

Students At Chicago Holding On Occupation Sparked By Firing of Teacher

CHICAGO — Dissident and defiant University of Chicago students shrugged off threats of disciplinary action Friday and continued their plans to occupy the administration building through the weekend.

The 225 students marched into the six-story building at noon Thursday to protest against the firing of a woman sociology professor. They announced Friday they would conduct power seminars, speeches, jam sessions and dances in the barricaded building during the weekend.

Many of the occupying students arrived with bags of sandwiches, blankets and sleeping bags, apparently ready for a long siege.

Students leaders said Friday they were prepared to sit in until the university granted their demands which included rescinding the decision not to rehire Mrs. Marlene Dixon, 32, whose three-year contract expires in September.

Other demands were for amnesty for students involved in the takeover and for equal student power in the selection of faculty members.

The university is situated on the South Side near Lake Michigan and has an enrollment of 9,800.

Dr. Bruno Bettelheim, a noted educator, psychiatrist and writer, said Friday that most of the students disavow the sit-in and disagree with the student protest.

Bettelheim called a news conference on the campus to express his feelings on student revolts in general.

"They remind me of what I saw in German universities which led to the fascist government and the Adolph Hitler regime," he said. He said he was against violence but felt that society should be stricter in dealing with minority group dissent.

"What many of these kids need is psychiatric treatment, not violence," he said. "Many of them are paranoid... society should call nuts nuts!"

The demonstration was called Wednesday night after 1,400 students attended a rally sponsored by a group which called itself the Committee of 85.

Students voted 444 to 430 to take militant action. The committee changed its name to the Committee of 444.

Mrs. Dixon, a stocky blonde who was graduated with honors from the University of California at Berkeley and received master and doctorate degrees there, has been at the University of Chicago since 1966.

She refuses to discuss the reasons she believes she was fired.

Students said Friday that their protest centers on the university's alleged secrecy about Mrs. Dixon's firing rather than the firing itself.

Earlier in the week, student leaders contended that Mrs. Dixon was fired because of her membership in leftist organizations, the New University Conference and Women's Liberation; because she is a woman and because she violated the publish-or-perish philosophy reportedly subscribed to by many schools.

Urban Planning To Be Probed At Parley Here

Saul Alinsky and Chester Hartman, two prominent figures in the theory and practice of community planning, will lead discussions of students from some 50 Midwestern universities at the Midwest Student Seminar on Urban and Regional Research at the University Feb. 27 and 28 and March 1.

Alinsky is director of the Industrial Areas Foundation in Chicago, and has spent 25 years organizing low-income white and black city-dwellers into influential communities. Hartman is professor in Harvard University's Department of City and Regional Planning, and has been director of the Massachusetts Legislative Commission on Low Income Housing.

The seminar is sponsored by the Program in Urban and Regional Planning, and will be held in the Union.

Alinsky will make two appearances Feb. 27, before speaking in the University Lecture Series that evening. Student presentations will be made Feb. 27 and 28, and Hartman will speak on education in planning March 1.

James Harris, associate professor and chairman of the program, said the seminar, which has been an annual event since 1966, fosters the exchange of ideas among Midwestern planning students by giving them a forum for discussing their most recent research efforts.

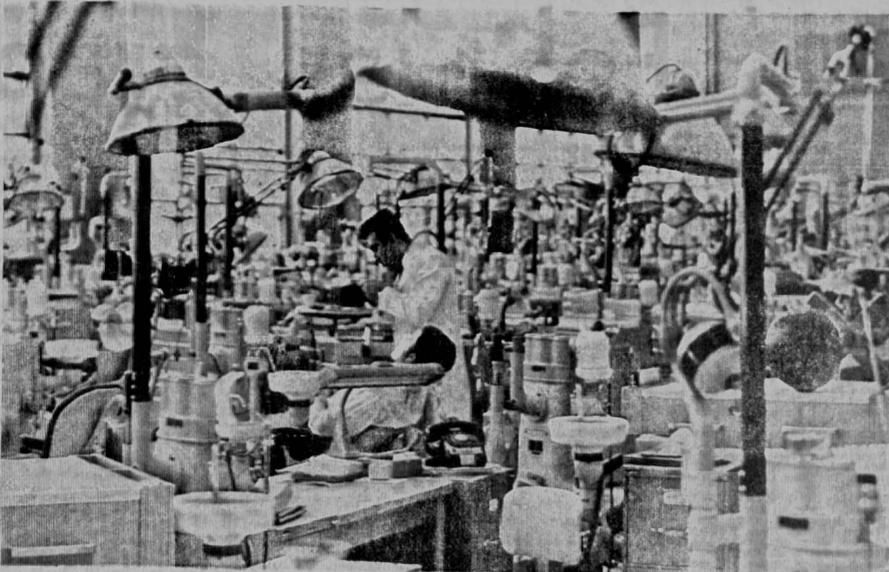

Wallace Backers Get Ready for '72

DALLAS, Tex. — George Wallace will be a candidate again for the presidency in 1972, predicts a Los Angeles man attempting to set up a firm nationwide Wallace party.

Bob Walters said Friday, "Our considered opinion is that Wallace will be a candidate in 1972."

Walters, 27, in charge of Wallace's California campaign in 1968, is in Dallas to help form a stable party from the loose-knit campaign organization Wallace built during the former Alabama governor's third party bid for the presidency last year.

Walters said an attempt will be made to set up a confederation of state parties at the meeting of possibly 1,000 Wallace supporters from 45 states this weekend.

Dental Lab Relaxes After a Lot of Fillings

Things are a little quieter at the College of Dentistry lab this week than last, when students in the College were going through mock Dental Board exams. The scene above — a dental student working on a patient's teeth — was magnified 130 times last week, when the lab was doing work on 345 patients a day, adding up to a lot of teeth by any standards. — Photo by Dave Luck

Escaped Cheetah Mauls Boy, Goes After Cycle Cop

MIAMI BEACH — A 100-pound cheetah leaped from a $125,000 yacht docked at an ocean front luxury apartment Friday, mauled a 9-year-old boy and chased a motorcycle policeman before it was shot to death.

The big spotted cat, fastest land animal, was killed by the policeman and reinforcements who arrived in squad cars.

Jeff Kenzer, 9, was treated by the Miami Beach emergency squad for a bite on his foot and scratches, police said.

The cheetah was aboard the "June Bride," 57-foot yacht that had pulled up at the dock of the Sea Coast Towers without authorization, police said.

John Porto, assistant manager of the apartment building, said the complex manager, Nester Grommel, walked out to the Intercoastal Waterway, where the yacht was docked, and told the captain he'd have to move on.

"When Mr. Grommel saw the cat start toward him," Porto continued, "he turned and ran and called the police. They told him to stay put and they'd be right over."

Porto said he went out to the dock just in time to see the cat leap the yacht railing and run toward two boys, one of them the Kenzer lad.

"The boy started running and the cat took off after him," said Porto. "It caught him and I pulled it off, grabbed the boy, who was screaming and crying, and started running for the apartment building."

Porto said the cheetah, which catches its prey by running it down, immediately gave pursuit.

"I saw we had no chance to make the building so I ducked into a parked car on Collins Avenue," said Porto. "And the cat then took off after a motorcycle policeman who was driving by."

Porto said the officer whipped out his .38 revolver and wounded the animal, which retreated to a service building. Several carloads of reinforcements arrived moments later and finished off the cat.

Police said the only person aboard the yacht was Michael Pose of Chicago. He was jailed on a drunk charge.

News in Brief

ALSO IN THE NEWS LAST NIGHT:

HACKENSACK, N.J. — Four Englewood business firms have been awarded $24,000 riot damage in a court suit that could have far ranging implications for New Jersey cities.

SAN FRANCISCO — Navy nurse Susan Schnall, 25, accused of helping throw anti-war leaflets from an airplane and participating in uniform in a "GI March for Peace," was convicted by a general court martial of conduct unbecoming an officer and of failing to obey an order.

HOBOKEN, N.J. — Striking longshoremen laid aside their picket signs and pitched in to unload 125 tons of imported Italian marble for a John F. Kennedy memorial in Washington.

WASHINGTON — The Navy announced that eight months of study have not disclosed why the nuclear-powered submarine Scorpion was lost in the Atlantic with 99 men aboard. But it will make another effort to solve the mystery this year.

NEW ORLEANS — Three hundred more prospective jurors were ordered for the Clay Shaw conspiracy trial, pushing the total past the 1,000 mark. Meanwhile the prosecution reopened a court fight to get secret records of the John F. Kennedy autopsy.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals upheld the conviction of a young Marine for killing a South Vietnamese civilian during a combat patrol in 1966. The opinion was handed down in the case of Pfc. Charles W. Keenan, 22, Nitro, W.Va., who was sentenced to a five-year prison term. The sentence was later reduced to a three-year term by a Navy clemency board.

Varner, 2 Other Students To Help Pick President

Student Body Pres. Carl Varner said Friday that students "have a great opportunity they cannot afford to bungle" in helping to choose the next president of the University.

