It's Official Now: Get Set for Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed Thursday the long-fought bill to increase by 10 per cent the income tax take and to impose a $6-billion spending cut.

The long-embattled bill passed on a 268 to 150 roll call.

The vote was a bittersweet victory for President Johnson. He urgently sought the added revenue, more than $15 billion from the surcharge and accompanying tax changes, to fight inflation and bolster the dollar.

But he sought almost to the end to scale down the $6-billion mandatory spending cut Congress attached to it.

The Senate is scheduled to vote about noon today and is expected to send the measure to Johnson for assured approval.

Fifteen days after the President signs it, increased withholding begins for U.S. wage and salary earners.

Within minutes after the House acted, Johnson issued this statement:

"The House of Representatives today declared itself for a responsible fiscal policy. Its voice will be heard around the world. Our democracy has passed a critical test. This is a landmark decision — to help safeguard the pockets and pocket-books of all Americans from the pillage of inflation — to help insure a healthy flow of credit through our economic system; to help defend the value of the dollar at home and abroad — to sustain our remarkable 88-month record of economic advance.

"I have been pleading for this action for many long months and I hail this decision as a victory for the entire nation. The tax bill is essential insurance against economic chaos.

"Surely it is not a full and final solution for our economic problems but it is a passport toward further economic progress.

"I am very hopeful and confident that the Senate will promptly complete the legislative action on this measure."

Iowa's seven-member House of Representatives delegation split 3 to 4 over the tax hike-spending cut measure.

Voting for the measure were Democrat John Culver and Republicans Wiley Mayne and Fred Schwengel. Voting against the bill were Democrat Neal Smith and Republicans H. R. Gross, John Kyl, and William Scherle.

The measure was a Senate-House Conference Committee report, which now must be approved by the Senate.

Socialists Reject Leone's Proposal In Italian Crisis

ROME (AP) — Premier-designate Giovanni Leone failed Thursday to win a pledge of support from the disgruntled Socialist party in his bid to line up a new government.

In a stand that threatened to prolong Italy's government crisis, the Socialist leadership declared that the interim government Leone was trying to form was "the worst of the possible solutions" to the crisis.

The Socialists said they would only support Leone if he would promise them in advance a full program of legislation they wanted. Leone is in no position to make such a promise.

The crisis began 15 days ago with the resignation of Premier Aldo Moro in the aftermath of last month's elections.

Socialist opposition to an interim government has been hardening progressively in line with rising Communist objections to it.

News In Brief

ALSO IN THE NEWS LAST NIGHT:

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who returned to his desk Thursday after a hospital checkup, will hold a news conference this morning. Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said that hospital tests had provided "no evidence of an infection or of any significant disease process." However, Rusk is continuing to suffer from a low grade fever of undetermined origin.

KINSLEY, Kan. — A runaway two-unit diesel locomotive plowed into an open switch east of Kinsley, Kan., Thursday and came to a crashing halt after racing 98 miles through nine towns at speeds up to 90 miles an hour. No one was hurt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors reported he continues to make overall progress following his major heart attack last Saturday even though some irregularities of his heart rhythm still are noted.

NEW YORK — Author William Manchester and the Harper & Row publishing house have donated $750,000 from the profits of "The Death of a President," which touched off a highly publicized dispute with the Kennedy family, to the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library at Harvard University.

Poor Protesters Stage Hit-Run Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor People's Campaign demonstrators staged their first extensive acts of civil disobedience Thursday, jamming evening rush-hour traffic at several busy intersections and blocking entrances to the Department of Agriculture headquarters building.

The demonstrations by some 300 persons were carried on in the absence of top campaign leaders, who arrived afterward to cool the crowd and send most of them back to their encampment at Resurrection City.

Washington's deputy police chief Jerry V. Wilson, said at least 65 persons were arrested and at least two were taken to hospitals.

As about 250 demonstrators arrived back at their encampment near the Lincoln Memorial, police fired at least one tear gas bomb. Witnesses said the group had become unruly crossing the last street before they arrived at the camp.

At least two demonstrators who got heavy doses of the tear gas were taken away in the camp's ambulance. The camp loudspeaker appealed to all residents to return to their huts.

Earlier, the protesters staged sudden, hit-and-run sit-down demonstrations in the streets and halted traffic briefly. A heavy force of District of Columbia police moved in quickly and dragged them to the curbs.

Disorder began at the Department of Agriculture, where the campaigners had been demonstrating on an around-the-clock basis. Their vigil was interrupted briefly by Wednesday's big Solidarity Day march in support of the campaign.

The protesters sat down at entrances to the sprawling complex and kept people from entering or leaving.

Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Joseph Robertson said he asked city police to clear the entrances.

The police picked up the protesters gently and put them in police vans and buses, methodically moving from entrance to entrance. All was calm.

Then, other demonstrators began sitting in the street at Independence Avenue and 12th Street. The police rushed in and hauled them off.

Just as the situation appeared under control, a new group of demonstrators arrived, led by a charging group of youths. Police threw them back in a brief confrontation that looked like it might turn into a mass melee.

Sirhan Interview In Arabic Nixed; 'Security' Cited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A request by the Jordanian government for an interview in Arabic with the accused assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, has been rejected by Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess.

Pitchess said Thursday any interview with the 24-year-old Jordanian immigrant must be in English "for security reasons."

The interview was sought after Jordanian officials had expressed dissatisfaction with an earlier talk in English between Sirhan and George Zraikat, a local representative of Jordan.

