Rights Bill Goes To Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress passed and sent to the White House Wednesday a civil rights bill with a sweeping ban against racial discrimination in housing and an anti-riot provision.

President Johnson announced he will sign the measure "at a very early date."

"The only true path to progress for a free people is the one we will take when this legislation is made the law of the land," Johnson said.

"Through the process of law, we shall strike for all time the shackles of an old injustice."

Johnson told an impromptu news conference at the White House that the open housing provision is "a victory for every American," and he urged Congress to complete its work on other legislation that offers hope "for millions of Americans who now look to it for action."

This suggested the President was ready to call for action on an assortment of welfare, urban renewal and job-creating bills, all calculated to ease tensions in violence-torn slum areas.

In response to questions, however, Johnson said he was not yet prepared to say when he would address a joint session of Congress.

In passing the civil rights-open housing-anti-riot bill by a vote of 250 to 171, the House rejected a charge that it was knocking under to Negro rioters.

The bill, previously passed by the Senate after months of dawdling debate, cleared the House while armed troops still patrolled outside the Capitol because of the violence that followed the assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The crucial vote was not on final passage, but on a motion to send the bill to conference with the Senate to rewrite the housing provision. This was defeated 229 to 195.

Opposition to the bill was sparked by Southern members.

On the crucial test, only 10 of the 106 members from 11 states regarded as southern voted against sending the measure to a Senate-House conference.

Speaking for the Southern critics, Rep. William M. Colmer (D-Miss.) said "We are legislating in an atmosphere of emotion, threats, arm-twisting."

The murder of the Negro civil rights leader last Thursday and the wave of violence that followed it figured prominently in the debate, which was limited to one hour under the procedure being followed.

"We are being blackmailed into acting," said Rep. Joe D. Waggoner (D-La.), a theme echoed by other opponents of the legislation.

But Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma noted that the voting timetable on the bill had been set last Thursday before a sniper shot King in Memphis and before the riotous outbreaks that followed.

Seventy-seven Republicans who split with their party's House leadership provided the margin to overcome defections by Southern Democrats and keep the bill from going to conference.

They joined 152 Democrats in defeating the attempt. Voting for the conference approach were 106 Republicans and 89 Democrats.

On final passage, the Republican leaders switched over to support the bill, as did many other members.

In addition to its ban against discrimination in housing, the bill would protect civil rights workers against threats and violence, make it a federal crime to cross state lines to incite a riot, and extend the Bill of Rights to American Indians in their tribal relations.

It is the fourth major civil rights bill passed since 1960.

Racial Violence Calms; Cities Keep On Guard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A week-long wave of racial violence that followed the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination appeared to be subsiding across the nation Wednesday.

There were a few remaining trouble spots, however, and the death toll stood at 34.

For the second day in a row, tear gas was used in Kansas City, Mo., this time at the predominantly Negro Lincoln High School, where the original violence which claimed one life began.

However, a march on City Hall failed to materialize, and Missouri National Guardsmen seemed to have the city under control.

The New Jersey National Guard was placed on standby alert in Trenton. Schools there were closed and a curfew was imposed after a night of violence brought destruction to the fringes of the state capitol building.

A teenaged Negro was shot to death Tuesday night by a white policeman who was trying to arrest the youth on a looting charge. Fires were set and Negro youths roamed the streets into early morning hours, shouting: "They killed a boy for stealing a shirt."

In Stamford, Conn., in the wealthy New York suburban area of Fairfield County, a policeman escaped injury during the night when a bullet struck a gas mask he was wearing. Twenty stores were looted and two fires set.

A total of 47,000 National Guardsmen remained committed to riot control duty in 15 states and the District of Columbia. In addition, there were 20,000 federal troops in Washington, Chicago, and Baltimore.

Officials were hopeful, however, that the worst might be over in those three cities and Richmond, Youngstown, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Nashville, Chattanooga, Mobile and Detroit.

Season opening baseball games were allowed to proceed in Baltimore, Washington, Chicago, Detroit, and Cincinnati. These cities all had tasted violence since King's slaying April 4.

There were reports that the 14,000 federal troops in Washington may soon be withdrawn. Baltimore sent 1,800 workers into riot areas to begin the cleaning up of debris. There have been seven deaths in Washington and six in Baltimore.

About 1,000 antiwar protesters gathered in Chicago, eulogized King, criticized the war in Vietnam and dispersed without incident.

Eleven persons died in Chicago in earlier rioting.

In Newark, scene of a bitter riot last summer, approximately 400 persons were left homeless Tuesday night by hit-and-run arsonists, and more than 50 stores were looted. However, in one instance, Negroes helped firemen fight a blaze.

Newark Mayor Hugh Addonizio said although there was no proof as to who set the fires, there was a possibility the fires were the work of white racists.

A second wave of disorders hit Wilmington, Del., during the night and about 1,000 Delaware National Guardsmen were sent into the city. A two-block stretch of 21 buildings went up in flames. Debris was hurled at firemen, who also claimed they encountered sniper fire. A white woman reportedly was pulled from her car and beaten by Negroes.

Search For Assassin Settles Into Routine

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The curfew which was dropped over Memphis for six nights after the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination was lifted Wednesday, as federal authorities expanded the search for his killer.

The developments came as authorities looked into the possibility of unauthorized broadcasts on police radio frequencies which may have thrown authorities off the killer's trail immediately after the slaying.

