

Nixon, Warren Agree To June Retirement

President-Elect Considers End of Surtax; Humphrey Declines U.N. Ambassadorship

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon announced Wednesday that Chief Justice Earl Warren has agreed to the president-elect's request to preside over the Supreme Court through June, the end of its current term.

Nixon said he will choose a successor to the retiring, 77-year-old chief justice to take office after the completion of the term.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's spokesman, made the announcement to newsmen and said that by Warren's choice his retirement from the court will be effective at the pleasure of the president.

The president-elect and the chief justice — who have disagreed on court decisions regarding the rights of criminal suspects — talked for about 15 minutes.

Warren submitted his retirement to President Johnson about five months ago, effective when a successor was approved by the Senate.

But Johnson's choice of Justice Abe Fortas to succeed Warren touched off long and bitter Senate debate. Ultimately, the nomination was withdrawn at Fortas' request.

Nixon worked, too, to shape his administration's negotiating team for the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. He relayed word that there has been discussion of assigning Henry Cabot Lodge, now U.S. ambassador to West Germany, to conduct the negotiations after the inauguration.

The president-elect appointed Paul W. McCracken, a University of Michigan professor, to be chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers.

Nixon also disclosed through a spokesman that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democrat he defeated for the presidency, was offered and declined appointment as his ambassador to the United Nations.

In another conference, Nixon discussed taxes with Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, (D-Ark.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Mills said they agreed that, hopefully, government economics might make possible some tax reduction next year.

The cautious talk of easing taxes dealt with the 10 per cent income surtax, which under current law would expire next June 30. Nixon and Mills both said that this is a temporary levy which should be eased or ended as soon as possible.

But they said judgment on the immediate future must await the shaping of the new federal budget.

"It's the hope that the surtax can expire on June 30," said Mills, the most powerful man on Capitol Hill in shaping tax policy. He said Nixon shared that hope.

But Mills added that, at present a and increasing levels of government spending, the surtax cannot lapse without producing an unmanageable budget deficit.

Nixon, who would not discuss the immediate prospects, said that the tax should not continue "after the obligations of the war in Vietnam can be reduced."

"I do not believe that the surcharge should be a permanent addition to our tax burden," Mills said. "But with regard to what we do this year, that will depend on the analysis of the budget and what we are able to do with the budget."

"I got the very definite impression that it is the president-elect's hope, as it is my hope, that we can bring about economics in government," Mills said.

Nixon said during the presidential campaign that the tax should expire as now scheduled; Mills said Nov. 15 he saw "little possibility" it could be dropped June 30.

But he denied there has been a shift in his view, or that he is at odds with Nixon on that and other revenue matters.

"This imagined divergence of viewpoint between the incoming administration and myself has been over-exaggerated," he said.

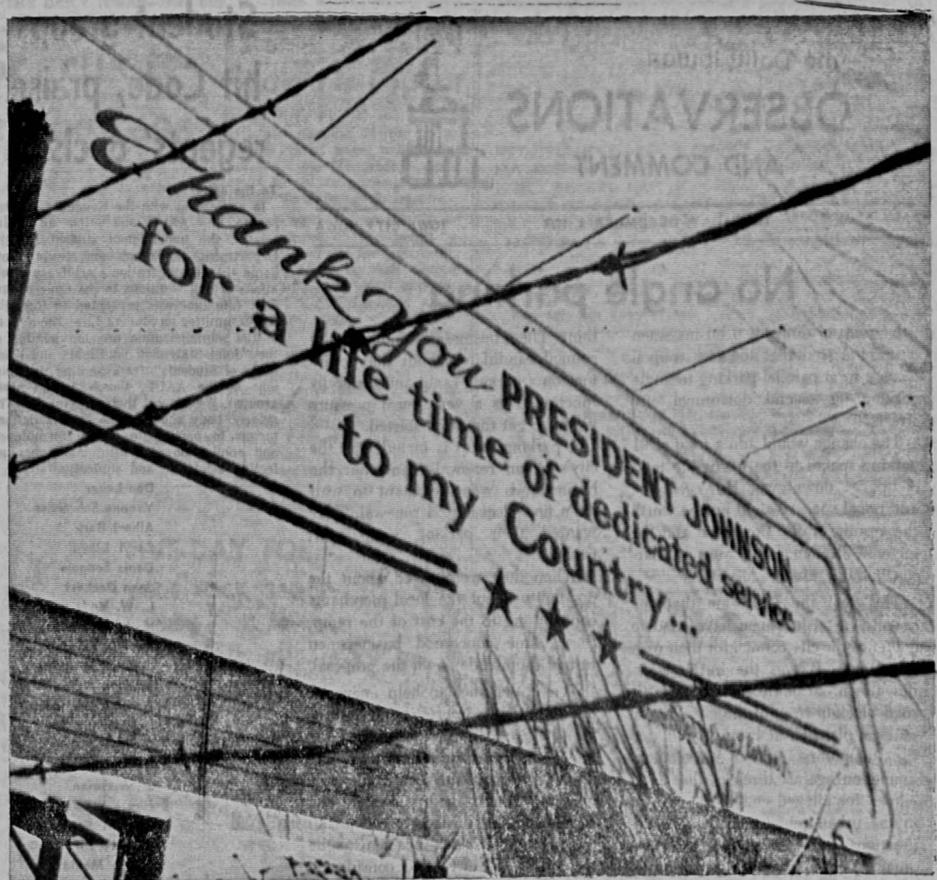

Mills said he remains skeptical about the use of tax incentives to private industry for participation in social programs such as job training and city rebuilding. This is a key Nixon approach to the problems of poverty and urban blight.

But a short time later, in an address to the National Association of Manufacturers, Mills said he had come to an agreement with Nixon on the use of tax credits for social programs.

He mentioned Nixon's campaign pledge to use tax credits to private enterprise for the training and employment of the hard-core unemployed.

Mills said he and Nixon agreed such tax credits should not be merely a device for what the Arkansas representative called "backdoor spending" and should show up in the federal budget as an expenditure.

Only when such credits prove to be a better method than direct federal spending for getting the job done would they get his endorsement, Mills said. He added Nixon had agreed upon such guidelines.

Thanks for an Outgoing Public Servant

Ernie L. Burdine Jr., of suburban Midwest City, Okla., paid $100 to have this sign posted to thank President Johnson for his years of public service. Burdine said he had gotten tired of hearing criticism of the President and decided to make his own feelings public.

