistant may be dismissed during the term of his appointment for any reason which would be sufficient to dismiss a faculty member during the term of his appointment. It also calls for dismissal of assistants who fail to adequately implement the instructions of their course supervisor.

The proposal sets up an elaborate system for appeal of suspension cases.

Constitution Passage Raises New Questions

By BILL NEWBROUGH
Editor

A DI News Analysis

The all-campus election Wednesday showed that students were in the mood for some changes in University policies, but left the amount of student power they wanted open for question.

The 69 per cent approval of the new student association constitution indicates that there is considerable desire for making the Student Senate more powerful than it has been in determining non-academic University policies. The constitution does not provide for an administration veto power over actions of the senate on such matters.

But the 2,764 students who voted for ratification of the constitution are only 16 per cent of the total number of students registered this semester. And since the immediate increase in power for the senate depends upon the amount of support the amendment received, it can be only a guess how much that increased power will be.

When the administration assesses the extent of the desire for more student power within the student body, it likely will take into account the decrease in voter turnout in this year's election compared with past years.

Twenty-eight per cent of the student body voted in this year's election, 2 per cent fewer than last year. Although the figure of 28 per cent is larger than those of 1965 and 1966, one would expect an even larger turnout with the much-discussed increase in student activism and the grow-

Citizens Group OK's Antiwar Ad After Revisions

An antiwar advertisement was approved by the Citizens Committee Against the War in Vietnam at its meeting Wednesday night following action to eliminate sections which some members said contained possible racist elements.

The revised ad is to be published in the Des Moines Register with signatures of University faculty members, staff personnel, researchers and graduate students.

The original ad said that the war must be "de-Americanized" and "de-escalated."

Robert R. Miller, assistant professor of business administration, said that statements about "de-Americanizing" the war lacked concern and sympathy for the Vietnamese people.

Burns H. Weston, co-chairman of the committee, said that the overtones of prejudice against Asians, while not intended, might hamper the recruiting of signatures.

The revised ad concentrates mainly on the de-escalation of the war.

Larry Barrett, WSUI program assistant and a member of the committee, said that the committee planned to print the ad twice in The Daily Iowan to familiarize the University community with it.

John O'Mara, rural Iowa City, treasurer of the Johnson County Committee for McCarthy, told the group of about 35 persons that, in light of New Hampshire's primary results, McCarthy would do more than give Johnson "a kick in the shin."

McCarthy received 42 per cent of the Democratic vote in the primary Tuesday. O'Mara said that McCarthy's immediate goal now was to stop Johnson's nomination on the first ballot.

Nixon Pledges To End War If He's Elected

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says his presidential campaign statement, "We will end the war in Vietnam and win the peace in the Pacific," constitutes a pledge.

"The next president of the United States must end the war," Nixon said, emphasizing the "must."

The former vice president, victorious in the New Hampshire primary and now set

He indicated that he would spell out these thoughts when or if he wins the Republican nomination for president, but not in the campaigns in the primaries.

Big Guns Reserved

"I'm reserving my big guns for use against Johnson," Nixon said. "I have to adapt my strategy so as to win the primaries with the least expenditure of ammunition."

He said that he had his own private channels of information on the status of military and political events in Vietnam and that he did not receive briefings from the Central Intelligence Agency.

"But I have been to Vietnam so often that I do have sources there," he said. "I can't disclose them, of course. I expect to have even better sources."

Nixon made the statements in an interview in his Fifth Avenue apartment in New York. The election returns, foreshadowing his strong showing in New Hampshire, were coming in.

Relaxed, he wore a silk-trimmed smoking jacket, put his feet on a toboret and sipped coffee. An aide, Dwight Charvin, came in with a fresh report from New Hampshire.

'Have To Do Better'

"I see we're only running two to one over Rockefeller in the first precinct," Nixon said. "That's not good enough. We'll have to do much better than that." He laughed and said, "We will."

He said that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York must enter and win some primaries if he wants the GOP nomination in August. Rockefeller has said he will decide within 10 days whether to permit his name to remain on the ballot in the Oregon primary, May 28.

"Rockefeller would like to make Oregon a winner-take-all affair," Nixon said, "and claim that a win there entitles nomination. Of course, we're that. Oregon's the only state won outside of New York."

COULD BE CANDIDATE — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy told reporters Wednesday that he was reassessing his position as to whether he would oppose President Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination. The New York Democrat said last January he would not oppose Johnson under any foreseeable circumstances. However, he said he was reassessing his position because of the strong showing by Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota in the New Hampshire primary. — AP Wirephoto

UNIVERSITY HEIGHTS—Town officials here said Wednesday they planned to examine all objections to the assessment schedule for a proposed Melrose Avenue paving project presented at a public hearing Tuesday night.

The proposed project includes a 36-foot wide cement thoroughfare along Melrose Avenue through the town at an estimated cost of $84,128. Tentative plans are for completion of the project by September.

Town council members, Town Atty. Alan R. Left and Town Engineer James L. Shive said they planned to study each written and oral objection in an effort to reach a final solution agreeable to all town residents.

Mavor Chan Coulter said during the hearing that the council welcomed all objections and wanted to reach "an equitable assessment" to all property owners.

Most of the 23 objections to the tentative assessment schedule filed at the hearing fell into three general areas.

