17 Organizations Mesh for Boycott

By PENNY WARD

More than 225 students, including representatives of 17 campus organizations, voted Tuesday night to leaflet and hold a teach-in during Tuesday's scheduled class boycott.

The decision was reached after more than an hour of debate concerning whether or not picketing would be used. Picketing was at first approved, but the decision called for reconsideration, and the group recessed.

During the 10-minute recess opponents of picketing called about 100 more people to the meeting in a packing movement. The motion to picket was then reconsidered and the compromise of leafletting and sign-posting was passed after a representative from Panhellenic Council told the group that sorority members would be allowed to support a boycott where pickets were present.

Student Body Pres. Jim Sutton, watching the packing movement, commented later that the enthusiasm shown at the meeting was "great."

"The significance of tonight's meeting was that students have finally formed a broadly based coalition to protect their own interests. A boycott is the first step in our drive to make students first-class citizens," Sutton said.

Sutton then asked, "Where is the faculty? Do they support our drive for a larger state appropriation for the University? Where is the faculty?"

He urged students to stay away from classes during the boycott. Sutton said students must realize that tuition will increase from $300 to $500 for in-state students and that room and board will also go up.

"A minimum of 400 students will not be back to the University next fall, and all of these students will be from low income groups."

The result of the tuition hike will be one more step towards turning the University into a closed society where the ability to pay will determine the student's ability to obtain an education — this is not the American plan.

The coalition is also urging students to speak in classrooms and to instructors about their views on the tuition hike. A letter was read to the coalition from the School of Religion faculty, which unanimously opposed the tuition hike.

The coalition members applauded Sutton's statement that the Student Senate might be able to finance the cost of materials to implement the boycott. Sutton told the group that the issue was still under senate consideration.

Maintaining a good image during the boycott was an important issue at the meeting. Group members expressed concern that the boycott's sincerity might be misconstrued and the action passed off as "a bunch of crazy kids causing a hassle at the University."

Shortly before the coalition broke up and a steering committee meeting began, the group decided that all activities on Tuesday would be held on the Pentacrest. All final action taken by the group was nearly unanimous.

New members of the coalition are Freshman Interns, Student Senate, Panhellenic Council, Quadrangle Council, Action Party, Afro-American House, Rienen I and Rienen II and the graduate teaching assistants' union.

Senate to Support Tuition Movement

The Student Senate voted Tuesday to support the "student movement" to fight the tuition increase but said it would wait until next week to release an official endorsement because "a lot can happen in six days."

The senate declined to give blanket approval to all student groups opposing a tuition increase because, senators said, some groups have not made it clear how they will voice their opinion. Senators said they did not want to go on record as approving groups who might act irresponsibly.

The senate named four students to represent the senate on the steering committee of the Coalition to Fight Tuition Increase.

The four are Randy Stephenson, A2, Des Moines; Dan Cambridge, A3, Atlantic; Iris Gross, A2, Skokie, Ill. and Kathy King, A2, Cedar Rapids.

Colonel Charges Records Doctored

WASHINGTON — The Air Force colonel in charge of the C5A giant cargo airplane contract for the Pentagon said Tuesday his civilian superiors approved doctored documents that hide large extra costs sustained by Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Col. Kenneth N. Beckman, chain-smoking as he answered questions from the audience at a House government operations subcommittee, said the cost overruns were suppressed because their disclosure "might put Lockheed's position in the common stock market in jeopardy."

Beckman said two civilian chiefs agreed with the tactic: Robert H. Charles, assistant secretary of the Air Force for installations and logistics, and Robert N. Anthony, former Defense Department comptroller now teaching at Harvard Business School.

Anthony said Tuesday night that "I know of no doctored of any documents and would not have authorized any doctored."

Housing Officials Blame Costs for Hawkeye Ills

By KAREN GOOD

University housing officials Tuesday night blamed high building and operational expenses and a non-yielding State Board of Regents for poor construction of Hawkeye Court apartments.

