ARH Considering Softened Policy On Dorm Visits

By SHARON STEPHENSON

A bill outlining a more liberal policy for visits between men and women living in dormitories was presented to members of Associated Residence Halls (ARH) Wednesday night in an effort to eliminate all the confusion and paperwork involved in implementing present visitation policies.

Dormitory visitations are registered social functions in which the residents of a housing unit may invite guests, including guests of the opposite sex, into their own rooms.

The bill calls for changes in three of the present visitation provisions in the Code of Student Life.

The new visitation proposal was drawn up by Ray Carson, G. Hinsdale, III, head resident of Hillcrest. It is patterned after one used at The University of Indiana.

Carson said that most of the Big 10 universities have already adopted similar plans.

If the new plan were adopted by the residence halls, it would then be presented to the Committee of Student Life (CSL) for its approval. The CSL would then give it to Pres. Howard R. Bowen, requesting that an amendment be made to the Code covering the changes.

Objectives of the more liberal policy are to:

- Eliminate the volume of paperwork necessary to register and schedule times for visitations with the Office of Student Affairs;
- Eliminate the "open door policy" and allow students to have their doors closed during the specified visitation hours;
- Require unit presidents to be present on their floors during visitation hours only when enforcing the procedures for signing guests in and out of their units;
- Extend the hours during which visitation may be held.

The Code now specifies the following hours: 4:30 to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 3 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. on Friday; 10 a.m. to 12:30 a.m. on Saturday; and 10 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. on Sunday.

If the proposed revisions are approved, visitation hours would be extended to a half hour before women's dormitory closing hours, or 11:30 each weekday night, 12:30 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights and 11:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Requests for visitation privileges are made by each basic housing unit within a dormitory filing a request with his resident. The head resident approves the requests on behalf of the Office of Student Affairs.

Carson said that, with all the paperwork involved in filing these requests, students and advisers can be confused as to what time their unit is actually having visitation. He said that during one weekend he handled 52 visitation requests for Hillcrest's 17 housing units.

As the new plan is set up, each dormitory would legislate visitation procedures and rules for its own dormitory at the beginning of the year. The basic hours would then remain uniform throughout the entire year.

Requests for additional visitation privileges could be made on special occasions, or the housing unit could vote not to have them at all such as during finals.

During visitation hours now, at least one house officer must be on duty in the residence unit at all times and is responsible for adequately supervising the visitation.

Under the new plan, the unit officer or his appointed delegate would only be responsible for seeing that guests were properly signed in and out of the unit.

Present policies also state that when a dormitory resident entertains a guest of the opposite sex in his room, the corridor door must be kept ajar.

The new bill would eliminate this policy allowing residents to have their doors closed.

Four men's dormitories have already approved the new plan by a vote of each general council. Members of the women's residence halls' associations will consider the plan this week.

Students Will Conduct and Publish An Evaluation of Courses, Teachers

An evaluation of courses and teachers is being conducted by students, for students, for the first time at the University. It will also be the first such evaluation to be made public.

Questionnaires for the evaluation, co-sponsored by the Action Studies Program (ASP) and the Student Senate, will be given to students in selected classes during the next two weeks.

The evaluation, involving an estimated 100 courses and several thousand students, is being given its pilot run in three departments: business, journalism and speech and drama.

Information sought in the evaluation deals with student opinion on the teachers' handling of the course, the amount and difficulty of the material and the manner of testing used in the course.

Partially objective and partially essay in format, the evaluation asks students what significance the course has had in their education and why he thinks the course was offered.

Last fall debate was stirred on campus concerning the value of publishing the results of evaluations of this sort. The College of Liberal Arts did an evaluation last

No Supply Worries Yet In 5-Day-Old Oil Strike

DENVER — Most of the nation's major oil companies reported their gasoline supplies were ample Wednesday, as a strike by nearly 50,000 oil workers dragged through its fifth day with no settlement in sight.

In the areas where shortages developed, the problem appeared to be more a lack of delivery than lack of supply.

There were indications that the problems may become more acute if the walkout is prolonged.

Ray Davidson, a spokesman for the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union (OCAW) said reports to the Denver headquarters indicate "that in many, many cases drivers are not crossing the picket lines."

The most serious shortage appeared to be in Michigan, where the OCAW said about 10 per cent of the stations serviced by eight struck companies have shut down, mostly because drivers wouldn't cross picket lines.

The union said it was arranging for emergency fuel deliveries to Michigan's state hospitals, county prisons and the Southern Michigan Prison.

The Detroit News reported that some stations which still had supplies were raising prices as much as four cents a gallon.

Rep. William S. Brookfield (R-Mich.) asked President Johnson on Tuesday to step in, terming the Detroit situation "especially acute."

Gulf Oil Corp. went to court in Wayne County, Mich., Wednesday, seeking an injunction prohibiting pickets from blocking entrances at a suburban depot and from threatening non-strikers.

Mobil's New England spokesman said there were isolated instances of temporarily tight supplies. "We may have temporary run-outs at stations, but none will be closed down because we can't get gasoline."

Ample supplies were reported elsewhere.

Police in Long Beach said snipers fired on three Texaco tank trucks Wednesday in incidents believed to be connected with the strike. No one was injured, but bullets punctured the trucks' radiators.

Meanwhile, scattered industry-union negotiations over 435 separate contracts continued without progress and a federal mediator said "this looks like a long one."

The OCAW is demanding improvements including 72 cents an hour in wage increases spread over a 23-month contract. The oil companies say they have offered about half that amount.

The strike began last Friday at midnight, after an extension from midnight New Year's Eve failed to produce a settlement.

Associated Press Faces Possibility Of Strike by Guild

NEW YORK — The Wire Service Guild Wednesday walked out of negotiations with The Associated Press after five weeks of bargaining for a new contract. No time or date for a new meeting was set.

Federal mediator George Byrnes, relaying word of the walkout by guild negotiators, said the union refused to discuss its future plans with him.

A guild bulletin, distributed after the session broke off, quoted Robert Crocker, chairman of the union's negotiating committee: "We are preparing for strike action in the near future."

An Associated Press spokesman said the AP would continue to operate its basic domestic and foreign news services in the event of a strike.

Bargaining became deadlocked over the guild's demand for a union shop and for a scale in excess of $250 weekly.

The Associated Press again offered to extend the contract until midnight Saturday. The Guild rejected this proposal and left the session. The old contract has expired and is not in force, the AP said, because of failure to agree.

The Associated Press had offered a three-year contract providing for a $250 top minimum for newsmen, photographers and certain other employees. The guild rejected it, and made a counter proposal last night calling for six-month wage steps and a weekly top minimum wage of $264.

The AP proposal of three-year contract provided for increases of up to $48, substantial pension improvements and increases in night, overtime and other differentials.

The Guild demanded a form of the union shop requiring that eight out of 10 new employees must be Guild members, plus "union security with maintenance of membership."

CSC Airs Arguments On Code Jurisdiction

By CATHARINE BORCKARDT

The obligation of the Committee on Student Conduct (CSC) does not include decisions on its jurisdiction or the validity of the Code of Student Life, a spokesman for the University charged Wednesday night.

John Larson, assistant to Pres. Howard R. Bowen, represented the University at an open hearing of the CSC called to determine whether the committee has jurisdiction to hear the cases of three students and a University-recognized organization charged with violations of the controversial Code.

The other side of the argument was taken by speakers for the New University Conference (NUC), a liberal faculty-graduate student organization. The NUC argued that the student conduct committee did have the power to determine its jurisdiction.

Philip Mauser, assistant professor of law, speaking for the NUC, responded to Larson's contention that the CSC was the only organization on campus capable of deciding the jurisdictional question because there is no actual political organization at the University.

The NUC was representing Jerry Sies, A4, Iowa City, one of the three students charged under the Code. Sies was present at the hearing, but the other two students — Ken Wessels, A3, Dyersville, and Dan Cheeseman, A4, Elkader — were not.

Representatives of Students for a Democratic Society, the campus group charged with Code violations, were also not present.

Approximately an hour of the hearing was taken up with the reply of the committee to eight "challenges" that had been communicated to it by the NUC before Christmas vacation.

The CSC sustained only one of the challenges, which dealt with the ability of Gary Lane, L3, Riverside, a committee member, to sit on the pending CSC trials.

The NUC had charged that Lane would be biased because he is employed by the University.

The challenge was sustained ex post facto because Lane had already withdrawn.

Boyd's Doing Fine After Transplant

Tom and Margaret Boyd are reported to be "doing fine" following an operation Tuesday in which Tom received a kidney transplant from his sister, a 21-year-old senior at the University.

Mrs. Harry Aicher, Jr., Route 4, who is in charge of public relations for the Tom Boyd Kidney Transplant Fund, said Wednesday that the operation was successful and that Tom and Margaret were in good condition.

Tom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Boyd, Route 5, went to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., in November to undergo tests and preparation for the kidney transplant.

The 16-year-old student at Regina High School has been living with the aid of a dialysis which functioned in place of his kidneys which failed due to illness in the fall.

