New York Shivers, Sneezes

Flu, Shortage of Fuel Causes 'State of Peril'

NEW YORK (AP) — With an estimated 10,000 seriously ill New Yorkers shuddering in unheated apartments and 10 times that number healthy but just as cold, the Health Department declared Thursday that it would prosecute anyone in the fuel industry who failed to cooperate in making emergency deliveries.

The city acted under emergency powers made available by a Health Department declaration that New York was in "a state of peril."

As the health commissioner, Dr. Edward O'Rourke, spoke, it was 19 degrees in the flu-ridden city. Temperatures have been in the teens or lower for the past three days.

The emergency declaration came five days after settlement of the strike of deliverymen who handle about 40 per cent of the city's fuel oil needs. Deliveries, however, still lagged, prompting an appeal by Mayor John V. Lindsay for "extraordinary" efforts by the fuel industry.

O'Rourke said three deaths in the city were directly attributable to lack of heat. It was estimated by his department that 2,400 persons would die in the city this week and that as many as half would result from flu complications.

Deputy Mayor Timothy W. Costello said that Health Department men would be stationed at about 100 depots in the city "to order that those buildings identified as health emergencies receive oil on a priority basis."

"When such orders are not complied with, the commissioner of health, under powers granted to him during a state of peril, will press charges against those responsible," Costello said. Persons failing to cooperate in a health emergency are subject to misdemeanor charges.

Costello estimated that 28,000 apartments or homes were without heat.

The department put the number of persons in unheated buildings at more than 1,000. In addition, complaints of no heat were lodged Thursday at a rate of 400 calls an hour at the complaint bureau of the Rent and Housing Maintenance Department.

Health officials also accused some landlords of purposely withholding heat and using the emergency as an excuse.

More than 700 of the unheated buildings have been designated as hospitals under the health emergency because they have a large number of ill residents. Buildings so designated are placed high on the priority list for fuel delivery.

A subsidiary emergency was developing in the city's hospitals, where blood supplies were being depleted and donations dipped in large measure because flu-infected persons are rejected as donors.

O'Rourke declared the state of peril in the city after a meeting in City Hall of the Emergency Control Board. Lindsay was not present, having left with his family for what was described as a brief vacation in the Bahamas — temperature 68 to 70 degrees.

Futile Search for Abducted Girl

A cluster of volunteers riding snowmobiles fans out Thursday near Grinnell, about 45 miles east of Des Moines, in search of Pamela Powers, a 10-year-old girl abducted Christmas Eve. The little girl's body was found near Des Moines Thursday night after the accused slayer, a mental hospital escapee, led authorities to the scene.

Dangerous Re-Entry at Dawn—

Apollo 8 Speeding Home

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts, after seven days in space and a thrilling journey almost to the moon, prepared Thursday for a burning re-entry into earth's atmosphere and a Pacific landing under dark skies early today.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders gave the earth a final televised look at itself from deep space and filled their narration with longings for the shimmering half-disc they left more than five days ago.

"I must have the feeling that the travelers in the old sailing ships used to have," said Anders, looking at earth from 110,000 miles away. "I have that feeling of being proud of the trip and still happy to be going back home and back to our home port."

Borman signed off the sixth and last Apollo 8 space telecast, promising that future Apollo flights would beam TV from the bleak lunar surface itself.

Then the spacecraft commander closed the four-minute telecast:

"This is Apollo 8 signing off. We'll see you back on the good earth very soon."

Following the television, the crewmen took turns resting, eating and doing small space chores. They rode quietly as their slowly accelerating spacecraft sped them toward earth and the planned rapid-fire precision and critical re-entry this morning.

The earthward coast, which started very early Christmas morning, was characterized by quiet waiting — a marked contrast to the feverish-paced 20 hours around the moon.

Traveling at more than 24,500 miles an hour, the spacecraft must hit that cone precisely for a safe landing in the Pacific Ocean.

If the spacecraft goes above the cone, it could skip back out into space and into an orbit that could take days to return them to earth.

If Apollo 8 undershoots the cone, it would disintegrate as it impacts with the dense atmosphere.

Apollo 8 must come screaming around the curve of the earth, dig into the atmosphere and then fall toward the dark Pacific.

Friction caused by the atmosphere will sear the spacecraft's heat shield with more than 5,000 degrees of heat. A two-inch shield will glow and burn as the spacecraft, like a dying star, plunges earthward.

Abducted Girl's Body Discovered in Culvert

Escaped Mental Patient Leads Police To Spot Near Des Moines After Surrender

DES MOINES (AP) — The frozen body of Pamela Powers, 10, abducted here the day before Christmas, was found Thursday in a culvert near an Interstate 80 interchange east of the city.

