Guardsmen On Alert In Berkeley

Other Campuses Hit By Racial Disorders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National Guard troops were on alert Friday for any new disorders at the University of California, as the school's regents met near the Berkeley campus where police and demonstrators had clashed a day earlier.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, risking a confrontation with student militants by attending the meeting, encountered no trouble when he arrived. Asked earlier if he would take the risk, Reagan answered: "You bet your sweet life."

Elsewhere on the country's campuses, there were scattered incidents, some related to the fourth anniversary of the assassination of Malcolm X, black nationalist leader.

A group of black students, numbering anywhere from 30 to 100, invaded the main classroom building at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., Friday and refused to admit anyone except other black students.

The demonstration followed a vote by faculty members Thursday, refusing a demand that the university honor the slaying of the black leader on Feb. 21, 1968. Individual faculty members had the right to suspend classes.

At the University of Pennsylvania, however, the dates of the assassination of Malcolm X and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., last April 4, were declared religious holidays.

University Provost David R. Goddard said classes won't be cancelled on the dates, but students need not attend. Students would be responsible for work assigned those days, but teachers were urged not to schedule exams then.

Scores of blacks, many of them high school and college students, attended a "black awareness" memorial service for Malcolm X at Long Island University's Brooklyn campus.

The Berkeley campus was quiet early in the day, with only a few scattered pickets at campus entrances. Workmen swept up the debris from the Thursday disorder.

A march of 2,000 demonstrators had followed a rally, to harass a meeting of the university regents. Police tried to break up the demonstration and tear gas was thrown, touching off a battle.

After the clash, 26 students and 13 police officers were injured and 14 youths and a girl arrested.

Reagan called the guard to stand by after Thursday's rioting, in which 36 persons were injured and 15 arrested.

While urging nonviolence, one black leader of the striking Third World Liberation Front declared the strikers were prepared to destroy the entire university and the state government to enforce their demands.

The governor told newsmen he would insist on firing or expelling troublemaking instructors and students but that any question of firing Roger W. Heyns, chancellor of the Berkeley campus, "isn't going to come up."

Charles J. Hitch, president of the statewide university system, was reported making proposals to the regents for solving Berkeley troubles and retaining Herbert Marcuse, a controversial professor on the San Diego campus.

While the regents met inside and the strikers rallied outside, about 150 highway patrolmen, 250 police from nearby cities, some National Guard military police and an Army helicopter were grouped at a garage opposite the hall.

About 200 other officers were stationed at Sprout Hall and other campus centers, scenes of previous disturbances.

Some five miles away, an estimated 1,000 National Guardsmen bivouacked at the Alameda Naval Supply Depot, ready to move in jeeps if called.

Police blocked a side street next to the regents' meeting room. On campus disorder, Reagan said, "Whatever it takes, I am going to insist that those who are causing it be separated from the university, whether they be faculty or students."

Elsewhere:
EAST LANSING, Mich. — About 40 students briefly interrupted a meeting of Michigan State University trustees, arriving ahead of the schedule. The trustees refused to hear the group and the students left.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — About 20 black students broke open the locks on a flag pole on the Pennsylvania State University campus and lowered the American flag to half staff in honor of Malcolm X. About 100 whites joined the group.

NORTH CAROLINA — Gov. Robert W. Scott told the heads of state supported colleges and universities they must call police officers to the campus if students seize a building or interfere with normal use of buildings and grounds.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — About 100 black students boycotted classes at Rutgers University to protest rejection of 4 of 12 demands made by the Black Organization of Students and in memory of Malcolm X.

Bowen Explains Use of Student Fees And Evashevski's New Appointment

By KAREN GOOD

There has been a great deal of misunderstanding concerning the use of student fees. University Pres. Howard R. Bowen told the University's Recreation Advisory Committee Friday afternoon.

Bowen explained that 25 per cent of the University's operational funds come from student fees and are used in all kinds of University operations. He gave as an example the use of fees to finance University hospital facilities.

Only a portion of the fees are used to finance construction of University buildings, he said, and this use is primarily to provide the University with borrowing power.

Bowen said that too many times when student fees were used to finance a building, people got "fixed ideas about the use of the building."

His comments came during a question and answer session concerning the University's postponement of plans for the controversial swimming pool proposed last fall.

The pool was to have been built either north of the Union or on the site where the University's Honors House is presently located on North Capitol Street, behind Burge Hall.

The pool's construction has been a controversial topic since early December when the Campus Planning Committee began questioning who would be using the pool.

Critics questioned whether the building would be used for recreation or as an extension of the physical education departments.

Ambulance Driver And Crash Victim Land in Hospital

A three-vehicle accident Friday afternoon, involving an ambulance en route to University Hospitals carrying the victim of a previous accident, resulted in hospitalization of the ambulance driver.

Police reported that a car driven by Kenneth Lee Dvorsky, 22, of 1802 Morning-side Dr., went out of control as it was turning a curve near 119 Myrtle St., then broke off two telephone poles and tipped over a power pole.

A Johnson County ambulance, driven by Deputy Sheriff Edwin Siders, was taking Dvorsky to University Hospitals when it was hit from behind by a city pickup truck driven by George L. Koepf, 50, of Oxford.

The impact pushed the ambulance into a car driven by Mary J. Donnelly, 44, West Des Moines, who had stopped at a stop light.

Another county ambulance was summoned to take Dvorsky and Siders to the hospital. Dvorsky, who received head and face cuts and broken teeth, was treated and released.

Siders is in General Hospital, where he is being examined for possible neck injuries.

Dvorsky has been charged with failure to have his vehicle under control.

The committee contested the use of student fees to pay for a building if it was to be used only by the University's physical education departments.

Bowen, however, did not acknowledge that the student fee controversy had anything to do with postponement of plans for the pool.

His comments followed a request by Charles Read, professor of pediatrics and a committee member, to clarify the University's use of student fees. Read said that the committee meeting with Bowen would be a "good time to avoid future misunderstandings in that area."

Postponement of the pool plans stemmed from Gov. Robert Ray's current proposed budget allocations to the State Board of Regents, Bowen said.

Ray's allocations have given the regents $182 million to distribute among the six state institutions. Although it is $18 million more than the regents received the last biennium, it is at least $52 million less than was requested.

Bowen said that, with the "current fluid situation" in the state legislature concerning the budget allocations, University officials felt that buildings for which plans had already been completed should have priorities.

These include a basic science building, a new dental building and an addition to the Main Library.

However, Bowen did say it was possible that if these buildings could not be built because of lack of funds, some of the funds already allocated for them might be used to build the swimming pool.

Israeli Blast Blamed On Arab Governments

JERUSALEM — Angry Israeli officials blamed Arab governments for a powerful explosion which shattered Jerusalem's biggest supermarket Friday, killing two university students and wounding nine other holiday shoppers.

Police Minister Eilahu Sasson said the "vile attack" was obviously linked to the Arab terrorist attack Tuesday on an Israeli airliner in Zurich Switzerland.

Police quickly rounded up 150 Arabs throughout the Holy City for questioning. In Amman, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which earlier had claimed responsibility for the Zurich attack, issued a communique saying it was also the author of the supermarket blast.