U.S., North Viet Envoys Seen Near Talks Accord

PARIS (AP) — American and North Vietnamese envoys moved toward agreement Wednesday on arrangements for opening the four-way talks to end the war in Vietnam, according to a U.S. source.

The source expressed hope that full agreement would be reached by the weekend.

Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance and Col. Ha Van Lau registered progress, U.S. sources said, but only after accusing each other of starting a round of new hostilities between their forces.

Lau handed Vance a note from the Hanoi government accusing the Americans of breaking President Johnson's promise to halt attacks against North Vietnam.

Walkout Brings Riot-Torn Italy Close to Chaos

ROME (AP) — A 24-hour strike planned to bring Rome to a standstill began Wednesday night with a walkout of thousands of railwaymen, taxi drivers, gasoline distributors, postal and telephone workers and hospital employees.

Launched by Communist, Socialist and Catholic-led unions to dramatize demands for higher wages, the strike added to the turmoil of demonstrations by workers and students that assailed the country in its third week of government crisis.

More than 30,000 high school students surged across Rome Wednesday shouting, "Murderers, you shall pay!"

They referred to police who shot and killed two striking farm workers in Sicily Monday.

Similar demonstrations rocked other major cities.

Union leaders predicted that by Thursday morning at least 1.5 million persons will have left their jobs in the Rome area. They include municipal employees, private shopowners, transport workers, government employees, newspaper vendors and market stall proprietors.

Unions said there also might be interruptions in gas, electricity and water distribution in the 24-hour period.

All schools will remain closed, the school board announced, "to avoid unpleasantness to their pupils..."

Florence, Naples, Milan, Turin, Genoa, Venice and Palermo were hit Wednesday by mammoth traffic jams as protesters marched against the state, the politicians and the police.

With national tensions aggravated by the Sicilian shootings, after weeks of agitation by workers demanding more money and students wanting educational reforms, the Communist party and civic authorities were moving to check the slide toward anarchy.

The order was being quietly passed from the country's largest labor union, the big Communist-led General Confederation of Italian Labor for members to avoid violence.

He also protested thrusts by U.S. troops into the supposedly neutral demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said marines went into the southern half of the zone to drive out invading North Vietnamese.

Vance countered with complaints of his own during the three-hour talk. He blamed the North Vietnamese for shooting at U.S. reconnaissance planes and for sallying into the DMZ themselves.

After the talks, a U.S. delegation source said that he was hopeful full agreement will be reached with the Hanoi delegates by the weekend on all the procedures needed to get the full-scale Vietnam peace negotiations going within the next 10 days.

The United States and North Vietnam have been holding ambassadorial meetings in Paris since May. Now they will be joined by a South Vietnamese delegation and one from the National Liberation Front.

President Nguyen Van Thieu told newsmen in Saigon that South Vietnam's delegation would be in Paris by this weekend, ready to deal with the procedural questions before the opening of peace talks.

Saigon has yet to announce who will be members of its delegation. It is expected to be headed by Ambassador Pham Dang Lam, chief of South Vietnam's observer mission in Paris, under the supervision of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky. Ky will not be a member, however.

The main purpose of the Vance-Lau session — their second since Monday — was to agree on time, place, order of business and other procedural arrangements for the new and expanded conference.

Vance put several suggestions Monday to Lau — all designed to get the conference rolling next Monday and Tuesday.

Lau responded Wednesday to Vance's suggestions and the two men agreed on certain undefined points. Others, presumably touching on matters of delegation status, remained unsettled.

Augustine Tells SDS Not to Hold 'Illegal' Rally

Roger Augustine, associate dean of student affairs, warned a Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) steering committee meeting Wednesday night that a rally scheduled for Friday noon on the east steps of Old Capitol would be a "clear violation" of the Code of Student Life.

Augustine said the use of a public address system would be a disruption of the University, as he said it had been at a Nov. 1 SDS-sponsored rally.

Earlier in the day Augustine had requested that members of the steering committee meet in his office to discuss the Friday rally. When they refused, Augustine met with several SDS members when they were gathered in the Union Gold Feather Room for an informal discussion.

According to SDS members, Jerry Sies, A4, Iowa City, warned Augustine he would be "kicked out" of the evening meeting if he attempted to attend. However, when he appeared at the evening meeting, Augustine was not asked to leave.

The committee informed Augustine that they would go ahead with the rally.

The committee decided to base the rally on the abolition of the Code and to show the Code does not operate in the interests of the students.

SDS members also decided not to feature at the rally the three University students charged with violations of the Code — Sies; Ken Wessels, A2, Dyersville; and Dan Cheeseman, A4, Elkador. Other students will speak at the rally instead, the committee decided.

Injects Himself with Malignant Cells— Peruvian Doctor Seeks Cancer Cure

LIMA (AP) — In a bold experiment, a young Peruvian physician injected himself with cancer cells taken from his half-sister, and later gave her the cancer-fighting antibodies that his body had created.

Dr. Alfonso Zavaleta Cruzado, 34, says he may have cured his sister, Mrs. Elis Wenzell, of cancer of the uterus. The cancer apparently has disappeared, he said.

But he stressed that less than a month has passed since the experiment, and five years were required to consider a patient cured.

Similar experiments to mobilize antibodies against cancers are being carried out in the United States and elsewhere — some with encouraging results. Zavaleta's experiment differed in some respects.

He injected cancer cells into his leg. His system formed antibodies to destroy the foreign cells, much as antibodies are formed to resist bacteria, or to reject transplanted organs.

He then bled himself to obtain lymphocytes, white blood cells carrying the antibodies, and transferred them to his sister.

An associate of Zavaleta, Dr. Oscar Miro Quesada, told The Associated Press, "It is too early to know the results of Dr. Zavaleta's technique. But this is a beginning. Now we have to wait five years to see if the cancer returns."

Miro Quesada is president of the Peruvian Society for Immuno-Pathology and director of the National Institutes of Health. Zavaleta is a medical officer, a first lieutenant, in the Peruvian navy.

"I have always felt a cure for cancer would come from a crossfire between chemistry and immunology," Miro Quesada said.

"Dr. Zavaleta and I have been conducting chemical trials with hopeless cases, people with one foot in the tomb and the other on a banana peel. We have been able to keep them alive for one to one and a half years, until their cancer cells became resistant to the chemicals."

"Now, Zavaleta has come up with this simple technique."

Some 12 years ago, experiments with volunteers at the Ohio Penitentiary, conducted by Sloan-Kettering Institute scientists, showed that men developed antibodies and soon destroyed the cancer cells injected into their bodies.

Zavaleta said he had worked with Dr. Chester Stock at the institute in New York City.

