Top Candidates Avoid Comment On Bombing Halt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The three major party candidates continued campaigning Friday "as usual" with little comment on President Johnson's Vietnam bombing halt decision.

In San Antonio, Republican Richard M. Nixon appealed for Texas' 25 electoral votes and promised to strengthen America's military arsenal — and stock it with Texas-produced F-111 swing-wing fighter bombers.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told a group of workers in Detroit that the Democrats "have a tight race, but it can burst open now."

American Independent candidate George C. Wallace made a final appeal for votes in North Carolina Friday and then left for Chicago for what he hoped would be a giant rally.

In Portland, Ore., Sen. Eugene McCarthy, the Minnesota Democrat who lost to Humphrey for his party's presidential nomination, said that a political movement outside the two-party system might be necessary to accomplish reforms in the U.S. political structure.

"There may come a time when the two-party system has to be tested outside by someone other than George Wallace," McCarthy told an audience of 2,500 students and faculty members at Portland State College.

In New York, Paul O'Dwyer, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, endorsed Humphrey for president and said he would campaign in New York City with the Vice President today.

O'Dwyer previously had refused to endorse Humphrey, but changed his mind Friday, he said, in reaction to the bombing halt.

Thanks, but No Thanks

Mike Lally, G, Iowa City, the Peace and Freedom party candidate for Johnson County sheriff, has some words with Associate Dean of Students Roger Augustine on the east steps of Old Capitol Friday afternoon. The encounter came during a rally to protest the Code of Student Life just before Lally began a talk to the crowd of several hundred students gathered on the Pentacrest. Augustine tried to give Lally a piece of paper which described the rally as "unauthorized" but Lally refused to take it.

SDS Ignores Warnings, Holds Anti-Code Rally

By DUANE SWINTON

Members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and other speakers blasted the "repressiveness of the University" and "its involvement in the corporate structure of America" at a teach-in rally Friday noon.

The rally, whose expressed purpose was to "violate the Code of Student Life," lasted for about two and a half hours and was attended by a stationary group of about 125 students and crowds of others who drifted around between classes. All in all, an estimated 400 persons were at the rally at one point or another.

Speakers at the rally on the east steps of Old Capitol used a loudspeaker system provided by SDS despite warnings by the University administration that using loudspeakers would probably disrupt classes in nearby buildings.

Robert L. Augustine, associate dean of students, attended the rally and handed out printed statements to the students who spoke.

The statement said that the rally was unauthorized because it had not been registered as required by University regulations and that "any person participating in the program, as well as the sponsoring organization, is responsible for such violation of University regulations."

The statement also said that no advance action was going to be taken on the program, "on the assumption that it will not be disruptive."

After the rally ended at 1:30 p.m., Augustine said that no decision had been reached on whether the rally was disruptive. He said that the final decision would probably be made by Dean of Students M. L. Huit, after "weighing the implications of data" gathered by observers at the rally.

However, Augustine did say that, "Concerning what I observed, the rally was disruptive according to the Code of Student Life."

Huit issued a statement later which said: "This morning a number of persons gathered at the east approach to Old Capitol in anticipation of what had been announced by the sponsors, Students for a Democratic Society, as a rally designed to violate the Code of Student Life."

"A succession of student speakers aired their views during a 2½-hour period. The rally was entirely peaceful, and relatively quiet, although I understand that one or more nearby classes may have been disrupted."

"University policy is not to permit rallies and the use of loudspeakers at Old Capitol until after 4:20 p.m. to avoid disturbing the normal teaching and administrative functions, which take place in and around Old Capitol. Today's SDS rally began at 11 a.m. and a sound system with loudspeakers was used."

"The spirit, as well as the letter, of the Code will be taken into account as our staff considers the nature of the action to be recommended against either the sponsor or the participants in the rally."

Also at the rally were members of the New University Conference (NUC), who acted as observers as they did at the Hawkeye Student Party-sponsored sit-in at the Business and Industrial Placement Office Monday, protesting the presence on campus of Marine Corps recruiters. Wearing white arm bands, NUC members wandered through the crowds taking notes and snapping photographs. Campus Security stationed a policeman with a walkie-talkie in Macbride Hall during the rally, had another man, in plain clothes, with a tape recorder in the crowd and placed a moving picture camera with operators in Schaeffer Hall.

Members of SDS pointed this out, calling the University another "Big Brother."

ROBERT D. RAY Discusses Finances

Ray Says State Now in the Hole By $41 Million

KAREN GOOD

The state financial situation — what he says is an expiration of a $112 million state surplus over the last two years and a current deficit of $41 million — is the major gubernatorial campaign issue, Republican candidate Robert Ray said here Friday.

Speaking at a press conference in Iowa City's Republican headquarters, Ray said, "State administrative spending alone, over the last two years has increased 44 per cent."

"We need a much more realistic financial policy," he said.

The former Republican state party chairman said that if he is elected, his administration would set up a priority spending program, topping the list with improvement of state universities, community colleges and secondary and elementary schools.

Ray said that, while law enforcement is an issue of "considerable importance," he does not feel it is the major issue of the campaign, as does his Democratic opponent, State Treasurer Paul Franzenberg.

He noted, however, that he had formulated a revised law enforcement code, particularly in conjunction with juvenile offenders, "making parents financially responsible for acts of their children. I feel such a program would alleviate many of our minor crime problems."

The 39-year-old lawyer also expressed concern over student demonstrations.

"While we must recognize a person's right to dissent, we must not allow him to infringe upon the rights of others," he said. "I feel there is a better way to express dissent — through active political work for better government."

After the rally, William L. Binney, Chief of Campus Security, said that the stationing of security personnel at the rally was taken as "a precautionary measure."

"Not one foot of film was shot by the camera," Binney said. "The only reason a camera was there was in case an emergency arose, say in case there was a massive counterdemonstration."

"The reason the camera was in Schaeffer Hall was not because we were trying to hide it but because it requires electricity to run."

Binney said that the tape recorder was not used to tape the entire rally but only parts that "require taping."

"For instance," he said, "we use the tape to record the announcement of the University's position and then any replies that might be made."

Binney said that only one uniformed policeman was at the rally and that Campus Security "did not have a body of officers ready to go charging out to the rally."

Speakers at the rally included Charles Derden, A4, Waterloo; Ken Wessels, A3, Dyersville; Ross Peterson, A3, Des Moines; Fred Gordon, internal education secretary of national SDS from Chicago; Mike Lally, G, Iowa City; Jerry Sies, A4, Iowa City; and Carmen Kramer, a former University student, now regional traveler for SDS.