Gideon Rafael, director general of Israel's Foreign Ministry, said, "The terror organizations are nothing but irregular forces of Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Iraq and all the countries which allow them to operate from their territory."

"They are acting on a wide front from Zurich to Jerusalem, from Athens to Gaza," said Rafael, who escaped injury himself in the Zurich attack. "This front is a long one, but our arm is longer still."

"These organizations would have no chance to exist, or to act, or even to

Campus Police at UI Won't Carry Guns

University police will not normally carry arms during their work, even though the Iowa House approved a bill authorizing them to do so Friday.

Phil Connell, assistant to University Pres. Howard R. Bowen, said Friday afternoon that the position of the University regarding arming police has not changed since last year. Connell said arms would not be worn during normal police duty nor at rallies and demonstrations.

"It is recognized, however," he said, "that there may be isolated but potentially hazardous and dangerous conditions and situations where prudent security measures might dictate that sidearms be carried — for example, in the Oakdale area and in the remote corners of the campus during the hours of darkness."

Connell told The Daily Iowan that no recent decisions had been made on local policy.

The measure to authorize state university security guards to be deputized and to carry guns and make arrests passed the Senate by a vote of 94 to 16.

It had already been approved by the Senate and now goes to Gov. Robert D. Ray for his signature. The bill was proposed by the State Board of Regents, which governs the University of Iowa, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa.

Criminologist Robert G. Caldwell, professor of sociology and anthropology and chairman of the graduate program in law enforcement said Friday he sees no objection to having competent campus police armed.

"If they are asked to assume the responsibility of being a guard, they should be responsible enough to be armed," he said.

Likewise, Richard L. Holcomb, director of the Bureau of Police Science, thinks the arming of campus police is "a good policy." Qualified police, he said, should be armed at all times. Some of them, however, do not need weapons because of the nature of their duty, he added.

Holcomb also said that armed police receive the same training as any other police recruit.

Holcomb said that up until five years ago, University police carried guns and no one objected. There were no regulations; some carried guns and others did not. The decision was left to the individual policeman.

Some of those who were previously armed are still on the force. According to William Binney, director of campus police, 11 of the 22 police who are being considered for arms have had regular training of city police, which includes instruction in firearms. He doubts, however, that all of the members of the campus force will be authorized for arms.

Like Connell, Binney emphasized that no decisions have been made on local policy. He does not see the arming of campus police as an immediate event.

The bill authorizes specially designated security officers to exercise all the "powers, privileges and immunities of regular peace officers," including carrying guns and making arrests.

The Board of Regents is required to provide as soon as possible for training of the security officers at the Iowa Police Academy or in an equivalent training program.

Rep. Joan Lipsky (R-Cedar Rapids), one of the bill's critics, said she feared the prospect of arming campus officers who have little or no formal police training. Her amendment to require that only the university president could issue the order to arm security guards and that such an order be in writing was turned down on a 78 to 28 vote.

Rep. James Klein (R-Lake Mills) said that the intent of the Board of Regents was to permit university officials to arm campus police only in times of emergency, such as disturbance on campus.

Liberalized Abortion Bill Turned Down by Senate

DES MOINES — The Iowa Senate Friday defeated 36 to 24 a bill to liberalize Iowa's abortion laws after spending all day debating the bill's moral, medical and legal implications.

Proponents of the measure contended that a woman should have the choice of whether to terminate a pregnancy but opponents argued that the state should protect the life of the unborn child.

The measure would have allowed abortions to protect the mental and physical health of a mother, to terminate a pregnancy caused by rape or incest or when "documented medical evidence" indicated the child would be born with incapacitating mental or physical deformities.

A similar measure passed the Senate in 1967 but was defeated in the House. Proponents pledged the issue would come up again in the future.

A maneuver by Sen. Arthur Neu (R-Carroll) to prohibit any further consideration of the bill during this session backfired and the measure may be brought up again for reconsideration in the Senate.

Neu moved to reconsider the bill and place it on the table. Had his motion passed, a two-thirds vote would have been required to debate the issue again.

But the senators voted 31-29 to defeat Neu's motion, which leaves the bill up for consideration.

"All we need to do is switch four votes," said Sen. Minnette Doderer (D-Iowa City) one of the strong supporters of the bill.

Debate sparked by opposing views of clergymen preceded the vote on the bill, which would have liberalized present law under which abortions are permitted only when continued pregnancy threatens the mother's life.

sent law as "archaic, barbaric, tyrannical, ecclesiastical," while a Catholic priest said the bill would violate "the inalienable right of life" of an unborn child.

Neu contended abortion is immoral and that the bill was so loosely drawn as to allow women to make use of it indiscriminately.

"We do women today an injustice if we think they will all run to have their babies aborted," said Mrs. Doderer, who asked the 58 men senators to "try to imagine yourself in their place."

She stressed that the bill would allow women to voluntarily have an abortion in "mighty limited" circumstances.

"This bill does not force anyone to have an abortion," she said.

Her only woman counterpart, Sen. Charlene Conklin (R-Waterloo) opposed the measure.

Noting that one argument advanced by proponents was that liberalizing the law might make women seeking abortions less dependent on the criminal abortionist, Mrs. Conklin contended "we're not even coming close to touching him..."

DI Presses Grind To a Halt—for Real

The Daily Iowan presses ground to a halt early Thursday morning when an overheated plate broke, stripping gears in three of the five units.

According to Arthur Schmeichel, superintendent of the DI press room, about 850 copies of Thursday's paper were not printed Thursday, but they were delivered with Friday's edition.

The problem was compounded when the Kansas City firm that supplies the parts for the DI press told Schmeichel that three presses in Illinois had also broken down, so the stock of spare gears had run low.

Although it may be some time before the press is completely repaired, the presses were running within 20 hours of the breakdown, and the DI can print up to a 12-page paper on the two units still functioning.

Schmeichel said that steel drive gears will be replaced by fiber gears to prevent another breakdown of this type. The total cost of repairs may run to $3,000.

3 Die, 6 Wounded In D.C. Shooting

WASHINGTON — Violence erupted in a quiet, middle-class Washington neighborhood Friday when a gunman barricaded himself in a house and killed two women before turning a shotgun on himself.

The gunman, tentatively identified by police as Thomas Walton, a roomer in the three-story, detached dwelling, also hit three police officers with shotgun blasts. Three other policemen were injured in the morning shoot-out.

One of the two women staggered out to the sidewalk during the shoot-out between Walton and scores of police officers and died. The other was shot and killed inside, police said.

Police identified the women as Lela Bannister, owner of the house, and Ethyl White, who neighbors said was a maid.

Police were called to the scene by nearby residents at 8:30 a.m. after shots were heard. Sgt. Robert Householder, 32, and Pvt. Roland Bennett, 28, both of College Park, Md., were met by a shotgun blast as they emerged from their patrol cars.

Scores of police responded to their emergency call, and Capt. John Reynolds, 48, of Greenbelt, Md., also was struck by a shotgun blast as he attempted to get close to the house.

Is education worth it?

Next semester, where will you find an extra $300 — or more — to pay in tuition? If you can find the money, you'd better save it, because that threatened big jump in tuition seems to be almost a certainty. Some of us — many of us — will be in a serious financial bind. Some of us — more than just a small percentage — will probably think about transferring.