The partially clad body, object of a day-long search by some 200 law enforcement officers, was found as Des Moines police were returning Anthony Erthell Williams, 24, the self-styled minister who is charged with child stealing in the case, to Des Moines.

Williams, a Missouri state mental hospital escapee with an arrest record including four sex charges, gave himself up to Davenport police Thursday morning.

Detective Lt. D. E. Knox said Williams led police to the body, which was found in a culvert in a snow-covered ditch a half mile south and a mile west of the interchange near Mitchellville, 10 miles east of Des Moines.

Knox said there were no indications that the body had been particularly maltreated. The body was taken by ambulance to a Des Moines hospital for an autopsy.

Williams was brought into the Des Moines police station under heavy guard. After a quick consultation between Police Chief Wendell Nichols and the detectives who brought him in, Williams was whisked into the city jail for booking.

Nichols said Williams maintained his silence except to show officers where the body was found.

An open charge of murder was filed against Williams, who was to be arraigned in municipal court later Thursday evening. The child stealing charge will be dropped, Nichols said.

Nichols said Williams apparently agreed to show Detective Capt. Cleatus Learning and Lt. Wallace Nelson of the Des Moines police force where the body was located as they returned from Davenport.

Nichols said the detectives did not press Williams for details of the girl's abduction or death according to an agreement with Williams' attorney.

The orange stretch pants and white bobby sox worn by Pamela when she disappeared from the Des Moines YMCA where she was attending a junior high school wrestling meet, were found in a waste receptacle at an Interstate 80 rest stop near Grinnell Wednesday.

Snowmobiles were used to scour the ditches along the highway. Officers also asked residents of the area to check all outbuildings on their farms. New snow which fell Wednesday night hampered the search.

Davenport police said a young man walked into the station Thursday morning and said, "I'm Anthony Erthell Williams. I understand you're looking for me."

Lt. Ackermann said Williams was "very calm and cool, very polite and well dressed and clean. And he's a gentleman, to us anyway."

He said Williams had talked by telephone to his attorney, Henry T. McKnight of Des Moines.

McKnight said in Des Moines he made a "two-part agreement" with Williams — "I promised to help him all I could, and his part of the agreement was that he would tell me about the girl when he got back to Des Moines."

McKnight, who said he became acquainted with Williams in church work, called him a gifted pianist, organist and singer. The lawyer said their relations had been friendly and "I am really shaken up" by the case.

Williams had been working as an assistant pastor of the Maple Street Baptist Church in Des Moines and living at the YMCA, where he also worked as a billing clerk.

Pamela was watching her brother, Mark, wrestle in the YMCA tournament Tuesday and disappeared when she went to the lobby to buy some candy.

A desk clerk, John Knapp, said he saw a man registered at the YMCA leaving with a large bundle wrapped in a blanket. He said he asked the man what was in the bundle and the man replied "a mannequin."

Knapp said he and Donald Hanna, physical education director at the 'Y', tried to stop the man unsuccessfully. They gave his auto license number to police.

The search for Williams centered in Davenport after his car was found abandoned there.

Mrs. Sadie Wakefield Cade, 25, of Davenport, told police Williams arrived at her home on Christmas Eve. She said Williams told her and a friend had been en route to Chicago when their car was rifled of all their money, clothing and baggage at an Interstate 80 rest stop.

Mrs. Cade said Williams remained with some other guests at her home through Christmas Day, and the whole group went to Rock Island, Ill., for a party Wednesday night.

She told police Williams became depressed and left the party, and that was the last she saw of him until he awakened her about 8:30 a.m. Thursday morning and asked her to go to the police station with him. She said she refused because he wouldn't tell her why.

"During the time he was here he never mentioned that he was in trouble or anything about the little girl," Mrs. Cade said.

Police said Williams arrived at the station by taxicab, for which he owed $3.60 fare. They said he paid $2.60 and had only four cents left. Police supplied the extra dollar.

The cab driver, Harold Prouty, 31, of Rock Island, said he picked up Williams at a federal housing project in Rock Island. He said Williams was "just another passenger" and Prouty did not recognize him from broadcast descriptions and published pictures.

McKnight said he talked with Williams three times by telephone Thursday morning.

This was McKnight's account of the first conversation with Williams, who McKnight knew as Robert Anthony:

Williams said, "This is Robert."

"Oh, God, why did you do that?"

"Will you help me?" Williams said.

"Well," replied McKnight, "I have one more proposition. You must tell me when you get here to Des Moines about the girl."

McKnight said he knew nothing of Williams' being an escapee from a Missouri mental hospital. He said that because Williams was an accomplished musician, he had appeared at several fund raising functions at the Corinthian Baptist Church, of which McKnight is a member, the lawyer said.