Miss Kramer presented a list of demands by SDS: that the Code of Student Life, including the housing code, be abolished; that University Pres. Howard R. Bowen issue a statement of support for the black students' demands at Cornell College; and that the University prohibit any branch of the Armed Forces, any firm with defense contracts, or any firm whose employees are on strike from recruiting on campus.

Highlight of the rally came when Lally, Peace and Freedom party candidate for Johnson County sheriff, asked that students from the crowd file past the microphone and give their names to show their solidarity with SDS's proposals.

One hundred and seventeen people climbed Old Capitol's steps and gave their names, among them two University graduate instructors; a teacher from University High School; Ann Soriestersbach, A1, Iowa City, daughter of Duane Soriestersbach, University vice president for research and dean of the Graduate College; and Phillip Hubbard, A4, Iowa City, son of Phillip Hubbard, dean of student affairs.

SDS also periodically put in plugs for its Election Day protest march in Des Moines Tuesday.

Derden, president of the Afro-American Students' Association, and a former member of the Committee on Student Life, which drew up the rough draft of the code, was the first to speak and said that the committee was "in no way democratic" because it "can only ask Bowen to approve its proposals."

"The students did not decide on the code," Derden said. "The committee didn't have anything to do with the code, and President Bowen only listens to it when he's damn good and ready."

Wessels, who resigned as chairman of the Hawkeye Student Party recently, said that while serving as a student senator and student body vice president last year he learned the ineffectiveness of student government.

Nudes in Paper Makes Defender Change Printers

By LINDA ANDERSON

The Iowa Defender changed printers this week because of a nude art portfolio in the Monday issue.

Independence Bulletin Journal Publishers, who have printed the Defender up until now, refused to publish the issue because they considered the art "obscene and pornographic," according to Glen Epstein, editor of the Defender.

"The crazy thing is that we have always had so-called obscene words in our paper, but the publisher (printer) did not object because he did not read it," Epstein said. "Because he could see the pictures without reading the paper, he objected."

A spokesman from Independence Publishers said, "We decided that the sketches were just a little too vulgar and obscene. We do not want to be involved in printing material of this nature, especially since we understand that it goes out through the mail."

"We did not read the words that were printed before, but these pictures staring us in the face were too much," the spokesman said.

The sketches depict nude women in a variety of poses. One shows a woman in the front seat of a car over which an airplane is flying. In another, two women are kneeling in front of an auto.

One sketch shows a young man, his genitals visible.

The weekly paper was printed this week in Vinton on a trial basis. Epstein said that the Vinton publishers said they would print the paper after the Defender staff had convinced them that the portfolio was art and not meant to be pornographic. "They will print it next week," Epstein said, "but it is still on a trial basis. One thing is sure, we won't go back to Independence."

Gerry Mansheim, the artist who did the sketches, said that he was a little hurt at the idea that his art might be considered pornographic.

"I could see problems arising over nude photography because it is a fairly recent innovation," Mansheim said, "but nude painting is old-fashioned — it has been around for years."

"I think part of the problem arises from the fact that small town people, such as those in Iowa, are suspicious of the nude," he said. "It is possible that I might consider a close contact between two nude persons as obscene, but these sketches are all individual figures without any contact."

Mansheim, who has worked for the past 19 years as a car man for the Santa Fe Railroad, said that some of his art was censored by Keokuk art patrons before a show. His paintings have been shown in Cedar Falls, Cedar Rapids, Des Moines and other towns.

Epstein said that he thought censorship on art was ridiculous.

"I hope people will take a second look and realize that this is art. The Defender is more of an artsy newspaper than a political one."

He said that he hoped the art portfolio would not make any difference with Defender advertisers.

The art layout brought a variety of comments from people around Iowa City. The business establishments who advertise in the paper seemed to be divided in their opinions.

One area businessman said, "Taken in the context of art, I would not consider the sketches obscene. For example, the nude sitting in the car seems no different than a nude on a sofa, as so many of the great artists have portrayed it. This is just an up-to-date version."

Another advertiser said, "I think it is trashy and disgusting. I had no idea that this was going to be in the Defender and I would think twice about advertising with them again."

William Suter, proprietor of The Red Ram, said, "I didn't feel there was anything wrong with it when I looked at it. I appreciate art, and I have no objections to an art layout in the Defender."

Another local restaurant-tavern manager said, "I think that this is bad. I don't consider it art, and I think that it is completely unnecessary."

Prof. Frank Seiberling, director of the school of Art, said, "Obscenity is in the eye of the beholder. Since ancient Egypt, the nude human figure has been the subject of study by artists and people sensitive to art."

"I cannot see why this should be a controversial thing," Seiberling said. "We need latitude for all kinds of expression. Who's to decide what is in good taste or bad?"

William Coen, Iowa City Postmaster, said that he had not received any complaints about this issue of the Defender being sent out.

"The Defender is mailed out on a third class rate," he said. "This means that we could inspect it when it goes through the post office, but we usually don't and we didn't this particular time."

"The postal inspector in Cedar Rapids said that he did not know what a ruling on this would be," Coen said. "In the past, some such work has been ruled as mailable. The contents are actually not too bad, so this could very well be ruled as proper for mailing by federal mail inspectors."

The comment from a middle-aged Iowa City woman seemed to typify those who felt neither strongly for nor against the printing of the art portfolio. She looked at the sketches, shrugged her shoulders, and said, "I don't know whether it's right or wrong. I guess it just shows that the times and trends are changing."

Before the Attack

Indian summer came to town Thursday, and with it came the old party raid urge. Residents spilled out of the boys' dormitories late Thursday night and assembled on Melrose Avenue between the two Rie-now Hall dorms while mustering up the courage for the trek across the river to where the girls are. The ensuing raid was boisterous but orderly.

'Patelin' Opens Reorientation

The program to "reorient" freshmen at the University is underway this weekend. Sponsored by the New University Conference (NUC), the program began Friday night with a performance of "Patelin" by the San Francisco Mime Company.

The play will be repeated tonight at 8 in the Union Ballroom. Tickets cost $2.

Other events in the reorientation are scheduled for Sunday. At 2 p.m. a film on the Vietnamese war, "Time of the Locust," will be shown. Talks on the draft by Ed Hoffmann, draft counselor for Iowa City Resist; John Casey, G, Reinbeck; John Burdick, assistant professor of philosophy, "and others" follow the film.