It would be easy, and not unexpected, for The Daily Iowan to enter into a vigorous editorial campaign against the proposed jump in tuition. It would be easy, and a little simple-minded, to lambast University Pres. Howard R. Bowen and his administration for bleeding the students to death.

But we students are not the only ones facing serious financial problems. Everybody in higher education in this state, from the State Board of Regents right down to the director of the Iowa Braille and Sight-Saving School, has complained that Gov. Robert Ray's budget recommendations for the regents' institutions won't begin to cover even adequate operating expenses in the next two years.

More important than the impending tuition rise, when it comes to the welfare of this state and its people, is the situation that has brought about that possibility.

Neither Pres. Bowen nor the regents want to raise tuition. They're a little concerned that it is as high as it is now. The regents are well aware that public universities, in theory, should offer quality higher education at a relatively low cost.

Also part of the theory is the supposition that the money a state's government puts into its public universities isn't being thrown away; the state and its citizens reap benefits many times the size of their investments, and some of the benefits are invaluable.

Case in point: Iowa soon will no longer have any kind of training program in occupational therapy (O.T.). The University program has been dropped. There were lots of complex reasons for the discontinuance, but the whole matter boiled down to not having enough money to keep both a clinic and a classroom program going. Nobody wanted to eliminate O.T., but it had to go. It was a matter of priorities measured on the yardstick of money. Pres. Bowen warned that the University's O.T. program wasn't going to be the last area to be cut back severely or done away with altogether.

If the Governor's budget recommendations are approved, as is, building and expansion programs will be the first to go. Where the University is concerned, that's a serious matter. Of course, you can't measure the quality of a university by the number and size of its buildings, but when it comes to educating nearly 20,000 students in a myriad number of courses, you have to put them all some place. We face a serious overcrowding problem in the next few years as it is, without further cutbacks.

R. Wayne Richey, Executive Secretary to the regents, said last week that the regents needed $15 million "right now" to keep necessary building programs alive and to keep from losing many millions more in federal "matching grants" that will be lost if the state won't put up some money. At the same time, Pres. Bowen cited the wasteful possibility of new buildings standing empty — because of lack of funds to equip the building and keep them maintained and operated.

The Governor, by the way, has recommended only $2 million be allocated to all the regents institutions' building projects for the next year.

Add to that the fact that the Governor's recommendations allow nothing, essentially, for increases in faculty salaries. It would be nice if the University's faculty members would stick around just because Iowa needs them and because this is such a nice, quiet place; but bright, young faculty members will leave in droves if they can get higher salaries elsewhere. I am told that Eastern and Western colleges already offer higher salaries than most in the Midwest.

So while you're worrying about how you're going to pay for your education next year, don't forget that there are plenty of people in the administration and the board of regents who are worrying about how they are going to pay for your education, too. It's a bigger and more complex problem than just a threatened increase in tuition.

The real threat is not to our pocket books but to the quality of our education. And the threat is not just to students, but to every last citizen of Iowa, and even to the nation, if this is a trend.

Education, I think, is the highest priority of a society. Therefore it deserves the highest consideration by Iowans — and when you get down to the nuts and bolts, it deserves and requires a much larger appropriation than Governor Ray has recommended.

Is this just selfish interest? Is this a "me-first" outlook? I don't think so. After all, many of us will be gone by June. Why should we care? Pres. Bowen will be gone in September. Why should he care? Is the quality of Iowa's higher education worth caring about?

If you agree, and would like your voice to be heard, please write a letter to your representative in the Iowa House or Senate.

Hippies leaving, some charm gone

Demo convention hurt Old Town

By DAVE DIERKS and CAROLYN ZOLLAR

It's been called the showplace of Chicago. A part of that vast city where merchants have found that looking to the past instead of the future pays off. A virtual "gold mine," some say, only a mile and a half from the "Loop." Yet, recently the gold in Chicago's Old Town has begun to tarnish.

Two years ago the six blocks of Wells Street, referred to as Old Town, was a kaleidoscope of suburban matrons, city dwellers, tourists, shoppers, spectators, teen-agers and of course, the hippies. Today, an uneasy and ominous quiet hangs over the streets of Old Town.

Old Town has been likened to New York's Greenwich Village, New Orleans' French Quarter and San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district. But to anyone who has seen the others, Old Town is Old Town — strictly Chicago.

Before the great Chicago fire of 1871, Old Town was predominantly a residential area. By the turn of the century it became the home of many prominent Chicago families. But the ensuing years brought decay, and, by the end of World War II, the area had deteriorated badly.

Then in the early 1950's a group of businessmen met and discussed the idea of carving a "playground" from the run down neighborhood — a "place," where people could catch a glimpse of 1890 Chicago. The idea took form, and in the spring of 1961, the first of Old Town's famous restaurants, Chances R, opened its door, offering customers charcoal broiled hamburgers, french fries, draught beer, mixed drinks and free shelled peanuts. Chances R, with its flickering lights and decorated brick walls, is still offering the same fare today. And millions of peanuts later, it is still thriving.

From 1961 until 1967, Old Town expanded in all directions. It offered a little something for everyone. The over-26 crowd usually frequented many of the local pubs and saloons, while the younger jet-set chose to make it at the more contemporary night clubs and topless go-go spots.

For a teen-ager without a good set of I.D.'s, Old Town did not have much night life to offer. Of course, teenagers could pay a $3 cover charge at one of several "kiddie nightclubs," such as Like Young, sit in a booth, drink near-beer and listen to some band no one had ever heard of.

Today, however, the "fun-city" atmosphere of Old Town has vanished and been replaced with an air of anxiety, and the question: what is happening in Old Town? Those most critical of Old Town are usually the people who have never been there but think that they know what's happening simply from newspapers or magazine articles.

A suburban resident, when asked about Old Town recently, replied somewhat annoyed. "The whole place is going to the dogs, and it's all because of those filthy longhairs and queers that hang around there."

He added that he wouldn't let his kid go down there even if his life depended on it.

Strangely enough, according to many of Old Town's store owners, the suburban "brats" are the real trouble makers on Wells Street.

Dennis Gray, an employee at the House of Lewis, a men's clothing store, said that the real trouble in Old Town starts when the "plastic" or "weekend" hippies move into Old Town, don their pseudo hippie garb, artificial sideburns and mustaches, do their thing and then hurry back to the comfort and safety of their suburban homes.

"It's these suburban brats that come down here on the weekends just looking for trouble, that give Old Town the bad name," said Gray.

"Since fall," Gray continued, "we've had several incidents involving these kids. Then the newspapers got these garbage stories and, before anyone knows it, Old Town is in the midst of a crime wave."

The main crime problem, Gray said, stems from the black influence in Old Town. There is a Puerto Rican district only three blocks west of Wells St. Gray said, and if a visitor to Old Town gets off onto a side street, "he's just inviting a mugging."

Mary Ann Acetura, an employee of the Wishing Well Boutique, agreed with Gray and added, "Old Town's a groove, if you stay on the main strip. Stay where there's people," she continued, "and you'll have no problems."