Zraikat and Deputy Public Defender Wilbur Littlefield visited Sirhan in his cell last Tuesday, the sheriff said. At that time, Pitchess said, Zraikat said he was satisfied with the physical arrangements of Sirhan's imprisonment.

Pitchess said Sirhan has made no complaints about his treatment at the Central County Jail. He said Sirhan's appetite was good and that he is permitted exercise in a 30-foot corridor.

But some of the new protesters quickly held up their arms to calm the group shouting "all right." Most of the new group then left, and staged similar sit-downs at three other intersections nearby.

Later, all the demonstrators — at least 300 — regrouped on the other side of the department and two of the top campaign leaders, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Hosea Williams, arrived to cool them off.

ADC Limits Postponement Included in Economy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postponement of a bitterly contested limitation on state-federal welfare programs for dependent children is contained in the tax-economy bill passed by the House Thursday.

The provision, enacted last year, was designed to slow the rapid growth of the federally aided program to help families with children under 18 who are in need because of the absence of a parent.

Outright repeal of this provision has been a major objective of the Poor People's campaign in Washington. Participants in the campaign continued demonstrations at the home and office of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) after he had met with a delegation and told them the postponement had already been agreed upon.

As the House neared a vote Thursday, President Johnson made the dependent-child provision the basis of still another in a long series of appeals to Congress for passage of the tax measure.

In a letter to the speaker of the House, Johnson noted that deferment of the welfare freeze "will permit almost half a million poor children and their parents to receive the money they need to live with human dignity and hope."

The deferred provision would have established for each state a ratio of children aided based on the average number of dependent children to the whole child population of the state on Jan. 1, 1968.

The number of children who could be aided would increase if the whole child population increased. Children dependent because of the death of a parent would not be affected. The limitation would have been effective July 1. The tax bill would postpone the effective date one year.

Party Concerned With Freedom, Peace Formed

By CONNIE HUGHES

Confusion marked the first public organizing meeting for a local Peace and Freedom party movement Thursday night.

Approximately 50 students, faculty members, Iowa City townspeople and area farmers met in the Iowa City Recreation Center to form a local counterpart of chapters springing up in California, Pennsylvania and other parts of the country.

Members of the group disagreed on whether the organization should remain local and deal with local problems or go statewide and try to get on the Iowa ballot this fall.

John Haag, of Urbana, Ill., one of the originators of the drive to put the Peace and Freedom party on the California ballot, said that the party grew out of movements that had run candidates but did not have an effective enough organization to get the candidates elected.

Haag said that the Peace and Freedom party wants to be an alternative to the political parties now existing. The movement is, Haag said, to remain a participatory democracy with its members selecting the candidates and platforms.

"It is too easy," Haag said, "to get on the ballot in Iowa. You don't have to build a strong organization to do it."

Iowa law requires a convention of 50 registered voters representing at least 10 counties. "In California, we had to register one per cent of the registered voters as members of Peace and Freedom," Haag said. "This meant the registration of at least 67,000 members."

The group will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Union to discuss plans for organizing statewide. Another general organizing meeting will be held in the Recreation Center.

Midnight Rocket Attack Slams Saigon, Airbase

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon was hit before and after Thursday midnight by rocket barrages that killed six Vietnamese civilians and wounded 14, the U.S. command said today.

Ten rockets hit on or near Tan Son Nhut Airbase but most casualties occurred in residential areas.

No American deaths or injuries were reported and South Vietnamese military casualties on the base itself were described as very light.

A spokesman said five rocket rounds slammed into the Saigon area a few minutes before midnight and another five landed about 1 a.m. He said five of the ten had been identified as 107mm rockets. The others had not yet been identified, but they were believed to have been 122mm.

The midnight shelling was the heaviest bombardment of the capital in 10 days. For the past several days, there had been either no shelling or barrages of such minor nature that it was felt the threat was eased.

The enemy firing positions were said to have been north of Tan Son Nhut and about seven miles from the heart of the capital. The 107mm rocket, of Chinese manufacture, weighs 48 pounds and has a range of five to six miles. The 122mm rocket, Soviet designed, weighs 102 pounds and can fire 6.8 miles.

The U.S. Command said one round hit several hundred yards from the U.S. Army's 3rd Field Hospital and the South Vietnamese joint general staff headquarters just outside Tan Son Nhut. But U.S. officials had no information on casualties or damage.

Vietnamese sources said at least four 122mm rockets blasted residential areas near Tan Son Nhut. A witness said 10 rockets landed near the city's Seventh-Day Adventist Hospital and that 12 wounded were taken to the hospital.

Vietnamese sources said initial reports indicated two of the civilians killed were children.

Before the new shelling, authorities said that Thursday Saigon and its suburbs had enjoyed their quietest day since the enemy launched its offensive on May 5.

Terror shelling since that date had killed 114 civilians and wounded 503, the officials said. U.S. officers believe the shelling are intended to show strength and thus influence the U.S.-North Vietnamese peace talks in Paris.

In another development, statistics released Thursday on combat casualties showed that the number of Americans killed in seven and a half years of the American battle deaths has occurred since the opening of the Paris peace talks.

Soldiers of the 25th Infantry Division reported they killed 44 Viet Cong around a helicopter landing zone 12 miles north of Saigon in a battle that ended early Thursday. Fighting broke out when a company of Americans seeking enemy units landed in a zone surrounded by Viet Cong.

The Viet Cong attacked the outnumbered Americans while U.S. helicopter gunships raked the enemy and both sides moved in reinforcements. The 25th Division won the race to bring up more men and landed 300 reinforcements.

