Conferees Accept Tax Surcharge, Cut In Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees agreed Wednesday night on a $10 billion income tax increase and a $6 billion cut in spending during the next year.

The tax would be in the form of a 10 per cent surcharge on existing taxes, as President Johnson proposed.

The $6-billion spending cut is the figure passed by the Senate, which Johnson said was excessive and against the national interest.

There was no immediate indication when the compromise would be submitted to the House and Senate, but it could not be earlier than next week.

The conference did not finish work on the bill.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) told newsmen after a nine-hour interrupted session, that he could announce two decisions — on the tax and the spending levels. Mills asked the conference to reconvene this afternoon to consider other aspects of the bill.

He said the agreement included a spending ceiling of $180.1 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1, compared to a budget figure of $186.1 billion.

There was no immediate indication where the cuts would be applied.

The combination of tax increase, applying both to corporations and individuals, and spending cuts would be calculated to reduce by $16 billion a budget deficit that has been estimated as high as $25 billion. The administration and the Federal Reserve Board have urged deficit-shrinking action to ward off inflation at home and bolster faith in the dollar abroad.

Mills said the effective date of the tax increase would be the date specified in the Senate — passed bill. This would be retroactive to Jan. 1 for corporations and April 1 for individuals.

The tax increase would expire June 30, 1969, unless extended by Congress.

The depth of the spending cut recommended by the conference is a defeat for the administration. It had insisted that the government would be seriously hurt by any cut more than $14 billion, a figure recommended by the House Appropriations Committee.

Johnson said in his news conference last week that he would accept even the $14 billion cut reluctantly if it were the price of a tax increase.

There has been speculation, but no official word, that he might veto a bill cutting spending as much as $6 billion.

It was learned that the conferees also tentatively agreed to a provision in the Senate bill that would cut the number of federal employees to the level of September 1966.

This would force a cut of about 150,000 in the present job total. However, it would be accomplished by not filling one out of each four vacancies and would only take effect over a long period of time. The Senate had voted to not fill two out of each four vacancies.

McCarthy Challenges Kennedy To Debate

HASTING, Neb. (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.), beginning a final week of campaigning prior to Tuesday's Nebraska primary, challenged Sen. Robert Kennedy (D-N.Y.), Wednesday to debate the issues "man to man, person to person."

The Minnesota Democrat, shrugging off the Indiana primary results Tuesday as inconclusive, attacked Kennedy's agricultural record in talks across the rich central Nebraska prairielands.

Kennedy and McCarthy are vying for Nebraska's support at the Democratic National Convention. Vice President Hubert Humphrey, whose name is not on the ballot, is expected to receive substantial write-in support.

Campus Unrest Continues; Hardening Attitude Prevalent

NEW YORK (AP) — Concessions by school administrators lulled student unrest on some U.S. campuses Wednesday, but continuing demonstrations elsewhere were marked by a hardening attitude on both sides.

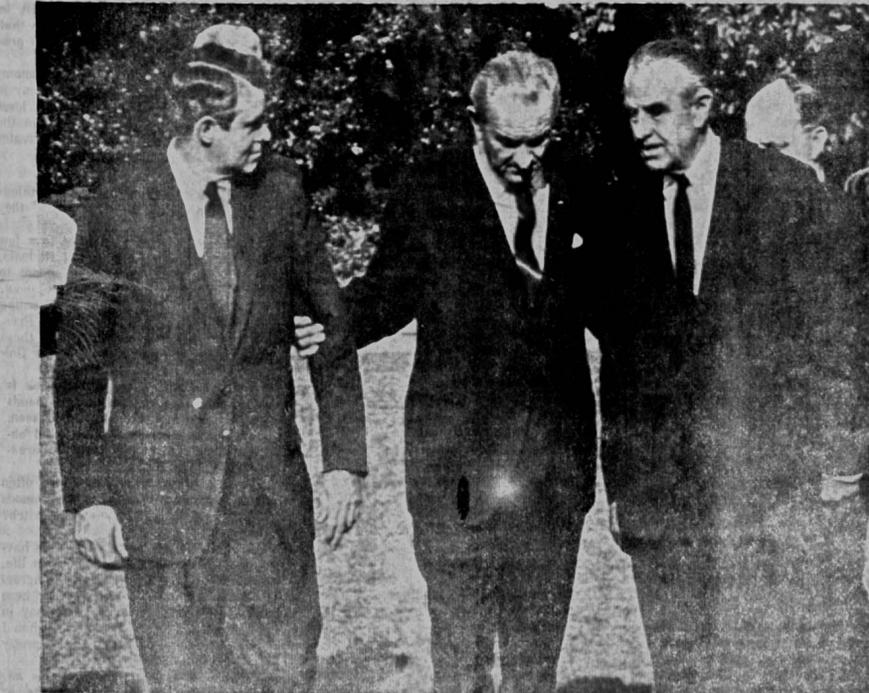

An attorney representing 11 students, alumni and faculty members of New York's Columbia University asked for a federal court injunction to halt disciplinary action arising from recent campus disorders.

The petition also sought to prevent further action by city police who last week forcibly removed sit-in demonstrators from a number of school buildings. The demonstrators were protesting the use of city park land for the site of a new gymnasium.

The university threatened legal action against any persons who made public documents alleged to have been taken from the office of Columbia President Grayson Kirk. Columbia has an enrollment of approximately 25,000. The disorders began April 23.

Stanford Has Sit-In
Administrative employees of Stanford University in California returned to their desks despite a continuing sit-in by 400 students. The students remained for the third day in a building that houses the offices of the registrar, admissions personnel and the dean of men.

The Stanford students are protesting the suspension of seven colleagues who demonstrated last November against campus recruiting by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Sies Continues Dispute Over Voting, Records

Jerrold Sies, A4, Valley Stream, N.Y., continued his disputes with city officials Wednesday over matters of voting registration and housing records.

Sies, who has demanded access to city housing records to inform tenants of their legal rights and possibly form a tenants union, won the first round Tuesday in a court fight to get access to the records.

Johnson County District Court Judge William Eads denied Tuesday a request for a temporary injunction against Sies obtaining the records sought by City Atty. Jay Honohan.

Eads ruled that the inspection records were matters of public information, and it would not be in the public interest to keep them confidential.

Sies asked for and received Wednesday a list of five unoccupied, condemned houses in Iowa City. He was denied access to other records.

Files To Stay Closed

Honohan said Wednesday that the housing inspection files would not be opened to Sies pending the outcome of a court hearing on whether to grant a permanent injunction to block access to the records. Honohan said the hearing would probably be held sometime in June. Also pending are Police Court charges of withholding public information filed by Sies against Honohan and an assistant housing inspector.

Building Inspector Bruce Hamilton said Wednesday he was unsure of what other records Sies wanted to examine.

Sies also clashed Wednesday with city officials over his voting registration.

Sies registered to vote in Iowa City April 25. He later received a letter from City Clerk Glen Eckard stating that his residency was being challenged by Honohan.

Sies Questioned
In a hearing Wednesday morning, Eckard asked Sies 53 questions concerning his residency, plans and other voting requirements.

Gary M. Veldey, director of Hawkeye Area Legal Services Society Inc., represented Sies at the morning hearing. Veldey asked 12 questions of Eckard.

Veldey said the city criteria for voting and registering student voters were unrealistic. Veldey said residency should be determined by an individual's intent to live in Iowa City and his financial independence from his parents rather than whether the student lived in University housing and his marital status.

Eckard said Wednesday that he would rule on Sies' eligibility next week. Eckard's ruling could be appealed by either side to District Court.

King Suspect Search Swings To Iowa City

The search for James Earl Ray, the suspected assassin of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., swung unexpectedly to Iowa City Wednesday night — but just for a few minutes.

Police received a report from Myrtle Brooten, 108 S. Linn St., that a man resembling Ray had purchased a ticket and entered the Englert Theatre, where she is a cashier.

She reportedly had noticed a resemblance between this man and a photograph of Ray which appeared in newspapers.

Police went to the theater and found the man. He was not Ray, they said. He reportedly was a man from Martelle, Iowa, viewing a movie, not hiding from the FBI.

LBJ Expresses Hope As Delegation Leaves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before the U.S. delegation left to meet with North Vietnamese envoys, President Johnson voiced cautious hope Wednesday that the Paris talks will lead to an honorable peace.

Speaking to Thailand's visiting prime minister about his campaign to "begin the work of healing" the bitter Southeast Asian conflict, Johnson said, "There is hope now . . . that that offer will bear fruit and that an honorable peace could come."

A six-man U.S. delegation headed by veteran diplomat W. Averell Harriman was slated to leave Washington at 7:30 this morning aboard a U.S. Air Force plane. They were to arrive in Paris about 8 p.m. French time. The Vietnamese talks are scheduled to start Friday.

Prime Minister Arrives
The Thai prime minister, Thanom Kittachorn, arrived at the White House Wednesday for a two-day official visit. This is one in a series of meetings that Johnson has been holding with leaders of allied nations of the Vietnamese war.

Thanom reportedly was anxious, as the other Asian allies were, that his country be fully consulted on any U.S. dealings with North Vietnam. He had previously made known his doubts that Hanoi really wanted peace.

However, Thanom declared on his arrival that Thailand joins the United States in seeking "a genuine peace which is not a facade covering a surrender — but a peace which guarantees freedom and the right for small nations to exist with dignity and independence."