Varner received a letter from Stanley Redeker, president of the State Board of Regents, Friday asking him and two other students to meet with the regents Feb. 18 to discuss criteria for the next president.

Redeker had announced intentions of using student participation in choosing a successor to Pres. Howard R. Bowen, who resigned from his position here Wednesday. Bowen will take a teaching position in a college complex in Claremont, Calif., Sept. 1.

According to Varner, the two other students on the committee will be appointed by the Student Senate Tuesday night. Varner wants one member to be a graduate student who has rapport with elements of the New Left on campus. The other will be a "liberal" undergraduate, Varner said. "There will be a concentrated effort on my part to assure that while a small number will do the actual communicating with the regents, the views of the student body will come from a wide range of opinion — from SDS to YAF," Varner said.

Redeker, in his letter, stressed that, although the actual decision of the successor would be made by the regents, the board would consult with the student committee before any actions were taken.

Varner said he sent 120 questionnaires to various members of campus activities to get different opinions on the qualifications and qualities the next president should have.

Varner said that the regents' desire for student opinion was not "tokenism" but rather an interest in student involvement. Student action and consultation, therefore, must be done with "responsibility," Varner said.

Redeker Says Politics Has No Part in Search

DES MOINES — The president of the State Board of Regents pledged Friday that regents will shun partisan politics in their search for a new president at the University of Iowa.

"There's no chance — none whatever — that politics will get involved," said Stanley Redeker of Boone. "Partisan politics have played no part on the board in my seven and a half years."

Republican Gov. Robert D. Ray told newsmen Friday morning the regents should not act under a time deadline in choosing a successor to outgoing university Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

"It is wise to fill the vacancy as soon as possible," Ray said, "but it shouldn't be done just to meet a deadline."

Democrats now outnumber Republicans five to four on the Board of Regents, but Ray will appoint three new board members July 1. There has been speculation the board might pick Bowen's successor before the Ray appointees are seated.

Redeker, a Republican, said the regents hope to pick a new president as soon as possible, "but it has nothing to do with the political situation."

"Our only criteria," said Redeker, "is to take as long as is needed to find the correct person for the job."

Explosive Injures Saigon General

SAIGON — A South Vietnamese major general, Nguyen Van Kiem, was wounded today when an explosive charge was thrown at his car near downtown Saigon, apparently by Viet Cong terrorists, authorities reported.

Kiem, a special military staff chief to President Nguyen Van Thieu, suffered a broken leg, initial reports said. His bodyguard was wounded. The vehicle burned.

Authorities said the explosive might have been a grenade. No arrests were reported.

The attack on Kiem was the second within a month against a high ranking government official in Saigon. On Jan. 6, South Vietnam's education minister, Le Minh Tre, was killed when an explosive charge was hurled into his car.

In another Saigon terrorist incident reported today, two men on a motorbike threw an explosive charge into an American parking lot. The only loss reported was one damaged car.

Nixon Moves Against Crime

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Friday for more policemen, prosecutors and judges, and stricter bail laws to fight crime in Washington. At the same time he asked rebuilding of the capital's riot-wrecked areas and a governing voice for its residents.

Nixon recommended hiring 1,000 additional policemen and authorization for 40 more assistant U.S. attorneys and 10 judges for the District of Columbia.

Nixon put no total price tag on his wide-ranging suggestions. Nor did he specify how he proposes to overcome such problems as difficulty in finding recruits for the district police department, which was authorized last year to add 1,000 men but has been unable to do so thus far.

He said he did not have "a magic formula that would end crime and sweep away despair overnight," but he proposes a start toward solving deep social troubles that have been long building.

Nixon reiterated his support for home rule for the District of Columbia and said he would press for a voting representative in Congress for the 850,000 residents who now can vote only for president and vice president and for their school board. In other activities in this 12th day of his presidency, Nixon assured the nation's military men that he would heed their advice as he shaped U.S. policy.

Paying his second visit of the week to the Pentagon, Nixon told a gathering of military brass:

"We're counting on you. I will respect your advice."

He added he didn't agree that generals and admirals are skilled only in weapons and battle strategy. He said that he thought his military advisers could make valuable contributions in diplomatic and political areas.

Nixon also directed the Department of Transportation to set up a special committee to investigate all aspects of the costly federally sponsored program to develop a huge supersonic civilian air transport.

He was host later at his first presidential, white-tie White House reception for the capital's diplomatic corps.

Friday morning Nixon spent a half hour in a riot-ravaged area of Washington inspecting a site that will be rebuilt into a school playground with the help of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the city, and members of the community which was torn by riots after the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Nixon said scarcely any of the shops and homes destroyed in those riots had been rebuilt, and the rotting, boarded-up structures were "a rebuke to us all, oppressive and demoralizing to those who live in their shadow."

He offered the help of the federal government, which would provide technical assistance and money to get the rebuilding started.

767 to Receive Degrees Today

Approximately 767 degrees will be awarded to seniors and graduate students at commencement exercises at 10 a.m. today in the Field House.

The commencement address will be delivered by Edward C. Halbach Jr., dean of the School of Law of the University of California at Berkeley.

Halbach's topic will be "The Challenge of Meaningful Involvement."

Halbach, a native of Clinton, earned his B.A. and J.D. degrees from the University and his L.L.M. degree from Harvard University.

Pres. Howard R. Bowen will confer the degrees and deliver the traditional charge to the graduates.

Willard L. Boyd, vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculties, will be the master of ceremonies for the exercises.

500 New Students To Learn Ropes With Orientation

Orientation activities will begin Monday for the approximately 500 freshmen and transfer students who will be entering the University second semester for the first time.

Beginning at 8 a.m. Monday in Macbride Auditorium, the new students will hear a number of University officials and students describe various aspects of University life. Among the speakers will be M. L. Huit, dean of students; Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; and Student Body Vice Pres. Gordon Shuey.

At 9:15 a.m., men and women will separate into groups for consultation with men's and women's advisers from the Office of Student Affairs.

At 7:30 Monday night, a reception for new students will be held in the Union Hawkeye Room. About 50 student leaders and a number of faculty and staff members have also been invited to the reception. The new students will also have an opportunity to take guided tours of the Union and attend a hootenanny that will begin in the Union Wheel Room at 8:30 p.m. The evening activities are sponsored by the Orientation Council.

Ethics Proposal Disliked, Backed

DES MOINES — Iowa legislators Friday reluctantly pledged support for a code of conduct for lawmakers after letting restrictions on lobbyists pass by the way.

The measure, approved Thursday by the House and Senate ethics committees is designed to encourage legislators to avoid conflicts between duties and businesses.

The code would require legislators to list the type of each business in which he or his wife has a financial interest of more than $5,000.

House Speaker William Harbor (R-Henderson) said, "Personally, I don't favor it, but the time has come that we are forced to accept it because it would look bad if we back away."

A legislator "should be judged by his performance, not by his holdings," Harbor said.

Rep. Floyd Millen (R-Farrington) chairman of the House Ethics Committee, voted for the code but said he did not think it was needed.

On the Road Again

The mass exodus of students which vacations and semester breaks always brings has been on for several days already, as finals week drew to a close. Friday it was all officially over, and Lavonne Groth, P1, Elma, took her suitcases in hand and started off for home — just one of thousands of students who have left town for a relaxing weekend away from Iowa City before Registration, which begins Monday, starts the whole process off again. Classes begin Wednesday. — Photo by Dave Luck

More than just 'tokenism'

Students have a great opportunity to constructively aid in the selection of a new University president. According to Student Body Pres. Carl Varner, it is an opportunity the students can't afford to bungle.

Friday, Varner received a letter from Stanley Redeker, president of the State Board of Regents. Redeker asked Varner to head a committee of three students to meet with the regents and convey student opinion on the next president.

Varner, realizing that a three-man committee is hardly representative of all student thought areas on this campus, sent out 120 letters to various student groups to get their opinions on what the University should be and should do and what type of man the University needs as president.

Although the great majority of students are apathetic about student government and student politics, all students should take seriously the regents' desire for student participation.

This is not merely tokenism — in fact, the regents are coming here to facilitate the exchange of opinion.

University Pres. Howard Bowen suggests that a "fine, strong man" be picked as his successor. As various uprisings at San Francisco State College this fall and Columbia University last spring indicate, a college president also needs rapport with students and needs to be aware of the thought on campus.

The same rapport and awareness is equally important for the members of the regents — the governing body of the university. And the regents have taken the first step toward student involvement in the most critical area of campus activity — selection of the head administrator.

It is the students' turn now. If students help to pick a good man, perhaps they will also help him administer the University by opening the now sealed areas of student participation.

Nasty ol' Ed Mezvinsky

It certainly is encouraging to see that the state legislature has rejected any firm control of its lobbyists. We hope Iowa City's own Ed Mezvinsky has learned a lesson: there are some things that are so sacred they can't be touched, and one of those sacred things is the right of a legislator to burn free meals and booze from a lobbyist.

