Gym Team Will Perform Tonight

By MAIKE BLUTCHY

New coach Walter Johnson will call his first meeting at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday night to give the Iowa team their first look at the 1968-1969 schedule.

Johnson, a native of California, is the new head coach of the Iowa gymnastics team. Johnson had been head coach of the University of Michigan for the past four years, and his team's first place finish at the Big Ten and NCAA championships last year was a good indication.

The gymnastics team will be held at its new home in the new building located at the corner of Jefferson Building and the University of Iowa.

"The team is very well-coached and should be strong in every event," Johnson said.

"Our team will be led by a very talented nucleus of an Iowa team that puts his 1968 team on display," Johnson said.

Bill Hatch, Big Ten still rings champ

"Bill Hatch, Big Ten still rings champ, will head the other Iowa graduates, will act ing I-Ike a nucleus of an Iowa team that puts his 1968 team on display," Johnson said.

Supreme Court Retries Case Of Iowa Lifer After 34 Years

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has set aside the murder conviction of a man who has already spent 34 years behind bars, setting up a new trial after a panel of judges concluded the evidence was too weak to support a guilty verdict.

The court's decision was based on a constitutional challenge to the conviction of Thomas Johnson, who was found guilty of murdering a woman in 1986 in a case that has been a subject of national debate.

Johnson, 66, has always maintained his innocence, saying he was exonerated by a new witness who came forward after the trial. But the court ruled that Johnson was not given a fair trial, and said his case should be retried.

"The evidence against Mr. Johnson was not overwhelming," the court said in a 6-3 decision. "There was some evidence that was not reliable, and some evidence that was not admissible. There was also some evidence that was not properly considered by the jury."
The (Illegal) Off-Campus Life

By JILL BARTER

The University of Iowa administration has come under fire for its handling of off-campus housing. Students and faculty are upset over the university's failure to enforce the law and its unwillingness to respond to their concerns.

Three years ago, the university passed a resolution prohibiting off-campus housing in order to control the rising cost of living on campus. However, the resolution has been largely ignored by the university administration.

The Office of Off-Campus Housing, which is responsible for enforcing the resolution, has been understaffed and underfunded. As a result, the resolution has been largely ineffective.

Students and faculty are calling for more funding and staffing for the Office of Off-Campus Housing. They want the university to take a more active role in enforcing the resolution.

The university administration has responded by saying that it is not their job to enforce the resolution. They claim that the problem is too big and that it is the responsibility of the state government.

However, students and faculty are not satisfied with this response. They want the university to take a more active role in enforcing the resolution.

The university administration has also been criticized for its lack of responsiveness to student concerns.

The Office of Off-Campus Housing has been slow to respond to student complaints. Students are upset that they have to wait weeks or even months for a response.

The university administration has responded by saying that they are working on the problem. However, students and faculty are not satisfied with this response.

The university administration has also been criticized for its lack of transparency.

The Office of Off-Campus Housing has been secretive about the enforcement of the resolution. Students and faculty have been unable to obtain information about the number of off-campus housing violations or the actions taken by the Office of Off-Campus Housing.

The university administration has responded by saying that they are protecting the privacy of their students. However, students and faculty are not satisfied with this response.

The university administration has also been criticized for its lack of action in response to the increasing cost of living on campus.

Students Activities Board Acts as Campus Coordinator

The main purpose of the student activities board is to serve as a central body for organizing and managing programs and events on campus. The board consists of student representatives from various organizations and groups, and its main functions include planning and coordinating activities, facilitating communication between different groups, and ensuring the smooth operation of campus events.

The board meets regularly to discuss proposals for new activities and events, as well as to review the progress of ongoing projects. It works closely with the administration and other campus organizations to ensure that all activities and events are in line with the goals and objectives of the university.

The board also plays a key role in the evaluation of programs and events. It reviews proposals and provides feedback to organizers, and it has the authority to approve or reject proposals based on their merit and feasibility.

The board's success depends on the commitment and involvement of its members. All students are encouraged to participate in the activities of the board and to contribute their ideas and suggestions for new activities and events.

Students Air Views Of 'Pot' On Campus

Many students expressed their opinions on the issue of marijuana use on campus. Some students believed that marijuana should be made legal, while others felt that it should remain illegal.

There was a general consensus that marijuana use had become more prevalent on campus in recent years. However, there was also a recognition that marijuana use could have negative consequences, such as impaired driving and other health issues.

The discussion also touched on the issue of the legal status of marijuana in the United States. While marijuana is legal in some states, it is still illegal in others, and this has led to confusion and frustration among students.

The overall sentiment seemed to be that marijuana should not be entirely legal, but it should be more lenient in its enforcement. Many students believed that marijuana use should be regulated and monitored, rather than completely banned.
