

GOP Agrees: Nixon Is the One

Victory on 1st Ballot - Then It's Unanimous

HITS PAY DIRT

BACK AT THE TOP — This is the way Richard M. Nixon, then vice president of the United States, looked in 1959 while on a tour of coal mines in Siberia during a good will trip to the Soviet Union. Since then, Nixon's political career has been figuratively in Siberia — he lost the presidential race to John F. Kennedy in 1960, the California gubernatorial race in 1962 and failed to win the GOP presidential nomination he had sought in 1964. Now, Nixon's political career has resurfaced and he's back again in the light of day. — AP Wirephoto

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Richard Milhouse Nixon, who battled a loser's image to build a political comeback, swept to his second Republican presidential nomination early today.

When the rhythmic roll call of the states reached Wisconsin, Nixon's vote reached the 667 majority which won him the prize, his party's 29th nomination for the White House.

And the Republican National Convention exploded into tumult, with cheering, sign-waving Nixon partisans leading the surging roar.

The giant wave of cheers began even before Wisconsin cast its decisive ballots. Nixon had won its 30 votes by primary election, and the convention knew that made it the crucial delegation.

Nixon wound up the roll call with 692 votes. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller got 287, California Gov. Ronald Reagan received 182.

And when the call was completed, with Nixon the winner, states which had cast votes for other candidates began switching their ballots to the nominee.

The rules of the convention were suspended to allow Reagan, who was chairman of the California delegation, to call for unanimous approval for Nixon. The delegates shouted their immediate approval.

And so the former vice president, who narrowly lost the White House to the late John F. Kennedy in 1960, won the right to try again, next Nov. 5.

He will carry the Republican standard against the man the Democrats nominate in Chicago in three weeks. Nixon has said he is certain his opponent will be Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

And so Nixon, who once wrote a book about the six crises of his political life, surmounted the seventh.

It climaxed a studied, meticulously organized — but nonetheless dramatic — return to the Republican pinnacle by a man who six years ago uttered his own bitter political obituary.

That was in Los Angeles, the morning after Nixon lost his bid to become governor of California. Haggard, exhausted, Nixon faced a news conference and proclaimed:

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer because, gentlemen, this is my last press conference."

He left the native state from which he had been elected to the House, then to the Senate, leaving Congress to become Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice president, moved to New York and became a Wall Street lawyer.

But politics remained his real profession. And in the aftermath of the Republicans' devastating 1964 defeat, party professionals began talking of Nixon as a contender again for presidential nomination.

And Nixon was soon on the road, campaigning for GOP candidates, addressing fund raising functions, building a bulging stock of political favors due.

The off-year elections of 1966 produced a Republican comeback and Nixon, an ardent campaigner for the party's nominees, shared in the triumph.

That began in earnest, but under cover, the campaign he climaxed in Miami Beach today.

"This is not my last press conference," he said on Feb. 1, formally announcing the candidacy he carried through seven presidential primaries.

He came to Miami Beach only Monday, already in command of the convention, and recalled the 1960 race he lost to Kennedy by the slimmest of margins.

"We see history repeating itself," he said. "But there's one big difference. This time we're going to win."

While Rockefeller and Reagan waged hectic final rounds of campaigning Wednesday, Nixon called signals from the seclusion of his penthouse command post, overlooking the Atlantic.

Even as the odds against him became overwhelming, Rockefeller struggled on, overlying at Nixon the favorite theme of his rivals: the charge that he is a loser who cannot defeat the Democrats in the Nov. 5 election.

Nixon was placed into nomination Wednesday night before a tumultuous Republican National Convention already prepared to award him its greatest prize.

Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland offered the convention the name of the man who had the votes, after long hours of speechmaking and demonstrations for his rivals and for favorite son candidates.

There were more to come before the convention finally settled into the business of calling the roll of states to count the votes.

Agnew described the former vice president this way:

"A man firm in upholding the law, and determined in the pursuit of justice. A man who can negotiate peace without sacrificing life, land or liberty. A man who had the courage to rise up from the depths of defeat six years ago, and to make the greatest political comeback in American history."

This was a reference to Nixon's 1962 defeat in a race for the governorship of California.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, said by one top Republican to be Nixon's likely choice as a running mate, said he had heard nothing about it.

Rockefeller's name was placed in nomination by Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, who called his candidate "a new Lincoln."

"We should nominate Nelson Rockefeller because he is the Republican who can win," Shafer said. Rockefeller partisans responded with constant cheers amid a waving array of placards.

The speeches droned on for hours, most of them for token candidates, men like Sen. Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii, Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeiler of Arkansas. Each had his manufactured demonstration, his moment in the spotlight.