The officials spoke at a Graduate Student Senate-sponsored housing hearing.

"Original plans for a set of apartments comparable to Hawkeye apartments were shelved by the regents because they felt the plans were too expensive," said T. M. Rehder, director of dormitory admissions and married student housing.

"We almost had a federal case on our hands when we asked the regents for shut-off valves for the apartments' toilets and tile for the bathrooms," Rehder told the twelve residents who attended the hearing.

Rehder, acting as spokesman for the six housing officials who attended the hearing, also said that the housing office had always tried to be as "fair and humane" as possible.

He disputed charges made in a Graduate Student Newsletter article which said that a graduate student and his pregnant wife had not been able to break their lease with the University, so they might get settled in a new apartment before the baby comes.

Rehder said the student had contacted the housing office and was released from his contract over Easter vacation.

Much of the furor over the apartments has evolved from the newsletter article which charged that the University housing was poorly constructed and that tenants' utility bills were much higher than anticipated.

Since the article came out almost two months ago, the housing officials have begun giving refunds on utility bills.

Phil Manning, a resident of Hawkeye Courts and a part-time architect, told the officials that the Hawkeye Court apartments were some of the nicest he had ever lived in.

Voorhees Blacks Arrested in Sit-in

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

State police and National Guardsmen moved onto the campus of a predominantly black South Carolina college Tuesday and arrested 30 students who had taken over two buildings at gunpoint.

The arrests were made after the Voorhees College students — 25 men and 5 women — came out of the building without weapons and went to the home of the school president.

The action came a few hours after President Nixon said college administrators and faculty must not "surrender to force" on campuses.

The president of Voorhees, Dr. John Potts, questioned the necessity of arresting the students, who vacated the barricaded buildings with their rifles, shotguns and knives not in evidence and without the use of force.

J. P. Strom, the state's top law enforcement officer, said he had to arrest law violators, and added that Potts had sought help in the situation.

The administration of Voorhees College had shut the school down at noon after armed students who seized the administration-library building Monday moved into the science building.

The Voorhees students were demanding $1.60 an hour minimum for campus employees, a black studies program, and more jobs for blacks in dormitories.

At Belmont Abbey College, an almost all-white North Carolina school, eight of the school's ten black students ended a 10-hour seizure of the science building. They had barred the doors and positioned themselves on the building's roof to dramatize 15 demands.

School administrators there entered into negotiations that resulted in the end of the seizure, but it was not disclosed whether any demands were met. The demands included the recruitment of black students and more financial aid.

While county police stood by off campus, the Rev. Jude Cleary, president of the school, issued a statement saying no student "is constrained to continue a program he deems unsuitable to his needs."

Continuing protests on many of the nation's campuses prompted Nixon's remarks at a convention in Washington.

"There can be no compromise with lawlessness and no surrender to force if free education is to survive in the United States of America," Nixon told the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington.

Peaceful dissent is welcome, he said. But when dissenters terrorize other students and school faculties, "it is time for the faculty and boards of trustees and school administrators to have the backbone to stand up," he said.

Meanwhile, there was an anti-ROTC sit-in at Dartmouth Tuesday, half the student body boycotted classes at the University of Rochester, and New York City University troubles spread to a fourth branch.

At Dartmouth, in Hanover, N.H., about 200 students began a sit-in in the administration building, demanding an immediate end to ROTC at the 3,100-student Ivy League school.

At the University of Rochester, in Rochester, N.Y., about half the students were absent from classes as 50 student pickets marched, demanding an end to the private school's contract to manage a Navy research institute in Virginia. The school has 8,400 students.

In New York, the 20,000-student City College remained closed while its president, Buell Gallagher, continued negotiations with Negro and Puerto Rican students who have occupied half the Harlem campus for a week.

Amendments Hamper Regents Funding Bill

DES MOINES — A two-hour hassle over a proposal aimed at clamping down on student rioters delayed approval Tuesday of an appropriations bill giving $91.7 million to the State Board of Regents.