Pueblo Reunions Over; Debriefings Begin Today

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — All of the USS Pueblo's 82 freed crewmen show signs of mental fatigue, malnutrition and physical maltreatment, the commander of the U.S. Naval hospital said Thursday.

Rear Adm. Horace Warden, head of the hospital, reported on preliminary medical examinations for the crew, just released from 11 months of North Korean captivity, at a news conference during which the Pueblo's executive officer denied the intelligence ship was captured inside North Korean waters. Left hanging was the question of what happened to the Pueblo's super-secret electronic gear in the hour between her capture and actual boarding.

Warden reported "no signs of psychiatric disturbance at this time," among the crew, but that all "shows effects of malnutrition, instability, imbalance and, no doubt, other deficiencies" and all "have a history of physical maltreatment."

There is no evidence of serious injuries, Warden added.

Lt. Edward E. Murphy Jr., 31, the executive officer, told the news conference North Korean vessels involved in the capture "completely fabricated" and that a detailed study — including messages from North Korean vessels involved in the capture — confirm the ship "did not enter North Korean territorial waters."

His comments, amplified by those of the Pacific Fleet's public affairs officer, Capt. Vincent Thomas, were the most detailed denial yet by the United States that the Pueblo was in waters claimed by North Korea. Much of what they said, however, had previously been released by the then secretary of defense, Robert S. McNamara, in testimony before a congressional committee.

Murphy, the Pueblo's second in command, and the other freed crewmen arrived here Christmas Eve. Man-by-man interrogation of the crew by Navy intelligence debriefing officers is to start today.

Any details about the capture, said Thomas, could only be told by Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, the ship's skipper, who was not present.

Bucher is the only crewman "who is actively under medical attention as of now," said Warden, the hospital chief. He said Bucher is suffering from "respiratory infection."

Earlier Thursday, the State Department in Washington disclosed for the first time that Bucher had been wounded in the legs when a North Korean sub chaser, later joined by several speedboats, fired at the Pueblo.

North Korea captured the Pueblo Jan. 23 and took her and her crew to Wonsan Harbor, claiming the ship was inside North Korea's 12-mile territorial limits.

"There is absolutely no question in my mind and the minds of crew or of the captain that during no time did we intrude into the territorial waters of North Korea at absolutely no time," Murphy said.

Thomas read a statement from Adm. Thomas I. Moorer, chief of naval operations, that Moorer was "confident that the commanding officer of the Pueblo would not knowingly violate" his orders.

The orders, previously released, said that the ship was to operate no closer than 13 nautical miles from the nearest North Korean land. The ship was under orders to intercept broadcasts on the East Coast of North Korea.

As executive officer, Murphy served as the ship's navigator.

Before the news conference, the Navy announced a one-day delay — until today — of its man-by-man interrogation of the Pueblo crew to allow further medical testing.

Eight hours of physical examinations began at 8:30 a.m., immediately after the crew had breakfast. They included tests for the Pueblo's skipper, who, it was disclosed for the first time, was wounded when his ship was captured.

The State Department revealed in Washington that North Koreans shot Bucher in the legs when they fired several salvos at the Pueblo just before seizing it last Jan. 23.

Seaman Duane Hodges of Creswell, Ore., was killed and three other crewmen were wounded in the same attack, said State Department officials who talked to crewmen after their release Tuesday.

North Korean authorities had concealed the fact that Bucher was wounded, although the deaths of Hodges and the injuries to the others were reported, the officials said.

The State Department report accompanied another from Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), that North Korea massed about 400 warplanes along its frontier after seizure of the Pueblo in anticipation of a retaliatory attack from the United States.

Aiken, a ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee who gets periodic briefings from the State Department and the Pentagon, said he felt North Korea would have seized the Pueblo whether or not it was in North Korean water because it was an effective intelligence ship.

The physical examinations for the crewmen were delayed by family reunions over Christmas. From now on, there will be less time for such reunions.

Families were to see their fathers, sons and brothers only at lunch and dinner — and some relatives started returning home. By Thursday morning, nine families had left and others planned to leave shortly, the Navy said.

Suspect Turns Himself In

Anthony Erthell Williams, 24, of Des Moines, bows his head during booking formalities in the Davenport police station Thursday soon after he surrendered himself. The man at left, a detective, is unidentified. Williams, an escapee from a Missouri mental hospital, was taken to Des Moines later in the day, where he led police to the frozen body of Pamela Powers, a 10-year-old girl he is accused of abducting and murdering.

Fugitive 'Blows His Cover' By Attempt to Thwart Killing

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Publicity from his heroic attempt to prevent a threatened killing during a holdup resulted in the capture of a fugitive sought nationwide for more than two years, the FBI said Thursday.

Fred Adam Opalinski, 44, had sought to intervene when a gunman threatened to kill a sales lady during a jewelry store holdup on Christmas Eve.