The battle raged for several hours until the Viet Cong pulled back, leaving bloody trails. U.S. losses were 15 killed and 14 wounded.

Thirty-nine more enemy soldiers were killed 29 miles northeast of Saigon Wednesday when they were engaged by troops of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division. Artillery, helicopter gunships and AC47 Magic Dragon planes hammered the enemy troops.

Two American soldiers were reported killed and 18 wounded.

Dropping of Compulsory ROTC Talks: Not Much Gained, Not Much Lost

The decision made by the Board of Regents Friday to drop the compulsory status of Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) lectures for University men was not viewed on campus as a victory by the lectures' opponents Wednesday.

Steve Morris, A2, Iowa City, a member of Students for a Democratic Society, which opposes the ROTC program, said that the elimination of the lecture requirement did not solve the question of campus military training.

"Pres. (Howard R.) Bowen, by making minor concessions, is begging the question since ROTC is really a non-academic course and doesn't belong on the campus," Morris said.

The elimination of compulsory lecture attendance is the completion of a process begun in 1961 when compulsory participation in two years of the ROTC program was lowered to one year of required participation. Then, in 1963, the regents dropped the requirement completely and installed a system of compulsory lectures. At that time, two year program participation was made voluntary.

Instructors in the ROTC program said they felt that the change would have no significant effect on enrollment.

William L. Binney, associate professor of aerospace studies, said he saw no real change in Air Force ROTC since "the change will not alter our enrollment next year."

Echoing this sentiment, Gary Arndt, assistant professor of military studies, said, "I don't foresee any change except in the methods of recruiting and in that instructors may have greater enrollment in the (voluntary) two-year program."

The issue of dropping the lectures has been under study for at least a year. Willard L. Boyd, dean of faculty and vice president of the University, said, "This is something that is just now working itself out," he said.

Independent studies of the effects of elimination of the requirement on ROTC departments were begun more than a year ago and presented to Bowen in a series of conferences. These conferences culminated in Bowen's application to the Board of Regents to drop the compulsory status of the lectures.

The effect of student and faculty pressures on Bowen's decision is difficult to determine.

In the studies that were given to Bowen, Air Force and Army records showed a decline of about one-third in the number of freshmen enrolled in the ROTC program in the academic year 1963-64, when the two-year requirement was dropped. Since then, the number of freshmen participating in the corps has not increased in proportion to the increase in University freshman enrollment.

Although the percentage of freshmen taking ROTC has declined, the number of students receiving commissions has risen.

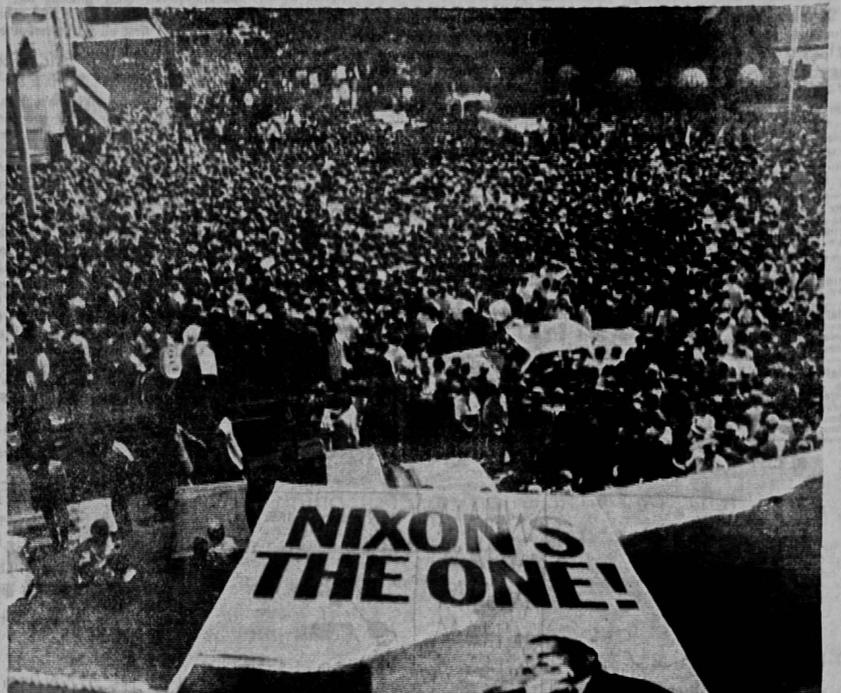

In 1963, the Army ROTC commissioned 34 cadets and the Air Force ROTC commissioned 21. In 1966, this had climbed to 58 cadets commissioned by the Army and 38 by the Air Force.

In 1967, the first year that seniors who had not been required as freshmen to take the ROTC program graduated, enrollment in ROTC courses declined about one-third. However, the number of students receiving commissions actually increased by more than 50 per cent.

Participation in the two-year ROTC program was not affected when it was changed from a compulsory to a voluntary program because the program was designed for transfer students and for students who did not participate in the program in their freshman year.

"We find that we have a high number of graduate students participating in the voluntary two-year program," Binney said.

He added that the program was handled primarily by mail so that dropping the lectures would have little effect on it.

Iowa cities need home rule to help solve urban problems

Iowa municipalities may be granted home rule by the next session of the legislature. That is, they may receive home rule if Iowa voters approve a home rule amendment that will be offered to them on the November ballots.

