

Final Week Gets Under Way Early for Many Students

By MARY RICHE

Final week means no classes, a temporary decrease in local bar attendance, a temporary increase in sales of No-Doz pills and the end of a semester. Finals officially begin Jan. 24, but for many students, they have already begun.

Some of these students are complaining about their pre-mature finals. In one sense, they have a right to because University rules from the College of Liberal Arts state that no finals are to be given without authorization before the official examination week.

Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, defines finals as "a suitable period for the administering of examinations which is set aside at the end of each semester during which time no classes are held."

Without authorization from Stuit's office, no finals in the 36 departments of the Liberal Arts College can legally be given at any time other than final week.

Finals seem to draw varied complaints from almost all students whether their finals are authorized or not.

Stuit said of their complaints, "We want to cooperate in solving problems the students encounter before finals begin. They must complain to the right people though."

He continued, "Too many times students solve their individual, immediate problems and forget their misery when the course is completed. If they would see the instructor or the head of a department, they would help in solving the problem for future students."

For some classes, Stuit said, authorization of a final before exam week is necessary. These classes include rhetoric, in which a final speech has to be given in class before an audience.

This category of exceptions to the final exam rule also includes language and science departments, in which lab finals must be given during class periods because of needed equipment.

Students who complain generally argue that the main problem concerns their work in other courses before classes end.

A junior in pre-medicine said, "In previous semesters, I didn't mind having one, or even two, finals before classes were suspended. It gave me less to worry about and more time to study for other courses during final week."

His complaint followed, "But this semester, my work is piled on me in my other classes before they are suspended. I have a midterm Monday, a 40-point quiz on Tuesday and a final on Wednesday. I can't help losing somewhere with a schedule like that."

Similar views were expressed from a senior in home economics.

"In my three and one half years here, I've been in tight spots before finals. I used to consider it an advantage to have one final out of the way before exam week began. This semester I'm bogged down with a 10-page paper, an art project and a quiz the week before classes end. Well, I plan to get burned when I take my final which is scheduled for next Monday night," she said.

A freshman in English told her view of the problem.

"I guess I'm just worried about how to budget my time. I plan my study time and suddenly it needs to be revised because of an unexpected, detailed quiz. I would simply like to know in advance so I could plan my study time," the student said.

A sophomore transfer student from Oklahoma State University expressed dismay with the attitudes of instructors here as the final week approaches.

"At OSU, final week was final week, and instructors generally didn't give any type of exam the week before. Here I've found myself loaded down with an 80-point quiz, a paper and a midterm before exam week begins. I can see the advantage a 'pre-final' offers, but each course varies so much in its end-of-the-semester work," she said.

She summed up her comments with, "I guess I'm in favor of no finals at all, rather equally weighted midterms spread throughout the semester."

A junior student in journalism seemed to sum up the attitudes of students concerning finals.

"If we only had two or three courses to concentrate on during the last few weeks of classes, late midterms, quizzes, papers and projects mixed with one early final wouldn't cause as much grief maybe.

To the conscientious student who wants to do well in all five or six of his courses, we are in a conflict," he said.

He continued, "It's all these things mixed together and falling so near one another that causes the complaints from students. In weighing the advantages and disadvantages of early finals, it all depends on the rest of the courses a student is also carrying."

One outspoken freshman issued this complaint: "I have my hands full with tests now. I'm wondering if it's the instructors versus the students rather than the instructors teaching the students."

Not one instructor interviewed agreed with this accusation of the instructor versus the students.

An assistant professor of psychology who lectures to 500 students three days a week explained why he scheduled a midterm for this Monday.

"I deliberately scheduled this midterm so late because I don't want my students to have a lot of new material to learn for my comprehensive final. This should lift some of the pressure of the final for them, because no material will be completely new," he said.

He continued, "I've been teaching undergraduates for eight years, and over that period of time I have developed a teaching method I feel is most beneficial to the students. I have had few complaints directly about the late midterms, and many good comments were given when we discussed it in class. I am only trying to give students more of a chance, not less."

Each department sets its own rules concerning midterms. There is no University rule that states no midterms may be given the week before finals, according to Stuit.

Language departments give portions of their finals before classes end. Faculty members seemed to agree on the reason. They think students do better on a language test when the material is still fresh in their minds.

An instructor of Russian said the date of his final was determined by the progress his class made.