Many of those who presented objections said they felt they were being asked to pay for a third lane of traffic. Most pointed out that other town residents had only been required to pay for two-lane streets which bordered on their property.

The second area of objection was that some of the properties along Melrose were being valued too highly on the basic assessment value.

Several of the objectors also said they felt that the individual assessments to their properties were too high.

Charles A. Barker, an attorney representing 15 property owners along Melrose Avenue, told the council that his clients were being asked to pay as much as $32 a frontage foot for the improvements.

Barker stated that the average cost a front foot for Iowa City paving projects during the past few years had been about $10.50.

Councilman William J. Hausler said Wednesday that one of the differences in the costs between Iowa City and University Heights was that Iowa City had its own staff for engineering and legal work to prepare plans and assessments for such projects.

Hausler said that, because of its size, University Heights did not have a full time staff, so it had to assess engineering and legal costs directly to property owners where improvements were made.

Shive said that it had been the practice in University Heights to bill costs to those property owners directly affected by improvements as long as he had been town engineer.

Hippie Wants Union Bread

Charlie Brown, a Berkeley, Calif., hippie, may be "turned off" if Union Board decides not to pay for posters he had printed to advertise a talk scheduled for 10 p.m. last Friday at Macbride Auditorium.

Although Union Board withdrew sponsorship and canceled the reservation for his show, Brown claimed that Union Board should pay the $34 he spent for posters.

Kenneth A. Padgham, L.S., Evergreen Park, Ill., Union Board president, said Wednesday that Brown's claim would probably be discussed at a meeting tonight.

Brown, 28, a native of northern Iowa, has spent the last seven years in Berkeley. In addition to attending "happenings" and being arrested for possession and use of LSD, Brown has been involved in running for the Berkeley City Council and serving as pastor of a Neo-American church there.

During his trip back to Berkeley, where he said he would take out papers to run for the state legislature, Brown plans to stop at colleges to try to get people to "turn on."

On March 4, Brown asked the Office of Student Activities if he could "do his thing" and present a show at the University.

The Union Board decided to sponsor the event but told Brown that on such short notice it could not prepare posters to advertise the event. The board did not promise Brown any compensation, Padgham said.

In spite of this, Brown had his own posters printed at a cost of $34 before leaving town for a few days.

On the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday prior to his appearance, Union Board tried to contact Brown, who was at Mount Vernon visiting friends.

Thinking that Brown would not show for his talk, the board canceled sponsorship and the auditorium reservation. The custodians said they would leave the auditorium open until closing time at 11 p.m. in case he appeared.

After a scheduled poetry reading Friday, a group of people waited for Brown to appear. In the meantime, Brown was hitchhiking, without much luck from Mount Vernon.

About 10:30 he entered with bangles, bangles and beads, but the auditorium was empty. Undaunted, Brown went to the Union to recruit an audience.

With an audience of about 30 people in tow, Brown went back to the auditorium, but it had been closed.

Determined as ever, Brown went to Old Capitol, spread out his Indian prayer rug and "did his thing."

In "doing his thing" Brown talked of his beliefs and efforts to "turn people on" to higher states of awareness.

Far from disappointed, Brown said the night atmosphere and misty surroundings of the talk "turned him on."

change one's doctor. True, patients chronic diseases sometimes find waitlists for hospital beds, but at least the average person with the average cost can get quick and efficient treatment - at home if necessary, for those are far more frequent - from qualified GPs (nearly 50 per cent of all doctors) and he can afford to buy the necessary drugs. Here "small" payments for medical services, too low to be deductible and not "emergency" might be claimed on insurance, promote and my family with constant headaches.

Britain's Health Service still leaves much to be desired, this cannot serve as a model for "socialized" medicine. Rather, this is symptomatic of the economic malaise in Britain, which is in part, I admit, trying to cure many social ills too fast for the financial resources available. I only wish America were ever guilty of such a "falling"! If and when Johnson's war the United States will have far greater resources to make such programs work in any other country. Meanwhile, it is fairer to compare the health care offered to the average American and its cost in terms of proportion of income, with that offered to the average Scandinavian or Dutch citizen. But, of course, so long as medicine remains primarily a business rather than a vocation, most doctors' salaries higher than those of most top-rank government officials, Americans can expect little change in the medical profession's reaction to its reactionary lobbyists.

Barnett Story in Local Paper

An article by Donald Barnett, a former University faculty member, appears in the current issue of Middle Earth, the Iowa City underground newspaper. The article is reprinted from the National Guardian, a national radical publication.

The article probes the political climate of Mozambique, a newly independent African nation. Barnett, who currently lives and teaches in Tanzania, is a specialist in African affairs.

Barnett is the controversial anthropologist who, while employed as an assistant professor of sociology and anthropology here last year, was fired after first refusing to give grades to his students and then, under pressure, turned in failing grades for all of them.

Kennedy Could Make Bid Sans Primaries

McCarthy challenged the President in his decision to support the President actively if Johnson is renominated.

If he chose to become an active candidate, the New York senator would be in a position to challenge McCarthy without entering any primaries. Politicians remember that the late Sen. Estes Kefauver won a series of primary victories without getting the top prize.

The White House fended off questions about Johnson's reaction, standing on the President's Tuesday night statement that "New Hampshire is the only place where a candidate can claim 20 per cent of the vote is a landslide and 40 per cent is a mandate and 60 per cent is unanimous." By that count both he and McCarthy got some kind of mandates.