Owner of the Wishing Well Boutique, Mrs. Dwayne Ellis, said that people are under the impression that Old Town has suddenly become "crime-ridden."

Mrs. Ellis said that in the year her store had been open, the only "crime" she saw was shoplifting. "But you get that in any store, anywhere," she added.

Mrs. Ellis said the new "feeling" about Old Town may have started with the bad publicity following disturbances in the area during the Democratic Convention in August.

Donald Mac Dougle, a Kane Security Guard, said vandalism reached its peak during the convention.

Mac Dougle said during that time about 200 to 300 youths roamed through Old Town, breaking windows and slashing car tires.

He added that since the convention

there has been very little crime or vandalism of any sort.

Ed Henikoff, one of the original investors in the Old Town development, supported the theory that convention disturbances gave Old Town a bad name.

Henikoff, owner of the Town Shop Apartment Store, said immediately after the convention, sales were down substantially.

"I feel the convention riots did hurt the image of Old Town, yet if anyone is to blame for the new image of Old Town, it's the Chicago papers," he said. In addition to Old Town's alleged "crime problem," there is another question that has arisen; where are the hippies?

The hippies, once described by many shopowners as "the oddity that gives Old Town its charm," have left, but to where, and why?

The most common reason appears to be the tight security surrounding drugs in the area.

A private security guard, Elijah Harris, said that Old Town has always been an area heavy in narcotics traffic. Harris said that since 1967 there had been increasing numbers of federal narcotics agents around here, and the feeling with the hippies was why wait to get busted, when they could move on to a "cooler" area.

So today the hippies are moving to other locations such as Halsted Street, Hyde Park, and further north into the residential or true Old Town area.

Another common theory is that the hippies simply got tired of being "used" as a tourist attraction for the benefit of store owners.

But the main reason many hippies are leaving is a simple one — one not just isolated in Old Town.

"We're leaving because the movement is moving," said one, "and where it's moving to, no one knows." "The hippies were just another fad produced from another generation; they're all going home or leaving the country," he said.

Yet, many of Old Town's residents and store owners are optimistic for the future.

"This image controversy will blow itself out," said Henikoff.

It might already be blowing itself out, as Henikoff noted that already his December sales were up 40 per cent over 1967.

December has shown the first substantial rise in sales since August, Henikoff continued. He also pointed out that almost 50 per cent of his business is from repeat customers.

Other store owners agreed with Henikoff, remarking that in the last few weeks the "straight" people were slowly coming back to Old Town.

So perhaps it is, as many say, just winter that has cast its gloom over Old Town. But as spring approaches, many merchants are hoping that the warm rains will wash away the tarnish and once again let the "gold" shine in Chicago's Old Town.

Reader takes different view of UI 'Merchant' production

To the editor:

Mr. Axelrod's review (Feb. 18) of "The Merchant of Venice" is accurate in many respects. He points to the major flaws in the production, those of unexplained motivations behind various actions between the inmates.

There is more to be said, however, in praise of the performance than Mr. Axelrod presents. He fails to mention the very impressive set, the effective lighting — especially the shadow effect of the prisoners leaving and entering the stage, the fine blocking, and the ingenious costumes — especially those of Shylock, Launcelot and Portia. These factors contributed significantly to the powerful workings of the performance.

Among actors to be praised, as well as Nancy Duncan, Rick Fazel and Henry Strozier (who are indeed worthy of praise), Mr. Axelrod should have mentioned Bob Bogdanoff, who portrayed both of his roles (Tybalt and the Duke of Morocco) in fine fashion.

The most important criticism of Mr. Axelrod's criticism is that he failed to accurately assess audience reaction. That there were flaws and unclear moments is true. But that the opening night performance "failed to engage, hold or stimulate the audience" is definitely not true. The presentation, in its entirety, was both engaging and stimulating. Surely the profound silence before the exuberant burst of applause at the close of the performance gave testimony to the fact that we, the audience, were very strongly moved and impressed.

UI YD's sponsor petition against legislature bills

To the editor:

There is presently a bill in an Iowa Senate subcommittee sponsored by 32 senators which will infringe upon the constitutional rights of students, teachers and staff of any educational system. Section I of Senate File 123 is aimed at the "student activist" who attempts the seizure of public facilities, participates in undefined riot activity or engages in a strike against the "authority" of the institution. Upon arrest or participation, the participant shall be "summarily dismissed." The University Young Democrats take issue with Section I of S.F. 123 on the following points:

(1) The distinction between the application of sanctions by civil authorities to student and faculty violators and the application of sanctions by the University to student and faculty violators should be maintained. Decision on dismissal from the University should be made by decision makers within the University; to do otherwise would usurp the authority appropriately delegated to the University administration.

(2) The University has its own judicial process to discipline students as found in Dormitory Judicial Boards and the Committee on Student Conduct.

(3) Included within the jurisdiction of the bill is any protest/demonstration against any public institution, i.e. dismissal could result from participation in civil rights marches.

(4) The provision for the summary dismissal denies a substantial constitutional guarantee of due process (14th amendment, State Constitution of Iowa). Thus a student activist would be denied the procedural safe guards which a criminal could claim.

Section II of S.F. 123 states that any employment contract with a publicly supported institution shall make dismissal mandatory for any employee who engages in activities equivalent to those mentioned in Section I. This includes any staff member who participates in any degree in a "disruptive activity." This section of S.F. 123 coupled with H.F. (house file) 37, sponsored by Chester O. Hougen (R-Black Hawk County) denies the right of any employee to strike or picket any publicly supported institution, and the right to seek fair union representation.

The University Young Democrats urge all students, faculty members and University employees to express their disapproval of S.F. 123 and H.F. 37 by signing petitions which will be available in the dormitories, the Union and on the Pentacrest on Monday, February 24.

City Radar Working Again After 2 Months on the Blink

If your foot has been a little heavy on your car's accelerator lately and you attribute not getting a speeding violation to pure luck, it may not be luck at all. The two radar units used by the Iowa City Police Department have not been working correctly for the past two months, but worked sufficiently well during the past five days to nab 60 speeders.

Iowa City police officer Ron R. Fort said the crystal rating, which determines at what distance the radar device can pick up the speed of a moving automobile, was not working. The police department sent the radar equipment to an electronics firm in Iowa City. No spare parts were available here. It was then sent to the original manufacturer in Chicago where it was finally repaired.

The radar equipment sits in a black suitcase on the dash of a squad car and a monitoring device is attached outside the window.

Drake President Mentioned for UI

DES MOINES — In a copy-righted story Friday, the Drake University Times Delphic reported that Drake Pres. Paul Sharp was being considered for the position of president at the University of Iowa.

Sharp said the report was "one of those funny rumors that you don't know where it starts."

In a telephone interview with the Times-Delphic Wednesday night, Sharp said, "It would be embarrassing for Drake and Iowa if any mention of this rumor appeared in the Times-Delphic."

The Times-Delphic reported the story had come from "a reliable and highly-placed source."

Gerald A. Jewett, treasurer and assistant secretary of the Drake Board of Trustees, told the student weekly that the executive committee of the board met last Friday, but no mention was made about Sharp resigning.