Opalinski was pistol-whipped and another customer was shot to death. The two gunmen fled with cash, watches and rings worth more than $10,000, store owner Jim Elliott said.

The FBI said an alert citizen tipped the bureau that the man in the jewelry store probably was the one sought for federal probation violation in Pennsylvania.

Agents arrested Opalinski in a Mobile apartment late Christmas Day. He was jailed without bond awaiting action by federal parole officials.

The FBI said he had been using the name Dr. Fred Adams, one of his numerous aliases, and was posing as a clinical psychologist.

W. M. Alexander, special agent in charge of the Mobile FBI office, said Opalinski was sentenced to two 10-year terms at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1965 on charges of interstate transportation of stolen property. The sentences were suspended and he was placed on five years probation.

RELEASE PRISONERS

A Chilly Protest

This parka-clad young man was among 10 persons who staged a one-hour demonstration near the federal prison at Sandstone, Minn., Thursday. They urged an end to the Vietnamese war, the draft, imprisonment of draft evaders and release of all prisoners. The scheduled four-hour rally was cut short to an hour because of 10-below-zero temperatures.

Green cheese?

It doesn't seem too long ago that the concept of man and space was solely in the realm of science fiction. Those were the days when the moon could have been made of green cheese and no one would have cared.

Today, three United States' astronauts are scheduled to wind up a moon mission that has never been equalled in complexity and innovation. The trip to the moon and back was so complex that exact timing will decide whether the astronauts will survive or perish while attempting to reenter the earth's gravitational barrier.

Of course, nearly everyone is hoping for the success of the missions. But after the moon shot is over, then what?

Experts predict that man will land on the moon by 1970. Man will again have overcome nature and discovered a new world. Less than 100 years have passed since man first flew, but during that time, man has perfected flying so that he can explore the mysteries of outer space.

But all the time man has been using his energies and scientific know-how to enter space, the earth has caused him problems.

The United States may be in a unique situation of trying to conquer another world before it has successfully dealt with the earth.

All the successful moon missions cannot overcome the fact that man cannot get along with his neighbors.

So this morning, as the Apollo and its crew head home, think about what will come next and whether men from various lands will get along any better on the moon than they do on the earth.

It hardly seems fair to take all the cynicism, hate, fear and war of the earth to another planet. And it hardly seems possible to seek out and discover a new world without somehow transferring the earth's problems and values to that new world.

Things were so much simpler when the moon was made from green cheese.

Commercials, yule wishes by Buchwald

At this holiday season, my thoughts turn to all Americans, particularly those who spend so many hours of their days and nights watching television and, of course, the commercials.

These are my holiday wishes to all of you:

May you never have iron-poor blood or an Excedrin headache. May your breath always be fresh, so your kid sister won't hand you her mouthwash. May you never perspire in case someone in the family has stolen the underarm deodorant. Grant that your stomach may always be free of demons and that your eight sinus passages will be open and clear.

I pray that your children will never be in the group that has cavities, and if they can't brush after every meal, God grant that you have the wisdom to choose the right toothpaste. I ask if you have dentures that they never slip out of your mouth, and may you come back to the side that chose the correct hairdresser.

May you never be lacking in breakfast cereal vitamins and may your tresses be so silky and shiny that your husband will have to take you along with him.

I pray that your cough will never keep you awake and that your soap will give you 24-hour protection. I also wish your facial cream will make you feel young again, and a dove will land on your dishpan hands.

May your shaving cream soften your beard, and may you get more shaves with your blade than with any other comparable brand. May a girl wrestle you to the floor after you use a certain after-shave lotion.

Moreover, may your cigarettes always be mild and contain less tar, and may your beer always be cold and refreshing.

I wish all men clean white shirts, free of ring around the collar, and as for wives, may your pie crusts be flaky and your catsup run slow.

Grant that your refrigerators will always have enough ice, and that your oven cleaners will do their job in a jiffy. Pray that moths fear your closets and your mosquitoes drop like flies.

May your sandwiches always be freshly wrapped, and may peanut butter never stick to the roof of your mouth.

I trust the wax will stay on your floor and the stains on your furniture will disappear in seconds.

Furthermore, I wish you a friend at your bank and a loan to tide you over your troubles. And, prithee, if your bank turns you down, may your fingers find a local finance company in the Yellow Pages.

May you have a specially trained insurance agent to help you plan for the future, and if lightning should strike your house, may he be waiting for you with a check at the door.

Grant that your dog gets the right proportion of meat and cereal in his food, and that your cat has enough nourishment in the can to keep his coat healthy and clean.

Would that the new car you buy provide speed, comfort and safety for the whole family, and never be recalled to the factory because of a warranty.