Afternoon activities will end with "a happenstance containing freshman poets, poet-professors and professor-freshmen."

An evening program at 7:30 will include a welcome by George Starbuck, associate professor of English and director of Writers Workshop. Discussion of various facets of University life will follow.

Sit-In Protesting Dow Slated for Wednesday

The Hawkeye Student Party (HSP) will hold a non-obstructive sit-in Wednesday to protest recruiting by Dow Chemical Co. on campus.

At a joint meeting of the HSP and Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) Friday night, the HSP decided to hold the sit-in on the east steps of the Union beginning at 11 a.m. Because a majority of its members were not present, SDS will vote whether to support the proposal at a meeting Monday night.

The HSP plans to set up a picket line in addition to the sit-in and said that the sit-in might be moved upstairs in the Union to the Business and Industrial Placement Office, where Dow will be interviewing students Tuesday and Wednesday.

3,000 Greet Muskie Before Moline Rally

MOLINE, Ill. — An estimated 3,000 people were on hand to greet Democratic vice presidential candidate Edmund Muskie at the Moline Airport Friday night.

Muskie, who is scheduled to speak at a rally in Sherman Square at 9:30 a.m. today, shook hands with many of his supporters and then left without making a speech.

He did say, however, that he thought the United States bombing halt in North Vietnam would have no effect on Tuesday's presidential election, "nor should it."

Signs that greeted the senator from Maine included one reading, "Muskie for One Beat Away," and "Muskie Si, Agnew No."

Viet Talks To Enter New Phase

Hard Fighting Ahead Seen by Both Sides

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu Friday gave reluctant assent to the U.S. halt on all bombing of North Vietnam, but, along with President Johnson, warned that much hard fighting may lie ahead before peace comes.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk publicly urged that those who have been calling for a bombing halt now "insist upon actions by Hanoi that will move us toward peace."

Hanoi radio, however, beamed a broadcast to South Vietnam declaring the "fight against the Americans will continue until the last one is driven from our land."

The broadcast ignored Johnson's announcement ordering all air, land and sea attacks ended against the North at 9 p.m. Friday, Saigon time.

While not ending the fighting, Johnson's decision sent the next move toward peace to Paris, where the North Vietnamese and U.S. delegations have been meeting weekly since May.

Johnson said the South Vietnamese and the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) could join the talks next Wednesday, but Thieu's statement made no mention of sending a delegation. Sources close to Thieu said he eventually would send delegates to Paris.

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese chief delegate to the talks, said in Paris a four-sided meeting "will be held in Paris, not earlier than Nov. 6, 1968." But Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the chief U.S. delegate, said it may be impossible for the South Vietnamese to join the expanded talks next week.

Harriman cautioned against expecting "too rapid results" in the four-sided talks, and long and hard bargaining is probable before a cease-fire can be agreed upon. It was recalled that in the Korean War, U.S. and Communist delegates took two years after talks opened to agree on a cease-fire. In that time 13,000 U.S. soldiers were killed and 50,000 wounded.

Rusk issued his appeal to "some governments and leading personalities" at a nationally televised and broadcast news conference as the bombing cessation order took effect.

For many months, a number of critics of the U.S. air attacks on North Vietnam, ranging from the Soviet Union to U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant, have been saying that — as Rusk put it — "something good would happen if we would only stop the bombing."

"It is now incumbent upon all of those who have taken that view to make a maximum effort to insure that their advice has substance in it," Rusk said, without naming any names.

"There are all of those who said 'things will be wonderful if you stop the bombing,'" he said. "We're saying 'all right, get busy — let's see what you can do.'"

The secretary of state coupled hope for a rapid conclusion of peace with a warning of "hard days ahead both at the negotiating table and on the field of battle."

World leaders and governments, meanwhile, cheered the end of U.S. attacks on North Vietnam as a major step toward peace but some Asian nations fighting as allies with South Vietnam voiced reservations.

Officials in South Korea and Thailand cautioned the United States against any soft line toward Hanoi and demanded clear-cut evidence of de-escalation by the North Vietnamese. They want a quick resumption of bombing if there is no such evidence.

Informants in South Korea and Australia, another ally, said their governments would insist on taking part in any full-dress talks to end the war.

But Thant said Johnson's order brought the brightest prospects for peace in Vietnam in three years.

Charles de Gaulle of France, who had been calling for a U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam as well as a bombing halt, described Johnson's order as praiseworthy and said it would mean more substantive talks in Paris. The French president said his government would pay special attention now to the talks that have been under way since May 13.

Pope Paul VI, another of the world figures calling for an end to bombing raids, avoided mention of the U.S. decision in his noonday comments to pilgrims in St. Peter's Square, but a Vatican spokesman said the halt was a step toward real peace negotiations.

Vatican circles speculated that one of the reasons behind the Pope's silence may have been a fear that any appreciative word from him might be interpreted as support for one of the U.S. presidential candidates.

Protest on a Summery Afternoon

A crowd of several hundred students, faculty members and administrators — including several Campus Security officers in plain clothes — gathered on the lawn in front of Old Capitol Thursday to hear a string of speakers denounce the Code of Student Life, the war in Vietnam, racism and a whole gamut of societal ills. The rally, sponsored by Students for a Democratic Society, had been labeled "unauthorized" by the administration.

Differences on Vietnam explained

Law and order

Q. Since all three candidates have said they are for law and order how would you describe your position and solution as differing from those of your opponents?

HUMPHREY

"I do a little less sloganizing and do a little more specifying. I haven't seen any specifics from Mr. Wallace at all. Mr. Nixon has given four suggestions, four specifics.

"One of them is a federal academy, which we have; two is a cabinet committee, which we have; three is an office for coordinating crime information, which we have. The fourth is town meetings of people who are concerned about crime. I want to say I worry a little bit about that last one. That smacks a little bit of vigilantes. But I'm sure he may not have meant that.

"Now I have laid out what I consider to be a program of substantial proportion — the task force program I referred to earlier.

"There is firearms control, which Mr. Nixon has not commented on at all. I have said there must be control over the interstate shipment of firearms. I also feel there ought to be licensing and registration of firearms, preferably by the states. But if the states do not do it, then Congress should be asked to do it."

NIXON

"I won't discuss Mr. Wallace. . . My major difference with Mr. Humphrey is this: he is a prisoner of the policies of the past. He necessarily has to defend the attorney general's record, and also, in another very important area, the record of the decisions of our courts, some of which I have criticized and some of which I believed the minority was right rather than the majority.