Meanwhile, curfews were relaxed in Nashville and Chattanooga, which also had had racial outbreaks following King's death — and the state tried to return to normal.

Frank C. Holloman, the city's police director, confirmed he is investigating what seemed to be false radio reports on the police frequency. These told of an alleged police chase of a White Mustang and a Blue Pontiac through North Memphis. A White Mustang reportedly had been seen leaving the area of the slaying.

Decline Further Comment
But Lt. R. W. Bradshaw, who operates the police car from which the radio reports supposedly came, said he did not broadcast them. He and Holloman declined further comment.

Local officers say the search for the assassin is in the hands of federal authorities. The search for a possible suspect spread for a time to Mexico, but officials later said their information had been checked out and the man they were looking for apparently had nothing to do with the slaying.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark had said shortly after King was struck down at a local motel they had a definite suspect — "a man on the run." But as the days dragged on, it became apparent the search had settled down to the routine sifting of clues and leads.

Garbage Talks Continue
As the search continued, negotiators met with President Johnson's own mediator again Wednesday in an effort to resolve the garbage workers strike, the reason King had come to Memphis. They were reported near settlement when they recessed about midday.

"They (negotiators) have asked for some information," said Mayor Henry Loeb, who led the city's negotiating team. "As soon as it is available, we'll go back into session."

Loeb would not say when he expected the sessions to resume.

Allies Push Drive To Uproot Enemy In 3rd Corps Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — A primary U.S. aim in proposed preliminary talks with North Vietnam would be to find out whether Hanoi is willing to impose restraints on its military operations so that all U.S. bombing can be ended, officials said Wednesday.

The date and place of the preliminary contacts between Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and the North Vietnamese envoy are still being debated in diplomatic exchanges between Hanoi and Washington. A decision on an early start of the discussions in an Asian capital, however, is expected shortly.

President Johnson returned to the White House Wednesday from conferences at Camp David, Md., with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, who returned from Saigon to report, and Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, commander in the Pacific.

In Touch With Hanoi
Johnson had announced Tuesday that the latest in a series of exchanges with North Vietnam had taken place, the United States sending a message to Hanoi concerning the time and place of the proposed preliminary discussions.

On the President's return to the White House, press secretary George Christian said there had been no new developments and he declined to comment on all questions about the exchange.

Willingness By Hanoi For 'Restraint' Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — A primary U.S. aim in proposed preliminary talks with North Vietnam would be to find out whether Hanoi is willing to impose restraints on its military operations so that all U.S. bombing can be ended, officials said Wednesday.

The date and place of the preliminary contacts between Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and the North Vietnamese envoy are still being debated in diplomatic exchanges between Hanoi and Washington. A decision on an early start of the discussions in an Asian capital, however, is expected shortly.

President Johnson returned to the White House Wednesday from conferences at Camp David, Md., with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, who returned from Saigon to report, and Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, commander in the Pacific.

In Touch With Hanoi
Johnson had announced Tuesday that the latest in a series of exchanges with North Vietnam had taken place, the United States sending a message to Hanoi concerning the time and place of the proposed preliminary discussions.

On the President's return to the White House, press secretary George Christian said there had been no new developments and he declined to comment on all questions about the exchange.

State Department officials said Wednesday there seems to be an obvious desire on the two sides to get together. The whole problem is one of selecting a suitable place.

North Vietnam proposed Phnom Penh, Cambodia, and the United States proposed Geneva, Switzerland. Compromise possibilities included: Jakarta, Indonesia; Vientiane, Laos; Rangoon, Burma; and New Delhi, India.

Bombing Halt Sought

North Vietnam has said that the purpose of the preliminary discussions would be to find out when the United States would end the bombing of North Vietnamese territory below the 20th parallel. All bombing above that line was halted by presidential order March 31.

Ending all bombing and "other acts of war" by the U.S. is Hanoi's condition for going into full-scale peace talks.

Washington officials said Johnson's purpose in the preliminary discussions would be to try to set up suitable arrangements for getting peace talks started and this obviously brings up the question of ending the rest of the bombing.

But the President, it was said, stands on the position he stated 11 days ago that all air strikes can be ended "if our restraint is matched by restraint in Hanoi."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told newsmen Wednesday there has been no sign of such restraint and added "the infiltration is continuing, perhaps at an increasing rate."

Lindsay, Kerner To Reconvene Riot Study Unit

NEW YORK (AP) — An emergency session of the President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders was announced Wednesday by Mayor John V. Lindsay to spur governmental action against racial violence.

Lindsay said it was already too late to help the people killed and wounded in the urban riots which followed the assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"It is not too late, however, for the nation to move against this crisis with the urgency and enterprise that the commission sought to generate," Lindsay said.

Lindsay, vice chairman of the commission, said the emergency session in Washington in the next few days was agreed to by the chairman, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner.

Republican Lindsay, who has denied any interest in getting on the GOP national ticket, blamed Republicans and Democrats, Congress and the Johnson administration for failure to act on the commission's six-week-old report.

As a beginning, Lindsay called on the Senate to restore funds for summer programs in slums.

Trading Volume On Stock Market Hits New Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange zoomed Wednesday to a new record for the third time in seven trading sessions.

A total of 20.41 million shares changed hands, swamping the exchange ticker tape.

The series of volume records began April 1, when the total of 17.73 million shares topped the old mark of 16.41 million which had stood since Oct. 29, 1929, the day of the great market crash. On April 3, transactions jumped to 19.29 million shares.

