Death Penalty For RFK Slayer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan Wednesday was condemned to death in the California gas chamber for what the state called a calculated, cold-blooded political assassination that took the life of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"Even Jesus Christ couldn't have saved me," the 25-year-old Christian Arab was quoted as telling his lawyers afterward. He shed no tears. His face was ashen.

When the verdict was read at 11:35 a.m., the slight 5-foot-4 defendant betrayed no emotion.

By its decree, the seven-man-five-woman jury rejected a defense plea for mercy. The alternative to the death penalty was life imprisonment, with parole possible but not likely after seven years.

Juror George Stitzel, 57, a press room foreman for the Los Angeles Times, said the original vote was 8 for death, 2 for life and 2 undecided. The count became 10 to 2 for death on the second and third ballots and agreement was reached on the fourth.

In last week's verdict of first-degree murder, Stitzel said the balloting began with 9 in favor, and 3 holding out for second-degree murder.

There is no chance that Sirhan will be executed swiftly. Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker set May 14 to hear motions for a new trial. At that time, he can pronounce sentence or defer it.

At that time also, it is within the power of the 67-year-old judge to reduce Sirhan's sentence to life, but in 19 capital cases that have been before him, Walker has exercised this prerogative only once.

There is an automatic appeal of a death sentence in the California courts.

Moreover, reflecting a growing climate in the United States, California has not put a criminal to death in more than two years, although there are 81 condemned men languishing on the San Quentin Death Row.

The last legal executions in the United States occurred in 1967 — in April in California and the following July in Colorado.

The defense was grimly prepared for the outcome of the long case. After 11 hours and 45 minutes of deliberation that extended over three days, the jury sent word to the courtroom that it had reached a decision.

Black Gridder Fight Left in Nagel's Hands

By CHARLA COLE

The Board in Control of Athletics issued a statement Wednesday which said it was trying to improve several conditions criticized by the Black Athletes Union (BAU), but, at the same time, reaffirmed its policy of leaving matters of team morale and discipline to the coaches and squad members.

Football Coach Ray Nagel said Wednesday night that the board's meeting did nothing to affect the status of 16 black athletes suspended from the team Friday for failing to attend the first spring drill.

"Nothing here has changed," said Nagel. "It's all been said before."

Nagel had said previously, "They're off the squad and you can take that any way you wish."

The BAU, composed of the 16 dismissed football players, two other blacks who were dismissed from the team earlier for "personal reasons," and several other black athletes, issued a statement at a news conference Wednesday which outlined five demands of the athletes.

Among them was a demand that counselors for athletes come from the student's specific field of study and not be "general advisers" who, the athletes said, often do not understand graduation requirements or the special educational problems of athletes.

The board, in its statement, said it was taking steps to improve counseling and guidance services for all athletes, involving coordinated use of several University facilities.

The board also said it was "exploring" the possibility of financial assistance to athletes beyond the fourth year of academic work. At present, Big 10 rules allow an athlete one summer of financial assistance beyond the standard four-year degree program. The athletes say they believe that one summer session is simply not enough time to finish work toward degrees.

The athletes had asked for a five-year scholarship for those athletes who needed more time for graduation. They said that with an eligibility limit of 14 hours per semester, they often were not required to or able to carry the load necessary to graduate in four years.

The board also reaffirmed its policy favoring the National Collegiate Athletic Association approved $15 monthly payment to athletes on scholarship. It said it would "continue to push vigorously for adoption of this payment by the Big 10."

The news conference was the first time the actual demands had moved from floating rumors to concrete fact, although they had been in existence since last spring.

The athletes have said they had no intention of not playing ball when they boycotted Friday's practice. One player said Wednesday that the BAU felt that an open protest was the only way to get action on its grievances, because previous attempts at negotiations had not gotten results.

Tuesday, one of the seven freshmen players among the 16 dropped gridgers said the freshmen were dissociating themselves from the BAU and hoped to return to the team. However, upperclassmen in the BAU charged Wednesday that he did not speak for all the others and that the ranks of the 16 players remained firm.

None of the freshmen players was available for comment Wednesday night.

The Board in Control of Athletics is scheduled to hold another meeting Monday. In its statement, the BAU said it expected new developments in the case on that day.

In a related development, Jerry Stevens, president of the Afro-American Student Association, said that a rally to support the black athletes would be held at noon today on the Union Patio.

BAU Spells Out Blacks' Demands

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a letter released by the Black Athletes Union (BAU) Wednesday which outlines the demands the group has made to the Department of Athletics:

Open Letter to the Public:

Because of the results of a meeting of the athletic board of the University of Iowa, we, the Black Athletes of the University, would like to explain in detail our reasons and purposes for protesting. We have not made any press release because of an incident last spring whereas we were misquoted and completely put at fault for what we had done. We feel now and we felt then that our demands and grievances are and were justified. Public opinion and backing is very important in reaching agreement with the University and Athletic Department. Some newspapers are known to sway public opinion against us and print the news as they see fit. The above is the reason for withholding information from the papers.

We are putting our educations on the line because of what we believe; our demands are as follows:

1. We believe that adequate counselors should be provided for all athletes to lead them in a positive and progressive course of study toward graduation. We feel that these counselors should be specialists in their specific field: business, medicine, law, engineering, etc. not general advisers.
2. That because of the nature of our existence here at the University many athletes cannot carry the heavy load of hours in order to graduate in four years. We feel that our financial aid should be provided until graduation.
3. That a five-year scholarship be pushed through for those athletes that require a year or more for graduation purposes.
4. That some amount of autonomy be left to the athlete in the control of his social and personal life. Expressions of political belief should not be held against them.
5. That the allowance of $15 by NCAA rules, be accepted by the Big 10 committee and steps be taken in the direction to find out what Big 10 schools are backing this proposal.

We would also like it to be known that steps have been taken to resolve these problems and next Monday should prove to be the day of final agreement.

5 Cornell Blacks Freed of Charges By Faculty Vote

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Cornell University faculty reversed itself dramatically Wednesday, agreeing to demands of militant black students who carried arms on campus in a weekend occupation of a student center.

In other developments in campus turmoil, new demonstrations erupted at American and Princeton universities and disorder spread at City College of New York.

At Columbia University — on the first anniversary of the outbreak of student disorders on the Morningside Heights campus — white students massed briefly to show support for black student demands.

The Cornell faculty vote, described as "clear cut," would drop charges against five black militants, representing a victory for the campus Afro-American Society. It had threatened violent reprisals unless the charges against the five black students were dismissed.

The faculty had voted overwhelmingly Monday night to reject an agreement that the armed black students signed with administration officials Sunday. The charges, stemming from earlier demonstrations, were the key issue.

A thunderous cheer from some 7,000 Cornell students, gathered in Barton Hall, greeted the news of the faculty vote.

A dozen students stormed the administration building at American University in Washington, D.C. and evicted the president. But the protesters later were evicted themselves by about 30 fraternity men.

There was some brief scuffling but no reported injuries.

A university spokesman said the counter-raid was organized after a strategy meeting of the school's Interfraternity Council.

The original protesters escorted Pres. George Williams from his office shortly before noon.

The group, believed organized by Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), was protesting the school's involvement in a police training program. SDS, a spokesman said, also opposes the school's ties to a partly classified Army project.

SDS members at Princeton blocked the entrance to a Defense Department building on the campus. The sit-in was marked by scuffles, including one in which the dean of students was knocked to the ground.