Press Secretary George Christian claimed an unlikely White House indifference to the New Hampshire outcome when he said "There's not going to be a great deal of attention here to primaries, polls or politics."

Union Board Officers Picked

Jill Wiley, A3, Cedar Rapids, will head Union Board as president in 1968. Mitch O'Dlier, A4, Chicago, will be vice president and Diane Hawkins, A3, Northfield, Ill., will serve as executive secretary. The appointments were announced this week.

Applicants for Union Board directors were interviewed by the 1967 board last month. After the final selections were made the new directors decided among themselves last week who would be the executive officers and who would direct each area.

The new directors are: Pritirajan Sengupta, G, Calcutta, India - literary area; Philip Dantes, A2, Waterloo - music area; Mike Finn, A3, Jefferson - travel area; David Dawson, A3, Des Moines - films area; Lora Kluever, A2, Atlantic - hospital area; Joe Rubenstein, A2, Des Moines - promotion and publicity area; Jeanne Kirkwood, A2, Des Moines - dances and entertainment area; Janice Watje, A3, Buck Grove - contemporary af-

John Jones, a trainer in the Human Relations Program, worked with the new directors each evening of the retreat to help them become better acquainted and to learn to work together through task-oriented activities. For the remainder of the semester the new directors will work out their programming for next year.

Next year will also bring changes in the internal organization of Union Board. The vice president will no longer head the personnel area.

A new area called travel unlimited will be formed to include such committees as: local travel, which will plan trips and outings in the local vicinity; vacation travel, which will plan skiing trips during University vacation periods; summer travel, which will plan major trips abroad; and an information service which will help students plan their own summer and vacation period trips.

Most girls stuff is just a "Cover-Up"...

but not Pamprin.

Not all girl's stuff "covers up." Here's one product that does more: PAMPRIN.

PAMPRIN makes a woman look and feel better... without relying on "camouflage." PAMPRIN is specifically designed to get at a basic cause of pre-menstrual problems. Problems of temporary water-weight gain. That puffy feeling that can make you feel miserable the week before your period. (It's that extra water-weight causing pressure on tissues that makes for headaches and pre-menstrual tension.)

PAMPRIN does what aspirin doesn't. It alleviates the "bloating." So it gets at the cause of the pain. Instead of just covering it up, PAMPRIN makes a woman feel more like a woman. Every day of the month. So every coed can live life a little bit better. Now that PAMPRIN is going to college.

PAMPRIN. It's definitely girl's stuff.

PAMPRIN... products for a woman's world

WE NEED ROCKEFELLER

Many students realize that the man best qualified for, and most likely to win the presidency of the United States is NELSON A. ROCKEFELLER.

He has over 25 years of distinguished public service - on the international level, on the national level, and on the state level as three-term governor of New York. He has the confidence of all America. This confidence is reflected in the fact he is the first choice of people for the presidency in surveys including all prospective candidates, Republicans and Democrats.

By participating in an organization promoting ROCKEFELLER, you will encourage him to actively seek the presidency, and just as importantly, you will have an opportunity to create even more support for NELSON ROCKEFELLER.

Rugby Coach Mitchell Explains Organization

By CHUCK STOLBERG

Unlike other coaches at the University, Larry Mitchell, coach of the Iowa Rugby Football Club, is not being paid for his services. He is coaching the club on strictly a voluntary basis. The reason is that the Rugby Club is not connected with the Department of Athletics as other athletic teams are.

The club is an independent organization within the University organized and run by students for their own benefit and to promote the sport.

Voluntary coaching, without financial payments "is traditionally true of coaching rugby and in all other British sports in general," Mitchell said. "Coaches in all British sports are usually either players or ex-players."

Mitchell himself is a player and will be a playing-coach for the spring season. He has been a member of the Iowa Rugby Club since it was organized in the Spring of 1966, and was an assistant coach and player last season. He will replace Dennis Heard as coach. Heard has left the University.

Mitchell is a graduate student working on a Ph.D. in a new program known as linguistics. He earned his M.A. from the Uni-

"Rugby is very much a social activity as well as an athletic activity. It brings people from different groups together who wouldn't ordinarily mingle with each other. Students and faculty members mix together in the club and we have people from all areas of study from freshmen to fourth year graduate students," he said.

For some the social aspect is more meaningful than for others while some consider the athletic aspect as the most important.

"This companionship is part of the tradition of rugby and is sometimes difficult to justify in American society," he added.

Rugby attracts the same sort of people in both the United States and England he said. These are the people who are interested in contact sports and are athletically inclined. It gives those who have participated in contact sports in school an opportunity to continue in a contact sport after they leave school.

"There are no differences in the players in the United States and England," he said. "The average American rugby player would find himself at home in the average rugby club in England."

All indications are that rugby versity in February. He is originally from Hampton Court, just outside of London and came to the United States in 1965. In fact, Mitchell was a member of the University Rugby Club even before he entered the University in September, 1966.

While teaching English and Spanish in high school and junior high at Urbana, just north of Cedar Rapids, Mitchell was a member of the Iowa Club and drove to Iowa City for games and practices.

He also taught in England for a year after earning his B.A. degree at King's College at the University of London. It was during this year of teaching in a grammar school, equivalent to high school in the United States, that Mitchell first started coaching.