"I originally planned to give their final the last day of class, but we'll still be reviewing then. So I am giving the final during final week now," he said.

The natural science department, because of lab equipment involved in courses, divides final between class time and the scheduled final week.

About 450 students have had their last economics examination scheduled for this Monday. The professor of economics explained why he was giving this test, a two-hour comprehensive examination, at that time.

"Students know at the beginning of a semester when their tests will be, so they know exactly what to expect right from the start. I have previously given three one-hour exams and this fourth is the last for the course and is comprehensive," he said.

He continued, "When students register for my course, they agree to take the exams when I have them scheduled. I accept few excuses for missing my exams, so rarely do I have to offer an alternative time."

This instructor, who has 12 years of teaching experience, concluded with, "I continually ask for comments about the teaching of my course. I listen, and I find my kids rather thrilled about taking their last economics exam before the week of finals. I anticipate few conflicts, because what other tests are scheduled at this time?"

Students might console themselves with the fact that the Evaluation and Examination Service of the University will not reproduce any exams during the month of January other than finals, according to Jack White, administrative assistant with the Service.

White said, "We have our staff working overtime every day, if needed, simply to get the many final tests prepared."

Students and instructors alike have their own stories to tell when it pertains to finals. If students have legitimate complaints, they should see instructors, as was advised by Stuit. If their early finals are legal, then, according to University rules, students will have to "grin and bear it."

Or, as one student said, "Book a and bear it."

City's Plan On Housing Rebuffed

HUD Officials Object To Co-Authority Plan

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has rejected part of Iowa City's low-rent housing plan.

The regional HUD office in Chicago termed the city's plan for joint City Council-Low Rent Housing Agency authority over the program as "unacceptable."

The low-rent housing agency had been waiting for final approval of HUD funds to finance the program. The objective of the housing plan is to give low-income Iowa City families decent housing at rents they can afford — normally about 25 per cent of their income.

According to Jack Crane, administrative assistant to City Manager Frank Smiley the problem is mostly a matter of wording.

The program was not set up with joint authority, but rather with the City Council having final say on all matters, Crane said. The Low-Rent Agency would only be an advisory group to the Council, Crane added.

He said that in the past, HUD had preferred not to give housing authority to a "political body," such as the Council.

"Iowa City operates on the idea that the body elected by the people, the Council, should have the final say," Crane said, "the Low Rent Housing Agency has done the organizational work and they advise the council, but they do not have the final authority."

"A parallel to our program is the Iowa City Human Relations Commission," he said. "The Commission does their own investigating, but if a case of discrimination were to come up for a hearing, it would be held before the Council because it has final authority."

The letter was signed by Mrs. Katherine Abraham, an assistant to the acting associate regional counsel for housing assistance in HUD. She had expressed concern about the Council's authority in a telephone conversation with City Atty. Jay H. Honohan.

Mrs. Abraham told Honohan at that time that a program like Iowa City's was in effect in Michigan. Honohan asked if the program was working out there and she said that it was working in Michigan, but would not work in Iowa City.

Crane said he thought that when the wording problem was worked out, the HUD officials would be more receptive to the program.

"The trouble is that when you write a letter to the officials, it never goes to the top men," he said. "There are possibly 100 men between us and the top, so it may take time to get things worked out."

"One favorable sign is that it is not the whole program that they disapprove of, but just the one section as far as we know."

The Rev. Robert Welsh, chairman of the Low Rent Housing Agency, said that as he understood it, the problem might be that the HUD officials did not understand that the plan can legally operate under Iowa law. The program does comply with the Iowa Code, according to Welsh.

"I feel the problems can be worked out," Welsh said, "by making HUD aware of the legality of our program." He said that the agency would meet Wednesday and discuss the problem then.

Crane said that Honohan and Smiley would probably pursue the question with HUD officials in Chicago, in an attempt to get the problems ironed out.

Iowa's basketball team, 2-1 in the Big 10 conference, closes its first semester schedule at 1:15 today with an afternoon contest against Minnesota. The game is featured this week on the college basketball television series. See story Page 3.

Seating of Jurors May Occur Soon In Trial of Sirhan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The prosecution startled the Sirhan Bishara Sirhan murder trial Friday by giving up its right to challenge further the 11 jurors tentatively seated.

This means that a jury to try the 24-year-old Jordanian on charges of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy could be permanently seated Tuesday, two weeks earlier than expected.

Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker called the prosecution's surrender of peremptory challenges "shocking." Peremptory challenges can be made without giving a reason.

The chief defense attorney, Grant B. Cooper, was granted an adjournment until Tuesday. He said he needed time to consider seating the jury as now constituted.

"Don't be surprised at what happens Tuesday," Cooper told newsmen later. "We just might have a jury."

Prosecution and defense both have 19 of 20 peremptory challenges remaining.

If the defense waives its remaining challenges, the 11 jurors will be permanently seated.

Earlier Friday, Walker granted a prosecution challenge to the temporary seating of Alvina Alvirez, a hardware store employee in her 30s. Mrs. Alvirez said she couldn't vote for the death penalty under any circumstances.

The defense and prosecution seated the 11th juror and prosecutors used their first peremptory challenge.

They dismissed Alicia Duke, an accountant with the state lands division and a divorcee. She was the center of brief excitement when the court heard her son was missing.

Grad Assistants Plan to Unionize

A group of graduate student teaching assistants representing four University departments made plans Friday night to organize into a union local of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).

By organizing into a union the group hopes to obtain from the University the right "to organize, negotiate, and bargain collectively," according to a brochure prepared by John Schacht, G. Iowa City, acting president of the group.

Schacht said at an organizational meeting that if certain union demands for recognition were not met by the University, the group would consider striking.

But Richard F. Dole, associate professor of law, told The Daily Iowan Friday night that it was illegal for state employees to strike. All University employees are on the state payroll.

CSC Wraps Up Code Hearings

By DAN CAMBRIDGE

The Committee on Student Conduct (CSC) completed its hearing of testimony Friday night in the cases of three students and one student organization charged with violations of the Code of Student Life. The committee will begin deliberations on its decisions in the cases next week.

Hearings in the cases of the three students — Jerry Sies, A4, Iowa City; Dan Cheeseman, A4, Elkader; and Ken Wessels, A3, Dyersville — and the organization — Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) — began Thursday. Testimony Thursday concerned violations allegedly committed during a demonstration held Oct. 28 at the Business and Industrial Placement Office. Sies is the only student charged with violations in connection with this incident.

Friday's testimony centered on violations of the Code that allegedly took place in connection with a rally held Nov. 1 on the east steps of Old Capitol. All three students and SDS were charged in connection with this incident.

Roger Augustine, associate dean of student affairs, two Campus Security officers and John Larson, legal assistant to President Howard R. Bowen and co-counsel for the University in the case, described events they said led up to and occurred during the Nov. 1 rally.

Augustine told of his meetings with SDS representatives, including Cheeseman, before the rally, and of his attempts to notify them of the consequences that they might face if they conducted the rally without registering it or held it in an unauthorized area.

The rally was not registered with the Office of Space Assignment and Utilization. In addition, it was held at a time the University considers to be illegal for rallies held on Pentacrest.

Members of the CSC cross-examined Augustine closely on the types of events that require registration and that are allowed to be held in such areas as the Pentacrest.

Former City Editor Of Register Hired As SPI Publisher

John D. Zug, 55, for 16 years city editor of the Des Moines Register, Friday was named fulltime publisher of Student Publications, Inc., governing body of The Daily Iowan and Hawkeye.

He succeeds William J. Zima, assistant professor of journalism, who resigned in order to teach fulltime in the School of Journalism. Zima had served as part-time publisher, along with his teaching duties. He is a former member of the Des Moines Register's Editorial Page staff.

Zug will also succeed Lee Brown, news-editorial adviser to the DI. Brown, former metropolitan editor of the Long Beach (Calif.) Independent-Press Telegram, will become a full-time instructor in journalism.

The announcement of the changes came from William P. Albrecht, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc. Albrecht, assistant professor of economics, said the board was "pleased to secure someone with the experience of Mr. Zug" to take over the DI and Hawkeye. The SPI Board publisher is also responsible for University athletic event programs.

The appointment is effective Feb. 1. Zug's salary will be $10,000.

Prof. Malcolm MacLean, director of the School of Journalism, where the DI and Hawkeye are housed, said that the presence of a man with Zug's newspaper background will be an asset to the students of journalism as well as the newspaper and yearbook.

Zug, who is a native of Des Moines and a graduate of Drake University, has been with the United Press, the Associated Press, the Iowa Daily Press Association and was managing editor of the Perry Daily Chief before he joined the Register as a reporter in 1950.