Local citizens raised more than $15,000 for the transplant fund. It has been estimated that the operation will cost from $20,000 to $40,000.

Benefit dances are scheduled Saturday at the Elks Club and the Knights of Columbus Hall to raise money for the transplant fund. Howdy Roberts will play at the Elks Club and the Major 7th at the Knights Hall. Admission will be $1.50 and will include admission to both dances. A color television set will be awarded as a door prize.

The NUC contested the Code Wednesday night on the grounds that it establishes an authoritarian relationship between the University administration and students and faculty, in violation of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) — National Student Association (NSA) Joint Statement.

Mauser charged that the adoption of the Code violated the Joint Statement requirement that faculty and students be given an equal voice in University rule-making.

Bowen has stated that he considers the Joint Statement University policy.

Larson responded that policy statements of the University come second to the actual regulations of the Code. To what extent the president should share with students and faculty his legal right to make rules, and the consideration of the Code in this light, is a political question, and not the domain of CSC, Larson said.

Larson, who is legal counsel to the University, said that the University does provide means for students to participate in policy making through the Committee on Student Life and the Student Senate. He also warned the CSC that to declare the Code invalid might seriously endanger the good order of the University by, in effect, leaving the University without regulations.

The NUC contended that Bowen had violated the Joint Statement by not referring the accepted version of the Code back to the CSL, which drafted the original version of the Code, later altered by the administration. Larson responded that, in order to expedite replacement of the old code, Bowen had not called in the members of the CSL to review his changes.

The NUC attacked the charges against the three students and SDS as political moves of the Office of Student Affairs in order to rid the campus of "troublemakers."

Mauser questioned why only three students and SDS were charged when over 100 students, by coming to a microphone and giving their names, participated in the "unauthorized" rally sponsored by SDS which led to the charges.

A small crowd of about 50 persons — mostly students — attended the hearing, which was held in the Old Capitol Senate Chamber.

The CSC is to meet this afternoon to deliberate on the points raised at the hearing. A decision on the jurisdictional question is expected to be reached Friday.

Sirhan's Lawyers Hit Jury System

LOS ANGELES — Defenders of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan attacked the county's jury selection system Wednesday as not representative of the community, and his murder trial got its first witness — an expert on juries.

The 24-year-old Jordanian accused of fatally shooting Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last June watched attentively during the second session of his trial, which lasted less than an hour and was devoted to motions and arguments and rulings on them.

Attorney Grant B. Cooper moved to set aside the list of prospective jurors saying they do not comprise "a true cross-section of the community." The system, he said, excludes many groups such as legislators, stenographers, professors, ministers, teachers, doctors and mail carriers.

Jury Commissioner William A. Goodwin, testifying on the motion, said any prospective juror claiming an exemption could be removed from final jury selection lists. Many, however, waive their right to exemption, he added.

Then, at the request of Chief Dep. Dist. Atty. Lynn D. Compton, Goodwin read into the trial record part of jury selection law stipulating "no discrimination," fairness and impartiality.

Cooper said he would like more time to think about the motion before the judge rules on it, and Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker said he would keep the motion open.

Walker let Cooper put Goodwin on the stand after denying a defense motion for a 30-day continuance so Cooper could confer with the commissioner.

The judge also denied a renewed motion for separate juries for the trial itself and for a decision on the penalty. The first such motion was rejected Tuesday.

Then the defense moved to set aside Sirhan's plea of innocent in order to quash the indictment charging him with murder.

Walker set aside the motion, saying it was unnecessary. Because of an amendment to California law, he said, the defense can request quashing the charge without removing the plea.

Cooper also asked for more time on another motion, to quash the indictment on grounds that grand juries also are not representative of the community.

The judge granted the time so Cooper can study the transcript of a grand jury in another case in which the defense made a similar challenge.

"If he (Sirhan) were convicted with an unbalanced grand jury... the case could be reversed on appeal and tried again after some of the prejudice has cooled down," Cooper explained to newsmen later.

This, he said, might possibly result in a verdict of life imprisonment in place of an earlier verdict for a death penalty.

During Goodwin's testimony, the jury commissioner said trial jury lists are made by selecting names from the county registrar's list of voters.

For instance, he said, this year his office will select every fifth name in every fifth precinct. The work is done by a data processing machine, he said.

Cooper cited a Supreme Court ruling that "every citizen ought to be subject to jury duty" and jurors should be "drawn from the widest cross-section of the people."

The present system, with its exemptions, does not allow this, he said.

On rights and privileges

The Supreme Court will be taking a stand that may either uphold or deny the concept of dissent on college campuses when it rules on a case resulting from a demonstration at a West Virginia college.

The demonstration in question resulted in the suspension of 10 students who participated in a protest of alleged discriminatory practices of Bluefield State College in October, 1967.

Attorneys for the students are asking the court to require administrators to give fair and impartial hearings to students facing expulsion because of protest activities.

At the same time, California Gov. Ronald Reagan is trying desperately to keep his head above water following massive unrest at San Francisco State College.

In his annual "State of the State" address, Reagan called on the State Legislature to clamp down on campus turmoil by increasing penalties for students, nonstudents and faculty members involved in disturbances.

Reagan is proposing omnibus legislation to insure "the safety and security of our educational institutions — to protect the teacher, the student and the public."

He proposes increased penalties, including the expulsion of students and dismissal of teachers who interfere with the catchall "educational process" of institutions.

The overriding problem on campuses is "insurrection and anarchy," according to Reagan. He suggests that higher education is a privilege, not a right, and therefore should not be interfered with.

We suggest that dissent, freedom of speech and assembly and freedom of petition for redress of grievances are rights, not privileges.

Although an institution of higher learning is not open to all without qualifications, nevertheless, it is still an institution of society. This society is based on democratic principles, and these principles cannot be violated by anyone, anything or any institution.

No state should have the power to legislate in violation of basic Constitutional rights. And no institution should have the right to expel students without trials or hearings for activities that may be within the jurisdiction of the Constitution.

Student dissent has not fared well at the national level. Included in the higher education act, signed into law earlier this fall, were provisions for cutting off federal loans to students who are convicted for activities deemed "disruptive" on college campuses.

Nevertheless, it is time that the Supreme Court take action to assert the importance of Constitutional rights of students and faculty members who are involved in protests.

Dissent was an important factor in the beginnings of this country's democracy. To legislate against dissent could mean the end of this country's democracy.

A landslide victory?

When Richard Bartel was a boy, his parents must have told him he could be anything he wanted to be, if he just put his mind to it.

Now he's Justice of the Peace for Sharon Township in rural Johnson County, and all it took was the ability to write his own name.

Or maybe he's a stickler for the democratic process. Upon entering the voting booth last November, Bartel noticed there was no candidate for Justice of the Peace (which isn't surprising — Sharon Township hasn't had one in 50 years), so he wrote his own name in.

And he won. By one vote. His own.

But his wife still wasn't satisfied. What do you suppose was the first thing she said when he told her about his "grassroots victory?"

"Why didn't you tell me you wanted to be Justice of the Peace? I would have voted for you too."

It took some doing to convince the local bureaucracy that he had been legitimately elected to the office of Justice of the Peace, but he has now been sworn in. One thing he won't have to worry about is filing his campaign expenses.

It is somewhat shocking to think that only one voter in all of Sharon Township thought there should be a justice of the peace. Why, some observers say that in neighboring townships Justices of the Peace have been elected into office by whopping totals of as many as eight or nine voters.

Some cynics say that Iowa's outmoded Justice of the Peace system should be abolished. We don't: where else can ordinary citizens aspire to an office for which there are no qualifications? Besides, it sometimes provides some much-needed humor in the otherwise grim democratic process.

'The pill' and its problems in Iowa City —

Should colleges give coeds the pill? Moral, medical controversy continues

(Last article in a two-part study.)
By MITSUYO HIGA

Regarding legal limitations placed on the dispensing of contraceptive devices by a medical practice, Dr. Lowell R. Hughes, assistant professor of gynecology and obstetrics, said nothing was actually spelled out in Iowa except a possibility of legal action for prescribing contraceptives for minors.

Interpretation regarding the legality of prescribing contraceptives for minors allows the individual physician to judge whether or not his patients need them, according to Dr. Hughes.

The advent of "the pill" has also engendered much controversy and disagreement among physicians and lay people as well. Questions have been raised regarding its use on the basis of safety, as well as of moral and ethical responsibility.

The use of the pill has apparently led to some medical emergencies and even fatalities, though it should be remembered also that the same may be said of pregnancy and childbirth.

One area of disagreement is the question of a physician's responsibility for giving contraceptive counsel: Should the pill be made available to all who wish to have it or should the physician exercise his own judgment as to whether to make the material available to his patient, depending on circumstances as he knows them?

The basic area of general agreement in the pros and cons is the opinion that every woman who uses this medication should have a careful pelvic examination before using the pill and that there should be periodic checkups during the years of its use. There is no unanimous agreement among physicians, however, as to whether they should take the initiative in counseling sessions.