The first officially entered: California Gov. Ronald Reagan. California State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest placed his name before the convention, describing the governor as "the man who can restore faith in our country and ourselves. 'America will not settle for more of the same,' she said.

And Reagan partisans, led by Californians in gaudy orange shawls, set off the convention's first demonstration in a shower of Reagan balloons.

They cheered, stomped the aisles, waved the placards of the candidate who sought the presidency after two years as governor.

But if Reagan had the opening round noise, Nixon had the first ballot votes.

Reagan acknowledged at a news conference that he had only an outside chance of winning.

The confident Nixon remained at his command post — a hotel with his name emblazoned in two-story red letters — until the nomination was sewn up. He was said to be pondering the choice of a vice presidential running mate.

A top convention official said he was convinced Nixon would select Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon.

But there were also reports of pressure to put Rockefeller or Reagan in second spot on a Nixon ticket.

Both said they would refuse any such assignment.

Miami Quiet but Tense After Black Youth Spree

MIAMI (AP) — Incensed by the appearance of police at a black rally, groups of young blacks went on a rampage of rock throwing, burning and looting Wednesday night in a Miami business area. Ten persons were hurt and at least 40 persons — all blacks — were arrested.

Three hours after the first reports of rock and bottle throwing at 6:30 p.m., police said the area was quiet but tense.

Miami Police Lt. Jay Golden said "some shots are being fired indiscriminately, mainly at windows, but no one has been injured. There has been no police fire."

The trouble broke out in an area of Miami, some 10 miles across Biscayne Bay from Miami Beach where the Republican National Convention was in session.

The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, in the audience at the convention, heard of the trouble and broadcast an appeal to "all my brothers and sisters not to turn to violence."

Florida Gov. Claude Kirk, also at the convention, went immediately to Miami and ordered 500 National Guardsmen to a standby basis.

A leader of the rally said blacks became incensed when police began massing for no apparent reason at the site of the rally in Northwest Miami.

"We were trying to give our people some of their black culture," said Bob Johnson, a youth who said he was a non-violent Black Nationalist.

"The people we are trying to reach, they can't sit down in peaceful assembly without being harassed," he said. "If they don't stop treating our people like dogs and animals, they're going to act like dogs and animals after nightfall."

The trouble was the first major racial violence to occur in Miami and came about eight months after Police Chief Walter Headley announced a "get tough" policy on crime that included patrols on which officers were armed with shotguns and dogs.

Three people were hit by a barrage of rocks and concrete chunks. A Miami Herald photographer was "severely beaten," according to police.

Police said the rock-throwing began shortly after two dozen police withdrew from the rally place.

However, police said they dispatched 200 riot-equipped men, armed with shotguns, carbines, "plenty of ammunition" and bullet-proof vests to areas adjacent to the trouble zone.

Police lobbed at least three tear gas shells at a crowd of angry, shouting youths after the photographer and a patrolman were injured.

A crowd police estimated at 2,000 cheered as the youths began ripping down iron gratings on store windows and carting off merchandise.

One car which was burned had a "Wallace for President" sticker on the rear bumper. Its white driver fled into a bar.

Firemen reported two buildings in the area were also set afire.

Automobiles of whites who tried to drive through the area were stoned. Firemen were given police protection. Some 200 Negroes had gathered to attend the scheduled 12-hour "Vote Power" rally.

The meeting was designed to air problems common to their race.

Outlook on Eisenhower 'Guarded'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported making some progress Wednesday, a day after suffering what doctors called another major heart attack.

The outlook was still "guarded." Army doctors explained that the word meant that "in this early period after any heart attack, the outcome is unpredictable."

In his suite at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Eisenhower was being given oxygen continuously. He was being fed a low salt, liquid diet by mouth.

Visitors were restricted to the immediate family, including Mrs. Eisenhower, who has been with her husband since he was brought to Walter Reed last May, and their son, John Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, 77, had been recovering from a major heart attack of June 15 when he was stricken again early Tuesday with his sixth attack since 1955 and the third this year.

Asked how the new attack compared with the seizure of June 15, which had been termed a major one, the doctors said: "Equal severity."

The doctors have referred to the latest attack as a myocardial infarction, characterized by damage to the heart muscle.

They said Tuesday that anyone who has "sustained a recent infarction is considered to be seriously ill."

Soon after the June 15 heart attack, Eisenhower's doctors said that "the early period following any heart attack is the most critical." They further defined the "critical period" as generally extending through the first week immediately following such an attack.

312 McCarthy Delegates Challenged on 'Loyalty'

DES MOINES (AP) — Twenty-one Iowans — including five from Iowa City — are among 312 delegates to the Democratic National Convention whose seats are being challenged on grounds of "party loyalty" by a top Alabama Democrat official.