Senator Wants Younger GOP Whip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Republican senator is urging his colleagues to put a junior member in a top party leadership post in the Senate.

John J. Williams of Delaware said such a move could help attract younger voters to the GOP.

The letter from the 64-year-old Williams to all other Republican senators injected an unexpected element into the contest for Republican party whip, a position second only to the minority leader.

A copy of the letter was obtained Wednesday.

The only announced candidates for the whip's post, opened up by the primary defeat of California's Thomas H. Kuchel, are Sens. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska and Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Williams did not mention any junior senators by name but some possibilities are Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon and Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts.

Another is Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, but he might be ruled out since his father-in-law, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, is the Senate Republican leader.

Similarly, Sen. Charles H. Percy could be counted out on the ground that, like Dirksen, he comes from Illinois.

Hruska said Williams was entitled to his views and was to be commended for advancing them to GOP senators for their consideration.

Scott could not be reached for comment. Williams, a member of the Senate since 1947 and the top-ranking GOP member of the Senate Finance Committee, is third in seniority among Republican senators and a conservative.

The Delaware senator's proposal could have the effect of delaying commitments to either Hruska or Scott prior to a caucus of GOP senators in January just before the new Congress convenes.

Williams said the position of party whip will assume greater importance in the next session "with the Republican party controlling the White House and still in the minority in the Senate."

British Girls to Get New Figures; Curves Gain in National Campaign

LONDON (AP) — A splendidly proportioned young lady in a bikini makes it easy to "think metric."

She measures 914-610-914. That's 36-24-36 to the uninitiated.

"Coo, that's a nice bit o' construction, that is," said a burly bricklayer, surveying the lissome Miss Metric, and another blow was struck for the coming revolution in British industry.

Miss Metric is the poster girl whose charms Britain has enlisted to push a campaign to switch the nation away from measurements in inches, feet and yards and change it to the metric system of measurements.

"I'm five feet 7 1/2, but I have no idea what that is in meters," she said. "They didn't tell me."

The poster was issued by the Construction Industry Training Board.

Wooing the workers from inches to millimeters, even in the measurements of glamorous girls, is not going to be easy in a land which is accustomed to thinking in yards, feet, rods, chains and scruples. Some British measurements date to Roman days.

But the metric system is used by all of Europe and by 85 per cent of the world's population.

Husband of Slain N.Y.C. Woman Starts Citizens' Group to Fight Crime

NEW YORK (AP) — A business executive whose wife was murdered last year announced Wednesday the creation of Citizens for Justice with Order, which he said will try to involve millions of people in the war on crime.

"I had a very deep personal motivation," said H. Bruce Palmer, 60, a former insurance executive who now heads an industrial research organization.

Palmer's wife, Dorothy, 57, was stabbed to death in their New Vernon, N.J., home on Sept. 29, 1967. Frederick B. Thompson, 36, who once worked on the property as a tree surgeon, was arrested in Chicago about a month later and was convicted last Nov. 21 of the murder and sentenced to death.

Palmer told a news conference, "I had to do something about it. I had a compulsion and a resolve. I talked to people and nobody knew what to do," he said.

He said his organization already had compiled a list of more than 200 projects for communities or individuals to take on. "They range from improvement of street lighting to court-watching, from book mothers to criminology scholarships, from community business protection to youngsters on probation," he said.

The organization hopes to raise $25 million in its first drive, Palmer said. Comedian Bob Hope, honorary national chairman, will kick off the campaign on national television tonight. He will call for contributions from at least 10 million people.

Palmer said he hoped for contributions from foundations and corporations, but that he expected individual contributors to be the biggest source.

He said the organization would print millions of manuals to show how individuals and organizations can fight crime on the local level.

"It is not the interest of Citizens for Justice with Order to address itself to the causes of crime," Palmer said. "We'll leave that to organizations like the Urban Coalition."

"We will try to rebuild respect for law and the need for law."

He said his tours of the country in the past year had shown him that people were frightened and angry about crime, and that their responses could be channeled into constructive action.

"Or it can be the vigilante type, and this is what we don't want," he said.

The group plans local programs to train and hire former convicts, to set up juvenile residential treatment centers, to help find deserting fathers and return them to their families.

No angle parking

A group of downtown businessmen have requested that the city council change from parallel parking to angle parking on several downtown city streets.

The change would add a total of 91 parking spaces to the negligible total of spaces downtown. However, the additional spaces would not be worth the ensuing traffic slowdown and the increase in danger because of narrower traffic area.

This isn't the first time that the downtown businessmen have tried to influence the city council for their own betterment. It was the businessmen downtown, 20 of them, who threw a road block in front of the city's urban renewal plan. These businessmen filed for a temporary and then a permanent injunction against three of the councilmen for alleged conflict of interest in the urban renewal areas. The injunctions were granted, and consequently, urban renewal ground to a standstill and has remained there for more than one year. On Dec. 13, the Iowa Supreme Court will hear the city's appeal of the injunctions, and possibly, if the injunctions are overruled, the city may have a brighter future.

It is anyone's guess as to why the businessmen tried to get urban renewal stopped. But one outstanding point is that if urban renewal were started, the businesses in the downtown area would be relocated for a period of time. This would move the businesses away from their captive buyers, the University students, and cause a drop in income for whatever time they were relocated.

Another objection these businessmen might have had to urban renewal is the possible loss of location of their businesses. In an urban renewal program, the city purchases the land they intend to renew and then sells that land back to someone for private development. Federal grants aid in the development of some areas, and the entire project works under a master plan that sets forth the city's goals for the renewed area. Some of the choice locations might be lost, but previous city councils have stated a desire to offer the land first to the former owner, second to a local firm or citizen and lastly to an outside group or individual.

The businessmen who petitioned the council for the change in parking are the same group of men who last year approached the council and demanded immediate action on the construction of a downtown parking ramp. The businessmen said they needed to have more parking space available for their customers. Since they needed more space, their rationale went, the city should do something. These businessmen quizzed city council candidates about their opinions on a parking ramp and generally functioned as a very vocal pressure group to get the ramp started.

A parking ramp is included in the city's urban renewal plans, but the businessmen were reluctant to wait for a final decision on renewal. They wanted their parking ramp now, period.

When they were asked about the possibility about the local merchants contributing to the cost of the ramp, these same concerned businessmen turned thumbs down on the proposal.