Home rule is hardly a revolutionary idea. A majority of the states in the United States do have home rule statutes for their municipalities. Home rule lets the city take a little initiative in solving some of its problems without relying on the state legislature for action that may be inadequate or late.

Home rule, as set forth in the amendment to the state constitution, is only partial. Cities still can not levy taxes that are not approved by the legislature. City councils in the state can take some initiative in establishing boards or commissions to meet with problems and take action in the form of resolutions or ordinances on some problems that may be unique to the municipality involved. The above action can be taken without specific authorization from the legislature.

To grant home rule to the state's municipalities would only partially alleviate some of the problems of the city. Iowa's rich, rolling farm land takes the largest amount of the legislature's concern. Cities are inadequately represented in the legislature, tax levies are too low, income is not sufficient and shared income cheats the cities.

Nevertheless, city status in the state may improve when more representative apportionment is undertaken.

Home rule is a first step. Other steps are necessary to really be fair to the cities of the state. But to take the other steps, the state must begin. Voters should grant home rule to their cities.

Marijuana use is not a crime

Committees of the American Medical Association made a valuable contribution to the medical profession Wednesday when they called for increased understanding in the treatment of users of marijuana.

Use of marijuana should not be regarded as a crime, the report said, but rather as a disease.

Perhaps this declaration by a noted medical organization will lead to better understanding throughout the country of the use of marijuana and its treatment.

Marijuana causes, like alcohol and cigarettes, an addiction. It is a habit, perhaps, but the use of it is not really a crime. A user of marijuana may be dissatisfied with himself, the world, his job or other people.

The answer to the increasing use of marijuana may be a happy median somewhere between legalization and the present penalties for its use. Treatment for marijuana may be best handled in a rehabilitation program.

The Johnson County democrats, at their county convention, passed a resolution in their platform that called for research on the effects and humane treatment of the users of marijuana instead of the current practice of condemnation and police power.

Groups like the AMA and the Johnson County democrats may help the rest of the country see beyond its bias and develop the proper perspective in the treatment and care of marijuana users. Research and understanding are required. To take any other path would be a mistake.

Is Terry Toomey guilty?

Terry Toomey, the Iowa City Airman who marched in an antiwar demonstration while in uniform, was found guilty Wednesday of "discrediting the Air Force" by his conduct by a seven-man court-martial board, and was given a bad conduct discharge.

It could reasonably be argued that he discredited the Air Force, if the Air Force does not want to be identified as a group that supports peace and wishes to avoid war — although the Air Force's motto, curiously enough, is "Peace is our profession."

Terry Toomey may be "guilty" of being against the war in Vietnam, but it doesn't seem right that he should be punished for expressing this belief, as long as he conducts himself in the proper manner of a member of the armed forces. Toomey says he is a loyal American; he seems to be a conscientious American — does that kind of person deserve punishment?

Public or privately-owned buses? either way, it's a losing proposition

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article by Linda Artlip, City Editor of The Daily Iowan, is second in a three-part series on parking and transportation problems in Iowa City.

All cities have trouble with transportation — whether in the form of public systems or private cars. And Iowa City does not differ appreciably in this problem from other cities.

In the last decade, cities all over the nation have had to start or take over municipal bus, intra-city train and subway systems — not because they wanted to, but rather because they had to if their citizens were to have any form of transportation besides cars and trucks.

Apparently because few privately owned public transportation systems can make enough profit while providing the services that are needed, municipalities have had to establish civil authorities to meet the transportation needs of urban areas.

No one seems exactly sure why private companies can not make "enough" profit, but one of the reasons could be the rising costs of labor, parts, gasoline and vehicles. When added to the growing affluence of American families, who now can afford cars and who prefer to use them, the plight of public transportation is explainable.

Iowa City, too, has typical problems — particularly in keeping a bus system in operation.

The city has had a bus system since the late 1920s when the Negus family established Iowa City Coach Company. The company is presently owned and managed by Lewis H. Negus, the grandson of the founder.

Negus, like bus company owners in Cedar Rapids, has had problems keeping his buses operating and producing a return that he considers fair.

Almost two years ago, bus fares in the city rose to 25 cents. Negus was forced to charge that much to keep the company in operation, but the 25 cent fare proved to be a self-defeating cycle. The number of customers fell off so much that he could not afford to continue bus service, at least, according to Negus.

But since both the University and the city were and are extremely interested in keeping a bus system running in Iowa City, they stepped in with a temporary monthly subsidy to the bus company until a more satisfactory arrangement could be worked out. As part of the agreement the fare was dropped from 25 cent to 10 cents.

In the fall of 1966 a monthly subsidy of $5,000, of which the University contributed $2,000, began.

The trouble began when the city and Negus started negotiating for the city to buy Negus' buses.

During this time, two University accountants had checked Negus' books and had decided that a $5,000 subsidy was too much. But there did not seem to be a real problem, because the subsidy was merely a temporary arrangement.

The negotiations were stopped in the middle of February after no agreement could be reached. Negus threatened to discontinue service; the city threatened to cut off the subsidy, which it finally did. But instead of shutting down the bus line, Negus raised the fare to 15 cents on March 1.

It seemed then that Negus would probably lose so many customers that he could not afford to continue his line, but the buses are still running. This could mean that the accountants were right — the subsidy was too much. But no one really knows for sure, because no one seems to know if Negus is losing or making money.

Negus and the city got together again in May and started talking peace. Negus has given the city a contract to discuss, but the council has not considered it yet.

The University is even more interested in keeping a bus system going in the city than it was before. President Howard R. Bowen envisions a "pedestrian campus" in which students and faculty alike ride bicycles or buses or walk.