Robert S. Vance, chairman of the Alabama State Democrat Executive Committee, said in letters to the Iowans that he was challenging all delegates supporting presidential aspirant Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Vance implied that McCarthy delegates would not support anyone else nominated at the national convention which opens Aug. 26, and asked that they sign loyalty oaths saying they would support the nominee no matter who he was.

The Alabamian reportedly has filed his challenges with John Bailey, national democratic chairman, and Gov. Richard Hughes of N.J., chairman of the convention Credentials Committee.

Vance said in letters which the Iowans received Wednesday and Tuesday that he would withdraw his challenge to their seats if they would sign the loyalty oaths which he enclosed in the letters.

Some of the Iowans who received letters said they have never publicly committed themselves to McCarthy.

One of them, William Sueppel of Iowa City, is a publicly uncommitted delegate who was Iowa state chairman for the campaign of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sueppel said he tossed Vance's letter in the wastebasket.

"I haven't any intention of signing this," said Mrs. J. J. Mallon of Des Moines, a delegate who is committed to McCarthy. "And this doesn't mean I won't support the 1968 nominee."

Mrs. Mallon said she asked McCarthy headquarters in Washington, D.C., to investigate the challenges.

Iowa Democratic chairman Clark Rasmussen of West Des Moines said Wednesday he telephoned Vance to inform him that his actions against Iowans were "ill advised."

Rasmussen said he told Vance that he thought Iowans would support whoever was nominated at the convention.

Rasmussen said Vance replied that it was not unusual for national Democratic conventions to ask Alabama delegates to sign loyalty oaths, and Vance said he felt others should have to do likewise.

Iowa has 52 delegates with 46 votes at the convention in Chicago.

Those Rasmussen said have been challenged besides Mrs. Mallon and Sueppel are: Dr. John Garfield, State Rep. Minnette Doderer, Dr. George Bedell, all of Iowa City; State Rep. William Gannon of Mingo; Clifton Larson of Ames; James Resnick, John Wolfe, both of Davenport; E. Michael Carr of Manchester; Mrs. Dagmar Vidal of Hampton; Richard Pinegar of Des Moines and Lou Galetich of Carroll. Garfield and Bedell are both faculty members at the University of Iowa.

Alternates Joe Rosenfield of Des Moines; State Rep. Harry Bardsley of West Des Moines; McCarthy's Iowa chairman Arthur Small of Hills; the Rev. Charles Landis of Cedar Falls; Alan Baron of Sioux City; Mrs. Anne Hogben of Iowa City; Desmond Croty of Pocatowas and Sewell Allen of Onawa.

Littell Tells Graduates 2 Wisdoms Are Needed

Franklin H. Littell, president of Iowa Wesleyan College, stressed the importance of two kinds of wisdom — technical and humanitarian — in his Commencement address in the Field House Wednesday night.

Littell told the audience of 975 graduates and about 10,000 guests that a knowledge of the wisdom of the soul was just as important to any American citizen as a knowledge of technical skill. He said that technical proficiency, although necessary to all persons, could lead to a barbarian society if it were not combined with a knowledge of humanity.

Littell's speech was delivered before the 975 students were awarded their degrees. Graduates and guests listened attentively although the Field House was extremely warm during the hour-long ceremony.

"Devotion to technology without a balance in devotion to the wisdom of the soul will produce in quantity the most awful of 20th century figures: the technically competent barbarian," Littell said.

Littell said that a knowledge of both kinds of wisdom is necessary to solve the problems of social unrest that face our society today. A purely technical solution to social unrest would be to strengthen the police force, but this solution would ignore the human problems behind the unrest, he said.

Littell charged youth with the responsibility of resolving social unrest, saying that students entering college this fall would be at least four years more mature than were students in 1960. He said that young peoples' maturity was reflected in their demand for a larger voice in the government.

Littell praised youth for its dissent against unfair social practices, such as the Vietnam war and racial injustice. He warned adults against trying to suppress such dissent.

"The old order expects of its children docility and obedience, including the willing acceptance of orders and decisions that they had no part in making. I rise to warn against the old notion that any exercise of force will suffice to return youth to its silence. The rising expectations of youth are welcomed by all those who are convinced that tomorrow must be made better," Littell said.

Littell's speech was backed up by a speech by Don Ray Halverson, Clinton, a representative of the student body. Halverson, who received his B.A. degree, urged students to maintain an interest in academic subjects other than their major. He stressed that persons should be interested in cultural subjects, as well as subjects related to their particular skill.

University Pres. Howard R. Bowen challenged the graduates to use their degrees to serve humanity. He said that the best way to serve would be to give to society, and not to be concerned with receiving material rewards from it.