3 at Grinnell Won't Testify

GRINNELL — Poweshiek County Atty. Michael Enich said Friday he did not plan disciplinary action against three persons who refused to testify at a preliminary hearing on the campus "nude-in" at Grinnell College.

Susan Kaeser, 21, of Madison, Wis., editor of the student newspaper, and Grinnell photographers Henry Wilhelm and Krystyna Neuman refused to testify at the hearing Thursday before Justice of the Peace Edwin Lincoln.

Lincoln remanded five students charged with indecent exposure over to District Court after they entered innocent pleas.

The Associated Press had reported that Lincoln denied a motion to dismiss the charges. No such motion had been made.

Student, Girl Face Narcotics Charges

A raid on an apartment at 109 E. Prentiss St. early Friday morning resulted in two arrests involving illegal use of narcotics.

Arrested were William Smith Heald, A3, Delaware, Ohio, and Constance Anclaux, 20, who both listed the Prentiss Street apartment as their address.

Heald was in the Johnson County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond Friday night. Miss Anclaux was freed on a $1,000 bond.

Detective Sgt. Donald Strand said that the drug found was thought to be LSD but further tests would be run on the substance to confirm the finding.

Police officers said that the two had been under surveillance for some time.

According to Strand, a charge of illegal possession of a stimulant or depressant drug could bring a maximum penalty of not more than $1,000 or not more than a year imprisonment or both.

New Faces, New Positions On Daily Iowan Approved

Several changes in the staff of The Daily Iowan were approved by the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc. (SPI) Friday afternoon.

Dennis Bates, A4, Davenport, formerly DI news editor, moved to the job of editorial page editor. Debby Donovan, A4, New Hampton, former assistant news editor, and Roy Petty, A4, Iowa City, former editorial page editor, were appointed co-news editors.

Mark Rohner, A2, Dubuque, and Joanne Walton, A3, Lone Tree, were appointed assistant city editors. Both were DI reporters last semester. They replaced Susan Sanders, A3, Sioux City, and Linda Artlip, A4, Vilissa, who resigned from the staff.

In a related development, university and city desks have been combined under one city editor, Charla Cole, A4, Cedar Rapids.

According to DI Editor Cheryl Arridson, this combination will improve coordination of all news coverage, but will not mean that University news will be slighted.

New School Bond Falls a Bit Short

The recently acquired 4.4 million dollar bond for school construction and renovation was found to be $200,000 short of the total amount asked by architects at a special meeting of the Iowa City school board Monday night.

Board members showed concern with how the money could be spent to benefit the student most.

Cost estimates presented at the meeting by architects Harvey Henry-Pierce King, Associates, William Nowysz, and Werner & Associates were: Oakwood Elementary School (new), $450,000; Grissell Elementary School (new), $450,000; Coralville Kirkwood addition, $231,000; Penn School addition, $140,000; Hills School addition, $260,000; renovation of Longfellow, Mann and Sabin grade schools, $550,000. Tentative allocation of funds for the new junior high and renovation of Iowa City High School is set at $1,800,000 and $510,000, respectively.

Following a lengthy presentation by the architects and discussion among the board members, board president Henry W. Piro told the architects to present their impressions, in figures, of how they interpreted what was discussed, including deletions (unnecessary for the mechanics of education, such as carpeting and air conditioning), and alternatives in cost and construction of the buildings, as soon as possible. No further action can be taken on the school issue until these reports have been filed with the board.

Coal Strike Flares

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Twelve thousand miners fed up with the legislature's handling of "black lung" laws refused to work West Virginia's southern coal fields in a spreading strike Friday, while lawmakers put off action on the compensation bills until next week.

Leaders of the Democrat-controlled legislature urged the men to go back to the mines and explained the complexities of legislative procedure. One said he believed Vista volunteers were stirring up the miners.

The wildcat strikers threatened to march on the state Capitol Monday unless the lawmakers approved a bill that would provide compensation for men suffering from "black lung," coal miners' pneumoconiosis.

SDSDS - Unseen but Still Around

Although it has been two weeks since a Symposium on Student Power was leagassed at the Union, possibly by an organization calling itself Students for the Destruction of SDS, traces of the mysterious group keep appearing on campus.

Posters appeared in the English-Philosophy Building and elsewhere Friday, which bear the signature of SDSDS and the address 3101 Engineering Building — a conference room.

The posters appear to be a request for support for SDSDS from the "silent majority." They say that the "silent majority" is about to start being heard and urge, "Join us."

However, the poster continues, "If you intend to aid and abet these refugees from reality as they pursue their mental circle jerk, you had better be watching your back... we will be."

The poster says that the Students for a Democratic Society type is incapable of changing his own underwear, let alone the society.

The Daily Iowan also received another letter last week signed SDSDS. It suggests that intra-group squabbles may have already hit SDSDS. The letter said that Larry D. Mattear, the name used on a previous letter to the DI, misrepresented the group's position and its "struggle against the SDS."

It warns, "our tear gas bomb was the first (and not the last) warning for the supposedly 'participatory' democracy to become just that."

The letter accuses SDS of becoming "entrenched or, better yet, established" and says SDS is the most highly structured organization on the left, all the while pretending to be open-ended.

The letterwriters say they disagree with Mattear's opposition to LSD and marijuana. They say "We like blowing grass, some of us have dropped acid. Our eyes and our minds have been cleared, not fuzzed up as was written."

The letter concluded, "Our 'looks - like-it-might-rain-(tears)' demonstration last week was only the start. We are clear-headed and prepared. We know what we are about. And, indeed, 'we will all be watching...'"

Iowa City Detective Ronald Evans said Friday night that the investigation of the teargas bombing was continuing, but no further developments could be reported.

Detective Sgt. Donald Strand said that the drug found was thought to be LSD but further tests would be run on the substance to confirm the finding.

Police officers said that the two had been under surveillance for some time.

According to Strand, a charge of illegal possession of a stimulant or depressant drug could bring a maximum penalty of not more than $1,000 or not more than a year imprisonment or both.

New Faces, New Positions On Daily Iowan Approved

Several changes in the staff of The Daily Iowan were approved by the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc. (SPI) Friday afternoon.

Dennis Bates, A4, Davenport, formerly DI news editor, moved to the job of editorial page editor. Debby Donovan, A4, New Hampton, former assistant news editor, and Roy Petty, A4, Iowa City, former editorial page editor, were appointed co-news editors.

Mark Rohner, A2, Dubuque, and Joanne Walton, A3, Lone Tree, were appointed assistant city editors. Both were DI reporters last semester. They replaced Susan Sanders, A3, Sioux City, and Linda Artlip, A4, Vilissa, who resigned from the staff.

In a related development, university and city desks have been combined under one city editor, Charla Cole, A4, Cedar Rapids.

According to DI Editor Cheryl Arridson, this combination will improve coordination of all news coverage, but will not mean that University news will be slighted.

New School Bond Falls a Bit Short

The recently acquired 4.4 million dollar bond for school construction and renovation was found to be $200,000 short of the total amount asked by architects at a special meeting of the Iowa City school board Monday night.

Board members showed concern with how the money could be spent to benefit the student most.