Two Republicans, Sens. Francis Messerly of Cedar Falls and Joseph Platt of Winterset, tried to tack their proposal onto the appropriations bill as an amendment.

Gov. Roger Jepsen ordered the bill put aside until Wednesday after some senators called the Messerly-Platt proposal "ridiculous" and others warned that "bearded degenerates" were taking over Iowa universities.

The amendment would prohibit the universities from using state funds to provide an education to any student convicted of rioting, inciting to riot or of committing vandalism against university property.

It also would prohibit paying teaching personnel convicted of similar offenses.

"I'm almost ashamed to be in the Senate today," said Sen. Arthur Neu (R-Carroll),

NEWS IN BRIEF

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Charles de Gaulle's resignation has raised fears of a devaluation of the French franc that could shake the world's whole monetary and trading system. Bankers and governments are worried that some of their devices for holding the international economic situation in line have not been working as well as they should. A flood of currency speculation, followed by devaluation and trade restrictions would hit business and employment. The increasing freedom of international exchanges, carefully cultivated since World War II, would be set back.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon sat down at a grand piano in the East Room of the White House to play "Happy Birthday" to the guest of honor, jazz musician Duke Ellington who celebrated his 70th birthday. "In the royalty of American music, no man swings more or stands higher than the Duke," said the President as he presented the Presidential Medal of Freedom — the nation's highest civilian honor to Ellington, launching a warm, festive, jazz-filled salute.

PARIS — Former Premier Georges Pompidou announced he will run, in the interest of continuity, for the presidency abandoned by Charles de Gaulle. He received quick Gaullist support. De Gaulle himself, however, has decided to remain neutral during the campaign to choose his successor, informed sources said.

BELFAST — Capt. Terence O'Neill, making his farewell address as prime minister, appealed for an end to Northern Ireland's ancient feuds and warned that a government based on Protestant ascendancy must fail. The 54-year-old former army officer blamed the defeat of his six-year efforts to build bridges between Protestants and Roman Catholics on "the machinations of wicked men who have preached and practiced hatred in the name of God."

LOS ANGELES — Barry M. Goldwater Jr. took an early lead over Democrat John K. Van de Kamp in first returns from their race for the House seat from the 27th Congressional District.

SAIGON — Despite an uneven pace of combat, 17 American helicopters have been shot down in the past seven days, the U.S. Command reported. It was one of the blackest periods for helicopter losses this year.

DES MOINES — Better treatment facilities, not stiffer penalties, are needed to deal with sex offenders, an Iowa Senate committee was told. One witness said the prospect of a 30-year prison sentence might "scare a molester into killing his victim to cover up his crime" and another contended that the stiffer the penalty the harder it is to convict a person.

WASHINGTON — A constitutional amendment calling for the direct popular election of the president in place of the present system of allotting electoral votes by states won overwhelming approval in the House Judiciary Committee. By a vote of 28 to 6 the committee gave the proposed amendment a strong push down the long and difficult road toward ratification.

WASHINGTON — A bill to raise the pay of congressional leaders was withdrawn from the Senate floor under heavy pressure from an economy bloc. It was sent back to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, a which now must determine a new course of action on the House-approved measure.

Foes of Sex Education Speak at House Hearing

DES MOINES — Several hundred determined-looking people jammed the Iowa House Tuesday night to hear friends and foes of sex education air their views.

From their applause, it was obvious the people favored anti-sex education speakers who warned that such training in schools would bring ruin to Iowa's young people.

Supporters of sex instruction in school said it would aid youth in understanding themselves and others.

Rep. Charles Grassley (R-New Hartford) told the more than 300 people that the House Schools Committee had called the hearing to determine whether sex education was necessary in Iowa schools.

If it was, Grassley said, the committee's second concern was with the way it should be taught.

Mrs. Russell Hedinger of Nodaway said sex instruction in schools would break down parent-child relationships, as well as harm the children.

Mrs. Hedinger said parents would be forced into defending their points of view against differing points of view their children learned in school.