Their reluctance to help finance a parking ramp is interesting in light of the small contribution to the city's tax base that these businessmen pay. The downtown merchants contribute only seven per cent to the total tax income. In other cities, businesses often contribute as much as 20 per cent to the income of the city. And considering the profits these men must make in the downtown area, a 20 per cent contribution is well within reason.

And now, the businessmen want the city to do more for them by changing the parking on portions of Clinton and Washington Streets. The 91 additional parking spaces would lure more customers into their stores. I really think that this would be the only contribution of the extra spaces.

It's not very hard to see what angle parking in the downtown area would do to the city. On Iowa Avenue, where there is the only angle parking in the downtown area, the traffic is the slowest. On any downtown street, when a car double parks it throws the street into chaos, holds up traffic and causes a general nuisance. With angle parking, the situation would be far worse.

In fact, five years ago, the city decided that angle parking was dangerous and changed to parallel parking in exactly the same areas the businessmen seek to change.

But as equally important as the increased danger of the change in spaces is the fact that the businessmen are trying to influence the city council on matters that are strictly of their own concern. The city council is supposed to act in the interest of all citizens. A profit motive of one particular group is simply not in the general interest.

If the businessmen want more parking spaces, they should be prepared to help finance them. Very few groups other than the downtown businesses would gain from extra parking spaces of a downtown ramp. And very few citizens will agree that their taxes should be used to entirely finance a ramp that will bring more customers to downtown Iowa City.

Student groups hit Code, praise regents' decision

To the editor:

In agreement with the Graduate Student Senate, the AAUP and other university groups, the undersigned students of the Department of French and Italian condemn the administration's arbitrary alterations and additions to the Code of Student Life that was presented to them by the Committee on Student Life. The actions of the administration are in violation of the "Joint Statement on Rights and Freedoms of Students" (representing the opinions of the AAUP, the NSA and other groups). We support their statement: "The student body should have clearly defined means to participate in the formulation and application of institutional policy affecting academic and student affairs."

We, the undersigned graduate students of the Department of French and Italian, applaud the decision of the Board of Regents to instigate an investigation of the hiring practices of Crescent Electric Company. We encourage the Board to implement its own stated policy of actively "policing" compliance with the Iowa Civil Rights Act of 1965, on the part of companies under contract to the Board. We lend our full support to the efforts of the Afro-American Students Association to end the de facto discrimination in employment practices in Iowa.

'Instructor rating should be done by the students'

To the editor:

A letter in The Daily Iowan of Nov. 27, from Dean Dewey B. Stuit, discusses the possible purposes of the instructor rating project conducted by the University.

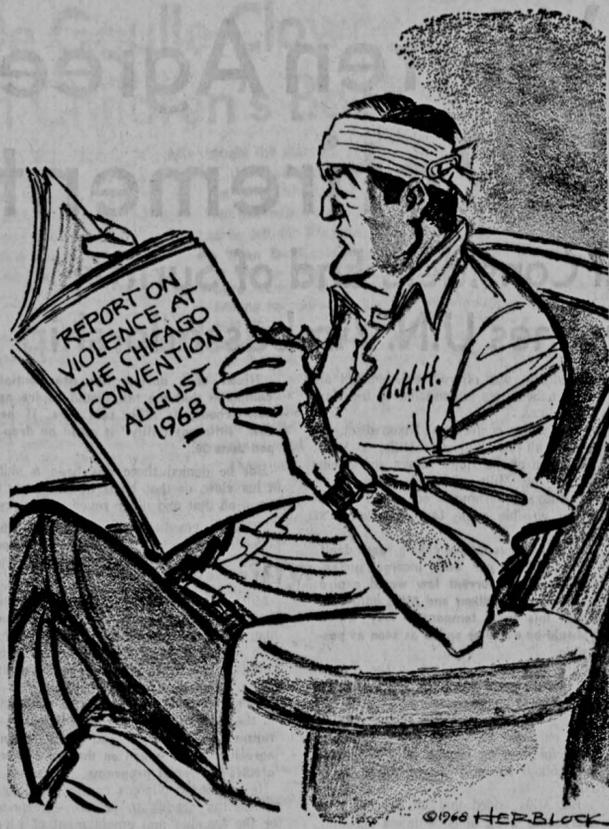

Dean Stuit states his opinion that the instructor ratings are primarily for the benefit of the individual instructor. I would have thought the primary purpose of the ratings was the improvement of the quality of education offered by the University. Viewed in this light, the interests of instructors and the interests of students are not somehow distinct, as implied by Dean Stuit, but are identical. Therefore, whether or not instructor ratings should be published becomes considerably less of a debatable issue.

Having made that point, I would next ask what there is to keep students from undertaking their own instructor ratings. Organizing an instructor rating project would seem to be one excellent method of developing student influence and of gaining greater control over the educational system.

Senator hits administration: 'our first duty is to students'

To the editor:

Jerry Sies, Ken Wessels, and Dan Cheeseman have been charged with violating sections 3, 5, 6, 7, and 16 of the new Code of Student Life. This is odd because these students have already confessed to breaking sections 15 and 17. Before their alleged misconduct on the steps of Old Capitol, they announced publicly that they intended to test sections 15 and 17 by an act of deliberate civil disobedience.

And it is odd that sections 3, 5, 6, 7, and 16 are not the sections presently under contention in the new Code.

Why should Dean M. L. Huit charge students with violating noncontroversial sections of the Code when they have already confessed to breaking two controversial sections?

First, Dean Huit wants to avoid controversy. Second, convinced of the guilt of these students, he is out to get a conviction whether or not the students are properly charged.

I cannot condone either of these, but I can understand the second as power politics, which requires some guts. The first is gutless.

And why were others who participated in the same rally not charged? Dean Roger Augustine explained it this way. There are levels of guilt and complicity. Students who organize an unscheduled assembly are more guilty than those who speak at it who are more guilty than those who give their names who are more guilty than those who merely listen.

This is the same sort of reasoning used by the Johnson County Grand Jury to obtain indictments against Bert Marian and others. Somehow Marian, who allegedly had a megaphone, was more guilty than the other hundred protesters who were arrested.

The evidence of a witch-hunt against student political leaders is clear in both cases.

Student Senate declared last Tuesday night that it will have no part in this dirty business.

The Senate did not say that it felt a Code was unnecessary. It did not say that it would refuse to cooperate in the effort to create a better Code. In fact, it has already made serious recommendations.

What the Senate said was that it would not help enforce any of the Code until the contested parts of the Code were changed. If Dean Huit wants to hang students under the new Code, he will have to do it himself. Student government is not going to help him.