U.S. Still Concerned
Johnson reaffirmed to Thanom that the United States "remains involved in and

Drive On Saigon Slackens On Eve Of Paris Talks

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong's new drive against Saigon slackened today on the eve of preliminary Vietnamese peace talks in Paris.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, enemy gunners shelled two allied airbases and four other military installations. Ten rockets hit the Da Nang airbase but no casualties were reported and damage was termed negligible. One South Vietnamese soldier died in a rocket attack on government headquarters in Da Nang City.

Sounds of battle had rumbled through Saigon earlier as American troops swept into the capital's southwestern outskirts to head off enemy forces trying to break in.

The U.S. Command said that since the enemy attack opened Sunday, 2,002 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops have been killed in what one officer called the enemy's "peace talk offensive."

In the far north, North Vietnamese rockets struck South Vietnamese installations at the big allied base of Da Nang and Quang Tri, but the enemy made no attempt to follow up with a ground attack.

This followed the pattern of the widespread attacks Sunday on more than 100 South Vietnamese cities and military installations. The allies believe the blows were intended to strengthen North Vietnam in talks in Paris this week, and they braced for more such attacks.

Only in and around Saigon have the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese kept up a ground attack since Sunday, but the fighting inside Saigon died down.

A third battalion from the U.S. 9th Infantry Division was moved in to help cut off enemy forces seeking to gain access to the city.

concerned with the future of human freedom throughout the world."

The U.S. aim in Vietnam, the President said, is "to help a nation in its struggle to determine its own destiny." He pledged again that U.S. troops will pull out of that country when this objective "becomes secure."

U.S. officials expressed some interest in a remark attributed to French foreign minister Maurice Couve de Murville by a French government spokesman. De Murville was quoted as saying that the United States and North Vietnam will hold broad talks in Paris on ending the war, not limiting their discussions merely to the question of halting U.S. bombing of the North.

The U.S. officials said they did not know whether Hanoi had asked the French government to give this view of the importance of the talks, or whether the statement might have been volunteered in French exuberance over the selection of Paris as the meeting site.

Pentagon Blasted By Congressmen Over M16 Scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aroused congressional critics are prodding the Army to explain why an arms production company with a price below that of the successful bidders lost out in competition for contracts to supply the M16 rifle.

Maremont Co. of Saco, Maine, failed to get one of two contracts awarded despite its offer to supply 240,000 M16 for a ceiling price of $36 million.

The price quoted by Maremont, sole supplier of the Army's M60 machine guns, was $20 million below that of General Motors (GM), which got one of the contracts, and $6 million less than that of Harrington & Richardson, Worcester, Mass., which got the other.

Explanation Needed
After Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) revealed Maremont's offer to the Senate, Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), chairman of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, said, "I am not saying there has been any wrongdoing. We do not know, but the matter certainly requires an explanation."

"On the face of it, the awards do not look like a good move in terms of economy," said Rep. Richard H. Ichord (D-Mo.), chairman of a special House subcommittee that investigated the M16 a year ago.

Ichord said he has advised Rep. L. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, of the latest developments in the M16 case. Rivers and the committee will decide if the M16 investigation should be reopened.

Price Not A Factor
The Army has had no comment, but industry sources say that Maremont and a fourth company, Cadillac Gage of Warren, Mich., were eliminated before price became a factor. The amount of Cadillac Gage's offer could not be determined.

Industry sources said each of the four firms submitted detailed technical outlines of how they intended to supply initial and future orders. Army officials reportedly told Maremont that while they had no major criticism of the firm or its M16 proposal, they had more confidence in GM and Harrington & Richardson.

Members of Congress from Maine have questioned this reasoning, contending that GM's arms production has been limited to manufacture of the M39 cannon for Air Force fighter planes.

Student housing a farce?

(First of a series)

The question of the new Student Senate constitution is not likely to be raised again until next fall at the earliest. Until then, the senate will not push the administration on the points with which there is disagreement.

The administration speaks of the impossibility of differentiating between academic and non-academic. Therefore, it insists, it cannot let students make their own rules about where they live and how they live.

"These matters are vital to education or to the integrity of the University itself and are surely part of its necessary responsibility," Pres. Howard R. Bowen said in a letter to Carl Varner, student body president.

But no matter how much the administration may talk about the educational experiences that exist in University-approved housing compared with housing that is not approved, it becomes apparent that the administration is really worried most about keeping its dormitories full.

Generally, it is the administration's contention that some type of supervision is necessary over students who are younger than a certain age — 21 now, 20 beginning in 1969. This supervision is supposed to keep out liquor and members of the opposite sex, but that's about all.

Of course there are allegedly inspections made to insure that the housing is sanitary and safe. But anyone who has seen some of the off-campus approved housing or Greek houses wonders how strict the inspections are.

It is often amusing to visit a student apartment in one of the luxury apartment developments around the city, where everything is new, carpeted, air conditioned, spacious and very liveable — but not University approved — and compare it with the typical approved apartment that is in an old cramped house and probably doesn't even meet the city's housing standards. But it is even funnier when one finds that the cost of the approved apartment is more than the unapproved — although the approved unit may be nearer to campus.

What really matters to the administration is the supervision. The administration cannot let its students drink alcohol or have sexual relations in their approved housing units. Instead, these terrible activities must be carried out elsewhere.

But from many reports it is apparent that even the supervision in which the administration is most interested is poor. Indeed, what probably happens some of the time is that a landlord promises the administration that he will watch over his tenants and then uses the extra money he gets because his property is approved to enjoy himself.

It is obvious that in many cases the University's approval of off-campus housing is a farce. About the only place most of the rules are strictly enforced is in the dormitories. And this is one of the things that makes the dormitories so unpopular.

Ohio State over-reacts

Board of Trustee members have already over-reacted to Friday's Administration Building takeover by student protesters — and in the wrong way.

Several members of the board have called for immediate suspension of the students plus prosecution on trespassing charges of those involved.

Although the brazen and disruptive tactics by the students cannot be tolerated, the basic underlying reason for their behavior should be explored and corrected. Instead of summarily slapping workhouse sentences against them for trespassing charges, the trustee's first priority should be to remedy the inequities that induced such behavior.

The Trustees should react immediately to the real problem at hand — the secondary status of the Negro in the university community.

The trustees should recognize and honor Negro demands for Negro history courses. Negroes have a great heritage as do all groups in the United States. It deserves to be recognized and black and white students should be made aware of it.

In addition, the trustees should demonstrate that they are making all possible efforts to recruit Negro faculty members and administrators.

It is imperative that the University community — supposedly the most progressive and intellectual segment of the population — start acting now to rid itself of all vestiges of racial double standards.

Friday's incidents demonstrate that this initiative is not being taken up by Ohio State. And the trustee's reactions show the chronic narrowness and stoicism that have perpetuated inaction.

It's high time that the University trustees and administration face up to the grave inequities that exist and move to remedy them. If the problems cannot be conquered in the university community, then there's little hope for the nation.

You can't buck Establishment

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Woe to the person in this country who attacks the Establishment. It isn't jail, nor even physical harm, that he must fear. His main problem is that by attacking the Establishment, he automatically becomes a member of it, and there is no greater punishment in the world.

BUCHWALD

Let us take the case of Samuel Suchard, a pro-Maoist, antiwar, antidraft Leninist-anarchist. Having led demonstrations against the White House, the Pentagon, the U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise and the YWCA, Suchard was finally caught by the Establishment and dragged down to the Metropolitan Club for lunch.

There he faced a table of smiling, friendly faces.

"Suchard," one of the Establishment members said, "We've had our eye on you for some time and we think you have what it takes to be one of us."

"A pox on you," Suchard said. "I'm against the Establishment with its stinking rules and fancy clothes and bloated imbeciles. I despise you all." To make his point, Suchard threw his soup on the floor.

Instead of getting angry, the rest of the people at the table applauded.

"Of course, you do," said a second member of the party. "And you have every right to hate us. It's for this reason that we think you would make a marvelous member of the power structure. How would you like a grant from the Ford Foundation so when you attack the Establishment, you won't have to worry about financial problems?"

"To hell with a grant from the Ford Foundation, man, I'm not selling out for any lousy grant. I'm a revolutionist."

Suchard picked up his steak and started to eat it with his fingers.

A third member at the table spoke up. "You don't have to take the Ford grant if you don't want to. Would you consider a lecture tour under our sponsorship? You could go around the country speaking before Rotary and Kiwanis luncheons explaining why you're disenchanted with society, and what we have done wrong. There's a big demand for such speakers now."

For the first time Suchard started losing some of his cool. "What are you guys trying to do to me? Don't you understand? I'm against every American institution from the Flag to the Space Program. I want to tear the very fabric of this society apart."

"Of course, you do, Suchard, and we respect you for it. The Establishment is always open to criticism in spite of things you hear to the contrary. We could even arrange for you to be on Meet the Press where you could voice your discontent to millions and millions of people at one time. Or, if you prefer, we could give you your own television show where you could discuss your own opinions in the manner of David Susskind."

Suchard wiped his mouth with his sleeve. "I — I — I — you guys are trying to trap me. I want to get out of here."

The man sitting next to Suchard put his hand gently on Suchard's arm, and said almost in a whisper, "Sam, how would you like to be on the cover of Time magazine, as spokesman for all alienated youth?"

