Nixon Says Gold Price Is Stable

President-Elect Tries To Stop Speculation

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon acted Wednesday to dampen speculation about the future price of gold, assigning a spokesman to announce that he does not anticipate any shift from the current $35 an ounce.

That statement was supplied as an antidote to soaring gold prices in European markets after David M. Kennedy, the Chicago banker who will be Nixon's secretary of the Treasury, declined to pledge defense of the $35 rate.

It was a chain reaction instructive in the hazards facing an administration poised for office but not yet in charge.

Nixon has instructed his Cabinet selectees to follow his own rule and make no policy statements until the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Kennedy held a news conference Tuesday in Washington and seemed to be trying to follow the rule. "I think it's a wait-and-see period for a few months," he said. But Kennedy also said he wanted to keep his options open and added that the gold price question would be looked into in the coming months.

European dealers took that as a hint that the Nixon administration might raise the official price of gold, thus devaluing the U.S. dollar.

That, in turn, produced a buying wave which sent gold prices to a six-month high.

The flurry produced by Kennedy's comments sent Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press aide, to newsmen with this statement.

"The subject of any change in the price of gold has not been discussed and we do not anticipate any change in the price of gold or in Mr. Nixon's position."

Ziegler said he had conferred with Nixon on the statement and also had talked with Kennedy.

Nixon, on Oct. 26, said, "I see no need for a change in the price of gold."

Since his election he has declined to discuss the matter, in line with his speak-no-policy rule.

CSC Sets Ground Rules For Jurisdiction Hearing

The Committee on Student Conduct (CSC) has set up tentative allocations of times for arguments in the Jan. 8 hearing to determine whether the committee has jurisdiction in the cases of three students and an organization charged with violating the Code of Student Life.

CSC Chairman James Curtis, professor of speech pathology, said Wednesday that Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), the organization charged, would receive a letter today informing the group that one hour had been allocated for their arguments on the jurisdiction question.

He stressed that the arguments should be addressed to the question of whether the Code of Student Life could be considered valid and enforceable. He said the hearing was not to decide the facts of the charges against the organization.

Curtis also said that arguments by SDS could be presented by as many people as the organization wanted to use, and that they could use "any appropriate means for presentation." SDS refused to attend a meeting with the CSC Monday, because all the members were not allowed to attend.

Hearings are scheduled to allocate one-half hour to each of the students charged, one hour for the Office of Student Affairs, which brought the charges, and

With just five more shopping days left till Christmas, even the elements at their worst can't keep shoppers out of the stores. Of course, Wednesday night's rain, bad as it was, wasn't the worst that Iowa Decembers have been known to offer. At any rate, it didn't deter the almost-last-minute Christmas shoppers,

NUC Challenges Right Of CSC to Hear Cases

The New University Conference (NUC) has asked the Committee on Student Conduct (CSC) to dismiss itself and not hear charges against any students charged with violations of the Code of Student Life.

In a statement presented to the CSC

Monday the NUC challenged the right of all CSC members to hear charges. A copy of the statement was read at the NUC meeting Wednesday night in the Union Indiana Room.

The CSC has been asked by the Office of Student Affairs to hear charges against three students — Jerry Sies, A4, Iowa City; Dan Cheeseman, A4, Elkader, and Ken Wessels, A3, Dyersville — of violating the Code in connection with a recent rally and sit-in staged on campus.

The CSC has since delayed the hearings until at least Jan. 13 while it hears discussion on the question of whether it has the jurisdictional power to try students under the Code. The CSC has invited written briefs and oral statements from any students and campus groups, and a hearing to determine jurisdiction is scheduled for Jan. 8.

The NUC's challenge was filed on behalf of Sies, who was represented by two NUC members at a meeting of the CSC Friday.

Six faculty members and five students are on the CSC. The NUC listed eight challenges questioning the right of the eleven to serve on the CSC.

- That the willingness of the CSC even to sit in on a jurisdictional hearing in what is a "politically motivated trial" is evidence of prejudice.

- That students and faculty members of the CSC are "precluded by University rules and traditions" from acting in peer relationships and thus students before the committee are not tried by a jury of peers.

- That, since the Student Senate asked the student members not to serve, the five student members are not representing the student body by serving on the committee.

- That the appointments of students Gary Musselman, G, Coralville, and Gary Lane, L3, Riverside, were made in violation of the rules of operation of the Student Senate because they were not approved by a 2/3 majority of the senate. (The NUC has asked Sen. Jim Sutton, G, Iowa City, to submit a statement to the CSC supporting this charge.)

- That Lane, as a research assistant to John W. Larson, attorney for the Office of Student Affairs and assistant to Pres. Howard R. Bowen, may not be a "free agent" able to critically evaluate his employer's arguments.

- That faculty members of the CSC may have been preselected either directly or indirectly by Bowen (here the NUC accuses Bowen of "continual usurpation of faculty rights" by making an "undetermined" number of changes in Faculty Senate appointments).

- That one of two faculty members of the CSC from the College of Law, one of whom is a professor, the other an assistant professor, be disqualified because it can not be assured that the two "can interact in a professional context in complete freedom."

- That James F. Curtis, professor of speech pathology and CSC chairman, was selected "to represent the management rather than the interest of faculty or students."

Howard R. Ehrlich, associate professor of sociology and anthropology and NUC chairman, said that the NUC "is in no way intending to fight any case on its merits."

The CSC has "no business attempting to enforce this kind of code," Ehrlich said, adding that the NUC has no intention of participating in any trials.

He said the NUC would concentrate on the jurisdictional issue and would submit a written brief and argue the issue orally before the CSC.

Senate Boycott Support Comes Too Late to Help

The Student Senate resolved late Tuesday night to support a boycott of University-owned vending machines, but the action came too late to help the apathy-plagued dormitory revolt.

Less than 24 hours after passage of the senate resolution, Associated Residence Halls (ARH), sponsors of the boycott, threw in the towel and called off the snubbing action, just eight days after it had begun.

The senate's resolution came after R. A. Campagna, A2, Cedar Rapids, president of Rionow II men's dormitory, presented a report on the boycott. ARH spokesmen have complained that the price of canned pop and milk dispensed from University-owned machines is excessive.

The resolution was passed after the rules had been suspended so the motion could be acted on immediately. Sen. Rick Knupper, A1, Wilmette, Ill., Rionow II representative, who sponsored the resolution, said he planned to seek formation of a senate committee to investigate the vending machine problem.

Presumably, efforts by the senate to further explore the vending machine situation will continue, despite the ending of the boycott.

In other late business, the senate passed, for the second time, a list of constitutional amendments designed to clear the way for administration approval of the Student Association Constitution. The amendments eliminate the student government autonomy section that the administration refused to approve last spring, and add an extensive student bill of rights similar to the one recommended by the Committee on Student Life.

Constitutional amendments must be passed by a two-thirds vote of the senate in two consecutive sessions to be ratified. The amendments will now go to University Pres. Howard R. Bowen for approval.

The senate voted to send letters to three senators who have exceeded the five absences allowed by the senate bylaws. These senators are now subject to removal from the senate. The three senators are Cindy Dierks, A2, Monticello; Bruce Nieman, G, Iowa City; and Tom Van Gelder, A3, Grundy Center. Miss Dierks represents town women; Nieman, married students; and Van Gelder, town men.

Hazardous Driving Reported in Iowa

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hazardous driving warnings were posted for wide areas of northern and western Iowa Wednesday night as moderate to heavy snow and sleet plastered the area.

The State Highway Patrol said visibility was down to 400 feet in parts of northwestern Iowa. It said travel is not recommended in west-central sections, where highways and interstates are up to 100 per cent snow and ice covered.

The rest of the state had moderate to heavy rain, and highways and interstates were reported wet and becoming slushy. Some icy spots were reported on the roads in the Cedar Rapids-Waterloo area.

The Highway Patrol said the snow area was north and west of a line from Glenwood to Ames to Charles City. Rain covered the southeast half of the state.

The Weather Bureau said the snow would spread across Iowa by morning. Four inches or more of snow were forecast for the northwestern two-thirds of the state by midmorning today, with lesser amounts elsewhere.

ARH Calls Off Drink Boycott

By SHARON STEPHENSON

The nine-day-old boycott of University-owned vending machines ended last night, just 24 hours after the Student Senate passed a resolution to support the boycott.

At a meeting of Associated Residence Halls (ARH), sponsors of the boycott, in the Carrie Stanley lounge Wednesday night, the motion was passed terminating the boycott and calling for the group to work instead through slower administrative channels to lower vending machine prices.