The accelerated trading, accompanied by price advances, followed President Johnson's announcement Tuesday of progress toward Vietnamese peace talks.

At the peak of Wednesday's trading surge, the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape trailed by 41 minutes in reporting floor transactions. The tape was late for five hours and one minute of the 5½-hour session.

Brokers said that for much of the session investors had little up to date knowledge of what individual stocks were doing because of the time lag in the appearance of prices on the tape.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed with a gain of 8.21 points at 892.63 after having been up more than 15 points around midday. The average spurred 18.61 points on Monday.

Stock exchanges were closed Tuesday for the funeral of slain civil rights leader the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King.

Silent Vigil Concludes Week Of War Protest

About 60 persons ended "Vietnam Week" with a silent vigil Wednesday noon on the east steps of Old Capitol.

The vigil coincided with one held by federal employees in front of the Washington Monument in Washington, D.C., according to Robert Baker, professor of philosophy. Baker is a member of the steering committee of the Iowa City chapter of Resist, the antiwar group that coordinated the week's activities.

The week was designed to protest the Vietnamese war and to show why protesters consider the war immoral.

The highlight of the week came last Wednesday night when 11 persons mailed draft papers to Selective Service officials in Washington. About 230 others signed statements promising to support the draft resisters with encouragement, counsel and aid. It is believed that both those who turned in their draft materials and their supporters are liable for penalties of five years in prison and/or $10,000 fines.

The ceremony in which the draft cards, registration papers, discharge papers and delinquency notifications were mailed from the Post Office followed a rally in Macbride Auditorium.

400 Attend Rally

Approximately 400 persons heard the 14 speakers at the rally, including Denise Levertov, the noted poetess. Miss Levertov, an outspoken critic of the Vietnamese war, also gave a reading of her poetry last week. She is the wife of Mitchell Goodman, who was indicted in January in New York with Dr. Benjamin Spock for conspiring to counsel draft resistance.

Wednesday's orderly and solemn vigil was a distinct contrast to the November and December antiwar demonstrations at which more than 100 demonstrators — mostly University students — were arrested by local police.

As others continued to join the students and faculty members already standing on the steps, a sheet was handed to passers-by which called for participation in similar vigils to be held weekly at noon at the northwest corner of Washington and Clinton streets.

The proffered sheet asked that those participating in the vigil of "protest and mediation" not interfere with the movements of passers-by nor respond to comments from non-participants.

Vigil Ends Quietly

The sheet also directed those participating to comply with authorities if asked to change their positions on the steps.

The vigil ended quietly — as it had begun — at 12:20 as participants went their own ways.

Edwin B. Allaire, professor of philosophy and a Resist steering committee member, said Wednesday night that the number of people participating in the draft card turn-in and the approximately 300 attending Miss Levertov's reading were above the expectations of the week's supporters. He said that they had thought that it would be good if 5 people had turned in their draft cards and 100 persons had signed complicity statements.

However, Allaire said the supporters were disappointed in the attendance at several of the week's talks.

Allaire could not predict any effects of the week's events as far as influencing future participation by community members in antiwar activities is concerned.

The 10-day "week," which started April 1, included the following events:

James Smith, an economist with the Office of Economic Opportunity, spoke on "The Real Cost of the War in Vietnam."

Seymour Melman, professor at Columbia University and author of "In the Name of America," a report commissioned by the Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam, spoke on "The Domestic Consequences of the War in Vietnam."

"Civil Disobedience vs. the Electoral Process" was debated by Baker; William Flynt, a Des Moines businessman seeking the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate; and the Rev. Ronald Osborne, University Episcopalian chaplain.

Stanford for McCarthy

We have learned some bitter lessons during the past five years about the nature of the White House and the man who lives in it. A liberal man has let the Vietnamese war get tied up with his own ego. He has sacrificed practically all his urgent domestic programs in a vain attempt to wage an ill-conceived war.

Now Lyndon Johnson will retire. In choosing a successor for the Democratic party nomination, voters are faced with a decision based not so much on policies as on personalities. Having Johnson as President should have taught us that personality can have immense implications for the success or failure of a President's programs.

Senators Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy are candidates in the June 4 California primary. They differ little in their foreign and domestic politics. But as men — and potential Presidents — they are poles apart. As recently as two months ago, Kennedy said he would support Johnson for reelection. Although critical of Johnson's war policy, Kennedy declined to aid McCarthy's protest candidacy.

Then McCarthy's remarkable vote in the New Hampshire primary showed Johnson's weakness at the polls. Kennedy jumped into the race. His campaign so far has confirmed our impressions. He immediately leaked to the press his slick offer to Johnson to stay out of the race if a "commission" on Vietnam were appointed, with himself a member. Then last week, after Johnson said he would refuse the nomination, Kennedy immediately sought a meeting with his erstwhile enemy to promote "unity."

A President must be expected to sacrifice his political future, and even his personal reputation, for the sake of the principles he believes in. We have no reason to believe Kennedy would sacrifice his political future for anything.

Eugene McCarthy, on the other hand, has shown a rare dedication to his ideals and a gratifying capacity for ignoring his personal future when working for what he sees as the good of the country. He entered the race against Johnson when the "practical" politicians thought it was suicide. McCarthy impresses us as thoughtful and easy-going. Perhaps his style as President would succeed where ill-tempered aggressiveness has failed.