DOG DAYS IN THE FIELD HOUSE — It was hot in the Field House Wednesday night, and some 975 students sweltered under their caps and gowns as they waited for degrees to be bestowed upon them and listened to speeches. These two graduates got a welcome respite from the pomp and ceremony of Commencement when they were visited for a moment by an interested bystander. The dog, by the way, was not on the list of degree recipients and was quickly ushered out of the Field House.

Repression 1968

Civil rights, in this day and age, has become symbolic of the black movement in this country to gain recognition and opportunities afforded to any citizen of the country. However, civil rights is a broader concept than just the black movement.

Involved in civil rights are the constitutional freedoms of all citizens to free speech, freedom to assemble and petition the government peacefully for a redress of grievances and freedom of religion.

Old sayings such as "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it," seem to have lost their meanings after recent reactions to student movements and student protests against the establishment and the war in Vietnam.

A recent bill introduced to both the House and the Senate and passed in similar forms will further extend the hazy view of how many rights student protesters have. This bill is designed to cut off federal funds for education of any student convicted of participating in a disruptive demonstration.

This bill is retroactive, in that it specifies a date for punishment of convictions instead of dates of demonstrations.

Students convicted after a certain late for a misdemeanor such as disturbing the peace would be ineligible for federal grants and loans, GI Bill loans and various other forms of national grants to education. For many students, this bill would mean that their education would be curtailed because of lack of funds.

Most convictions stemming from demonstrations are civil cases. Courts in most states are notoriously far behind in their dockets. A demonstration case may be anywhere from six months to three years later in its actual court hearing than the demonstration itself. At the University, demonstrators who were arrested in the November demonstrations have just finished their trials. The 18 persons arrested in December have not begun their trials yet.

Therefore, this bill as it is designed will clip federal funds for students convicted of misdemeanors last year in the 80 campus disruptions across the country. The Columbia demonstrators, the Howard demonstrators and the demonstrators here will be affected by this bill.

For a student who chooses to participate in a demonstration next year, this bill may or may not be a stopper to his actions. If the potential demonstrator chooses to protest, he will know that he stands a chance to lose federal funds for his education if his actions are not regarded as peaceful.

But a student who participated in a demonstration last year and was arrested, but has not yet been tried will stand an excellent chance of losing his aid to education without warning.

A bill of this type seems to be an ex post facto law. It is a punishment for persons who were not eligible for this type of punishment when they committed a violation of the law.

Furthermore, why should a student who disturbs the peace during a demonstration be denied the federal funds that a student would get if he had disturbed the peace in some other way?

Although many persons may not agree with the reasons for the student protests or the student protesters, the protesters still could not be denied their civil rights. To punish them now for something done last year is not an American reaction.

UI Upward Bound participant defends, explains program

To the Editor:

I am a former student at Davenport Central High School and I plan to attend Assumption High School in Davenport next fall, to finish my last year of high school.

This is my second consecutive year of participation in the University's Upward Bound program.

I would like to define Upward Bound and what it means to me. Upward Bound means to plan and seek a higher education for those who intend to finish school. For those who don't it means a plan to help them find a substantial career.

There have been three summers of Upward Bound. So far this has been the best year. I say this because the students gave more response to activities this year. Last year I barely participated in any activities; this year I was elected vice president of the group and I served as business manager of the planning committee.

My ambition in life is to be a doctor. Upward Bound has greatly encouraged me in my decision to go to college. It has shown me that I have the ability and the courage to do so. It has shown me how to live and associate with college students and professors. It has given me the chance to adjust and get the feel of college life.

Upward Bound helps in more than one way. It helps us financially, socially and academically.

Some people might say Upward Bound is a waste of money, but it isn't. This program is for poverty-stricken students who are deprived of a college education because their parents can't afford it. To me, the government isn't losing money on the program.

Poor students are the ones who become criminals. I'm not saying this of all the students in the project; but you never see rich young men tearing down public property. I'm not saying that Upward Bound is full of criminals and savages; rather, Upward Bound is just offering them a chance for higher education and a better life.

Garden of Opinion — GOP's elephant faces extinction with Nixon bid

In this, the next-to-last pronouncement of the Garden, it would seem rather timely to discuss the ponderous predicament of the Republican party. I may have more to say in the final Garden on Saturday after the nominations, but this much should be said.

The Republican elephant faces extinction. It may not come in the next quadrennium, but it could come in the next 20 years, especially if the Grand Old Party succumbs to its death wish and nominates Richard Nixon Wednesday night.

Russell Baker, pundit of the New York Times, wrote last week that the G.O.P. was born in 1852 and died in 1932. He says, contrary to popular opinion, Dwight Eisenhower was never president of the United States, he was General Emeritus.