R. A. Campagna, A2, Cedar Rapids, president of Rionow II men's dormitory and chairman of the ARH vending machine committee, cited two factors involved in the boycott's failure to lower prices.

He said the University Vending Service had a monopoly over the "captive audience" of students living in the dormitories. He said the rules against unauthorized selling in the dormitories made it almost impossible for alternative supplies of milk and candy to be set up to compete with University vending machine prices.

Campagna also said student apathy had defeated the boycott. He cited the lack of interest shown by students in backing ARH's boycott appeal.

In commenting on ARH's move to end the boycott, Student Body Pres. Carl Varner said Wednesday night that if the boycott was not working he assumed the best thing to do was to call it off.

He agreed with Campagna that student apathy was a reason for the boycott's failure.

Varner said his biggest objection was in the failure of the Vending Service to tell exactly where the profit from vending operations goes.

He questioned whether private vendors would ever be able to sell in the dormitories. Varner said individuals sold sandwiches and drinks in the fraternity houses.

"It is obviously exploiting a captive market," Varner said, "if the University would not allow selling by private vendors in the dorms."

The boycott, which began at 8 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 10, was aimed at bringing about a 5-cent price reduction in prices charged by the University for milk and canned soft drinks.

Leonard Milder, manager of vending operations, said he could not commit the University to keeping the same quality product now stocked in the vending machines and lower the prices.

Milder and Gerald Burke, director of men's residence halls, were at the ARH meeting last night.

Milder said that as a result of publicity on the ARH boycott, a canned soft drink company from Chicago had called him and offered to sell the University a good quality canned soft drink for a lower price than those now offered.

He said that the Vending Service would have to investigate this possibility further.

Burke said that, rather than price adjustments on milk and canned soft drinks in the middle of the year, he thinks the Vending Service should continue charging the same prices for one calendar year and evaluate them.

FBI Charges 35 Men With Draft Defraudment

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI arrested an Illinois National Guard captain, two sergeants and 24 other men Wednesday on charges of using false notices of membership in the guard to gain draft deferments.

An FBI spokesman, asked if there would be further action, replied simply: "We haven't stopped yet."

Brig. Gen. Richard T. Dunn, head of the Illinois National Guard, offered to help the government in any way he could.

He said that, when a man enlisted in the guard, a form was sent to his draft board to show membership. The government, he added, alleges that such forms were used in this case.

Warrants had been issued for 27 men, accusing them of failing to report to their draft boards that they had not enlisted in the guard. These men range in age from 19 to 25. Most of them are single.

Eight other men were indicted by a federal grand jury in Chicago on charges operating a conspiracy.

Among the eight are Capt. Willis Everett Vivian, about 49, and Sgts. Willie Britton Jr., 37, and Ben L. Cleveland, 51, all fulltime employees of the Illinois National Guard.

Prior to Feb. 1, Dunn said, all were assigned to the Washington Park Armory on the South Side. He said Britton and Cleveland now worked at the Chicago Avenue Armory on the near North Side.

The FBI said the alleged conspiracy involved spurious documents submitted to local draft boards indicating that various selective service registrants were members of the National Guard when, in fact, they were not.

The three guardsmen and the five men indicted with them were charged with aiding draft evasion, causing false statements to be made to draft boards and conspiracy to violate the Selective Service Act.

The five civilians are Marc Lee Rasnick, 26, employee of a lounge in Miami, Fla.; Nat Sheldon Shapiro, 22, of Skokie, a suburb of Chicago, who works for a manufacturing firm; Paul Michael Diamond, 24, a Chicagoan who works for a distribution company; Gerald Allan Leon, 22, who works for a Chicago liquor store; and Gary Vincent Rodman, 22, employee of a Chicago bank.

NLF to Release 3 U.S. Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — The National Liberation Front (NLF) radio announced today a decision to free three American prisoners and proposed a Christmas Day battlefield meeting with American commanders to discuss details of the release.

Radio monitors, reporting the early morning broadcast, said the NLF also called on the U.S. Command to respect the NLF Christmas cease-fire announced to begin at 1 a.m. Saigon time Dec. 24 and running to 1 a.m. Dec. 27.

The broadcast proposed that the Americans send up to five unarmed representatives to a point 5.8 miles southwest of Tay Ninh City, south of the Vam Co Dong River. This is a marshland area three miles from the Cambodian border and 30 miles northwest of Saigon. It is near a border crossing point used by the NLF.

There was no immediate comment from U.S. headquarters in South Vietnam, but it was noted that in other wars meetings between U.S. and enemy representatives have been held to discuss prisoner exchanges and local truces.

University slated to grow south—

UI's administration has big plans — now if they can just get the money

Legislative priorities

On the editorial page today is the second of a three-part series on the problems of the University in the area of expansion.

In Wednesday's paper, some of the specific requirements for University expansion were listed. To accommodate the 5,000 additional students expected here by 1975, the University must increase its academic space by three million square feet to meet minimum requirements specified by a report on academic institutions.

The University, therefore, if it continues to grow, will have to acquire nearly twice as much space as it now has and, more important, will have to acquire the money necessary to finance new academic structures and improve existing facilities.

Looking at the legislative askings of the State Board of Regents for regents institutions for the years 1951 to 1969, the regents appear to be both receptive and sympathetic to the growing pains of the state schools. However, when the legislative asking are compared to the legislative receipts, a discrepancy of $129,500,000 is found.

Although the legislature continually concerns itself with the quality of education in Iowa, it is reluctant to allocate the funds necessary to improve education.

For the coming biennium, the Regents have requested $84.2 million, $34 million of which is earmarked for the University.

A long-shot bet would be that the next legislature will give the regents the money they are asking for. A safer bet would be that the money requests will be cut substantially.

And yet, while all three universities desperately need money for capital improvements and additions, the legislature has called for a fourth school in Western Iowa. The cost of this school would be nearly $200 million over a 10-year construction period.

To ignore the needs of the existing schools simply to follow an unsubstantiated idea that Western Iowa needs a college is educational suicide.

A fourth state school at this time would be an expensive luxury item. But improvements of the existing schools are necessities.

(Second article in a three-part series on the University's problems and plans for future growth.)

By M. E. MOORE

If, in the future, the University is unable to pull itself out of the straits caused by its present space and financial problems, it will not be because of lack of plans.

In fact, if all the ideas, proposals and blueprints shown in architectural offices and the rooms where the regents and the Planning Committees meet could only reap a harvest of legislative approval, the "catch-up and keep-up" plans of the regents could become a reality.

At present the University has a building program guided by a two-year and a 10-year construction plan. The cost of the 10-year plan, which includes the two-year or 1969-71 biennium plans, has been estimated at more than $126 million, of which $101 million has been requested from the Legislature in the form of capital appropriations with the other $25 million matched by non-state funds.

The two-year plan itself will cost $38.8 million, with $34 million coming from state appropriations and the remaining $4.8 million from outside sources. (See Table)

Work has begun on some of the two-year projects while others are still in the planning stages, but all projects in the 1969-71 biennium have been established on a priority basis.

The 10-year plan is revised every biennium but plans after 1971 are less defined, according to Merritt C. Ludwig, Vice President for Planning.

The specific projects have been identified as to what they are, but we're dealing with much more crude estimates, in terms of what the projects cost, than with the two-year plan," he said.

The buildings on the two-year and the 10-year lists are developed and presented by the Campus Planning Committee, which then makes recommendations for building priority to University Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

The most apparent question dealing with the University's growth is: What and where?

UI To Spread South

Pres. Bowen, in the 1966 President's Report, said: "The University has made it clear to Iowa City officials that it would hope to expand in the area south of the main campus, bounded by Clinton Street, the Rock Island Railroad tracks and the river. The future campus would then lie along both sides of the river from Park Rd. Bridge on the north to the Rock Island tracks on the south.

"The academic campus would be concentrated in the middle of this area and so designed that students could move about from building to building in the allotted interval between classes. The dormitories, recreation facilities, etc., would be located around the campus periphery."

This will depend somewhat, among other things, on the extent of the city's Urban Renewal program, if it ever becomes a reality. The University administration is working closely with city officials in coordinating plans for this effort.

Ludwig said: "As the University develops, it will become a more urban-like place, which means the buildings will be more densely grouped, with more tall buildings, in the range of eight to ten stories, than in the past."

"This way we can maintain the compactness of the campus and preserve the use of land," he said.

"Another thing we'll try to do," Ludwig said, "is devote more resources to campus beautification. Every building built in the block bounded by Court, Harrison, Madison and Capital Streets.