McCarthy can win. He showed that in Wisconsin, piling up 57 per cent of the vote. A victory in California may be essential to his winning the nomination. We urge members of the Stanford community to support his campaign with time and money.

We need McCarthy.

Visit America—land of Bonnie, Clyde

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — Dear Visitor From Abroad,
This is your invitation to visit the U.S.A. — otherwise known as The Land of Bonnie and Clyde — in 1968.

To make it easier for you, we will answer some of the questions that foreign tourists keep asking us.

IS IT DANGEROUS TO VISIT THE UNITED STATES?

Of course not. Americans are a gentle people who abhor violence. What little there is can be seen on television or in the movies — every night. We have cowboy films, cops and robbers pictures and children's cartoons. If that isn't your cup of tea you can tune in on one of our news shows. We not only show people being killed, but villages being burned, GIs being wounded, enemies being tortured or anything else that suits your fancy. Of course, these shows have no effect on Americans because they know it has nothing to do with them.

WHAT SHOULD I WEAR?

American fashions this year are all modeled after the Bonnie and Clyde look, and everyone wants to dress like a gangster. This trend is tongue-in-cheek, because everyone knows we don't admire gangsters, even though we all consider Bonnie and Clyde a gas.

WHAT CAN I BUY IN THE UNITED STATES THAT I CAN'T BUY IN MY OWN COUNTRY?

Guns, for one thing. We have no laws about buying guns. You don't even have to go to a store. You can order them by mail from newspapers and magazines.

You can buy shotguns, rifles, hand guns, pistols, revolvers and practically any kind of weapon you want. Of course, we only use guns in the United States for hunting. That's why the American Congress in its infinite wisdom won't pass any gun control law. They know anyone who would order a gun by mail or buy one in a store would never use it except to shoot game.

WHAT ABOUT VISITING AMERICAN CITIES?

It's perfectly safe to visit any American city in the country, providing you don't go out after dark or during certain parts of the day. The best thing is to ask your hotel clerk at the desk. He'll indicate what streets are safe and when you can visit them. Americans pride themselves on law and order and would never do anything to disturb the peace.

WHEN IS THE BEST TIME TO COME?

Any time is a good time to visit the United States, with the possible exception of the long hot summer which starts in the middle of March and goes through October. At this time people are irritable and not as friendly toward tourists as they might be at Christmas time.

WHERE CAN I SEE THE PRESIDENT?

You can see the White House, but the President, for security reasons, doesn't make many public appearances any more — at least none that are announced in advance. No other American officials are free to travel, either. But as a tourist, this shouldn't bother you. After all, you have a foreign passport.

I hope this answers most of your questions. So forget your cares and see Americans at work and at play. Watch a truly civilized democracy in action and meet a people who love each other and live in harmony.

See for yourself why the United States is the leader of the Free World and an example to everyone of what you can do when you have understanding, wealth and power.

VISIT THE USA.

New study reveals students conservative

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — In spite of a reputation for vigorous protest, toppling governments and confrontation politics, students are a very conservative group, DAEDALUS, the Journal of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, points out in a special issue on "Students and Politics."

Even in Latin America, activists "are in a minority, often very small," Seymour Martin Lipset, author and professor of government at Harvard University, writes in an introductory essay. "In most countries the vast majority of students are apolitical and tend to endorse the moderate or even the conservative parties."

Other observations in the journal contradict stereotyped ideas about students.

• Though students may provoke political action, they seldom bring it to fruition; the support of other groups is mandatory if any real change is to take place. Those political parties which do not repudiate student efforts are most liable to benefit from them; many parties which once relied heavily on student support, including the British Labor Party and official Communist parties, now tend to ignore student views.

• Student activism varies significantly according to discipline. "Those disciplines that are thought of as 'intellectual' — the humanities and most of the social sciences — are more activist and leftist than those that are oriented toward the professional or scientific world," Lipset writes. This relationship also varies, however, from country to country: "Medicine has a leftist aura in various Latin countries in the Americas and Europe, but is traditionally quite conservative in most of northern Europe and the Anglophonic world."

"Where economics is taught as an extremely technical, mathematically based subject, those who concentrate in the field are less radical than where it remains concerned with qualitative and historical institutional analysis. . . . In every discipline those who think of themselves as intellectuals rather than professionals are more politically activist."

• University systems with demanding class and academic schedules allow for less unrest than those depending primarily upon examinations. "The examination system used is a key factor," Lipset states. In the United States, too much extracurricular activity often jeopardizes academic work; in Latin America, where examinations "are not so important or may be postponed," students are free for political action.

• Parents' political attitudes show a "high correlation" with the politics of their children and are a determining factor. Children of poorer families tend to be less active politically because they are "strongly oriented toward upward mobility . . . concentrated on careerist professional objectives," and need to work as well as study. "Social status seems more important than economic class background in affecting propensity for action."

• Student unrest is greatest when the society is changing rapidly or is felt to be "backwards." The student feels alienated from traditional values and finds either that his education is not relevant to the new situation or that the society cannot offer him a professional career when he is graduated.

"Confrontation politics is characteristic of politics in which students, and other groups as well, lack legitimate channels of communication to authority."

• This factor can also affect "rightist" behavior, as is evidenced by contemporary groups in several countries and, most dramatically, by German youth in the thirties. "Rightist students were nationalistic, anti-authority, and concerned with the seeming inferiority of their nation within the world community."