This in turn would harm the pupil-teacher relationship, Mrs. Hedinger warned.

But another woman, Dr. Katherine Kopf, head of the family development section of the University of Iowa Department of Home Economics, differed with Mrs. Hedinger.

"We are not teaching promiscuity. We are not using pornographic material. We are not teaching intercourse to teenagers," Mrs. Kopf said.

Instead she said children were being taught to understand their growth and change before it takes place.

"There is enough hate in this world already," she said. "The time is here to educate for understanding. This is the goal of family life education."

Wear Flowers, Do Your Thing

Gentle Thursday will be this week and, according to one enthusiast, "The whole thing is to touch someone you have never touched before. Gentle Thursday is for everyone, both Greeks and hippies, sort of a gathering of the tribes."

A skit will be presented on the steps of Old Capitol at 10:15 a.m. There will also be "happy noise" — recorded rock music — but only between classes so there will be no disruption.

Thursday afternoon a live rock group will perform in front of the Union.

The whole idea is to do your own thing. Give flowers to other people and wear peace symbols because Gentle Thursday is a day of love and peace, sponsors say.

Planners also suggest painting peace symbols and flowers on your forehead and cheeks.

Gentle Thursday is gentle actions, flowers, candy, balloons, kites, beads, guitars, and quiet . . . a day to appreciate people according to another enthusiast.

The third annual Gentle Thursday is held each year on May Day, a holiday celebrated in most countries of the world.

Forecast

Cloudy and warmer Wednesday with a chance of showers late in the day. Highs will be in the middle 70s.

Snipers Cause Curfews in 2 Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Guard was ordered into Winston-Salem, N.C., and Cairo, Ill., Tuesday where curfews have been imposed after snipers fired at policemen and firemen.

Gov. Bob Scott of North Carolina ordered between 150 and 200 guardsmen into Winston-Salem, Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie sent a guard company to Cairo.

Winston-Salem's Mayor M. C. Benton, in decreeing a curfew from 9 p.m. Tuesday to 9 a.m. Wednesday, said residents will be allowed to go "to and from their jobs. But unless they are out on legitimate business, I want them to stay at home."

Snipers shot at firemen before dawn Tuesday as they sought to put out trash can fires near a housing development in the Negro section of the southern city. There were no injuries.

Cairo's City Council decreed its cur-few from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. until further notice. The curfew also continued in force an order closing all taverns in the city.

State troopers have been assigned to Cairo since fire bombings broke out Saturday. No injuries have been reported, and damage has been described as generally light. However, a two-story building was destroyed.

Firemen and supporting police were driven from a fire Monday night by what a witness described as a "blast of gunfire."

Motives for the gunfire and fire bombings were termed obscure, but recently Negroes have complained of harassment by a white group known as White Hats.

San Francisco, the scene Monday night of a battle between police and members of the Black Panther party as officers raided party headquarters, was described as peaceful Tuesday.

"They wouldn't tell us what they stood for. They said there were seven or eight things they wanted, but they never gave us a list of demands," said Gampel, general manager of Summit Associates, a rental management company. The firm has filed a $500,000 damage suit against strikers.

"We feel there are certain areas where we can work with the Tenants Union," said Gampel, "but certain demands are unrealistic and cannot be met."

The damage suits and eviction attempts have met with demands by the students for jury trials.

The Tenants Union has filed a federal antitrust suit charging the landlords with price fixing.

The students claim rents in the city of 66,000 range from $270 to $340 a month for a four-room furnished apartment with a living room, two bedrooms and a kitchen. University officials who coordinate listings of off-campus housing say the range is more like $240 to $300.

Ann Arbor Rent Strike May Expand

ANN ARBOR, — A rent strike in this college town threatens to spread to other college locations next fall as students explore a method of fighting what has long been a frustrating aspect of college-high rent for tight quarters.

About 1,200 University of Michigan students are withholding rent from private landlords, depositing the money in a bank at Windsor, Ont., Detroit's Canadian sister city.