The Hydraulics Lab. addition will be built south of the present building, along the riverbank; the Pre-School Laboratory on Myrtle Ave., near the Student parking lot and the Health Sciences Library on Newton Rd., west of the Psychopathic Hospital.

Parking Space Lost

Other construction projects included on the two-year list will be additions to the present buildings.

The Recreation Building now under construction northwest of the Stadium and the Auditorium-Music Center to be built along the river as part of the Fine Arts Complex are both financed under a separate funding plan.

Basic Science Building to the new Dental Building."

There has been considerable speculation, of late, that the University plans to develop the Lake Macbride area and initiate a physical expansion program at the Oakdale facility, thus creating separate campuses.

This idea is apparently without substance.

No Oakdale Growth Planned

"There are no plans for any new elements moving to Oakdale," Ludwig said, "but what exists out there now will probably continue and in some cases be expanded."

"I don't see it becoming a separate campus," he said.

The University merged with Oakdale a few years ago and such University programs as research and training in agricultural medicine, pharmacology, pediatrics, alcoholism, dentistry and the animal house for medical research are presently located there.

Oakdale was originally a tuberculosis sanatorium and that is still its primary purpose, but no longer is bed rest the only cure for the disease and as a result not as much space is needed by the hospital now to treat patients.

The Oakdale area consists of several acres of land and some of it may eventually be used for housing and some other activities not directly related to medicine. Some of the land may be used for a new golf course.

"The Lake Macbride facility will probably be retained as a combination recreation area-field campus," Connell said. The Botanical Science Department uses the facility to a great extent now, but there are no plans to construct buildings of any sort there, Ludwig said.

The University is limited in what it can do at Lake Macbride because of a 99-year lease it has with the Army Corps of Engineers. "They are interested in maintaining the natural terrain and beauty of the land," Connell said.

The University will eventually construct a new field house-arena, Ludwig said, although such a structure has no status in the present building plans. In fact, the only position it has is the simple recognition that a new one is needed.

When constructed, the facility would be used for purposes other than athletics, such as commencements, speeches and entertainment, and will probably be built on the lower nine holes area of the golf course, according to Ludwig.

The University owns between 700-800 acres of land west of the Coralville cutoff road (now known as Mormon Trek Road) which can be used for expansion purposes.

"This land may be used for additional housing, additional service facilities or a new golf course if the present facilities or other construction projects expand into the existing one," Connell said.

Ludwig had this to say about the University's architectural design, perhaps answering an Oct. 20 charge by the Des Moines Register that "The University... has an architectural scheme that demands the words mismatched and ill-proportioned."

"I'm often asked if the University is planning to unify its architectural scheme and the answer is obviously no, because we can't replace all the present buildings. It's hard to get a harmonious design."

He added: "The principle we follow in architectural planning is to design buildings which represent good quality of contemporary design and in choice of material."

Reader objects to use of 'cop' in DI headline

To the editor: I was rather surprised last week to see on the front page of The Daily Iowan, in bold type, "Deputy Sheriff Given Trophy By Local Cops." But the next day that surprise was replaced by something closer to disgust when I saw the additional headline, "Cops Had Niccum On The Line..."

Police officers are not the most popular men in the world... It seems to me that a newspaper has an ethical duty to not encourage disrespect, which I feel they may be doing by referring to these men as "cops."

Recently I saw a woman lying in the middle of a street with her head split open, having been hit by a car. A police officer was trying to comfort her and bandage her head. Had I been that woman I would have been more inclined to say, "Thank you, sir" rather than "thanks, cop."

'Give the next black person you see a 1-way ticket home'

To the editor:

Tim Bross in his article on the black athletes failed to mention why two of the athletes did not respond to his interview. I think that we didn't respond because we knew he couldn't write an authoritative article. He, being white, couldn't escape from his own interpretation, which as he said was an objective one presenting a black interpretation. Q.E.D. The situation of the black athlete is not the same as the one the writer of the article presented, that of a maze of quotes.

Black people relate to other black people, especially in the way they talk. This is a historic thing going back to the enslavement of black people. In addition black people never tell whites everything because history has shown us that the white man is a faggot, i.e., he will f-k you.

The situation of the black athlete is a situation in which all aspects interrelate. The writer failed to analyze the situation from any standpoint except his own.

The black athlete usually comes from an educationally deprived (by white standards) background. Were it not a scholarship in sports most would not be in college. But because of his OUTSTANDING athletic ability he is given an offer for a FREE EDUCATION. All that is asked in return is his total obedience and divine devotion to his sport.

This is not an exaggeration either. The objective of the Athletic Department is sports — money. Academics come second as long as you are eligible. The question, again, is what exactly is the purpose of a university.

Few black athletes graduate because they are not educated toward a degree but rather toward four years of eligibility in athletics. I believe it is the obligation of the Athletic Department to gear its program toward a degree other than the one earned in the arena.

Social life does not get worse for black people from one year to another. And because there are more of us it is not an indication that things are getting better. Rather there are more of us with nothing to do. Black women make the point that, because of the lack, either us or relevant should be properly landscaped and every building's budget will include funds for this purpose."

The new Basic Science Building will be located in the Medical Center area, just west of Riverside Dr. part of the building will extend onto Newton Rd. causing traffic to be routed around Children's Hospital.

The Library extension will be on the south side of the present building with the additional square footage more than doubling the present capacity.

The College of Nursing will be constructed in the Westlawn Park area now occupied by barracks apartments; the College of Education, in the block south of the Communication Center, and the Social Science Building, south of the English-Philosophy Building in a space now occupied by a parking lot.

The new Administration Building will be

The Fine Arts complex, which will include the new Museum of Art, presently under construction, the existing Art Building with major new addition, the University Theatre and a proposed new foot-bridge, will be "the jewel of the campus," according to Phil Connell, Assistant to the President.

As can be seen from the above, a considerable amount of the present parking space will be lost to the new construction. Parking has been an acute problem at the University for some years now and indications are that it will continue to be.

"The University cannot, in the future, accommodate all the autos on campus. We will need a new policy on parking priorities," Ludwig said.

At present, there are more than 11,000 cars in the University population (students, faculty and staff) with only 5,300 parking spaces. In other words, just about one space for every two cars.

One of the principles governing the University in parking matters is that parking should pay for itself. The regents and the Legislature refuse to allot tax funds for that purpose.

"Because we realize a great deal of parking will be lost if the present building program is carried out, we can assume that most of the parking in the future will be on the perimeter rather than in the midst of the campus," said Ludwig.

"Parking spaces in the midst of the campus and nearest it will be in ramps, while that farthest away from the heart of the campus will be horizontal. A shuttle service would be instituted to provide transportation to the inner campus for those parking in the remote areas," he said.

Perimeter Parking Proposed

A Boston planning firm, retained by the University in an advisory capacity, considers that the ideal way out of this parking dilemma would be the creation of a pedestrian-type campus, which would keep the inner campus mostly for pedestrians and parking on the campus perimeter away from the academic buildings.

"The achievement of a pedestrian campus would mean, among other things, the closing of the Iowa Avenue Bridge to autos," Connell said.

"It would be great, but what about the traffic going and coming across the bridge and on the west side of the river," he said.

Connell said the City has plans to build a bridge which would connect Court Street and Melrose Avenue and would also provide direct access from the west side of the city and campus to the proposed new Administration Building.

Ludwig said he hoped the University could create a pedestrian-type campus but not one that would exclude all autos.

"What we want is to divert all arterial traffic around the campus," he said. Ludwig said approximately 50 per cent of all traffic that comes through the campus does not have a University destination.

"We want a situation where pedestrians take precedence over autos," he said.

"The campus is now laced with too many city streets."

"I think within five to ten years, we'll have a pedestrian campus in the Medical Center," Ludwig said, "with no through traffic on Newton Road from the

'Practical Joke' Results In Arrest of 2 Students

An apparent practical joke has resulted in the arrest of two University students who were charged with setting fire to a friend's room in Quadrangle men's dormitory early Sunday morning.

Rex Weaver, Al Wooster, Ohio, and Jere V. Merical, Al, Van Meter, were arrested Wednesday morning in their room by Iowa City police.

Both students were freed Wednesday afternoon on signature bond.

According to Howard Arbes, counselor of men's dorms, the incident occurred about 12:30 a.m. Sunday, when Weaver and Merical poured lighter fluid onto the floor of a friend's room, and lit it.