"My proposal in the crime field, the setting up of a national council on law enforcement within the Cabinet, the setting up of a National Academy for the training of law enforcement officials, these proposals are much stronger. They are more relevant to the present program than are those of Mr. Humphrey, which I think are merely putting more money into the programs of the past which have failed."

WALLACE

"A year ago, when I was talking about law and order, these candidates were not talking about law and order. And a few years ago, when I was talking about civil disobedience was going to culminate in anarchy, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Humphrey were endorsing this movement, saying it was a great movement. Now, since it engulfed the whole country in a siege of anarchy they both say law and order.

"Of course, I knew they would start saying it when they sent their representatives around to listen to me speak and hear the reception from the crowds we've had all over the country.

"Now there's not a dime's worth of difference in what they say and what I'm saying about law and order. But this

Vietnam

Q. How would you end the war in Vietnam? On what terms? What should have been done earlier?

HUMPHREY

"I said I would consider cessation of the bombing as an acceptable risk for peace. I said that, before taking this action, I would look very closely at evidence, direct or indirect, by deed or word of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between the North and the South. And I would reserve the right, if North Vietnam showed bad faith, to resume the bombing. I think it is clear where my emphasis lies. It is on the cessation of the bombing.

"I think the best way to protect our troops in the South is to see that the war is shortened and to de-escalate the struggle if it can be done. Then I also outlined in my program the reduction of American forces.

"I believe that with the improvement of the army of South Vietnam in its combat effectiveness, with its weapons, modern weapons, with good training and combat experience, with over 800,000 men now in the army of South Vietnam, it will be possible for the next president of the U.S. to meet with the leaders of South Vietnam to work out a schedule of American troop reduction — a de-Americanization of this struggle as the ARVN is more capable of its own self defense.

"I have said I am opposed to any government that is imposed from either Hanoi or Washington, that I believe in free elections and always have. Now if the South Vietnamese in a free election should bring in some elements of the NLF Vietcong that were elected, that would be their business. I wouldn't like it but that is their business."

NIXON

"First, I would never have used more military force and, particularly, I would never have used bombing in a gradual way. I would not have used it at all until I used it diplomatically.

"I would have gone to the North Vietnamese and I would have clearly indicated that we didn't want to bomb the North, but that we could not tolerate the infiltration from the North of forces that were killing our troops, and unless this were discontinued, that then we would have to use the bombing device in order to stop it. And then I would have used it in a much more decisive way.

"The application of force gradually is a mistake. We have wasted our military advantage by applying it gradually.

"Second, the perhaps most fundamental error the administration has made in Vietnam is due to its failure to understand the character of the war. This is a guerrilla war, which means that it is a war for people rather than territory. Therefore, your primary emphasis must be on developing programs which enlist the people of South Vietnam, economically, politically and militarily in their own defense.

"Recently there has been some movement, but until very recently we have not trained the South Vietnamese. We have not had an adequate program in the countryside to develop the political and other institutions so that the South Vietnamese, once we left, would be strong enough to contain these guerrilla activities."

WALLACE

"Remove the North Vietnamese armed forces, have the Viet Cong lay down their arms and have free elections in Southeast Asia. I would consider coalition government being forced upon the South Vietnamese, with the Communists represented, would not be an honorable settlement. I would say it would mean the end of South Vietnam. It would become Communist.

"Now if the people of South Vietnam vote Communist, that's another thing. I don't think they will, but that's what would constitute an honorable settlement as far as I am concerned.

"If I were president and peace talks hadn't concluded, and we don't have an honorable settlement by the time of the new administration, then I think we ought to set some time limit in the matter of negotiations. And then if they don't solve and settle the matter honorably, then we ought to win a military victory with conventional weapons and get out of Vietnam.

"We shouldn't have gone there by ourselves in the first place. I hear one of the other candidates say what I've said for a long time — it is just as much to Western Europe and non-Communist Asia's interests to be there as it is for us to be there."

The Pueblo

Q. As President, what would you have done when North Korea seized the Pueblo? What would you do now to free the crewmen?

HUMPHREY

Note: Time ran out in the interview with the vice president before this question could be presented. However, he commented on the problem in a speech May 18 in Washington. He said then:

"The best way to get it is to go into negotiations that relate for example to the Vietnamese war. This is tied in with it. It may very well be that the release of the ship and its crew will be part and parcel of the total negotiated settlement.

"We know the Pueblo crew is safe. We know this through diplomatic sources in North Korea. We have reason to believe North Korea is dismantling certain equipment and they haven't finished."

NIXON

"What should have been done to avoid seizure was the instant the ship was threatened, the U.S. should have made it very clear that we would not tolerate seizure. And we should have made it clear by moving air and sea power into the area to protect the ship. Or, if we could not protect it, we should have moved the ship out of the area.

"I think in this case the U.S. temporized with the problem, and by temporizing with it, these men are now incarcerated.

"What you can do now is completely limited. That is the sad part about it. . . You can't go in now and seize the ship as some people have suggested. If you seize the ship, you lose the men.

"What we have to do now is use what diplomatic stroke we have, and it is very small with North Korea, and of course we are talking with the Soviet Union about this, as I understand it. We are trying to get them to use their influence. We hope maybe that it will succeed.

WALLACE

"There is no need for me to say what I would have done, because I was not in possession of the intelligence that the State and Defense departments had about the Pueblo. I'm sorry the matter happened and I think we should never forget the Pueblo and we should continue our efforts to get the crew back safely.

"I can understand that with the delicate mission of this ship you couldn't have a flotilla around it, but I think that we ought to see that it doesn't happen again. Since we've gone this far and it's been so long, the only recourse at the moment is diplomacy.

"I don't have any specific ideas other than that I would ask the State Department with its trained diplomats and those in the career service to continue their efforts to get the crew back and we should never forget that, either."

Summary

Q. What would you consider the most important issue of the campaign?

HUMPHREY

"Well, I would have to put them together. I think it is the reduction of tensions abroad, and the reduction of tensions here at home. Or to put it another way, to bring this war in Vietnam to an end and to put a halt to the arms race, and here at home to try to find ways and means of bringing into the mainstream of American life people who have been somewhat excluded. . . to try to minimize and do away with the racial tension and bitterness which is evident in some areas of our national life.