Mezvinsky has waged a vigorous personal campaign against the lobbyists, but the legislature showed its mettle by rebuking Mezvinsky publicly and demonstrating concern for the lobby system and kindness toward the lobbyists themselves.

Mezvinsky charged that the legislators allow themselves to be "wined and dined" on the lobbyists' expense accounts. Some legislators countered by saying the lobbyists serve an "informational" purpose, and that certainly is very important; where else will rural freshman legislators learn how to select the right wines to go with gourmet dinners (assuming, of course, that it is possible to find a gourmet restaurant in Des Moines)?

Our honest and courageous legislature does look as if it's going to enact some mild rules curbing the activities of the lobbyists, mainly due to the pressure of Sen. Eugene Hill (D-Newton) as well as Mezvinsky — some people are just plain ungrateful and unwilling to give anything so small and inconsequential as their votes on public laws in return for all that lavish, good-hearted attention from the lobbyists.

If Mezvinsky doesn't watch out, the lobbyists are going to ignore him completely. He's too young and inexperienced to realize that, although honesty is the best policy, you can carry it too far.

This year's legislature is off to a good start. The biggest issue they've discussed so far is the question of their female assistants' miniskirts. We wonder if the lobbyists' secretaries wear miniskirts?

Arizona U grad cites U.I. need

To the editor:

As a 1966 graduate from the University's Occupational Therapy curriculum, I was most disturbed to hear that consideration is being given to dropping this course of study from the University's program.

I am thoroughly convinced through my experience at three Midwestern university medical centers and two Veterans Administration hospitals that Occupational Therapy is of the utmost value to comprehensive patient treatment. Through their training, occupational therapists become a vital part of the medical team and are able to contribute greatly to the overall well-being of their patients.

Mailer Film Stars To Attend Refocus

Rip Torn and Buzz Farbar, two of the stars of Norman Mailer's "Beyond the Law," will be special guests of the Refocus program, scheduled for March 24 through 30 in the Union.

Torn, a Hollywood and Broadway actor of some prominence, plays the part of a tough detective in the film, the second production by the novelist and critic, which will be making its Iowa premier at Refocus. Farbar, a New York actor, plays a feature role in the film. Mailer, who directed and produced the film, also has a starring role.

Other guest speakers scheduled to appear during Refocus are Wynn Bullock and Stan VanDerBeek.

Refocus, a still photography and cinematography exhibit which stresses student work will be making its fifth appearance on campus this year. It is the largest festival and exhibit of its kind in the Midwest and is second in size only to the International Arts and Film Festival in New York City, according to the Union Board film committee, sponsors of the annual event.

In addition to "Beyond the Law," this year's films will include Andy Warhol's "My Hustler," Ingmar Bergman's "Persona," the 1968 National Student Association film package and a special selection of films by underground filmmakers Kenneth Anger and Bruce Conner.

In addition, student films from all over the U.S., Canada, Japan and other countries will be shown.

About 600 photographic works from over 50 schools and individuals (students and amateurs) are expected to comprise the still photography and cinematography. Bullock and VanDerBeek will be guest speakers in the areas of still photography and cinematography.

Grad Student Wins Award For 1st Book

James Alan McPherson, a graduate student in the Writers Workshop, has won the third annual Atlantic Grant, an award given by Atlantic Monthly Press and Little, Brown Company.

McPherson, of Cambridge, Mass., won the award for "Hue and Cry," a collection of 10 short stories to be published in the spring by Little, Brown. The grant was $2,000 in cash and a $2,000 advance on royalties from the book.

McPherson's first published work was "Gold Coast," a short story set in Cambridge, Mass., which appeared in Atlantic magazine last fall. Another story called "A Matter of Vocabulary" is scheduled for publication in the same magazine in February.

A graduate of Harvard Law School, McPherson has a bachelor's degree from Morris Brown College in Atlanta. He taught freshman rhetoric during the first semester, and has been giving instruction on the writing of legal opinions in the College of Law.

He plans to participate in the law college's summer program to give pre-law training courses to 48 students in a program sponsored by the Council on Legal Education Opportunity (CLEO).

GUNMAN SLAPPED DOWN — MEXICO CITY (AP) — Gonzalo Aguilar, president of the Mexican hunting and shooting federation, has had his gun permit canceled. Appearing at the Defense Ministry to register seven guns, he was told four was the limit. A debate ensued and Aguilar was told he couldn't register any.

'Look, Dr. White, I'm Running on Batteries'

DR. PAUL DUDLEY WHITE, famed cardiologist, exercises with 10-year-old Bobby Ellison of Orange, Mass., whose heart has been regulated by an implanted electronic pacemaker 5½-years. That's more than 182 million heartbeats. Understandably, they're asking your support of the 1969 Heart Fund campaign, conducted nationally through February.

Bullock developed the process of solarization and a method of scientifically controlling the line effect in photography. Although he held the patents on this process in the U.S., England, and Canada, he dropped them because he was not interested in the process from a commercial point of view. He now has a show on solarization creatively used at the Los Angeles County Museum.

Bullock, whose home is in Monterey, Cal., has lectured extensively at California colleges and universities, including San Francisco State and UCLA. Most of Bullock's career, however, has been as a professional photographer interested in a "personal level of photography." Permanent collections of his work are housed in the National Gallery in Washington D.C., Eastman House, the Modern Museum in New York, Princeton, the University of California, the University of Oregon and others, including the photographic museum in Paris. Bullock's topic at Refocus will be "Photographic Communication." He will accompany his talk with slides.

Cinematographer Stan VanDerBeek of Stony Point, N.Y., is widely known for his invention of film processes and approaches, especially his use of collages. His later films, such as "Breathdeath," an antiwar film, are likely to deal with social comment.

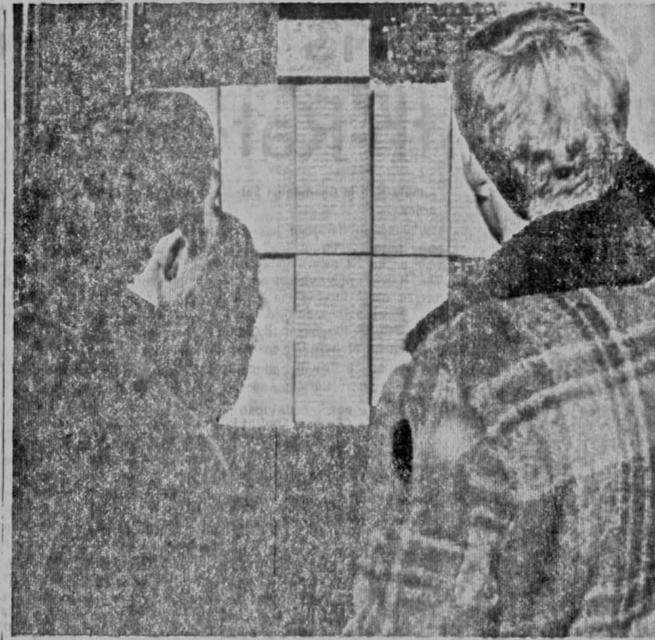

VanDerBeek is best known for his invention of the Movie-Drome, a domed theatre in which multiple projections cover the entire interior wall surface with pictures. He received a Rockefeller grant for work in non-verbal communication on 1959 and a Ford Foundation grant in 1964.

Two of his films received prizes at the 1958 Brussels Experimental Film Competition. He has lectured and held screenings of his films at various universities and colleges, including Cornell, Harvard, Pratt Institute, and now, the University of Iowa for Refocus.

Prof Publishes 'Music' Book

"The Music of Survival," a book of literary criticism by Sherman Paul, professor of English, has just been published by University of Illinois Press.

The subtitle of the book is "A Biography of a Poem by William Carlos Williams." Paul interprets Williams' poem "The Desert Music," written after a nearly fatal stroke, and discusses the materials, inspiration, aesthetic,

Getting the Good (or Bad) Word

The good news — or the bad — of how some 19,000 students did in their classes this semester is posted all over campus in various classroom and office buildings. Here, Larry Kluckhorn (left), A3, Klemme, and Gary Hummel, A4, Des Moines, check over a grade-listing posted on a bulletin board in Macbride Hall. Official grade reports won't be available from the Registrar's Office for several weeks.

Word Change Interests U.S.

PARIS (AP) — Allied diplomats at the Paris peace talks expressed interest Friday in Hanoi's latest statement of its conditions for peace in Vietnam. Their attention was focused on a subtle shift of emphasis by North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy during a record-long 7½-hour session Thursday.

Thuy seemed to suggest Hanoi might accept a political settlement short of handing over control of South Vietnam to the National Liberation Front.

This shift, if it is that, could move the Vietnam antagonists closer together, despite the quantities of diatribe exchanged at the official session.

Though a source close to the South Vietnamese delegation expected U.S. representatives to request clarification of Thuy's declaration, a U.S. delegation spokesman said he had no comment when asked if the Americans had contacted Hanoi's envoys.

The contact could be made before next Thursday's scheduled negotiating session by U.S. delegation liaison secretaries or Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, who has met frequently behind the scenes with Col. Ha Van Lau, deputy chief of the North Vietnamese delegation.