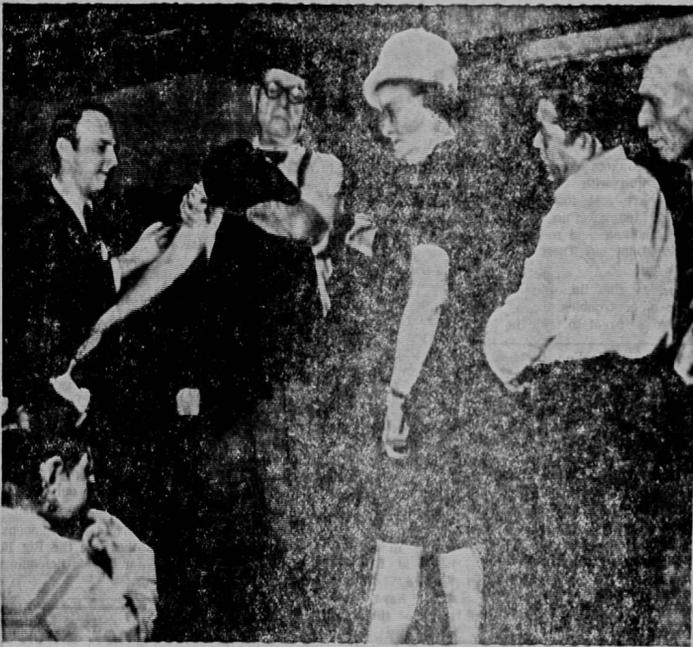

Arbes said the fire damaged part of the door and also burned part of a nearby towel.

Quadrangle head resident, Thomas Shephard, B4, Boxholm, stated that the whole incident was just a prank, and was "blown out of proportion."

Arbes said that rules against setting fires in University buildings were being enforced this year, following a rash of fires that broke out last year in the men's dorms. Arbes said that the fires last year caused the fire officials great concern.

Arbes said the entire incident had taken him by surprise. He said that the first he heard of the fire was Tuesday.

Evidently, said Arbes, Campus Security officers were called in to investigate the matter, and they in turn gave the information to city police who made the arrests Wednesday.

It Only Hurts for a Little While

An unidentified man closes his eyes as Dr. Joel Gitlin (left) of the New York City Board of Health administers Hong Kong flu shots to a line of persons at the East Side Health Center in New York Wednesday. Hundreds of elderly persons jammed the center after the first of 80,000 doses of the scarce vaccine arrived. The shots were being given only to those over 65 and to those with chronic heart and lung ailments since they run the highest risk from flu.

Regional Planners Consider $7-Million 'Shopping List'

The Johnson County Regional Planning Commission learned Wednesday night that construction of water and sewer facilities which will be needed by the county during the next 20 years will probably cost about $7 million.

That figure is based on an exhaustive 40-page report submitted at the regular commission meeting by Powers, Willis and Associates, planning consultants for the commission's comprehensive regional study.

The report will be studied by commission members and discussed at the next session, Jan. 15.

Short-range project recommendations, with completion dates scheduled before 1976, include construction of a complete sewer system in the Lake Macbride area by next year ($445,000) and expanding the Coralville sewage treatment plant by 1975 ($600,000).

Two other major short-range project proposals are to build a $283,000, forced-flow main sewage line south from the River Heights area to Iowa City's treatment plant and extending Iowa City sewerage lines on the southwest edge of the city at a cost of $131,000.

A $1.25 million long-range project list, asks for a $1-million expansion to the Iowa City treatment plant by 1980.

Major short-term water projects include requests for a $850,000 treatment plant in Iowa City by 1972 and an outlay of $600,000 by the end of this year for high capacity storage reservoirs in Iowa City and University Heights.

Complete water systems would also be desirable by 1972 in the towns of Hills and North Liberty, according to the report, and would cost about $225,000 each.

Last on the cost list of needed facilities were long-range water projects. The principal need listed by the consultants was a second expansion of the Iowa City water treatment plant.

The expansion could probably be made by 1980 at a cost of $750,000. Lines south and west of the city should also be extended by then for $300,000, the report said.

A complete water system for Lake Macbride was advised for 1980. The estimated cost will be $316,000.

Police Seek Boy Friend In Kidnaping

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Warrants charging kidnaping and felonious assault were issued Wednesday night for a former boy friend of a 16-year-old girl reportedly taken at gunpoint from her home in suburban Merriam, Kan.

Peggy Thurston disappeared with three men Wednesday morning in what was described to police as an orange 1954 Chevrolet.

Warrants were issued for Mike Kreidler, 18, and two others not identified but believed to be American Indians by their facial appearance.

Police Chief Douglas Baines said in Merriam that the girl's 18-year-old sister, Ruth, told of the men forcing their way into the home after the younger girl had first left to go to a nearby shopping center. Ruth said Peggy had returned, apparently after recognizing one of the men.

Hoffa, in Prison, Wins Re-Election

DETROIT (AP) — James R. Hoffa, imprisoned president of the International Teamsters Union, has won re-election as president of Detroit Local 299 although he won't be eligible for parole until 1970.

Hoffa's new term as Local 299 president runs for three years, and he soundly trounced a rebel group seeking control of the union from which Hoffa vaulted to national office in the Teamsters.

Most poetry written by amateurs probably ends up in either a wastebasket or desk drawer. One alternative to this could be to submit the work to a poetry contest.

The Iowa Poetry Association (IPA) conducts a poetry contest each spring that is open to all Iowa residents.

Out-of-state students who are registered in an Iowa college and live in the state are also eligible.

Mohawks Barricade Bridge

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — Unarmed Canadian police Wednesday arrested 48 Mohawk Indians who formed a human wall and blocked the international bridge linking Canada and the United States.

The Mohawk uprising was in protest of Canada's alleged failure to live up to the 1794 Jay Treaty.

The Mohawks, numbering about 100, blocked the bridge with 25 automobiles. Men, women and children threw their bodies in front of tow trucks sent to clear away the wall of Mohawks and cars.

There were no reports of injuries.

The Mohawks were up in arms over Canada's insistence on collecting customs duties from the Mohawks traveling to and from their reservation on the bridge. The Mohawks contend the bridge is reservation territory.

As the demonstrators carried signs that read: "This is an Indian Reservation, No Trespassing," they confronted police from Cornwall Island, Ontario State Police and Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The Mohawks hold that the Jay Treaty of 1794 — signed by Chief Justice John Jay as a special emissary to negotiate a treaty with Britain — guaranteed the Mohawks the right to travel unhindered from both countries.

The Mohawks had sent a telegram to England's Queen Elizabeth, protesting the Canadian posture on collecting customs duties.

New York state troopers shunted traffic away from the bridge on the American side during the morning.

Protest spokesmen pledged to turn out 2,000 Mohawks for a similar blockade today. There are some 6,000 Mohawks on the sprawling reservation, split about evenly between the American and Canadian sides of the border.

Eisenhower's Brother, Earl, Dies of Heart Attack at 70

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Earl Eisenhower, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 70.

The former president, convalescing at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington from his seventh heart attack, was described as "deeply grieved" by his younger brother's death.

Eisenhower, a former engineer and public relations director, suffered his first attack Monday. He died at 3:15 a.m. Wednesday at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Only three of the seven Eisenhower brothers now survive: the former President; Milton, president emeritus of Johns Hopkins University; and Edgar, 80, an attorney in Tacoma, Wash. Of the others, Roy died in Junction City, Kan., in 1942 of a stroke; Arthur died in Kansas City, Mo., in 1958 of a heart attack; and Paul died in infancy.

After a brief fling at politics in Illinois, Eisenhower retired here in February, 1967. Golf and flower gardening were his main interests. He and his wife lived near their son, Earl Jr., who is with the management system of Motorola's Aerospace Center.

Group to Sponsor Contest, Looking for Original Poems

The contest is composed of three divisions: adult, college, and school, which includes elementary and high school students.

As many as five poems, on any subject may be submitted. The contest rules state that the poems must be original, unpublished material. Authors must submit their own material. Teachers may submit the work of their students, however.

The deadline for submitting entries is Feb. 15. The results are announced by April, 1969.

An out-of-state judge always judges the contest entries.

Man Kills 4 at Xmas Party

CARLINVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A father went berserk during a Christmas party for his children at a welfare agency Wednesday, opened fire with two pistols and killed four persons including his estranged wife, police reported.

Four of his children were wounded, two critically, police said.

The man, identified as Sherman Kline, 38, then drove about 60 miles to a brother's home, and admitted the shootings, the brother said.

Kline rejected pleas that he turn himself in, ran from the house into some woods and shot himself, the brother said.

Kline was in serious condition with a wound in the left side of his head.