The present rules of CSC require that three students and three faculty members hear each case of alleged misconduct. If our student representatives on this committee agree to support the policy of student government, they will refuse to hear any cases. Any proceedings in their absence would be illegal.

Student government proposes this course of action because it is the only clout students have over the unjust and high-handed behavior of the Administration on the matter of the new Code. Without some student clout over the administration, there is no guarantee that administrators will confine their authority over student affairs to those areas where their concerns are legitimate: namely student growth and the good order of the university. Section 17 shows what happens in the absence of student influence. Section 17 is what the Code controversy is all about.

By refusing to be a part of the Iowa student-leader witch-hunt, the Senate has demonstrated that it believes its first duty is to students, not administrators. It has served notice on the Administration that a new idea is in the wind; that student government exists to provide services to students and that it does not exist to "advise" administrators or regulate student conduct when administrators choose to delegate authority.

We are responsible and principled; our administrators are not. That is the lesson of the Code controversy. That is the significance of an administrative policy which sacrifices student rights to the juggernaut of public relations.

'University is not interested in that anachronism, freedom'

To the editor:

Having attended two meetings of the Afro-American Students Association, it occurs to me that this University is not interested in that great American anachronism, freedom. It appears that the education is designed, as in the 12 years one suffers before being admitted through the promising portal of "higher education," to encourage myths, maintain distortions of history, and carefully select that which reinforces old beliefs and ideas, rather than that which questions and promotes criticism and inquiry.

The irony is that, 14 years after the school desegregation decision, and after Rosa Parks refused to move from the front of a Montgomery bus, and after Martin Luther King has been murdered, and after Medgar Evers' murder, and after all the violence and murder, after 350 years of unrelenting brutality against and subjugation of the black man in America, a group of students could get together in Shambaugh Auditorium, Iowa City, Iowa, and talk "reasonably" about the fact that black people are discriminated against here, in the so-called "Athens of the Middle West."

The miracle is that they allowed white students in the door, that no one shot me when I questioned them and heckled one of their speakers, because one does as one is taught to do (We are a nation that worships the frontier tradition, and our heroes are those who champion justice through violent retaliation against injustice, wrote Martin Luther King in Why We Can't Wait.)

The Afro-American Students Association is protesting against discrimination in employment which is encouraged by this University in the form of signing contracts with companies who are not concerned with keeping America at least together, if we can't be free. The under the tea by Mike Lally

"You were wondering perhaps how come curly hair is again fashionable?" According to Susan Suthem in the National Guardian and an advertisement by National Distillers and Chemical Corporation used in business magazines the reason is very simple: profits.

The ad points out that the "essential ingredient in most personal aerosol products is the anhydrous ethyl alcohol... and, since National Distillers and Chemical Corp. is the nation's largest merchant supplier of ethyl alcohol, chances are pretty good that every time a girl sprays her hair, she's adding a little to our profits."

The ad ends with the message: "The more girls who set their hair, the brighter the future looks at National Distillers and Chemical Corp."

Susan Suthem ends her comment on the ad with this message: "Moral No. 1: wear straight hair and fight the profit system. Moral No. 2: get rid of the profit system and wear any kind of hair you like."

Speaking of hair, "our" Student Senate passed a bill providing for an $80-a-month salary for the Student Body President beginning next term. Last year the election was between two students who both supported the student body and senate-supported constitution which was to end once and for all the administration's interference in the private affairs of students. Ken Wessels was going to do this by doing it, with the support of the student body who voted the constitution valid. Carl Varner was going to do it "responsibly."

It became evident to many in the Student Senate and in the student body that Carl Varner was not prepared to back up his promises since there was no way he could oppose the administration and still be "responsible."

Meanwhile the defeated candidate for Student Body President, Wessels, has gone ahead and acted according to the wishes of the student body, as expressed in their 2-1 acceptance of the new constitution. He has acted as though that constitution were in effect. He is not merely being harassed for this, he is obviously, along with others, going to be persecuted for it.

One of the instruments the administration will use in persecuting Wessels and others will be the Student Senate, by having the Student Senate justify the administration's actions, by changing the constitution students had voted for, etc. The main instrument will be Carl Varner, who represents the "student" (read: administration) viewpoint to the press, the legislature, the faculty, the Student Senate, and back to the students themselves, so that we end up with Varner telling students that what they want is what they voted against, and what they're not going to get is what they voted for, and claiming this, fellow students, is a measure of "student power."

So next year we may all be helping to pay (it comes out of our tuition) for the maintenance of an administration tool which may be used against us, and as usual we won't have a damn thing to say about it.

same men who scream about the threat of communism declare that black men have no right to work, to live, to die in a manner compatible with the Constitution which provides for their hour in the suburbs.

The enemy is too visible to be seen, but it will be felt when America is no more. It is bigotry which is destroying this country, racism which threatens to destroy everyone, not the bomb, not subversion, not even the Vietnam war, simply the fact that men say you are black and I am white, therefore you are, as Ralph Ellison said, invisible.

In Prague the university students are protesting, and there are tanks in the streets waiting to murder them. In Mexico City students are massacred by the army for protesting. In France the students strike for the working man. In Vietnam students question the government, and are either shot or imprisoned.

It seems that the least we can do, with only the campus police and a possible investigation confronting us, on this campus is to back our black brothers in their attempt to acquire at least some form of justice here, now, on this earth, in this country, and in this town which makes its living off a university that has no claim to greatness, no right to recognition, no right even to exist, if it can't be just, comply with the law, and cease defying the students, the people of this state and country, and setting an example of racial policy for other institutions and individuals to imitate.

There are no tanks, no flame throwers, no execution walls facing us students, just a simple choice. Do we want to live in a lie? Perhaps it is too late, but the only thing which faces us is conscience now, or, most likely, civil war in the future.

D.M. Cops Name Suspect in Murder

DES MOINES (AP) — Police launched a "massive manhunt" Wednesday for a St. Louis, Mo., man, described as armed and dangerous, after issuing a warrant charging him with the brutal murder of a Des Moines high school girl.

The suspect was identified by Des Moines Police Chief Wendell Nichols as Michael Charles Niccum, 23.

"We know without a doubt that this is our man," Nichols said. Niccum is believed to be in Iowa or Missouri, he said.

He is accused of wielding the golf club which police say was used to murder 17-year-old Linda Boothe two weeks ago at a dry cleaning center in Des Moines where the pert blonde was night attendant.

Miss Boothe, who formerly lived in Iowa City, was found unconscious and bleeding in the back room of the center with the head of the club resting on her chest. She died two hours later.