In accordance with this wish, the University seems willing to go along with whatever the city wants to do — as long as bus fares are kept low. University vice president in charge of planning, Merritt Ludwig has said, "Our main interest is keeping students out of cars and in buses."

It does not seem likely that the city is really interested in running its own buses. A civil authority could only be an additional headache for any city government.

City Manager Frank Smiley has said that no such thing could happen since the federal government would not make loans for city owned buses if a private system were already in operation. Smiley said that the city would only go into the bus business if it had no other choice.

But the fact that the city has filled out application forms for federal aid has made Negus understandably nervous. If he goes out of business, the city might almost immediately step in with its own, newer and better bus line to replace his.

But the city's position is also understandable. Neither the University nor the city wants a worse parking situation than now exists. Without a city bus line, more cars are sure to pour into the downtown area, and the parking situation is chaotic now.

If no agreement is reached in this round of talks, both the city and Negus can expect problems.

Negus could possibly go out of business. Another fare raise could only add to his woes. A fare of 25 cents did not work before and it is unlikely that it would work in the future.

Negus can not really expect a sharp increase in passengers either. Not even the new University regulations concerning cars on campus could possibly make up the $5,000 subsidy. (An additional 50,000 passengers would be needed each month to make up the difference.)

It seems that to reach an agreement both sides will have to give a little; the city will have to give money and Negus will have to give up some of his autonomy.

It seems also reasonable to guess that within the next 10 years the city could be forced into providing its citizens with a municipal bus system. Iowa City's problems are so similar to other cities' problems that it seems well on the road to a civil authority unless something unforeseen happens.

There are three choices: a joint, private, or a civil system. All three have their good and bad points.

A joint system would guarantee that the city would not be left without buses. It could possibly have the advantages of both a private enterprise and the certainty of a government operation. Then again, it could be a major headache for both Negus and the city. A balance of power satisfactory to all involved could be hard to maintain.

A private system would certainly have the advantages of private enterprise. If Negus can make a go of the business, it makes sense to keep government out of something where it is not needed, particularly from an already busy government's view.

The civil system could provide the service that citizens want, of course, at a cost to the taxpayer. Most civil authorities lose money, but admittedly less money than has been spent on subsidies. Cedar Rapids' civil authority has never lost more than $6,700 a month. It seems likely that Iowa City would lose a much smaller amount.

The civil authority would guarantee a joint system has run into trouble already, although it may be on its way to being resolved.

The private system is obviously in trouble or Negus would not be seeking subsidies or occasionally threatening to quit.

A civil system would probably lose money as it does in comparable cities. If there were a pat answer to the situation, the problem would not exist. So now, the city government, the University, students and Negus have to sit back and wait for the next round to end.

Icarus: "Today is the first day of the rest of your life."

According to the Constitution everyone has the "right to life." This is basically what the Poor People's Campaign is all about.

In a society based on money, the "right to life" can only be guaranteed if everyone has at least enough money to survive.

Poor people are not asking for charity in pressing their demands on Congress for a guaranteed minimum annual income and other legislation to insure survival. They are demanding their rights, and nothing more, nor less.

The excuse that this country cannot afford it is absurd in light of the fact that this is the wealthiest nation on earth and other nations afford it.

But if this change is to come about successfully it cannot be done in the spirit of previous "welfare" legislation which is based on standards that imply the inferiority of welfare recipients.

In a country where it is necessary to have money to exist, and where obtaining that money depends upon so many factors outside the control of the individual, scorn for those who "have-not" is ridiculous.

It would make more sense to look down on someone like the Rockefellers who not only never worked for the money they inherited, but whose fathers and grandfathers made their fortunes at the expense of the fathers and grandfathers of the poor, who today demand simply what is their right.

Dick Gregory in his new book, "Write Me In!" says: "...crime in the streets" is America's new way of saying "nigger."

Private Stage Seen Coming In Paris Talks

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, reporting "some movement" in the Paris talks on Vietnam, suggested Thursday those U. S.-North Vietnamese sessions may be moving out of the public propaganda stage toward private negotiation.

Clifford, one of President Johnson's key advisors on Vietnam policy, told a news conference, "When we get to the stage that private talks are taking place... then I believe we will begin to make some progress."

Clifford reported that "North Vietnam had chosen to increase the flow of men and material" into South Vietnam in a bid to put pressure on U. S. negotiators in Paris.

The price, he said, has been an increase in both U. S. and enemy casualties into a range of 400 to 500 a week in American losses and close to 5,000 a week in Viet Cong and North Vietnamese battle deaths.

Clifford said it is estimated that infiltration from the North into South Vietnam during May totaled some 29,000 men.

This is nearly twice the 15,000 infiltration figure for April cited recently by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, outgoing U. S. commander in Vietnam.

About 26,000 of the 29,000 infiltrators in May are replacements for battle losses suffered by the enemy, Clifford said.

Despite the reported high level of North Vietnamese infiltration of men and material, Clifford indicated that the U. S. troop commitment will not go beyond 550,000 as currently planned. The total already there is about 534,000.

Asked about the possibility of recurring full scale bombing of North Vietnam, Clifford hinted strongly that the present limitations, ordered by Johnson on March 31, will be kept in effect as long as there is hope that North Vietnam may reciprocate, thus moving closer to a negotiated settlement.

Harriman Returns To Consult LBJ

PARIS — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman will return to Washington today to consult with President Johnson and other officials on the deadlocked Paris peace talks.