"We took it out of the jurisdiction of the courts involved," said Barry Cohen, 19, of Chicago, who supervises the escrow fund established by the Tenants' Union. Cohen said the fund is approaching $150,000.

The university is not a target of the strike, and officials decline comment.

The students are seeking shorter leases, better maintenance and lower rents.

The major announced aim of the Tenants Union is to force landlords to recognize it as collective bargaining agent for the 15,000 students who live off-campus.

Stuart Katz, 25, a member of the union's steering committee, said a limited strike action has begun at Columbus, Ohio, home of Ohio State University. Katz, a student from Batavia, N.Y., said the Ohio strike results in part from talks with the Ann Arbor group.

Katz said strike action is under consideration at the University of California at Berkeley, Michigan State University and the University of Detroit. He added that requests for information have been received from students at Central Michigan University, Eastern Michigan University, Harvard, University of Kentucky and Bowling Green.

Landlords are not standing quietly by. Leaders of the strike have been sued for more than $1.7 million in damages. An injunction to halt the strike was sought Monday.

Jay Gampel, one of the landlords, says he finds it difficult to communicate with the strikers.

Tuitions here . . .

Student marchers and student representatives from the University returned from Des Moines Monday night, and all indications were that they had raised some questions but accomplished very little in gaining more money for education, a lower voting age and a reconsideration of a bill designed to complicate the voting residency requirements for students.

Although the lower voting age and the bill are important to college students, the pending increase in tuitions is by far the most serious issue which was raised in Des Moines Monday and at a rally here Friday.

Some students thought the answer was to march to show grievances. Other students think that a class boycott is the only answer. I fall into a category which doesn't know what to do. The increase in tuitions is tragic and will seriously affect many students — both from Iowa and out of state. The State Board of Regents, however, must somehow make up for the mutilation of the budget requests that has been done by the legislature.

If the legislators cannot open their eyes and see a good-faith protest of students across the state — students who know how much college costs and know that the cost is nearly out of range to many now — then any student action will be useless. But students will still be frustrated, and somehow, somehow, they will take those frustrations out on something.

— Cheryl Arvidson

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following editorial is reprinted from the Minnesota Daily.)

Students in general (who often allow themselves to be governed by rules written by petty, cowardly or simply paternal old men), are not easily upset.

Whether it is a matter of the price of textbooks, or parking rates, or registration procedures, or tuition increases or even indictments, the social injustice and liberal humanitarian beneficence so intensely extolled before student leaders fall to baldly pragmatic dogma of whatever the market will bear.

At the moment it seems the market will bear a tuition increase. The reasons advanced thus far to justify an additional burden on already financially strained students are:

1. Higher tuition will result in improved instruction.
2. College students nationally pay about one-third of instructional costs, and a hike in University tuition would bring student support nearly to that level.

3. A tuition increase will convince the legislature that the University is doing everything in its power to meet its financial obligations, and, suitably impressed, the legislature will appropriate more money to the University.

Higher tuition, however, at least at the level presently threatened, could not be expected to result in significant improvements in instruction as administrators have suggested it would. If the legislature appropriates to the University in accordance with the governor's requests, an increase in yearly tuition for approximately 45,000 students would raise the University's income by only $9 million over the biennium — not a very sizeable increase and one that could be expected to disappear under all-devouring inflation.

Stults criticizes coalition article

To the editor:
It's always good to remember that you can't believe everything you read — especially in a newspaper. A good example is the news item which was run on the front page of Saturday's DI concerning the tuition rally which was held on the Union patio Friday afternoon.

As everyone knows (everyone who has been interested enough to attend the mass meetings) the Coalition to Fight the Tuition Increase, prior to the rally which they sponsored, voted nearly unanimously to work toward two main objectives: that tuition be lowered, not raised; that corporations be taxed to take the burden of supporting the universities off the back of the working people who already pay too great a share of the taxes used to run a government which does not operate in their interests.