Suchard looked from face to face. "I couldn't do it. I mean, what would the guys say?"

"We'd even throw in the cover of Newsweek, Sam."

Suchard said dreamily, "The covers of Time and Newsweek."

"It wouldn't just end there, Sam. We could get you appointed to a government commission to study violence among our youth. We could make you a director of a poverty program; you could meet with the President at the White House, lunch with David Rockefeller, get an honorary degree from Harvard, become a member of the Burning Tree Golf Club, and the beauty of it is, you wouldn't have to give up one of your ideals."

"All right, already," cried Suchard. "I'll do anything you ask me. Just leave me alone."

"We knew you'd see it our way, Sam. Would you like to come down to the racquet club with us after lunch for a few sets of squash?"

Reader urges involvement in solving world's problems

To the Editor:

There are times when I envy the person whose only goal is a second car in the garage or a new house in the suburbs. This is a very safe, relatively uninvolved way to traverse through life. The person who concerns himself with the problems around us soon becomes frustrated with the seemingly insurmountable problems facing him. He stands in the center of the society surrounding him and sees discrimination against fellow human beings; spreading incidents of child abuse and neglect; the awful picture of United States citizens starving; increasing use of drugs by our young people; antiquated school systems producing robots or drop-outs; increased divorce rates, younger marriages, increased sexual and other crimes, police brutality; and finally he will come to the immoral and unjust war being fought in Vietnam in the name of democracy.

The person who wants to solve all or some of these problems soon finds he must face problems of politics, money, morals, tradition, misguided patriotism, prejudice and the apathy of the masses. He soon learns there are no laws of behavior that he can apply to change people's values to those he feels are right. He learns that he can offer no objective arguments to win people to his cause but must rely on what he feels in his heart.

Then it is no wonder so many people only concern themselves with getting that second car or the new house in suburbia. When faced with so many enormous problems to be solved, it is much easier to retreat into that uninvolved cave where the only concern is the paycheck. And I admit, there are times when I am tempted to retreat in the face of these seemingly insurmountable wrongs taking place in our society. But my conscience will not allow me to make that retreat and I must go on fighting those wrongs in any way I can.

So, I plead to those who have a social and moral conscience to get out and get involved in solving these problems. Whether it is the war, child abuse, civil rights or whatever, the problems have to be solved and this has to be done by concerned people. If you have retreated, to the self-centered world of materialism, I do not envy you, I feel sorry for you.

Graduating senior describes spring; sees signs of meaningless sacrifice

To the Editor:

It's spring and all kinds of things are coming up: flowers, leaves, graduation activities — and little notices in mail boxes, "Order to Report for Physical Examination." So, as the land comes alive again some people see only signs of potential death, and with the end of lifeless, sterile winter comes the even more deadening prospect of meaningless sacrifice.

When I got that black notice one beautiful day, my attention was directed to 130½ S. Clinton St., home of Iowa City Resist. I had already decided to refuse induction and Resist was very helpful in providing information. For this, the hyperthyroid, super-patriot will perhaps call me and others radical or traitors, but I am a Lutheran quietist who has never attended any sort of unpopular rally, and simply wishes to be left alone. Yet this is not a time to quietly submit and say "the proper authorities know what they are doing." The, do not.

The government has said, in effect, that the individual citizen does not even own his own body, but that he is the property of the state, to be disposed of as the state wishes. (This is what conscription means.) The government has told us that we must fight — even be forced to fight — for a people who will not fight for themselves. The government is making millionaires of corrupt South Vietnamese officials even as the masses become more wretched because of the alien American army, proping up a hated minority government against the will of the entire nation, North and South, while, at home, adding to the already fat war fortunes of American business. The government has continually lied to us about the glorious progress of the heroic people of beleaguered South Vietnam, and has gone on to new lies when the old lies became too painfully obvious.

How many of us will naively continue to believe? How many will now sacrifice themselves for — for what? One answer is obvious:

The Class of '68 cannot distinguish itself on the battlefields of Vietnam, for there is no glory to be won there; it can, however, distinguish itself at the induction centers, court houses and jails of America.

The Garden of Opinion Student autonomy preposterous

by Rick Garr

Ideally, I suppose, there are some good points in the goals of our angry young men who are demanding student autonomy in one form or another from the old men on the Pentacrest. Still, in the long run, I would have to say that the concept "student autonomy" is preposterous.

Why? Because the animals have autonomy in the zoo? Do convicts have autonomy in their prisons? Do kindergarten tots have autonomy? Do they need a voice in the selection of fingerprints? Do privates have autonomy in the Army?

No, frankly, they don't. Why? Because they have other things to do. That's why they are where they are.

This may come as a surprise to a few (and I mean a few) people, but students, as the word itself denotes, are meant to study. That's how learning comes about. Yes, there are other kinds of learning (socialization, if you prefer), but as Pres. Howard R. Bowen has pointed out, these are secondary to the purpose of the University.

And, when the chaff of the issue is sorted out, when the individual demands are set aside and the gun point is seen, it should be clear to the impartial observer that student autonomy is unreasonable.

Obviously, rules of any kind can often be a burr under the saddle. Is this grounds for automatically hitting the reject switch? I think not.

Of course, nobody particularly likes having a bunch of old goats running his life, but that's tough. That's part of the agreement, baby, but at least students here have a little (and probably large) say in the way things are done. From what I can gather, the administration is pretty damn tolerant and considerate.

For one who spent four years as an undergrad in the nearest thing to a Stalinist-type academic police state, the rantings of many of the loudmouths around here comes as quite a shock.

I went to a juicy little hole whose administration would rival Peron, M. O. and good old Uncle Joe himself for lack of sympathy for the peons.

We went to chapel every week. We listened to the backwoods Baptist conponents rant at us and the local principal lecture to us about his decrepit school.

We watched as our coeds came in at 9:30 every night. We griped under our breath when we couldn't wear shirts and girls couldn't wear slacks except for rare occasions. We bitched about the ban on drinking anywhere near the county's the school was in.

We winced every three years when a frat was purged of its activities. Then we peeped around the corner as the attorneys of the ex-students blared at the dean, received the final no and left.

We received our faithful campus paper with the editorials nicely chopped up by the fat cats, and its features banished to a purgatory of sterility by the job-conscious adviser. Yeah, we watched.

We went to class and managed to find a few courses other than education, English, science, physics and the social sciences. We put up with a faculty of over-the-hill senilities, a few (damn few, too) young rookies who would leave when it was discovered they had ideas, and the one Chinese instructor with a language problem so bad he lectured by reading line-by-line from the text. Yeah, we went. Somehow we learned.

Why didn't we act, you ask? Fear, mostly. When you're poor and you see no other way of being a human being except in the army or a tiny school that will nurse you along. You don't stand around consulting your friends about what you should do. You grab.

After seeing so many people pierced through the heart with hot poker, so to speak, you put on a nice heavy breast-plate and look the other way. Of course it's expedient cowardice; but after a while you learn the value of an education. You also learn the potential for blind hatred.

Even so, it seems, complete student autonomy, while containing many lovely ideals, is impractical when viewed realistically.

Students are essentially creatures of the present, immensely so. We lack the perspective of both the past and the future because we've never seen much of the past from an adult telescope and, as a result, we have only a limited hint of the future.

The people who have to make the crucial decisions in a university need a background of experience from which to evaluate the likely results of present proposals. Students, on the whole, tend to ride a surge of immediacy when confronted with an issue and their perspective is bad.

A state university is, in a sense, a creation and an arm of the people of that state. And even though we (our parents) pay the state's employes to change the arrangement of things in our brains, we also give up a few things when we enroll.

With pure student autonomy who is responsible? With no administrative figure in between to accept responsibility, the people of the state could only strike back at the students. We'd have a real war then, baby.

If this whole overblown issue can be viewed objectively, one would have to say several things.

First, all kinds of opportunities exist for the airing of disagreements and there is unlimited potential for changing the rules. It will be slow, and we may not benefit while we're here. But is that the important thing? Is immediacy the main point? I think not.

Next, the range of different views on autonomy that exist and the number of areas it touches, must undoubtedly lead to confrontations. But with the opportunities that exist for debate, tolerance should be the order of the day.

Finally, and I think this is the most important, the university exists primarily to change our minds, not from empty buckets that are filled in four years, but into endless whirlpools searching after truth.

The more you read, it seems, the more you see how ignorant you really are. And with the possibilities for intellectual and social enrichment right here so conveniently, it seems somewhat of a waste for people to be "chasing paper butterflies" as Brad Kieseley has said.

What he didn't say was that this was their prerogative and that to a point their activity is necessary so that change may come about. What he implied, and I think this is sound, is that by automatically accepting 100 per cent of everything student activists propose, continuity is lost in a kaleidoscope of forced adjustment.

'Olden Days' and 'Orpheus' offer wide variety of music

By STAN ZEGEL

Today marks the beginning of a series of informal concerts, sponsored by the Union Board, to be held in the Union Music Room.

"The Olden Days," is the theme of today's program, which will be presented in two parts — one in the afternoon, one in the evening. Admission is free and no tickets are required.

At 4:15 p.m., the Collegium Winds will play old music on old instruments. The venerable harpsichord will be joined by a sackbut (an early trombone), some cornetti (little horns that sound like trumpets) and recorders (wooden cousins of the flute) in "The Olden Days — part one," directed by Eugene Helm.