The students, protesting the Vietnam war, broke up their sit-in at the Institute for Defense Analyses after three hours to avoid arrest they said.

Buell G. Gallagher, president of the City College of New York, ordered classes cancelled at the 20,000-student school again Thursday.

He said he would meet with black and Puerto Rican students who have been barring whites from half the campus since Tuesday morning in support of their demands.

The students are seeking enrollment of more blacks and Puerto Ricans and establishment of a separate school of black studies.

The black student demands at Columbia include the establishment of an interim board of admissions to encourage greater black enrollment, creation of an Afro-American cultural center and a black studies program.

Members of the Student Afro-American Society met with Andrew W. Cordier, Columbia's acting president, and complained afterward that he refused to give a "yes or no" answer.

A university spokesman said, however, that Cordier was committed to setting up a black studies program.

University ROTC Program To Get Top-Level Review

By LARRY CHANDLER
The Administrative Council voted unanimously Tuesday to review the voluntary ROTC program at the University.

And, in a related development, the chairman of a Faculty Senate committee studying the relationship between the University and the federal government, said he would call for the stripping of academic credit from the controversial military program.

Dr. William Connor, professor of internal medicine, told The Daily Iowan he would introduce a resolution to his committee May 1 proposing that ROTC be made an extracurricular activity.

The Administrative Council is composed of the deans of the 10 University colleges, the vice presidents, and the directors of major academic and administrative units.

The review is to be initiated by the College of Liberal Arts in consultation with other colleges. It is to include an examination of such questions as academic credit, faculty status of those teaching military science courses and the instructional program.

The ROTC Program, which selects and prepares students to become officers in the Army and Air Force while earning their degrees, has already been made an extracurricular activity at Harvard and other colleges — only after demonstrations by students in some cases.

The program here will probably be reviewed solely by the College of Liberal Arts according to David H. Vernon, dean of the College of Law.

Vernon added that reviews of curriculum are "normally handled on the collegiate (rather than the University) level."

Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said the college "already has a good deal of information as to content of courses and quality of faculty."

Stuit said, "It is a legitimate program in my judgment." But he added that "there are differences of opinion" in the college.

Stuit said supporters of the program here feel it would be bad if all the military's officer corps was produced exclusively at the three military academies.

Connor said that there is "some sentiment for changing the character of ROTC on campus."

Largely because of the rash of protests against ROTC on campuses across the country, the military itself is re-evaluating the program.

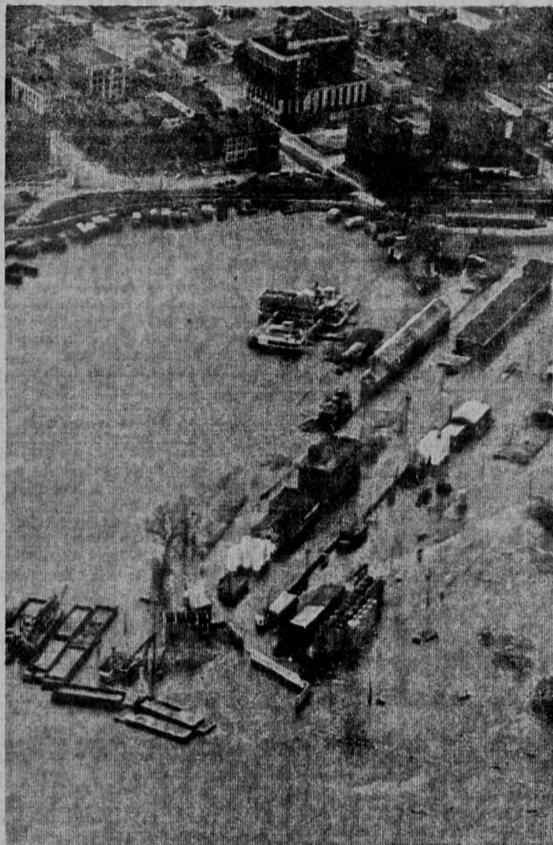

It is currently experimenting with allowing ROTC students to take more traditional academic subjects, such as history, political science and economics, in place of regular military courses. Critics of ROTC have focused their attacks on the program on what they call the inappropriateness of military subjects such as "leadership" and marching, being taught in an academic setting.

The University's ROTC program is not participating in the experiment.

The military is hoping that, should the experiment be successful and broad changes in the program be implemented, the wind will be taken out of the sails of ROTC critics.

Lebanese Troops Put Down Riots By Pro-Guerrillas

BEIRUT (AP) — Troops and police with armored cars fired on rioting students and Palestinian refugees in two Lebanese cities Wednesday. A state of emergency was declared to halt the riots in which at least seven persons were killed and scores wounded.

Demonstrators spilled into the streets in Beirut, the capital, in the southern port of Sidon and in the Bakaa Valley village of Barr Elias to protest government restrictions against Arab guerrillas operating against Israel from bases in Lebanon.

Chanting slogans in support of the Arab guerrilla movement, the demonstrators clashed in street battles with security forces.

Thousands of Palestinian refugees sparked the rampage in Sidon. Students took up the fight in Beirut and fiercely Arab nationalist Moslems rose up in the Bakaa in eastern Lebanon.

In Sidon, most of those demonstrating against government curbs on Arab guerrilla activities came from the sprawling Ein-El-Hleeh camp. It houses 17,000 persons comprising refugees who fled from Israel in 1948 and their descendants.

The Lebanese government has tried to prevent Palestinian commandos from using Lebanon as a base for operations against Israel for fear of reprisals.

Thirteen Lebanese civil airliners were destroyed in an Israeli commando raid on Beirut International Airport last Dec. 28. The Israelis launched the raid in reprisal for an Arab attack on an Israeli El Al airliner at the Athens airport.

Defying a long-standing ban on demonstrations, the students and refugees took to the streets in Sidon and Beirut.

The army clamped an indefinite curfew on both cities and steel-helmeted troops were patrolling all areas as dusk fell.

In Beirut, students surged through the Basta area, a densely populated Moslem quarter and leftist stronghold. Security forces were stoned from behind hastily erected street barricades.

Six armored cars were called into action and machine-gun fire chattered through the streets. At least one demonstrator was killed.

A government communique reported the youthful demonstrators broke through a police barricade and fired on police trying to keep order. The security forces fired back and one person was killed and several injured.

Demonstrators piled old automobile tires in the street to start bonfires blocking traffic and sending up columns of smoke.

Tear gas grenades were fired into the mob in an effort to disperse the crowd screaming slogans in support of the guerrillas and carrying banners denouncing the government of Premier Rashid Karami and its policy toward the Fedayeen movement.

Reasonable demands

Representatives for the Black Athletes' Union released a list of formal demands Wednesday. The demands shed a lot of light on the situation on campus and show the non-athletic white community a little of what the athletes are protesting and hope to have resolved.

The demands would benefit both the black and white athletes, but, as one of the group members put it, the black athlete is much more vulnerable to these problems.

One demand is for adequate counseling to help the athlete take the right courses he needs for graduation. The black athlete now is thrown to one of the University's general counselors who give "advice" that may or may not be adequate. As those of us who have gone through a pre-registration session can attest, the general counselors act as if their service is the student's good fortune and rarely take the time or effort to try to devise a schedule that is appropriate to the student as an individual — not just an ID number.

There is now only one academic counselor in the athletic department. He is supposed to adequately help all athletes — regardless of what sport or what major they are in.