Thuy repeated at Thursday's marathon session Hanoi's view that the "conference can achieve results only if it is based on . . . North Vietnam's four points and the National Liberation Front's five points."

The formulation "based on" varied slightly from Hanoi's earlier demand that the settlement must be made "according to" the four-point program.

Hungry Gunman Hijacks Jet

MIAMI (AP) — A gunman who said he was "tired of TV dinners" and wanted to go to Cuba to get a square meal engineered this year's 11th plane hijacking to Havana Friday.

Stewardess Leanna Anderson said the man poked a cocked gun in her ribs and kept it there all the way from Houston, Tex., to Havana.

She said he told her he wanted a square meal and was fed up with TV dinners.

Ironically, some 1,700 Cuban refugees arrive in Miami each week and complain of lack of food in severely rationed Cuba.

Charles Leeds, captain of the National airliner diverted from a San Francisco-New Orleans-Miami flight with 55 passengers and eight crew members aboard, described the hijacker as a typical American between 28 and 32 "very well dressed and well spoken."

Miss Anderson told a news conference after the crew's return that he had chemistry books and said he had studied chemistry in Europe.

The stewardess said the hijacker was the first passenger to board at San Francisco. He was a first class passenger.

"He had his gun pointed at me for about an hour and a half," Miss Anderson said. "He told me, 'We're going to Havana, open the door.' I knocked at the cockpit door and nothing happened so he said knock louder, and I did and they opened it."

"He told me he wanted to get a job and wanted to eat and would be in jail anyway, either in the United States or Cuba."

Leeds put in: "They treated us like routine arrivals when we got to Havana airport."

Twice-hijacked stewardess Donna Goldinher commented, "This time it was a breeze. I was in the rear and didn't know what was going on until they announced it."

When a plane was hijacked last March, the 27-year-old brunette was forced to march to the cockpit with a gun at her neck.

Ohio State Risks Conference Lead at Purdue

CHICAGO (AP)—The still-young Big 10 basketball season offers an important glamor game this afternoon between the two unbeaten co-leaders, Ohio State (4-0) and host Purdue (3-0). Although the 14-game conference race is hardly one-third completed, undoubtedly the winner of the regionally televised matinee at Lafayette, Ind., will be in the driver's seat the rest of the way.

Ohio State defeated a strong contender, Illinois, 76-67, on the Buckeye floor Tuesday night, but OSU Coach Fred Taylor commented: "Purdue will be bigger and they'll set those big men to peel or pick for Rick Mount."

Concerning Mount, the Big 10's leading scorer with a 34.7 average and third best in the nation with 32.4 over-all, Taylor asserted: "I don't think he'll ever have a bad shooting game unless you climb all over him. Nobody is going to take him on one-on-one unless he happens to be real quick and 6-foot 7."

Purdue Coach George King, whose Boilermakers conquered Illinois 98-84, is worried about Ohio State's "tough front line" of 6-7 Dave Sorenson, 6-5 Steve Howell, and Jim Clemons, a slice and speedy sophomore. Sorenson is the Big 10's No. 2 scorer at 25.3.

Iowa Starts Tough Road Schedule With 4th-Rated Davidson Tonight

By MIKE EBBING

Iowa's basketball team, more appropriately known as the "road-runners," begins a three-game stand away from home at 9:45 tonight when the Hawks take on fourth-ranked Davidson at Chicago Stadium.

The coming week will be a most crucial one for Coach Ralph Miller and his high-scoring Hawkeys. Following the game with the Wildcats, the Hawks will journey to Lafayette, Ind. to face 14th-ranked Purdue. The finale of this strenuous road excursion will pit seventh-ranked Illinois entertaining the Hawkeys at Assembly Hall in Champaign Saturday.

Winning on the road has not been Iowa's "cup of tea" this year as its 1-4 record indicates. The Hawks' only victory on a foreign court this season came Jan. 30 when they downed Houston 95-87 in the Sugar Bowl tournament at New Orleans.

Driesell has never had a losing season at Davidson since his first year as coach in 1960-61. In his eight years with the Wildcats, Driesell has a respectable 149-62 record and he has twice been Southern Conference "Coach of the Year."

Although this will be the Hawks' first meeting with Davidson, Miller-coached teams are very familiar with Chicago Stadium. The Hawks are 3-1 at the Stadium with victories over UCLA, Detroit and Cincinnati, before losing to Loyola last year. When Miller coached at Wichita, the Shockers beat Loyola twice, giving him an overall Stadium record of 5-1.

Track Team Opens Season Against Wisconsin, Purdue

Iowa's track team opens its indoor season today when the Hawks meet Wisconsin and Purdue at Madison, Wis.

Coach Francis Cretzmeier, now in his 21st year at Iowa, admits that the outlook is not too favorable for his young and inexperienced Hawkeye squad.

The Hawks have lost Americas Larry Wiczorek and Mike Mondane through graduation and the team is short on overall depth. Injuries have sidelined pole vaulters Don Utsinger and Rich Gershenson from today's competition.

The Hawkeys lost 15 men from a squad that placed sixth in the Big 10 outdoor and eighth in the indoor meets last season. Major losses, besides Wiczorek and Mondane, are distance men Ron Griffith and Steve Szabo, sprinters Dale Teberg and Randy Haines, hurdler Fred Stater and weightmen John Hendricks and Bill Smith.

On the plus side, 11 lettermen return, headed by middle-distance ace Carl Frazier. Frazier, who is the team's captain, was third in the Big 10 outdoor meet in the 660 last year and was a member of Iowa's winning mile relay team.

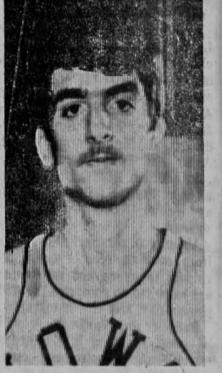

Other help should come from jumper Larry Wilson, who owns the Iowa outdoor high jump record; Rollie Kilt, who won the 3,000-yard steeple chase in the 1967 Big 10 meet; and Curt LaBond, a standout on Iowa's cross country team.

Sophomore help should come from Bruce Presley and Jay Pedely in the hurdles, Phil Wertman in the pole vault and Dave Eastland in the distance events. Senior Garry Phelps could help in the long jump.

The Iowa football team is also lending its help — for the time being at least. Ray Cavole and Ray Churchill will run the sprints and the triple and long jump events. Also expected to add some depth are gridders Layne McDowell, Tom Wallace and Jon Meskimen in the shot and discus.

"We should be pretty good in the high jump and pole vault, and in the middle distance races and hurdles," said Cretzmeier, "but we'll be down in the sprints and distance races. We could have a good mile relay team, though, since three boys are returning — (Steve) Dertlinger, (Jerry) Stevens and (Carl) Frazier."

Wisconsin, who was last year's Big 10 indoor champion and third in the outdoor meet, reportedly has one of its best teams. The Badgers smashed Iowa State 115-35 last weekend. Purdue was victorious in its first start against Ball State.

GLENN VIDNOVIC
Free-Throw Marksman

Philips (48-82) is the leading Hawk with .585. Ben McGilmer (61-105) is close behind with .581 and Glenn Vidnovic (49-88) is .557.

Vidnovic, the fourth best free-throw shooter in the nation, should break the Iowa season record for free-throw accuracy. Vidnovic has connected on 94 of 104 attempts for a sparkling .904 mark. Tom Chapman has the old mark (.870), hitting on 114 of 131.

Vidnovic is one of three Hawkeye players working on a string of consecutive free throws. Chad Calabria has a dropped in 19 straight, Vidnovic has 18 and McGilmer, 15.

Baseball Club Owners Begin Annual Draft of Free Agents

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball club owners, following the lead of the pro football clubs, will dig into the list of free agents today in their annual winter draft of schoolboys and collegians.

In contrast with football's selections, earlier in the week, of 442 college players, many of whom have reputations as All-Americans, most of the baseball draftees will be unknown to the general public.

The regular phase of the draft, covering players who are graduated at this time of year, will start at 10 a.m., EST, at the Americana Hotel under the direction of William D. Eckert, baseball commissioner. The secondary phase, covering players who were drafted previously but were not signed, will follow after a short recess.

It is expected that over 300 players will be drafted, as compared to a record 290 last year. This is the fourth winter selection. In the first in 1966, the total was 197 and the following year it was 217.

The June totals always are much higher because the bulk of the schoolboys and collegians are graduated in that month. The June draft in 1968 hit a new high of 1,050.

The clubs draft in reverse order of their 1968 finish with Houston, the last place team in the National League, getting first crack, followed by Washington, last in the American League. In the secondary phase, the teams draw in a different order, determined by lot. The four expansion teams — Montreal, San Diego, Kansas City, and Seattle — will be the last to pick.

Baseball started the draft in 1965 after seven years of cut-throat competition for free agents with big bonus contracts. When a player is selected by a team, he can negotiate with no other club until the next draft period.