Only the wounded children witnessed the shootings, and the motive was not immediately known.

Killed in addition to Mrs. Lorraine Kline were social workers Frank Wildgrube, 25, and Mrs. Bonnie Albracht, 23, both of Carlinville, and receptionist Ann Keppeler, 25, Benld, Ill.

Wounded critically were Michael Kline, 14, and his sister, Diane, 8. Hurt less seriously were Gene Kline, 18, and Judy, 10.

The shootings occurred in the offices of the Illinois Department of Child and Family Services, where social workers had arranged a Christmas party for six of the 10 Kline children.

Carlinville Police Chief Robert Stratton said the agency had brought the children together from six foster homes where they had been living since Kline and his wife separated in May.

Stay Out of Saigon's Politics In Talks, Kissinger Urges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger, President-elect Nixon's new foreign policy adviser, has proposed multilevel Vietnam negotiations and urged that the United States stay out of bargaining over the internal political structure of South Vietnam.

Kissinger's proposal that different combinations of interests should discuss separately the various elements of the Vietnam struggle echoes a suggestion he made more than two years ago.

The Harvard scholar outlined his Vietnam plan in an article to be published Thursday in Foreign Affairs, a quarterly journal.

The article was written before Nixon named Kissinger to be his special assistant for national security affairs earlier this month. Since the appointment Kissinger has declined to discuss his foreign policy views, maintaining that his new job "is inconsistent with making public statements on substantive issues."

Kissinger invited reporters to read his books and articles.

In his latest Vietnam proposal, Kissinger says the United States and North Vietnam should essentially discuss withdrawal of military forces and related subjects, such as guarantees for the neutrality of Laos and Cambodia. South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front (NLF) or Viet Cong, would negotiate the internal political structure of South Vietnam.

The present meeting in Paris among the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the NLF should serve as a prelude to informal and perhaps even secret talks between the two pairs of interests, said Kissinger. A broader international forum would work out guarantees and safeguards for any agreements reached.

Kissinger said the United States should stay out of discussions about South Vietnam's internal political future because it would be the one party least sensitive to the subtleties of Vietnamese politics and would be likely to end up applying most of its pressure on Saigon.

"The result," he said, "may be the complete demoralization of Saigon, profound domestic tensions within the United States and a prolonged stalemate or a resumption of the war."

Saigon Takes Tough Stance

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's foreign minister declared Wednesday night his government never will accept a cease-fire until the last North Vietnamese soldier returns to his own country.

In referring to the Paris peace talks, Foreign Minister Tran Canh Thanh outlined his government's position this way: "We ask for more than a cease-fire. We ask for the stopping of this war. A cease-fire must come after the end of aggression."

The South Vietnamese armed forces can replace the American forces. We do not want to depend on allied forces forever and there is no allied force which can bear this burden forever.

If South Vietnam can be united, he added, "I am sure the Communists cannot take over our country and we can stand alone."

Shortly before Thanh spoke, his ministry issued a communique saying South Vietnam was willing to talk to North Vietnam about truces for Jan. 1 and Tet, the lunar new year Feb. 17. There seemed little likelihood Hanoi will reply.

The ministry said the government would never discuss this matter with the NLF, which already has announced truces of three days each for Christmas, New Year's Day and Tet.

The communique emphasized Saigon would not extend its own announced 24-hour cease-fire Christmas Day because the government has "no confidence in the Communists."

Flu Bug Hits Hawks—

Iowa Meets North Dakota

By MIKE SLUTSKY

Iowa's basketball team, stung by two consecutive road losses and now the flu bug, will try to get back in the win column tonight at 7:30 when they host the University of North Dakota in the Field House.

The Hawks may be minus the services of their Coach Ralph Miller and three of his players, Ben McGilmer, Ron Norman and Chris Phillips due to the flu.

Miller went home sick during Tuesday's practice and has been in bed since. Norman and McGilmer have not been able to eat for two days and have been listed as "doubtful" for tonight's game.

Wednesday night, Chris Phillips came down with the flu and is presently running a high temperature. He has been listed as "extremely doubtful" for tonight's game by asst. coach Dick Schultz.

The Hawks have a 3-2 record, having defeated Cal State at Pomona, Northern Michigan, and Wisconsin (Milwaukee) at home.

North Dakota comes into the Iowa game with a 1-5 record. They have lost four times to Big 10 teams: Purdue, Ohio State, Indiana, and most recently to Minnesota Tuesday night, 77-64.

Besides the flu, the Hawks have other troubles. Iowa, considered a threat to take the Big 10 crown, was upset on the road last week by two Missouri Valley teams, Wichita State and arch-rival Drake.

The Hawks were not at all impressive in their two road losses and Miller thinks his team's deficiencies may all boil down to one thing — the Hawkeyes are simply not in top physical condition yet.

One of the reasons for the Hawks not being in shape may be due to the fact that the team had to practice in the cold for much of its preseason workouts. The Field House's heat, for some reason or another, could not be turned on until only a few days before the Hawks' opening home game.

Miller had earlier said that it was pretty hard to make the team practice for more than an hour-and-a-half in those conditions when it should be working out for at least two hours. Thus, the team lost a lot of valuable practice — besides conditioning — and both deficiencies showed up in Iowa's losses quite noticeably.

Miller's biggest concern though is rebounding — or lack of it. The Hawks, who had controlled the backboards in their three home games, let Wichita and Drake get numerous second and third shots off the offensive boards.

"We made the same mistakes at Drake we made at Wichita," Miller said. "We didn't have time to correct them — that's what happens when you play road games back to back."

Tonight's contest against North Dakota marks the second time in three games that Miller's opposing coach will be an ex-pupil of his. Jimmy Rogers, new coach of the Sioux, was captain of Miller's first Iowa basketball team in 1964-65. Rogers was Iowa's most valuable player two consecutive years.

The Sioux are led by 6-9 center Dave Godfread, 6-5 forward Vern Preus, and 6-2 guard Al Jenkins, a Cedar Rapids Jefferson graduate. All three are scoring in the double figures.

Tom Hanson, 6-7 forward, continues to lead the Hawks in both scoring and rebounding. Johnson is hitting at a 24-point game clip and has pulled down 69 rebounds in Iowa's five games.

Iowa's other starters are also averaging in double figures. Vidnovic is scoring about 16 points a game, Phillips 15, and Chad Calabria and Dick Jensen both 12.

Miller, referring to the Hawks' two setbacks on the road, said that "We're not discouraged about those losses. We learned a lot and now we know the areas of our game that need attention."

"We need a little more time to come around. I think you'll see a lot of difference in our basketball team the next two weeks."

Incidentally, that just happens to be about the time the Big 10 race opens for Iowa's defending co-champions.

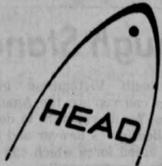

4 Hawks off to Star Games

Iowa's record-breaking tailback Eddie Podolak left Iowa City Wednesday for San Francisco where he will appear in the East-West Shrine Game on Dec. 28. From San Francisco, Podolak will go to Honolulu where he will play in the Hula Bowl game Jan. 4. Coach Ray Nagel and two of his seniors, Al Bream, the all-time Hawkeye pass receiving leader and wingback Barry Crees will leave today for Montgomery, Ala., and the Blue-Gray game Dec. 28.

Graebner Back In Top Form

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Clark Graebner found his explosive cannonball service Wednesday and powered his way back into the Davis Cup picture with three days to go before the final selection of the United States official squad.

If he can maintain the blazing form shown in practice, it appears almost certain he will be reinstated on the team and assigned the No. 2 singles position behind Arthur Ashe Jr., U.S. Open champion from Richmond, Va.

"Graebner is playing very well," said Donald Dell, the U.S. captain. "So, for that matter, is Charlie Pasarell. The second singles place is still very much up for the grabs."

Morrall MVP After 13 Seasons

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Morrall, a 34-year-old traveling man who played quarterback for four clubs during his 13 year pro career before he found a home in Baltimore, was named Wednesday the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League.