"In other words, to unify our people as best we can. It is the biggest task that any man is ever going to have."

NIXON

"You have hit on all the major issues here.

"The one that universally disturbs people more than any other, and this is true of black Americans as well as white Americans, is the question of the safety of Americans in their homes, on the streets of their cities. In other words, it is the law and order question.

"The question of peace abroad, of course, is predominant, because if we don't get peace abroad, it isn't going to make any difference if we have the best Social Security, medical care, lowest taxes in history, if we aren't around to enjoy it. Therefore, people are predominantly concerned with that.

"But right now the subject which is uppermost in their minds is the fact that they see crime going up nine times as fast as population. This key fact, I think, is getting through when you have a poll showing that 43 per cent of the American people today are afraid to walk in the streets of their cities at night."

WALLACE

"I think the most important issue involved is Vietnam coupled with the breakdown of law and order."

Teenagers think Nixon's the one, according to national high school poll

Teenagers say Richard M. Nixon should be and will be the next President of the U.S. They believe he is the man best equipped to cope with the war in Vietnam, crime in the streets, and the rising cost of living.

These opinions were expressed by junior and senior high school students in public, private, and parochial schools in a survey just completed by the Scholastic Research Center, a division of Scholastic Magazines, Inc. The poll, involving in-depth questionnaires, was returned by a representative sampling of students from across the country.

Students participating in the survey were asked the question: "Of the candidates for President, which one would you LIKE to see win?" Thirty-six per cent said Nixon, 25 per cent favored Humphrey, and 12 per cent wanted Wallace. McCarthy, though not listed on the Scholastic questionnaire, drew a write-in vote of 12 per cent.

In response to the question: "Regardless of your personal preference, whom do you EXPECT to win the Presidency this year?" — 58 per cent saw a Nixon victory, 34 per cent expected Humphrey to win, 6 per cent were undecided, and only 3 per cent expected Wallace to be elected.

Asked which candidate was best able to cope with the war in Vietnam, 41 per cent of the students gave their confidence vote to Nixon. Humphrey was backed by 25 per cent of the students, and Wallace by 10 per cent. Twenty-three per cent of the students polled had no opinion.

When it comes to combating crime, students were asked to rate the importance of strengthening regulations governing firearms registration, restrictions on police activities, and admission of wire-tap evidence. Over half of the students (52 per cent) believed strengthening of gun controls to be "very important." Forty-two per cent rated the removal of restrictions on police activities "very important," and

22 per cent considered strengthening regulations regarding the admission of wire-tap evidence "very important."

The survey showed that 42 per cent of the students believed Nixon could best lead the fight against crime, with Humphrey getting 22 per cent of the student vote, and Wallace 20 per cent.

Forty per cent of the students polled felt Humphrey was the best man to lead the fight for equal rights for the nation's minorities. Nixon followed with 25 per cent, 22 per cent backed Wallace, and 13 per cent had no opinion.

Also, Humphrey was viewed by 45 per cent of the students as the candidate best able to handle welfare and poverty problems. Twenty-seven per cent supported Nixon, 16 per cent had no opinion, and 12 per cent backed Wallace.

The sampling of 1,600 high school students represented all types and sizes of schools, a numerical weighting of responding schools in direct relation to the distribution of schools within each state, random selection of individual students, and an assurance of anonymity of answers.

'That's going too far'

To the editor: I would like to register the extreme disgust I feel for a situation which developed in the Union last night. Two people in costume, dressed to depict Satan and the Ku Klux Klan, walked around the Union for about 20 minutes, stopped at the Graffiti Board, and wrote, "You do it my way or you burn — G. C. W." This is unfair inasmuch as George Wallace is not and cannot be proven to be associated with the Ku Klux Klan. This action is abominable and should not be allowed. Freedom of speech can be stretched too far.

Book review

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following editorial is reprinted from the Kentucky Kernel, University of Kentucky.)

A review of "The Revised History of America," edited by Hubert Humphrey, Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

A completely revised version of American History is scheduled to go on sale in most bookstores by early next month. The new book is unique in that it takes a dim view of the American Revolution.

Rumors persist to crop up saying the editors Humphrey, Nixon and Wallace rewrote American history because they feel the precedent set by the war of independence has been overemphasized and is leading the youth of America astray.

"After all," Nixon has been quoted as saying, "if the American Revolution is justifiable, you might as well say 'The Revolution' is also justifiable."

In order to make American history compatible with their campaign speeches, the three editors reportedly united "for the common good" to rewrite the story of America.

To this end, America's Revolutionary leaders are portrayed in the revised text as "anarchists, ne'er do wells and spoiled brats."

The book does allow exceptions to this picture, as in the case of George Washington and other founding fathers, who are described as "well-meaning but perhaps slightly misled by the radicals."

Editor Wallace, however, cast a dissenting footnote saying, "Although Washington and his pointed-head drug, marijuana or hallucinogenic substance except as permitted by law?

And would a faculty member like to be warned against willful failure or refusal to obey or comply with any proper order or summons of any authorized University official or failure to identify himself by stating his name and showing his faculty identification card upon request of any dean, faculty member, campus security officer or other authorized University official?

The above sections actually exist in the present Code of Student Life. These are a few of the questionable sections, however.

NUC has a good point. Would faculty members allow these restrictions to be placed on their lives?

I doubt it. Then why should the students accept the sections?

- Cheryl Arvidson

cronies may not have been smelly, they had just as long hair as any anarchists I've ever seen . . . and they are dressed awfully frivolous — nothing like you'd ever see in Alabama."

This refreshingly different view of American history is maintained throughout the entire chronologicalization of the Revolutionary period. It is this reviewer's opinion that more such approaches should be taken in other fields of learning.

As for criticism of the new history book, one can say only that it is a pity the book did not get further along. The editors/authors had intended originally to revise American History through current times.

But they managed to get only to the Civil War. It was at this point that a horrible schism of opinion developed among the three. Nixon and Humphrey maintained that in this war it was the confederacy who should be pictured as the anarchists, etc.

But Wallace apparently could not accept this contention. When confronted by his two co-editors, with evidence to support their position, Wallace is said to have screamed in horror, after which he fled into a closet somewhere in Alabama where he locked himself up for a long period of time.

This reviewer, after much effort, managed to reach Wallace by telephone and persuade him to break his silence on the Civil War history matter.

"It just can't be, it just can't be," he sobbed pitifully. "That isn't the way my mother told it."