The order of selection in the regular phase: Astros, Senators, Mets, Angels, Dodgers, White Sox, Phillies, Twins, Pirates, Athletics, Red Sox, Cubs, Indians, Giants, Orioles, Cardinals, Tigers, Expos, Royals, Padres and Pilots.

In the secondary phase: Cardinals, Yankees, Astros, Red Sox, Pirates, Indians, Phillies, Senators, Dodgers, Twins, Cubs, Athletics, Mets, Angels, Braves, Tigers, Reds, Orioles, Giants, White Sox, Padres, Pilots, Expos and Royals.

Mathis Says He Can Defeat Chuvalo in Monday's Fight

RHINEBECK, N.Y. (AP) — The last time they were in Madison Square Garden together Buster Mathis and George Chuvalo were most impressive.

Mathis knocked out Mel Wood in the sixth round and then watched Chuvalo stop Mexico's Manuel Ramos in the fifth round of a fight doubleheader.

Asked then if he would like to fight Chuvalo, Buster replied swiftly: "Any time — right now. I can whip him."

The onetime 300-pound blimp, now trimmed down to about 230, will get his chance at the durable Canadian heavyweight champion Monday night in the closing 12-round of another double bill at the Garden.

In the first co-feature Emile Griffith, the former welterweight and middleweight champion from New York, will take on newcomer Doyle Baird of Akron, Ohio, in a 10-rounder.

Mathis hasn't changed his mind about Chuvalo.

"He's strong as a bull but he's wide open," said Big Buster. "There has to be a limit to how much he can take. You know if you keep on hitting a brick with a sledgehammer the brick has to break some time. If I hit him right, he'll break."

How about if Chuvalo hits him right?

"He doesn't hit hard enough," replied Buster. "Anyway he'll be too busy taking my punches. I plan to punch more and earlier."

The 24-year-old giant is looking beyond Chuvalo. The winner has been promised a shot with California's Jerry Quarry at the Garden, March 10.

"But Joe Frazier is the guy I want again," he said. "I promise you it will be different."

Frazier stopped Mathis in the 11th round to win a five-state piece of the heavyweight title last March 4.

Eight months before that Frazier handed Chuvalo a fierce beating, stopping the Canadian in the fourth round. It was the first time Chuvalo had failed to go the distance in 12 years of pro fighting.

Probably because of that, Mathis has been made a 9-5 favorite over the 31-year-old Canadian.

Mathis has a 28-1 record, including 19 knockouts. He has won five straight. Chuvalo, winner of his last six, has a 53-14-2 record, including 45 knockouts.

Ziegler Surpasses Nicklaus For Lead in San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Little-known Larry Ziegler played the role of Jack the Giant Killer Friday and the giant — at least for one day — was Jack Nicklaus, the victim of a treacherous putter.

When the shooting was over in the second round of the $150,000 Andy Williams NICKLAUS San Diego Open Golf Tournament, Ziegler had caught and passed the mighty Nicklaus with a three-under-par 69 and a 36-hole score of 139.

Nicklaus, the leader going into the fracas, wound up with a 72 for 140 — thanks to a double bogey six when he four-putted the fourth hole.

Nicklaus played the black nine first at the Torrey Pines Golf Club, par 36-36-72, and was one under at the turn for the round.

Gene Littler, with a 72, was in third place at 142, and Dick Lotz, 71, and Bob Charies, 69, were tied at 143.

National Open champion Lee Trevino had his best round, a 69 for 144, and local favorite Billy Casper's 75 left him back at 147. Dow Finsterwald, who had a sparkling 69 Thursday, went out in 40 and came back in 35 for 75 and 144, even par.

George Archer, the Bing Crosby winner, had a 73 for 147. The Los Angeles Open Winner, Charlie Sifford, had to withdraw because of illness. He had three successive nines of 39 before quitting.

The last two days of the tournament will be televised by ABC — today 6:30-7:30 p.m. EST and Sunday 5-7 p.m.

Hall Paces College Division Scorers

NEW YORK (AP) — A scoring average of 39 points a game in his last five games has propelled Ken Hall of Westminster, Utah, near the top of the point race among college division basketball players, statistics disclosed Friday.

Hall, a 6-2 senior, has raised his over-all average to 35.2 points a game, just a shade behind Johnnie Allen of Bethune-Cookman, who is scoring at a 35.6 clip.

If Hall can overtake Allen and hold the lead, he would be only the second player from west of the Mississippi to win the college division title in the last 28 years. The only winner in that time has been Paul Crissman of Southern California College in 1966.

Players from Southern schools incidentally, have won the title seven of the last eight seasons and 11 of the last 13.

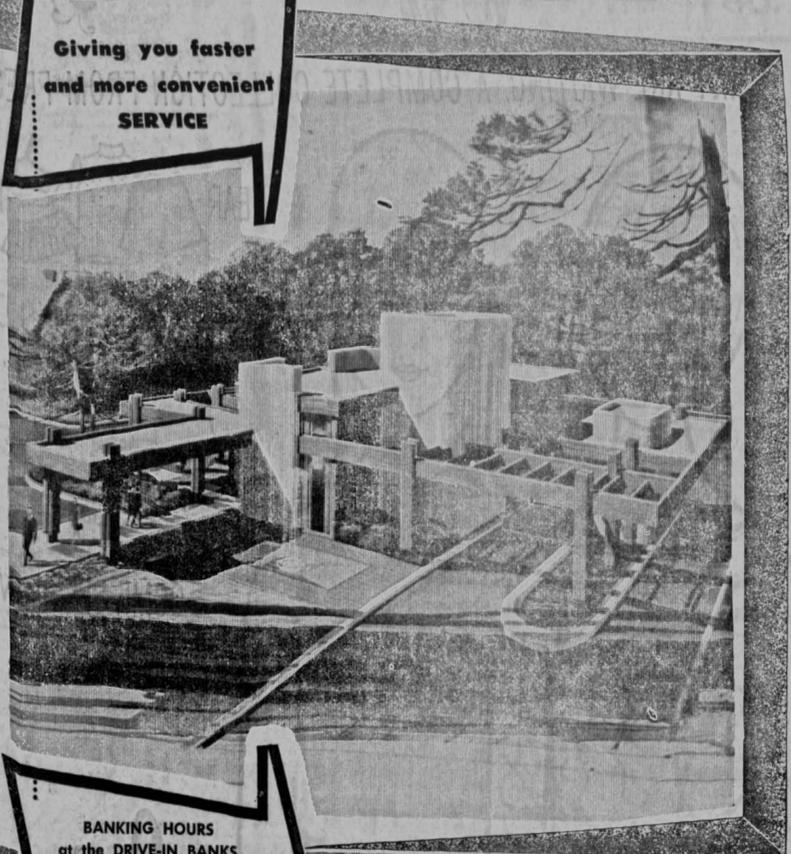

Marvin Lewis of Southampton leads in rebounding with 21.5 a game and also is second in field goal accuracy, having hit on 72 per cent of his shots. He trails Frank Zinke of Belmont Abbey, who has made 73 per cent of his shots.

Joe Cullen of Hartwick has the top free-throw mark, 95 per cent.

Remodel Home Economics, Business, Education—

Departments Revamp Courses to Ease Credibility Gap

By ARLENE FAULK
The credibility and quality of colleges within the University are strengthened or weakened by the type of curricula they offer to their students. Curriculum, or courses required within a college, must be continually evaluated to improve and expand opportunities for students in their particular majors.

This year seems to be one of major study and evaluation of courses within many University departments. Many changes are either in the planning stages or completed ones that will go into effect next fall.

Changes, being made in the Department of Home Economics, the College of Business and the College of Education, are planned to add flexibility and broaden the background for students in those particular majors.

Dr. F. Eugenia Whitehead, chairman of the Department of Home Economics, said that no drastic changes were being made in the department. The changes do not involve dropping several courses, she said, but a revampment of the requirements needed to receive either a Bachelor of Arts or Science degree in Home Economics.

The program as it now exists requires students to take specific courses required for a degree in Home Economics. Beginning next fall only a seminar will be required, Dr. Whitehead said.

She said that students must also take one course in each of the four interest areas in home economics: family development, food and nutrition, related art and housing and textiles and clothing.

Students will still be required to fulfill an hours requirement in Home Economics courses and requirements for the College of Liberal Arts and the specific interest area, she said.

"The changes are designed to give a student more flexibility in taking courses that will provide a broader background in her particular interest area and enhance the student's choice of courses," Dr. Whitehead said.

"The new program will make it possible for students to discuss with her advisor the selection of courses which will contribute most to her profession," Dr. Whitehead said.

Students already enrolled this year as Home Economics majors will not be affected by core changes, she said.

"They will already have a broad background from the courses they have taken and can broaden their knowledge by taking more electives," Dr. Whitehead said.

Evaluation of curriculum by students has also been made, said Kathy Zimmerman, A3, Cordova, Ill., a junior seminar student. Students in seminar classes were asked to evaluate the purpose of core courses in higher education, specifically in relation to Home Economics, she said.