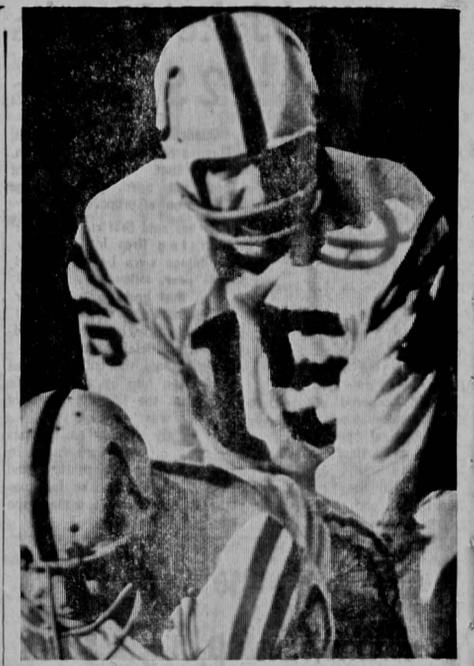

Morrall, who took the Colts to the Coastal Division title and the Western Conference final with Minnesota Sunday, was the overwhelming choice of a 48-man panel of writers and sportscasters, three from each league city, participating in the Associated Press Poll.

Morrall got 33 votes. Cleveland's Leroy Kelley, the rushing and scoring leader placed second in the voting with five, and Bill Nelson, the Browns' quarterback placed third with four.

After years of playing second fiddle for other passers, Morrall came into his own with the Colts and wound up as the top passer in the final league statistics. He completed 182 of 317 for 2,909 yards, averaged 9.18 yards per pass, threw 26 touchdown passes and had 17 intercepted.

The Colts reached out for Morrall one Saturday last August during the exhibition season as insurance in case John Unitas' tennis elbow failed to come around. As No. 2 quarterback with the New York Giants behind Fran Tarkenton, the Giants had figured they could well afford to trade him.

Hot Bulldogs Invade Ames

AMES (AP) — Iowa State will assume the role of avenger here Thursday night and attempt to drop Drake from the ranks of the unbeaten in basketball.

Cyclone Coach Glen Anderson said Wednesday he hoped the confines of the ISU Armory and renewal of a hot feud would help his team overcome the role of underdog.

At the same time, however, Anderson cautioned that Drake, which has won four games, is the finest Bulldog team he has seen. "They aren't going to lose many games," he said in reference to an opponent boasting five players in double-figure scoring. Illinois, which last week overpowered Iowa State, 75-48, "played extremely well against us," Anderson said.

"We got a little air taken out of our sails," he said, "and we were still down a little bit on the floor when we played Northern Illinois Monday."

Preceding the Illinois defeat and a 78-65 setback at Northern Illinois, Iowa State had surprised by opening with five straight triumphs.

Although Iowa State will give away height to its foe as usual against Drake, the Bulldog advantage could be trimmed if 6-8 senior center Garry Odom does not start.

Drake Coach Maury John said Wednesday that Odom has been ailing with the flu. "He may play," the coach added, "but I don't know how much good he will do us."

There have been 124 games between the rivals, with two-game series having been divided annually since Drake swept a pair in 1965-66.

Willie McCarter's 18.7 scoring and Willie Wise's 14.2 rebounding pace Drake, while junior center Bill Cain is Iowa State's pacesetter with a 21.9 point average.

12 of 22 Stars Picked by AP In Playoff Action

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve of the 22 men picked for the National Football League All-Star teams will be in action Saturday and Sunday in the conference playoffs involving the Dallas Cowboys at Cleveland and the Minnesota Vikings at Baltimore.

The team, selected for the Associated Press by a 48-man panel of sports writers and sportscasters, three from each of the 16 league cities, was announced Wednesday.

Dallas and Baltimore each placed four on the team and Cleveland and Minnesota each had two. Ten of the 16 teams had players on the first teams and, for the first time in recent memory, there were no Green Bay Packers although guard Jerry Kramer, linebacker Dave Robinson and safety Willie Wood were voted to the second team.

A fan who had been secluded in Outer Mongolia for a year would probably be amazed to find Earl Morrall as the No. 1 quarterback. Traded to Baltimore by the New York Giants during the training season, Morrall stepped in when John Unitas' elbow failed to come around. The veteran backup man took the Colts to the Coastal Division title and was named the league's MVP Wednesday.

Leroy Kelly, Cleveland's fine running back who won the rushing title for the second straight year with a career high of 1,239 yards, repeated along with Gale Sayers, the Chicago Bears fabulous runner who was cut down by a knee injury Nov. 10.

Rob Hayes of Dallas is the split end and Clifton McNeil of San Francisco is the flanker. McNeil was traded from Cleveland to the 49ers shortly before the season opened. John Mackey of Baltimore again was picked as the tight end.

Piz Bob Brown of Philadelphia regained a starting tackle job despite the Eagles' lousy finish. He had missed much of last season due to injuries. Ralph Neely of Dallas, was picked as the other offensive tackle.

Gene Hickerson of Cleveland and Howie Mudd, San Francisco, are the guards. Mick Tingaloff, key man on the Minnesota Vikings' offensive line, recaptured his center job.

The repeaters are Mickey Kelly, Hickerson, Sayers and Neeley.

Three of the front four on defense repeated — end Deacon Jones and tackle Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles and tackle Bob Lilly of Dallas. Carl Eller of Minnesota moved in at defensive end, displacing Willie Davis of Green Bay.

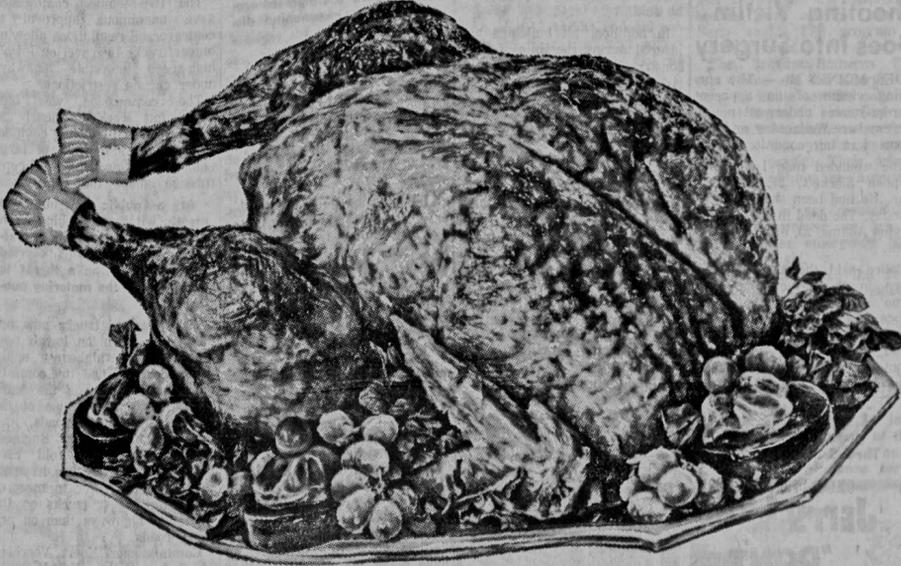

Dick Butkus of Chicago, is the middle linebacker, flanked by Chuck Howley of Dallas and Mike Curtis of Baltimore.

Bobby Boyd of Baltimore, a baldish veteran, and Lem Barney of Detroit, a spry sophomore, are the two corner backs. Larry Wilson, the old dependable free safety of the St. Louis Cards is joined by Eddie Meador of the Los Angeles Rams.

The defensive repeaters are Jones, Olsen, Lilly, Howley and Wilson.

Kelly was the top vote getter with 45 of a possible 48.

Policies Don't Cover Students' Property— UI's Buildings Insured 3 Ways

By KATHY OGILVY
If a fire alarm at one of the dormitories turned out to be real rather than a drill or a false alarm, and if there were extensive damage, residents would soon find out that the University insures its own property only.
All University buildings are insured in one of three ways—either by a state self-insurance program or by regular property insurance or by builder's risk insurance if construction is under way, according to Michael Finnegan, assistant business manager of the University. However, none of the insurance covers students' personal property.

All academic and administrative buildings are covered by Iowa's self-insurance program, said Finnegan.

Self-insurance covers all state-owned buildings and their contents, Finnegan said. He added that this policy also applied to all other state colleges and universities in Iowa.
The State Executive Council, including the state's governor, treasurer, secretary of state, auditor and secretary of agriculture, is in charge of the self-insurance program. The money to pay insurance claims under this program comes from the State Contingency Fund.
As an example of how the self-insurance program works, Finnegan cited a recent fire in the University's laundry services building.

"In this case, there was damage to the building and to equipment contained in the building," Finnegan said.
"We submitted a claim to the executive council for reimbursement for loss (repairing and replacing). The council considered our request and passed a resolution to allocate funds from the Contingency Fund," he said.
"I assume that payments on claims would be limited by the amount of money in the Contingency Fund. If there were not enough money available there, then the state legislature would consider the loss at its next session," Finnegan said.