Cost estimates presented at the meeting by architects Harvey Henry-Pierce King, Associates, William Nowysz, and Werner & Associates were: Oakwood Elementary School (new), $450,000; Grissell Elementary School (new), $450,000; Coralville Kirkwood addition, $231,000; Penn School addition, $140,000; Hills School addition, $260,000; renovation of Longfellow, Mann and Sabin grade schools, $550,000. Tentative allocation of funds for the new junior high and renovation of Iowa City High School is set at $1,800,000 and $510,000, respectively.

Following a lengthy presentation by the architects and discussion among the board members, board president Henry W. Piro told the architects to present their impressions, in figures, of how they interpreted what was discussed, including deletions (unnecessary for the mechanics of education, such as carpeting and air conditioning), and alternatives in cost and construction of the buildings, as soon as possible. No further action can be taken on the school issue until these reports have been filed with the board.

Tries for 1st Victory on Foreign Court Iowa Battles Ohio State Today

By MIKE EBBING
Shabbiness and tenseness are what the Iowa basketball team will be trying to shake off when it goes against Ohio State at 1:15 p.m. today in Columbus.

The Hawkeyes, after dropping four out of the last five Big 10 games, have plummeted from a league contender to a second-division team.

Following a 78-60 loss to Michigan State Tuesday night, the Hawks fell to sixth in the conference at 4-5 and 11-8 for the season.

Iowa's losing point total against the Spartans was the worst offensive performance the Hawks

Iowa's offense hit rock bottom against Michigan State as the Hawks found range on only 21 of 62 shots for 33.9 per cent. That figure was the worst percentage the Hawks have had all season.

"Despite our shooting," said Miller, "I still thought this was one of our better games. We took a game plan and stayed with it for 39 minutes. Our defense was probably the best it's been all year except for possibly against Davidson or Minnesota.

"Our only problem at Michigan State was that we were too tense on offense. We were trying too hard and, as a result we didn't hit well. We took the good wide-open shots but just didn't make them."

The Hawkeyes are still looking for their first road victory, discounting two triumphs on neutral courts.

"These youngsters that are playing for us have not done a good job and they know that," said Miller. "They're embarrassed about it and they're trying to fight their way out of a problem. As a result of this fighting, we have been too tense, which has resulted in our failure to shoot well."

The Buckeyes rank second in the conference in defense, yielding 74.4 points a game.

Offensively, Ohio State's scoring attack is built around Dave Sorenson. The 6-7 center ranks third in league scoring behind Michigan's Rudy Tomjanovich and leader Rick Mount of Purdue. Sorenson is averaging 22.7 points a game.

Sophomore Jim Clemons has been Coach Fred Taylor's biggest surprise this year. Clemons is tied for 11th in scoring with a 17.6 average. The 6-3 forward leads the league in field goal accuracy, connecting at a 60 per cent clip.

Jody Finney and Steve Howell are also averaging in double figures with Finney ranked as one of the nation's top free throw shooters. He's made 92 per cent (80 of 87) of his free throw attempts.

Iowa's Glenn Vidnovic, who had paced the Big 10 in free throw shooting all season, has fallen to third in the latest statistics. Vidnovic missed 4 of 11 tries Tuesday and now ranks behind leader Mount and teammate Ben McGilmer.

McGilmer ranks 10th in league scoring. Vidnovic is tied for 11th and John Johnson has climbed to 18th. Chad Calabria, who has been in a slump the past few games, dropped from the top 20 scorers.

Miller may juggle his lineup in an effort to get the Hawks back in the winning column.

"I intend to use both Tom Miller and Omar Hazley more during the remainder of the season. They've done a good job during the time I used them and also, you've got to look down the line to next year. Two boys that have worked this hard deserve the opportunity to show what they can do.

"At this moment, I really haven't a good idea of whom I would start Miller, but I might go with Hazley.

"This has been something that has been bouncing around in my mind for the last day or two. I think I'm going to take the boys that just look like they're the most relaxed and ready to go and see what takes place."

The Hawks wind up their home season next week with encounters against Illinois Tuesday and Purdue Saturday.

Pott Takes Lead In Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Johnny Pott fired seven birdies without a bogey Friday and overhauled his player partner Miller Barber for the early second round lead in the $100,000 Tucson Open golf tournament with a 65-135, nine-under-par at the midway point.

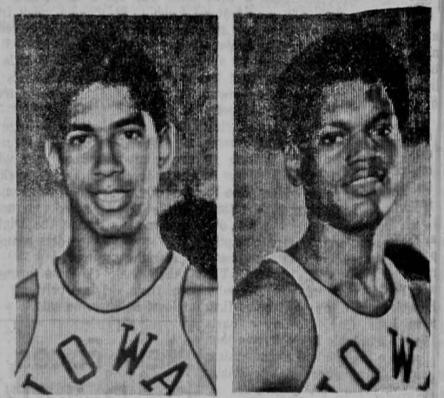

The 33-year-old from Broadwater Beach, Miss., declared, "I didn't come close to a bogey," as he toured the 7,305-yard par 36-36-72 Tucson National Golf Club course.

Fencers Meet 3 Foes

The fencing team is at Columbus today for dual meets with Ohio State and Chicago. The Hawkeyes are seeking to increase their season mark to 8-6. Iowa, 3-1 in Big 10 competition, is led by Nile Falk, who owns a 24-11 record in the sabre.

Iowa lost to Illinois last week end but has defeated Big 10 foes Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan State for a 3-1 conference mark.

The meet will be the last of the season before the Big 10 championships at East Lansing on March 1.

Gym Team Faces Minnesota Today

Iowa's gymnasts will probably get a respite from strong competition at 2 p.m. today when they face Minnesota in the Field House.

The Hawks, 7-0, are just coming off Wednesday night's impressive victory over a strong Southern Illinois team, and next week Iowa meets undefeated Michigan at Ann Arbor in a meet that could determine the Big 10 champion.

Dual meet victories count toward the conference team title in the Big 10, so today's meet has considerable importance to the Hawks.

Iowa gymnastics Coach Mike Jacobson said Friday that Minnesota, 1-4 in the Big 10, is not considered a strong team.

"They've been scoring in the 170's," said Jacobson, "and have no strong individuals. This meet should be a breather before our big meet with Michigan."

Roger Neist will compete as an all-around performer today in place of Rich Scorza. Jacobson said he wanted to give Neist, a junior, some experience in the all-around and also said that Scorza had sore wrists. Bob Dickson will join Neist in the all-around.

Mike Proctor will compete on the still rings in addition to his usual event — the parallel bars. Mark Lazer will be competing on the parallel bars.

Other Iowa gymnasts expected to compete will be Don Hatch in the still rings, Keith McCanness and Ken Liehr in the side horse, Barry Slotten and Dick Taffe in the floor exercise, Phil Farum in the horizontal bar and Jim Morlan in the trampoline.

'Crazy Legs' Gets Offer For Wisconsin Position

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Elroy "Crazy Legs" Hirsch, former University of Wisconsin football star, was offered the post of athletic director of the Big 10 school Friday.

Hirsch, an executive with the Los Angeles Rams, told a news conference he hoped to announce within a week whether he would accept the job to succeed the late Ivan E. "Ivy" Williamson, who died Wednesday night after a fall in his home.