In other words, no real Republican since Herbert Hoover has had enough support to win the presidency. What Baker didn't say was that a Republican may never do so again. This seems a distinct possibility.

For, just as the likelihood of future George Wallaces diminishes as the ignorance vote is reduced by rising education, the chances of a Republican, in the literal definition of the term, gaining the White House get lower all the time.

Why? Several reasons, actually.

Essentially the situation will be this if the Republicans give the nation an opportunity to vote against Richard Nixon: His constituency rests among the vanishing Americans.

A Nixon nomination will be a flat statement that the G.O.P. is content to be the party of the old, small town, white businessman. Nixon's nomination will be a decree from Ray Bliss and the pros that the party thinks it can do without the young, the concerned, the Negro, the urbanite, the over-educated and the liberal.

Can one not be starkly amazed at the incredible ignorance of a political party thinking seriously about offering Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan as viable candidates?

How is it justifiable to propose candidates who react to pressure-cooker conditions by advocating clamping down the lid instead of turning off the burner?

If I may be personal here in the waning days of my impositions on the public debate, I will admit having come from a Republican home. Most of my relatives would vote for a ticket of Lucifer and Josef Stalin if both were Republicans. Recently I registered Democratic.

Just as other institutions in our national fabric have eroded fiber by fiber (the church, the family, etc.), the Republican party also seems to be in a crisis of relevancy. It must not be overlooked, though, that some of this is evident in the Democratic party and the political process itself, but the G.O.P. after 1964 can't afford another backward-looking candidate.

While the monolithic empire of international communism seems to be crumbling all around Mr. Kosygin and Mr. Brezhnev, how can a party give the electorate a man who is certain to unite the Communist bloc by his suspicion?

Let's face it, folks, we've tried the hairy-chested approach to the "Red Menace" and the "Yellow Peril" for many years, and though our vociferous patriots on the right would like nothing more than to double our chest beating and rocket rattling, what will it get us?

Will it help open up the Eastern European nations to freedom if we scorn their leaders because they advocate state ownership of industry? Would any more Czechoslovakias be possible with a Cold War cloud over the world sky? Don't kid yourself.

Some of the Republican leaders recognize the precarious position of their party (Morton, Brooke, Lindsay, Rockefeller, Percy and others), but sadly, these men are, one, in the minority, two, with little internal power, and three, wedded to the party's traditions. And if they violated these they would be virtually read out of the party like Romney and Rockefeller were for ridiculing Ridiculous Barry.

Basically, the Republican party faces a choice. It can either expand its base of support and become relevant, or like the Roman Catholic Church, it can go on retrying Galileo for three centuries while no one cares.

Compromise — Steel Giants Back Down On Price Hike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A price battle between the White House and the steel industry appeared ended Wednesday with both the government and companies compromising on modest price increases.

U.S. Steel, the nation's biggest producer and usually the pacesetter, announced it was boosting prices on steels used in making such major products as auto bodies, refrigerators, stoves, machinery and buildings.

But the hikes were not as high as the nearly 5 per cent across-the-board increases announced a week ago by the No. 2 producer, Bethlehem, and Bethlehem immediately fell in line, chopping its boost to 2.4 per cent.

Four other big firms, National Jones & Laughlin, Inland and Armco, followed with announcements they would remain competitive, meaning that their prices would be brought into line with those of U.S. Steel. All the price hikes are effective Aug. 16.

If all the companies follow the same pattern, it would mean that the latest round of price increases would apply to about 60 per cent of the industry's shipments.

At the Texas White House, President Johnson was quoted as saying the moves by U.S. Steel and Bethlehem are a "substantial improvement from the inflationary trend."

Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said, "It is gratifying that the U.S. Steel action significantly reduced the threat of a large and general inflation in steel prices."

One industry observer described the price adjustments as a compromise. Another commented that the day's developments appeared to mark the end of the latest government-industry hassle over prices.

Most government officials refused to crow about the development but one, who declined to be named, said "It's a hell of a victory for the President."

Okun said that "compared to the threat posed last week, American consumers have been saved a half billion dollars inflation."

Government economists intimated that 2.5 per cent would become a guideline for steel industry increases but they said this was not an official yardstick.

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) met with the Federal Trade Commission to press for the investigation he had recommended. The commission is scheduled to reach a decision Thursday on the request, an FTC spokesman said.

Hart, chairman of the Senate antimonopoly subcommittee, said in a statement that the rollback was the result of "President Johnson's firmness in defense of price stability."

The confrontation between the White House and the companies was the most dramatic since 1962 when the late President Kennedy angrily forced the industry to roll back a general $6-a-ton price boost.

Since then, the industry has soft-pedaled its price boosts, increasing a product here, another there.