The program will consist of instrumental music of the 16th and 17th centuries, mainly elegant dance rhythms.

A Telemann sonata for recorder and harpsichord will be one of the 11 works on the program, as will a gallerie for recorder quartet by Melchior Franck.

A recorded duet is to perform Joannes Slah's musical portrait of "Master Hildebrandt."

At 7:30 Thursday evening, vocal music of the renaissance will be sung in the Union Music Room by versatile soprano Janet Steele, accompanied by lively little lutenist Lucy Cross as they present "The Olden Days — part two." Miss Steele is a vocalist with the Center for New Music, and Miss Cross is a professional lutenist from Yale who is in Iowa this week to aid Miss Steele in a series of concerts.

Miss Cross will explain some things about early music and her Elizabethan double-stringed instrument. She will also play some English lute solos from the classic Pane Pickering Lute Book.

A passionate love song by Claudio Monteverdi, and some 15th and 16th century Spanish songs will be sung by Miss Steele.

Several works of the pop song writers of the 1500s, John Dowland, are to be played by the pair, including the very lovely "Come Again, Sweet Love Doth Now In-vite" and "Flow My Tears."

Thomas Campian, famed as an English poet, set some of his literary work to music and the duo will perform one of his most popular, "Never Weather-beaten Sail."

Not content with music of the court of the Faerie Queene, the pair is to delve into the music of 14th century Italy to resurrect some of the pretty music of Jacopo da Bologna, one of whose works, "O Cielo Mondo," was a highlight of the recent concert here by the Collegium Singers.

Both of these programs should be excellent and a wonderful chance to enjoy music in a relaxed atmosphere.

I never understood why the Paris police banned the Can-Can. When performed in movies and high school plays, it always looked innocent to me. Then I saw a rehearsal for "Orpheus in the Underworld." Now I understand why even the French banned the dance.

That ribald operetta is not the classic story you may have read in core lit. It is a spoof of mythology, grand opera, politics and many other goodies. It's just full of "business."

When you see it Friday or Saturday (at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium), don't expect profound truths. There are none. Just fun.

Tickets are available at the door.

Survey Says RFK's Strength Greater Than Victory Shows

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's margin of victory in Indiana was only a slight indication of the strength he showed in all the groups throughout the state, according to a Kennedy survey of election results on Wednesday.

Kennedy won 10 of 11 congressional districts in addition to his 42 per cent statewide margin, thus commanding the vast majority of Indiana's 63 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

The vote analysis provided by the Kennedy organization showed the following:

The New York Democrat won every Indiana city except Evansville and Bloomington.

He won 85 per cent of the vote among the state's Negro precincts. He won the home county of the favorite son candidate, Gov. Roger D. Branigin, Tippecanoe County, as well as his home town of Lafayette and his home precinct.

Kennedy carried the seven largest counties where former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace relied upon a large number of votes with a strong white backlash in 1964.

Kennedy showed wide margins in Lake, Delaware, Howard, Grant, Madison, Allen, and Marion (Indianapolis).

Kennedy was victorious in 10 farm counties.

He won 17 of 25 counties in the southern end of the state, which is heavily populated by southern migrants.

Some of his best margins of victory appeared in cities such as Muncie, Logansport, Fort Wayne, Terre Haute and Kokomo, which have high numbers of blue collar workers and union members.

The Kennedy survey pointed out that the New York Democrat lost by only 1,100 votes to Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy in Bloomington, site of Indiana University, which was considered to be a McCarthy stronghold.

Poor People's March Nearly Gets In Trouble

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The Poor People's Campaign, utilizing marching feet and air-conditioned buses, gained momentum from Maine to Mississippi.

The Southern leg of the campaign ran into a temporary roadblock in Alabama's capital city when police halted a march. Authorities told the group the march was illegal because the route differed from the one approved when a parade permit was issued.

The route the marchers wanted to take was near the State Capitol, where the body of Alabama Gov. Lurleen Wallace lay in state.

Nixon Says LBJ Weak On Crime

NEW YORK (AP)—Richard M. Nixon said Wednesday that the Johnson administration had been "lame and ineffectual" in dealing with a staggering increase in crime.

The former vice president, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said that

Nixon said that crime cannot be charged off to poverty, and that the Johnson administration "bears major responsibility for perpetuation of the myth."

"The success of criminals in this country plays a far greater role in the rising crime rate than any consideration of poverty," he said.

Few Criminals Convicted
He said only one in eight crimes resulted in a conviction, and doubling that rate "would do more to eliminate crime in the future than a quadrupling of the funds for any governmental war on poverty."

"In short," he said, "crime creates crime because crime rewards the criminal. And we will reduce crime as we reduce the profits of criminals."

While President Johnson asked $2 billion this year for the war on poverty, organized crime took $3.5 billion from the urban poor by the numbers racket, Nixon said.

Loan sharks, he said, squeezed out many times the $50 million in loans last year by the Small Business Administration, and narcotics netted organized crime $350 million — "the precise sum spent for the Head Start program."

Street crime, he said, has increased to the point where people are afraid to go out. He said the police are undermanned and underpaid, and the prison system is a "failure."

Crime Rate Rising
"If the present rate of new crime continues, the number of rapes and robberies and assaults and thefts in the United States today will double by the end of 1972," Nixon said.

"That is a prospect America cannot accept. If we allow it to happen, then the city jungle will

Rescuers Face 24-Hour Delay To Get At Miners

HOMINY FALLS, W.Va. (AP)—Rescuers cannot, before tonight, bring out the 15 miners known to be alive in a water-filled coal mine, the president of the company that owns the mine said Wednesday.

C. E. Richardson, of the Maust Coal and Coke Co., told relatives and friends of the trapped miners that it would be at least 24 hours before the passageway was pumped out.

Twenty-five men were entombed in the mine Monday noon when the wall of an adjoining abandoned mine cracked, filling a 2-mile long passageway with water.

The known survivors are in spaces that allow only a few to stand erect.

Confusion developed Wednesday on the identities of the men trapped in three separate groups. No word has been received from the men farthest into the mine.

Company officials have not released a list of the men in each group, but said there were 10 two miles deep in the mountain, two at a point 1 1/2 miles in, and 13 one mile from the mine entrance.

But Wednesday, a rescue worker said there were 14 in the group nearest the mouth and nine at the two-mile point. He said two brothers, Otis and Oscar Dillon, first thought to be in the uncontacted group, were among the men known to be alive and well. And he said, one of the men believed safe, was in the uncontacted group.

ICEA's Policy Statement Examined By UI Law Prof

Richard F. Dole, University assistant professor of law, discussed teacher negotiation agreements with the Iowa City Community Board of Education and representatives of the Iowa City Educators Association (ICEA) Tuesday.

At an information meeting, Dole examined a policy statement drawn up last fall by members of the ICEA.

"The statement recognizes the principal of mutual consultation on matters of professional interest," Dole said. He emphasized that if it is accepted by the board and teachers, the policy statement would not confer the right to strike or immunity from discipline for continued work stoppage.

The statement implies no duty to make concessions, Dole said, but merely requires meaningful communication between board and teachers.

In the case that an agreement is not reached, the statement provides for a consultant service, although there is no obligation to accept the recommendations of such a consultant.

The statement asks exclusive recognition of one teachers organization, of which a majority of teachers in the system would be members.

An advantage of professional negotiations is that it forces both sides to think in terms of long-range goals, Dole said.

William Robinson, associate executive secretary of the Iowa State Education Association, said that professional negotiations keeps people in touch with reality. Neither side is apt to think that its goals are accepted universally.

When it was originally presented last fall, the policy statement was not accepted by the board because it questioned the legality of the action.

Sam Drafted By Milwaukee

Sam Williams of Iowa was picked by Milwaukee in the third round of the National Basketball Association draft in New York Wednesday.

Williams, a forward, was named the Big 10's most valuable player this past season.

WILLIAMS

Williams told The Daily Iowan Wednesday night that he would not make a decision on signing a professional contract until he had talked with his lawyer.

Williams, who has already been drafted by the Pittsburgh Pipers of the American Basketball Association, said he would probably make a decision early next week.

Rocket Coach Happy After Draft Selections

NEW YORK — The San Diego Rockets aren't going to lose 32 of 33 games during any stretch next season the way they did last year, General Manager Coach Jack McMahon confidently predicts, now that they have Elvin Hayes and John Q. T. Trapp.

He's a 6-7 forward from Nevada Southern picked as the first choice by the Rockets Tuesday when the National Basketball Association resumed and completed its annual draft of college players.

The draft's opening round was held five weeks ago when the Rockets chose Houston's Hayes and signed him to a long term contract. Baltimore grabbed Westley Unseld of Louisville, another All-American.

The draft resumed with the second round which, by prior agreement, was restricted to the bottom three clubs in each division, plus the circuit's newest teams, Milwaukee and Phoenix. San Diego immediately trapped Trapp. Other selections in order were Art Harris of Stanford; Seattle, Loy Petersen of Oregon State by Chicago and Bob Quick of Xavier of Ohio by Baltimore. Cincinnati, which had the next choice, had traded it to Chicago and the Bulls selected Ron Dunlop of Illinois.

The round was completed when Detroit took Manny Leaks of Niagara, Phoenix chose Dick Cunningham of Murray State and Milwaukee tapped Eugene Moore of St. Louis University.