Rugby is the first sport played in the compulsory athletic program in the grammar schools in England. Teachers who have participated in sports are recruited as coaches and Mitchell, who played rugby, boxed, and ran cross-country on school teams while he was in grammar school, became a rugby coach.

"One of the things I found strange when I came over here was that every sport has a coach. There is a coach for everything. In England teachers are primarily teachers and secondarily coaches," he said.

There are two great benefits to playing rugby, according to Mitchell. First is fitness, and second is companionship.

is growing very rapidly in the United States. Mitchell agrees with this, but doesn't believe it will ever gain the stature of baseball or football in the United States because it doesn't appeal to the person who is going to be a professional.

It is basically an amateur sport and is only for those who are looking for a part time contact sport to play for the enjoyment they derive from just playing, according to Mitchell.

"The sport is definitely growing in popularity. I can even see the growth since our club was first formed. Since then a number of other Big 10 schools have organized clubs," he said, noting that the only Big 10 schools without rugby clubs are Purdue and Northwestern.

There are three teams in St. Louis, a number of teams in a conference in the state of Missouri, and a new team is being formed for the spring at Iowa State, he said.

There are sections of the country where rugby is very big. These are in California and on the East Coast. There are well over 100 rugby clubs in California and at one time the University of California played rugby instead of football, Mitchell said.

The governing body for rugby in the Midwest is the Midwest Rugby Football Union. There is no national governing body, but there are Unions in California and in the East. The Midwest Union is the newest of the three and there is an attempt being made to form a national Union.

SPORTS BRIEFS

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — Indiana State's ninth-ranked Sycamores, led by the 37-point production of Jerry Newsom, trimmed the Nevada Southern Rebels 94-75 Wednesday to advance to the semifinals of the NCAA College Division Basketball Tournament.

In the quarterfinal opener Wednesday, Ashland College of Ohio, the nation's top defensive team, defeated Cheyney State of Pennsylvania 45-30 to earn a semifinal berth.

DES MOINES — Pocahontas outscored Mediapolis 16-4 late in the second half and went on to sideline the defending champions, 62-56, in a first round game of the Iowa Girls High School basketball tournament Wednesday night.

In afternoon games, Paton-Churdan edged past Villisca 62-61 and Rockwell City rallied to whip Montezuma 81-76.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — The University of Illinois, following a general Big 10 trend, increased the price of 1963 football tickets from $5.00 to $6.00, Athletic Director Gene Vance announced Wednesday.

Vance said the Illini Athletic Association, a non-profit corporation operating from sports income and without state appropriation, faced increased costs in its program.

Villanova, the fourth best defensive team in the country allowing only 60.6 points per contest, will attempt to halt Wyoming, No. 14 offensively at 84, in Friday's nightcap after Kansas, eighth defensively, tries the same tactic against Temple in the first game.

But the pace speeds again Saturday when Army and Notre Dame tangle and Bradley and Long Island meet in an afternoon twinbill followed by Duquesne opposing Fordham and Dayton running with West Virginia at night.

The winners advance to the quarter-finals Monday and Tuesday. The semifinals are next Thursday with the final March 21. Along with Duke, 21-5, Bradley, 19-3, of the Missouri Valley Conference; Kansas, 18-7, of the Big Eight; and independent Dayton, 17-9, rule as the favorites.

INFERNO TO PRACTICE — The Iowa Infernos will have a soccer scrimmage at 4 p.m. today on the practice field west of the Field House instead of the women's practice field as previously announced. Everyone welcome.

City To Prepare Traffic Study

"Too much talk and not enough action," was a typical citizen's response to a recent decision by the City Council to defer action on the proposed Melrose Avenue-Court Street bridge until completion of a comprehensive area traffic and transportation study.

Although a major streets and parkings study was included as one phase of a comprehensive study of Iowa City prepared in 1960, another similar study might seem repetitious to the average citizen.

However, planning is a continuous process, not one that ends with just one study, said Barry Lundberg, Iowa City's director of Planning and Urban Renewal Tuesday.

Lundberg said that the city decided to undertake another traffic study because the 1960 study did not meet Bureau of Public Roads (BPR) standards.

According to BPR regulations, a metropolitan area with a core city of over 50,000 population has to have an area traffic and transportation plan which meets BPR standards to qualify for federal highway funds.

Although Iowa City's population has not yet reached the minimum total, Lundberg said it would probably reach 50,000 by 1970. Population figures include University students.

Since the State Highway Commission offered to help the city conduct a study which met BPR requirements, Lundberg said it seemed reasonable to proceed with the study now, rather than wait two or three years until the study was absolutely necessary.

Lundberg said that since the Regional Planning Commission had already planned a study of traffic and transportation as the fourth phase of its planning program, the city asked the commission to begin the program now because the city's study will be made with the planning commission. The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development will pay two-thirds of the total cost.

Lundberg said that although the 1960 study recommended that another bridge be built across the Iowa River, one was not urgently needed now.

Vatican Reports Cong Persecution

VATICAN CITY (AP) — L'Osservatore Romano said today that the Viet Cong killed hundreds of Roman Catholics at Hue and forced student priests to study Marxism during the Tet offensive.

It was the second straight day of comment here on what the Roman Catholic Church in South Vietnam had experienced during the assaults.

Vatican radio said Tuesday that four priests and a nun were killed.