Regardless of who that counselor is, he can not possibly be qualified to advise medicine, business, engineering or any other major adequately. No person can know that much about the operations of each college at the University.

Another demand, and one that should and must be regarded as valid, is for a five-year scholarship program for the athletes. It is hard enough for a regular student to graduate from the University in four years; and it is virtually impossible for an athlete to make it through in four years. Eligibility requirements require that a player take only 14 hours a semester. A four-year graduation program requires 16 hours a semester — so an athlete ends up about 8 hours short of graduation, at the least.

Athletes are expected to engage in strenuous practice sessions, make every game, take every test, read every assignment and still graduate in four years. I really doubt whether this is possible. Since the University brings athletes to campus to further its image, the University must also be responsible to the athletes. Athletics has been a one-way street for too long.

If an athlete needs five years to graduate, he should be guaranteed five years of financial aid. The athlete, in this situation, is very similar to a Martin Luther King scholar who receives five years of aid. Because of outside pressures and various demands on the athlete, he needs to have more time and less pressure in order to fulfill his educational goals.

As one of the athletes put it, "Academics and athletics cannot be separated. The two sides of the river must meet."

The athletes would also like "some amount of autonomy" in the control of his social and personal life. Expressions of political belief should not be held against the athlete.

Should any person, whether or not he is in a University community, be denied autonomy in his life? I doubt if many white students would stand for such a denial, so why should the blacks?

The athletes also urge that the NCAA allowance of $15 a month for each athlete be allowed by the Big 10 rules committee. This would provide a little spending money for the athletes.

According to the list of demands, the Board in Control of Athletics has met with the athletes and has been helpful. One of the athletes said that the administration realizes that athletes' demands are justifiable and should be resolved.

Now that the demands are public, I can honestly say that I support the athletes completely.

These demands represent serious problems not only common to the black athlete on campus. But in his case, the demands are magnified. The University has taken from the athlete for too long. Now the University should give a little to the athletes.

Obviously, no one of these demands is "out of the question." The black athletes do maintain, however, that the Board in Control of Athletics is trying to better the situation and that some concrete accomplishments have been made in their discussions.

The demands, then, must be considered reasonable by the people who can do something to satisfy these demands.

Now, the problem that is facing everyone concerns whether or not the 16 boycotting players will be let back on the team. Their intention was not to stop playing football for the University but to show their protest of an "intolerable situation" on campus.

Sometimes just talking about a bad situation will not help improve anything. The athletes took drastic action to remedy the problem. But the blacks' problems on campus required that action, and the black boycott should be considered a legitimate response and protest, not a sell-out to the team.

In the groove—

Schmaltziness detracts from 'Susan'

Tim Hardin's much-heralded move over from Verve to Columbia (much-heralded mostly by Columbia) has something of a credibility gap built into it. Columbia is saying that Hardin's four records for his former label were "unauthorized" — in other words, the company did some things to the records after they were cut without his permission. No such thing will happen with Columbia, the record company says — and even boasts of how it hauled sound equipment out to Hardin's upstate New York home at his request so he could record where he was most comfortable.

But Hardin's first record for Columbia, SUITE FOR SUSAN MOORE AND DAMION — WE ARE — ONE, ONE, ALL IN ONE (CS-9787), while admittedly free of some of the schmaltzy arrangements which marred his earlier work, has a schmaltziness of its own which detracts considerably from the overall high quality of the album.

No complaints with the music. Hardin's writing is, as always, among the best in the folk-rock singer-poet school. His singing is perfect for the material. The musicianship is excellent.

What jars is the talking. Hardin is an extremely personal writer, singer and performer, and this is an extremely personal record — it is, in fact, a love song to his wife (Susan Moore) and son (Damion). As such, it's fine — excellent at times — and probably, in the music, this is just what Hardin wanted.

But sometimes, Hardin can't resist the temptation to put down his guitar, hush everybody up and just talk (poetry, of course, not jibberish) — then the love song becomes a love letter. Personally, I get the feeling that I'm intruding (perhaps I'm a prude) and I tend to think that, sometime in the future, Mr. and Mrs. Hardin and son will look back on this with embarrassment.

Perhaps Columbia offered too much freedom? Or is that possible?

Anyway, this is a good record, with some very fine moments and, thankfully, just a few really bad ones. It's well worth enduring the bad moments for the wealth of good ones. The final number, "One, One, One, The Perfect Sum," by the way, is a knockout.

There's a lot in the work of Buzz Linhart which is reminiscent of Tim Hardin (in fact, they once played as a duo). Linhart is a guitarist, song writer, singer. His playing is folk-styled; his writing is clean, simple, straight-forward poetry; his singing is harsh, undisciplined, hard-driving. Like Hardin, also, his style is totally personal.

His first record, BUZZY (Philips PHS-600-291), introduces him with a variety of styles and establishes him immediately as a talent to be recognized.

The album starts with a mad dash in Hardin's "Yellow Cab" and then slows down with a highly effective, folk-sounding ballad which seems to have borrowed some from David Ackles. The other two cuts on side one are fairly straight folk-rock. On all, Linhart is backed up by a pretty good rock group called Eyes of Blue (which did a record on Philips recently which wasn't at all bad for a first time out).

Side two is dominated by a 19-minute song called "Sing Joy" which is a joy — easily the standout of the record. Linhart's guitar and moaning, throbbing voice are joined by a sitar and tabla and the result is somewhat like a fantastically long, sensuous, vibrant vibration. A good vibration — the whole record.

There's something about guitar music I find especially appealing, be it classical, flamenco, folk, blues, jazz, whatever, so I'm particularly taken by three new albums, all from Vanguard, which feature three very different types of guitar.

Sandy Bull is a guitar virtuoso who doesn't play any particular type of music — he just plays guitar, up down and all around the instrument. He is an extremely careful, thoughtful musician, who works alone always, and does few recordings. E PLURIBUS UNUM (VSD-6513) is his first record to employ an electric guitar and multiple-track recording techniques.

Combining guitar, oud, bass, drums and various other percussion devices, Bull achieves a regular band out of just himself and comes up with startling and very mellow sounds. There doesn't seem to be any way to really describe Bull's music on this record except to say that it's exciting, imaginative, highly unique — and very satisfying to listen to.

John Fahey, who has done quite a few records and is considered in some quarters to be the finest folk guitarist around, is a lot more traditional in his approach than is Bull, but no less inventive. Fahey plays acoustic, folk-based guitar with some classical overtones and, usually, plays all alone.

On THE YELLOW PRINCESS (VSD-79283) he uses the help of a few musician friends on two numbers, and the help of some electronic gadgetry on two others. Just the same, the record is mostly guitar, and totally fine.

Bert Jansch is even more traditional than Fahey — pure folk, although modern and highly imaginative — one of the numbers on STEPPING STONES (VSD-6506) is a Charlie Mingus tune, "Good-bye Pork Pie Hat." Jansch is joined by John Renbourn, another British folk guitarist (actually, Jansch, who is an old pal and influence on Donovan, is Scottish) and together they weave sparkling webs of music, a few of them augmented by Jansch's quiet, moody singing.

This record is an American issue of an album released in Britain several years ago, before Jansch and Renbourn joined the Pentangle, a group now making a name for itself in this country. People who've heard and liked the Pentangle will want to get hold of this earlier recording — and even if you haven't heard the group, if you like folk guitar, you'll probably like "Stepping Stones."

If you just plain like guitar, you'll probably like all three of these very fine recordings.