2 UCLA Students Slain on Campus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two black students were shot to death Friday before 150 persons meeting at the University of California at Los Angeles, police reported.

Officers said they questioned 12 witnesses but arrested nobody.

At the sound of gunfire, persons fled from the building.

One person smashed through a window. Officers said they didn't know if it was an assailant.

No witnesses were wounded.

Police identified the victims as John Huggins, 23, and Alprentice Carter, 26, both UCLA students. Shortly after the shootings, authorities said the students were members of the Black Panther party, but at a news conference later, Police Lt. Robert Madlock said that hadn't been confirmed.

Committees Approve 3 For Cabinet

Interior Unit Presses Questioning of Hickel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Senate committees gave clearance Friday to three more of President-elect Nixon's Cabinet appointees. But another panel continued its quizzing of Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, chosen to be secretary of the interior.

Friday's actions meant that the road to speedy Senate confirmation on Monday has been opened informally for 11 of the 12 Cabinet posts.

The Finance Committee gave its unanimous approval to David M. Kennedy to be secretary of the treasury, and to Robert Finch, California's lieutenant governor, to become secretary of health, education and welfare. The Armed Services Committee gave similar clearance to Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Wisc.) who will become secretary of defense. At the same time it approved California industrialist, David Packard, as deputy secretary of defense.

Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.), acting chairman of the Finance Committee, raised questions Thursday about conflict of interest in the case of Kennedy, a Chicago banker, and Packard, a multimillionaire electronics manufacturer.

But after Friday's committee session, Gore told newsmen of revisions in Kennedy's proposal to place in trust the stock he holds in the continental Bank of Illinois, which he heads.

Gore said the new arrangement would:

- Provide an independent trustee, rather than having the bank serve in that capacity.
- Instruct the trustee to diversify Kennedy's holdings.
- Specify that Kennedy decide, before taking office, whether to exercise options to buy an additional 30,000 shares of Continental stock.

The incoming chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) told reporters the group approved Packard's plan to put his $300 million in Hewlett-Packard stock in a trust fund.

But while his colleagues enjoyed smooth sailing through the committees controlled by Democrats, Hickel was asked to explain what a senator called "exorbitant profits Hickel reportedly made in a gas distribution firm while governor."

Hickel replied that he knew nothing that he might have done as governor to help raise the value of the gas company stock he had placed in trust when he became governor.

The governor, undergoing his third day of close questioning before the Senate Interior Committee, satisfied one member when he said that as secretary he would not rescind an existing Interior Department order blocking distribution of Alaska-owned land under the statehood act.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), the committee chairman, raised a question about the order issued by secretary of the interior, Stewart L. Udall, to freeze the distribution until Congress can settle claims filed by Eskimos and other Alaska natives.

Although Alaska has brought court action to set aside the order, Hickel said that as secretary he would keep it in force.

Jackson said that answer satisfied him on this point.

While Hickel remained under close scrutiny, Nixon's choice to be postmaster general enjoyed smooth sailing before the Senate Post Office Committee.

Winton M. Blount, the postmaster general-designate and a Montgomery, Ala., construction millionaire, told senators he favored true collective bargaining by government employees but thought they should not strike.

Chairman Gale McGee (D-Wyo.) said he anticipated no difficulties when Blount's nomination was taken up formally by the committee on Monday.

Fenton Tops League In Basketball Tourney

Fenton captured the Hillcrest League intramural basketball championship last week by posting a 32-22 victory over Thatcher in the league finals. The triumph pushed Fenton into the all-University tournament scheduled for the first week of the second semester.

Fenton was led in the championship contest by Brad Cameron with 12 points and Dennis Mueller with 11. Andy Schmitt and Greg Dralle both had six points for Thatcher.

The Hillcrest League is the first to have crowned a league champ. Four leagues will hold their championship games next week and the two remaining leagues are in their semi-final stages.

Floor 4 will meet Floor 2 in the Rionew II League title game. Floor 4, paced by Tom Schulte's 28 points, rolled over Floor 3 in their semi-final game 47-35. Floor 2 defeated Floor 7 in the other semi-final 22-15.

Cummins and Hempstead related to meet in the finals of the Quadrangle League play-offs. In semi-final action, Cummins

Bills Select New Coach

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — John Rauch, a championship coach with the Oakland Raiders, now faces the task of rebuilding the Buffalo Bills, a one-time American Football League powerhouse that fell on its face last fall.

Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of the Bills, said Friday he reached an agreement with Rauch Thursday for the former Georgia quarterback to sign a four-year contract as head coach. The terms were not disclosed.

Rauch, 41, replaced Harvey Johnson, who was named to succeed Joel Collier after the latter was fired by Wilson following Buffalo's 48-6 loss to Rauch's Raiders last Sept. 15. Johnson, who was coach for 12 games, returned to his former job as director of player personnel.

The Bills, defensively strong and offensively weak last season, compiled professional football's worst record — one victory, 12 losses, one tie. As a result, they will have the No. 1 draft choice and select O. J. Simpson, Southern California's Heisman Trophy winner.

Simpson has said he would like to play under Rauch, although he has expressed preference to play in the National Football League on the West Coast.

Observers claim that, with Simpson in Buffalo's backfield along with veteran Jack Kemp at quarterback, the Bills should once again become a powerhouse. Buffalo twice won the AFL championship.

At Oakland, Rauch directed the Raiders to the AFL title in 1967 but lost to the Green Bay Packers in the Super Bowl. Last year, Oakland won the Western Division title and bowed to the New York Jets for the league crown.

His teams compiled a 34-8-1 record in three seasons, best in the AFL. He was named coach of the year in 1967.

Rauch built his team around quarterback Daryle Lamonica, obtained from Buffalo in a trade for split end Art Powell and quarterback Tom Flores. Powell no longer is with Buffalo, and Flores, suffering a right arm injury, saw little action last season.

Lamonica, a backup to Kemp in Buffalo, was picked as player of the year two seasons ago.

Rauch's playing career — at Georgia and with the NFL Philadelphia Eagles — ran from 1945 to 1951. He coached at the University of Florida, Tulane, Georgia and West Point before joining the Raiders.

Hawks Close Home Stand With Gopher Game Today

By CHUCK STOLBERG

Iowa's Hawkeyes will be after their third straight conference basketball victory when they meet the Gophers of Minnesota in a Big 10 television contest at 1:15 today in the Field House.

The Hawks come into the contest with a 2-1 conference mark and the Gophers are 1-2. Iowa trounced Indiana 91-72 last Saturday and then squeaked by Michigan State 77-76 Tuesday.

The Gophers are coming off a 68-61 loss to Wisconsin Tuesday. Minnesota trounced Michigan 94-67 only a week after the Wolverines topped the Hawks 99-92 in overtime. The Gophers' other loss was by an 80-58 count to Illinois.

Among their pre-season victories, Minnesota beat nationally ranked Detroit and Marquette.

The Hawkeyes have not been beaten in the Field House this season and are 8-4 overall. Bill Fitch, Minnesota's new coach who formerly coached Coe College in Cedar Rapids, said earlier in the week, "It is certainly no treat playing down there."

Three Hawks rank in the top 20 scorers in the conference: Chad Calabria is fifth with an average of 22.3; Ben McGilmer is eighth with an average of 19.3; and Glenn Vidovic is twelfth with an average of 17.7. Vidovic's .913 free throw percentage (21 of 23) leads the league.

Calabria, whose last second basket beat Michigan State Tuesday has had a hot hand for the last five games. Starting with the Sugar Bowl Tournament in New Orleans, Calabria has pumped in 24, 23, 26, 71.7 points per game. They rank fifth in the conference in field goal accuracy with a .459 mark.

The Hawkeyes, however, are second in the league in scoring with an average of 86.7 a game and rank third in field goal accuracy (.495) and second in free throw shooting (.772).

After the Minnesota game, the Hawks will have a two week lay-off for finals. Their first game after the break will be against Davidson, currently ranked fourth in the nation by the Associated Press, in the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 1. Then the Hawks will play probably the two strongest teams in the league, Purdue and Illinois on Feb. 4 and 8 at Lafayette, Ind. and Champaign, Ill.

They're tough at home and the crowd really gets behind them."

Minnesota has a 7-6 overall record for the season. That's as many wins as the Gophers accumulated all of last season.

Mainly responsible for the Gophers' turnaround have been 6-3 guard Al Nuness, formerly of Fort Dodge Junior College and 6-7 center Larry Mikan, the son of one of basketball's all-time greats — George Mikan, currently commissioner of the American Basketball Association.