L'Osservatore Romano commented "What was the attitude of the Communists toward Roman Catholics during the Tet offensive. The facts are eloquent enough. At Hue the Communists took possession of the minor seminary and forced the students to attend daily courses on Marxism."

"From the quarter where Roman Catholics live, L'Osservatore Romano said, hundreds of men and youths were deported and slain. Others suffered cruelties and harassment. Missionaries were submitted to long interrogations."

City School Board Reviews Budget

See Related Story Page 10

By MARGE HUMKE

"At this time there is no reason to doubt that we'll end the year within our budget," Board Secretary Robert Davis told the Iowa City Community Board of Education Monday night.

A major receipt this month was Iowa City's state equalization aid, amounting to $690,093.94.

Davis said that if taxes were collected in April, with the school receiving its portion in May, there would be few, if any, interest-bearing warrants outstanding.

St. Buford Garner told the board that construction of West High School is proceeding on schedule.

The board was told that architect's plans for the proposed Ernest Horn Elementary School are nearly ready. The board plans to consider working drawings for the school on March 20, with April 17 set as a tentative date for letting bids for construction.

Board members approved 1968 plans of a four-year plan for physical plant maintenance and improvement presented by Davis.

This will include window repair at Mann and Sabin schools, exterior repairs to Central Junior High and Sabin, asphalt play areas at Hills and Kirkwood, restoring surfaces of parking lots and drives and buildings a chain link fence at City High, and architectural ceilings at Central Jr. High.

In other actions the board approved the transfer of the summer Head Start program administration to the merged four-county board of education of which Johnson County is a member.

James Blank, director of elementary education, reported on the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP) volunteer tutoring. Mrs. Hanna Weston has been in charge of the tutoring program, which began last Sept.

The tutors, mostly University students, work with children who might not otherwise have opportunities to go to a library, have stories read to them, or go to sporting events. There are now 165 tutors in the program, Blank said.

Four elementary schools are currently involved in the program. Probably in the future will be initiated in additional schools where there is a need. Tutoring is strictly voluntary, with no pay involved, Blank said.

Garner said that Iowa Wesleyan College at Mt. Pleasant requested that Iowa City take two or three student teachers this semester.

Engineers Find Cool MECCA Stone

A group of engineers jaywalked 184 steps from the Engineering Building to Doc Connell's Annex about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday and found the MECCA stone.

The MECCA stone hunt is a major event in the annual MECCA Week celebration of the University's College of Engineering. MECCA stands for the mechanical, electrical, civil, chemical and aeronautical (now industrial) branches of engineering.

To find the stone the undergraduate engineering students had to solve clues given by graduate engineering students. Solving the clues required the use of engineering skills and techniques.

The final clue which led search parties to the stone had to be run on a computer.

Two answers were given on the computer cards, "jaywalk" and "184."

As many engineers know, it takes jaywalkers 184 steps to get from the Engineering Building to Doc Connell's Annex, a favorite gathering place for engineering students.

Stone In Cooler
The engineers went to the Annex and presented their punched-out computer cards to Robert J. "Doc" Connell, the owner. After matching his set of computer cards with theirs, Connell brought out the MECCA Stone from a beer cooler, where it had been hidden, and ended the search.

Earlier clues had taken the engineers as far afield as a local lumber company and the site of a station of the Civil War underground railroad north of Mayflower Hall.

And the traditional fight between the engineers and the lawyers goes on.

The latest installment in this disagreement was: a green muskrat, signs saying "Engineering Annex" and "MECCA" and the smell of sewer gas in the College of Law Building.

The reason for the dispute between the engineers and the lawyers is that both claim St. Patrick as their patron saint. The engineers say that St. Patrick engineered driving the snakes out of Ireland which made him an engineer.

Muskrat Sprayed
A muskrat, which was captured after a long chase by six engineering students, was painted green with spray paint and turned loose in the Law Building Monday night, according to one of its captors.

Engineers also hung a 16 ft. wooden sign, "Engineering Annex," from the roof of the Law Building early Monday morning. The lawyers had this and another 20 ft. cloth sign which said "MECCA" down by 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Engineers next placed a chemical, phenyl mercapin, in a book and put it in the Law Library. Because of the smell, the lawyers called the Physical Plant since they thought that the sewers were backing up.

Phenyl mercapin is a chemical which is put into natural gas to give it an odor.

Raise Big Stink
Engineers carried it in a test tube packed in dry ice to the Law Building. The ice was necessary because as the chemical heats the odor of sewer gas diffuses rapidly. After getting it to the library, the tube was dropped into a book binding.

Robert Hutchins, assistant professor and law librarian, said Wednesday that the library would remain open in spite of the odor. Although the book was reportedly removed Wednesday, a chemical engineering student said that the library would smell of sewer gas for at least two weeks because of the heavy molecule of the chemical.

The activities of the engineers come from three months work on many plans to get back at the lawyers for stamping "The real St. Pat was a lawyer" on the Mar. 17, 1967 issue of The Daily Iowan.

So far, the lawyers have not

Group Formed To Help Push Rockefeller

A group calling itself Students for Rockefeller will distribute petitions and sell campaign buttons at its organizational meeting at 7 tonight in the Old Capitol Senate Chamber.

The group, active only since Michigan Gov. George Romney's withdrawal from the Republican presidential race last month, was organized "to show Rockefeller that he has substantial support," according to John Murray, L3, Ames, chairman of the University group.