A woman who worked next door in a sporting goods shop said she heard screams and went to investigate.

"I could hear him beating on her and I couldn't get in. I beat on the door and all I could hear was this thud, thud, thud..." she said.

Joining the two-week search for clues to the murder were agents from the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation and a number of highway patrolmen, friends of Highway Patrol Lt. and Mrs. Arliss Boothe, parents of the slain girl.

Western Governors Speculate On Nixon Cabinet Appointees

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Some western Republican governors boosted their defeated colleague, Tim Babcock of Montana, for U.S. interior secretary Wednesday as the chief executives discussed President-elect Nixon's future cabinet.

"I know several governors are supporting Gov. Babcock for secretary of interior," said Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon, who said the job has "traditionally gone to a westerner."

Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said he supported Babcock. The Montanan, defeated for re-election in November, said he expected to talk to Nixon about the job when the incoming president arrives at the Republican Governors Association meeting Friday.

Thirty-one Republican governors and governors elect, along with two who were defeated in November, were arriving for the post election meeting. The main item on the agenda of formal meetings beginning Wednesday was federal-state relationships. But the bulk of questions at a series of airport news conferences dealt with the new cabinet.

State Names 8 Firms In Price Fixing Suit

DES MOINES (AP) — Eight plumbing manufacturers have been charged by the state with price fixing — and the attorney general's office said Wednesday it may file a suit against water faucet manufacturers.

The suit filed in Federal Court against the plumbing manufacturers alleges they engaged in an "unlawful combination" to conspire to fix prices on enameled cast iron and vitreous china plumbing fixtures.

It asked for financial damages but didn't name a figure. The suit included a request that the state be allowed to amend its petition later when it can arrive at a figure.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Roger Ivie said he would seek to examine the files of the defendant companies to determine how much they charged contractors who installed fixtures in university dormitories, state office buildings and other public buildings built between 1962 and 1966.

University Student Hurt In Motorcycle Accident

A University student was treated and released from General Hospital following a motorcycle accident early Wednesday morning.

Gordon Sneed, 21, Green, suffered contusions when his motorcycle went into a ditch on Sand Road near Gay's Locker at 1:20 a.m.

A witness told The Daily Iowan that Sneed apparently thought he was going to be hit by a car leaving Gay's Locker and swerved into the other lane. A car approaching in that lane forced him into the ditch.

City, Coralville Doubt Chance Of Supervisors To Stop Pact

Iowa City and Coralville have both agreed to sign an agreement settling annexation disputes and there appears to be little chance of stopping the agreement.

Speculation that the agreement might run into trouble arose after Iowa City consented to the pact Tuesday night. It looked as if the Johnson County Board of Supervisors might try to block the agreement.

At a public hearing held on the matter at Tuesday's City Council meeting, County Atty. Robert W. Jansen questioned whether effluent from Coralville's proposed sewage treatment plant would be dangerous to farmers living downstream from the plant. Outflow would be discharged 8,000 feet below the plant into Old Man's Creek.

Jansen asked the council to delay formal signing of the agreement, currently scheduled for Dec. 17, until the supervisors have had time for further study of the question.

However, Coralville is urging early signing of the agreement so that it may begin construction of the treatment plant.

Coralville has signed a contract with the University agreeing to treat sewage from the University's Oakdale complex. The agreement with the University requires that a contract be let for the plant by Feb. 1.

However, before this can be done, injunctions filed by Iowa City and Johnson County that bar Coralville from constructing its plant must be lifted.

Thus it seems possible that court battles between the county and Coralville could arise if the treatment plant does not meet county approval.

Iowa City no longer has objections to the plant and would not be involved in any further fighting about it.

What both Iowa City and Coralville do want, however, is to sign the annexation pact.

Both City Manager Frank Smiley and Coralville City Atty. Donald Diehl were optimistic Wednesday that the pact could be signed on schedule in spite of any action on the county's part.

Diehl said a meeting with county officials early next week would likely iron out any differences between the city and county.

Stolen Car Found Parked in Cop Lot

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — A state trooper standing in the Salem police station heard a broadcast of a car theft Wednesday, peered into the police parking lot and spied the missing automobile.

Recalling two youths had pushed it into the lot, police began a search and arrested Danny Ray Madden, 21, and Ronnie Dale Cowgill, 19, both of Rockford, at a filling station where they were seeking a mechanic's help.

Madden and Cowgill were charged with stealing the car of Ronald L. Walker of Centralia, Ill., from its parking space at a bowling alley near Centralia. Walker's report of the theft was broadcast over police radio and heard by the trooper in Salem.

Hawks Trample Northern Michigan 99-69

By TIM BROSS
Iowa's Hawkeyes, apparently stung by Coach Ralph Miller's criticism of their play in last Saturday's season opener, raced to an easy 99-69 victory over winless Northern Michigan Wednesday night in the Field House.

The Hawks took advantage of ice-cold shooting by Northern Michigan in the first half to build up a 47-22 lead at the intermission and, with the aid of a six-point spurt in the first minute of the second half, were able to coast to the victory.

Glenn Vidnovic led Hawk scorers with 23 points and turned in a fine all-around game. The 6-5 junior forward hit 7 of 8 field goal attempts and also picked off 12 rebounds to lead the Hawks in that department. Chris Phillips chipped in with 18 points, 12 in the first half.

Northern Michigan's scoring was led by Ted Rose's 28 points, many of which came against Hawk substitutes in the second half.

Iowa jumped out to a 11-2 lead in the first half on four free throws by Vidnovic, two by Chad Calabria, one by Dick Jensen and field goals by Phillips and John Johnson.

The Wildcats, who shot only 27.3 per cent in the first half, didn't get a field goal until the game was nearly five minutes old.

The Hawks, led by Phillips and Calabria, pushed their advantage to 21-5 eight minutes into the first half.

Vidnovic and Jensen then got into the act as the pair combined for 9 points, Vidnovic contributing 7 and Jensen 2.

Northern Michigan was able to keep pace with the Hawks in the middle of the first half, as the Hawks let up in their overall play and Wildcat shooting warmed slightly.

Chris Phillips gave the Hawks a 20 point advantage, 36-16, with five minutes left in the half. Jensen countered a Northern Michigan goal with 4:30 left as did Phillips a minute later to make it 40-20.

The Hawks pushed their lead to 25 points at the end of the first half on goals by Phillips and Johnson, and free throws by Omar Hazley and Calabria.

In the second half, the pressing Hawkeyes scored quickly and easily against the harrassed Wildcats. The squirming, diving Vidnovic banked in four goals and Calabria and Jensen, one apiece, as the Hawks rushed to a 59-27 lead after three and one half minutes in the second half.