But Bethlehem, Republic, Armco and Inland broke this practice last week by announcing virtual across-the-board price hikes after the industry had reached a billion dollar-plus labor settlement with the United Steelworkers union.

Other firms, including U.S. Steel, had remained selective. U.S. Steel boosted prices on tinplate products — used for beer and soft drink cans — and some structural steel shapes — used in the construction industry. The big steel firm then remained silent until Wednesday.

Even with its latest selective increases, U.S. Steel indicated that more price increases may be in the offing. The company said, "From time to time over the next 12 months, depending on market and other conditions, there will naturally be price announcements as there have been during the past year."

U.S. to Give Back 14 Northern Sailors On Brave Front

PARIS (AP) — W. Averell Harriman, U.S. peace negotiator, announced Wednesday the forthcoming release of 14 North Vietnamese sailors held by the United States. He asked freedom for more U.S. airmen held in North Vietnam.

Freeing the sailors was a gesture of goodwill like the recent North Vietnamese release of three American pilots, he said after meeting at the peace table with Hanoi's delegates.

"I asked for a list of those being held, as an act of humanity," Harriman told newsmen.

He appealed especially for the names of those injured, and of those held for a long time.

The chief North Vietnamese delegate at the session, Ambassador Ha Van Lau, said his government takes a humane attitude toward the men it holds. The North Vietnamese claim to have captured about 1,000 American airmen. They have released six this year.

A U.S. spokesman said the 14 sailors, captured in 1966 when torpedo boats attacked U.S. vessels, are the last North Vietnamese in American hands and they will be freed soon.

Lau said he would consult his government about how to handle the release. Most North Vietnamese captured by U.S. forces have been turned over to the South Vietnamese.

Harriman had no progress to report from the 16th session of the talks, which are now almost three months old. Another meeting will be held next Wednesday.

The North Vietnamese insisted, as they have from the start, that the United States must stop bombing them before the talks can go on to other subjects. Harriman recalled that President Johnson already had limited the bombing. The bombing has been limited geographically, but has increased in intensity.

So far, he said, there had been no response that would justify the risks that a complete bombing halt would bring for U.S. troops.

The North Vietnamese have insisted that it was slander to say that they had troops in the South. But Lau referred to U.S. proposals on limiting North Vietnamese infiltration as an escalation of American terms for stopping the bombs. He did not deny that the North Vietnamese are infiltrating.

Pham Van Dong, his premier, was quoted in the Philippine weekly Graphic as saying: "We do not deny that. We are indeed helping the National Liberation Front, in every way we can — including the sending of our own troops."

American officials consider such an acknowledgement would be important. They point out that it is hard to discuss the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South until their presence is admitted.

U.S. Troops Try to Douse 'Rocket Belt'

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. battalion clashed with an enemy force Wednesday in the "rocket belt" 12 miles south of Saigon, said to be a staging area for rocket and mortar attacks against the capital, the U.S. Command reported.

Military spokesmen said sketchy reports indicated at least 50 enemy were killed. Infantrymen of the 9th Division supported by helicopter gunships, were reported still engaged in heavy fighting at nightfall.

The new battle coincided with intelligence reports that the enemy plans to launch battalion-sized ground probes around Saigon or the key northern cities of Hue and Da Nang. Stepped up terrorist attacks and shelling also are expected this week.

The U.S. Command reported that a task force of 1,000 U.S. 9th Infantry troops and 500 South Vietnamese marines have killed 219 soldiers in a week of scattered fighting deep in the Mekong Delta. No allied soldiers were reported killed, but six Americans and three South Vietnamese were reported wounded.

Th fighting in three provinces centered about 125 miles southwest of Saigon on the fringe of the U Minh Forest, a guerrilla sanctuary virtually untouched by government troops for more than 20 years. Spokesmen credited U.S. Navy gunboats, armored troop carriers, U.S. helicopter gunships and artillery with killing most of the enemy dead.

After These, No Prisoners Left for U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — The forthcoming release of 14 North Vietnamese seamen by the United States raises problems for the future freeing of prisoners on both sides.

The seamen are the only North Vietnamese prisoners held by the United States. About 3,000 other North Vietnamese prisoners of war are held by the South Vietnamese government.

The U.S. announcement, made at the Paris peace talks Wednesday by Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, came less than a week after three American pilots, released by Hanoi earlier, returned to the United States.

If future releases are to be considered, the South Vietnamese may insist that Hanoi sit down with them to talk about this. Hanoi has said it will not talk with the Saigon government, calling it a lackey of the Americans.

A spokesman declined comment on whether the South Vietnamese government would insist on talks with Hanoi before any more prisoners could be exchanged.