On the other hand, all self-supporting University buildings are insured by a private insurance firm, Finnegan said. Buildings covered by such a policy are the dormitories, the Union and all athletic buildings. Their appraised value is a little less than $50 million.
Property insurance covers fire, malicious mischief, vandalism and lightning. It does not include theft insurance, but it does reimburse for business interruption.
Finnegan said theft insurance would not be practical on the buildings, since the exposure to theft was so slight.
"If, for example, a chair was stolen from one of the dorm lounges, the loss would be absorbed in the finances of the dorm system itself," Finnegan said.

There is no University insurance coverage of personal belongings of dormitory residents, however. The policy includes only the dormitories and their contents.
Finnegan said that at one time the policy was more comprehensive and did cover students' personal possessions. He said that since the possessions of students were covered in some family home-owner's policies, that section of the University policy was discontinued.
"We believed there was no need for double coverage," he said.

Insurance contracts to cover the self-supporting buildings are awarded on the basis of quotations received from insurance agencies in accordance with specifications set by the University, Finnegan said.
In addition, all buildings are insured during the time of their construction through builder's risk insurance.
"But this coverage stops when the building is completed and accepted by the University," Finnegan said.

SEASON'S GREETINGS—
BALTIMORE (AP)—A bandit with yuletide greetings robbed the Loyola Federal Savings and Loan Association of $1,400 Tuesday. Police said the man walked up to Linder Myers, 21-year-old teller, and gave her a note saying: "To save time, place 100, 50, 20 and 10 dollar bills in this bag. Wait five minutes before calling the police. Thank you, and Merry Christmas."

Shooting Victim Goes into Surgery
DES MOINES (AP)—The surviving victim of an apparent murder-suicide underwent neurosurgery here Wednesday and was reported in fair condition.
The wounded man is Thomas Stephen Slockett, 21, of Wellman. He had been shot twice on Monday. The dead man is Dennis Gaylen Adams, 23, of rural Humboldt.
Police said the shooting took place in the driveway of the home of Slockett's 21-year-old fiance, Toni Wynn Linder, an Iowa State coed. Adams was found dead in his automobile about a block away. Both men were ISU students.

Chance of Accidents Rises As Winter Weather Nears
By MERLIN PFANNKUCH
Driving in Iowa City, sometimes a danger in itself, is made even worse by winter weather conditions.
"There is a 65 to 70 per cent increase in accidents in Iowa City under adverse weather conditions," said Patrick J. McCarney, Iowa City Police Chief.
He said that unless motorists winterized their cars, even the most well-planned city emergency service could be brought to a standstill.
"If all we were talking about is the driver's personal inconvenience, the problem would not take on major proportions," McCarney said.
"We're vitally concerned, however, because the ambulance, the fire truck or the police cruiser that doesn't arrive on time can mean the difference between a simple emergency and a community disaster."
Safe driving under adverse conditions involves two main factors, according to McCarney. First, one should have his vehicle properly prepared for winter; second, one should know safety precautions to observe when driving on icy or snow covered roads.
McCarney said that to be prepared for winter motorists should add anti-freeze to their radiators, get their car an overall tune-up, a complete check of the electrical system including the battery, a thorough brake inspection and a check of the exhaust system, and buy snow or studded tires.
Studded tires are legal in Iowa until the first of April, Highway Patrolman Donald Platt said. Platt recommended studded tires for the average driver.
"Studded tires have a 50 per cent greater ability to stop on ice or packed snow than either snow tires or regular tires," Platt said.
"In snow itself," he said, "either snow or studded tires have about the same advantage over regular tires."
However, Phil Foraker, of Foraker and Son Oil Co., said that studded tires were too costly for general use. He estimated that two studded tires would cost twenty dollars more than two snow tires.
Fred Sutton, another Foraker employe, said that a car's anti-freeze should test 30 degrees below zero to be absolutely safe for an Iowa winter.
As for driving in adverse conditions, the main thing is to slow down Platt said.
"This is necessary because the stopping distance increases on bad roads. Because of this the distance between vehicles themselves should be increased also," he said.
Platt recommended that hasty movements, quick turns for example, should be avoided.

Remember that speed limits are based on optimum driving conditions," McCarney advised.
"Braking is a real factor in winter driving," said Jean H. Bryant, Johnson County deputy sheriff.
"You should apply the brakes easily and back off. This should be done two or three times so you don't go into a spin or a slide," he said.
"Probably the most neglected thing in bad weather is not waiting until the windows are defrosted before driving," Foraker said. McCarney also advised against being a "peep-hole driver."

Big Trucks to Travel On Iowa Interstates
AMES (AP)—The trucking industry scored a major victory with the Iowa Highway Commission Wednesday, and a University of Iowa safety expert promptly condemned the commission for "ignoring the public good for the benefit of special interests."
The five-member commission gave unanimous approval to controversial regulations allowing bigger trucks to travel on Iowa's high-speed interstate highways under certain restrictions.
The commission was baraged this week by nearly 30 telegrams from trucking companies and manufacturers of large equipment urging that the commission adopt the regulations.
At a public hearing last month, witnesses ranging from a Des Moines housewife to traffic safety consultants decried the regulations as a threat to the safety of the motoring public.
The oversized trucks now are allowed to travel on Iowa's two-lane primary highways under special permit, and the commission's action extends the same limitations on their use of the four-lane interstate roads.
Chief State Highway Engineer Howard Gunnerson told the commission he believes it would be "somewhat safer to meet or pass" the bigger trucks on the interstate highways than on primary roads.
Commissioner Koert Voorhees of Cedar Falls said Highway Patrol Col. Howard Miller told him the Highway Patrol chief also believes the big vehicles would be less of a traffic hazard on the four-lane freeways.
However, George W. Brown, a traffic safety consultant at the University of Iowa, said in Iowa City that the new regulations will "pose obvious safety problems" on the interstate highways.
"The commissioners have shown complete arrogance in their ignoring the traffic hazards that will be created by these big vehicles," Brown said in Iowa City. "This certainly increases the number of accidents."
Brown said the commission apparently decided to follow the wishes of truckers and certain manufacturers rather than "the preponderance of evidence that introduction of this kind of traffic on the interstates will cause safety problems."

"Certainly I can find no justification for the commission's action being in the public good," he added.
Research in other states has indicated that when truck traffic on high-speed expressways is increased by 2 per cent, the traffic accident rate goes up 27 per cent, Brown said.
The traffic safety expert said he had contacted a number of legislators about the regulations and may carry the fight to the legislature's Departmental Rules Committee.
The committee as well as Atty. Gen. Richard C. Turner must approve the new regulations before they can take effect.
Under the new rules, annual permits for trips of less than 25 miles on interstate highways may be granted to vehicles which do not exceed 11 feet-9 inches in width, 13 feet-6 in height and 70 feet in length.
Single trip permits "in special or emergency situations" may be issued to vehicles not exceeding 8 feet in width, 13 feet-6 in height and 80 feet in length, according to the regulations.
Previously, vehicles of such large size were banned completely from Iowa's interstate system, and the commission was told this week that Iowa is the only state that maintains such a prohibition.
Commission Chairman Harry Bradley Jr. of Des Moines said opponents of the new regulations have confused the commission's proposal with the so-called "big truck" bill pending before Congress.
That legislation would give the big trucks unlimited freedom to move on the super highway system, Bradley said, and the Iowa commission is on record in opposition to such a step.
The commission received a letter Wednesday from a colleague of Brown, John J. O'Mara, professor of Engineering at the University of Iowa, who joined Brown in opposing the new regulations.
"It can be said with certainty," O'Mara wrote, "that these vehicles cannot use most of the ramps, loops, entrance and exit curves and turns on the interstate system without endangering other vehicles and travelers."

City Theatre Sets 'Raisin' Auditions

Auditions for lead roles in "A Raisin in the Sun," the February production of the Iowa City Community Theatre, will be held today and Friday.
Parts are available for three black men, two young black women, one middle-aged black woman, one black youth (age 8 to 12) and one white man.
The play deals with the frustrations facing a black family living in a tenement on the south side of Chicago. Written by Lorraine Hansberry, "A Raisin in the Sun," concerns such elements in the black community as militancy, Afro-American culture and subtle forms of segregation found in the North.
Interested persons have been asked to call Elaine King, director of the play, at 351-4694, for further information about the try-outs.