Students divided into committees to discuss requirements for Home Economics and submitted reports that indicated what they thought the requirements should be, she said. These reports were handed in to the faculty for reviewing when they discussed possible requirement changes.

Similar study and changes are being planned in the College of Business. Twelve committees are working to evaluate curricula in different areas of the college, Charles Marberry, chairman of the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee, said.

The curriculum for a Master's Degree in Business Administration has already been revised and a nine-man committee is now studying core requirements in the undergraduate curriculum, he said.

The Undergraduate Curriculum Committee was formed this year, Marberry said, and will be a standing committee that will continue to evaluate curriculum.

Marberry said that this year a major re-examination of curricula is being made. Other collegiate schools of business were surveyed, faculty members were consulted and feedback was received from students within the college, he said.

Action has been taken this fall by students who have been evaluating curriculum and submitting their suggestions to faculty.

"Students are welcome to submit suggestions to the faculty about curriculum," said Bill Roggeveen, B3, Muscatine, president of the Collegiate Chamber of Commerce.

The organization is composed of all business students and has a board of directors that include students from different academic areas such as marketing and accounting and from the professional business sorority and fraternities, he said.

Roggeveen said the Chamber of Commerce is the primary link between the faculty and students. The directors put out an information sheet for all business students saying that they were welcome to submit their opinions and evaluations of curriculum to faculty, he said.

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, carried out a project concerning curriculum evaluation, said Larry Eilers, B4, Monticello, president of the fraternity.

The members divided into committees from the various areas of business to evaluate the requirements within their particular area.

"We spent many hours analyzing course content, Eilers said, "and composed a detailed report of recommendations which we submitted to Marberry."

"Prof. Marberry told us that student recommendations would be considered when the curriculum committee made their evaluation of course requirements, he said.

Eilers said the professors and faculty in the College of Business had always been very receptive to student ideas and recommendations.

The College of Education is also studying its education programs and discussing future changes.

Howard R. Jones, dean of the College of Education, said that no major curriculum changes are planned for the college but there are several new ideas and trends within the department.

He said that more emphasis will be placed on experiences in working with children prior to student teaching. More work will be done by students in observing elementary and high school students in their classes and in assistant teaching, he said.

Off-campus student teaching, which Jones called an issue rather than a trend, would have student teachers live in the community in which he teaches for eight weeks rather than commuting from Iowa City.

He said that the student teacher would have a staff member work directly with him during this teaching period.

Jones said that with the rising number of student teachers each year, some will have to live in other communities in the future or a quota might have to be placed on the number who can student teach each semester.

Off campus teaching is still being studied, Jones said, since there are both advantages and disadvantages to this type of system.

Jones also said that if it becomes too expensive to provide buses for transporting student teachers to other communities, a year's notice would be given before this change would go into effect.

Another issue, said Jones, is how fast the college should move toward a five-year teaching program.

He said the trend has been a four-year program in education, after which a student teaches for one or two years, then comes back for a master's degree. He said a special 5-year program could likely evolve in the future.

"There is a need for a two year post graduate program," Jones said. In this program students could do work after graduation in a field of special education as school counselors, school personnel workers, educational administrators and educational psychologists, he said.

Jones said work is being done to place more emphasis on using computers by graduate students.

He said that computers are used basically in a questionnaire type of program. If a student answers a question correctly, the computer flashes "Right" across a screen, he goes on to the next question.

If he answers it wrong, the computer does something to help correct the answer with pictures and graphs. Jones said that computers allowed a student to work his own pace.

"In general, the idea behind the curriculum and trends in the College of Education is to place more emphasis on a student's individual work and his adaption to his goals and needs," Jones said. "We want students to have options in their electives because they need a varied background in education," Jones said.

Many of the trends and changes within these University departments are still in the discussion and planning stages. But administrators, faculty and students seem to realize that a curriculum cannot improve by being stagnant.

Work is being done in these three departments to allow students more flexibility in his courses by choosing subjects which add relevance to his future occupation.

If other colleges in the University are taking the same steps to change, then curricula throughout the University can expand to offer students a broader background in their majors than they now have.

Man on Moon May Be Aim Of Apollo 10

WASHINGTON (AP)—The space agency said Friday it may attempt to land a man on the moon in May if its Apollo 9 space shot planned for this month is successful.

"After we have assessed the results of Apollo 9 we may want to make the next mission more ambitious or less ambitious than now planned," Apollo 9 Mission Director George H. Hage explained.

Apollo 9, due for launching Feb. 28 from Cape Kennedy, is designed to orbit the earth with, for the first time, the full complement of equipment needed for a manned lunar landing.

"We have built in enough flexibility so that we can react quickly to difficulties or to successes," Hage said. "Therefore we cannot rule out the possibility of a lunar landing by Apollo 10."

At the same time, Hage told a news conference an unsuccessful Apollo 9 mission could result in the next space shot attempting to complete the mission for which the Feb. 28 shot is designed.

Apollo 9, described previously as the busiest, most complex flight in the history of the U.S. space program, is to include the first orbital testing of the lunar module that will carry the first men to the moon.

DRAFT DOCTORS—

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon asked the Selective Service system Thursday to draft 437 medical doctors, 23 osteopaths and 25 optometrists for the Army and Air Force beginning in July. The Pentagon has issued special calls for physicians on seven occasions since 1961 when voluntary enlistments were falling to meet service needs.

Recreation Center Plan Raises Queries

The NOW LOOK

One of the first areas of study and action by members of the Graduate Senate has been examining the University's proposed changes in the recreation program on campus.

The major change at this time is the construction of a new recreation building northwest of the Field House. This building is viewed by some as a contribution to the recreation facilities for all University students and faculty members. Others, however, see the building as a toy of the athletic department.

A recreation subcommittee of the graduate senate, composed of students in microbiology, law, biochemistry and men's and women's physical education, has been studying an architect's preliminary plans for the building and has decided the new building would be more of an athletic center than a student recreational facility as planned.

Committee members do not think the design will be adequate for recreation, and they don't think students should have to pay for a facility that won't be available during prime recreational time. They also question the appointment of Forrest Evashevski, athletic director, as recreation director.

According to David Leslie, G. Palo Alto, Calif., and Frank Booth, G. Columbus, Ohio, members of the recreation committee and graduate students in the physical education department, the committee does not agree with Pres. Howard R. Bowen's list of priorities for building, use, design and financing.

"Originally students payed $10 a year in their tuition, which gave students tickets to the games," Booth said.

"Now students have to pay the $10 and also have to pay for tickets. The $10 is being put into the recreational building fund which is paying for 80 per cent of a building that will not be available to students during prime recreational time. Bonds for the recreation building will be paid off in 40 years, so students will be paying into the fund for 40 years," Booth said.

The University has adopted a five-phase improvement plan for recreational and athletic facilities. The first phase, limited renovation of the Field House, has been completed. The second, construction of a recreation building that will house freshmen football, varsity baseball and track and free indoor track lanes and lockers in the Field House, is under construction now. The third, four and fifth phases, which include additional improvements in the Field House and construction of a swimming pool on the east side of the river; construction of a sports arena; and the complete remodeling of the Field House will be done over the next 10 years.

"The women's gym on the east side of the river has had a temporary roof for several years and needs repairs inside," Leslie said.

In addition, Leslie, Booth and the other members of the committee do not think the new recreation building will meet the recreational needs of the students as effectively as the administration and Evashevski are telling students and the public it will.

For instance, the athletic department was given the authority of designing the building and overseeing its construction with resulting priorities being given to the needs of the athletic department.

According to architect's plans, the building will have space for 10 basketball courts, 18 volleyball courts and six tennis courts, but not all at the same time.

The recreation committee has found that the building will consist primarily of one large floor which will house all the facilities. This area has the indoor track and other courts overlapping. If the track team were to use the area for practice, then any student using the basketball courts in the area enclosed by the track would have to play half-court basketball in order to be off the track, and the track men would have to watch for basketball equipment and players who might be on the track.

Besides finding the design for recreation impractical, the committee says time priority will also be given to the athletic department.

Otto Berg, head of intramurals and coordinator of recreation, said the University's greatest demand time for recreation was 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. But, because of the athletic teams' practice sessions, University students and staff would not have this time for recreation.

"Plans call for a 50-foot ceiling in the new building which, if it were truly recreational, would be divided into two floors," Leslie said.

"Also the building will have 2,600 seats for spectators which are not necessary in a true recreation building."

In addition to these facts, the committee does not think the Field House will get the remodeling and repairs it needs.

Even though the recreation building is being built, changes have been made in the Field House which are causing recreation and physical education teaching problems. For instance, a series of new bleachers were put up for basketball games which necessitated a change in the design of the indoor track. The 220-yard track, which normally is in an oval, now has to be pear-shaped to fit around the bleachers.

"A good track man will feel a disadvantage on such a track," Leslie said.

"This track is also used by the physical education department to conduct tests," Leslie said. "With the extension of the bleachers, it is difficult, if not impossible, to have the necessary straight stretch of track to run the tests with safety. The physical education department, recreation and track team must make adjustments to accommodate such changes for the athletic department."