I pray that you never get a flat tire on a dark highway and that you never get stuck in the snow because you used the wrong gasoline.

May your spark plugs spark and your battery never run down. May you win thousands of dollars at gas station sweepstakes, and may you always be able to rent a car with clean ash trays.

Finally, I wish each and every one of you instant tuning, a clear, ghost-free picture, and on this holiday may all your television tubes be bright.

Grad criticises music reviewer

To the editor: Congratulations on the return of your music "reviewers" from politics to the pages of The Daily Iowan.

Again we are provided with a diet of misnomered, sophomoric, uneducated, insulting compilation of driving clap-trap. Back it comes, again and again, your badly rusted Don Quixote spewing forth all of the non-informative narrowly prejudiced gossip. . . . "Gee wasn't it great that there wasn't anybody there?" Spiced up by "funny" after "funny." A chuckle or two is nice (if it is funny), but wouldn't that sort of thing be a bit more appropriate in the comic section of your truth seeking news media?

For all the effort to present what the contemporary musician considers as timely, thought provoking concerts, The Daily Iowan provides a real musical no-nothing who does little more than relate in a rather witless way his particularly vacant impressions of how little he knows about contemporary music, much less classical music. Of course, it goes without saying that this attitude is what your "reviewer" thinks everyone should have.

One's only regret was that Bill Parsons should have "done his thing" and shredded a copy of the D.I. complete with a music "review".

Busts Best Legs As Sex Symbols

LONDON (AP) — Legs are on their way out and bosoms are coming back as the sex symbol of the future, an influential young London designer predicts.

Leslie Poole, 30, is the handsome blond creator of eye-popping futuristic and very nearly nude fashions in the 20th Century: Fox film, "World of Fashion," which will have its British premiere Jan. 2.

"The leg has been the sex symbol for five years now, but its days are numbered. The shift of emphasis is already taking place, and in two years time I am quite certain skirts will be worn down to the ground even for daytime, while breasts will be very lightly veiled," Poole said at a press preview of the film here.

The "World of Fashion" is a 23-minute color movie showing fashions from the 1920s to the present, plus Poole's fashions for the 1980s. French film star Genevieve Gilles — a 21-year-old former mannequin — shows the fashions, wearing a different outfit every 45 seconds.

At one point she wears a futuristic creation that is nothing at all but a sort of pleated silver lei, hanging down to hip level. "Well, I was just having some fun with that one," admitted Poole. "I don't know whether nudity will go that far. Nobody knows. But I am sure that the bosom is the new sex symbol. It's already happening."

Poole also predicts that science by 1980 will so control the weather that women will not have to dress for warmth. Consequently, he puts Miss Gilles into what he calls "nude body decorations." Clusters of jewels and translucent sequins decorate pink lame in an Egyptian-inspired costume.

Above all, he says, clothes should show the body in its natural beauty. To do this, he also shows Miss Gilles in a sort of diaper outfit, to go with a top that looks like a painted breast-plate.

Xmas Truce Ends, Fighting Resumes

SAIGON (AP) — Striking quickly after a 24-hour Christmas cease-fire, U.S. 1st Air Cavalry men clashed twice Wednesday night and Thursday with enemy troops 63 miles northwest of Saigon, the U.S. Command reported.

The action was the heaviest listed by the Command in the first 24 hours following the one-day allied cease-fire.

A three-day cease-fire announced by the Viet Cong was to end at 1 a.m. Friday, but both truce periods were shattered by scattered shooting incidents. The cease-fires were unilateral declarations, and the allies disregarded the longer one announced by the Viet Cong.

The Command said 53 enemy troops were killed in the two clashes and there were no American casualties.

The actions reportedly took place along the Cambodian border, part of the arching sector northwest of Saigon that has seen the heaviest recent ground action.

No other major ground fighting was reported but soldiers of the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade reportedly turned up an arms cache Thursday 14 miles southwest of Saigon. It contained eight 122mm rocket motors, six rocket warheads and 100 pounds of TNT, according to reports.

As the air war also resumed after Christmas, Air Force B52 bombers hit a targets from the southern tip of South Vietnam to the central highlands, according to the Command.

There were no developments in the efforts to free three U.S. prisoners held by the Viet Cong after a fruitless battlefield meeting between American and Viet Cong representatives Christmas Day.

But a broadcast by the Viet Cong heard in Saigon said the three had been informed they would be released and expressed "unexpected joy."

The broadcast claimed they thanked the Viet Cong for their treatment, declared they had not been beaten or brainwashed, had been given food and were permitted to read newspapers and watch movies.

The three are Spec. 4 James W. Brigham, Ocala, Fla.; Spec. 4 Thomas N. Jones, Lynnville, Ind.; and Pfc. Donald G. Smith, Akron, Pa. All were captured this year north of Saigon.