Pike Plans 3rd Marriage, Could Be Excommunicated

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike said today he would go ahead with a third marriage despite a possibility of excommunication.
The bride-to-be is Diane Kennedy, 31, who was co-author of Pike's latest book, "The Other Side," an account of Pike's experiences with psychic phenomena.

signed as bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California to conduct philosophical research, refused to say if his successor, Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, had withheld permission for him to marry.
Episcopal spokesmen said that under church law Pike could be excommunicated for remarrying without Myers' consent. Pike has been divorced twice, but his first marriage was later annulled.
The wedding is planned Friday at the Willow Glen United Methodist Church in San Jose, Calif. Pike said it would be conducted "according to the Episcopal book of common prayer."
Pike is a staff member of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara.
He resigned his church administrative post after his unconventional beliefs provoked 30 officials of the church into filing heresy charges against him. He was never brought to trial.
Pike has challenged the doctrine of virgin birth, the doctrine of the trinity and the story of Adam and Eve.

Survey Shows Other Areas Lag Behind— Local Ambulance Service in Good Shape

By LINDA ANDERSON
Iowa City's ambulance service is in good shape compared with the vast majority of cities and towns in Iowa.

A survey taken by the University Institute of Public Affairs showed that ambulance service in Iowa is for the most part very good, according to Richard Holcomb, director of the Bureau of Police Science, a part of the Institute.

"The only standards for driving an ambulance in Iowa are a chauffeur's license and a permit for a red light and siren," Holcomb said. "There are no special standards for the vehicles beyond the state standards for any motor vehicle."

"In many places, ambulances are driven by persons who are gas station attendants with no experience in the handling of the sick and injured," he said.

Johnson County, however, has a county ambulance service for emergency calls. The program was developed in September, 1967.

According to Jeffrey Petrie, a county employe, "It was a necessity that we start this service. The funeral homes no longer handle emergency cases and someone had to do it."

Petrie said that the ambulance corps consists of sheriff's deputies in the daytime and two pre-med students and two experienced ambulance drivers at night.

"The men have all had advanced courses in first aid," he said. "Our two ambulances are completely equipped with oxygen, resuscitators, splints, and compresses, as well as many other pieces of equipment."

University Hospitals have a patient transport system, started in 1932, for non-emergencies. The system serves indigent patients from all over Iowa, according to Ralph Faris, of the University Transport System.

"We have 15 drivers who transport only indigent patients back and forth from the hospital to homes and nursing homes," Faris said. "The program is state-supported."

The Beckman-Buthers Funeral Home and the George Gay Funeral Home are the only two funeral homes in Iowa City who still operate ambulance services, each has one ambulance, equipped with oxygen. Their drivers are certified by the American Red Cross.

"We have no resuscitation equipment because we are no longer in the emergency business," Gay said.

A spokesman from the Beckman-Buthers Home explained a problem common to both.

"We continue to operate more or less as a public service," he said. "We suffer a loss because the $15 service charge on a call does not pay for personnel and equipment."

Holcomb said that a few hospitals in Iowa have hospital-based ambulance service and that they are very pleased with the results. Fort Dodge has had this system for 10 years.

He predicted that minimum standards for both ambulances and drivers would be brought up in the next state legislative session.

The Iowa Comprehensive Health Planning Council has recommended that standards be drawn up and that drivers and ambulances be checked regularly to make sure that they meet the standards.

They suggested that the licensing of drivers and the inspection of medical equipment and supplies be made by the State Department of Health, and that the inspection of vehicles be made by the State Department of Public Safety.

The committee also suggested that cities and counties in the state, which suffer from lack of ambulance service, be authorized by the state legislature to regulate and subsidize ambulance services where a need exists.

The Bureau of Police Science is advocating a hospital-based ambulance service for Iowa cities, according to Holcomb. With this system the hospital would run its own ambulance service and the drivers would be orderlies who are trained hospital personnel.

"The advantages of this program are numerous," Holcomb said. "It would mean quality hospital care on the way to the hospital and ambulance drivers who are patient-oriented."

"We have talked to hospital personnel at four district meetings this fall," he said. "We have gotten a generally good reception, but hospitals have additional costs now with medicare, so some are concerned about the expense."

Holcomb said that a few hospitals in Iowa have hospital-based ambulance service and that they are very pleased with the results. Fort Dodge has had this system for 10 years.

He said that the Bureau plans to continue promoting this program by talking to groups and assisting those who want help in starting such a project in their community.

A spokesman for Mercy Hospital said that he thought the idea was a sound one, but that private hospitals such as Mercy, would have more trouble financing such a project than a community or state-supported hospital.

Holcomb said that most people do not realize how bad Iowa's ambulance problem is.

"Quality ambulance service is one of those forgotten things," he said. "With fewer doctors making house calls these days, emergency room care is very important and quality care on the way to the hospital is vital."

Brazil's Friday the 13th Coup Was Revolution—of a Sort

EDITOR'S NOTE — Dispatches from Brazil are subject to censorship. The following analysis of the Brazilian situation rounds up information brought out of that country by persons in a position to know what is going on.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Brazil's shakeup of Friday the 13th was a revolution in every way, though it was a bloodless and President Arthur da Costa e Silva's military-backed government still runs that largest of Latin-American nations.

The constitution has been virtually abolished.

Purely to simplify the picture for American readers, what if it had happened in the United States?

Imagine a former president and a former governor — say Dwight D. Eisenhower and Thomas E. Dewey — under arrest.

Add to this scores of critics of the government — politicians, intellectuals, newsmen and artists — all variously reported arrested or missing. Normal guarantees of freedom and safety are suspended.

The capitol in Washington would be closed.

Think of heavy police patrols and troop units operating in and around the cities and tanks clanking down Fifth Avenue in New York.

Newspapers, radio and television stations would be under censorship.

Hard-liners among the military men who, with civilian backing, overthrew the left-leaning President Jose Goulart March 31, 1964, promoted the operation in response to rising criticism at the way things were going.

The flashpoint was a rejection by the Chamber of Deputies, 216 to 141, of a government request that it lift the legislative immunity of Deputy Marcio Moreira Alves so he could be tried by the Supreme Court on a charge of insulting the armed forces. In a series of speeches, he had called them, among other things, "a nest of torturers."

The vote was taken in Brasilia, the capital, Dec. 12.

Costa e Silva, a former army marshal, cracked down the next day. He and his Cabinet signed an institutional act avowedly designed to safeguard the nation against revolutionary war being waged by "persons unwilling to understand" the movement that brought them to power.

Constitutional guarantees were suspended indefinitely and Congress was sent into an involuntary recess.

A military state of alert was ordered in various areas and tanks patrolled streets of Sao Paulo, the New York of Brazil.

Former President Juscelino Kubitschek and ex-Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara State, which includes Rio de Janeiro, were among about 200 persons arrested in a roundup of suspected opposition elements.

Newsman taken into custody included political columnist Carlos Castelo Branco of the Jornal do Brasil, a traditionally middie-of-the-road publication that had begun to turn against the government. He was turned loose Tuesday.

Some newspapers came out with advertisements and old pictures on their front and editorial pages as an obvious cover for blank space left from material deleted by censors.

National radio and television chains featured news from foreign trouble spots without mentioning political developments in Brazil.

Rumors abounded. The first official word on the arrests came Tuesday, when a presidential spokesman said about 200 persons had been taken into custody.

Censorship in communications led callers to talk in riddles for fear of being tapped. International phone calls sometimes were cut off suddenly.

The extra police and troops have been removed now and everything appears normal on the surface as Brazilians pursue a countdown of shopping days to Christmas.

Santa Lucia Queen Chosen

LBJ Hospitalized with Flu, In 'Satisfactory' Condition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson became a companion in misery of hundreds of thousands of other Americans Wednesday when he caught the flu and was put to bed at Bethesda Naval Hospital in suburban Maryland.

Johnson entered the hospital Wednesday morning with a fever of 101.6 degrees and a chest cold after what was described as several days in which he had not been feeling "up to par."

He was said to have a stuffy head, a running nose, a rasping cough, a slight sore throat and a hoarse voice.

It was not until five hours later, however, that White House press secretary George Christian told newsmen the ailment could be called the flu.

Christian declined to identify the flu as any particular strain but said viral studies were being conducted.

Ray Trial Ordered To Begin March 3

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Judge W. Preston Battle Wednesday ordered the James Earl Ray trial to start March 3 "if humanly possible" and instructed the public defender's office to assist Ray's attorney in preparing the defense.

The attorney, famed trial lawyer Percy Foreman of Houston, Tex., told the court it would be "a miracle" if the case was ready for trial by the March date.

Ray is charged with the sniper slaying last April 4 of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. after the civil rights leader came here to aid the city's striking sanitation workers.