Doctor's Responsibility?
A growing trend in the past was to call for increased physicians' responsibility in family planning programs.

In 1964, the Committee on Human Reproduction issued a recommendation which was approved by the American Medical Association's Board of Trustees and House of Delegates. A part of it states as follows:

"The problems that relate to human reproduction, including the need for population control, are more than a matter of responsible medical practice.

"The medical profession should accept a major responsibility for such matters as they affect the total population and the individual family.

"Physicians must be prepared to provide counsel and guidance when the needs of their patients require it or to refer them to appropriate persons."

Dr. Hughes said that physicians would often fail to bring up the subject of contraception.

"We try to instruct our staff members in their responsibility to bring this matter to the patient and to provide opportunity for patients to obtain information which is medically correct," Dr. Hughes said.

College students and staff members of college health services in the nation have expressed disagreement regarding the issue of whether student health physicians should give coeds the pill. Pro and con opinions appeared in an article in a recent issue of a medical journal, "Medical World News."

Regarding the issue as medical, Dr. Maurice M. Osborne, executive director of Cowell Student Health Center at Stanford University, upheld the view that the student health physician should be no more restricted in his practice of medicine than his colleague in the general community where he resides.

Dispute On Moral Issue
Dr. Osborne takes his stand on the basis that it has been an accepted part of one's practice to give contraceptive advice and to prescribe contraceptive devices to married women on campus who wish them and for whom they are medically approved and to young women who are about to be married.

Presenting the opinion that this is not within the area of responsibility of the Health Service, Dr. Walton Prescott, senior staff physician of Cowell Student Health Center of University of California at Davis, regards the issue as moral and opposes such a liberal policy.

Dr. Prescott's arguments are based on a belief that pregnancies occur when contraceptive devices which are not 100 per cent effective are improperly used. For psychological reasons, Dr. Prescott is of the opinion that if a young woman who is taking the pill feels an implied commitment to sexual act, it is not a healthy mental attitude and may lead to promiscuity.

Dr. Prescott states that sex is a private concern of the individual student. If any prescribing of the pill is to be done, Dr. Prescott continues, it should be by the personal or family physician, not the student health center.

Interviews with some members of the Student Health Service here have revealed that there is no "policy" regarding the availability of contraceptive information, but that each physician makes decisions on the merits of the case as is done in any doctor-patient situation.

Believing that a gynecological examination is mandatory before starting medication, married women and soon-to-be-married women are referred to the appropriate department for examination and advice on request, according to officials of the Student Health.

For any girl who wishes to discuss the matter and explore the thinking of a physician in her case "the door is always open," the University's Student Health officials said.

Football is a year-round sport—

When does the season end?

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — I know people aren't going to believe this, but my wife thinks that the 1968 football season is over just because it's 1969. This shows how out of touch some American women are.

Last Saturday, for example, I was watching a post-season game from Nome, Alaska, brought in by satellite, when my wife came in the room and said, "I thought the football season officially ended on New Year's Day."
"It's true the official college season ended on New Year's Day with

'Hark — did I hear somebody knock or fail to knock a while ago?'

the post-season bowl games, but there are still a lot of post-season games that have to be played."

"Have to be played?" she asked.

"Of course. For example, there has to be a game between the Northeastern All-Stars and the Southwestern All-Stars at Sandy Hook, L.I."

"What for?"
"That's a stupid question," I said. "To play the winner of the Southeastern All-Stars and Northwestern All-Stars game in Cheyenne, Wyo."

"And what will that decide, that the Rose Bowl, Orange Bowl, Cotton Bowl and Sugar Bowl haven't decided already?" she asked.

"It will decide what teams will play against each other on Lincoln's birthday in Springfield, Ill."

My wife leaned on her broom. "Don't get me wrong. I enjoy football as much as any wife who lives alone, but it seems to me that the 1968 football season should end in 1968, for neatness if nothing else."
"You can't end the 1968 football season in 1968," I said angrily. "There are still too many games that have to be played."
"For example?" she asked.

"Well, you have the Blue and Gray game between the North and the South, and then you have the Red and White game, between Anglo-Saxons and those of Indian blood. Then there is the Black Power All-Stars against the Uncle Toms, and I haven't even told you who's playing tomorrow."

"Why don't they let the kids go back to classes after they've finished playing football for the season?"

"Because this way the kids get a chance to visit Mobile, Ala., and Death Valley and Sutter's Creek — places they'd never see if they didn't play football. Don't you understand? Behind every football team in the United States there's a promoter ready to hold a bowl game once the season is over."

"Well, it seems to me they take advantage of those boys."

"Now you're talking like a do-gooder. You have to toughen these kids up if they're ever going to play pro ball."

"Don't tell me the professional football season isn't over either?"

"It's hardly beginning. Haven't you ever heard of the Super Bowl?"

"I know you'll hate me if I say I haven't."

"Well, there's the Super Bowl, and there is the East-West Pro Bowl, and there's the Coaches' All-Star Bowl, not to mention a special Midnight Bowl which is going to be played in South Korea as part of Armed Forces Week festivities."

"Could you give me a guess, a wild guess if you like, as to when the last whistle of the last game of 1968 officially will be blown?"

I took out a pencil and started calculating. Finally I said, "Taking in everything, including post-season, all-star, all-pro, all-coaches, high school, college and professional football, I would say that the 1968 football season will officially end on June 16, 1969."

My wife sighed. "It seems like only yesterday when they didn't even know if O. J. Simpson would make the Women's Wear Daily All-American team."

Lighter side of '68

Certainly one of the highlight events of 1968 was the magnificently successful Apollo flight. Personally, I was very glad to see the Apollo astronauts make it to the moon and back. The flight proved once and for all that it is possible for something to take off from Florida and not get hijacked to Cuba.

And I'm glad the astronauts got back safely. Anything had happened to them, the government would be drafting black cats for space jobs.

To tell the truth, I think it was good that they didn't find any life on the moon, this year at least. If they did find any form of intelligent life on the moon, it would take the astronauts 10 years just to explain Spiro Agnew to the moon folks.

But it was truly marvelous to get three astronauts around the moon and back again, with a pinpoint precision landing. Now if we could just get some black folks into the suburbs.

I understand Mayor Daley has invited the Apollo astronauts to come to Chicago. He said they would be welcome as soon as they shaved off those beards.

Of course, the other big news event was the Presidential election. I understand that both President Johnson and Vice-President Humphrey plan to teach college when they leave office. There is a rumor that LBJ will teach "American History of Barbecue." And HHH plans to teach debate — if he can get Richard Nixon into his classroom.

Another rumor hinted that Justice Thurgood Marshall was supposed to swear in Vice-President Spiro Agnew. But the Nixon staff decided against it. They were afraid Agnew might slip and call Justice Marshall "boy."

President-Elect Nixon chose to go on national television to announce his lily-white cabinet. I was looking for him to break out any moment with a chorus of "I'm dreaming of a white Christmas." Nixon may not have any black folks in his cabinet family, but with Spiro Agnew he certainly has a black sheep.

And the President-Elect asked J. Edgar Hoover to stay on as head of the FBI. Of course, Nixon is so square I wouldn't be surprised if he asked Lady Bird to stay on. And she is so square, she just might accept.

Speaking of square, did you see the Julie Nixon and David Eisenhower wedding on TV? I knew they were square, but I didn't think they were so square they would get Norman Vincent Peale to perform the ceremony. I didn't expect them to get Elijah Muhammad. But with Norman Vincent Peale as their pastor, David and Julie probably spent their wedding night writing letters to Santa Claus.

New York City dominated the news in 1968. I really felt sorry for the kids in New York being locked out of their schools during the teachers' strike. We didn't have that much trouble getting a black kid into the University of Alabama.

The fuel workers' strike caused a real crisis in New York. People tell me that some buildings were so cold the janitors were banging on the pipes.

But New York's problems have helped racial understanding. You know how white folks are always saying black folks are lazy and shiftless. In New York City, there have been so many strikes that nobody has worked regularly for years.

And the Columbia University struggle has helped, too. That is one campus where you can't tell the white students from the black students. They're all wearing gas masks.

I really dig the young white kids of America, because they are more radical than the black folks. The most we will do is burn down Sam's Pawn Shop. These white kids will burn the Mississippi River.

The students in Mexico City had quite a year in 1968. Of course, I knew something was going to happen back in August. I visited National University and the students were singing, "We Shall Overcome... Cha, Cha, Cha."

The Navy still denies that the Pueblo crew was spying. The crew denied it too — even while the Navy was issuing them new trenchcoats.

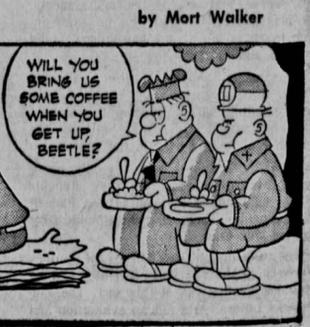

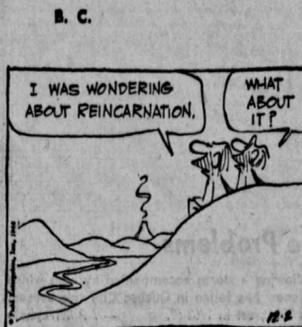

Unfortunately, the year closes with the Paris peace talks still bogged down. Can you believe they are arguing about where the negotiators are going to sit? If I were in charge, I would hold those talks on the front line in Vietnam, with targets painted on the jackets of the negotiators. I bet we'd get peace then.