A hint of how South Vietnam might approach such prisoner exchanges is contained in its current attempt to return 40 sick and wounded prisoners to the North. It has requested the International Red Cross to ask Hanoi to accept the prisoners. Hanoi has refused to answer, apparently because this would be too obvious an admission that it has troops fighting in the South.

South Vietnam may decide to allow the Americans to trade government-held prisoners for U.S. pilots without insisting that Saigon itself deal with Hanoi.

More than 750 Americans, most of them downed pilots, are missing in action or captured in North Vietnam. Most are believed captured, but Hanoi has declined to provide a list.

ISU Hires White Coach; 'No Time' to Find Black

AMES (AP) — Head football Coach Johnny Majors of Iowa State University hired another white assistant coach Wednesday, but pledged he would seek a black addition to his staff during the next school year.

He announced the hiring of Ollie Keller, 38, head coach at Memphis, Tenn., Catholic High School, as offensive backfield coach of the Cyclones.

A 1954 graduate of Memphis state, Keller's Memphis Catholic teams have won 46 games, lost 6 and tied one during his 10 years as head coach.

Taking note of Iowa State Black Student Organization demands that a black football coach be hired, Majors said he feels addition of a black to his staff would be "desirable."

But he said there wasn't time to find a black coach "meeting our particular needs" before the fall football season. He said he had started negotiations with Keller "weeks ago," and added:

"I could not, in fairness to our program, do other than recommend Mr. Keller for this position on my staff. I know him as a highly competent coach who will fill a particular need in our program."

Majors said he would start looking for a black coach "not as part of any 'deal' to entice the black athletes to remain at Iowa State or in response to any 'coercion or threat of boycott' but because 'I, myself, honestly and sincerely believe that a qualified black coach would be a valuable addition to our football program.'"

The campus Black Students Organization late last spring issued a list of eight demands, and said if they were not met by Aug. 1 black athletes would give up their scholarships and withdraw from school. One demand was that a black football coach be hired.

The Athletic Council rejected the demand, saying it would violate the school's agreement with

Double Purpose — Kremlin Puts On Brave Front Over Prague

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin leadership apparently wants to show the Russians it handled the confrontation with Czechoslovakia successfully and is assured of continued loyalty to Soviet-style communism.

That seems to be the purpose of a communique, front-paged in the Moscow press Wednesday.

ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWS ANALYSIS

which proclaimed satisfaction that the six-nation meeting in Bratislava on Saturday produced a pledge of "irreconcilable struggle against bourgeois ideology and against all anti-socialist forces."

This document, issued by the Soviet Communist party Politburo, ignored concessions to the reformist leadership of Czechoslovakia. It did not mention the acknowledgment that each Communist party has the right to "consider national characteristics and conditions" in running its own country.

The communique was in line with earlier press comment in Moscow on the showdown at Bratislava.

This appears to have a double purpose: • To counter possible charges that the Kremlin bungled by playing up the crisis with Czechoslovakia, then backing down and accepting the liberalization movement.

• To remind Prague the Soviet Union takes a dim view of the freedom of speech and press which last month produced such things as attacks on the Warsaw Pact and accusations of Kremlin interference in Czechoslovak politics.

The Presidium of the Czechoslovak Communist party obviously got the message. It appealed to Czechoslovak newsmen in a communique issued in Prague Wednesday to show restraint in commenting on national and international affairs, "especially in the field of foreign policy."

Although some reports from abroad interpreted Bratislava as complete Soviet acceptance of the Czechoslovak liberalization movement, the indications here have been that it fell short of that.

Censorship Suit Against Council In D.M. Dismissed

DES MOINES (AP) — Polk County District Court Judge Waldo F. Wheeler Wednesday dismissed a suit brought against the City Council by seven patrons of the Des Moines Art Center who complained of city censorship.

The suit was filed May 17 by the patrons after the council requested that five works be removed from the art center. The council called the paintings and drawings obscene.

Wheeler gave the patrons seven days to file further pleadings, but said if none are filed, a final dismissal decree will be issued.

WELL, IT'S ONLY A GAME— MASSINGA, Mozambique (AP) —

A local soccer game was interrupted for 30 minutes while the players filled up holes dug in the field by wild pigs. Later, play was held up 20 minutes when a man objected to spectators standing atop his father's grave. Referees then postponed the game because of darkness.

Vikings Have Solid Offense, But May Need Quarterback

By CHARLES HALLMAN
Associated Press Writer

MANKATO, Minn. (AP)—A year ago when Harold "Bud" Grant took over the coaching duties of the Minnesota Vikings he knew the team had a quarterback problem.