The allied commands reported U.S. combat deaths dropped last week to the lowest in five weeks and those for South Vietnamese forces increased slightly.

The U.S. Command listed 151 Americans killed in action and 838 wounded last week, compared with 222 killed and 1,199 wounded the previous week. The total killed last week was the lowest since the week ended Nov. 16, where 127 Americans died in combat.

American combat casualties since Jan. 1, 1961 rose to 30,430 killed and 191,306 wounded. In that period, the U.S. Command claimed 427,595 enemy troops killed.

Arab Terrorists Attack Israeli Plane in Athens

ATHENS (AP) — Two Arab terrorists riddled a New York-bound Israeli jetliner with machine guns and grenades at Athens' Airport Thursday, killing one of its 37 passengers with a blaze of fire through the windows.

Greek police seized the Arabs as passengers and 10 crewmen fled the blazing, smoking Boeing 707.

One of its jet engines was set afire by the gunfire. One of two grenades exploded under the plane's nose. The second didn't go off.

A Palestine liberation organization in Beirut, Lebanon, claimed responsibility for the attack, charging that Israel's El Al airline was used for military purposes.

In Tel Aviv, El Al denied the charge, and the government called the attack a grave act, "insane terrorism," and declared it represents a danger not only to Israel but to all people.

Several of the passengers were injured slightly by flying glass. The passengers and crew escaped down an emergency chute.

It was the second Arab attack against Israel's national airline in six months. An El Al jet out of Rome was hijacked July 23 to Algiers by three gunmen. The same group in Beirut was involved then as in this attack. It is the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The two who staged the attack were identified by the Front as Mahmoud Mohammed Issa, 27, and Maher Hussein Yamani, 19.

They had arrived in Athens earlier in the day on a commercial flight from Beirut.

The El Al jet originated its flight in Tel Aviv.

As the bullet-riddled jetliner rolled to a halt, Greek police sprinted out after the two Arabs. Issa was clubbed to the ground and suffered a head injury. Yamani was caught as he tried to flee.

Killed by the gunfire was Leon Shiridan, 50, a maritime engineer en route to New York and Buenos Aires.

An El Al spokesman in Athens said the passengers would continue their flight to New York via Paris on a special plane sent from Tel Aviv.

The two Arabs were taken to Athens' security headquarters under heavy guard.

A public prosecutor said they will be charged Friday with willful homicide, unlawful carrying and use of arms and interference with communications.

The liberation group in Beirut appealed to Greek authorities to release the men.

The Front said it launched its attack "to draw the world's attention to the military activities undertaken by the El Al company."

It claimed El Al recently undertook a number of secret trips to carry Israeli pilots to training centers for instruction on flying American Phantom jet fighters.

An El Al spokesman in Tel Aviv denied that the airline was engaged in "military activities."

Traffic Toll Claims 231

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
On streets and highways across the nation, 231 persons died in traffic accidents during the 30-hour Christmas holiday.

This compared with the record toll of 253 traffic deaths for a one-day Christmas observance set in 1946, and 107 fatalities counted during an identical non-holiday period two weeks ago.

The toll this Christmas was far less than the 280 to 360 lives the National Safety Council had estimated might be lost in traffic mishaps from 6 p.m. Tuesday to midnight Wednesday.

McCormack Challenged As Speaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — A move to unseat 77-year-old John W. McCormack as Speaker of the House broke into the open Thursday as Rep. Morris K. Udall (D-Ariz.) declared himself a candidate for the job.

Udall, 46, said he will oppose McCormack as the spearhead of a drive for a change in leadership. If he wins in an initial party showdown, Udall said he will open the way for other members to enter a final run-off against him.

Udall announced his candidacy in a letter sent to all House Democrats Thursday. But with most members still absent for the holidays, there were few around to receive it. Those who did get the word and were willing to talk generally regarded Udall's chances of unseating McCormack as slight.

McCormack, a veteran of 40 years in the House, has solid support among big city organization Democrats, Southerners and committee chairmen, a coalition hard to beat.

The Democrats will nominate a speaker at a party caucus next Thursday, the day before the 91st Congress convenes.

Although there has been wide criticism of McCormack's leadership recently, particularly among younger members, no one until now has been willing to challenge him openly in the party caucus.

By offering any potential candidates a chance to run against him instead of McCormack in a second balloting, Udall hopes to unite all dissident members in a first-round anti-McCormack vote.

Udall has been in the House since 1961, when he succeeded his brother, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall. He has had few opportunities to shine, but he did lead the successful effort to raise the pay of Congress members from $22,500 to $30,000.

Crew's Return Provides Navy A 'Rehearsal'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The return of the 82 crewmen of the USS Pueblo is providing a rehearsal at the giant U.S. naval hospital here for the care of Navy servicemen who may be released from captivity in Vietnam.