Iowa retained its margin as Jensen was joined by Johnson in the next three minutes. Johnson came alive for six straight points and a Calabria tip-in gave the Hawks a 73-33 advantage with 13 minutes left in the game.

Miller then began to substitute freely, with reserves Tom Schulze and Hazley looking strong. Schulze bagged three field goals in the final 12 minutes.

Johnson gave the Hawks their biggest lead, 44 points, on a lay-up with 11 minutes left to make it 80-36.

Northern Michigan rallied to close the score to 80-44 but a spurt of 8 points gave the Hawks an 88-44 lead with seven minutes left.

Baseball Strike Threat Brews

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A threatened strike by major league baseball players brewed to potentially dangerous proportions Wednesday when the Players Association reaffirmed in a hotly worded statement that the majors' 960 players had been asked not to sign their 1969 contracts.

The statement, read to the press by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, charged that players had been subjected to various pressures in an attempt to get them to sign their contracts.

The major issue in the dispute between the players and the owners centers around the players' demands for increased pension benefits, based on a rise in baseball's new television contract from $36 million to just under $50 million.

The statement said in part: "Some of the clubs, but not all, have engaged in a program of pressuring players in an attempt to have them sign contracts. Young players have been told to sign now or play in the minor leagues next year."

"Others, who are close to vesting under the pension plan, have been told that they will never get the necessary five years of service unless they sign. Veterans have been told that baseball has along memory and that if they refuse to sign now, they should forget about staying in baseball after their playing careers have ended."

The players have been trying to use their contracts as the major weapon in the dispute saying they would not sign until the issue was resolved.

Miller, however, held out hope that the issue could be resolved.

"There is ample time to resolve this," he said. "It is our hope that we can resolve this as soon as possible. But we don't even know how far apart we are because they won't discuss any share of radio and television revenue."

Miller said eight meetings had been held in an attempt to resolve the problem and that a ninth was scheduled for New York Tuesday.

"The club owners' negotiating representatives have been engaging in delaying tactics," the statement said. "They refused to begin benefit planned negotiations until late October and, to date, have refused to make any substantive offer or respond in a meaningful manner to the extensive proposals made by the Association."

Podolak to Play for East In Shrine Game Dec. 28

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Iowa's Ed Podolak was named Wednesday to an end position on a swift East squad to face the West in the Dec. 28 Shrine football game here.

The Hawkeye co-captain, who ranked second in Big 10 in rushing, also caught the eye of East coaches by snaring 12 passes for 188 yards.

Those were in the role of tailback after Podolak switched to that spot from quarterback at midseason.

Another Big 10 star, Michigan's Dennis Brown, was chosen to quarterback the East along with Freddie Summers of Wake Forest.

Also in the East backfield are Big 10 rushing king Ron Johnson of Michigan, all-America Leroy Keyes of Purdue, Perry Williams of Purdue and power-running Charlie Jarvis of Army.

The East's defense will feature Nate Cunningham of Indiana and Tony Kyasky of Syracuse in the backfield, with Noel Jenke of Minnesota and Chip Healy of Vanderbilt to back the line.

Jim Sniadecki of Indiana was chosen as a linebacker, Bob Stein of Minnesota as a defensive end and Al Brenner of Michigan State as a safety.

Allen Says Swim Team Looks Good

By MARY RICHE
Good things may be in store in the near future for the Iowa swimming team, according to Coach Bob Allen.

"I was encouraged by the performance of our freshmen against our varsity squad in a practice meet a couple of weeks ago," said Allen. "We have some outstanding freshmen swimmers."

Allen defined this year's varsity squad as "not large," but strong enough to score more victories than losses in dual meets. More than half of the 16 varsity men are returning letterwinners.

Allen predicted that Indiana, Michigan and Michigan State would once again come out on top in the Big 10 scoring. Those schools also scored at the top in last year's championships held at the University of Michigan. Iowa finished last in the team scoring and has not won a championship since 1938.

A victory in the Big 10 championships in Madison, Wisconsin,

Howe Bags 700th Goal

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gordie Howe, the Babe Ruth of hockey, scored his 700th goal Wednesday night, creating one of the greatest milestones in sports.

The 40-year-old right wing for the Detroit Red Wings drove a 30-foot shot head-on past Pittsburgh Penguins' goalie Les Binkley at 7:13 of the first period. It got no more than two inches off the ice and made the score 1-1.

next March is the goal of the Hawkeyes, according to Allen, now in his 11th year as head coach at Iowa.

Allen said the first semester meets with Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan State would be the toughest. Those meets will be here Dec. 14 and Jan. 18 in the Field House.

The distance free style and breast stroke events will be Iowa's strongest categories, according to Allen, who singled out the following Hawkeyes as strong performers in their categories: Rick Nestrud, 500 and 1000-yard free style; 200-yard butterfly John Mummey, all free style distance events; George Marshall, individual medley relays; 100-yard style; Rick Carter and Craig Smith, sprinters; Terry Swanson and Jim Cartwright, divers.

Linkletter To Talk Here At 8 Tonight

Television and radio personality Art Linkletter will speak here tonight on "The Tube" and American Manners, Morals, and Politics."

Linkletter will speak at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom and will participate in a question-answer forum afterward. A reception for Linkletter will be held at 9 p.m. in the Ballroom.

Linkletter's talk is free to the public, but Union Box Office workers said Wednesday that all tickets had been distributed. They advised persons without tickets to come anyway, since it was not likely that all ticket-holders would come.

Linkletter, familiar to millions of TV viewers and radio listeners because of "Art Linkletter's House Party" and "People are Funny," has said he "learned quickly that young people should be given a chance to speak and be heard."

"You may not agree with all their ideas, but the fact that they do have strong opinions means that they are thinking seriously about life," he said recently.

Question and answer exchanges after his talks at other schools have covered topics ranging from LSD to Vietnam.

His appearance tonight is sponsored by the Contemporary Affairs area of Union Board. It is paid for by the RC University Series, a public affairs program of the Royal Crown Colo Co. Friday Linkletter will appear at Drake University in Des Moines.

S.F. Student Strikers Forced out by Police

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police drove about 1,000 strike demonstrators off the San Francisco State College campus Wednesday in a peaceful show of force.

There was no renewal of Tuesday's wild melee in which strikers stoned police and were beaten back with nightsticks.

Marching eight abreast around the college quadrangle, the demonstrators had been chanting "Shut it down, shut it down, pigs off campus."