• In many countries, local university issues — housing, tuition, food — are the only ones which can evoke mass protest. When this sentiment can be linked — often deliberately by student leaders from major party groups — with national issues, a vigorous protest movement can result, only to die when local demands are met or disappear.

Conservative, preoccupied with career and other immediate concerns, most students are far from being fiery radicals intent on bettering the lot of mankind. "Students and Politics" documents these conclusions with a series of studies of students in many different countries in the world.

Old fashioned songs tell of whiskey and D-Day

By VICTOR POWER
"Home Boys, Home" by the Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, Columbia CS 9608 Stereo, produced by Teo Macero.

You can tell what part of Ireland a man comes from by the word he uses for hard liquor: mountain tea, moonshine, poteen, mountain dew, red biddy, holy water, the fire or White Lightning. Whatever the name, the stuff tastes the same, and it gives the same kick to the head.

Two of the songs in this album, the ninth put out by the Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, concern whiskey. The word "whiskey" from the Gaelic "uisce beatha," meaning water of life, is now fairly well known.

The Clancy Brothers praise its potency under the titles of "Mountain Tay," and "Whiskey is the Life of Man." Both are lively little tunes.

The best tune sung in this album is not Irish at all. When the British Eighth Army had fought in Africa and in Italy in World War II, Lady Astor made a speech to the soldiers about to go to France on D-Day.

In her speech, she made reference to the Eighth Army who she said were "D-Day Dodgers sunning themselves in Italy." Her speech caused bitter resentment. Hamish Henderson, an English member of the Eighth Army, wrote a song called "We are the D-Day Dodgers" which made fun of Lady Astor and her stupidity.

The Clancy Brothers with cockney accents bring out the sardonic humor of Henderson's song here. "The Old Maid in the Garret" is another old song well sung by the quartet. The poorest rendering in the album is of "New South Wales," a song about a sheep shearer from Ireland who emigrated and went to New South Wales only to find that his 16,000 mile journey brought him to the same occupation of sheepshearing "down under." It was a pity that the singers did not instead include a better Gaelic song called "The Conneries" which also concerns New South Wales.

The 11 songs on this record are worth hearing, especially "The Bard of Armagh," where an old bard looks back on his youth. He tells of the fun he found at wakes and weddings. "Merry hearted boys make the best of old men," is the theme of the song.

The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem have done much for Irish folk music though they have ruined the original rhythm of some of the traditional airs. Their showmanship comes through on this recording.

Their years of professional repertory acting in Provincetown and New York before they became known as singers, have stood to them in their singing careers. This album is worth hearing if only for its old fashioned assortment of songs, as diverse as the contents of an emigrant's traveling bag, razor and strap, tin whistle, love poems, prayer books, old photographs, a little whiskey and a sentimental fluttering heart.

To the Editor:

In Tuesday's issue of The Daily Iowan, reviewer John Lowens indicates that the CPC concert featuring Simon and Garfunkel was not worth the price. He describes the Simon and Garfunkel sound in terms of "its close harmony, steady throbbing beat and generally mournful tone."

Was Lowens dissatisfied with S. and G.'s attempt at the "59th Street Bridge Song (Feeling Groovy)?" To discredit S. and G. means one did not feel the soul of their closing number "He Was Our Brother."

What was wrong with the CPC concert? It was held in an acoustically poor barn. The amplifying equipment appeared to often overload and cut out. Why do we have this problem? A proposed $11 million music building-auditorium complex is scheduled to be completed on the west bank of the Iowa River in 1970. Students have asked that it include facilities for the type of concert CPC provides. (Students pay and have been paying since 1964, $10 a semester in fees in support of the auditorium.) The administration, its architects and its lackeys insist the University needs an auditorium to seat only a small crowd. Maybe they are right. However, do they expect me to keep paying their salaries and my student fees to be told, "Go to hell!"

Stan Rowe, B4
16 W. Bloomington St.

To the Editor:

Anyone who saw Simon and Garfunkel Sunday night must agree they were fantastic — over and above the shoddiness of the sound equipment they used. There is nothing new or remarkable about the sputters, the buzzes, the distortion. The only thing remarkable is its constancy — from Henry Mancini to Trini Lopez to the Supremes. The CPC spend thousands of dollars to bring some of the best recording stars to the University. With Peter, Paul and Mary coming it is unfortunate that they can't find a sound company with the capability to reproduce the excellent talent that they have worked so hard to secure.

David Sheridan, A2
244 Rienow Hall

To the Editor:

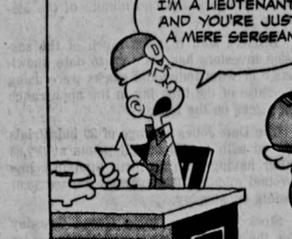

John Lowens' purported review of the Simon and Garfunkel concert was not only an affront to the genius of two outstanding musical artists, but a not-so-subtle slam on the musical tastes of the overwhelming majority of the audience. The fact that Simon and Garfunkel received two enthusiastic standing ovations following a concert that was plagued by a faulty amplification system and incompetent lighting, and was presented in a building that could be mildly termed an acoustical atrocities indicates that the audience — to the exclusion of John Lowens — thought the concert well worth the price of a ticket.

Popular music, in a few rare instances, has finally reached a level of accomplishment in the hands of the poets that it never could attain in the insignificant, cliched, love-sick lyrics of outdated rock groups like the Everly Brothers.