He will be away 10 days, returning to Paris July 1. In the 10th meeting of the conference, next Wednesday, Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, Harriman's deputy, will head the U.S. delegation.

Humphrey Stands Firm on Vietnam

WASHINGTON — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey declined Thursday to repudiate the administration's Vietnamese policy. But he stressed that as president he would be captain of his own team with "its own sense of direction, its own perspective, its own objectives."

"Every conductor of an orchestra makes his own music with the same musicians, but it's different music," Humphrey told the National Press Club in Washington.

McCarthy Cites Cycle of Racism, Poverty in U.S.

NEW YORK — Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy told a group of black editors and publishers Thursday that "black people are poor because they are powerless and powerless because they are black."

"I believe," the Minnesota senator said, "that America is not going to meet the problems of the cities, of poverty or of racism until it accepts the need for a redistribution of power in political and economic institutions."

"Poverty cannot be ended until power and responsibility are democratically shared."

Wallace Pledges More State Power

BATON ROUGE, La. — George Wallace told the Louisiana legislature Thursday he is running for president to "turn back to you and other legislators across the nation some voice in the affairs of your state."

"One federal judge has more authority than the legislature and the governor and all the state officials combined," he protested in a speech to the jointly assembled Louisiana House and Senate.

Nixon, Wallace Ask For Policy Briefings

WASHINGTON — Presidential candidates Richard M. Nixon and George C. Wallace have asked for administration briefings on foreign policy, the State Department said Thursday.

Officials indicated both briefings would be conducted within the next month, although no dates have been set yet.

Ray Retains Alabama Man As Attorney

LONDON — Attorney Arthur J. Hanes Sr., former mayor of Birmingham, Ala., said Thursday he has been retained by James Earl Ray to defend him against the charge of murdering Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"He sent word to me," Hanes told a news conference. "As of now I will be his lawyer. He retained me in the event that he is extradited."

Ray is held in the former death cell at London's Wandsworth Prison pending an extradition hearing at Bow Street Magistrates Court next Thursday.

A fugitive from the Missouri State Penitentiary, he is accused of gunning down King, the Negro civil rights leader, in Memphis, Tenn., April 4.

Hanes arrived in London Thursday morning with his son and partner, Arthur J. Hanes Jr.

Under British law, police are entitled to prevent a prisoner from seeing anyone except his lawyers and only British lawyers are considered here as counsel.

Ray has two court-appointed British lawyers, Michael Dresden and Michael Eugene. They sat flanking Hanes at the news conference, but followed British legal rules by refusing to answer any questions about the case.

Mail Sales Of Guns Ban Gets 1st OK

WASHINGTON — The House Judiciary Committee voted Thursday to outlaw mail-order sales of shotguns and rifles and to clamp tight controls over the sale of all ammunition.

Responding to the national outcry for gun controls following the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, the committee voted 29 to 6 in favor of the legislation.

Only last week it deadlocked 16 to 16 on the same measure and never before has it been able to muster a majority for such a bill.

The Senate Judiciary Committee also was scheduled to act on the legislation Thursday but postponed its vote until next Thursday because several senators were absent.

The House committee acted about 15 hours after President Johnson signed into law an anti-crime bill containing a ban against mail-order sales of handguns and urged Congress to extend the prohibition to shotguns and rifles.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) wheeled into the committee room a shopping cart that was spilling over with what he described as mail demanding strict gun controls.

All 15 committee Republicans voted for the bill. Last week only two supported it. The six votes against it were cast by Southern Democrats.

Besides banning mail-order sales of rifles and shotguns, the bill would prohibit their purchase by anyone who is not a resident of the state of sale, or anyone under 18. The newly enacted handgun provisions are similar except that no one under 21 can buy them.

Celler said one of the most significant features of the bill is its restriction on the sale of ammunition. It would prohibit all mail-order sales of ammunition except between licensed dealers, prohibit the sale of handgun ammunition to anyone under 21, and prohibit the sale of long-gun ammunition to anyone under 18.

Celler said he would act quickly to prepare the bill for floor action. House procedures make it unlikely the bill could be voted on before next Wednesday or Thursday.

Rockefeller Blasts Nixon

CHICAGO — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller launched a two-front attack Thursday on Richard M. Nixon, calling him a "false prophet" on the war in Vietnam and a losing candidate in the big cities of America.

For the first time in his campaign, Rockefeller mentioned Nixon by name.

At a rally in downtown Chicago Rockefeller said "Mr. Nixon persist in his belligerent prophecies on this tragic war and he goes on to say, 'We have to stop it with victory, or it will start all over again in a few years.'"

The governor also referred to Nixon's saying, in an interview published in Good Housekeeping magazine, that "there is no alternative to the war going on."

There were some cheers for what he said, some boos when he mentioned Nixon's name but the response of the crowd of 10,000 was generally not overwhelming for the speech.

This was the second consecutive day that Rockefeller lashed out at Nixon in his attempts to overtake the former vice president's lead in their race for the Republican presidential nomination.

Nixon Shuns Attack Reply

CHICAGO — Richard M. Nixon said Thursday he "will not retaliate in kind" to any personal attacks made on him by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his late-starting challenger for the Republican presidential nomination.

Nixon said: "I will not debate with Rockefeller because the only winner of that debate would be Hubert Humphrey."

Nixon and Rockefeller crossed paths in Chicago Thursday. The New York governor spoke to 10,000 persons at a noon-hour street rally and met with Illinois delegates to the GOP convention.