Grant looked over his quarterback candidates, Ron VanderKelen, Bob Berry and John Hankinson, and decided to import former University of California star Joe Kapp from Canada, where he had played against Grant's Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Kapp is still around in 1968 and so is Berry. Hankinson and VanderKelen are gone. Joining Kapp and Berry is Gary Cuozzo, the one-time back-up quarterback behind Johnny Unitas for the Baltimore Colts, who spent last year with the New Orleans Saints.

Grant is undecided as to who will be his starting quarterback, Cuozzo or Kapp. One thing is certain, Grant says he will not platoon them.

Grant's problems other than the helmetsman of his attack are diminishing.

The offensive backfield of Dave Osborn and Bill Brown, a holdover from the "zero" days, is sound. Backing them up are Clinton Jones, Earl Denny and Jim Lindsay, giving the Vikings a solid fivesome.

The quarterback will have good, young receivers. Figured to start are John Beasley at tight end and Paul Flatley and Gene Washington at the wide positions.

The offensive line is beginning to be potent and should be even better if No. 1 draft pick Ron Yary of Southern California develops quickly.

Center Mick Tinglehoff is a consensus all-pro, guards Milt Sunde and Larry Bue are good pull-out blockers and tackles Grady Alderman and Doug Davis provide good blocking for a passer.

On defense Grant has what every coach dreams of, a surplus of strong, charging linemen and even Grant doesn't know who his starters will be.

"We have five regulars for four positions," Grant says. "Carl Eller, Paul Dickson, Alan Page, Jim Marshall and Gary Larsen."

All are sound players and should give the Vikings a solid pass rush.

The linebackers are not so strong. Holdovers Roy Winston, John Kirby and Lonnie Warwick are back but as a unit performed only adequately last season. Draft choice Mike McGill could be a mid-season prospect, but unless Grant can make a trade before the season opens, linebacking could be a sore spot.

The Vikings may have seven defensive backs of better than average caliber. Holdovers are Ed Sharockman and Earnell MacBee at the corners and safeties Karl Kassulke and Dale Hackbart. Paul Krause, obtained in a winter trade with Washington, and rookie Charlie West are given a good chance to crack the top four. Bob Bryant, a second-year man from South Carolina, has been coming strong in practice as a cornerback.

Nobody has a better kicking game than the Vikings as punter Bobby Walden and placekicker Fred Cox form an outstanding tandem.

Grant is optimistic about the Vikings' chances and so are the Minnesota fans. The Vikings' season record in 1967 was 3-6-3 which placed them last in the Central Division.

Montreal Franchise Remains Shaky

MONTREAL (AP)— Racing against time, officials and sponsors of Montreal's beleaguered National League franchise will meet again tonight after apparently coming up with answers to problems that could cost the city the team.

"Our main problem is time," said Mayor Jean Drapeau after emerging from the all-day meeting, also attended by league president Warren Giles and John McHale, administrative assistant.

On Aug. 15 financial backers will have to put up a first payment of $1,200,000 to keep the franchise awarded to Montreal last May 27.

Pro, PGA Split Still Possible

NEW YORK (AP)— The threat of a break between the tournament pros and the parent Professional Golfers Association arose again Wednesday night with a strong chance that the players may pull out and form their own independent tour.

There was a report that an important announcement on the feud would be made in New York at 11 a.m. EDT today. This could not be immediately confirmed.

Both representatives of the touring players and the PGA acknowledged that latest efforts to settle their difficulties had run into a stalemate.

"I can't tell you anything now — I can only tell you the situation is grave," said Gardner Dickinson, chairman of the four-man Players Tournament Committee.

to Commissioner William D. Eckert.

"I would think there will be a Montreal baseball franchise," Giles said after Wednesday's 90-minute morning meeting. "But they have until Aug. 15. We did not accomplish as much as we would have liked to."

The domed temporary stadium would be abandoned when a projected Astrodome-type stadium is complete. The weatherproof type park is necessary because of the rainy and relatively cold weather here in April, early May and late September.

Montreal and San Diego were awarded franchises last May 27.

The PGA is an organization of club and playing pros. The club pros outnumber the playing pros about 5-1.

The players are reported demanding the right to run the $5.6 million tour without interference from the PGA.

One of their demands is that they be allowed to hire a commissioner — a kind of czar — who would have complete control over the conduct of the tour.

The PGA has flatly rejected the czar idea.

One of the chief problems has been the financing of a dome for a temporary stadium. Original plans called for an expenditure of $2 million but this was later increased to $5 million. Some observers say that the cost could reach $10 million.

after the circuit's clubowners decided to keep pace with the American League by expanding from 10 to 12 teams, starting with the 1969 season.

Tuesday night, WGN broadcast in Chicago it had learned that Montreal would lose the franchise. This was denied by John Newman, one of the club's backers.