The Paris peace negotiations and the release by North Korea of the Pueblo crew have raised hopes for an eventual release of Americans held by the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese. There are, however, no indications this may come soon.

A Navy spokesman said Thursday the naval hospital "has been designated as a primary evacuation facility for Navy prisoners of war."

This means, he said, that the sprawling hospital complex would be the place where released Vietnamese war prisoners spend their first days back in the United States, undergoing extensive medical testing and treatment.

A Navy brochure describes the facility as the largest military hospital in the world. It contains more than 1,500 inpatient beds and several outpatient clinics.

By being on the West Coast, it is among the closest to Vietnam. And Giant C141 Skyliner jet transports — the same ones that brought the Pueblo crewmen home from Korea — can land at nearby Miramar Naval Air Station.

At last report, 336 U.S. servicemen were listed as captured or interned in the Vietnamese war, most of them Navy, Marine and Air Force pilots downed over North Vietnam since early 1965. But the Pentagon acknowledges that it does not really know how many Americans are prisoners of the North.

International Red Cross requests to visit the captives have been denied by Hanoi. North Vietnam has not provided a list of the Americans it holds.

The Pentagon considers that of the 876 servicemen in Vietnam listed as missing in action, "a considerable number have been captured."

Like the Pueblo crewmen, Navy men released in Vietnam would go first to a hospital in the Far East for immediate medical treatment until they are ready to fly home. In the case of the Pueblo crew, that took only 24 hours.

No Place Like Home For Holidays

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The old four-lidded woodburning stove gave off enough heat to temper the blasts of cold air coming through cracked windows and walls in the abandoned house in South Philadelphia.

And Stephanie Murawska, a recluse who admits to being "over 70," ate a Christmas dinner of Polish sausage, cole slaw and a little cake. She said this was all she wanted.

Gifts of food, clothing, a Christmas wreath, and cards from people across the country were enough to make her call this the best Christmas she had spent in many years.

Miss Murawska was found living in the decrepit house last week. The building had been condemned to make way for a new expressway.

Philadelphia's offered new living quarters to the frail-looking woman who weighs only 80 pounds. But Miss Murawska declined them all. She said she has been living in vacant houses for a number of years and a little cold weather was not enough to make her move into somebody else's home or institution.

She has been living alone and supporting herself ever since she came here from Poland at age 18. Miss Murawska mentioned, in almost an off-handed manner, that she had lost or misplaced this month's Social Security check for $74. But this didn't seem to dim the flow she said she felt from this "wonderful Christmas so many people have given me."

"She leaves the money she has with friends and neighbors anyway, because she doesn't like to keep it in her home. Gifts of money have been given to her credit in neighborhood stores."

Hawks to Go South—

Drake, Iowa State Open Tourney Bids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Iowa's basketball team continues its brisk practice schedule today as Iowa State and Drake wade into holiday tournaments. Despite playing an opponent off on the wrong foot, Iowa State has a formidable assignment to-night in the annual Big Eight Conference pre-season tournament at Kansas City.

The Cyclones, reportedly slowed by bouts with flu, will tackle rangy Kansas State in the wind-up of The Big Eight tourney's first round. Coach Glen Anderson said he was uncertain whether 6-1 letterman guard Mike Murray would start. If Murray is still among the squad's ailing, Anderson said, his place will probably be taken by Jack DeVilder, a 6-3 sophomore. Junior center Bill Cain is Iowa State's pacesetter with averages of 21.4 points and 11.1 rebounds through eight games. Forward Aaron Jenkins of the Cyclones is averaging 15 points a game and guard Jim Abrahamson 10.5. A tall front line consisting of Mike Barber, Jerry Venable and Gene Williams averages 6-8 for Kansas State, which will have considerable reach on Iowa State. K-State's record is 3-5 and Iowa State is 5-3. Cain needs three points to become No. 20 on the school's all-time scoring list.

Drake, which ran its record to six straight victories before toppling, 77-75, to Pacific on Monday, also has a tall foe to encounter in Minnesota at Dallas. The Bulldogs' game in the two-night Dallas Classic will be the tourney opener. Southern Methodist tackles Mississippi in the nightcap. Twenty-seven points against Pacific boosted Bulldog senior Willie McCarter's scoring average to 18.3. Teammate Willie Wise's averages are 14.5 points and 11.8 rebounds. At Iowa City, University of Iowa Coach Ralph Miller continued Thursday to drive his Hawkeyes through twice-daily drills for the team's assignment next week in the Sugar Bowl Classic at New Orleans, La. Miller, who said he was pleased with victories last week over North Dakota 91-59 and Creighton 100-73, noted that Hawkeye height may keep the team from running as much "as we normally do." Ben McGilmer, a 6-7 junior guard, may have worked his way into Iowa's starting lineup, Miller indicated. McGilmer, who joined the Hawkeyes after three games, hiked his scoring averages to 12.5 points a game with stellar performances the last two games. Iowa begins its Sugar Bowl assignment against Houston next Monday. Other teams in the tournament are Duke and Western Kentucky.

