New Coralville Sewage Plant
To Serve Hospital, Oakdale

By JOANNE WALTON

Coralville — You can tell about a story by the way it is told. Coralville city officials are trying to tell the story of the new sewage plant that will eventually handle all the sewage from the hospital, Oakdale.

The city officials are trying to tell the story of the new sewage plant that will eventually handle all the sewage from the hospital, Oakdale.

The $15 million project is being planned by the city and will be built by the Hawkeye Committee, a state agency that oversees the construction of sewage treatment plants.

The plant is expected to be completed by the end of the year, and will serve residents in the area for the next 50 years.

The city officials are hoping that the new plant will reduce the amount of untreated sewage that currently flows into the river, and will improve water quality in the area.