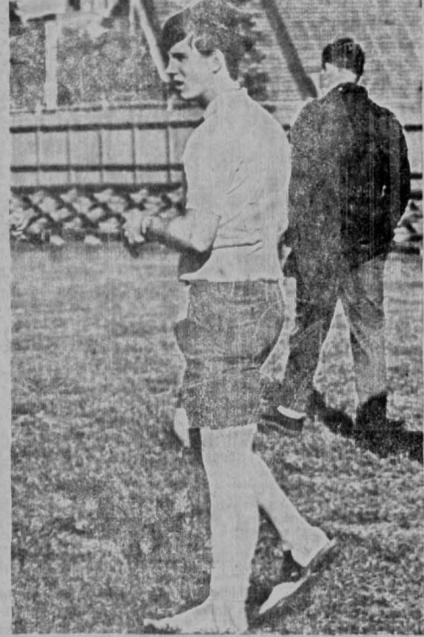

Later, the New York Knicks selected Don May of Dayton, the most valuable player in the last National Invitation Tournament. Milwaukee took Sam Williams of Iowa, another highly regarded player. Philadelphia drafted All-American Larry Miller of North Carolina, who has already signed with Los Angeles of the American Association. Duke's Mike Lewis, who was signed by Indiana of the ABA, was chosen by Boston.

Two members of The Associated Press' Little All-America were chosen, Henry Logan of Western Carolina by Seattle and Larry Newbold of LIU by Detroit. Bob Kaufmann of Guilford, another Little All-America, had been drafted by Seattle in the first round.

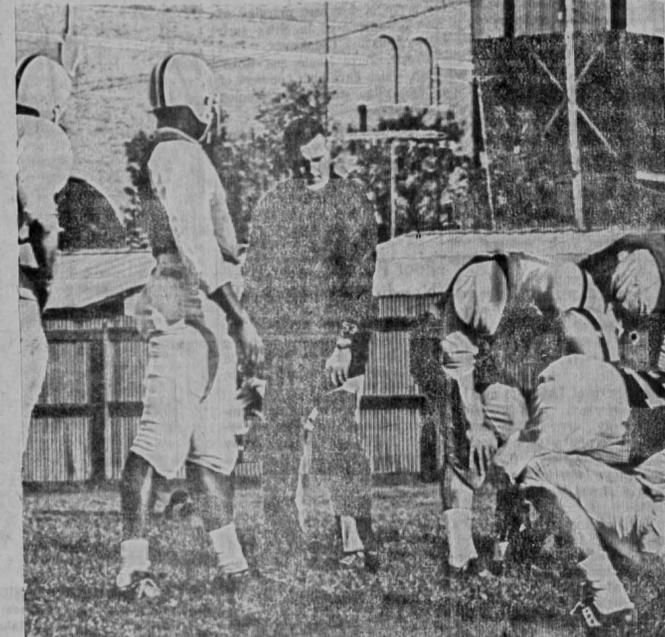

In all, it went 12 rounds and 160 players.

'68 Hawks Unpredictable

—Frosh Crowd Grid Picture—

OUT OF ACTION — Sophomore Hawkeye quarterback Mike Cilek who injured his leg in an intrasquad scrimmage two weeks ago strolls around the practice field Wednesday watching his teammates work out. Cilek is out for the rest of spring practice.

LOOKING THEM OVER — Iowa defensive Coach Dick Tamburo observes one of the Hawkeye defensive units huddle during practice Wednesday. The Hawkeyes will have their annual intrasquad game Saturday, May 18 in Iowa Stadium.

By PAUL STEVENS
Asst. Sports Editor

The major lure of any sport is its unpredictability. The possibility always exists that last year's cellar team will climb to the top of next season's standings.

But while the unknown serves as a lure to the spectator, it means nothing but headaches for the coaches who must constantly work with it. Iowa football Coach Ray Nagel is experiencing this first-hand at the present.

The Hawkeyes have a week of spring football practice remaining, but no sound (or sane) prediction can yet be made on their 1968 outlook.

"We're more in an experimental stage right now than I hoped we would be," said Nagel Wednesday. "But one of the big problems we face is moving different players into different positions."

However, Nagel's biggest problem — the major cause for the team's unpredictability — is the large number of freshmen who figure so highly in rebuilding plans. Their presence could present problems or blessings for Iowa's chances next season.

"I think we're a much better football team this year, and the freshmen have contributed a great deal to this improvement," Nagel said.

If Nagel was to field a starting team tonight, it would consist of three frosh on offense and six on defense. Of the 28 freshmen who are on football scholarships, 23 are members of either the first or second teams.

"About all a coach can do with this many freshmen is to wait and see how they'll respond," Nagel said. "We're working very hard with the freshmen — right now we're concerned with teaching basic fundamentals . . . and a very, very important thing is determining who your players are."

Actually, the presence of such a large number of frosh in key positions should not be too surprising. After all, Nagel has said that this year's newcomers were the best he has had as a coach.

"I think the freshmen have into the starting No. 1 defensive line which, incidentally, is void of seniors.

A frosh who Nagel is very high on is tackle Layne McDowell, the biggest lineman at 250 pounds. Ken Price is operating at right end and Dan McDonald, a player who loves contact, holds the left end position.

The defensive backfield is a big question mark at present, and the one stabilizing force is senior-to-be Steve Wilson, a second team All-Big 10 pick last year.

"Three inexperienced men in those important positions could be dangerous," Nagel said, "but we filled the spots with the best personnel we had and it turned out that these boys were freshmen. I've been very satisfied with their play."

Players who are making strong pushes for starting defensive jobs are linebackers John Hull, Dave Brooks, and Dave Clement, and backs Roy Bash and Coleman Lane.

The color of green is not so prevalent in Iowa's offensive picture. The reasons are a fine line of veterans and the return of an outstanding quarterback for his third season as a starter.

The "battle" for starting quarterback between veteran Ed Podolak and a pair of underclassmen — sophomore Mike Cilek and freshman Larry Lawrence — exists on paper only.

"Podolak will be one of the best quarterbacks in the nation next season," Nagel predicted. Cilek was injured last week and is sidelined for the remainder of the spring season, so Podolak and Lawrence have been running 1-2 as Iowa's signal-callers. Lawrence, the son of Iowa's freshman coach Ted, has exciting possibilities.

"Before Larry finishes his career, I think he'll be one of the top quarterbacks in the country," Nagel said. "He has progressed very fast."

Barry Crees, a 169-pound veteran of two years, has protected his wingback position from the strong rush of freshman Kerry Reardon, but the fight is not over, according to Nagel.

"Barry has had a very outstanding spring practice," said Nagel, "but Reardon has been pushing him very hard."

Freshmen Denny Green and William Powell, both with very good speed, are battling for the tailback opening left by graduated Si McKinnie. Green appears to have the edge at present.

The only disappointment in the backfield has been the lack of intense competition for the fullback position — a position which had been predicted to be a real scramble.

"Tim Sullivan has looked much improved," Nagel said, "but we need some backup help there badly."

Sullivan, a 220-pounder, was a starter for the Hawks last season. Behind him are freshmen John Palmer, converted from a defensive guard, and Tom Wallace.

End Al Bream, the only senior in the offensive line, could possibly be the most improved player on the team.

"Al is very much improved over last year, and this is something because he was very good last year," Nagel said. "He's running his patterns better and catches anything thrown near him."

The other Hawkeye end will be Ray Manning, a 6-4 freshman, whose strong push for a starting job necessitated moving tight end Paul Laaveg to quick tackle.

"We made the switch because Manning is very fast and is a fine pass receiver," Nagel said. "Laaveg is a little slower, but a stronger boy and fits well at tackle."

A pair of solid sophomores — Jon Meskimen and Larry Ely — hold tackle and guard positions. The No. 1 center at present is Greg McMannus, but he is being pushed hard by Marcos Melendez. Freshman Louis Age, a 210-pounder, is operating at quick guard.

"I think we'll win some games this season," Nagel said, "but it's hard to say how well you'll do unless you can compare your improvement to that of other teams."

"Our entire line will be better, and we have a little better personnel than we did a year ago. But physically, we still will be one of the smallest teams in the Big 10 by a comfortable — or uncomfortable — margin."

"I've enjoyed this spring's practices though, and the kids have worked very hard and shown tremendous improvement."

Partial results of spring grid efforts will be seen next Saturday in the intrasquad game at Iowa Stadium.

But the full results are four months away.

The outlook may be rosy or it may be black and dismal. But one thing is certain — it won't be predictable. And who would want it any other way?

ART EXHIBIT

The works of Thomas R. Schruck on exhibit now through Saturday, May 11th at the Roost here in Iowa City. The Roost is located at 222½ East Washington Street.

Thomas R. Schruck is presently a graduate student in art at the University of Iowa in Iowa City. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray F. Schruck of 2742 Prairie Drive N.E. in Cedar Rapids. He received his B.A. from the University of Iowa in 1967. Amongst other things, he has served with the Peace Corps in India for two years as a consultant in poultry production and helped train a group of Volunteers who are presently serving in India.

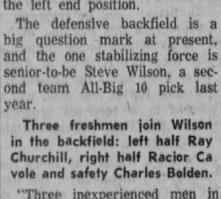

The Paintings which will be in Mr. Schruck's show are abstractions which he has done in the past year. His own remarks could perhaps give some idea of what the paintings consist of.