Art Buchwald on campus

By ART BUCHWALD

One of the things that impresses people about the student demonstrations is the strong stand that some members of the faculty are taking on the issues.

I was on the campus of Northhampton University and ran into a professor who was trying to stop his nose from bleeding. His clothes were torn and he was walking with a pronounced limp.

"What happened, Professor," I asked, as I helped him search for his glasses.

"The militant students just took over my office and threw me down the stairs."

"Why, that's terrible," I said.

"From my point of view it is, but I think we have to look at it from their point of view. Why did they throw me down the stairs? Where have we, as faculty, failed them?"

"Are you going to press charges?"

"On the contrary, if I pressed charges, I would only be playing into the hands of the repressive forces outside the university who would like nothing better than to see the students arrested for assault..."

"But they did assault you?"

"Yes, I have to admit I was surprised about that. But there was one heartening note. As they threw me down the stairs, one of the students yelled, 'It isn't you, Professor, it's the system.'"

"That must have made you feel better."

"As I was tumbling down, the thought did occur to me that at least there was nothing personal in it."

"Say, Professor, isn't that the philosophy building going up in flames?"

"I believe it is. Now, why did they have to go and set fire to the philosophy building?"

"I was going to ask you that."

"I'm not quite sure. I haven't seen any of the students since they threw me down the stairs. My guess is that it probably has to do with something the administration and the students are at odds about."

"But that's a terrible thing to do."

"I don't think we should make judgments until all facts are in. I would say burning down a philosophy building could be interpreted as an unlawful act. At the same time, there are moments when an unlawful act can bring about just reform."

"But the books, the records, the papers are all going up in smoke. Shouldn't we at least call the fire department?"

"I don't believe the fire department should be called until the faculty has met and voted on what course of action should be taken. After all, they have as much stake in the university as anyone else, and if they don't want a philosophy building, we should at least listen to their arguments."

"I never thought of it that way," I admitted. "Professor, I know you can't see very well without glasses, but I believe the militant students over at the quadrangle are building a scaffold. They wouldn't hang anyone, would they?"

"They haven't before," the professor said. "But it's quite possible that this is their way of seeking a confrontation with the establishment."

As we were talking, a group of students rushed up and grabbed the professor.

"We got one here," the ringleader shouted. "Get the rope."

"Don't worry, Professor," I shouted as I was pushed away by the mob. "I'll get the police."

"I wish you wouldn't," he said calmly as the students led him toward the scaffold. "If we don't let the students try new methods of activism, they'll never know for themselves which methods work and which ones are counter-productive."

Anti-union views crush struggle for good society

To the editor:

A recent attack on the Graduate Assistants' Union rather surprised me. The average half-time salary for graduate assistants at Iowa is $2,325 per academic year; after taxes and tuition that amounts to less than $2,000. Any graduate student who receives such a salary and believes he is adequately compensated is overpaid.

Unfortunately, the situation concerning job security is not as happy as Mr. Renner would have us believe. We ask that presently employed assistants be given renewal priority as long as they are performing adequately in their work and studies. This is not now university policy, nor is it the practice in all departments. Suspension and dismissal procedures have been approved by the Union and the Graduate Student Senate. The struggle to have them implemented has been going on for over a year. We feel that academic freedom is too important and precarious a right to be without formal protection any longer. Some may be willing to depend on the good will of the administration for the protection of his civil rights but I am not.

Finally, I share indignation over exploitation, poverty and injustice, but I would suggest the way to deal with these problems is not through an attack on underpaid teaching assistants. I would be glad to work with him to involve the University community in the struggle for a good society. We could begin by attacking the anti-union sentiment that is so pervasive in academic life.

Mom won't let son register; still guilty

SAN FRANCISCO (CPS) — Erik Whitehorn, whose mother wouldn't let him register for the draft, has been found guilty of failing to register.

Whitehorn and his mother, Mrs. Evelyn Whitehorn, complained of the tight constrictions placed on the trial by the judge, Gus Solomon, who was brought in from Portland to try the case. Solomon said the only issues in the trial were whether Erik was 18, whether he failed to register and whether his failure was willful.

Solomon rejected as irrelevant Erik's statements that he had moral teachings from his mother which prohibited him from registering, and that she had forbidden him to register.

She called the trial "a farce" and said she was "appalled at a legal system which puts you through like a computer system so everyone fits nicely in their place."

Two incidents that happened last week remind me once again that even a mighty military power has its limits, and that the 19th and 20th century arrogance of great powers has not yet vanished and learned to yield to world pressures.

The limits of military power are perhaps no where better revealed than in the recent incident of North Korea shooting down a U.S. intelligence plane with a crew of 31.

The latest events in Czechoslovakia, on the other hand, reveal that the arrogance of Russian power has no sense on limits. Despite protests virtually from all parts of the world against the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia last August and despite continued expression of Czech opposition to Russian domination, the Russians finally were able to get rid of Alexander Dubcek.

The progressive leadership committed to political reform in the country crumbled with a blow from the Russians. After inflicting hard blows upon the progressive Czech leaders and the press the Russians calmly replaced Dubcek with Gustav Husak, a pro-Russian, as Communist party's first secretary.

What should not have happened in Czechoslovakia has happened; what was thought to have been prevented from happening has now happened. The progressive leadership has to yield to Moscow's arrogant demands that some progressive be removed from the ruling presidium.

However, it is doubtful that the Czech are going to accept their new Russian backed boss calmly. Indications are already afoot that yet another round of violent demonstrations in the form of strikes and demonstrations by students would soon be launched.

Twice in fifteen months, and just within the first hundred days of Richard Nixon's presidency — the man who advocated a tougher handling of North Korea's capture of Pueblo in 1968, a mighty military power was put to test last week by a "fourth-rate" military power. And the "mighty power" found itself once again in an almost "helpless situation." Once again it found its national pride severely compromised.

The limits of military power are more evident in this incident because not long ago in his acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention on August 8, Nixon said "When respect for the United States of America falls so low that a fourth-rate military power like North Korea will seize an American naval vessel in the high seas, it is time for new leadership to restore respect for the United States of America."

Now America has a new leadership and Nixon got his time, but what could he do that President Johnson had not done when the Pueblo was captured? It does not matter who is in power in situations like that, they simply remind us of the limits of military power and provide an occasion to plead for recourse to diplomacy.

The American leadership, it should be said, has reacted to the latest North Korean incident coolly, and with sophistication, maturity and patience which perhaps could also be described as "helplessness."

When military power is too exuberant, too disciplined and too far-reaching, obviously its limitations and arrogance would be quite evident.

Black Athletes Charge Grid Double Standard

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following statement was issued by members of the Black Athletes Union Tuesday and is printed here in full.)

Everyone knows that Coach Ray Nagel declared the 16 athletes who boycotted spring football practice "off the team." But everyone does not know that the coaching staff has been secretly trying to recruit the freshmen boycotters by telephone conversations and individual conferences. His (Nagel's) reason for wanting to get the freshmen back was because he believed that they were influenced by the upperclassmen. Who is off the team? Does anybody know? Coach Nagel has also stated his practice attendance policy "that any unexcused absentee from football practice is automatically dismissed from the squad."

Last year, a white squad member had an unexcused absence from practice. He quit the team. Yet, he was allowed to be reinstated by a team vote. Mr. Nagel said that he had one set of rules for everyone. Was this exercising that rule? The black athletes did not "quit" the team, but merely protested alleged injustices. The white player returned after quitting, but the blacks can't return after protesting. Is this true integration?

