Jordanian Troops Quell Uprising by Hard-Line Anti-Israeli Guerrillas

ABU QASIM — Jordanian troops and Arab fedayeen fighters loyal to young King Hussein crushed an anti-Israeli guerrilla uprising Tuesday in a surprisingdevelopment that split the kingdom and raised questions about the stability of the Middle East. The fighting ended with the death of some 80 people, according to army estimates.

It was a spectacular victory for the kingdom, which has traditionally opposed guerrilla warfare. But it also raised questions about the future of the Bedouin, who make up a large part of the population.

On Tuesday, the Jordanian government declared the uprising over and lifted restrictions on the movement of people and goods between Jordan and the West Bank, which is ruled by the Jordanians.

The uprising began on Monday when guerrillas from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine launched an attack on the Jordanian army base in the town of Irbid, about 40 miles south of the border with Israel. The guerrillas were reportedly seeking to establish a base in the area.

The Jordanian government quickly mobilized troops to recapture the town, which had been the center of the guerrilla movement in the area. The fighting lasted for several hours, with both sides sustaining heavy losses.

The Jordanian army said it had retaken control of the town and had killed or captured all the guerrillas.

King Hussein had warned against the outbreak of violence in the area, saying it would only serve to strengthen the hands of the guerrillas.

The Jordanian government said it would continue to pursue a policy of restraint in dealing with guerrilla activity, but it also warned that it would not tolerate any provocation.

The fighting was a setback for the guerrillas, who had been seeking to establish a base in the area as a way of challenging Jordanian rule in the region.

The Jordanian army said it would continue to work to secure the area and prevent further guerrilla activity.
We're saying NO, too.

If we don't go to the streets on November 5 in the major cities across the country, people will begin to oppose us. The people will begin to oppose us unless we are united in opposition to the establishment and the administration of the world. And this is why we are saying NO to SDS.

SDS can talk about a national strike of workers and students. But SDS cannot talk about a national strike of workers and students without the participation of the workers and students. SDS cannot talk about a national strike of workers and students without the participation of the workers and students who are being oppressed by the establishment.

North Stars Select Muckler as New Coach

NEW YORK -- The coach job that eluded John Muckler, 39-year-old National Hockey League veteran of the previous 14 seasons, has been filled with the North Stars. The Minnesota North Stars had been looking for a coach for some time, but last week they announced that Muckler had been hired to coach the team.

Muckler, who had been with the New York Rangers as a coach for four years, was known for his aggressive playing style and his ability to motivate his players. The North Stars hope that his experience will help them improve their season, which has been disappointing so far.

The hiring of Muckler is seen as a major move for the North Stars, who have struggled to find success in recent years. The team has not made the playoffs since 1981, and many fans have called for a new coach to lead the team to success.

Muckler has expressed his excitement about the new job, saying, "I'm looking forward to the challenge of coaching in the NHL. I've learned a lot from my years in the league, and I think I can bring a new perspective to the North Stars."

His work has been influential in shaping the theological discourse on these issues.

VOTE SCHMIDHAUSER FOR CONGRESS

One of the Men of Courage in the 89th Congress Who Worked for
The People of The First District

This Is What The Burlington Hawk-Eye Has To Say About John Schmidhauser

The one race, in this election, in which Southeast Iowa (the First Congressional District) has an advantage, is the race for Congress. They can keep their judgment of the candidates on the race last that both have served in the office they seek.

To refresh memories, the present congressman, Republican Paul Schwegler, is completing his 15th year in the House. His challenger, Democrat John Schmidhauser, served two years (1963-5) — and then Schwegler came back for the present term.

If politics were mathematics (which it isn't), one could argue that Schwegler, with his 12 years, is preferable to Schmidhauser with his two. But politics is a quality thing, and that habit, the Hawk-Eye editor says, should be kept in mind in the election of John Schmidhauser.

John Schmidhauser was not the first Iowa boy about whom a good deal was written. One of the more promising political statistics is that Schwegler, who spent childhood originally in the Johnson lands and did well even better in Iowa, was the first Iowa boy to be a United States senator in 1909, when he didn't have (and also didn't need) Johnson's clout to ride on. He himself was a man who knew what a big business it was to have a newspaper impress on one more than anything else needed in his press room.

The other Iowa boy has more clout than Schwegler. Schwegler's family has been in the state a long time, and the votes have been right, so to speak. Schwegler has served two terms in the state's legislature, and was active in the National Guard, which it is safe to say that Schwegler has been in a position to appreciate. His friends and interests are on the other side of the state, and he has another advantage.

As a professor of government and political science at Iowa State University, he has not only a personal proclivity for that field of politics, he is also close to the very best minds. If his ideas, concerns and efforts are having a deep impact well beyond the borders of his own state, they are having a deep impact well beyond the borders of the entire world.

Schwegler is qualified and we are proud to recommend him.

Young women and men are now using action in the form of sit-ins to bring about what they call "social justice." Sit-ins are being held in places where discrimination is practiced and where the movement demands equal treatment.

SCHLICKERBEUER, 18, said she is not afraid of being arrested because she feels it is now time to "stand up and be heard."

"In the past five years," she said, "we had to spell out our position and now it is time to take a stand."

The protest will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. in front of the Stoddard Department Store in Syracuse. It is being sponsored by the Syracuse Chapter of the National Organization for Women and the League of Women Voters.

SCHLICKERBEUER is one of several women who have been active in the women's movement. She is a member of the Syracuse Chapter of NOW and has been involved in many protests against discrimination.

She said she is willing to risk arrest because she believes in the cause.

"I am not afraid of being arrested," she said.
"I am willing to take a stand and fight for what I believe is right."

The protest is being held in conjunction with the International Women's Day, which is observed on the first Sunday in March.

"We are calling for an end to discrimination in all forms," she said. "We are calling for an end to the oppression of women."