If John Lowens is too insensitive to appreciate the beauty of their music and the truth of their poetry, he would not appreciate it any more in his home than at a live concert. If he is more desirous of the comforts of home than the discomforts of the Field House, which are not the fault of Simon and Garfunkel, then by all means, he should stay home. We entrust The Daily Iowan to find a reviewer who will not let small inconveniences destroy his recognition of a great performance.

Humor No Luxury, Says Cartoonist

By MARILYN OSWEILER
Humor is not a luxury in life; it is a necessity, says Frank Miller, witty Des Moines Register cartoonist who makes thousands of people smile every day.

Miller, with eyes large and solemn, gave a humorous after-dinner speech at a Theta Sigma Pi banquet at the Union recently and didn't smile once. But then that's part of his humor. "We need humor today more than we ever did before," said Miller in an interview afterwards. "If we lose our sense of humor, we're lost."

In his cartoons, he picks especially on groups that have lost their sense of humor. "I've received criticism about the way I draw hippie-type college kids," he said. "I usually exaggerate their hair; it's a great symbol of protesters and demonstrators."

"They've lost their sense of humor about it, though, so now I deliberately pick on them in my cartoons."

Features Exaggerated
Most cartoonists, he said, accentuate or exaggerate one or two prominent features of a person they're drawing.

"President Johnson is very easy to draw. He has the biggest ears since Lincoln, big sleepy eyes, lots of worry lines and a huge chin," he said.

He also said President Kennedy was easy to draw.

"All one had to draw was a lot of bushy hair and put any old face under it," Miller said.

Miller said that when he draws his own face in cartoons, he accentuates his big black horn-rimmed glasses, "worry lines" on his forehead and cheeks and his protruding Adams apple.

One cartoon, which also emphasizes a bald spot on the back of his head, shows his face topped by a shaded-in light bulb to indicate a man at a loss for ideas.

Cartoon Ideas Broad
Miller says he tries to make his cartoon ideas cover a broad area, but admits that he is partial to drawing about civil rights, soil and wildlife preservation, beautification of America and especially about politics.

"Now, before the election this fall," he said, "politicians are open-season to every cartoonist in the country."

Miller, who carries sketching materials in a huge black briefcase hanging down to his ankles, said he gets cartooning ideas by traveling around the country and being around people. Ideas for many human interest cartoons, he said, come from his home where he lives with his wife and two daughters.

"I sit in my easy-chair and watch the 10 o'clock news and doodle on a clipboard every night trying to get an idea for a cartoon," he said.

"Sometimes it takes weeks to get a good idea," he said. "Cartooning is 90 per cent getting an idea and 10 per cent drawing it. If you have a good idea, you can draw it with your thumb and still have a good cartoon."

Cartoons Drawn In Office
Drawing cartoons takes him one or two hours. He draws them usually at his office, the day before they appear in the Register.

Miller, who has worked for the Register 15 years, draws five cartoons a week, which appear on the front and editorial pages. He also illustrates for Picture magazine, a Sunday supplement of the Register.

Miller says he usually tries to make the cartoon on the front page of Sunday's paper a light, funny one about home and family life.

Although not all cartoons have to be funny to be good, he tries to inject both wit and sarcasm into most of them to make them humorous. But some events, such as the death of President Kennedy, can't be treated with humor, he said.

More Than 100 UI Students Tutor City School Children

More than 100 student volunteers from the University are brightening school days for Iowa City children by taking part in a tutorial project sponsored by the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program.

Iowa City grade school teachers are singing out children who can benefit socially or academically by help from the University volunteers or Iowa Citizens assisting in the program.

The children are not necessarily from low-income families, stressed Mrs. Hanna Weston, the program director. Some may merely need tutoring with their arithmetic or reading.

Mrs. Weston said that local school administrators have also been pleased with the tutoring idea and that if funds for continuing it next year had not been available, they were determined to continue it in some other way.

Student volunteers in the tutoring program include: Robert Hutzell, Al, Adel; Brent Roth, A3, Agency; Jean Anderson, N2, Ames; Cheryl Von Behren, A2, Anamosa; Susan Wylie, A2, Brooklyn; Don Wessels, A3E, Buffalo Center; Stephanie Moore, A2E, Cedar Rapids; Karen Most, A1, Cedar Rapids; and Mary Wiley, A2E, Cedar Rapids.

Linda Silverio, A4E, Centerville; Paul Baumann, B4, Cherokee; Mary Junglen, A1, Clarion; Judy Thompson, A2, Clinton; Kenneth Swain, A2, Columbus Junction; Justin Churchill, E2, Creston; John Jens, A2, Davenport; Ellen Wright, A3, Decorah; Kirby Tenhulsen, A2, Denison; and Vicki Bartling, A1, Denver.

Police Court Continues Housing Dispute Case

Police Judge Marion Neely granted an indefinite continuation Wednesday of a case filed against two city officials for illegal concealment of public records.

City Atty. Jay Honohan and Housing Inspector James Hemsath were accused of not releasing names and addresses of landlords whose buildings had failed to meet city code standards.

The charges were filed Monday by Jerold Sies, A4, Valley Stream, N.Y.

Sies, who said he sought the names and addresses in connection with a University class project, contended he wanted to tell the occupants of the substandard buildings that they did not have to pay rent.