S. I. Hayakawa, new acting president of the college which has been in turmoil since Nov. 6, warned them over a public address system to disperse or police would be called.

About 500 policemen, who had been held in readiness off the campus during the week's quietest morning, then marched in.

As the police advanced, the demonstrators retreated.

Police Lt. James Curran with a bullhorn ordered the crowd to disperse, and the demonstrators moved off college property and across the street.

Through the morning, classes and atmosphere at the 18,000-student college had been normal.

Best estimates of the active strike leaders have ranged from 200 to 300.

The Black Students Union, which provoked a month of unrest and violence by calling for a classroom strike, is supported by the Students for a Democrat-

Missile Hits Recon Plane Over North

SAIGON (AP) — Soviet-made surface-to-air missiles (SAM) damaged a U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane and narrowly missed another over North Vietnam Tuesday, the U.S. Command reported Wednesday. Both planes made it back to their carriers.

It was the second time since all attacks on North Vietnam ceased Nov. 1 that the telephone pole-sized SAMs had opened up on U.S. planes over the North.

Fragments from an exploding SAM slashed 15 holes in the belly of a Navy RASC Vigilante but neither crewman was injured and they landed their plane aboard the carrier Ranger, according to reports.

The second SAM exploded several hundred feet from a Navy RF8 Crusader but it escaped unscathed, made a photo run and returned to the carrier Coral Sea.

Both reconnaissance planes were unarmed and armed fighter-bombers flying escort did not attack the SAM bases, a Navy spokesman said.

There was little action aground. Early Wednesday, North Vietnamese gunners fired 100 rounds of mortar shells into the night position of U.S. 1st Air Cavalrymen 56 miles northwest of Saigon, wounding 18 Americans, according to reports.

The North Vietnamese reportedly retreated toward the Cambodian border 11 miles away under heavy air and artillery fire. U.S. headquarters said a sweep of the battlefield turned up 37 enemy bodies.

A U.S. spokesman said two helicopters were shot down in other actions in the air cavalry operating area Monday and Tuesday, and five Americans were wounded. This brought to 946 the number of U.S. helicopters downed by ground fire in South Vietnam since 1961.

Heart Man Sees Progress

By CHARLA COLE

He looks like the kind of man you could trust with your life, and people do.

Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz performed the first heart transplant operation in the United States, three days after the world's first heart transplant took place in Capetown, South Africa. That patient died, however, as did a second transplant patient Kantrowitz worked on soon after.

The gray-haired medical pioneer is far from discouraged, however.

In an interview Wednesday, Kantrowitz said the medical profession was on the edge of man's knowledge about transplants, but that doctors could not wait until all the legal and medical aspects of the operation were "safe."

"Patients are dying and they need help now," he said.

Kantrowitz was on campus Tuesday and Wednesday to talk to students and staff of the College of Medicine. He spoke Wednesday night at the Johnson County Medical Society meeting.

He said the chance for successful heart transplants had been increased greatly because surgeons no longer have to wait until the donor's heart stops beating.

"Doctors always know that death is not a sudden thing," he said. "It occurs in stages. Sometimes the hair and fingernails, for example, continue to live and grow for several hours following death."

"Doctors have agreed to define death as the point when the brain dies," he continued, "so it is possible to remove the heart and place it in the recipient's body while it is still beating. This reduces the risk."

He said doctors had agreed on this definition because after the brain had been dead for more than a few minutes, the patient was essentially dead, though his heart might continue beating.

"The lawyers now have to catch up to the medical profession in defining death," he said.

Kantrowitz is scheduled to appear before a governor's commission on his return to New York to discuss revamping that state's legal definition of death.

He said the problem of time of death was a medical issue, not a moral one, and he said he hoped theologians and others who were concerned with what they called "moral implications" of transplants would come to accept the medical viewpoint.

He said there was no question of doctors having to decide whether to save the patient or the donor, because an entirely separate medical team treated the two individuals.

"The donor's doctors are interested in doing everything they can for him," he said, "and the recipient's doctors have the same interest in him."

"So when the donor's team decides they have done all they can for him, and pronounces him dead, the other team takes over," he added.

The problem of rejection, when the recipient's body tries to destroy the foreign heart, has not been solved, according to Kantrowitz. This is the reason one "new heart" cannot last longer than five years. During this time the body is trying to destroy the alien heart and eventually succeeds.

Cost would seem to be a major factor in operations of this kind, which involve as many as 30 doctors at one time, but Kantrowitz said none of the United States' patients have had to pay for their operations.

He said grants from the United States Public Health Service's National Heart Institute had supported all the research done on heart transplants in this country, including the operations.

Kantrowitz added that, although technically Dr. Christiaan Barnard of South Africa was the first to perform the operation, most of the actual research had taken place in this country. He said Barnard had come to the United States to see what research was going on in medical centers such as Stanford University Medical Center in California and Kantrowitz' hospital, Maimonides Medical Center in Brooklyn.

"Then Barnard went home, experimented on some animals, and performed the first human heart transplant," he said.

However, Kantrowitz emphasized, "I am not trying to downgrade what Barnard did. He was the first man to have had enough courage to try it."

Kantrowitz voiced stern objections to any governmental attempt to regulate transplant operations, saying, "Medical people are best qualified to decide medical matters such as this."

Heart Surgeon Visits UI

Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, the first United States surgeon to perform a heart transplant operation, lights his pipe before addressing the faculty and students of the College of Medicine Tuesday afternoon. Kantrowitz was in town Tuesday and Wednesday and spoke at a meeting of the Johnson County Medical Society Wednesday evening.

Orbiting Observatory To Boost Astronomy

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — A new era in astronomy could dawn Saturday when the space agency plans to orbit a new $80 million satellite to give man his first clear look at thousands of stars and provide clues to the origin of the universe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Wednesday officially rescheduled the launching of its Orbiting Astronomical Observatory 2 for 3:40 a.m. Saturday. The 4,400-pound payload has been grounded for nearly a month by a series of problems with guidance devices aboard its Atlas-Centaur booster rocket.

Orbiting Observatory To Boost Astronomy

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — A new era in astronomy could dawn Saturday when the space agency plans to orbit a new $80 million satellite to give man his first clear look at thousands of stars and provide clues to the origin of the universe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Wednesday officially rescheduled the launching of its Orbiting Astronomical Observatory 2 for 3:40 a.m. Saturday. The 4,400-pound payload has been grounded for nearly a month by a series of problems with guidance devices aboard its Atlas-Centaur booster rocket.