Murray, editor of the Iowa Law Review, said the group's primary goal was to influence the selection of county delegates to the state convention.

The state presidential nomination convention, set for April 16, will send elected delegates to the national Republican convention in August at Miami.

Murray, who is organizing Students for Rockefeller groups on other Iowa campuses, said that Rockefeller has "hampered" active campaigning by failing to authorize it himself.

retaliated, but an engineering student said that they were expected to. The entrances to the roof of the Engineering Building have been secured against any attempt to take down the MECCA sign.

Among major events remaining in the MECCA Week celebration is a smoker which will begin at 7 tonight in the Union New Ballroom. Engineers will present awards and vote for the MECCA queen from the 10 semi-finalists and St. Pat from the 10 senior engineer candidates. A beard shaving contest will also be held. On Saturday St. Pat and the MECCA Queen will be crowned at the MECCA Ball, which will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight in the Union Ballroom.

The Irish Strike

St. Patrick's Day is usually celebrated by the wearing of the green and the drinking of green beer. But this year someone started celebrating the green early.

A prankster put green food coloring into 1,000 gallons of distilled water in the Chemistry-Botany Building sometime last weekend.

Ronald T. Pfau, professor and chairman of the Department of Chemistry, said Wednesday that no damage had been done.

Smarty Party To Honor Coeds

The annual Mortar Board "smarty party" honoring University coeds who have earned high scholastic marks during the first semester is scheduled for 10 a.m. March 23 in the Union Main Lounge.

This year 800 coeds who earned a 3.25 grade point or above during the first semester have been invited. Those coeds who decide to attend must notify the Office of Student Affairs by March 15.

The cut-off grade point that must be attained by coeds to receive an invitation is arbitrarily set by the Mortar Board each year.

Girls attending will pay $1.75 for a brunch, hear a speaker, and see a skit performed by Mortar Board members. The speaker has not yet been scheduled.

The theme for this year's banquet is "Get Smart." Mortar Board is the only national honor society for senior women.

Refocus began as an idea to encourage the best in student photography and film making. During this fourth year we are anticipating the most remarkable turnout so far. This composite program is the most unique in the nation because it explores the width and depth of the photographic art. We believe a whole tradition is being started.

GUEST SPEAKERS:
Beaumont Newhall, Director of the George Eastman House, Rochester, New York, since 1958. Internationally known author on photography. He is the most widely written in this field. Mr. Newhall will speak on "The Photographic Revolution in the Graphic Arts."
Jerry Uelsmann, Associate Professor of Art at the University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida. Nationally known expert in contemporary use of 35 mm slides. He is an award winning photographer in his own right.
Chuck Jones, Animation Specialist at M-G-M studios, Hollywood, California. He is responsible for such well known productions as How the Grinch Stole Christmas, The Road Runner, Bugs Bunny and many others. He will use these and other academy award winning series in his Wednesday presentation.

Refocus is presented by the Student Union Board with the consultation of John Schulze, School of Art; Raymond Fielding, Mark Snegoff, and John Winnie, Department of Speech and Dramatic Art.

Hardin Hits Acute Shortage Of Iowa Medical Personnel

DES MOINES (AP)—Health teams should be established in Iowa to overcome an acute shortage of doctors, dentists and supporting personnel, the dean of the University of Iowa College of Medicine said Wednesday.

Dr. Robert C. Haroin told a statewide conference on health manpower needs a way must be found to provide more supporting personnel to doctors and dentists so they can care for more people.

"I think we need more of a team approach," Haroin said. "We need physicians, dentists, nurses and technicians trained to work together."

He said the shortage of health personnel is particularly critical in rural areas.

"We have the same number of doctors and dentists in Iowa now that we had 25 years ago," he said, "but most of them now are in the larger towns."

Hardin said he does not know how the health teams should be formed, but he said team training should begin in the medical and nursing schools and in the community colleges where supporting personnel are educated.

The conference, attended by some 100 health and education leaders, ends today.

Hitchhikers Get Rude Warning

If you're going to hitch hike, keep out of the street.

Thomas J. Fennell, B2, Davenport, learned the hard way and paid a $4 fine for illegal hitchhiking in Police Court Tuesday.

According to officials from the Iowa City Police Department, hitch hiking is legal only if the hitch hiker stays out of the street. So keep to the curb.

CORRIGAN ELECTED—

Robert A. Corrigan, assistant professor of American civilization, was elected president of the Iowa Conference of the American Association of University Professors at its annual conference March 9 at St. Ambrose College, Davenport.

Kleinberger Seeks Dismissal

An attorney for Paul Kleinberger, G, Silver Spring, Md., has filed a motion in Johnson County District Court requesting that charges of conspiracy against his client be dropped due to insufficient evidence.

In his written motion, legally a demurrer, the attorney, William Tucker, lecturer in law, said the evidence provided by the prosecution against Kleinberger, who was charged in connection with a Dec. 5 antiwar demonstration on campus, did not show that Kleinberger had conspired to or actually obstructed police.

Tucker, who filed the demurrer Tuesday, said the evidence also failed to name a time and place the conspiracy was to have taken place.

He said the prosecution's evidence, which had been submitted by County Atty. Robert Jansen's office, had not provided sufficient information about the exact nature of the charges against Kleinberger, and thus was in violation of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Tucker also said that the prosecution had failed to furnish the defense with all the information it had used against Kleinberger and thus was failing to provide "uniform operation or equal treatment of the law to all persons" as required by the Iowa Constitution.