The war in Vietnam is getting more unpopular every day and protest was at an all-time high in 1968. Even the 4-Fs were burning their draft cards.

Of course, burning a draft card is old-fashioned these days. A group of hippies have a new gimmick. They roll some pot into their draft cards and smoke them. There is nothing like blowing your trip to Vietnam.

But kids are rebelling everywhere. I wouldn't be surprised to see the Girl Scouts throw away those stale cookies and start pushing LSD.

Most people in America will spend 1969 worrying about war, riots and taxes. Not me. I just worry about what Agnew would do if Nixon caught the flu.

Counties Win Fight to Stop Tax Increase

DES MOINES (AP) — State-ordered property valuation increases in 47 Iowa counties were barred because of lateness by Polk County District Court Judge Gibson Holliday Wednesday.

The orders, applied to a total of 71 counties and six cities by Iowa Revenue Director William Forst Nov. 15, were challenged by 47 counties and the city of Burlington.

Holliday granted a temporary injunction which puts off for one year application of the increases. The increases ranged from 10 to 70 per cent on various types of property.

Forst said the Department of Revenue hasn't decided whether Holliday's ruling will be appealed. "We're not sure it's an appealable decision," he said.

The revenue director called the ruling "unfortunate" and said it will create inequities between counties in which property is assessed at 27 per cent of actual value and those judged too low by the department.

"He's just saying 'that ends equalization for this year,'" Forst said of Holliday's decision.

Holliday said it was just too late now to make the counties put on the increases.

Noting that the state orders were issued more than two months after the statutory deadline, Holliday said:

"The delay did create an impossible situation and burden upon the plaintiffs.

"If allowed to stand, it would place the plaintiffs and other recipients of tax funds in a difficult, if not impossible, situation."

The counties claimed that applying the increases to assessment lists now would prevent them from collecting property taxes for county, city, school district and other governments until mid-summer.

In the meantime, they would have to issue interest-bearing warrants to pay operating costs, the counties claimed.

Fear of 'Credit Crunch' Grows As Interest Rates Go Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Apprehension over a "credit crunch" is growing as interest rates climb and the availability of lending money tightens.

This tightening affects business and individuals by slowing corporate expansion and making it more difficult for consumers to obtain loans.

With the economy surging ahead despite the government's hope that the 10 per cent income tax surcharge would slow it down, the demand for loans has swallowed up much of the banks' lending money. As a result, it is harder and more expensive to obtain loans.

Indications of a possible crunch were seen in mid-December when the Federal Reserve Board boosted its discount rate — the interest at which member banks borrow money to build reserves for lending to their customers. The intention of the Federal Reserve was to slow the pace of economic growth and stem inflation by reducing the amount of available stimulating money.

The increase Tuesday in banks' prime rate — the interest charged big borrowers — to a record 7 per cent increased fears that a crunch was developing. While high interest rates alone don't bring on a crunch, they are evidence that banks' funds are in great demand.

Despite high interest charges, corporations have continued to borrow at a fast rate in fear of even higher rates ahead.

The term "crunch" came into general use to describe a money crisis in 1966 when the tightness of lending money triggered a small recession.

At the time, corporate expansion slowed because loans were difficult to get. The rate of housing starts collapsed because little money was available for mortgage loans. Individuals found it hard to get loans to finance purchases of automobiles, appliances, furniture and other major items.

Funds available were diverted to those willing to pay the highest interest.

The result was a snowballing effect on the economy. Manufacturers sold fewer cars and other products on down the line either because the consumers couldn't obtain financing or were unwilling to pay high interest rates.

The gross national product — total of all goods and services — showed its first decline in terms of constant dollars in the first quarter of 1967.

Leif H. Olsen, senior vice president and economist of New York's First National City Bank, sees the possibility of a crunch developing.

But he doesn't expect it to be as severe as that of 1966 because money is still not so scarce as it became in 1966.

UI Editor Helps Induct 17 into Circus Society

Eric Wilson, a sports editor for University sports information, helped induct 17 circus performers Monday into the Circus Hall of Fame at Venice, Fla.

Wilson is a member of the Circus Hall of Fame's national awards committee, a group of circus historians who nominate performers annually for the hall of fame.

The induction ceremony occurred in the center ring of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus at the Ringling arena in Venice, where the "Greatest Show on Earth" opened its 1969 season.

City Landlords Complying With Rental-Permit Rule

City landlords are apparently complying with a recently-passed ordinance requiring them to take out new rental permits, City Housing Inspector Lamonte W. Trexler, said Wednesday.

The ordinance, which was passed in October to take effect Jan. 1, requires owners of rental property that meets city minimum housing standards to take out permanent permits, which are good for one year.

Owners of property that falls below minimum standards are issued temporary permits pending completion of required improvements.

Although Trexler had no figures on the number of permits taken out under the new ordinance, he said landlords had been "responding well."

"We've had a lot of compliance with the housing standards and have only had to issue about half a dozen temporary permits," Trexler said.

While no deadline has been set for taking out permits, Trexler said applications are due and payable now. After an as-yet-undetermined period of time, landlords who are delinquent on their permit applications could be "denied the right to continue in business," Trexler said.

Permits cost $5 for single family rental units, $10 for duplexes and $10 plus $1 per unit for multiple-dwelling units.

Brandeis Blacks Protest

Protesting black students block the entrance to Ford School at Brandeis University at Waltham, Mass., Wednesday, to press for a number of demands they say they have made of the administration at the school. They took over the institution's main telephone switchboard, in the building, brought in food and settled down to stay, they said, until their demands are met.

Black Students SIEZE Building at Brandeis

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — An estimated 65 blacks, moving swiftly and unexpectedly, occupied Ford Hall and took over the Brandeis University switchboard Wednesday.

A university spokesman described the takeover as nonviolent. He said the telephone operators on duty apparently stepped aside when the invaders moved in.

The red brick hall houses faculty offices, classrooms and an auditorium as well as the switchboard.

The university telephone system was disrupted. A male voice answering calls said the system was out of order.

The university made no immediate move to expel the black young men and women who were believed to be students.

There was talk of black demands, but the university said it had received none.

The university said it looked forward to a discussion on whatever reasons the students had for occupying the building, but added that it couldn't tolerate the disruption of university activity.

The faculty was summoned into emergency session and the Student Council scheduled a meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

"From these two discussions, a decision will be made on whether to hold a general convention of students on the matter," a university spokesman said.

Racial Storm over Long Hair Erupts at NCAA Convention

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The otherwise dull and uneventful National Collegiate Athletic Association convention erupted into a racial storm Wednesday over the question of whether an athlete can be stripped of his scholarship because of his haircut.

"This looks like a throwback to the past hot summer and some of the things that happened then," said C. D. Henry, of Louisiana's famed Grambling College, producer of black pro football stars.

"Does it mean a boy can be kicked out for failing to get a haircut or for wearing an Afro haircut?"

"This looks like a slap at the black athlete," charged another black delegate.

"The issue that struck a match to the fire was an innocuous piece of language asking an interpretation of the grounds under which an athlete, once given a grant-in-aid, can have it taken away.

The example in question said: "A member institution may terminate the financial aid of an athlete if he is adjudged to have been guilty of manifest disobedience."

What constitutes manifest disobedience? Henry asked.

"When I went to school in the Midwest there was only one black barber shop in town and the barber was inclined to get intoxicated," he said.

"A teammate of mine had an idiosyncrasy. He didn't want a drunk man putting a razor to his head. So he would go home to Chicago — four hours and $10.69 by the Rocket (a train).

"If he missed practice, would that be disobedience?"

The faculty representative of the University of Texas, Neil Thompson, rose to express the view that haircuts and beards were like drinking. "We permit our regular students to drink without penalty, but not our athletes," Thompson said. "Long hair and beards not only defy orderliness but under certain circumstances can be detrimental to performance.

"It is a matter of maintaining discipline."

Harry Jessup, assistant athletic director of Tulane University, agreed. "We don't have the same standards for students and athletes," he said. "A regular student may drink and have feminine visitors to his room, but not the athletes."

David Swank, faculty representative from the University of Oklahoma who presented the proposal on cancellation of scholarships, said he didn't think haircuts were the real problem.

The NCAA brass agreed. "The key of the matter is disruption," said Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA. "It is concerned principally with athletes who take flagrant, disruptive action.

"A case was that of seven San Jose State athletes who lay down on the football field and refused to play a football game against Brigham Young. They had their scholarships taken away and the court upheld the action."

The interpretation in question, after a brisk floor fight, passed by a narrow 67 per cent when 66 2/3 was necessary but Marcus Plant of the University of Michigan, the NCAA president, ordered a paper ballot later in the day.