Midwest Flood Loss To Top $100 Million

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Army Corps of Engineers said Wednesday that flood damages in parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and the Dakotas will rise above $100 million. The corps added that $7.5 million spent for temporary emergency dikes and levees prevented an additional $145 million loss. The big rivers of the Midwest continued their swift rise Wednesday but the most serious threats ended in Minnesota and Wisconsin. The Mississippi River spread through Illinois, but flood preparations appeared capable of holding the rising waters. Flood threats remained in New England and the Far West. Crop damage from the flooding of Tulare Lake in California's San Joaquin Valley was estimated at $10 million. Runoff from the Sierra Nevada covered 75,000 acres of barley, cotton and alfalfa. The snowmelt may cover another 25,000 acres. The Corps of Engineers said total damages for northern Iowa, eastern North Dakota, western Wisconsin and all but the southwestern edge of Minnesota was $109.4 million. More than $40 million was in farm losses; $29 million in transportation damages; $16 million in flood fighting and cleanup, and $24 million in urban damages. The Mississippi's level Wednesday at Prairie du Chien, Wis., was 21.5 feet, three-tenths of a foot below the prediction. The Mississippi crested Tuesday during the night at Guttenberg at slightly under 20 feet. A heavy rain which hit New England late Tuesday raised the level of lowland streams. A dozen families were evacuated from a trailer park in Brattleboro, Vt., as the Whetstone River climbed over its banks. The Missouri River returned to its banks at points below Hermann, Mo. The Red River of the North, responsible for much of Minnesota's losses, was reported falling from Wahpeton, N.D., to Oslo, Minn.

Students to Get Scholarships Regardless of Tuition Boost

Students receiving University-sponsored scholarships will continue to receive them, in full, irrespective of a tuition increase, a University official said Wednesday.

University-sponsored scholarships include both full-tuition and specific amount scholarships, and freshmen merit scholarships. Not included are athletic scholarships and grants-in-aid.

NDEA Loans Still Available

The deadline for applying for a National Defense Education Act (NDEA) loan will be extended until May 1, according to John Moore, director of financial aid. The old deadline was April 15. Moore said that the extension was necessary because of the many students who had sought applications for the loans since April 15.

The University was granted $960,000 for the NDEA program this year. Leonard R. Brcka, comptroller-university secretary of the business office, said the figure would be lower next year because of the national government's "cut-back" policy on domestic programs. He estimated that the program's funds would be cut back by approximately 25 per cent.

Congress is expected to take action on NDEA allocations to colleges late this summer.

What a Fishfry D.M. Could Buy

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa attorney general's office said Wednesday it is going to court to make the city of Des Moines "buy" 53,000 pounds of catfish. The Iowa Conservation Commission has demanded that the city pay $31,975 for 53,292 pounds of channel catfish it says were killed by raw sewage dumped into the Des Moines River at the city's sewage treatment plant early in 1968.

Director of Student Health to Retire

By JOHN FREEBAIRN
Dr. Chester I. Miller is retiring July 1 as director of the Office of Student Health after 40 years as director.

Miller's retirement is mandatory since he reached age 65 this year.

Miller joined the staff in 1927 and was a staff physician for two years before he was appointed director.

Under Miller, Student Health has grown from a tiny University facility serving an average of 11 students per day to the organization it is today with a 22-member staff and a 32-bed infirmary serving an average of 200 students per day.

Eight full-time physicians, seven nurses, and three secretaries along with two half-time and two relief nurses provide a "family physician" service for the University's 19,500 student population.

Miller said that eight out of every ten students use Student Health during the school year and one out of every 15 are hospitalized in the infirmary.

Before April 1 this year, Student Health handled 36,112 office calls compared with 33,026 last year.

Miller said Wednesday he had enjoyed his years in Student Health working with "young people who have appreciated what Student Health gives them."

"Anyone working in medicine enjoys working with health problems and it has been a double pleasure working with young people," he said.

U.S. Bombers Strike Heavily By Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Stratofortresses made one of the heaviest strikes of the war along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon early today, dropping 3.5 million pounds of bombs on jungle infiltration routes.

Between midnight and dawn, some 60 high-altitude B52s raked pinpointed areas in War Zone C, where enemy forces have built a network of camouflaged roads entering Vietnam from Cambodia.

Military authorities reported the roads have been built up since January when the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division last made an extensive operation in the area.

The raids coincided with reports that the Communist command was withdrawing some North Vietnamese troops into Cambodian sanctuaries.

Elsewhere, the U.S. Command said a U.S. helicopter accidentally opened fire on friendly troops Wednesday in action on the approaches to Ban Me Thuot, a central highlands province capital 155 miles northeast of Saigon. One American Green Beret adviser and five Montagnard irregulars were listed as killed.

Brundage Repeats Demands For Return of Skiing Medals

CHICAGO — President Avery Brundage of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) Wednesday repeated his demand for return of all Alpine skiing medals won in the 1968 winter Games because of commercialism which he hinted may have dealt a death blow to that Olympic sport.

An immediate reaction from French triple gold medal skier Jean-Claude Killy at Paris was: "Let Brundage come over here himself and take them from me."

Brundage, 81, who rode to a fifth 4-year term as IOC president through the turbulent Mexico City summer games in October, issued a formal statement which had ominous import for the 1972 Winter Games at Sapporo, Japan.

The statement amplified a report in the Montreal Star Tuesday that Brundage had asked the Federation International de Ski (FIS) to reclaim Alpine ski medals won at Grenoble, France, a year ago in the wake of publicized commercial subsidizing of some Olympic skiers.

"It is obvious that Alpine skiing has not been properly controlled and therefore I wrote to the FIS and asked when the medals will be returned," Brundage said.

Brundage said his statement would be attached to a report to be made by a special committee considering the future of the Olympic winter games before the IOC meeting in Warsaw, Poland, June 6-10.

"Despite the annual Alpine circus operated by the FIS each winter which requires the exclusive service of the participants for half the year or more, it seems that sliding down mountains is not the most important sport in the world and it is doubtful if it should be on the Olympic program," the statement said.

Tennis Team Begins Road Trip at Northern

The Iowa tennis team will put a 5-4 season record on the line today when it takes on Northern Illinois in the first of a series of four meets on the road.

Coach John Winnie said Tuesday that he planned to use a lineup for the meet that featured Jim Esser (2-6) and Rich Stokstad (3-6) at the number one and two singles spots and Esser and Craig Sandvig (4-3) at the number one doubles position.

Nathan Chapman is leading the Hawkeyes with a record of 6-3, and Steve Houghton has upped his mark to 5-3 with victories in five straight singles matches.

The Hawks will face Ohio State on Friday, they will face Indiana on Saturday and before they head home Monday the Hawks will meet Notre Dame.

Winnie said that of the four teams, Indiana would be the most difficult to beat, but he did not think Northern Illinois would give the team very much trouble.

"We anticipate that we can handle them all right," he said.

Homers by Roseboro, Carew Help Twins Edge A's, 7-6

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS — John Roseboro and Rod Carew blasted two-run home runs off Catfish Hunter and the Minnesota Twins defeated the Oakland A's 7-6 Wednesday.

Roseboro's 398-foot shot over the right field fence in the sixth inning after Leo Cardenas singled, wiped out the A's 5-4 lead and gave the Twins their eighth victory in nine games.