Miller Has Doubts About Bomb Halt

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa Adj. Gen. Junior F. Miller, returning Friday from Vietnam, said he has "mixed emotions" about the bombing halt announced by President Johnson.

"My personal feeling is that the President no doubt has information available to him which I certainly do not have," Miller said. "If it will produce the desired results I am certainly in favor of it — if it will bring a good, honorable peace."

On the other hand, he said, if enemy forces "are not willing to barter, this then provides them with time and protection to resupply and be better prepared to carry on the war."

Miller said his trip to Vietnam confirmed his belief that enemy troops "are not making many successes."

Since the Tet offensive in early 1968, Miller said, "they have not been successful in any of their attacks. They've harassed us, they've caused us problems, but they've been defeated in every move they've made."

3 Local Men Vie For 2 J.P. Offices

By JOHN NEIBERGALL

Three candidates are seeking election to two positions as Justice of the Peace (J.P.) in Iowa City Township.

Carl J. Goetz, 40, an attorney in Iowa City since 1959, is a Democratic incumbent seeking re-election.

C. J. Hutchinson, 59, is also a Democratic incumbent candidate. He has been a resident of Iowa City since 1938 and is a self-employed income tax consultant.

Stanley Zegel, 24, is running on the Republican ticket. Zegel is a University student, AAE, and full-time employee of the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

The following questions were asked each candidate in separate interviews:

What are your reasons for entering this campaign?

Goetz: I am one of the incumbent candidates. I chose to seek the office because I was interested in civic affairs. When I attended the University I was a political science major and developed an interest in government and politics. Also, being a J.P. is compatible to my law practice.

Hutchinson: I've been a Justice of the Peace in Iowa City for 20 years. It's just natural to go ahead and seek re-election.

Zegel: This is an elective post for which there has been no competition in the past. Johnson County still has five or six candidates elected by default in every election. I believe that if we want to build a two party system we need two things: first, we need opposing candidates, and second, we need to elect the opposition once in a while.

What qualifies you to be a Justice of the Peace?

Goetz: My legal experience is my most important qualification.

Hutchinson: My 20 years' experience is my main qualification. Also, the fact that I've been an income tax man, which carries some legal bearing, qualifies me.

Zegel: I am a Republican and the partisan element must enter to build a two party system. I also feel that I have the time to be a J.P. There are some cases over a year old still on the J.P. docket. Thirdly, I have working knowledge of the judicial process from my personal interest in law, and as a pre-law student.

Do you think Iowa's minor courts, particularly the Justice of the Peace, need to be revised? Are there any plans which you would initiate or favor?

Goetz: I favor the plan devised by the Iowa State Bar Association. This calls for an integrated court system and would replace courts such as the municipal court, justice of the peace by a magistrates court. Justice of the peace is the only court with civil jurisdiction over small claims — the major function served by a Justice of the Peace. It would be important to incorporate this function into the magistrates court.

Hutchinson: Probably the J.P. will be eliminated soon. The last legislature almost did this. The Bar Association is sponsoring a proposal to establish a county magistrates court, which is all right. I really see no need for a justice of the peace.

Zegel: I favor revision of our minor courts. As a small claims court, the J.P. dispenses common sense. This is a justice's most important service and other than this I can see no reason to continue to have the J.P.

Traffic rulings and major criminal questions should be referred to a higher court. However, misdemeanors should remain within the jurisdiction of the J.P. because higher courts would become clogged in petty matters.

Cases involving possession of marijuana may be referred to a justice of the peace. If such a case were referred to you, what opinions do you hold which might enter into a judgment?

Goetz: I have no predisposition on the issue. I think it is important for anyone in a judicial position to consider the evidence without bias in any case. I don't consider justice of the peace a partisan issue, either, but a matter of legal experience and judgment.

Hutchinson: All cases before me are based on evidence and testimony. I certainly wouldn't condemn anyone unless evidence and testimony warranted it.

Zegel: It would be entirely out of order to render an opinion on any case before the case is tried. If a law is valid, it is the obligation of any magistrate to give a verdict supported by evidence in a case.

Grand Jury Asks New Boys Camps

ELDORA (AP)—A Hardin County grand jury, after investigating the Boys Training School at Eldora, recommended Friday that the school's population be cut and other state institutions for delinquent boys be established.

In a report to District Court Judge E. J. Kelley of Ames, the grand jury supported a request by the State Department of Social Services for funds to build two forestry camps, each capable of housing 50 boys.

The present Eldora institution is overcrowded, and the stay of youngsters assigned there has been reduced to five months, the grand jury said. The report pointed out that many buildings at the school were built before the turn of the century.

The jury recommended strengthening community facilities for presentence investigation, probation, parole and family counseling.

Ross, Murray Urge Adoption of Amendments

By JOE FINDLAY

Two University political scientists have given hearty support for five amendments to the Iowa constitution which will be voted on in Tuesday's election.

The amendments call for home rule, legislative reorganization, item veto, more pay for legislators and annual sessions for the legislature. Russell M. Ross and James Murray, both professors of political science, urged, in recent interviews, passage of all five amendments.

Specifically, the measures call for:

- Home rule for cities to govern their local affairs, except for the power to levy a tax unless authorized by the General Assembly. In other words, cities and towns could do anything they are not specifically prohibited by state law from doing.
- Annual sessions of the State General Assembly, instead of the present biennial sessions.
- Item-veto power for the governor on any appropriation bill, subject to power of the General Assembly to over-ride the veto.
- Fixing the composition of the General Assembly at no more than 50 Senators and 100 Representatives, and to provide for congressional redistricting. This amendment seeks to apportion both the Senate and House of Representatives on a population distribution basis.
- Allowing the General Assembly to fix compensation and expenses of its members. The increase would not be effective until the next General Assembly convenes.

The last time Iowa voters had five constitutional amendments before them was in 1968. At that time the main issues were the granting to non-whites of the right to vote, and the right to serve in the state militia.

"The state legislature ought to be in session annually due to the increasing complexity of state business," Murray said.

Of the item veto amendment, Murray said it would allow closer executive scrutiny of legislative appropriation.

Murray also said "Fair representation and limited size of the General Assembly will enable each party to work with relative efficiency."

Also asked to comment on the amendments, was Ross, who specializes in state government and politics. He said that all five amendments are necessary if Iowa is to have the best possible form of state government.

Ross said that 41 other states had already given their governors the right of item-veto, and this has proved very useful in the inducement of careful and proper formulation of state budgeting.