In other morning action, the NCAA retained the present freshman rule, permitting freshmen to compete in all varsity sports except football and basketball, and made it easier for junior college transfers with good grades to transfer to four-year institutions.

Goes for 4th Victory in L.A. Open—Palmer Tries for Comeback in '69

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arnold Palmer is back at one of his favorite golf courses, the Rancho municipal course in West Los Angeles, hopeful of winning the $100,000 Los Angeles Open.

The 72-hole winter fixture gets under way today and the opposition for Arnie and his California army is formidable.

There is Billy Casper, the defending champion; U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino; and many of the top professionals who dominate the sport.

A year ago Casper on his 13th attempt finally won the Los Angeles Open, and went on to win more money for the year than anyone else — about $205,000.

But Casper's victory was registered on another golf course, Pasadena's Brookside municipal layout, a site chosen by the pros because certain improvements demanded at Rancho had not been made.

Nicklaus, Casper Get PGA Posts

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper are among the four golfers elected to the Board of Directors of the newly-created Tournament Division of the Professional Golfers Association, it was announced Wednesday.

Nicklaus and Casper will serve two-year terms while Gardner Dickinson Jr. and Dan Sikes were elected for one-year terms. All four were officers of the American Professional Golfers before that group settled its dispute last month with the PGA.

The 10-man board also includes Leo Fraser, president of the PGA; Warren Orlick, secretary; William Clark, treasurer; plus businessmen John D. Murchison of Dallas, Paul Austin of Atlanta and George Love of Pittsburgh.

Drake Seeks 11th Victory

DES MOINES (AP) — Drake's flashy basketball team wades into the heart of its season here tonight in Veterans Auditorium, and Bulldog Coach Maury John says he's taking nothing for granted.

In a nutshell it means the club, which is off to one of its best starts, intends to maintain its competitive edge against Wichita State in spite of a wide edge in records.

Drake is 10-1 on the season, 2-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference and 18th ranked nationally this week ahead of three big tests.

Wichita is 1-3 in the Valley and a mediocre 4-9 on the year, but the Wheatshockers' conference triumph was noteworthy, 67-66 over Cincinnati last week.

"We're a marked team," said John, whose Bulldogs will play host Saturday night to conference leader Tulsa (3-0) and invade Cincinnati (1-2) next Tuesday.

"We can't afford to let down for a minute, and we especially cannot afford to look past Wichita to the Tulsa game," he said.

Drake's 104-65 thrashing of St. Louis here last week vaulted the team on top in Valley offense with an average of 86.1 points a game and boosted the Bulldogs to third on defense.

Despite the absence of a scorer among Valley leaders, the team has profited through balance and the Valley's best rebounding.

"I would say our ball game against St. Louis was encouraging, because it was a good, thorough effort and represented two good halves," John said.

"We were not only good offensively, but we did a good job on defense. It was a continuous thing.

"It's a good thing, because we're just getting into the meat of the Valley action."

I've come out of my shell with the pros."

Curtis said he wanted it known, however, that he didn't eat nails. "I'm not a crazy nut. When the Colts drafted me they knew I was aggressive. That's why they wanted me. I led my college team in tackles."

Don Shula, Baltimore coach, confirmed that he liked Curtis just the way he was. "Curtis is one of the main differences between this year's team and last year's. He's done a great job. He's as fast as a back — which he was in college — has fantastic quickness, a mean streak and is intelligent."

Curtis, who majored in history at Duke where he was a two-platoon player — fullback on offense and linebacker on defense — believes his aggressiveness goes back to his childhood.

"I can recall," he said, "always enjoying the rough things. I would build a fort of logs and then let the kids throw rocks at me so I could try and get out of the way of the rocks. I liked to ride a raft down the rough part of the river. I liked a good bee-bee gun fight as long as they weren't aimed at the face. When I rode a bike I enjoyed having an accident or bumping into something."

Curtis has the reputation of a killer on the field. He doesn't limit it to the opposition. If a teammate riles the one-time Duke fullback in practice he's just as liable to pop him.

"I don't know what makes me so aggressive," said Curtis. "I guess it's just that I like to compete. I don't like to be beaten. I enjoy contact a lot. I like to hit somebody."

When it was pointed out he didn't have this reputation for aggressiveness in college, Curtis said, "It was there. In college I didn't talk much with writers.

as West Division all-star net-minders but both are veterans of All-Star competition.

Defensesman Elmer Vasko of the Minnesota North Stars rounds out the West's all-star selections. He, too, has been selected to an All-Star team in the past.

Cheevers and Nevin are the only two members of the East Division's team that were not selected to an All-Star team in previous years.

Gordie Howe, veteran right winger from Detroit Red Wings, Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' scoring sensation, and Bobby Orr, the Bruins' young star defenseman, were the only players who polled the maximum 90 points in the voting.

An additional 980 seats have been installed at the west end of the Field House.

If you plan to try to obtain one of these seats, however, forget it. Tickets for the new seats have been sold for the remainder of the season.

Des Moines Roosevelt garnered 10 of 13 first place votes and held the lead Wednesday in the first week of The Associated Press's Iowa boys' basketball ratings.

The Roughriders, who boast a 7-0 record, head undefeated Waterloo East and 7-1 Cedar Rapids Washington in a top three — well separated from the rest of the pack.

Iowa City Regina also joined this week's list of top 10 teams. The Regals, who are coached by Bob Norton, are undefeated this season in their first seven outings.

Waterloo East, which needed an overtime to squeak past Waterloo Columbus for one of its eight triumphs, received two first place votes by sports writers and sportscasters.

Washington, which suffered a 72-70 defeat to Cedar Rapids Jefferson early in the season, was the only other high school team ranked first on any of the ballots.

Voters Pick 11 Players For NHL Star Debut

MONTREAL (AP) — Eleven of 24 players selected to play in the 22nd National Hockey League's All-Star game here Jan. 21 have never been chosen by the voters before.

Only three of the 12 players selected from the NHL's West Division have been named previously compared with 10 of the 12 players chosen from the East Division.

The format for this year's game has changed from previous years. In the past, the defending Stanley Cup champions faced the best players from the other teams in the league.

However, this year it will be the best in the East against the best in the West.

Netminders Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall of the Blues, who have registered a total of nine shutouts between them so far this season, were selected to play in the game.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper are among the four golfers elected to the Board of Directors of the newly-created Tournament Division of the Professional Golfers Association, it was announced Wednesday.

Nicklaus and Casper will serve two-year terms while Gardner Dickinson Jr. and Dan Sikes were elected for one-year terms. All four were officers of the American Professional Golfers before that group settled its dispute last month with the PGA.

The 10-man board also includes Leo Fraser, president of the PGA; Warren Orlick, secretary; William Clark, treasurer; plus businessmen John D. Murchison of Dallas, Paul Austin of Atlanta and George Love of Pittsburgh.

Drake's flashy basketball team wades into the heart of its season here tonight in Veterans Auditorium, and Bulldog Coach Maury John says he's taking nothing for granted.

In a nutshell it means the club, which is off to one of its best starts, intends to maintain its competitive edge against Wichita State in spite of a wide edge in records.

Drake is 10-1 on the season, 2-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference and 18th ranked nationally this week ahead of three big tests.

Wichita is 1-3 in the Valley and a mediocre 4-9 on the year, but the Wheatshockers' conference triumph was noteworthy, 67-66 over Cincinnati last week.

"We're a marked team," said John, whose Bulldogs will play host Saturday night to conference leader Tulsa (3-0) and invade Cincinnati (1-2) next Tuesday.

"We can't afford to let down for a minute, and we especially cannot afford to look past Wichita to the Tulsa game," he said.

Drake's 104-65 thrashing of St. Louis here last week vaulted the team on top in Valley offense with an average of 86.1 points a game and boosted the Bulldogs to third on defense.

Despite the absence of a scorer among Valley leaders, the team has profited through balance and the Valley's best rebounding.

"I would say our ball game against St. Louis was encouraging, because it was a good, thorough effort and represented two good halves," John said.

"We were not only good offensively, but we did a good job on defense. It was a continuous thing.

"It's a good thing, because we're just getting into the meat of the Valley action."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arnold Palmer is back at one of his favorite golf courses, the Rancho municipal course in West Los Angeles, hopeful of winning the $100,000 Los Angeles Open.

The 72-hole winter fixture gets under way today and the opposition for Arnie and his California army is formidable.

There is Billy Casper, the defending champion; U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino; and many of the top professionals who dominate the sport.

A year ago Casper on his 13th attempt finally won the Los Angeles Open, and went on to win more money for the year than anyone else — about $205,000.

But Casper's victory was registered on another golf course, Pasadena's Brookside municipal layout, a site chosen by the pros because certain improvements demanded at Rancho had not been made.