Carew cracked a 420-foot homer in the first on Hunter's second pitch of the game after Ted Uhlaender slapped the first delivery for a single. Carew also batted in a run in the second with a sacrifice bunt and another with a single in the eighth.

Oakland took a 2-0 edge in the first on singles by Bert Campaneris and Mike Hershberger, but double steal, a double by Danny Cater and Tom Reynolds' grounder.

Uhlaender, who had four hits, dropped Dick Green's deep fly to center in the third, scoring Sal Bando and Cater after they had singled. Campaneris scored again in the fourth on a single by Reynolds.

Cardenas got the Twins back in the game when he doubled to lead off the fourth and scored on successive fly outs by Roseboro and pinch hitter Charlie Manuel.

Frazier Signs Rich Contract For Title Bout with Quarry

HOUSTON, Tex. — Unbeaten Joe Frazier of Philadelphia signed a contract for a guaranteed $250,000 Wednesday to defend his share of the world heavyweight title against Jerry Quarry of Los Angeles in Madison Square Garden on June 23.

Harry Markson, director of Madison Square Garden Boxing, Inc., said the 24-year-old Frazier, who only Tuesday night knocked out Dave Zyglewicz in the first round in his third title defense, will receive 35 per cent of the net gate receipts and 40 per cent of the ancillaries.

Quarry signed for 25 per cent of the net receipts and ancillaries.

"This is the fight everyone wants to see," said Markson.

The bout will be blacked out in New York, but will be seen nationally on closed circuit television and also will be beamed to each continent.

Frazier, who has 20 knockouts in his 23 victories, is champion in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Maine and Texas and in Mexico and Argentina.

Cure "Appliancecoma" with Full HOUSEPOWER

Sluggish, slow appliances may be the direct result of inadequate HOUSEPOWER. Today's living demands a modern home wiring system with plenty of branch circuits and convenience outlets to operate properly the many appliances found in most homes.

CHECK the following list to find out if your wiring is inadequate:

YES NO

- Do lights dim when certain appliances are turned on?
- Does your TV picture shrink when appliances are in use?
- Are several appliances or lamps plugged into one outlet?
- Do you have to limit the use of appliances to avoid blowing a fuse or tripping a circuit breaker?

If you checked "Yes" to one or more items, it's an indication of low HOUSEPOWER.

Besides plenty of circuits and convenience outlets, full HOUSEPOWER requires wires of the right size for peak performance of all lights and appliances — and three-wire, 100-ampere service entrance (the minimum for a modern home).

For assistance in planning home wiring, see your electrical contractor.

NCAA Tightens Recruiting Policies

KANSAS CITY (AP) — With costs of collegiate athletics becoming a major concern, the National Collegiate Athletic Association has taken the first step toward tighter restrictions on recruiting.

At its meeting which concluded Tuesday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., an NCAA committee headed by Ed Cady of Indiana University recommended, among other things, that high school stars be permitted to visit only a restricted number of college campuses and that the schools doing the recruiting be able to entertain the prospective athlete only on campus and only twice.

opened, the NCAA officials said, and were believed to be mandatory by some of the athletes.

The entertainment violation was transporting and entertaining the prospective enrollee at a point distant from Chapel Hill in 1966.

The reprimand does not carry any punitive measures.

The University of Illinois and Mississippi State had their probation removed, while what had been an indefinite probation for Utah State was decreed to end on April 30, 1970.

In two other individual cases, the council gave Olympic track star John Carlos his eligibility for this spring at San Jose State and gave Big Eight basketball players Amos Thomas of Oklahoma State and Michael Reese of Oklahoma both two more years of eligibility.

The council also voted to create a third division for its member football teams. The division, yet to be named, will include the 155 smallest schools who are NCAA members. The NCAA has 114 major football schools and will now have 174 in its college division instead of 329.

The new division will have two championship games at the season's end.

Palmer Picked to Win Byron Nelson Tourney

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Muscular Arnold Palmer, golf's most dynamic attraction, ranked as the man to beat going into today's first round of the $100,000 Byron Nelson Classic.

"Anytime that man tees up the ball, he's the one to beat," colorful Chi Chi Rodriguez said.

But he'll have to share the popularity with a new folk hero, Lee Trevino, the U.S. open champion, and a Dallas native who drew a sizable gallery, dubbed "Lee's Fleas," in Wednesday's pro-am.

The dominance of Palmer, the popular Trevino and defending champion Miller Barber was heightened by the absence of many of the game's top names.

In fact, the field of 144 which open the first round over the gently rolling, 7,086 yard, par 70 Preston Trail Golf Club course includes only two of the season's top 10 leading money winners — Trevino, No. 2, and Barber, No. 4.

Gary Player, winner of Sunday's rich Tournament of Champions, is home in South Africa for a brief vacation. Masters Champion George Archer has a commitment in Brazil. Two-time U.S. Open champion Billy Casper has an allergy problem. Bunky Henry also has a health problem. Gene Littler, Jack Nicklaus, Dave Stockton and Tommy Aaron simply are taking a week off.

The first two rounds, Saturday and Sunday, will be telecast nationally by ABC-TV.

2 Acquitted of D.M. Arson To Appear at Rally Tonight

Two Des Moines blacks recently acquitted of arson charges will appear at a rally to benefit the Des Moines Black Panthers at 8 tonight in 300 Old Chemistry Building.

Mrs. Joanna Cheatom, a leader in the Iowa Welfare Rights Organization, and Charles Knox, leader of the Black Panthers in Des Moines, will speak, along with Jerry Stevens, A3, Denver, a former Iowa track man who will represent the Black Athletes Union.

The Action Studies Program

course in Radical Social Theory is sponsoring the rally and is donating the $150 the University allotted it to the Des Moines Panthers.

Both Mrs. Cheatom and Knox were on trial in Des Moines for arson in connection with a fire that destroyed the Jewett Lumber Company there. District Court Judge Joseph Denado Monday ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty when he said the prosecution had failed to provide evidence to substantiate its charges.

Resigned Police Seek Hearings in Coralville

CORALVILLE — Three former Coralville policemen complained of problems surrounding their resignations from the department and submitted requests for hearings at the City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Frank L. Pierce, employed full time for about three years, and Wayne Siders, a part time employee for a similar period, said they had experienced "harassment" following their departure from the force.

Frank Grell, who had been with the department part time for about two years ending in 1966, said he would like to confer with the council to see if some of the recurring "problems" with Police Chief Wayne J. Winter could be ironed out.

Grell operated a dance hall in Coralville for a brief period during the past year. He is a resident of Iowa City.

The three requests were referred to City Atty. Donald Diehl to determine the necessity of a hearing.

City Atty. William H. Bartley, also present, pointed out that the only actual council control over the police department is salaries. The police chief is empowered to handle personal matters. Council acceptance of resignations from the department is "simply a matter of form," he said.

Asked why he was seeking a hearing, Pierce said he wanted his "record cleared" to enable him to obtain police work elsewhere.

Both Pierce and Siders, whose resignations were accepted at recent council meetings, said they had consulted attorneys.

Siders told the council he submitted his resignation Feb. 25, to be effective May 1. He said, however, his name was not included in the schedule posted for part-time officers for March.

Siders said he would like to meet with the council, the mayor, Chief Winter and anyone else concerned to clarify the situation and determine his status.

Winter said he had "no comment" concerning the situation which, he noted, has been turned over to the city attorney.

6 Salaries Raised On Central Staff In School District

Salaries of six administrators on the school district's central office staff were increased for the coming school year by the Community Board of Education Tuesday night.