Nuness is averaging 18.7 in conference play and Mikan is averaging 18. They rank 10th and 11th in the conference scoring race.

The Gophers are the top defensive team in the conference allowing an average of only

7.7 points per game.

Possible Player Strike Continues in Baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — The threat of a strike by major league baseball players increased again Friday when the Players Association revealed that the owners' offer to increase their pension fund by a million dollars had been overwhelmingly rejected.

According to a release from the Players Association, the vote by the players on whether to accept or reject the offer made by the owners on Dec. 17 was described tersely in the following manner:

"Accept the owners offer — 6. "Reject the owners offer — 461."

At the end of the statement was a list of names, reading like a who's who of baseball, of players who were allowing their names to be used in support of the policy of not signing 1969 contracts until a satisfactory benefit plan is worked out.

Wrestlers Take Perfect Mark Into Quadrangular Meet Here

The second triple dual meet in as many weeks should provide Iowa's wrestling team with some real competition.

The Hawks are hosts to Michigan, Northwestern and Minnesota today following the basketball game in the Field House.

"Michigan looks the strongest on paper," Coach Dave McCuskey said Friday. "They have already beaten Northwestern, and the Wildcats have beaten Minnesota." Michigan brings a 4-0 record into the meet, Northwestern is 4-1 and Minnesota 3-3.

Iowa has an 8-0 dual meet record, and five Hawk wrestlers remain unbeaten. Tom Bentz, (123); Joe Carstensen, (137); Rich Mihal, (152); Verlyn Strellner, (177); and heavyweight Dale Stearns have yet to lose matches.

The icy weather added to the Iowa injury list this week. "Jerry Lee fell on the ice and hurt his arm, and won't be able to wrestle this weekend," McCuskey said.

Other Hawkeyes who won't see action due to injuries are Don Briggs, Joe Wells and Dave Mayberry.

Iowa will meet Michigan first today, followed by Northwestern and Minnesota.

Only one team member will not be participating in the meet

Barber Recovers With 67 to Grab Kaiser Open Lead

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Miller Barber, a plump bespectacled pro from Sherman, Tex., recovered from a bogey on the first hole to post a five-under-par 67 Friday and take a one-stroke second round lead at the $135,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

Barber's 36-hole total at the Silverado Country Club was 135, nine strokes under par, one stroke ahead of Bruce Devlin of Australia. Two strokes behind the leader was the ever-dangerous Arnold Palmer.

Devlin shot a five-under-par 67 on the shorter but tougher South Course, a par 72 laying stretching 6,602 yards.

Barber and Palmer played the 6,849-yard North Course, which also is a par 72. Arnie shot a 68 for his 137 total.

Tied in fourth place were Bob Ann, the first-round leader from Sacramento, Calif., who shot 65 Thursday but skied to 73 Friday, and Charles Coody.

The Gophers are the top defensive team in the conference allowing an average of only

7.7 points per game.

LBJ Leaves White House With Grateful, Loving Heart

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'm leaving this town," President Johnson said Friday, "with nothing but gratitude and love in my heart."

In a relaxed and expansive mood, Johnson told members of the National Press Club that if he had it to do over again he would do a lot of things differently — but he said neither Vietnam nor his refusal to seek another term were among his regrets.

Johnson said the peace he wanted more than anything else had eluded him, but he asked his listeners to remember that Richard M. Nixon will be "working for all of us."

It was another in the round of farewell appearances being made by the chief executive who is leaving Washington Monday after 38 years of government service.

"I don't hold a thing in the world against anyone I know in this town or anywhere else in the world," he said, adding, "I don't know a Republican in the Senate or House who is mean enough so that I could hate him or a Democrat either."

In a question and answer session, Johnson replied with a chuckle when asked if he might run for the Senate again, saying, "I don't want to withdraw a ny of my options."

But he said too that "I didn't leave public life with any intention of returning again."

Johnson was both joshing and serious at times. And in one of the serious moments he said he was troubled by the difficulties of communicating with and through the press. He said he thought that was one problem on which the National Press Club might focus.

Czech Students Pose Threat Of Mass Self-Immolations

PRAGUE (AP) — Students Friday blamed the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia's leadership for the attempt of a student, Dan Palach, 21, to burn himself to death as a protest against conditions in the nation.