Growing Student Population Puts Strain on Local School District

By DAVE STEDWELL
An increase of approximately 2,600 students by 1975 is expected for the Iowa City Community School District, according to Supt. Buford Garner. There are about 8,900 students in grades kindergarten through 12 in the school district now.
Garner said in an interview Wednesday, that this increase was the reason for the proposed $4.4 million school bond which is scheduled for a vote Feb. 11.
In order to provide educational facilities for these students, additional classrooms will be needed, Garner said.
The proposed bond issue will provide the necessary funds for the construction of classrooms to meet the expected enrollment increases. Garner said that, if the bond issue is not passed, the school district will be forced to increase class size, add more temporary structures, transfer students and approve flexible boundaries.
One of the building projects to be financed by the sale of bonds is the construction of a new junior high school in Coralville. The proposed school will accommodate students who presently attend junior high classes at West High School. The classroom space occupied by the junior high students will be needed to meet increased high school enrollments.

The construction of two new elementary schools is also proposed. One of the schools will be built on a site north on Whiting Avenue and the other on a site north of Dartmouth and Washington streets.
Garner said that recent increases in elementary school enrollment has created an urgent need for additional classrooms, auxiliary facilities and storage space. The building projects proposed at the elementary level will meet these needs.
The bond issue would provide for additions and remodeling projects at Penn, Hills, Longfellow, Henry Sabin, Horace Mann and Coralville-Kirkwood elementary schools. Also planned is an addition to City High and extensive interior remodeling.
The proposed remodeling projects will provide expanded library facilities, enlarged and improved toilet facilities, additional storage and auxiliary space, and the remodeling of present classrooms to increase their versatility. Also planned is the replacement of steam radiators in the older schools with univents to improve heating and ventilation. New floor coverings, acoustic ceilings and redecoration will be done as needed, Garner said.

If the bond issue is passed by the voters, Garner said, he anticipates the completion of the two new elementary schools by the fall of 1970 and the junior high school by the fall of 1971.
The proposed bond issue represents a four to five mill increase in taxes. An exact millage increase can not be figured until the state determines the new tax base for next year.
Based on the 1968 district assessed valuation of $76,859,629, a resident whose home is assessed at $6,000 will have an estimated tax increase of $25 to $30. This figure will decrease markedly as the proposed bonds are paid off and the school district's assessed valuation increases.

4 Veteran Iowa Lawmakers Named to Hold Pursestrings for 1969 Legislature Session

DES MOINES (AP) — Republican legislative leaders Wednesday named veteran lawmakers to hold the pursestrings in the 1969 session of the Iowa Legislature.
Sen. Francis L. Messerly (R-Cedar Falls) and Rep. John Camps (R-Bryant) were named to head appropriations committees in the Senate and House, respectively.
Both will be serving in their fifth legislative session.
They and Sen. Roger J. Schaff (R-Camanche) and Rep. Elmer Den Herder (R-Sioux Center) — who were named chairmen of the ways and means committees — will control spending and taxation legislation in the 63rd General Assembly, which convenes Monday.

The names were announced by Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen of Davenport and House Speaker William H. Harbor (R-Henderson) presiding officers of the Senate and House.
The four, plus chairmen and ranking members of 16 other standing committees, bring a "no-nonsense, businesslike" approach to state government, Jepsen said.
Spending measures originate in the appropriations committees, while tax bills are born in ways and means committees. The four chairmen are considered fiscal conservatives by their colleagues.
In a break with tradition, Jepsen named Sen. Arthur A. Neu (R-Carroll) chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, a post usually reserved for the Senate majority leader.

Sen. David M. Stanley (R-Muscatine) is the Republican floor leader. An unsuccessful candidate for U.S. Senate in the Nov. 5 general election, Stanley unseated Sen. Robert R. Rigler (R-New Hampton) for the majority post in a party caucus.
Both Harbor and Jepsen said they expected close cooperation between houses of the legislature on state matters. Both chambers now are controlled by Republicans.
Jepsen said the legislative leadership agrees that reappointment will take top priority in the 1969 session. A constitutional amendment approved by Iowa voters calls for reducing the 185-member legislature to no more than 150 by the 1970 election.
Harbor said he hopes the session can be adjourned by May 1. Another constitutional amendment has provided for annual legislative sessions which promise shorter duration.
The 1967 legislature remained in session for nearly six months.

Betty Furness' 'Last Salvo' Takes Aim at Warranties

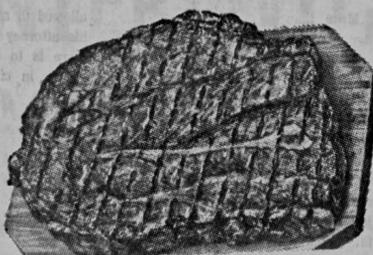

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Furness, whose post may disappear along with the Johnson administration, fired her "last salvo" for consumers Wednesday and proposed her office be made a permanent one.
The occasion was a news conference presenting a special task force report that suggested guidelines for major appliance warranties and urged the guidelines be made law if there's no substantial progress within a year.
"This is the last salvo of what we were doing," said Miss Furness, who started in television refrigerator commercials before being appointed to the newly created job of consumer adviser to the president 19 months ago.
Since then, with frequent public support from President Johnson, she has worked for the passage of the so-called Truth-in-Lending Act, and spoken out on subjects ranging from credit cards to consumer education courses in schools.
She said Wednesday, "I feel very strongly this office should be independent. I would like it to become statutory. I'm not sure it should be a department, but it should be statutory."
The report released at the news conference accused the men who make and repair refrigerators, ranges and television sets of failing to give "more than cavalier treatment to consumer appeals for assistance."

Miss Furness said complaints on product warranties "amounted to one-third of the total complaints I get about life in America every day."
The report proposes that industry spell out more clearly what warranties cover, make sure that repair parts are available as soon as new products hit the market, train qualified repairmen, and make clear in advertising exactly what the appliance can or cannot do.

18 Iowans Challenge Plans Of Highway Unit for Freeway

AMES (AP) — Iowa's harsh winter has many persons on the ropes but not state maintenance crews, the Highway Commission reported Wednesday.

In a salute to snow removal crews kept active through the early part of the winter, the commission said workers have performed extraordinarily through recent storms.

"Their efforts put the rest of us to shame," Harry Bradley Jr., commission chairman from Des Moines said.

While maintenance crews were praised, some of the commission's other actions weren't.

A petition signed by 18 persons from Cedar Rapids, Fairfax, Norway and Walford took the commission to task for the proposed route of Freeway 549 in east-central Iowa.

Received without comment, the petition challenged the routing of the proposed super highway from Interstate 80 through the Amana Colonies northeastward to U.S. 30 at Cedar Rapids.

Signers of the petition were property owners or persons interested in property along the freeway's proposed route.

Advantages of the route are "far outweighed by disadvantages to the people owning property over which said freeway would be run..." the petition stated.

Ordered closed by the commission at the meeting was a secondary road in Pottawattamie County which is bisected by Interstate 29.

Under an agreement announced Wednesday by the commission, Wisconsin and Iowa will share costs estimated at $43,500 for repair of a bridge over the Mississippi River between Marquette, Iowa, and Prairie du Chien, Wis.

The commission also agreed to increase remuneration to persons displaced by its acquisition of property.

Under the old scale, property owners were allowed $20 a room. Reimbursement at the amended rate will be $55 for a first room, $45 for a second room and $35 for a third.

Persons displaced from their property also will be remunerated at the rate of $25 for a first bedroom and $20 for each additional room under the new scale.

Officer Tells of Student Arrests, Warns About Danger of Record

More than 80 University students spent a portion of their academic lives in the Johnson County Jail during 1968. The charges ranged from possession of beer as a minor to a charge of a lascivious act with a child.

Johnson County Sheriff's Deputy Gene Shepard told of his concern for the high rate of student jailings when he said, "We can talk till we are blue in the face — yet people don't realize the repercussions that accompany a jail record."

allowed to make a phone call to his attorney or family. Bond, if there is to be one, is set. The officer in charge determines if shot and finger printing process is completed.

One copy of finger prints is sent to the Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation (BCI) in Des Moines. Another copy is sent to the FBI in Washington, D.C. Both BCI and FBI check to see if the subject has any previous record. If there is a record in the files a "rap sheet" is returned to the Johnson County Sheriff's office.

The Iowa City police offices receive an average of 10 inquiries a week from companies checking police records of applicants for various jobs, according to one secretary at the police station.

The Air Force branch of the armed services checks back five years into the record of each person who joins the service. Every violation of the law must be cleared before a man is accepted for the Air Force. Some crimes are grounds for rejection from the service.

The Coralville Police Department has no lock up or jail. Any of the people arrested in Coralville that are to be held for any period are taken to the Johnson County Jail. Because of the policy of booking anyone put in jail, even the most minor crime results in getting a record.

The Iowa City Police Department has four cells but there is no provision for feeding people taken to jail. If anyone held by the Iowa City police is to be kept in custody overnight or longer, the Johnson County jail takes them into the cell block there.

GENE W. SHEPARD Deputy Warns Students

Shepard, 1968 Peace Officer of the Year, expressed a special concern for the student who fails to recognize the consequences involved in getting a jail record.