Johnson County District Court Judge William R. Eads said Wednesday that he expected attorneys for other persons charged with conspiracy or resisting an officer to submit demurrers in the near future.

Others indicted on charges of conspiracy were Bruce Clark, A1, Des Moines; Ross Peterson, A2, Des Moines; Dennis Ankrum, Iowa City; Jean Gammon, Iowa City; Steve Morris, A1, Iowa City; and Albert Marion, G, North Liberty.

Fred McTaggart, G, Iowa City, and Lory Rice, G, Iowa City, were indicted on charges of resisting an officer.

Board Narrowly OKs Hot Lunch Proposal

A heated discussion of a proposed hot lunch program culminated midnight Tuesday in a 4-3 vote in favor of the program by the Iowa City Community Board of Education.

The proposal for a hot lunch program in four elementary schools had been given to board members less than 24 hours before the meeting, according to Robert Davis, board secretary.

The board voted to adopt a plan to start a limited program this fall in schools where the need is greatest. The schools proposed for the fall program are Henry Sabin, Horace Mann, Hills and Penn elementary schools.

Employment of a director of food service was also approved. School administrators are to find candidates for that position, Davis said.

Those opposed to the program, including Board President Ansel Chapman, objected to the estimated total cost of $27,700. The board decided to ask the director of food service to make a more expert estimate of costs.

In other action, the board approved a seven-period school day rather than the current six-period day. Class periods are to be shortened from 55 minutes to 45 minutes, and 15 minutes will be added to the length of school day.

A staff increase of about 11 teachers will be needed to handle the additional class period.

The seven-period day was recommended by William Bleeker, director of secondary education.

The board voted to allow a Regina High School student to apply to the board for a share time policy which would allow him to attend a class at City High.

No decision was made Tuesday on teachers' salaries for next year. Chapman said that law requires the board to offer contracts in April, and that the board was willing to meet with the teacher union committee again to discuss salaries.

The teachers are asking for a base salary of $6,200 for a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree. The board has offered a starting salary of $5,850.

Student Views To Be Aired

How three University students view the University will be discussed with Pres. Howard R. Bowen in a special "University Report" television program to be shown at 3 p.m. Saturday through out this area.

Students who will appear in the half-hour color program are Karen Bell, A4, Burlington, Michael J. Wolfe, B3, Marshalltown, and Robert J. Brasile, G, Woodstock, Ill.

The program will be shown on WHBF-TV, channel 4, Rock Island.

The "University Report" is generally related to Foundation Day, the annual commemoration of the creation of the University on Feb. 25, 1847, by the first Iowa legislature.

In addition to the discussion with students, Bowen will report on major accomplishments of the past year by students and faculty, and will note that the University awarded its 100,000th degree in 1967—the 120th anniversary of the University.

Doll 'Bombs' Suspected Here In Iowa

DAVENPORT (AP)—Thirty-two Vietnamese dolls of the type suspected of being booby trapped with explosives have been recovered in Davenport, officials said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the state fire marshal's office in Des Moines is sued an elert for the dolls, called "Momsan," which have been shipped home to relatives by unknowing servicemen in Southeast Asia.

The Davenport Fire Department is looking for a demolition expert to determine whether the dolls are rigged to explode.

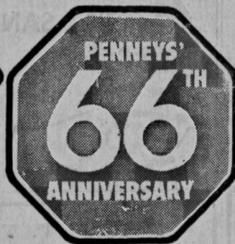

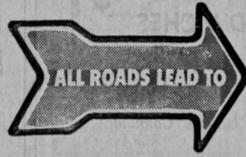

About one of every 1,000 dolls from Vietnam may contain explosives, the U.S. Customs Service says.

Shoplifter Fined

Joan Ross, G, Roslindale, Mass., was fined $15 and costs for shoplifting Tuesday in Police Court.

Miss Ross pleaded guilty to taking items from the Me Too Food Stores, March 8.

proved a seven-period school day rather than the current six-period day. Class periods are to be shortened from 55 minutes to 45 minutes, and 15 minutes will be added to the length of school day.

A staff increase of about 10 teachers will be needed to handle the additional class period.

The seven-period day was recommended by William Bleeker, director of secondary education.

The board voted to allow a Regina High School student to apply to the board for a share time policy which would allow him to attend a class at City High.

No decision was made Tuesday on teachers' salaries for next year. Chapman said that Iowa law requires the board to offer contracts in April, and that the board was willing to meet with the teacher liaison committee again to discuss salaries.

The teachers are asking for a base salary of $6,200 for a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree. The board has offered a starting salary of $5,850.

Unruh Cites Need For RFK To Run

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California's most powerful Democrat, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, said Wednesday Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) "has almost the duty" to run against President Johnson.

Unruh told a news conference that he had expressed his belief to both the New York senator and to the President that Johnson could not defeat Kennedy in the June 4 California presidential primary.

And he said Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) "cannot win" the Democratic nomination, despite his strong showing in New Hampshire. He said McCarthy had now "served his purpose."

Johnson, he said, would beat McCarthy in California.