They also voted on what actions they would initiate in the attainment of these goals. They were also two: a rally; a boycott of classes to be held Tuesday, May 6.

This may be news to those of you who relied on The Daily Iowan for your information, however. In the news item which I mentioned above it was reported that the same group which sponsored the rally was also sponsoring a march in Des Moines which was held on Monday. It went on to describe the objectives of that march, which, in fact, bear no resemblance at all to the objectives of the coalition.

The interest which the people in the coalition have in lowering the tuition is not completely selfish. . . They want to make it very clear that they are concerned with the fact that the corporations, which get the most good out of the university since it supplies them with the executive manpower which they require, pay the least in supporting the institution. That burden is borne by the working people who can ill-afford to pay the taxes which are required of them.

Prior to Friday the editor had editorialized against the boycott. On Saturday the editorialized in favor of the march. It is only the extremely naive who still believe that editorializing stops where the deadline begins.

At armed Cornell confrontation—

Blacks win 'firsts'

ITHACA, N.Y. (CPS) — As five long days of confrontation came to an end last week at Cornell University, black students here could boast of several "firsts" in the campus revolt.

They had escalated the intensity of student protest several notches by their almost casual carrying of guns as they took over a building. And (perhaps not unconnectedly), they had won a clear victory, not from the school's administration but from its faculty.

The victory was that pressure from 250 black students, with some support from a number of Cornell's 14,000 other students, forced the faculty to rescind disciplinary reprimands its judiciary had given five black students for their part in a December-January protest.

Still unsettled, however, as the protest "officially" ended, and as Pres. James Perkins gushed his optimism about the university's future, were larger questions about the university's treatment of black students — questions that have been dividing the campus since last fall.

At that time, Cornell gave official support and approval to an Afro-American Studies Department and student center. As plans for the center began to be implemented, black students decided whites should not be involved in policy-making for it; a skirmish over that led eventually to last week's reprimands and to re-sentiment from some whites over the "undue amount of attention" a few blacks were getting from the university.

After the reprimands against the black students were announced, about 75 blacks invaded and took over Willard Straight Hall, the campus student center. They armed themselves with rifles, shotguns and handloaders of ammunition. At one point during their 48-hour occupation of the hall, they repelled a charge from white fraternity members.

On April 20, the dean of the Cornell faculty, Robert Miller, made an informal agreement with the leaders of the Afro-American Society. He told them the faculty would either rescind its disciplinary committee's reprimands or he would resign his post.

The students left Straight Hall peacefully. The next morning, the faculty chose to uphold the reprimands. Miller, true to his promise, resigned.

A faculty council appointed to advise the full body of professors then recommending the faculty reverse itself. Afro-American leader Tom Jones said it was "the end of the university."

And, then two days later, the faculty did resolve to nullify judicial proceedings against the five blacks. It also decided to "create a broadly-based body and recommend to the whole community our future courses of action."

In an almost pathetic plea, the resolution added to the students: "We hear you, we care, we are trying to understand you; and we want together with you to do something."

Although their action ended the immediate threat of violence at Cornell, many of the university's radical problems remain unsolved. And Cornell's black studies problems are typical of those which may soon be faced by other schools.

Several years ago, the school decided to concentrate on admitting and keeping more black students as a long-range goal. Once they were in, officials agreed (under some student pressure) to set up a special program in black studies. But the new programs then arose: black students felt like guinea pigs instead of students at Cornell; they wanted more control over black studies; they felt the school's treatment of them was "racist." And groups of white students better known in many quarters as "jocks" felt the university was going too far out of its way to cater to its handful of blacks.

The tensions created during five days of Cornell's showdown, and built up for months before, have only been slightly eased by the faculty action. And the guns, no doubt (despite bills introduced in the state senate by panicked legislators), will be put out of sight, but not so soon out of mind.