Nixon arrived later in the day and met with Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) and other state GOP leaders.

Newsmen repeatedly questioned Nixon about Rockefeller's charges that Nixon was a "man of the old politics" and has "belligerent prophecies" on Vietnam.

"Any candidate who takes a weaker position than the President on Vietnam is taking a chance of exploding the peace talks," Nixon said.

'Miser' Opens at 8 Tonight — 1st of 4 Summer Productions —

The Summer Repertory Theatre, which opens its first production, Moliere's "The Miser," at 8 tonight at the University Theatre, will have a full job when it rotates almost nightly its four summer plays.

Scenery changes are the biggest problem in presenting four different plays, according to Robert L. Gilbert, assistant professor of speech and dramatic arts. Gilbert directs one of the plays and acts in another.

The scenery must be designed so that it can be easily taken apart and three sets stored while the fourth is being used, he said.

The four plays to be presented this summer are comedies, which were selected because they are diverse, light, entertainment better suited to a summer audience, Gilbert said.

The four plays are: "The Miser," "Misalliance," by George Bernard Shaw; "The Bat," by Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood; and "Philadelphia Here I Come," by Brian Friel.

Gilbert will direct "Philadelphia Here I Come."

The variety of the plays challenges the actors, Gilbert said. Each of the four shows was selected to stress a different aspect of the acting art.

Gilbert said the variety of parts gave the actors the opportunity to work with different types of roles, since no actor had a similar character in any of the shows.

The actors in the summer theatre are eligible to receive a $400 scholarship and can earn up to six hours credit for their work. No credit is given by the University for acting during the school year.

The actors practice about eight or nine hours a day and rehearse three of the four productions daily. The heavy rehearsal schedule is necessary because there is time for only 21 rehearsals before a play is presented, compared to 40 rehearsals during the regular season, Gilbert said.

DON'T MESS WITH MY WOMAN, SON — Embracing his father's intended bride, Marianne (Dianne Evenson), is Cleante (John Getz), as his father (Bob Ernst) smilingly looks on. But is he really pleased. The action is from Moliere's farce, "The Miser," which opens at 8 p.m. tonight at the University Theatre, so you can go and find out for yourself.

Hearing Set In Robbery

A preliminary juvenile hearing for a Coralville youth charged with robbing George's Gourmet Inne has been set for 9:30 a.m. Monday.

The hearing will be closed as are most juvenile hearings, according to District Court Judge William R. Eads.

Eads said that the hearing will determine whether the case will be heard in the juvenile or regular division of District Court.

Charged in the robbery is Donald J. Thompson, 17, of Carol Ann Apartments, Coralville.

George's Gourmet Inne was robbed of about $370 early June 12 by a bandit armed with an automatic pistol.

Student Rescues Professor's Son

A University professor's son was rescued from a swimming pool by a University student Thursday afternoon.

Frank C. Osdoba, A2, Orange City, pulled David Bloesch, 7, son of Prof. and Mrs. Richard J. Bloesch, 2431 Crestview St., from the swimming pool at Scotsdale Apartments. Bloesch is an assistant professor of music.

Osdoba applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for about seven minutes until the boy revived. The boy was then taken to University Hospitals where he was listed in fair condition Thursday evening.

State University of Iowa Alive and Well in Iowa City

By JERRY PATTEN
The State University of Iowa still exists, even though it was driven underground three years ago. Officially the name never has been changed.

The University adopted its nickname, The University of Iowa, in an attempt to end the confusion which began in 1959 when the name of Iowa State College at Ames was changed to Iowa State University.

For five years two schools received thousands of pieces of each other's mail. Valuable bonds and cash donations were often mislaid. The two were constantly being confused in newspaper and radio accounts.

The University even received one of Iowa State's athletes. In September, 1964, a Peruvian basketball player bound for Ames was deplaned in Iowa City by mistake.

Finally, in October, 1964, Pres. Howard R. Bowen asked the Board of Regents to delete the word State from the University's title in an attempt to end the confusion.

Even though the regents approved the unofficial name change,

University lawyers said the term still might not be legal. After consultation, Bowen decided that "... for legal purposes involving contracts and similar matters the term, The University of Iowa (founded in 1847 as The State University of Iowa)" could be used, an increase in clarity at a terrific price in brevity.

As supplies bearing the old name ran out, the nickname crept onto University records, checks and even diplomas.

Today, the formal name is used only for the most official matters, usually federal contracts on construction and research or appropriation requests from the legislature. With this in mind, you can be sure of one of two things. If you get a letter from the State University of Iowa, it's either very official, or very old.

The Show Must Go On— Now That the Strike's Over

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway was back in business Thursday after a marathon bargaining session between Actors Equity and the League of New York Theaters ended a three-day strike by performers. The session was at the home of Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Sixteen theaters and nine road shows resumed performances after a new contract agreement was reached but three shows closed permanently during the walkout.

There were indications that the price of Broadway tickets would go up again. Ticket prices for a Broadway musical now range from $11.90 to $3.50 and for a drama from $7.50 to $2.50.

Lindsay came out of the all-night session at 6 a.m. and announced: "performances in the Broadway theaters will be resumed tonight."

He said the three-year contract calls for minimum wage rates of $145 a week the first year, $150 the second and $155 the third. The current minimum is $130.

The strike cost show business about $600,000 in the lost box-office receipts. But the effect on the New York theater district went far beyond that because of the business fall-off in restaurants, bars, hotels, parking lots, taxi services and other business dependent on theater trade.