Honohan countered Sies' moves Thursday by making plans to file an injunction in Johnson County District Court against Sies. Honohan said he could withhold the names because release of the names would not be "in the public interest."

Both Sies and Honohan are basing their cases on sections of the Iowa public record examination statute.

One section of the statute states that if a public official denies a citizen access to records or documents belonging to any governmental unit, the official is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sies is basing his charge on this section.

Honohan's objection to the release is based on another section of the statute that allows a court injunction to be issued if the release of information is not in the public interest or injures any person.

SIGNATURES REACH 6,000—
An additional 1,670 signatures have brought the number of Iowa City area residents who have signed petitions for open housing and other social legislation to over 6,000. The petitions were circulated by the Martin Luther King Action Committee, composed of 30 local residents seeking a way to aid in solving current social problems.

University Bulletin Board

University Bulletin Board notices must be received at The Daily Iowan office, 201 Communications Center, by noon of the day before publication. They must be typed and signed by an adviser or officer of the organization being publicized. Purely social functions are not eligible for this section.

Some Chicago Negro Pupils Considered For School Here

By MARGE HUMKE

A second letter to the board, coming from the Iowa City Education Association (ICEA), proposed that a liaison committee be dissolved until the board signs a professional negotiation contract agreement.

At a meeting last week, about 140 ICEA members voted in favor of dissolving the committee. At that time, teachers said that the committee had been ineffective in communications with the board.

Board member William Phelan said the method of deciding teachers' salaries also needed consideration, now rather than next spring when the matter came up again.

Chapman said it might be wise to separate salary negotiations from other functions of the liaison committee. He and Supt. Buford Garner will talk with ICEA Pres. Harry Dean to come to a decision regarding the status of the committee.

Some Chicago Negro students from recently troubled neighborhoods may be attending Iowa City schools for a visitation period.

The Iowa City Community Board of Education Tuesday learned about the idea in a letter from the Rev. Jack L. Zerwas, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Zerwas asked the school board if the students would be allowed to attend Iowa City schools without paying tuition.

Board members unanimously approved the proposal in principle.

Sponsors of Equal Education, an Iowa City group, is working on the visitation idea. Zerwas said Wednesday. The group would try to find local housing for the students if plans materialize. The number of students is still undecided and no date has been set for the visitation, although action will probably be taken soon, according to Zerwas.

U-Heights Approves Widening Of Melrose

UNIVERSITY HEIGHTS — The Town Council Tuesday night unanimously approved a project to pave Melrose Avenue as a 37-foot thoroughfare this summer.

The decision ended several months of discussion by the council and town residents about the width of the paving project.

Town Engineer James L. Shive estimated the cost of the project to be $85,123. About half the entire cost — $42,650 — will be assessed to the property owners along the avenue.

The council will vote on the contract and final specifications at a May 14 meeting.

A few town residents objected to the 37-foot width before the vote was taken.

Mayor Chan Coulter said the objections questioned whether the wider avenue might be an invitation to speeding.

Coulter said, however, that the width was approved because it would be safer for the anticipated volume of traffic.

University AWS Hosts Convention

The University Associated Women Students (AWS) is hosting a regional convention of 53 AWS groups from eight states.

The convention, with a theme of "We, the Women: Our Education, Careers, Family, Leisure," began Wednesday and will continue until Saturday.

University faculty members will present seminars with topics ranging from hallucinogenic drugs and foreign policy to the Writers Workshop and Dance Theatre.

Rust Choir To Give 5 Concerts In Area During Weekend

The Rust College A Cappella Choir will present five concerts in the Iowa City area this weekend.

The choir will appear at 6 a.m. Sunday at the Coe College Chapel, Cedar Rapids; at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Asbury Methodist Church, Cedar Rapids; at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Methodist Church, West Branch; at 8 p.m. Monday at St. Paul's Methodist Church, Cedar Rapids, and at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at King Chapel, Cornell College.

Under the direction of Mrs. Lassy Van Buren Holmes, the Holly Springs, Miss., choir is currently on a two week spring tour of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa and Missouri.

UI Non-academic Employees To Form Advisory Group

Non-academic employees of the University are organizing a group to advise the administration on matters of policy directly affecting the employees.

A steering committee has started to arrange for the election of nine members to a non-academic staff council. The council will make recommendations to the administration on behalf of employees who do not hold academic rank. The council will function similar to the University's faculty council of professors.

The nine council members are to be elected by the end of April to represent the seven major classifications of non-academic personnel. The two largest groups will have two representatives.

Nominations are being received by the steering committee under an April 12 deadline. Steering committee members are Anna Coiner, Quadrangle dining service; Waunetta Stubbs, Nursing Service; Larry Bruner, Business Office; Orville Harmison, head custodian; Mike Liesch, University Hospitals blood bank; Ken Muller, Physical Plant sheet-metal shop; Marie Smith, dean's office, College of Business Administration, and Don Volm, Personnel Service.

RELIGION BANQUET SET

The School of Religion's annual spring banquet will be at 8 p.m. April 20 at Country Tierra Restaurant in West Liberty. Reservations may be made with Clayton McNearney, at Gilmore Hall, and Elvan McMurray, Route 2.

UI Student Trades Gun For Books After 2 Vietnam Tours With Navy

By MARY ROUSE
University News Service

A Seabee who left Vietnam in January to register as a freshman at the University doesn't feel undressed without his rifle anymore.