"It is the policy of this jail to book anyone going into the cell even if they are to be there only for a short stay," Shepard said. "Too many people forget that the record is permanent and damaging," said Shepard.

The most frequent charge for students was intoxication. Shepard ran through the booking procedure for anyone arrested for intoxication.

First, the subject is seated at a desk, informed of his rights and the intoxicated subject is to be released. If released immediately, no booking takes place.

If a "sobering up" period is required, the subject goes to jail and the procedure continues. Several jail record cards are filled out and the traditional mug

Saigon Charges U.S. Pressuring Them to Bargain before LBJ Exit

PARIS (AP) — The United States is discreetly pressuring Saigon to make last-minute concessions to Hanoi to start a four-way Vietnam peace conference before President Johnson leaves the White House, South Vietnamese informants said Wednesday.

The sources said that the U.S. delegation headed by Ambassador W. Averell Harriman is prepared to meet with the delegations of Hanoi, Saigon and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front at an undivided round table where each of the four delegations would, in effect, have equal status.

An American delegation spokesman denied that the United States is urging a major concession of principle on South Vietnam. But there are clear differences of emphasis between the two allied delegations.

South Vietnamese officials from President Nguyen Van Thieu down have repeatedly asserted that Saigon will make no further concessions on what it considers a vital matter of principle. The allies two months ago suggested a rectangular conference table which would emphasize the "two-sided" nature of the talks and seat Hanoi and the NLF as a single delegation.

In a succession of compromise moves, the allies gradually moved toward Hanoi's proposal of a round table, but still insisted that such a table must be divided in some way to underscore the "two-sided" concept.

The South Vietnamese sources said that one of the reasons for South Vietnam's adamant refusal to accept an undivided table is the fear that yielding to American pressure on this point might unleash a chain reaction of future concessions to Hanoi and the NLF.

O'Brien Suggests Changes For Demo-Party Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawrence F. O'Brien put in a strong plug Wednesday for selection of a full time professional to succeed him as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"I think you have to have a full time operation," O'Brien said in an interview. "If the chairman is not full time, there has to be a second man who is full time." Of the three leading candidates for the chairmanship, only former Gov. Terry L. Sanford of North Carolina is in position to take the post on a full time basis. The other contenders are Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and Rep. James G. O'Hara of Michigan, both with heavy Capitol Hill responsibilities.

O'Brien said that in his farewell speech next Tuesday to the National Committee "I will urge what I would have insisted on if I had stayed, that the committee be run like a good-sized business operation."

He estimated this would cost $1.5 million annually, which would present his successor with a considerable problem in view of the debt of more than $6 million the committee has from the presidential campaign.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who will pick O'Brien's successor after consultation with other Democratic leaders, was expected back in Washington Wednesday night from Norway.

O'Brien was named president Wednesday of McDonnell & Co., Inc., a New York investment firm.

Glasses are supposed to help your sight, not make you look like one. So why put up with frames that detract from your appearance?

The right kind of glasses can make a big difference. If you're a small, thin person, a big round pair of horn-rim frames will make you look owl-eyed. Small thin-framed glasses look out of place on a big person.

The best way to find what looks best on you is to buy your glasses from an optical company that has a good-sized stock of frame styles. Like Morgan Optical. Our skilled personnel can help you decide what's best for your particular face and personality.

Of course, we make sure you can see as well as you look. Morgan guarantees each and every pair to be prescription-perfect. Prove it to yourself; take them back to your eye doctor and have him check them against your prescription.

Student Effort To Graduate Fails in Court

DAVENPORT — Scott County District Court Judge Nathan Grant refused Wednesday to order the Palmer College of Chiropractic to grant diplomas to four former students convicted of mail fraud.

The students were suspended from the college in June of 1967, just four days before they were scheduled to receive diplomas.

The Palmer president's cabinet said at the time that it had received information from the U.S. district attorney's office that the four were involved in a fraud involving basic science examinations.

The students are Brian Long, 26, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Lynn Parker, 21, of Mount Rose, Pa.; Richard Brevik, 24, of Morehead, Minn.; and Donald Kettwich, 22, of Minook, Ill. They subsequently were convicted by a federal court jury in Sioux City on mail fraud charges.

The students asked Judge Grant to require the college to issue them diplomas, but the judge said officials of the school acted within their discretionary authority when they suspended them.

New Budget To Satisfy State Limits

A $1.13 million budget increase in the Iowa City Community School District budget was discussed at a special meeting of the school board Tuesday night.

The state school budget review committee and the Iowa Department of Public Instruction are expected to encourage school districts to limit their budget increases for next year to about 10 per cent.

The Iowa City School District's general fund this year is $7.9 million. A ten per cent increase in this figure plus an allowance for an enrollment increase of 430 students amounts $1.13 million.

John P. Gillespie, School District business manager, said that the proposed increase would fall within the state's guidelines. Gillespie said that the $1.13 million figure was not absolute but is a reasonable estimate in regard to general fund increases.

Scientists Agree—No Flying Saucers—

UFO Report Wins Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A blue-ribbon committee of the National Academy of Sciences will agree with the main conclusion of a secret report on a scientific investigation that says there is no evidence to indicate that unidentified flying objects are spacecraft from another world.

This was learned Wednesday as the Air Force, which financed the $500,000, two-year study, was preparing to release the long-awaited report.

The study, commissioned by the Air Force as an "independent" one to answer persistent criticism of its own investigations, was conducted by a group of non-government scientists headed by Edward U. Condon of the University of Colorado.

Since Nov. 15, the project's secret report has been under review by the special panel of the prestigious Academy of Sciences. The appraisal was asked by the Air Force to "provide a further independent check on the scientific validity of the method of investigation." It will be released simultaneously with the report.

The Associated Press revealed the main conclusion of the Condon report Tuesday, but there had been no leak on the reaction of the academy panel, working amid security so tight that even the names of committee members are a secret.

Informed sources disclosed Wednesday, however, that the academy panel will endorse the primary finding that there is no evidence to support theories that UFO's, or flying saucers, are of extraterrestrial origin. The sources said this is "the only sensible scientific conclusion that could be drawn" from studies made by the Condon project.

The sources also said the panel has "no strong disagreement" with other conclusions of the report, but they declined to elaborate.

Still another source familiar with the report said it will declare that project scientists believe "there is no future in further scientific investigations of UFO's."

This apparently is directed at demands by individual scientists and private organizations for continued and broader scientific probes of flying saucers, some of which were made while the Colorado study still was under way.

Safety Commission Proposes New Point System for Drivers

DES MOINES (AP) — A new point system for suspension of driver licenses that would reward good motorists as well as punish poor ones was proposed by Iowa Public Safety Commissioner Jack Fulton Wednesday.

"A point system is a very effective means of removing the poor driver from our highways," said Fulton as he unveiled the Department of Public Safety's 1969 legislative program.

One of the chief targets of the legislative package also is the drunken driver because "Iowa is not unlike the other states, with alcohol a major cause of accidents," Fulton said.

The commissioner called for enactment of a 100-point license suspension system under which each violation would be weighted according to its seriousness.

For example, running a stop sign would carry a greater point penalty than speeding less than 10 miles above the legal limit, and a driver's license would be suspended when 100 points were accumulated in a specified period of time.

Fulton said the system, the details of which have not been formulated, also would provide for a point "credit" plan for safe drivers.

"Rewarding safe drivers is as important as punishing unsafe ones," said the commissioner.

During the past 10 years Iowa has had at least three different systems under which licenses were suspended for serious traffic violations, and the state dropped the point system five years ago.

Under present law, a motorist who has three moving violations within a 12-month period appears before the Department of Public Safety, which decides whether his license should be revoked.

Fulton said the department will seek passage of 37 bills at the legislative session which convenes Monday.

One bill would provide that any motorist with more than 10 per cent alcohol in his blood would be considered intoxicated by the courts.

Another bill would allow police to test a motorist for intoxication without first having to arrest him for drunken driving, and a third bill would authorize officers to use a blood, breath, saliva or urine test.

"We think this will result in many more tests being given," Fulton said.

Other bills proposed by the department would:

- Require annual safety inspections of motor vehicles.
- Establish rules for operation of motorcycles and require mot-

Crime Alert Starts in Iowa

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Department of Public Safety said Wednesday it has established a "state law enforcement alert" to hasten dissemination of crime information to authorities across Iowa.

Public Safety Commissioner Jack Fulton said the new system was designed to avert delays in broadcasting information such as that which occurred when Pamela Powers was abducted in Des Moines on Christmas Eve.

Fulton said that the new system provides that information on crimes in progress, crimes against a person or other major crimes will be sent out immediately to all Highway Patrol stations.

The Highway Patrol dispatchers will immediately relay the information to patrol cars and to local police and sheriff headquarters.

The state police radio system came under attack recently when there were delays in broadcasting information on the abduction of Miss Powers, 10, from the YMCA building in downtown Des Moines.

She was later found dead in a ditch east of Des Moines. A Missouri mental hospital escapee, Anthony Erthell Williams, has been charged with the murder.