Senators Give Approval On Williams' New Contract

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Washington Senators reached agreement Friday on an apparent million-dollar contract for Ted Williams as manager of baseball's biggest losers.

The Senators scheduled a news conference for Friday night to introduce Williams as manager and part-owner of the last-place American League team.

The club withheld any formal announcement of Williams' appointment, but inside sources reported the Hall of Fame hitter was preparing to fly north from Florida to attend the news conference.

The completion of the contract talks came after a week of intense negotiations that will make the rookie manager the richest paid pilot in baseball.

Williams, fabled for his feuds with writers and fans, is coming out of retirement eight years after winding up his long career with the Boston Red Sox with a lifetime average of .344, highest of any player alive today.

The Senators' coup brings to the nation's capital two of the most storied, stormy and successful men in sports—Williams and the volatile Vince Lombardi, who was hired away from Green Bay to become the Washington Redskins' football coach only two weeks ago.

Williams' acceptance came with barely enough time to take over the club before the start of spring training in Florida Monday.

Track Team Journeys To Michigan for Meet

Iowa's track team, fresh from its first victory of the season, travels to Michigan today for the last dual meet of the indoor season.

The Wolverines, along with Wisconsin and Minnesota, are considered favorites for the Big 10 indoor title. The Hawks have been defeated by Wisconsin and Minnesota and nipped Northwestern for a 1-2 conference record.

Coach Francis Cretzmeyer said Michigan would be a little rough since it won the indoor and finished second in the Big 10 Outdoor last year and have a strong nucleus returning.

The Wolverines are led by Ron Kutschinski, a middle-distance runner who was a member of the U.S. Olympic team last year.

Michigan also boasts the Big 10 high jump record-holder in Gary Knickerbocker. Knickerbocker has gone 6-9 1/2.

The Senators' plans to name Williams as manager were first reported a week ago by The Associated Press.

Williams, 50, had shunned at least three previous offers to manage major league teams before agreeing to take command of the sagging Senators.

Williams, who once said, "You couldn't pay me enough to manage," has had to admit at last that he was wrong.

The Senators' dynamic new owner, Robert Short, who purchased the legendary slugger around the country until he could talk him into taking over the team, is paying a price that Williams called "the most fantastic offer" ever made to him.

Reportedly it gives Williams an option to buy an estimated 10 per cent of the club's stock at bargain rates and calls for a salary ranging up to $100,000 a year.

The contract is believed to run at least three years and possibly longer.

Wrestlers End Best Season, Take 14-2 Record to Purdue

Iowa's wrestling team, fresh from three dual meet triumphs in a triple-dual meet last Saturday, take on Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., today in the Hawks' last dual meet of the season.

The Hawks, with a 14-2 season record, are already assured of the best wrestling mark in Iowa history.

Purdue was one of the teams Iowa white-washed in the triple-dual meet at Madison, Wis., 21-4. Today's match shapes up as a tune-up for the Big 10 Championships at East Lansing, Mich., next weekend.

Iowa, along with Michigan State, is a strong contender to capture the Big 10 crown. The Spartans, however, are ranked 4th in the nation and defeated the Hawkeyes 18-9 two weeks ago. In the latest national ratings, Iowa was just a step behind the Spartans, being tabbed as the No. 5 team in the country.

Coach Dave McCuskey said earlier in the week that he was planning no lineup changes for the Purdue meet and that the regular lineup, with one exception, would remain intact for the Big 10 meet.

McCuskey said that he was planning on switching Joe Carstensen, who has compiled a 13-2 record in the 137-pound division, to the 130-pound class for the Big 10 Championships.

McCuskey was pleased with the way all his wrestlers performed in the triple-dual meet at Madison. Besides shutting out Purdue, the Hawkeyes also blasted Ohio State 29-0 and Wisconsin 25-4.

"Everybody's wrestling real well," McCuskey said, "and we should be just about reaching our peak for the Big 10 Championships. All of our boys have the ability to win their divisions." Several Hawkeye grapplers have outstanding dual-meet records and, according to McCuskey, will all be huge threats in their weight classes at East Lansing. Joe Wells, 152-pounder who has been injured much of the season, is 6-0. Rich Mihal, defending Big 10 champ at 160, is 13-1. Verlyn Strelner, 177-pounder, is 11-1-1, and heavyweight Dale Stearns is 10-1-1.

Carstensen, Don Briggs at 130-pounds, John Irvine in the 145-class, and Steve DeVries at 167 will round out today's lineup at Purdue.

Tankers Face Purdue In Final Big 10 Contest

Iowa's swimmers get their last shot at a Big 10 victory today at Purdue. The Hawks have dropped five conference meets but have defeated two non-conference foes.

Coach Bob Allen says that Purdue is a stronger team than the Northwestern squad that downed Iowa last weekend.

The Boiler-makers have a 2-6 record after knocking off Northwestern and Illinois, teams that have defeated the Hawks.

George Marshall, Bill Bergman, Jim Cartwright and Terry Swanson will lead the Hawkeyes. Distance ace Rick Nestrud is still bothered by an elbow injury and will see only limited action.

Allen thinks he has an outstanding group of freshman swimmers, which he will enter in a Big 10 frosh invitational at Ann Arbor today.

Top rookie performer is Robbie Cook, an All-America prep swimmer from Cedar Rapids, Washington. He competes in the freestyle events.

A five-team frosh meet at Madison last weekend was cancelled because of disturbances on the Wisconsin campus.

Owners Reject Players' Proposal

NEW YORK (AP)—The baseball club owners rejected a $5.9 million compromise proposal by the players in the pension dispute Friday and decided to wait on the outcome of a poll of all players on the $5.3 million representatives had rejected.

"We have discussed the new player offer with all the members of our committee," said John Gaherin, the owners' representative in the negotiations. "And we have informed the association (Major League Baseball Players' Association) that it has been absolutely rejected. We will await the outcome of the poll of all the players."

The rejection of the players' proposal, following an earlier decision by the owners to decline federal mediation of the dispute, left the controversy hanging while the players are polled. This could take two weeks.

The new proposal by the representative of the Major League Baseball Players' Association would seem to narrow the gap to $600,000 annually between what the owners offer and the players want for improvements in the pension plan. However, the owners claim differences in the term of refunding the pension would add another $300,000 to the spread.

Dick Moss, counsel for the players' association, said the owners' representative promised the players' latest proposal would get the consideration it deserved. "They have asked for a poll of all the members on the $5.3 offer," said Moss. "We told them we discussed this with the 24 player representatives, and they considered it a waste of time. We also told them it would take two weeks. They said to 'go ahead' so we will poll the players."

Gaherin explained there were greater differences than appeared on the surface between the owners' $5.3 million offer and the players' $5.9 million compromise.

Peacekeeping Ability of U.N. To Be Probed at Parley Here

The peacekeeping ability of the United Nations will be evaluated by several national and international observers March 28 and 29 in a public symposium in the Chemistry Building auditorium.

The symposium, entitled "Towards a More Effective United Nations: Prospects for Peacekeeping," will have speakers and commentators from the U.N., U.S. Department of State, several academic institutions and a private foundation that has supported the U.N.