Dutschke assassin gets 7-year term

By KARL PETT
Student International Press Service

BONN, Germany (SIPE-CPS) — Last April 11, a young man named Joseph Bachmann made an attempt on the life of Rudi Dutschke, the head of West Berlin's student radicals. Last month, he was condemned to seven years' imprisonment.

Bachmann, who received a letter of pardon from Dutschke several months ago, stated at his trial that he was deeply repentant. His despair was demonstrated in five suicide attempts while he was in prison.

The trial, however, did not answer the question of why Bachmann tried to kill the leader of Berlin's equivalent to SDS. Perhaps he wanted to make a name for himself, perhaps he hated Communists, perhaps he was influenced by newspapers of the extreme right. He was a faithful reader of neo-Nazi periodicals and nationalist papers, and it was ascertained during the trial that he fired at Rudi and shouted, "Dirty Communist."

Bachmann was a house painter; he spent his free time painting pictures, especially the portrait of Hitler. Neo-Nazi propaganda overwhelmed him and produced in him the conviction that he should do something for his country — that he should battle against the "enemies of Germany."

He chose Dutschke without knowing whether he was a Communist or not, perhaps merely because he disliked him and because he hoped, through his action, to become a national hero.

The attempt turned German students against Conservative newspapers, especially those of the chain owned by Axel Springer and provoked a wave of messages to the injured Dutschke. Close to two-thirds of the letters were antagonistic; the others supported the youth's position.

Letters of support differed according to the writer's political position. Some praised Dutschke, exaggeratedly, as the greatest sociologist of our time, the future head of state and the spiritual father of German students. Other criticized recourse to violence by the students to overturn a regime they considered authoritarian.

One year after the attempt on his life, little is known of Dutschke's health; around him a curtain of discreet silence has been erected by his followers.

But his laborious return to full health seems to frighten someone in Europe; recently the French government refused him an entry visa to the country and added Dutschke to a long list of "undesirables" who former Pres. Charles de Gaulle preferred not to breathe on French soil.

Sports building revisited

To the editor:
Concerning the letter of Prof. Elizabeth Hutchins in The Daily Iowan April 26 and in FYI April 28, the following is evident.

1. Hours open for recreation do not equal manhours for recreation. For example the building may be open to faculty, staff and students from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. with 10 people present. This is 10 man-hours. If the building could be open to faculty, staff and students from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. with 100 people present, then this is 100 man-hours. To say that recreation has the greatest percentage of hours does not include consideration of the demand of these facilities, by numbers of people by time period.

2. Prof. Hutchins states that the Field House "has a morgue-like atmosphere after 3:30 p.m., despite the availability of such activities as archery, golf range, swimming, handball, volleyball and ping-pong. The men's weight room is the only area I have observed being used on every occasion that I have visited the Field House between 3:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m." In the cold of winter when indoor facilities are at a premium, the handball court reservations between 3:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. are all taken within five minutes of their availability at 8:00 a.m., according to the IM Office. The swimming pool is not available between 3:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. for swimming due to varsity swim team practice. Additional basketball facilities in the winter months were found to be needed by a questionnaire of students at the last registration by Prof. Hutchins' committee. Yet during winter months varsity teams use all basketball facilities between 3:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. in the Field House. The new Sports Building is reputed to have basketball play areas. There is no site for indoor volleyball for students between 3:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. due to varsity team practice on the Varsity Court, the North Gym and the Track. In fact during the winter the Field House can accommodate approximately 100 people recreating at one time during 3:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. To state that the Field House is a morgue after 3:30 p.m. is not accurate due to heavy use by athletics and limited usage for recreation.

3. Prof. Hutchins states, "If and when it can be clearly substantiated that the building would be well used for recreation at hours other than those provided in the current plan, then would be the time to consider alternate schedules, but not before that time." Kleindienst and Weston's "Intramural and Recreation Programs for Schools and Colleges," 1964, states: "Since heavy scheduling of intramural and recreational activities occurs between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., it is frequently very difficult in this period to find the necessary facilities to accommodate the program. The 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. period is also a peak period for athletic team workouts. Athletic teams take prime hours and are likely to continue to do so as long as the athletic division of physical education wins the greatest support from the general public." The January 30, DI refers to our present intramural director: "Berg lists Iowa's greatest demand time for recreation as 3:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m." Prof. Hutchins told me over one month ago that she had not yet talked with Mr. Berg, but meant to do so sometime in the future.