Of the home rule amendment, Ross said, "The adoption of the proposed amendment will be beneficial to the state in two ways:

- It will relieve the legislature of having to consider relatively unimportant municipal bills and
- It will give great impetus to self-government at the local level.

6 in Race for 2 Supervisor Posts

By CRAIG HARRISON,

and
MARK ROHNER

Contenders for the 1969 term as county supervisor are Republican Fred Fluegel, Democrat Ralph Prybil and Peace and Freedom candidate Jerry Sies. Republican Kenneth Wagner, Democrat Ed Kessler and Peace and Freedom candidate Dale McCormick are vying for the 1970 term.

Fluegel, 46, of rural Iowa City, has been a resident of Johnson County for the past 15 years. He is owner of the Telephone Answering Service and the local Manpower franchise.

Kessler, 63, of University Heights, has been a county supervisor for the past six years and is a lifelong Johnson County resident. He is a member of the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission and the Johnson County Welfare Board.

Prybil, 58, farms six miles southeast of Iowa City. He has been a member of the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission for four years and the Johnson County Zoning Commission for eight years.

Miss McCormick, 44, Sigourney, is an American Civilization major at the University.

Sies, 44, Iowa City, has been a resident of Johnson County for the past two years, except for the summer of 1967 when he taught emotionally disturbed children in New York City. He was instrumental in gaining the voting privilege for University students last spring.

Wagner, 59, farms near West Liberty. He has been a member of the State Soil Conservation Committee for 14 years and has served as county legislative representative for the State Board of Regents.

The Republican candidates, Wagner and Fluegel, have conducted their campaigns together and asked that their replies to the following questions be given jointly.

Miss McCormick declined to answer several questions.

The following questions were presented by Daily Iowan reporters to all six candidates in separate interviews:

• Would you make any changes in the operation of the office of supervisor or in county government in general?

Fluegel and Wagner: The functions and duties (of supervisors) are pretty well spelled out. However, the basic need for leadership on the board is not spelled out.

We would propose the county board of supervisors assume a very active role in all phases of county government.

Kessler: All offices are being run efficiently and are keeping up with new modern office machinery and equipment to speed service to the people.

Prybil: No, I would not make any drastic changes. I would attempt to work in harmony within the present system.

Sies: Yes, I would like to see the county residents more aware of what the county government does so that more of a check in terms of public opinion is placed on the county government to make it more responsive to the needs of county residents.

• What solutions do you see to the controversy over water pollution at the Coralville Reservoir and Lake Macbride?

Fluegel and Wagner: We still have faith that people who are given the correct information and allowed to approach the problem together will come up with a pretty good answer.

Kessler: As both sides of the controversy recognize the problem involved, a citizens' group has selected a committee to work with our able board of health. I am sure the problem will be satisfactorily solved.

Prybil: I think central sewage plants are going to be the answer to most of this problem. We need an extensive study of this problem to recommend solutions.

Sies: I feel we need stricter sewage and pollution laws and strict enforcement of these laws.

• Do you see any conflict between University interests and those of the entire county? If so, how could these be resolved?

Fluegel and Wagner: No. The University is people and the general welfare of people is the purpose of county government.

Kessler: I can see no conflict of interest with the University. We do have mutual problems from time to time that we try to solve together.

McCormick: I think that the interests of both, and especially the University, are not the interests of the people or else we would not have to go to court to see public records — the housing records for example.

Prybil: I don't see any conflicts. I've worked with several of the University's personnel on different occasions and the relationship has always been very good.

Sies: Yes, the University is not integrating well enough with the community. We have University faculty people who could help the community more with its problems and community people who could help the University with its problems.

• What is the biggest challenge facing Johnson County? How would you meet it?

Fluegel and Wagner: The biggest challenge in Johnson County is the anticipated growth in population and the expansion of urban areas into the rural. To meet the challenge will require the closest of working relationships among all segments of government.

Kessler: At present, the immediate challenge facing Johnson County is securing passage of bond issues to replace the archaic county shops building.

Prybil: We have many problems in Johnson County. I think that one of the biggest problems is the coordination of welfare programs.

Sies: There are a number of challenges facing the county.

First of all, family farmers are being put out of business by large operators and companies. I would like to see that situation remedied as quickly as possible before the small farmers in Johnson County are completely wiped out.

Secondly, there is too much disorderly real estate development. If Johnson County does not get better zoning laws soon, the whole area between Iowa City and Cedar Rapids will end up looking like the Coralville Strip.

Third, I would like more development of wildlife conservation before it is too late.

Fourth, and this is crucial, there is a strong need for public low-income housing on the county level done in a way which would not strip low income families of their pride, but at the same time would sincerely attempt to solve the problem — something which the present rent subsidy plan being proposed by Iowa City has no chance whatsoever of doing.

And lastly, I would like to see a concerted effort to keep organized crime out of the county. I understand that recently the syndicate has moved into a number of large campus areas with special emphasis on drug traffic.

Election Center to Feature Candidates, Latest Returns

Election returns, student representatives of the presidential candidates and talks by the candidates for House of Representatives from the First Congressional District will be featured in Election Center to be held from 7:30 to 11 p.m. Tuesday at the Union Main Lounge.

The election center, which is open to the public, will post reports from the local precincts every half hour. Major changes in the returns will be posted as they occur.

All of the local news media, including The Daily Iowan, will be represented at the election center. Reporters from the media will phone in election returns from the precincts.

Representatives from the Peace and Freedom party, Students for Wallace, Young Democrats and Young Republicans will be at the center to report developments about their respective presidential candidates.

National returns will be gathered from the wire service machines of the media represented at the center and posted as they come in.

All returns will be posted on large blackboards in the center of the Main Lounge. In addition, several television sets will be tuned to national news programs.

Election returns may also be obtained by calling the DI after 9 p.m. Tuesday at 337-4192.

John Schmidhauser, Democrat, and Rep. Fred Schwengel, Republican, candidates for the House of Representatives from this district, will appear at the center during the evening.

350 Iowa Profs Back Humphrey

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa backers of Democratic presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey have released names of 350 college and university professors from 16 Iowa campuses who they said had come out publicly for the Vice President.

Heading the list were University of Iowa law school professors Arthur E. Bonfield and Allan D. Vestal, both recognized authorities on constitutional and federal procedural law.

The Humphrey backers drew their largest contingent from the University of Iowa, where 79 signed the proclamation.