Berg previously stated that the remodeling project in the Field House the regents approved would help tremendously, but there wouldn't be a good program until the basketball floor is moved out of the Field House so the Field House could be double-decked.

The basketball court will be moved after the recreation building is completed and the sports arena is done. At present, there is no building completion date for the arena. Consequently, remodeling of the Field House is put off indefinitely.

"If the buildings could all be done at one time, this would be fine, but it isn't being done that way, and recreation, in receiving the lowest time priority, has to wait its turn," Booth said.

"We wonder if it will be done at all. It is possible that there won't be enough money to finance the double-decking of the Field House for recreation."

The third point of contention the recreation committee makes is the appointment of the University athletic director as the recreation director.

Evashevski will serve as director of recreation with responsibilities that include planning and developing intramural and recreational sports and operating and maintaining facilities used by both the recreation program and the department of intercollegiate athletics in addition to his duties as athletic director.

"We wonder if one man can serve two masters," Leslie said, "and we also wonder if he is as interested in recreation as he is in athletics."

"I think if a situation arises that calls for a choice between recreation and athletics, he will naturally go with athletics. We want a recreation director who is less connected with intercollegiate athletics."

The committee is planning to continue to study the problem. They hope to find a satisfactory means of ending the problem. According to committee members, one such solution in a study stage is a possible law suit to stop construction of the building until a judgment could be reached.

Ex-Policeman Found Guilty Of Florida 'Catch-Me' Killing

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A jury Friday found a young ex-policeman, Robert Eriker, guilty of the "catch-me" murder of 12-year-old Marilyn Clark whose death Eriker once investigated.

The pale, trembling Eriker was immediately sentenced to 99 years and six months at hard labor at Rialford State Prison.

The jury spent two hours and 25 minutes in deliberations before convicting the 24-year-old Eriker of second degree murder.

Among the main state witnesses had been five friends — four of them police officers — who said it was his voice on a taped telephone call to the sheriff's office admitting the murder and saying, "Please catch me. Please . . . hurry up."

Eriker's sisters, Lynne and Betty, cried when the verdict was announced. His mother, Winifred Eriker, was dry-eyed but shaking as her other son, Dan, 21, embraced her.

The boyish-looking Eriker, a Vietnam veteran who said he loved his gun, had denied the crime during a 4½-hour stint on the witness stand Thursday. But he remained silent after the verdict and during the sentencing.

"I did not kill anybody," Eriker had said in his own defense. "Regardless of what anybody says, I didn't kill anybody. I am telling the truth and I am not the one that killed this little girl. I am telling the solemn truth."

Second degree murder carries a sentence of life in prison or any term of years more than 20. By sentencing Eriker to the large number of years, Court of Record Judge E. Summers Sheffey guaranteed he must serve 33 years before being eligible for parole unless the conviction is reversed.

TWO GUITARISTS

"DREAMS" (Skye, SK-7) by jazz guitarist Gabor Szabo holds a couple surprises and many pleasures. First of all, Szabo is no longer simply arranging; he's actually composing, and composing well. The only familiar song on this album is Donovan's "Ferry Wheel."

Second surprise — to the basic package of percussion and guitar, Szabo has added optional extras — violin, cello, French horn, and piano. There is a gypsy motif throughout most Szabo material, but the violin and French horns make it even more apparent on this album.

It is a gypsy motif in the sense that there is a gypsy motif underlying much of Donovan's material. The gypsy flavor is most tasty in the unpredictable "Fortune Teller," the album's best cut.

None of this is to deny what Leonard Feather once said of Szabo — "he blends the sound of jazz guitar with echoes of Liverpool and images of India" — nor is it to disagree with the appropriateness of the album cover's quote from Joyce — "The west shall shake the east awake . . . while ye have the night for morn . . ."

This is simply to say that the man who can make a guitar sound like a sitar or tamboura, or blend Liverpool with India (not much of that in this album), can also blend the Oriental dream with the gypsy dream with the American dream (see Bill Ardis' "revolutionary" juicer notes), and do it quite successfully.

The second guitarist with a praiseworthy performance is the young American virtuoso, Christopher Parkening. In 1963, "FM and Fine Arts Guide" predicted that "He will be America's first important classical guitarist."

At that time, Parkening was only fifteen years old. Now, with the dual-release of two debut albums — "IN THE CLASSIC STYLE" (S-36019) and "IN THE SPANISH STYLE" (S-36020) — Parkening fully reveals the talents that will enable him to garner that title.

Similar in his style to Diaz, or Segovia, Parkening performs with the confident relaxation of a master.

Some of his selections speak further for his self-confidence — Bach's "Chaconne from the Violin Partita" (certainly the most difficult), Bach's "Courante from the Cello Suite," Francisco Tarrega's "Estudio brillante," and Fernando Sor's "Estudio No. 17 in E minor."

Segovia, whom Parkening studied under at Berkeley and Winston-Salem, has said of him — "By reason of his unique talents, he belongs to that special group of my disciples of which I am so proud!"

Of the two albums, I slightly prefer "IN THE CLASSIC STYLE," because I think it's phrasing is somewhat more original than "IN THE SPANISH STYLE," but to appreciate one album is to appreciate both.

Guitarist Here All Next Week On Coffee Circuit

Students will have the chance to discuss their guitar-strumming problems with a former Mitchell Trio member at a guitar workshop to be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Union Harvard Room.

John Denver, who was chosen to replace Chad Mitchell in the one-time Chad Mitchell Trio singing group, will be on campus next week for a number of appearances sponsored by the Union Board Dances and Entertainment Committee.

Besides the free guitar workshop Monday evening, Denver will perform along with the Rumbles dance band Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge.

On Wednesday he will make two appearances in the lounge of Mayflower Hall beginning at 8 p.m., and on Thursday he will perform at the Currier Coffee House.

Next Friday and Saturday, Denver will give performances in the Wheel Room of the Union, beginning at 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. each evening.

Under Denver's direction as lead singer, the Mitchell Trio recorded several albums and became known as Denver, Boise & Johnson. More recently, Denver has become known as a contemporary composer with his "Leaving on a Jet Plane." His music has been recorded by Bobby Darin, Caludine Longet, Spanky & Our Gang, and Peter, Paul and Mary.

Denver will come to campus under the auspices of the Coffee House Circuit, a new agency that books new professional talent and makes it available to participating colleges for one-week stints at low costs.

'Bullitt' — a Film Right on Target

"Bullitt" is a brilliant exercise and a good film. It's a thriller with pretensions toward being something more, but despite the statement it attempts about people who live with violence, the personal drama of Bullitt's life never really becomes part of the film.

There are hints of drama scattered about, but in the end we have the thriller and not much more, thanks to brilliant direction and camerawork that turns out to be more than sufficient.

Yet "Bullitt" is not the superior film one is led to expect from its publicity. Rather, most of the film is played without self-conscious bravado by Steve McQueen, and the whole project has an air of muted realism and understatement about it.

The minor characters are in the main well observed and played, and there is a fine sense of location and the ordinary details of police and city life. The relationship especially between Bullitt and the other police seems simple and unforced in scene after scene, and this despite the obvious temptations to melodrama inherent in the script.

The film is, of course, not totally free from melodrama. There are far too many and too charged confrontations between Bullitt and Chalmers, the publicity-conscious politician played nicely by Robert Vaughn.

The film's final chase at an airport also seems unnecessary and evidence of the film's tendency to overdo a good thing. It leads to the final statement, and to the last few shots' comment on the life and circumstances of Frank Bullitt, yet that end — though strong — is, as I said to start with, unsuccessful.

There is the one element of the film that doesn't work at all. Bullitt's girl remains a vague and shadowy figure at best, her appearances serving perhaps most successfully as breathing spells — rests from the furious action of the film as a whole.

They reveal little or nothing about Bullitt, unless one accepts as adequate their one clipped conversation by the side of the road. This conversation is absurdly neat and schematic, but is quickly passed over as the film goes its own fast and violent way.

Speed and vitality have often been called the main virtues of the American cinema. Yet Peter Yates is the second new British director (after John Boorman of "Point Blank") to show that an outsider can exhibit them with more style and freshness than nearly any of our native directors.

"Bullitt" starts out with one of the best title sequences in recent memory and lets down visually at very few places after that.

There is especially brilliant use of the hand-held camera and of soft-focus photography, although the latter is a bit overused for its prettiness. The editing is hurried but never hysterical, even in the film's fantastic car chase. The compositions have, in the main, the nice effect of containing much detail and action without ever being cluttered.

As for William Fraker's color, it deserves medals and is ample evidence that Fraker is one of the best new cinematographers in the American film. The color is rich but not gaudy, warmly textured but not overly lush.

"Bullitt," let me state clearly, is not a major film. It opens no new doors of perception, shows no fantastic vision or profundity. It is instead in the nature of a tour-de-force, talent and skill seen as their own justification.

It is not for people who see films as a kind of Sunday school, but rather for those who see it as a sometimes spiritual, but mostly earthly burlesque.