Doll 'Bombs' Suspected Here In Iowa

DAVENPORT (AP)—Thirty-two Vietnamese dolls of the type suspected of being booby trapped with explosives have been recovered in Davenport, officials said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the state fire marshal's office in Des Moines is issued an alert for the dolls, called "Momsan," which have been shipped home to relatives by unknown servicemen in Southeast Asia.

The Davenport Fire Department is looking for a demolition expert to determine whether the dolls are rigged to explode.

About one of every 1,000 dolls from Vietnam may contain explosives, the U.S. Customs Service says.

McCarthy's Showing Cheers Iowa Backers

DES MOINES (AP)— Jubilant over Sen. Eugene McCarthy's New Hampshire primary showing, "Democrats for McCarthy" in Iowa launched a drive Wednesday to flood precinct caucuses with his supporters.

"McCarthy buttons are shining bigger and brighter," said Harry Beardsley of Des Moines, chairman of what he estimates are 1,000 members of the group across the state.

The New Hampshire vote "restored faith in the Democratic process," Beardsley said.

Hughes credited the war exclusively for McCarthy's big vote.

He said they fear U.S. domestic programs are being swallowed up in the war and that "the frustration of Vietnam will carry over into an adverse reaction to Democrats, period."

Hughes, a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, told a news conference the United States should be willing to try a bombing pause in an effort to bring the Communists to the negotiating table.

"I question its (bombing) effectiveness," the governor said, adding it apparently had not stopped the infiltration of troops and supplies into South Vietnam.

He said the U.S. should be strong enough militarily to be able to stop the bombing without a promise from the Viet Cong that infiltration will not be speeded up during the pause.

The governor said no time limit should be set on when negotiations must start.

Hughes has been increasingly critical of the Johnson administration's handling of the war and several weeks ago he said his differences with the President on war policy could lead to a break in their otherwise harmonious relations.

Tuesday, Hughes claimed that Johnson's decision to escalate the war was based on misinformation. He said U.S. intelligence reports had been inaccurate and misleading to the chief executive.

The governor, who toured Vietnam in 1965 with a group of governors, said he was optimistic on his return but "there has been a change in conditions" since that time.

He said he now favors the use of "every device and tactic to support ground forces," but doubts if the bombing in the north had done much along this line.

Hickerson To Discuss Urban Problems On TV

Mayor Loren Hickerson is scheduled to participate tonight in the first of a planned six-program television series analyzing metropolitan problems in four northeast Iowa cities. The program is at 8:30 p.m. on KCRG-TV, Channel 9.

The series, entitled "Crisis in the Cities," will feature the mayors of Iowa City, Waterloo, Cedar Rapids and Dubuque.

The first installment, according to Hickerson, will concern law enforcement. The mayors and a KCRG-TV moderator, Dave Clark, are to discuss the relationship between the courts and police departments and prejudices of citizens against policemen.

Hickerson said the mayors would discuss the philosophy of city problems rather than specific problems in their cities.

"We are not going to sit down and try to solve all the troubles in Waterloo or Iowa City, but we are going to see what kinds of crises our cities could and do have," Hickerson said.

A list of topics for future programs has not been completed yet, but Hickerson said that the next program, in approximately six weeks, would concern transportation.

The other mayors participating in the series are Frank Bosh of Cedar Rapids, M. Sylvester McCauley of Dubuque and Lloyd Turner of Waterloo.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A cabinet-level Department of Education and Manpower Development should be created to coordinate federal vocational education and job training programs, Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Iowa) said Wednesday.

University Debaters Probe Church's Role For Students

"Members of the University Forensic Club presented a debate, 'Is the Church Dead for College Students?' Wednesday noon at the Iowa City Optimists Club meeting held at the Elks Club.

Lynn Munro, A1, Western Springs, Ill., and Randy Mott, A2, Centerville, debated the importance of the church as an institution in the lives of today's college students.

Miss Munro, who argued the negative position, said that the church was no longer able to communicate to students on important issues in their lives.

Miss Munro quoted results of a recent survey in which 40 per cent of students interviewed said they learned things in college that made the church no longer meaningful.

"This is not in any way a contention that college students do not believe in God, however," she said.

"Students are now discovering that true humanism cannot be programmed," she said. "They are accepting a more individualistic religion."

In his presentation, Mott agreed that students' ideas on the institutionalized church were changing, but he contended that those changes were only a mirror of change in the entire society.

Mott argued that although college students now had more opportunity for individual choice, they were not drawing away from the institutional church.

Mott pointed to the stands taken by churches and their leaders on important social issues to show that college students could still receive moral leadership from the church.

He mentioned civil rights, Vietnam and birth control as examples of important issues.

Iowa City Home Damaged By Fire

A blaze started by children playing with matches severely damaged an Iowa City home about 3 p.m. Wednesday, according to Asst. Fire Chief A. F. Rittenmeyer.

The house is owned by Mrs. Joanne Schmitz, 1209 Highland Ave.

The garage, a bedroom and the roof of the house received severe fire and smoke damage, Rittenmeyer said.

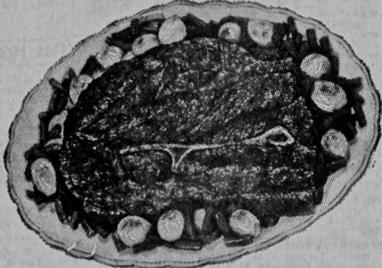

A pet cat suffocated as a result of the fire, Rittenmeyer added. No dollar valuation of the damage was available.