Ammo Blast Put to Mines

BURLINGTON (AP) — A five-man team completed an investigation Thursday into the cause of an explosion June 7 at the Iowa Ammunition Depot, west of here, which killed five men.

Capt. Donald Perugini, head of the team which is from the Milan, Tenn., Army Ammunition Depot, said a defect in a canister containing 300 anti-personnel mines was the most probable cause.

However, Perugini said, the absence of surviving witnesses prevented the board from excluding the possibility of human error and there was no evidence that the mines were improperly stored.

He said the complete results of his team's investigation would be turned over today to Lt. Col. Frank Munn, the Iowa Ammunition Depot commanding officer.

Venezuelan Plane Hijacked to Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — A Venezuelan airliner with 80 persons aboard, including four Americans, was hijacked Thursday and forced to land at Santiago in eastern Cuba.

Reports from Santiago said a young man carrying a grenade commandeered Viasa Airlines' flight 797 from Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, and threatened to explode the grenade unless the plane landed in Cuba.

The Swiss Embassy in Havana, which handles Venezuela's interests in Cuba, confirmed that the plane was hijacked and said it would be allowed to take off soon.

No'ian Seeks To Regain Senate Seat

D. C. Nolan, an Iowa City attorney, announced Wednesday that he will seek the Republican nomination for Johnson County's state senator, a position he lost in 1965 to Robert J. Burns, a Democrat.

Nolan, of 513 S. Summit St., served in the State Senate from 1953 to 1965. During the 1957 session, he was the majority leader.

In announcing his candidacy, Nolan said that although many national problems need to be solved, sound government in Iowa could not be neglected.

Nolan is the father of eight children, including Elizabeth, an assistant attorney general of Iowa; and John, who is associated with his father in the law firm of Nolan, Lucas and Nolan.

Nolan is the first Republican to announce for the Senate seat. State Rep. Minnette Doderer, also of Iowa City, is the only Democrat currently seeking the seat.

June 30 is the deadline for filing papers.

Burns, the county's current state senator, has said that he will not run for re-election.

Sun Setting on Peers of the Realm

LONDON (AP) — You can see the peers of the realm reclining, even sometimes snoring, on the red plush benches of the House of Lords. It's a very clubby atmosphere. Members address each other as "my noble lord," and mumble "content" or "not content" with voting.

This is the house of Parliament that Prime Minister Harold Wilson proposed Thursday to reform by "comprehensive and radical legislation" that, among other things, would eliminate the hereditary right of non-elected peers to help make the nation's laws.

Wilson announced all talks with the opposition Conservatives and Liberals about such reform have been abandoned and the Labor government will offer the legislation soon on its own.

The House of Lords consists of a little over 1,000 peers. About 100 of these are life peers, the ones who cannot pass on membership to their descendants. These are the active members. The remainder are hereditary peers, but only about 100 of them attend sessions regularly, collecting three guineas or $7.50 for each day of attendance.

The House of Lords has been declining for years as a tool of power in British politics, but it has always retained vestiges of authority in the legislative process.

The latest blow by the Lords was the nine-vote defeat Tuesday of a government order to increase pressure on Rhodesia's breakaway government. This was the reason for Wilson's action.

It is indicative of the Lords' current lack of power that the negative vote, according to the rules, did not kill the order. But it is equally indicative of the Lords' residual influence that the vote embarrassed the Labor government enough to awaken demands to curb or kill House of Lords altogether.

Despite the furor about the Rhodesian vote, the House of Lords as a whole is more representative of the public than it was a generation ago.

This is because of the introduction in 1958 of the life peers — active politicians and public figures who have been rewarded for service to people or party with the title of "life baron."

The controversy centers on the voting powers vested in the hereditary peers, people who hold this power for no reason other than that they were the eldest sons, closest relatives or, in a few cases, daughters, of their predecessors.

Many of these peers never attend sessions. Most are Conservative. If the Conservative party leadership wants to embarrass the ruling Labor party, it can call in its "backwoods-men," those peers who seldom attend regular sessions, to cast a Tory vote. This happened on the Rhodesian sanctions issue.

The history of hereditary peers can be traced to the Magna Carta in 1215, when the barons forced King John to give them a hearing.

But no formal legislature was set up until Simon de Montfort, the Earl of Leicester, rebelled against King Henry III 50 years later.

Montfort's Parliament, and those that succeeded it, established the rights of land owners, or barons, to sit in the king's council.

In 1295, King Edward I added high clergy of the church to the council. The Archbishop of Canterbury and colleagues still vote in the House of Lords.

The House of Commons came into being near the end of the 13th century, but only as a body of knights and lesser barons, lower on the noble list but not really representative of the "common man." The Lords remained the prime political influence on the king.

The Commons evolved into the primary body of executive as well as legislative power when it took over the country under Oliver Cromwell in 1649.

Only the last century, with its widening popular vote, has seen the real decline of the Lords. Each step in this trimming of power has usually come through conflict between the elected Commons and the hereditary peers.

Guns Have Killed 95 People So Far

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Guns have killed 95 persons in the United States since midnight Sunday, an Associated Press survey shows.

Homicides accounted for 50 deaths, suicides for 35 and accidental shootings for 10.

The FBI has reported that approximately 6,500 persons were killed by guns in 1966 — an average of 125 homicides by firearms each week. Homicides including stabbings and stranglings totaled 10,920 in 1966, the FBI said.

The California count of seven deaths included a homicide and suicide. Police said a Baptist minister shot his Japanese housekeeper and himself because she planned to marry a man of another faith.