The only salary left to determine is that of the district's top administrator and highest-paid employe, Supt. Buford W. Garner.

Four of the administrators will be paid more than $15,000 and two will receive $19,000 in the coming school year.

The individuals and their new salaries (current pay in parentheses are: Joseph F. Benson, director of personnel, $15,444 ($14,300); James D. Blank, director of elementary education, $19,000 ($16,940); William C. Bleeker, director of secondary education, $19,000 ($16,940); Richard A. Lahr, administrative assistant, $16,325 ($14,575); Walter M. Ostrom, educational media director, $15,500 ($14,080); Charles E. Railsback, curriculum director, $17,000 ($15,730).

Garner's current pay is $23,320. Salaries of business office administrators had been set prior to Tuesday's meeting.

House Democrats Defeated; Lose Battle over School Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Democratic leadership went down to defeat in its first big legislative test of the session Wednesday in an attempt to put through a three-year extension of a Johnson administration school aid bill.

Republicans and Southern Democrats joined forces to defeat the proposal and to push through their own two-year extension.

The bill passed the House by a roll call vote of 400 to 17.

It consolidates four existing programs into one, continuing the GOP effort to move toward block grants of federal education funds instead of earmarking them for specific purposes.

The setback for the Democratic leadership came despite a plea by the bill's floor manager that the House not put "a Nixon label" on the legislation.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, extends until 1972 the Elementary and Secondary Education Act that former President Lyndon B. Johnson once called his proudest legislative achievement.

The bill authorizes $5 billion a year, but the actual appropriations will probably fall far short of that. At present, the programs are being funded at less than 50 per cent of the authorized level.

The Democrats fought desperately to avoid defeat in their first battle by the year with the Republican-led opposition. They huddled repeatedly with the Southern bloc to try to win them away from the Republican fold, and compromised their own position in hopes of picking up more votes.

As the bill came to the floor it would have extended the program for five years. Rep. Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.), chairman of the Education and Labor Committee and manager of the bill, offered a substitute trimming the extension to three years.

Perkins also agreed to knock out a provision that would establish advisory councils to work with local school boards on the federally aided program, in order to conform to the Republican substitute.

Perkins' voice cracked with emotion as he urged the southerners to stay with the Democrats.

"Don't let a Nixon label be put on this bill," he said, referring to the fact that it was Nixon's secretary of health, education and welfare, Robert H. Finch, who asked that the extension be limited to two years in order to give the new administration an opportunity to come up with its own program.

HHH Proposes All-Out War Against Crime

DES MOINES — It is time to stop studying crime and start effective measures to fight it, former Vice President Hubert Humphrey said Wednesday.

He called for a massive, 10-fold increase — from $62 million to $620 million — in federal funds to finance the Safe Streets Act in this fiscal year.

He also urged "every commu-

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY Urges Crime Fight

nity from the smallest hamlet to the major cities" to mobilize for an all-out war against drug pushers and dope peddlers, whom he branded "murderers on the installment plan."

Humphrey addressed a state-wide conference on "crime and the business community," sponsored by the Iowa chapter of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Other speakers included Ralph Salerno, consultant to the national council and a widely recognized expert on organized crime, and Dr. Karl Menninger of Topeka, Kan., a nationally known psychiatrist.

Humphrey told more than 500 businessmen, law enforcement officers, government officials and youth workers the fight against crime must be truly community-wide, including the ghettos of the "inner city."

He complained that "political extremists" are deterring the battle against crime because of their differing views of crime and politics.

"Extreme conservatives see the inner city as a monolithic whole, black and poor, laden with hostility, totally alienated from the broader society . . ."

"And the extreme liberals tend to view any all-out effort to fight crime as tinged with racist overtones — the new extension of a conspiracy to scrap the Bill of Rights, enthrone 'The Fuzz,' and preventively detain a whole society," Humphrey said.

The attack on crime must be two-fold — first to establish public safety, and a longer range effort to "remove the heartless conditions which spawn criminals in our society," the former vice president said.

There must be better trained police officers, using "brain work — not just muscles, not just guns," more and better courts, improved rehabilitative programs and more of them, and changes in the laws and government programs to reflect "what has happened to the family since 1939," Humphrey said.

"What will it cost? I don't know," Humphrey said. "But whatever it costs is worth it."

Speaking of his recommended tenfold boost in Safe Streets Act funds, Humphrey declared:

"That dimension of increase would get some results — I can promise you that."

"Less than that dimension of effort, and you will only be fooling yourselves. Local government simply doesn't have the means to do the job."

"Criminals have to be apprehended, brought to timely trial, and if guilty, sent to jail. It's a hard, firm process calling for hard, firm decisions."

Another ingredient necessary to any successful war on crime is the involvement of business leaders and solid citizens, Humphrey said.

The reason: "Our government is representative government, and you'd be surprised how often it really represents the thinking of the people — and what they do and don't do."

Statistic Groups At Meeting Here

A meeting of three major statistical societies is taking place at the University through Friday.

Participating in the sessions will be some 300 statisticians representing the Institute of Mathematical Statistics, the American Statistical Association, and the Eastern North American Region of the Biometrics Society.

Reapportionment Plan Set for Senate Debate

DES MOINES (AP) — A reapportionment plan requiring nearly two-thirds of the Iowa Senate to run for re-election in 1970 is set for stormy debate in the upper chamber Monday.

The plan, which includes major deviations from a proposal worked out by a bipartisan citizens commission, won 11 to 3 approval in the Senate Constitutional Amendments and Reapportionment Committee Wednesday.

Twenty-two incumbent senators would vie for 11 seats under the plan, which reduces the size of the Senate from 61 to 50 members. Also, another 20 senators have terms expiring next year.

Last fall voters approved a constitutional amendment requiring reduction of legislative membership from 185 to 150. The plan for reducing House membership was approved by the lower chamber last week.

The 16-member Democratic Senate minority charged that Republicans in the House and Senate committee which handled the bill "made a shambles" of the bipartisan commission's recommendations.

"This is what you would expect the minority party to scream," said Senate Republican Leader David M. Stanley of Muscatine. "Even if we tried, we couldn't be as unfair to the Democrats as they were to Republicans in 1965."

In 1965 Democrats controlled both houses of the legislature and approved a reapportionment plan cutting several Republicans out of seats.

Stanley said he is determined to complete Senate action on the reapportionment bill in one day, even if it requires a marathon session similar to the 18-hour meeting of the House.

"If there is a filibuster, we will take steps to end it," said GOP spokesmen. He did not elaborate, but Republicans hold enough votes to curtail debate when they wish.

Democrats attempted a filibuster in the House, claiming the bipartisan commission's plan were designed to "gerrymander" Democrats into strong Republican districts.

Senate Democrats said they will attempt to substitute the original commission recommendations for the version approved by the committee, and a few Republicans have indicated they would support such a move.

Long Arm of the Law to the Rescue

Firemen and police join forces to take 19-year-old Thomas Dickerson off a narrow ledge on the sixth floor level of Philadelphia's center-city City Hall Wednesday. Dickerson, held on larceny charges, dived from a courtroom window and then swung onto the narrow ledge. Firemen first raised a "cherry-pick" (a crane carrying a fireman) but found it was too short to reach. They later pulled Dickerson off into the waiting arms of a fireman. The youth was shaken but uninjured by his adventure and was returned to custody.