Students displayed a copy of a letter left by Palach saying other students had volunteered to set themselves ablaze — in the manner of dissident Buddhist monks in South Vietnam five years ago — if news censorship is not lifted and a Soviet propaganda sheet is not banned.

If those demands are not met by Monday or if there is no "sufficient public support, such as a strike for an indefinite period, further torches will go up in flame," the letter said. It noted that the group of volunteers called themselves "torches."

A declaration by students of the philosophical faculty of Charles University accused the Soviet Union of adding Palach's name to its list of victims of the August invasion and said the country's own leaders had betrayed proclaimed ideals in the name of political realism.

Palach remained in "very grave" condition from burns over 65 per cent of his body suffered when he poured gasoline over himself Thursday on Wenceslas Square and set himself afire.

Students of the philosophical faculty, where Palach is a second-year student, said the letter was a photocopy of one Palach left in his briefcase before he set himself on fire.

The letter said, "Our group is composed of volunteers who are ready to burn themselves for our cause. I had the honor to draw the first lot and thus have gained the right to write the first letter and be the first torch."

The letter was signed "Torch Number One." Some students said there were 15 in the group and Czech police were trying to identify them.

British Laborites Propose Strike Curbs

LONDON (AP) — The Labor party government launched a campaign Friday to curb Britain's restive trade unions and immediately raised the question of how to make the curbs stick.

Leaders of the country's two biggest unions said they would fight the proposed legislation and refuse to be bound by its restrictions.

The government's package brought protests from both labor and management. Union leaders said they resented the government's proposed restriction of their right to strike. Management said the curbs were not tough enough.

The proposal aims at limiting the strikes that have been crippling the national economy and resulted last year in the loss of four million man-days of work, which is triple the normal level. Nearly 95 per cent of the loss came from wildcat strikes, a prime target of the proposed legislation.

The government document, made public Friday, outlined the administration's aim. There was no indication when the enabling bill would be sent to Parliament.

The core of the package is enforcement of a cooling-off period of 28 days for official union strikes, 56 days for wildcat action. The government also demands that strike votes be secret.

The question raised by both union and management leaders was how the government planned to enforce the legislation.

Employment Minister Barbara Castle, who wrote the proposed legislation, made clear there was no question of jail sentences for union leaders or members who infringe the law. The government's plan is to impose fines.

The government foresees collection of fines by deduction from workers' pay packets. This drew a bitter union reaction.

The government foresees collection of fines by deduction from workers' pay packets. This drew a bitter union reaction.

The government's package brought protests from both labor and management. Union leaders said they resented the government's proposed restriction of their right to strike. Management said the curbs were not tough enough.

The proposal aims at limiting the strikes that have been crippling the national economy and resulted last year in the loss of four million man-days of work, which is triple the normal level. Nearly 95 per cent of the loss came from wildcat strikes, a prime target of the proposed legislation.

The government document, made public Friday, outlined the administration's aim. There was no indication when the enabling bill would be sent to Parliament.

The core of the package is enforcement of a cooling-off period of 28 days for official union strikes, 56 days for wildcat action. The government also demands that strike votes be secret.

The question raised by both union and management leaders was how the government planned to enforce the legislation.

Employment Minister Barbara Castle, who wrote the proposed legislation, made clear there was no question of jail sentences for union leaders or members who infringe the law. The government's plan is to impose fines.

Strike 'Over' But Dockers Stay off Job

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 100 ocean-going freighters lay idle in New York harbor Friday, immobilized by an AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association strike that tentatively has been settled.

Dockers have refused to return to local piers, however, until agreement is reached between the union and shipping firms along the entire East and Gulf coasts. This may take at least two more weeks, according to a federal mediator's estimate.

The U.S. Maritime Administration reported 259 vessels tied up Friday along the East Coast alone by the 29-day strike, which has cost an estimated $435 million in losses.

Negotiations on the local level were under way in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Hampton Roads, Va. Bargaining for other ports from the Carolinas to Texas was going on at Miami Beach, Fla., with ILA Pres. Thomas Gleason, taking part.

The 75,000 East and Gulf Coast longshoremen originally struck last Oct. 1. But Taft-Hartley law intervention forced an 80-day cooling-off period, after which the walkout was resumed Dec. 20.

A settlement in New York came earlier this week. It provided an increase of $1.60 an hour in wages and fringe benefits over a three-year period, bringing the hourly wage to $4.60.