Mort Sahl, Humorist With a Bite, Replaces Spanky's Gang Concert

Mort Sahl, whose acid-tongued monologues have been described as a nice fresh breath of carbon monoxide, will give two performances at the University Feb. 8.

Sahl's appearance, sponsored by the Central Party Committee, will replace a scheduled concert by Spanky and Our Gang, a pop vocal group which cancelled for personal reasons.

Appearing with Sahl will be Denny Brooks, the former leader of "The Back Porch Majority." Brooks is a folk-singer.

The performance will be at 7 and 9:15 p.m.

Sahl became famous at the San Francisco night club, the hungry I, for his running monologue on Sen. Joseph McCarthy's activities in the 1950s. He has continued to take verbal stabs at each administration since former President Dwight Eisenhower's.

Art Exhibition at Wesley House

An art exhibit, featuring works by James Mall, G. Iowa City, is currently on display at Wesley House, 120 N. Dubuque St.

The exhibit, which includes prints, drawings and constructions, will run until Feb. 19 and may be viewed from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily.

THE PENNYWHISTLERS

Emphasizing folk-choral traditions from eastern Europe while on their first Midwestern tour, The Pennywhistlers will stop in Iowa City for a concert Wednesday, Feb. 12. Tickets for the 8 p.m. concert in the Union Main Lounge will be on sale Monday at the Union box office for $1.

Sponsored by Union Board, the feminine septet will be coming here from the Chicago Folk Festival and, indirectly, from the Bronx, where they all grew up together.

The prospect of seven girls in brilliant peasant dress, holding hands and singing, should not mislead one into expecting anything sweet, quaint or peevish; the group's selections and treatment range from the restraint and tenderness of a Russian love song or a Yiddish lullaby to the wild vocal leaps, strident harmonies and unexpected intervals of the most demanding traditions of Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Taking its name from an inexpensive Irish instrument the girls thought sounded modest enough for them, the group has cut three LPs.

Community Theatre Play, 'Raisin,' Tells It Like It Is

Five black actors stand in a makeshift set in a church basement listening to instructions from a white director.

The play they're rehearsing is not sponsored by a church group, a public school, or a federal grant. It is not in Chicago, Watts, or Waterloo.

This scene includes the cast and director of "A Raisin in the Sun," by Lorraine Hansberry, the Iowa City Community Theatre production that opens Wednesday at the 4-H Fairgrounds.

Elaine King, the director, says that with this play the Iowa City Community Theatre (ICCT) is "trying to do its bit" to involve black people and to discuss current social problems through drama.

The president of the group, June Braverman, agrees only partly.

"Producing this play helps us ICCT members appease our consciences about having neglected controversial theater and black actors for so long," she said in an interview.

Mrs. King and Mrs. Braverman agree the play is very good theater, and cite the success it has had as proof of their assertion.

The play, written about a decade ago, tells about a black family living in a Chicago ghetto. The members of the family can be seen as prototypes of troubled black persons, including a matriarchal grandmother; a childlike, self-defeated man; a militant girl; and a bewildered child.

Aaron Favors, an instructor in speech pathology, plays the lead role. A member of ICCT, he says he had two worries about the production when it was chosen: casting it from the small, local black community and the militancy current among blacks.

Favors' fears about casting proved to be true. Director King spent a month gathering a cast, and this was accomplished only by personal con-

She tells some of it—

Garedean Short, a member of the cast of "A Raisin in the Sun," rehearses her role as a militant, well-educated girl. The play opens at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Montgomery Hall on the 4-H Fairgrounds and will run for five performances. It is produced by the Iowa City Community Theatre. — Photo by Dave Luck fact with black Iowa Citizens. The production has only black people playing black roles, because Mrs. King felt that white people could not adequately interpret them. Favors, who wants to see the time when ICCT can successfully cast white roles with black people and vice versa, agrees.

"Although, theoretically speaking, one should be consistent," he says, "this play is an exception because it deals with a racial theme."

The cast, for the most part, does not consist of militants, and all are outspoken about the relevancy of the play to the black community now.

Favors says that although the goal of the black man is no longer to join the black community (as is shown in the play), the drama does have timely features. Black Power, Afro-American culture, and subtle forms of segregation are discussed in it.

Wilma Kimbrough, a new resident of Iowa City who plays the grandmother, says that the play has "a whole lot in it" that is relevant today.

"It's the story of a black family trying to keep their pride," she said. "They are under no pressure by anyone but themselves."

Mrs. Kimbrough doesn't think ICCT should try to produce another play with black actors, however, since this one was so hard to cast and most of the actors in it have never acted before.

James Spalding, professor of religion, plays the role of an unsympathetic Northern white bigot. He expected casting to be difficult, he says, because many local black people are moonlighters and haven't time for rehearsals.

Garedean Short, a student at Area X Community College, and a militant herself, plays the militant, well-educated girl. She says that the play shows just one kind of prejudice existing today in America.

"It's not the kind of prejudice that I grew up with," she said, adding that she is originally from Tuscaloosa, Ala.

"Prejudice differs from place to place, but it's always there," she stated. "This country is racist."

Craig Hargrave, a fifth-grader at Longfellow School, doesn't know much about casting or militancy. He likes the rehearsals and the people he's met while learning the role of the little boy.

Craig, who's never acted before, said it's easy for him to play the role. He can just play himself.

"After all," he said, "little boys are all alike, aren't they?"

Iraq Warns That More Spies May Be Hanged If Necessary

BEIRUT (AP) — Defying the general outcry over the hanging of nine Jews, Baghdad radio warned Friday that Iraqi authorities will execute others convicted of spying if they deem it necessary.

The broadcast quoted Iraq Information Minister Abdullah Samarra'i as saying his government was capable of ordering more executions, regardless of the protests it might provoke abroad.

Samarra'i confirmed that the Revolutionary Court, which condemned the nine Jews and five other Iraqis hanged Monday, was preparing to try others accused of espionage.

"The trials will be held after other legal measures have been completed," Samarra'i declared. He refused to give any more details on security grounds.

Reports have been circulating that another 35 persons, including 13 Jews, would be tried as spies in Baghdad and may have already gone before the court.

Fearing that a new trial might touch off Israeli reprisals that could ignite another Middle East war, the United States has appealed to Tel Aviv to use restraint in the situation.

Samarra'i added that the Baghdad government "will show leniency and will pardon" an American petroleum engineer kept in jail in the Iraqi capital since early December. He may be released in a few days, the minister said.

Paul Bail, an employe of Humble Oil Co. in Houston, Tex., was working for the Iraq Petroleum Co., a Western consortium. His wife, Betty, is held in what amounts to house arrest.

State, Student Senators Differ on Western University

By DAN CAMBRIDGE

Opposition to the establishment of a western Iowa university expressed by a Student Senate lobbyist at the state legislature drew some peppery comments from a state senator last week.

Wildlife in Danger From Oil Spill

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A huge oil slick — now taking a toll of wildlife — spread wider over the ocean Friday but the Coast Guard said the flow from a leaky undersea well seemed to be slowing.

There was no indication, however, when experts might halt it.

The thin film washed ashore along a 14-mile stretch of scenic shoreline south of here but caused no great mess on the sand. It was visible as scum or small droplets.

Residents reported seeing birds — gulls and grebes, mostly — covered with oil. Some were dead. Fish and game experts said the birds might have consumed oil while trying to clean their feathers.

Heaviest concentrations of the floating ooze remained at sea.

Remarks made by Dean Stolene, A2, Norwalk, in Des Moines on Jan. 21, drew fire from Sen. Joseph Flatt (R-Winterset). Stolene is a student senator who heads the Senate Legislative Action Committee, a group whose goal is to represent senate views at the legislature. Flatt is head of the Senate Higher Education Committee and a leading proponent of a western Iowa university.

Stolene, in Des Moines to register as an official lobbyist, commented to a newsman that he would be lobbying against the western Iowa university proposal in accordance with a resolution opposing the plan passed by the Student Senate in November. Stolene said that some students thought that the establishment of a new university would cause tuition to rise at the other universities.

Flatt called the tuition raise idea, "the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of." He said that any money spent on a new university would be in the form of capital appropriations or building funds and would have no bearing on tuition rates. He said that some parents were trying to "put a scare into everyone" by talking about raising tuition costs.

Stolene said that, although he favored a new university, he was as "concerned about the present three as much as anyone." "It's not a matter of choosing up sides. . . we're all after the same objectives."

Stolene said that he did not think that there was anything personal in Flatt's comments. He said that he did not see Flatt when he was in Des Moines although he does know the senator. Stolene served as a page in the Iowa senate during the last session of the legislature.

Stolene said that he still thinks that the establishment of a new university could have an effect on tuition costs at the three existing universities, since the money would "have to come from somewhere."

The Legislative Action Committee has so far been relatively inactive, Stolene said, because the Student Senate has not appropriated any money for its activities. The committee was officially created by the senate in November. He said that the group hopes to keep state legislators aware of student senate positions on important matters through letters and personal contacts.