Specs appeal. Low as $12.95*

Glasses are supposed to help your sight, not make you look like one. So why put up with frames that detract from your appearance?

The right kind of glasses can make a big difference. If you're a small, thin person, a big round pair of horn-rim frames will make you look owl-eyed. Small thin-framed glasses look out of place on a big person.

The best way to find what looks best on you is to buy your glasses from an optical company that has a good-sized stock of frame styles. Like Morgan Optical. Our skilled personnel can help you decide what's best for your particular face and personality.

Of course, we make sure you can see as well as you look. Morgan guarantees each and every pair to be prescription perfect. Prove it to yourself; take them back to your eye doctor and have him check them against your prescription.

Our prices are very reasonable: as little as $12.95.* Why not stop in and see us?

Living Costs Up In Sharpest Jump In Last 18 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose eight-tenths of one per cent in March, the largest monthly increase in 18 years, the Labor Department reported Wednesday.

"The most important factors were a significant boost in home ownership costs and higher prices for used cars," said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"There were substantial increases also for food, clothing and gasoline," the report said.

The March increase brought the government's Consumer Price Index to 125.6, meaning it cost $12.56 last month for every $10 worth of typical family goods and services in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

The bureau said the big March increase brought the total rise in living costs during the first quarter of 1966 to 1.5 per cent, the sharpest three-month jump since 1956.

THE MASON WILLIAMS READING MATTER

is short poems about counting in Spanish and long poems about large and small moose, one-liners and two-liners, found objects and pretty color photographs and some of it is funny and some isn't. All of it is by Mason Williams. He has sketched a four-mile sunflower in the sky, road-tested a typewriter, recited "Them Toad Suckers" on the Smothers Brothers Show, and sold a million copies of "Classical Gas" — but this time he will really surprise you. $2.95 at booksellers.

U.S. Visitor to Cuba Cites Economic, Racial Progress

By LARRY CHANDLER
Robin Maisel, national committee member of the National Social Alliance, reported Tuesday night on the changes he had seen in Cuba since Fidel Castro's rise to power.

Maisel visited the country for a month last January during the 10th anniversary celebration of the Cuban Revolution. Maisel was a member of a group of North Americans who had been invited by the Cuban government.

Maisel told an audience of about 40 in the Old Chemistry Auditorium that "illiteracy has been wiped out" and that unemployment is nonexistent. He says that Cuba is developing so rapidly that they "now have a labor shortage."

He said that the Cuban "economy was deformed in many, many ways by American imperialism," and that Cuba's advancements were due to Castro's leadership and the "socialist revolution."

Although Cuba has made economic progress, he said that "rationing is very, very severe in Cuba."

He forecast that the government will have abolished rent in Cuba by 1970.

Maisel said that in the years before the revolution, discrimination had been a problem in Cuba. Now, according to Maisel, "Cuba has uprooted racial discrimination."

During questioning, Maisel added that law had eliminated discrimination but that it will probably take many generations to eliminate it from the people's minds.

He said "Cuba is the most democratic country in the world today." When questioned as to whether the leaders in Cuba had been elected, he said no. He replied that the "content of democracy exists in Cuba although many of the forms aren't there."

He compared the way the leadership in Cuba (Castro and his fellow leaders) has retained power to the way in which "the top leadership of the American Revolution was appointed."

Maisel warned any invaders of Cuba to be careful because "Cuba can arm the entire population in one hour."

1 Eye Hazel, Other Brown, Patient OK

HOUSTON (AP) — John Madden, the world's first recipient of a total eye transplant, was reported in excellent condition Wednesday and undisturbed that one eye is now hazel and the other brown.

The 55-year-old Conroe, Tex., photographer and his surgeon are hopeful that the transplant will restore his vision.

It will be at least three weeks before Madden and Dr. Conrad Moore will know the outcome of the transplant performed early Tuesday at Methodist Hospital shortly after the donor, O. B. Hickman, 55, Houston, died of a brain tumor.

Moore said that to his knowledge it was the first time, except for animal experiments, for an entire eye to be transplanted with an objective of restoring vision.

A Wednesday hospital bulletin described Madden's condition as excellent and said he had taken his first nourishment by mouth since surgery.

When the donor eye became available two weeks later, Madden himself made the decision to accept a transplant.

Ruling on Draft Objectors To Go to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government will appeal a federal judge's ruling that young men who object sincerely, although not on religious grounds, cannot be forced to fight in the Vietnam war, Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold announced Wednesday.

Griswold said the appeal will bypass the appellate level and go directly to the Supreme Court for a decision on the constitutionality of the 1967 Military Selective Service Act.

Such a course was approved by U.S. District Court Judge Charles E. Wyzanski of Boston on April 1 when he held that the law discriminates against non-religious conscientious objectors.

The case involves John Heffron Sisson Jr., a young Harvard University graduate who claimed he conscientiously opposes the Vietnam conflict, but not because of religion. The judge said that, as applied to Sisson, the draft law violates First Amendment guarantees that Congress "shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Psychologists Cite Causes Of Alienation

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A panel of psychological experts Wednesday diagnosed the root causes that alienate youth from modern society as bigness, mass technology, downgrading of individualism and television.

"The trend is basic and pervasive," said Dr. Douglas H. Heath. "Our increasingly controlled culture has a pernicious psychological effect on people."

Heath, a psychology professor at Haverford, Pa., College, and others offered their analysis at the annual meeting of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health.

The conference aims to correlate insights of religion and behavioral sciences. About 1,000 clergy, nuns, sociologists, psychiatrists and other specialists have attended sessions, planned to lay the groundwork for a 1970 White House Conference on youth.

Dr. Charles P. Neumann, a psychiatrist and medical director of Silver Hill Foundation, New Canaan, Conn., said the main thing troubling youth is "their lack of identity as individuals" in modern society.

In contrast to the nation's past, which honored individualism, he said that value seems to be "fading away" in the sweep of vastly organized, planned structures in which there is little chance for individual development.

Dr. Mitchell S. Rosenthal, a psychiatrist and deputy commissioner for rehabilitation at New York City's Addiction Service Agencies, laid the blame on the "burgeoning technologic environment."

This makes family fathers "relatively impotent" and "seems to defeat them," leaving their sons with a sense of guilt that they are responsible for that defeat, and muzzling their own normally creative competition with their fathers.

Heath said the eroding effects of television, an average of 1,000 hours a year of a young person's time, is producing "passive spectatorship attitudes."

"The indirect effect is to take time away from play and interpersonal relationships so that a youth is deprived of thousands of hours of experience in which to learn how to do both," he said.

Jepsen Requests Stricter Resolution On Sex Education

DES MOINES (AP) — The Senate Schools Committee has received a directive from Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen to put some "teeth" into a resolution for an investigation of sex education in Iowa.

Jepsen told the committee he wants the resolution reported out to the Senate floor. It had been buried in the committee for some weeks.

Committee Chairman Kenneth Benda (R-Hartwick) said he has called a committee meeting for Friday morning to consider the resolution, proposed by Sens. Joseph Platt (R-Winterset) and William Denman (D-Des Moines).

Their resolution, introduced after representatives of several groups lobbied early in the session for banning sex education in public schools, would order the State Department of Public Instruction to review sex education materials, the "propriety" of courses being offered and the qualifications of teachers.

Platt and Jepsen said they had been shown some material reportedly being used in such courses. Jepsen said some of it was "rotten," and Platt termed it "lewd, cheap trash."

Jepsen said the resolution offered by Platt and Denman was too mild.