"I am primarily concerned with the effects of pure color and the interrelationships which are built up from juxtapositions of line and shapes, colors and their complements. I choose abstractions as a means of expression because this frees me from the task of producing representational forms, which I feel too often limit the extent to which the viewer may interpret the work on his own."

All art will be for sale and coffee will be served free for your enjoyment.

GOLF TIPS

By CHUCK ZWIENER
Iowa Golf Coach

Pick Target On Drive
Aiming with the driver is as important as it is with any other club. Try to pick a spot in the fairway within your distance range and aim to hit the ball to that spot. Most problems with inaccuracy from the tee stem from not being specific as to a target or just hitting it out somewhere on the course. Remember, golf is not only a "bat and ball" game, but also a target game.

Rule Tip
Always play your tee shot from the teeing ground. This is a rectangular area between and two club lengths (seven feet) behind the tee.

Schmidt Provides Lift To Hawkeye Pitchers

By MIKE DEUPREE

One of the reasons Iowa's baseball team has run up a 13-6 record this year is strong pitching, and one reason the pitching is strong is George Schmidt, the Hawks' pitching coach.

Three Hawkeye pitchers can boast earned run averages well under three after the first 19 games. Al Schuette (3-1) leads the staff with an 0.99 ERA in 26½ innings.

Junior Jim Koering has a 2-1 record in 29½ innings and a 1.44 ERA. Donn Haugen (3-1) has a 2.43 ERA in 21½ innings of work.

What role does a college pitching coach play in helping compile records like that?

"We usually try to develop three basic pitches," said Schmidt recently, "a fast ball, curve and change-up. The amount and type of work we do varies considerably between individuals, depending on how far along they are when they get to college."

Schmidt should be a good judge of pitching talent — he worked as a scout for the Pittsburgh Pi-

there were in the early 50s," he explained, "so now they are more selective. The majors still get most of their players out of the minor leagues."

Schmidt, who is working under Head Coach Dick Schultz while completing work on a master's degree in guidance and counseling, said he felt present college baseball was roughly equivalent to minor league ball in 1950.

"College baseball has improved considerably, but there is a smaller percentage of top-quality players in the minor leagues now. It is more like the minors when they weren't so selective."

The big bonuses now paid to outstanding college players can be rough on a college coach.

"The ruling that a college player cannot be drafted until his 21st birthday has helped," said Schmidt, "but most players turn 21 between their junior and senior years, and sign a contract and forfeit their final year of eligibility."

With the pressure of selective service, though many teams encourage a player to go to school in the winter and play baseball in the spring in order to maintain their student deferments.

Schmidt was optimistic about the Hawks' chances for a successful Big 10 season.

"We have the nucleus of a good ball club — especially pitching and good overall speed," he said. "We should be able to hold our own against the other conference teams."

Schmidt said he felt Iowa was as good as both Ohio State and Indiana, but added that he had not seen the other title favorites — Michigan State and Minnesota — play.

"How far we go may depend on how far our pitching can carry us," he added.

GEORGE SCHMIDT Works Wonders With Pitchers

rate organization for 15 years after winding up a pitching career at the University of Pittsburgh in 1950, and at the same time coached high school athletics in Pennsylvania. In between were sandwiched two years as a minor league pitcher, also in the farm system of the Pirates.

The minor leagues have changed considerably since he played, according to Schmidt.

"There aren't nearly as many minor league teams now as

Owner Clears Trainer In Derby Drug Hassle

BOSTON (AP) — Owner Peter Fuller said Wednesday that after a couple of mix-ups he has been told that trainer Lou Cavalariis can continue to handle Dancer's Image, and on that basis he plans to run the disqualified Kentucky Derby winner in the Preakness May 18.

The wealthy automobile dealer repeated his insistence, however, that if Cavalariis for any reason is prohibited from saddling the three-year-old colt, Dancer's Image will not run in the $150,000-added second jewel in racing's Triple Crown.

"He's innocent of any wrongdoing — he's a legitimate person," Fuller said in an interview. "He'll either go into the paddock with me and my wife on May 18 or the horse won't run. They're an indivisible team."

Prerace Tests Could Eliminate Racing Mixups

NEW YORK (AP) — The disqualification of Dancer's Image in the Kentucky Derby would never have happened if newly developed prerace testing techniques had been used, a leading track authority contended Wednesday.

"A prerace blood test with which we have been experimenting for 10 years would have revealed the presence of this drug immediately," said Edward F. Hackett, secretary of the U.S. Trotting Association. Dancer's Image would not have been permitted to run.

"The regrettable incident, touching the lives of a lot of people, would have been avoided."

Dancer's Image, apparent winner of Saturday's Derby in Louisville, was disqualified Tuesday after tests showed traces of a pain-killing drug called phenylbutazone.

It's a common drug, not a stimulant, used by a lot of humans for treatment of gout and arthritis. It cuts down swelling and inflammation.

The traditional urinal test was taken immediately after the race but its results — because of the weekend holiday — were not made known until nearly 70 hours afterward.

This delayed shock could have been skipped by the prerace test, which many horsemen contend is the safeguard against such drugging scandals.

John Galbreath, prominent Pittsburgh real estate developer, sportsman and owner of the Darby Dan Farms, is one of the breeders who has called the prerace test "racing's missing link."

He has joined the Harness Racing Institute, the Jockey Club, the Laurel, Md., Raceway and the State of Ohio in investing close to $250,000 to test horses, both thoroughbred and standardbred. Experiments are continuing at three harness tracks — Laurel Raceway, a 1½-Mile-America and Scioto Downs in Ohio.

They're both champions."

Fuller said a hearing was scheduled at Churchill Downs next week to look into the disqualification of Dancer's Image because of a pain-killing drug found in the colt's system after last Saturday's Derby.

Fuller said his understanding now is that Cavalariis may train the horse, pending the outcome of the hearing, but wouldn't be able to saddle him for a race unless he is exonerated.

Asked what he would do if the case should still be pending, he said:

"I don't believe it will still be pending, but if that should happen and Cavalariis can't saddle the horse, he won't run."

The mix-ups occurred earlier in the day when Fuller announced that he had received word that Cavalariis couldn't train the horse. He said then that he was therefore withdrawing the colt from the race and having him shipped back to his Runnymede Farm at North Hampton, N.H.

Within the hour, Maryland Jockey Club officials denied the report and announced that Dancer's Image could remain at Pimlico.

Dancer's Image won the Derby last Saturday by 1½ lengths but was disqualified and placed last on Tuesday after traces of the pain-killing drug phenylbutazone were found in a post-race urinalysis.

Golf Tourney Cancel

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The $100,000 Lucky International Golf Tournament was rescheduled today for San Francisco Oct. 30 through Nov. 3.

The PGA recently had canceled the tournament because it dubbed the Harding Park Municipal Links facilities inadequate. It presumably referred to the clubhouse, which also is used as a boathouse.

Jess Nicks, president of the sponsoring group, said he was notified of the reinstatement by Jack Tuthill, PGA tournament director.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Left-hander Steve Carlton fired a four-hitter and got a clutch catch from Mike Shannon easing the St. Louis Cardinals past the New York Mets 2-0 Wednesday night.

Bosox Beat Nats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pinch hitter Jerry Adair's single and Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly drove in two runs in the eighth inning and gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 victory over the Washington Senators Wednesday night.

It was the Senator's sixth straight defeat.
 Dick Ellsworth won his third game but needed help from Gary Bell after one-out singles by Del Unser and Fred Valentine in the eighth. Bell retired Frank Howard on a popup and Cap Peterson on a fly to left.
 Peter's single and Bernie Allen's fly-ball triple to right in the seventh accounted for the only run off Ellsworth.

OAKLAND (AP) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter hurled the American League's first perfect game in regular season play since 1922 Wednesday night and drove in three runs as the Oakland Athletics trimmed Minnesota 4-0.

Hunter, a 22-year-old righthander in his fourth major league season, set down all 27 batters he faced in stymying the normally hard-hitting Twins to become the ninth perfect game pitcher in modern baseball history.

The 6-5, 195-pound youngster from Hertford, N.C., struck out 11 and needed just one outstanding defensive play — third baseman Sal Bando's stab of a fifth inning grounder by Bob Allison — in tossing the second no-hitter of the young season.

1st Since Koufax

His perfect game gem matched a feat last accomplished by Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' brilliant southpaw, three years ago against the Chicago Cubs.

The last American Leaguer to toss a perfect game was New York Yankee, right-hander Don Larsen, who did it in the 1956 World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers. But it had been 46 years since Charlie Robertson of the Chicago White Sox pitched a perfect game against the Detroit

Yankees KO Indians, 2-1

NEW YORK (AP) — A ninth-inning double by Andy Kosco and a single by Jake Gibbs gave the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over Cleveland Wednesday in a game marked by a near free-for-all fight.

Gene Michael, Yankee shortstop, and Tony Horton, Indians' first baseman, threw punches at each other around first base in the fifth inning and for a while it appeared both teams might join the melee.

After about 10 minutes peace was restored. Both Michael and Horton were ejected from the game and the Indians' starting pitcher Steve Hargan, finished the inning but was then removed for a pinch hitter. The rumpus started when Horton apparently tagged Michael too hard on a pickoff attempt.