Other major blocs of support for Humphrey were University of Northern Iowa, 72; Luther College, 32, and Iowa State University, 25.

FOLK DANCING—The University Folk Dance Club will sponsor an international folk dance Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Lucas-Dodge Room.

Mrs. Onassis Has Absentee Ballot

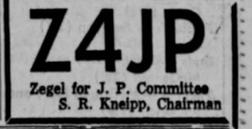

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Town Clerk Howard W. Sears said Friday an absentee ballot mailed 10 days ago to Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis at her New York City address has not yet been returned.

Sears said the widow of President John F. Kennedy has until Election Day to return it.

In previous political upheavals since the armies of the Communists drove the Chinese Nationalists from the mainland in 1949, no prominent Communist has been executed as far as the outside world knows.

Committee promised "to continue to settle accounts with him and his accomplices for their crimes in betraying the party and the country."

It was this part of a communication that indicated Liu might face trial that could end in either a stiff prison term or a death sentence.

TIME and PLACE: 1:30 p.m. today, Memorial Stadium, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

By CHUCK STOLBERG
Floyd of Rosedale has been residing in Minneapolis since 1964. This just might be the week that Floyd returns to Iowa.

Floyd of Rosedale is a bronze pig that the winner of the Iowa-Minnesota football game gets to take home each year. The last time Floyd spent any time in Iowa City was after the Hawks beat the Gophers 27-13 back in 1964.

Since then, the Gophers have beaten the Hawks four times, including last year's 10-0 decision in Iowa City.

But, today could be a different story. The Hawks are still the top offensive team in the conference, even though they are only 1-2 against Big 10 opposition and 2-4 overall. The Gophers are 3-3, but their 2-1 league mark puts them in a tie for third place with Indiana.

Both teams took beatings last week. Purdue ground the Hawks down 44-14 and Michigan trounced the Gophers 33-20. Minnesota trailed 30-0 at halftime.

The 1968 version of the Gophers is a typical Murray Warmath team with a tough defense and an offense that scores just enough points to win. Heading that tough defense is all-Big 10 and all-America end Bob Stein. Although he was hampered by injuries and played only two conference games as a sophomore, Stein, 6-2, 223, still tied for 3rd place in the Big 10 in number of times throwing ball-carriers for losses with eight. Last year he took up where he left off as a sophomore and became recognized as one of the finest defensive ends in college football.

Ron Kamzelski, a 4-3, 240 senior defensive tackle is another of the Gophers' mainstays on defense. Kamzelski was an all-Big 10 academic selection in his sophomore and junior years and last year won academic all-America honorable mention.

Leading the Gophers' offense is fullback Jim Carter, a 6-3, 212 junior who was the Gophers' leading groundgainer last year with 519 yards.

Ray Stephens, a 6-3, 205 senior, will start at quarterback. Stephens came in late in the Michigan game and was very impressive. He is considered the best passer on the Gopher squad. Stephens' main targets will be Ray Parson and Chip Litten. Parson ranks 5th in the conference in receiving with 11 catches for 112 yards and Litten ranks 6th with 10 catches for 214 yards.

Anchoring down the offensive line for the Gophers will be Errell Jones, 6-4, 245. Jones is an outstanding blocker and is a vital factor in the Gophers' offense.

Stephans hit Litten with an 88 yard touchdown pass last week, the longest scoring play in the Big 10 this season.

There is no question that the Hawks can move the football.

Iowa still has the top offensive team in the Big 10. The Hawks lead the league in five categories: points per game (29.7), first downs (253), net yards passing (209), yards per play (6.2), and yards per play passing (8.6).

However, after the thumping they took from Purdue, the Hawks slid to 9th in defense.

The Hawks will be at full strength for the first time in three weeks with the return of sophomore tailback Denny Green. Green was injured in the Indiana game and hasn't played since. For the season he is tied for the team lead in scoring with Eddie Podolak. Both have scored five touchdowns.

Podolak will be starting at tailback again. He now ranks 6th in the conference in rushing with 268 yards and a 5.8 average. Tim Sullivan, the Hawks' junior fullback is 9th in the league in rushing with 218 yards.

Larry Lawrence will be out to make amends for his sub-par showing against Purdue last week. Lawrence still ranks 3rd in the league in passing. However, he leads the league in passing yardage with 504 yards and is 2nd in completion percentage with a .524 mark.

Lawrence is also 3rd in the league in total offense and Podolak is 9th. Podolak needs just over 400 yards in total offense to break the all-time Iowa mark held by Gary Snook.

Kerry Reardon, the Hawks' sophomore wingback is the Big 10's leading punter with a 41.8 average.

Barry Crees, the Hawks' starting wingback ranks 2nd in the conference behind Wisconsin's Mel Reddick in pass receptions with 15. However, Crees is far out in front of everyone in yardage with 302.

The Gophers lead the all-time series 41-1-1.

Floyd's Life Story

Floyd of Rosedale is a bronze statue of a prize pig representing the trophy which goes to the winner of the Iowa-Minnesota game each year.

The winning university is entitled to keep the trophy until it loses the annual game. It is the only trophy of an Iowa football series, and is appropriate because Minnesota is Iowa's oldest opponent.

In 1935, Governor Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota and Governor Clyde Herring of Iowa bet a prize porker on the outcome of the Iowa-Minnesota football game. The wager was a diplomatic move to ease the tension between followers of the two teams.

Iowa lost the game 13-6 after a bitter battle to a Minnesota team that later earned the title of mythical national champion.

So, Governor Herring presented Governor Olson with Floyd of Rosedale, a full-blooded champion.

Governor Olson gave the pig to the University and commissioned a sculptor to create a statue of Floyd.

The statue he created was 21 inches long by 15 1/2 inches high, and is mounted on a heavy metal and wooden base. Around Floyd's middle is a replica of a sash, with spaces for engraving scores of the annual game up to 1969.

Iowa Ruggers Meet Indiana

Iowa's rugby club meets Indiana for two matches in Bloomington today. Both A and B matches will be played.

Iowa Coach Larry Mitchell said Friday that the Hawk forwards have been looking "sharp" in practice all week. He also said that he is expecting a very close game.

"Indiana is not as strong as they used to be," Mitchell said. The Hoosiers were Big 10 champions two years ago. Mitchell will make some changes in the starting A lineup for today's game. Jim Middleton, the Hawks' captain, will move from stand-off to fullback. Rick Doty will move up from the B squad to take Middleton's place at fullback.