He is Alvin Adams, 25-year-old farm youth from near Botna, who finished a second tour of duty in Vietnam Jan. 19 and received his discharge from the Navy Jan. 30.

"You feel a little bare without a rifle these days," Adams commented wryly. "It gets to be a part of you, just like your shirt."

But he's been on the campus long enough now to get used to carrying books instead. Adams spent most of his time in Vietnam with a Navy construction battalion within 20 miles of Da Nang. He volunteered for his first tour of duty in Vietnam and thinks that if he should be called back into service, he would volunteer for duty there again.

No Front Lines

"There aren't any front lines in Vietnam, as most people know by now," he noted. "Some places are 'hotter' than others, but you can expect to get shot any time, anywhere. You get used to knowing this, though, and don't lose any sleep over it. It's like living next to railroad tracks — before long, you don't even hear the trains. Actually, your chances of getting killed in Vietnam probably aren't as high as they are in traffic on American freeways."

Da Nang was quiet when Adams left. But on New Year's Day he watched from the Seabee camp as a rocket attack from 10 miles southwest of Da Nang blasted the city.

Rockets, mortar attacks and artillery do most of the damage which the Seabees repair. Adams helped build roads, rebuild bridges, level land for building sites and construct buildings for other branches of the service. Da Nang has the headquarters of the First Marine Division and several Air Force jet fighter squadrons and a centralized Military Service Command.

Marines Decapitated

Little quarter can be given to the Viet Cong by anyone who wants to survive, Adams said. He recalls the description given by a Marine of a scene in the Happy Valley area near Da Nang where a group of Marines on patrol were ambushed and decapitated in 1965.

He also recalls — with a smile, now that the incident is past — the time he was operating a caterpillar grader in the Happy Valley area helping build a road at night. A mechanic was riding on the buddy seat of the machine as Adams graded a new stretch of road by the light of the tractor headlights.

They were returning to the place where half a dozen other Seabees were working about 50 yards back when they saw what looked like a huge rat beside the road. Automatically the mechanic raised his rifle and fired three snots at the rat.

When Adams and the mechanic reached the spot where their buddies had been working, not a soul was in sight. Alarmed, they were about to take cover under their machine when the other Seabees came crawling out from beneath all types of road equipment.

They had heard the three rifle shots and immediately drew the only sensible conclusion under such circumstances anywhere in Vietnam — an unknown number of Viet Cong were attacking.

"After the chewing out those Seabees gave that mechanic, I'll bet he hasn't fired any more unnecessary shots," Adams says.

Another tense moment came one night when Adams and his buddies were on an alert because one of the group had heard a suspicious noise. Adams was standing alongside a road scraper, sitting next to a rice paddy, when he heard another noise — something metallic had bounced off the machine. He and another Seabee crawled underneath the scraper and were trying to make themselves comfortable when Adams realized he was sitting on something round and hard. Reaching down, he pulled out a hand grenade.

A few tense seconds passed before he realized that the grenade was one of the four grenades which he carried routinely attached to the ammunition pouches on the cartridge belt around his waist. The spoon of the grenade, by which it was attached to the ammunition pouch, had become unscrewed, allowing the fragmentation and explosive part of the grenade to drop off.

Living Conditions Good

Living and working conditions for the Seabees were comfortable compared to those for many Marines, Adams says. He talked with one Marine who had spent four months in the Demilitarized Zone without a hot meal, sleeping on elephant grass he had chopped down and using a poncho for a shelter.

The Seabees lived in frame buildings with tin roofs and screened sides. The hottest weather while Adams was there came in September, when temperatures of 120-125 degrees were common.

The Vietnamese seemed basically friendly, though, Adams found. He believes that cultivating the friendship of children in the country will pay off in better relations 10 years from now.

During his first stint in Vietnam — from September, 1966, to April, 1967 — Adams was in an area where he met many Vietnamese children. When he returned to the same area last fall, many of them remembered him, leaving the cattle they were herding and running to the road where he was working to visit with him.

At the University, Adams hopes to get a master's degree in aeronautical engineering so that he can work up to the executive level of an airline or work for an aircraft manufacturer after a period as a commercial airlines pilot.

Davenport Priest Is Named Bishop Of Des Moines

DAVENPORT (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Maurice J. Dingman, 54, chancellor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Davenport since 1953, was named bishop of the Des Moines diocese Wednesday by Pope Paul VI.

Msgr. Dingman said he will be consecrated as bishop later this spring in Davenport, and expects to assume duties in Des Moines about June.

The new bishop, who described himself in an interview as a "middle-of-the-roader" on ecumenical thinking within the church, will preside over a diocese which includes some 78,000 Catholics in 23 counties, roughly the southwest quarter of the state.

The diocese has been without a bishop since the Most Rev. George J. Biskup left last Oct. 8 to become coadjutor archbishop at Indianapolis, Ind.

Msgr. Dingman said he favors the organization of priests for a voice in church affairs and "a certain amount of experimentation" with new forms of worship, such as "folk masses."

Stewards In Home Get Compliment

The Johnson County Grand Jury convened for the April quarter Monday and issued a compliment to the stewards of the Johnson County Home for "fine work."

The Grand Jury credited Mr. and Mrs. Joe Milner, operators of the home, for fine physical care given to residents of the home and recommended that the Johnson County Board of Supervisors consider appropriations to establish a program of occupational and recreational therapy there also.