Persons from Iowa and the Midwest are invited, and the program is also a Midwest regional meeting of the American Society of International Law. Sponsor is the Iowa Society of International and Comparative Law, a student organization at the College of Law.

"The emphasis of the symposium will not be upon revision of the U.N. Charter, but rather the more discrete problem of organizational reform," said Burns H. Weston, associate professor of international law and faculty adviser to the Iowa society.

"Given that the 'Great Powers' are unlikely to admit soon to any significant Charter revision and that questions about the Charter have been repeatedly explored, it is best to concentrate on how to make the U.N. a more effective peacekeeping instrument within the existing Charter framework," Weston said.

County Told To Give State '69 Valuations

State Comptroller Marvin R. Seldon Jr. has ordered by telegram that Johnson County property valuations be turned into the comptroller's office. The telegram, dated Thursday, was addressed to Johnson County Auditor Dolores Rogers who interpreted the order as an attempt to pressure the county into dropping its valuation suit now pending in Polk County District Court.

Mrs. Rogers said Friday that the only course of action possible was for the two sides — the Department of Revenue and the county — to wait. "There's nothing I can do," she commented. County Atty. Robert W. Jansen has advised Mrs. Rogers that she may have to testify in Polk County District Court either Monday or Wednesday of next week. Johnson County and Iowa City are seeking an injunction to bar state-ordered property valuation increases here for 1969. The injunction is based on a feeling that the increases will be unfair to local taxpayers.

The telegram stated that Mrs. Rogers would be held personally responsible for holding up property tax collections in her county and the several other counties in the area school district. Voicing objection to the personal liability involved, Mrs. Rogers said that she wanted to send in the figures representing the increases in the first place.

She said she told the comptroller's office earlier in the week that she would be willing to send two sets of figures, one detailing the state-ordered increases and one without, but that her offer had been turned down.

The Johnson County case is still pending. Several other counties have filed similar actions with the court, all of which are interventions in an original suit by which 48 counties got a one-year reprieve on applying increases within their jurisdictions.

Residence Hall Councils Considering Revised Visitation Policy Proposal

In the entire visitation section of the Code. Unlike the former ARH plan, it does not modify specific clauses in the Code, but leaves all visitation planning and rules to the residents' halls general councils.

Bill Arbes, counselor for men's residence halls and an ARH adviser, said that the purpose of the new plan was to provide a realistic visitation policy — one that the students really wanted and that they would enforce.

He said that ARH members who composed that committee which drew up the new policy (three boys and three girls) did not think that dorms were enforcing the present Code provision or that the original visitation plan proposed by ARH would improve the situation.

The new plan would place all residence hall members on the honor system, making them responsible for reporting any violations of their dorm's visitation plan.

ARH members hope that leaving this responsibility to students will eliminate most of the paperwork and confusion currently involved in setting visitations.

Under the new plan a visitation plan would have to be drawn up by each dormitory general council during the first six weeks of each semester.

If a plan were not drawn up by the council during that six week period, the plan of the previous semester would continue in effect.

ARH members hope that the new plan will be accepted as a Code amendment this semester and that housing units can begin working on their individual visitation plans before this semester's six-week period had expired.

The plan does set up requirements for visitation hours. They would not exceed 12 noon to one-half hour before closing hours of the women's residence halls. Visitation could be set up any time within those hours and could be held on any combination of days of the week.

The present Code stipulations for visitation hours are: Monday through Thursday 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.; Friday 3 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 12:30 a.m.; and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

The plan also provides a means of registering additional visitations. They would have to be registered with the head resident along with a statement from a dorm hall that two-thirds of the members of that basic living unit wished to have an intervisitation.

Reported violations of the rules of the hall and the rules of each dormitory's intervisitation plan would be handled by the dorm judicial boards.

KING ARTHUR SOUGHT— Leslie Alcock, senior reader in archaeology at University College, Cardiff, Wales, will attempt to prove the existence of the legendary King Arthur when he presents a Humanities Society Lecture at 8 p.m. Monday in Shambaugh Auditorium. Sponsored by the University Humanities Society, Graduate College and Department of History, Alcock's lecture is free to the public and tickets are not required. His topic will be "The Archaeological Evidence for the Historical King Arthur."

Center Gives Concert Today

An experimental vocal ensemble will make its first appearance in a concert given by the Center for New Music (CNM) at 8 p.m. today in Macbride Auditorium. Directing the eight singers will be William Hibbard, musical director for the Center.

Tickets will not be required for the concert, which will be open to the public.

The concert will include three vocal ensemble numbers, two of which are by members of the CNM: Patrick Purswell's "Black and White," and the first performance of Martin Farren's "Bodafre."

Also to be included is a recent work, "Diversion" for trombone and percussion, written by Richard Hervig, director of the CNM.

Two compositions involving instruments and electronic tape will be presented, as will a work for jazz ensemble by Milton Babbitt and "Contrasts" for violin, clarinet, and piano by Bela Bartok. The latter work was written for and dedicated to Benny Goodman and Joseph Szigeti.

VIET ATTACK PREDICTED—

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam's army newspaper Quang Doi Nhan Dan predicted Friday the Viet Cong will launch a general offensive against Saigon and southeast Vietnam, this spring, a pro-Communist Japanese news agency reported. The Dempa News Agency, in a dispatch from Hanoi, quoted the newspaper as saying the Viet Cong in South Vietnam are capable of attacking at any place and any time.

Food Stamp Plan Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration said Friday it has taken unprecedented action by offering free food stamps to some needy families in two South Carolina counties and hopes to begin issuing them within a week.

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin told a news conference that the free-stamp program would be set up in Jasper and Beaufort counties as an experiment to help feed needy persons previously not reached by public programs.

Hardin's formal announcement came less than 48 hours after he met with Sens. George S. McGovern (D-S.D.) and Ernest F. Hollings (D-S.C.) to hear their appeal for such action.

Further details were worked out late Thursday with South Carolina Gov. Robert E. Mc-Nair, Hardin said.

Normally, recipients must pay at least a small part of their income for stamps, with which they can buy substantially larger quantities of food.

McGovern welcomed what he sees as a change of attitude both in the Congress and in the White House, saying it indicates a "real commitment to end hunger in the United States."

The South Carolina situation was explored during hearings this week by a special Senate committee headed by McGovern. Witnesses testified many of the poor in that state couldn't afford to buy stamps.

East Germany Makes Clear It Won't Tolerate Election

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's leading spokesman stated emphatically Friday that the Communist bloc will not tolerate election of a new West German president in West Berlin March 5.

But Albert Norden ducked a question at an East Berlin news conference asking what the Communist side would do about it. Nor did Norden mention Soviet-East German military maneuvers announced by the Russians early in March between West Berlin and the West Berlin frontier. In 1965, such maneuvers were used for stop-and-go harassment on the road access routes to West Berlin, 110 air miles inside East Germany. That same year, waves of Soviet MIG fighters howled over Berlin during a session of the West German Parliament.

This time it is the election of a successor to retiring President Heinrich Lübke by a West German parliamentary federal assembly that has stirred Communist ire. Despite the East bloc protests and the announcement of maneuvers, a West German government spokesman in Bonn reaffirmed the West German intention to hold the election in West Berlin.
