More Troops Sent To Baltimore; Force Across Nation Hits 55,000

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, in his first televised address of the week, announced Monday night that he is sending 10,000 more troops to Baltimore and authority to use force across the nation is now 55,000.

The president was addressing a joint session of Congress that was meeting early Monday morning.

It was a month ago that Johnson sent 25,000 troops to the nation's capital to contain the violence and disorder following the Iwo Jima battle.

The United States has now sent 10,000 troops to Baltimore in the past 24 hours and, he said, will increase the force to 55,000 if necessary.

In announcing his decision, Johnson said it is a "logical choice" and that he is sending the troops because he believes they are required to maintain public order.

Johnson's statement was read by 11:30 a.m. by White House spokesman James P. O'Toole.

"We are sending in troops to help maintain public order in Baltimore," the statement said. "Johnson is a logical choice because he believes they are required to maintain public order.

Understanding necessary

Among the factors causing the social problems in this country are the lack of communication and understanding between black and white citizens. Without these, there is no recreation, dissent and hatred.

Even on this campus, most white students really don't understand the problems and emotions of black students. There is little appreciation between the groups.

A step in the direction of solving this problem, the Afro-American Student Association, the Student Senate, Motor Board and Associated Residence Halls have organized a series of panel discussions and workshops today.

During these events, black students have discussed the problems they see in the American society today. The idea is to foster a learning experience for the University community.

CPC concert wasn't worth ticket price

By Scott Houston

The first and Garden concert had been an excellent performance of some fine Chopin and Mozart. The performance was well received by the listeners.

Problems with the sound recording and performance. The first and Garden Concert Committee (CPC) concert this year, and the many problems with sound recording and performance are notable.

It is obvious that the Steinway was still on the stage when the audience was shown part compositions.

The audience was shown part compositions which included D. Methode, Frye and Bergholtz.

It is true that there may be some problems with the sound recording and performance. The CPC, however, should be proud of its work.

This year's concert was not worth the ticket price.

Mah name is Lyndon

By Rick Garr

Perhaps in a few years, our new president, Lyndon B. Johnson, will achieve so much that he will be considered a national hero. In his first year in office, he has already accomplished a great deal.

Lyndon Johnson is a born leader. He has the ability to inspire confidence and loyalty in those he works with. He is a man of action, not one to sit back and wait for things to happen. He has been described as a "dynamic" leader, someone who can motivate and energize others.

Lyndon Johnson is a man of vision. He has a clear understanding of what needs to be done and how it should be done. He is a man who never forgets the past, but always looks to the future.

Lyndon Johnson is a man of principle. He stands by his beliefs and is not afraid to make hard decisions. He is a man who is not afraid to offend people, if it means doing the right thing.

Lyndon Johnson is a man of integrity. He has always been honest and straightforward in his dealings. He is a man who is not afraid to admit his mistakes.

Lyndon Johnson is a man of courage. He is not afraid to take risks, even if it means facing criticism. He is a man who is not afraid to challenge the status quo.

Lyndon Johnson is a man of compassion. He is not afraid to show his human side and to care for those in need. He is a man who is not afraid to help others.

Lyndon Johnson is a man of promise. He has the ability to inspire confidence and loyalty in those he works with. He is a man of action, not one to sit back and wait for things to happen. He has been described as a "dynamic" leader, someone who can motivate and energize others.

Victories, Defeats, Titles Won’t Measure Williams

A couple of weeks ago, the Los Angeles Dodgers' baseball team changed hands. The team's new owners were interested in the Dodgers' baseball team, and they wanted to make sure that the team continued to be successful. The change of ownership was a big deal, and it was expected to have a major impact on the team's fortunes. The owners were determined to make the team the best in the league, and they were willing to spend whatever it took to achieve that goal.

The new owners had a lot of money, and they were willing to spend it on the best players they could find. They were also interested in building a team that was hard to beat, and they knew that they had to do a lot of work to get there. The owners were willing to take the time to build a team that was both strong and successful, and they were determined to do whatever it took to make that happen.

The new owners had a lot of experience in the baseball world, and they knew what it took to build a winning team. They had been involved in the game for years, and they had learned a lot about how it worked.