Michael swung and the two exchanged blows. In the commotion, Horton nailed Michael with a right on the chin. Michael almost knocked down his coach, Whitew Ford, before he could be rebuked.

The Indians scored in the first inning on consecutive singles by Jose Cardenal and Chico Salmon and two infield outs.

The Yankees levelled the score in the seventh. After Tom Tresh had batted on an infield tap out, Gibbs had sacrificed him to second. Bobby Cox lined a double past Leon Warner in right field, scoring Tresh.

Hunter Helps Self

Locked in a scoreless duel with Minnesota's Dave Boswell for six innings, Hunter gave himself all the offensive help he needed with a run-scoring bunt single in the seventh.

In the eighth, his two-run single capped a three-run wrapup burst for the A's.

Hunter, who signed with the Athletics for a $75,000 bonus in 1964, was 13-17 last year and missed a month because of an appendectomy. He came into Wednesday night's game with a lifetime record of 32-38, including a 2-2 mark this season.

It was the first no-hitter ever hurled by an Oakland pitcher. The Athletics, who moved to the West Coast city this year from Kansas City, have not had a no-hitter since Bill McCaan threw one against Washington on Sept. 3, 1947, when the club was still in Philadelphia.

Truman Misses 84th Birthday Party

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman missed a great party Wednesday celebrating his 84th birthday anniversary.

For the second straight year Truman did not attend the luncheon in the ballroom of a downtown hotel, which this year drew more than 250 old friends and admirers.

Although reported in good health, the nation's 33rd president spent the day at his rambling frame home in suburban Independence receiving congratulatory telephone calls, flowers and gifts.

But undaunted by Truman's absence, the all-male luncheon audience proceeded to serenade, praise and pray for the former chief executive just as if he were there.

"Happy birthday Mr. President" said Icing, on the large white cake topped by the pink figures 84.

Special labels on bottles of sherry read "The man of peace" and bore a seal optimistically proclaiming '84 and going on 100."

Use Of LSD Falling But Still A Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The use of LSD in college and high schools still is a problem but is falling off because dangers of the drug have been broadcast, the U.S. surgeon general says.

Dr. William H. Stewart told a House appropriations subcommittee this is shown by several surveys on the patterns of drug use by high school and college age young people.

"There is no question that we have a problem in all economic groups and in all age groups," he said in a testimony made public Wednesday.

CORE Leaders Praise Nixon, Hit Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — The black militant Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) praised Republican presidential hopeful Richard M. Nixon Wednesday for having seen "the relevance of black power." At the same time it criticized Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.), charging he wanted "white people" to control Negro programs.

So far as is known, this is the first time a major Negro organization has publicly praised and criticized major contenders for the presidential nomination. In neither case, however, did it amount to an endorsement or a repudiation.

Hughes' Crime Panel Calls For Revisions

DES MOINES (AP) — Complete revision of enforcement, judicial and correctional programs is needed to eliminate the "abominable lawlessness" in Iowa, the State Crime Commission declared Wednesday.

Just as the blue ribbon panel made public a year-long study of crime in Iowa, four of its members unleashed a minority report championed by Atty. Gen. Richard Turner.

Gov. Harold Hughes, who appointed the 16-member commission, said "if it's any good, it'll be controversial."

The commission called for a revised court system, replacement of jails and prisons with regional detention and treatment centers, separate wings of law enforcement and courts to deal with juveniles and an overhaul of state criminal laws.

It proposed beginning salaries of $8,400 for all policemen, strict gun sale registration laws, a system of public defenders and a computerized information service for police.

Included in the 132-page report was a study of the effects of the U.S. Supreme Court's Miranda decision on law enforcement.

The decision requires that suspects be informed of their constitutional rights prior to questioning by police.

While the commission argued that there "is no concrete evidence" that the Miranda edict has hurt anticrime efforts, four commission members — all law enforcement officials — disagreed.

Turner, speaking for the dissenters, said the Miranda decision is "the most ridiculous, abominable case ever handed down by the U.S. Supreme Court." He said it has hampered police work.

The minority report, signed by Iowa Highway Patrol Chief Howard Miller, State Bureau of Criminal Investigation Director Robert Blair, Audubon County Sheriff Jack Hillsbeck and Cedar Rapids Police Chief George Matias also attacked the public defender proposal as unnecessary and too expensive.

The minority report will be printed as a special appendix to the commission's report.

Hughes balked at a commission proposal that policemen be paid a minimum of $18,000 a year after 20 years on the job.

"If you can argue that kind of salary just by staying on the job for 20 years, I'm opposed to that," he governor said.

In a forward to the printed report, Hughes called on Iowans to launch an "all-out attack" on crime and "the abominable lawlessness we see around us."

The commission said its proposals emphasize prevention of crime rather than apprehension and punishment of offenders.

"Today we have no true system of criminal justice," it said. "Our agencies have found themselves treating symptoms, not causes, of crimes."

The panel concluded that policemen in Iowa are poorly trained and equipped, work long hours and "place their lives on the line" for salaries averaging less than $500 a month.

9th United Nations House Tour To Feature 6 Iowa City Homes

By MARILYN MCCOLLUM

Spring cleaning will be in order for at least six housewives who are showing their homes to the public in the ninth annual United Nations house tour May 19.

The tour sponsored by the United Nations Association, will feature six homes that vary in size, architecture and atmosphere.

"The homes represent a cross section of styles and offer something for every one," Robert Strub, 3010 Pincrest Rd., chairman for the tour, said recently.

For antique-lovers, there is the Stephen Darling home, 431 S. Summit St., which was built in 1881.

Mitchell Home Unique

Unique architecture and use of color are the main attractions of the Calvin Mitchell home, 3117 Alpine Ct., Mrs. Strub said.

The traditional split level home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schetz, 1821 Winston Dr., was built with the needs of a large family in mind.

The house of Garfield Tournay, 11 Lakeview Dr., professor of psychiatry, is elegant and traditional and sits on a picturesque knoll overlooking the Iowa River.

Mr. and Mrs. Brent Wilson, 15 Ridgwood Lane, designed their contemporary home to blend with a collection of paintings and metal sculptures created by Wilson. Wilson is an associate professor at University schools in elementary art education.

Apartments Included

Apartment living is also included in the United Nations tour, and the luxury apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shulman, 201 N. First Ave., is a sample. Showing this apartment should appease public curiosity regarding the first deluxe apartment building, Mrs. Shulman said. It will also reveal to visitors how apartments can be decorated and treated as an individual house, she added.

Tickets for the tour are $2 and may be purchased at drug stores in Iowa City, University Heights and Coralville. They may also be purchased at the individual homes on the day of the tour.

A brunch for ticket holders will be served at the University Athletic Club from 1 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. No reservations are necessary.

Proceeds from the house tour will be used to sponsor a bus tour for 36 Iowa City high school building in New York City and building in New York City and to Washington, D.C.

RFK To Use Indiana Plan In Nebraska

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) is ready to duplicate in next Tuesday's Nebraska primary the men, money and movement formula that landed him on top in Indiana's three-man Democratic presidential contest.

But the outcome in Nebraska of his basic contest with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.) could be even less clearcut than the results of the massive effort which gave the New York senator 42 per cent of the Indiana Democratic vote.

LBJ's Name On Ballot
President Johnson's name remains on the Nebraska ballot, despite his March 31 announcement that he would not accept renomination. Friends are working quietly to mount a write-in campaign for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

In the Nebraska foray, to be concentrated in weekend rounds, Kennedy will carry with him the controversy over the money he is spending in an attempt to duplicate the primary sweep that helped his brother, the late John F. Kennedy, win the party nomination in 1960.

Gov. Roger D. Branigin, who nosed out McCarthy for second place in Indiana, kept this controversy alive when he said: "I just got whipped. I wrote my own speeches, drove my own car but you can't beat $2 million."

RFK Denies Charges
Kennedy denied charges by State Democratic Chairman Gordon St. Angelo that his Indiana campaign expenditures approached the $2 million figure. He said in an election night telecast that his campaign had cost from $550,000 to $600,000.

McCarthy's supporters privately scoffed at this figure, although the Minnesota senator did not challenge it publicly.

At one point, Kennedy leased a passenger train for the movement of his "troops."

McCarthy leaned heavily on college volunteers for much of his campaign.

Tabulation Difficult
It seemed clear that under Indiana law there would never be an accurate figure on how much was spent by the presidential nomination candidates. Financial reports must be filed with circuit court clerks in the counties in which campaign organization treasurers reside.

If there are multiple organizations as there always are in such campaigns, reports could be scattered among a number of counties.

As a result of his Indiana victory, in which he outdistanced McCarthy by more than 111,000 votes and Branigin by more than 86,000, Kennedy gets a prior claim on the state's 63 votes toward the 1,312 needed for nomination at the Chicago convention.

But Branigin carried two congressional districts in polling 31 per cent of the total vote to Kennedy's 42 per cent. McCarthy, with 27 per cent, got no claim, on any of the delegates.

Saigon Official Compares Paris To '54 Geneva Talks

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP News Analyst

SAIGON — Looking back at the 1954 Geneva conference and ahead to the Paris talks, Foreign Minister Tran Van Do expressed the conviction Wednesday that "the United States will never abandon our country as France did."

"The situation in Paris will not be the same as it was in Geneva," said Do, who headed his country's delegation at Geneva.