Allen Fired By Ram Boss, Personality Conflict Cited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Allen was fired unexpectedly Thursday as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams, after three successful seasons, because of what President Dan Reeves described as a personality conflict. "I can only say it comes as a surprise Christmas present," declared the 46-year-old Allen. He had two years remaining on his five-year pact with the National Football League club. Reeves said the contract, which called for an estimated $400,000 per year, would be honored.

"It is probably more my fault than his," Reeves said, but he steadfastly refused to give any particulars, adding, "George Allen is a great coach and a fine family man. Nevertheless, he's being relieved as head coach."

Publicly, the only major disagreement came after Los Angeles tied the 49ers at San Francisco 20-20 on Nov. 17. Allen criticized playing conditions at Kezar Stadium on that wet afternoon and said they were the worst he had seen in his coaching career. Reeves was unhappy with that statement and said so. Otherwise, disagreements between the two were not publicized. Published stories early this month saying that Allen was headed for Buffalo were flatly denied. Allen said the three-year record of the Rams since he arrived was the best in his history. He called a news conference for Friday morning saying he preferred to make no prior statements. Before Allen took over in 1966, the Rams had not enjoyed a winning year since they were 8-4 in 1958. Harland Svare was dismissed as coach in 1965 after his clubs won only 14 games in three seasons, finishing 4-10 his final year. Allen was hired from Chicago in a move which so angered Bears owner George Halas that he filed suit to keep him. The action was later dismissed and the 1966 Rams posted an 8-6 record. The next season they were 11-2 during the regular season, won the Coastal Division title, lost to Green Bay 28-7 for the Western title and then whipped Cleveland 30-6 in the runnerup bowl. Allen and Don Shula of Baltimore were named co-coaches-of-the-year by The Associated Press. Bused by injuries, the Rams were 10-3-1 in 1968, losing to the Bears 17-16 and to the Colts 28-24 in their final two games.

Scott Miller Gets Award Iowa defensive end Scott Miller was one of 33 football players from across the nation Thursday who were named to receive $1,000 postgraduate scholarships. The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced 11 awards each in university, college and at-large divisions. Each winner carried a 3.0 grade point average or better in three years of college work. In addition, each player has announced intention of graduate work and has been considered an outstanding performer on the football field. Miller's 3.95 grade point average was the second best among the 33 players named. Miller played sparingly in 1968 because of injury, but started every game as a sophomore and junior.

Undefeated Iowa wrestlers are Joe Carstensen, who has won 13 matches at 137 pounds, and Joe Wells, who has won 12 at 152. Hawkeye meets on the eastern swing are at East Stroudsburg, Pa. State Jan. 2, Yale Jan. 3, New York AC and Maritime Jan. 4 and Army Jan. 6.

Ohioan Gets Michigan Job DETROIT (AP) — Bo Schembechler, the successful football coach at Miami of Ohio, has been offered the post of head football coach at the University of Michigan. The Associated Press learned Thursday night. Schembechler, it was learned, was in Ann Arbor Thursday where Athletic Director Don Canham held a meeting with several of his staff members. Presumably, Schembechler attended along with Chalmers "Bump" Elliott, Michigan football coach the past 10 years. Schembechler, who is 39, coached the Miami Redskins to a 7-3 season and a second place finish in the Mid American Conference.

Closed Circuit TV Set for 3 Cities Closed circuit television of six Iowa home basketball games was announced by the school Thursday for three cities in Iowa. The closed circuit sites will be KRNT Theater in Des Moines, the Masonic Temple in Davenport and the Town House Motor Hotel in Cedar Rapids. Hawkeye home games to be televised via the closed circuit are against Indiana, Jan. 11; Michigan State, Jan. 14; Northwestern, Feb. 11; Michigan, Feb. 15; Illinois, Feb. 25, and Purdue, March 1. In addition, a game against Minnesota here Jan. 18 will be televised on the Big Ten Conference basketball network. Iowa's home games are sold out.

Traffic Is Heavy

Iowa's Dick Jensen (4) found the going rough at times during Saturday's 100-73 victory over Creighton. Jensen, fouled by Joe Bergman (41) after attempting a shot, falls back into Bergman, and Creighton's Steve Jansa (52) while the Blue-Jays' Wally Andersons looks on. The victory was a warmup for Iowa's trip to New Orleans this weekend to play in the Sugar Bowl Classic. — Photo by Dave Luck