Fulton blamed the state radio delay on inexperienced dispatchers at radio headquarters in Des Moines.

Draft Calls High; Many Reservists To be Released

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa Selective Service headquarters said Wednesday the state's draft quota for the month of March will be 519 men.

The figure compares with 589 men to be drafted during February and 441 for the month of January, a headquarters spokesman said.

Announced by the Pentagon in Washington was the pending national call-up of 33,100 men in March for service in the Army and Marine Corps.

A source in Washington said draft calls are expected to remain high at least during the first half of the year because of the scheduled release of thousands of reservists who were called during the Pueblo crisis.

CLINTON CENTER RENEWED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Office of Economic Opportunity said Tuesday it has renewed a contract for operation of the Jobs Center for Women at Clinton, Iowa. OEO said the estimated contract cost through June 30 is $2,260,800. The center can accommodate about 900 young women, 14 through 21.

Hong Kong Flu Passes Its High Point in Iowa

DES MOINES (AP) — The Hong Kong flu has passed its peak in Iowa, Dr. Arnold Reeve, chief of the State Health Department's preventative medical service, said Wednesday.

"So far we think it's on the wane," Dr. Reeve said. "We'll get a better idea of how much so when students are able to return to classes."

The flu is not expected to completely dissipate until the end of February or early March, Dr. Reeve said.

"We expect it will stay around in smaller numbers until the weather begins to warm up," he added.

A total of 51 cases of the flu have been confirmed by laboratory tests in 14 counties, Reeve said.

Planes Battle Sticks and Stones at Boulder

An airplane, turned upside down by fierce winds, is buffeted by stones and bits of debris, which show up as white streaks in the photo, as it attempts a landing at blustery Boulder Municipal Airport in Colorado Wednesday. The hurricane force winds at times reached over 125 miles per hour, and many aircraft suffered extensive damage from the flying stones. — AP Wirephoto

Winds Wreak Destruction in Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Winds more fierce than a hurricane abated in this university city early Wednesday, after a six-hour rampage that left two men dead and damage estimated by city officials "in the millions of dollars."

As the winds subsided, a cold front brought snow into the area Wednesday.

The windstorm produced gusts measured at 133 miles an hour before a calm set in just after midnight.

When it was over, more than a dozen fires had erupted, two dozen homes and numerous businesses were left roofless, widespread power outages were reported, roads were blocked by uprooted trees, thousands of windows were broken, hundreds of homes and stores were damaged, and eight airplanes were destroyed.

James Arthur Madden, 28, Loveland, Colo., was fatally injured when the camper pickup in which he was riding was blown 300 feet off Interstate 25 north of Denver.

Raymond Dovala, 34, a volunteer fireman in Cherryvale, Colo., was fatally injured when the winds yanked him from a fire truck en route to answer a call during the storm.

Among at least 20 persons injured by flying debris was State Rep. Eric Schmidt, R-Boulder. The injuries caused him to miss the opening of the 47th Colorado General Assembly Wednesday.

The largest fire broke out at the Boulder Municipal Airport. A woman called the sheriff's office and reported: "There's a plane on fire, and it's tumbling down the runway."

Altogether, eight planes at the airport were destroyed and several others were damaged. At the Jefferson County Airport south of Boulder, a U.S. Forest Service DC3 made an unscheduled trip when winds carried it half a mile backward until it crashed into another plane and hit a hangar.

Telephone and electricity outages were widespread here, with power failures also reported in the Colorado communities of Evergreen, Longmont, Loveland, Ward, Nederland, Central City and Georgetown.

The winds set off burglar alarms in many cities. False alarms numbered 27 in Boulder alone.

Crew Saved After Ship Goes Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve men were rescued Wednesday after a commercial research vessel, at sea on a confidential mission, sank nearly 300 miles out in the North Atlantic.

The ship, carrying two men from the U.S. Navy's Underwater Sound Laboratory, was discovered missing Tuesday when it failed to report its position en route to a rendezvous with a Navy nuclear attack submarine.

The men had spent 26 hours in the open sea and were reported wet and cold but otherwise unharmed. Winds were 20 to 25 knots and waves 8 to 15 feet in the area, the Coast Guard said.

The men abandoned the floating vessel at midnight Monday, 20 minutes before she sank about 280 miles southeast of New York.

No explanation for the sinking was forthcoming from either the owner, the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp., or the Coast Guard. The research vessel is the 118-foot Sea Surveyor out of New London, Conn.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The accused killer of two young FBI agents was captured Wednesday night about a mile from the scene of the midday shooting.

He was taken into custody after what police spokesmen described as "one of the largest manhunt we have ever had in recent years."

Police fanned out afoot, in patrol cars and in helicopters.

Police had converged at dusk on a building near the scene of the shooting in belief that the suspected slayer was hiding on the rooftop but the man there turned out to be a derelict seeking a place to sleep.

The agents, Anthony Palmisano, 26, and Edwin R. Woodruffe, 27, were shot to death in an apartment building hallway in southeast Washington.

The FBI said Billie Austin Bryant, 38, an escaped convict, is charged with killing the agents while they were seeking him at his estranged wife's apartment in connection with a $1,700 bank robbery an hour earlier in suburban Maryland.

The FBI and local police numbering over 100 joined in the search for Bryant. Helicopters hovered over rooftops and near-wooded areas. Police dogs also were used.

The FBI said one of the slain agents' badge and gun were missing.

Bryant, 6 feet 2, weighing 170 to 175 pounds, was immediately placed on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

He is a skilled auto body repair man, the FBI said, and is a native of Mt. Olive, N.C.

Bryant escaped from theorton federal prison here in August by crashing a prison vehicle through a heavy chain-link fence.

A federal grand jury at Norfolk, Va., last Sept. 9 indicted Bryant in a charge of violating the escape and rescue statute.

Wednesday a federal warrant charging Bryant with bank robbery was issued at Baltimore, Md., and another federal warrant was issued here charging him with killing the FBI agents.

Bryant had been sentenced in U.S. District Court here to a term of 18 to 54 years for robbery and assault and had been allegedly involved in at least seven bank robberies in the Washington, D.C. area, the FBI said.

Palmisano was married but had no children. Woodruffe was married and had two children.

Woodruffe became an agent in May 1967 and before being assigned to Washington last Feb. 28 was stationed in Cleveland, Ohio.

Palmisano joined the FBI in 1960 in a clerical capacity and became an agent in 1967 in Charlotte, N.C. He came to Washington last Oct. 20.

The contest is a qualifying event for a regional tournament to be held in Minneapolis on Feb. 13 through 15. The winning team will get an expense-paid trip to the Minneapolis tournament.

Players will compete in teams of four and an attempt will be made to find partners for persons who wish to compete but have not arranged a team.

Cubans Dodge Killer Dogs, Gunfire in Freedom Flight

MIAMI (AP) — Survivors of a group of Cubans who fought their way to freedom at Guantanamo Naval Base last Monday arrived here Wednesday and told of being machine-gunned by frontier guards and chased by killer dogs. About 120 men, women and children made the daring daylight bid, said a spokesman for the group. Eighty-seven made it to safety, he said.

The spokesman said three men were killed by machine gun fire and a woman was "ripped to shreds" and killed by the dogs.

The 20-year-old man, who refused to give his name, said he thought two of the guards were killed by members of the group who returned the machine gun fire with pistols.

"We ran for it as Castro's frontier guards fired on us," the slim youth said. "Then they turned loose about a dozen dogs. I think they were Russian dogs, big, black dogs."

Two U.S. Navy planes brought the refugees to Miami. The group was comprised of 46 men, 13 women and 23 children, including a 16-month-old girl.

Officials said seven other members of the group were still at the base.

None of those here wanted to give their names to newsmen for fear their friends and relatives would be punished back in Cuba.

The youth, who said he was a construction worker, told newsmen the group stole a truck in Havana early Monday and drove westward toward the naval base, picking up members as they went in prearranged meetings.

"We parked the truck about 600 meters from the base," he said, "and then we ran for it. The men carried the children.

"Most of us were near the base when they started shooting," he said. "Once inside the base I looked back and saw guards keep others from entering."

Police Seek Murder Clues At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Police said Wednesday night they had found nothing new in a search for clues in the bludgeoning slaying of Jane Britton, a 23-year-old Harvard graduate student and daughter of Radcliffe College's administrative vice president.

Miss Britton's body was found Tuesday sprawled face down on a bloody mattress in the fourth-floor apartment where she lived alone.

Dr. Arthur McGovern, medical examiner, ruled the death a homicide and said Miss Britton died of "massive lacerations of the skull."

Police were searching for a hammer the girl used in her study of archeology as the possible slaying weapon. It was not found in her apartment.

Detective Lt. Leo F. Davenport said "she had been hit from all angles, at least twice in the face."

Her body, clad only in a nightgown, was discovered in the unlocked apartment at about 12:40 p.m. Tuesday, approximately 12 hours after she had returned there from a date and a brief visit with apartment neighbors.

Police said there was no evidence of a struggle or robbery.