"France was beaten and wanted to get out. Today the military picture is far better. The United States is not France, and the whole world situation is different. What is at stake today is not the colonial future of France but the peace and security of the whole Pacific area."

The 64-year-old foreign minister was interviewed on the 14th anniversary of the beginning of the talks in Geneva that brought about a cease-fire in the French-Indochina war.

Talks Bad For France
He recalled that May 8, 1954 "was a very bad time for France." The garrison at Dien

Bien Phu had fallen the day before, and in a little over a month the Joseph Laniel government would be toppled by Pierre Mendes-France, who had promised a quick end to the fighting in Vietnam.

The Tet offensive and the current fight in Saigon, Do said, were Communist attempts to recreate the conditions of Dien Bien Phu, "using confusion and discouragement as a political rather than a military aim."

"In America some political leaders have grown weary of the war," said Do, "but Bob Kennedy is not the new Mendes-France. He knows if the United States abandons South Vietnam, the last barrier against communism in Asia will have fallen, leaving two terrifying questions: What will be the influence of the United States the world over and can other undeveloped countries like us, in Asia, in Africa, trust the word of America?"

Do Confident In U.S.
Do said he is "convinced and reassured" that America is going to Paris "in full knowledge that the future of the free world will be tested."

Public Affairs Critics Forecast Better Days

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Some critics of public affairs believe that the stagnant problems that brought deep discontent to America, and which were recognized by President Johnson in foregoing another term, are now nearer solution.

This is not to say that the problems will be solved. But in several areas the impasse has ended.

As Walter Hoadley, chief economist of the Bank of America, says, "We may not be moving forward yet but at least the wheels are beginning to dig some dirt now."

Here are some of the problems that have frustrated Americans, and some of the attempts now being made to resolve them:

- The Vietnam war. Preliminary talks between North Vietnamese and United States representatives are about to begin in Paris.

Tax Increase Helps

- Inflation and spending. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) of the House Ways and Means Committee has now endorsed a $10-billion tax increase, together with spending cuts, and President Johnson has indicated his acceptance.

- Balance of payments. Sixteen of the world's industrialized nations have offered to speed tariff cuts on American exports to help the United States bring exports into balance with imports.

- Foreign and domestic commitments. Americans now seem to have developed a realization that one nation, no matter how rich, can't do everything that needs to be done in the world.

- Racial tensions. Business and individuals, knowing that the issues are unavoidable, seem more eager to tackle the problems of race and discrimination and urban decay.

- Presidential position. On various issues — taxes, spending, the war, balance of payments — the President has clarified his position since his decision not to run for re-election.

Some Solutions Seen

In the view of optimists, the appearance of potential solutions in recent weeks, coupled with the beginnings of positive action toward solutions, already have greatly relieved the tensions and frustrations of Americans.

In the view of many others, some of the changes that have occurred in recent weeks could lead to deadends or else could meander indecisively for months after months.

The United States balance of payments problem, for example, is something that may take years to cure, just as it took years to develop. There are no miracle drugs for financial ailments.

There is also some question that an increase in taxes will stop the rising fever of inflation in its tracks, for pressures have built up in the past two years that will be influencing prices for many months to come.

And a more reflective view of what the end of the war would mean to the economy is now circulating. It reminds us that peace in Vietnam isn't complete assurance that military spending will be cut.

But the fact that some economists are risking a smile now and then, in itself is doing something to improve the picture.

Hughes For More Power In Iowa Cities

DES MOINES (AP) — Reapportionment of county boards to give more power to cities would not adversely affect rural interests, Gov. Howard Hughes said Wednesday.

Hughes told newsmen that reapportionment in the past had made government more responsive to public needs, including those of citizens in rural areas.

The State Supreme Court Tuesday extended the "one-man, one-vote" principle to county government, ordering that all boards of supervisors be elected on the basis of population.

"I have no fear that it will result in any bad action for rural areas," the governor said.

He said the Supreme Court was wise in giving the state legislature time to enact a new law governing election of county boards.

"If we had had to do it right away, we would have had nothing but a mess of redoing and redoing and redoing like we did with General Assembly reapportionment," Hughes said.

The court said the Iowa Legislature must act by June 1, 1969, or it will do the reapportioning itself.

Legal experts said a reapportionment plan probably would not take effect until the county elections in 1970.

The attorney general's office says it probably will advise counties to defer any action on the local level until the state legislature deals with the problem.

Board Of Instruction Urges Sex Education

DES MOINES (AP) — All public schools in Iowa should have sex education programs that provide "honest, factual answers" to students' questions, the State Board of Public Instruction said Wednesday.

The board adopted a policy statement urging that sex education be included in the curricula of elementary and secondary schools. The policy is not binding on the schools.

The board said the basic responsibility for sex education rested with parents, but schools and other agencies had supplemental roles.

In schools, "sex education is best taught by the classroom teachers and integrated into appropriate courses," the board said.

"This instruction should be started in kindergarten and followed throughout the primary and secondary school levels. At all levels, students should receive honest, factual answers to their questions."

Physicians Could Help

The board policy said physicians could be called upon for sex consultation "subject to the approval of the local county medical society."

One board member, Dr. Jack Fickel of Red Oak, said the requirement for medical society approval would in effect exclude consultation with osteopathic physicians. Dr. Fickel, a medical doctor, declined to vote on the policy statement. The other board members approved it.

The Department of Public Instruction is preparing a sex and family problems course to encourage schools to include such programs in their curriculums.

3 Systems Have Program

The department said only Keokuk, "son City and Sioux City school systems currently have formal sex education courses.

On another matter, Boston management consultants Harbridge House, Inc., recommended that Iowa's vocational rehabilitation services remain under the jurisdiction of the Department of Public Instruction.

Another consulting firm recommended in a separate study in 1966 that the services be moved to the Social Services Department.

The question of whether to move the vocational rehabilitation services is up to the legislature. State education officials have opposed the proposed transfer.

At its morning session, the board on a 6-2 vote rejected a proposal for seven western Iowa counties to join in operation of a center at Treynor to administer library materials under a federal grant.

Arlington's Burials To Be Selective

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arlington National Cemetery plans to halt all burial of veterans within 20 years except for national heroes in a new area on the crowded Potomac slopes.

Under a master plan for 1985, marble vaults will be built to hold the ashes of nearly 400,000 veterans and kin after cremation.

But traditional burials will be limited to Presidents' Medal of Honor winners and others marked for special honors.

New 'Aesthetes' Throng Des Moines Art Center

DES MOINES (AP) — They've been packing them in at the Des Moines Art center ever since five works of art at the center were labeled obscene by the City Council.

"They're swarming us," said one art center official Wednesday.

The center set an all-time attendance mark of 2,046 persons Tuesday, and another large crowd was on hand Wednesday. The City Council asked Monday that the five works of art, part of the annual Iowa Artists Exhibition, be removed, but the center agreed only to place them in an "adults only" section.

THE SILENCE
The third film of Bergman's religious trilogy, THE SILENCE depicts a world in which God is silent, a world of despair. United since childhood in lesbian incest, two sisters struggle and part as the younger seeks her freedom in a heterosexual affair. Bergman's somber view of modern man's condition, wherein human relations are grotesquely egocentric and perversely sexual, is shattering yet a plea for hope from man himself.

University May Lose Federal Funds Because Of Low Racial Enrollment

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a three-part series concerning Afro-Americans at the University.
By MIKE FINN
The University may soon be in trouble with the federal government because only one per cent of the student population is Negro.
This is one of the findings of the University Human Rights Committee, which was recently reported to Pres. Howard R. Bowen in the form of a 21-page report recommending major changes in University recruitment procedures.
The University of Michigan was cited as an example of the federal government's concern over the racial composition of universities which receive federal funds. That university was recently threatened with loss of federal funds because of its racial composition, 1.6 per cent, which is almost twice that of the University's .95 per cent.

One of the direct federal pressures was felt recently when federal officials made a field visit concerning the addition to the Library. One of their primary concerns, according to the report, was the degree to which the facilities would be used by Negroes and other minorities by virtue of their presence on campus.
University Not Immune
According to the report, the University was not immune to federal threats because of Iowa's relatively low percentage of minority groups.
"As long as federal funds are involved, the government will insist that a national, rather than a provincial, view of the obligations of the University be taken," the report said.
The report went beyond the practical necessities of a more vigorous recruitment policy of Negro students to state that the committee believed that the federal policy was right, both morally and in terms of societal needs.

According to the report, the University "cannot stand aloof and accept present patterns as a given for which they have no responsibility and to which they have no obligations."
Increase Staff To Recruit
Regarding undergraduate recruitment, the report recommended the employment of one additional staff member to recruit minority group students. University recruiter Robert Sauer said an additional staff member could possibly result in a net increase of 50 Negro students.
Presently there are two University staff members who are full-time recruiters. They recruit exclusively in Iowa.
Due to the small percentage of minority groups in Iowa, the committee recommended that recruiting be extended outside Iowa to include major metropolitan areas in the Midwest.

Total Cost $40,000 To $45,000
The cost of the recruiter, including travel, salary, printed materials, a counselor to aid in making environmental adaptation and a secretary, would be $30,000 to $32,000 for the first year of the recruitment program and $40,000 to $45,000 when the program was fully effective, assuming that a second counselor had been added by then.
In addition to these costs, tutorial costs would run to $9,000 next year, and additional instructors who would teach remedial sections which would run to another $15,000.