4. Prof. Hutchins states that rescheduling of times will "create major scheduling problems to both the Department of Men's Physical Education and Department of Intercollegiate Athletics." I have a letter from Dr. Donald Casady, Course Chairman, Physical Education Skills Program for Men stating that physical education will not use the Sports Building for classes because of the lack of lockers and its long distance from the Field House. Thus rescheduling will not cause any problems for Physical Education because they can't use the Sports Building. In fact a second scheduling proposal passed by the Grad Student Senate and forwarded to Prof. Hutchins does not include Physical Education in the scheduling of the Sports Building. The Sports Building is to be used for recreation all 7 days except 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday to Thursday when it can be used by Intercollegiate Athletics, according to the second proposal.

5. Prof. Hutchins is reputed to have said to the Faculty Council on April 15, as contained in the minutes published in the Faculty Reports of FYI, that a major problem of Recreational Advisory Committee is "misinformation and impatience of graduate students regarding the purpose and use of the new sports facilities." I ask the faculty, staff and students to be their own judge as to whether the Recreation Advisory Committee or grad students are correct concerning their statements.

6. Minutes from the same meeting as mentioned in point 5 state, "Alternate ways of financing recreation operations include such things as charging for use of facilities, diverting some of the student recreation fee to recreation and renting lockers and towel service to faculty." I ask where are student recreation fees going now if they are not going to recreation?

Mesquakie Book Drive Led by Action Group

By JOHN ROBINSON
A Mesquakie Indian book drive here has collected some 40 boxes of books, according to John Foley, G. Iowa City, the coordinator of the drive.

The library will be housed in the school building already owned by the Mesquakies, who are presently fighting a court battle to keep their schools open. If they lose they will have to send their children to the Tama public schools. If this happens, tribal officials fear Mesquakie school children will lose interest in the tribe's culture.

Cordle Wins 3-Cushion Billiard Title

Dennis Cordle, A4, Iowa City, won the three-cushion division championship at the International Intercollegiate Billiard Tournament held at the University of Houston, last weekend. Cordle set a national record in the tournament's history by winning his last match in 13 innings, with a score of 25-4. The match was over in 20 minutes. In the same tournament, Gail Allums, A4, Chicago, lost in her attempt to defend the women's championship title she won at the 1968 tourney. She finished 4th in the competition.

Gurney Hopes to Improve On 1-2-4 Indy Finish of '68

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Racing cars built by Dan Gurney finished first, second and fourth a year ago at Indianapolis and now he says he'll have better ones for this Memorial Day.

Gurney, the driver, wound up in second place in 1968 and wants to improve on that finish. Paradoxically, it might seem, his own car won't be the fastest one he's building.

"For a while we thought of driving the same Eagles we had last year," Gurney explained. "Along about November we decided to go to work on a new car."

This new Eagle will be different in over-all looks from Gurney's cars of 1967 and 1968. Lower and wider, it appears more angular.

Three of the new Eagles have been built for this year's race. Gurney drives one, Denny Hulme, the 1967 world driving champion from New Zealand, gets the second with Joe Leonard in the third.

Differences will be in power plants. Gurney's favorite will use a push-rod 320 cubic inch Ford engine developing 600 horsepower. The second is a four-cam turbocharged 351 cubic inch eight-cylinder Ford which can develop 700 horsepower.

"The turbo is faster on the straights," said Gurney, "but the rocker arm is faster in the corners, handles better and is not too much slower on the straights. Those are favorable factors in a 500-mile race."

Gurney said the turbocharged Eagle would reach 215 miles per hour on the Indianapolis straightaway and the push rod will do 204 to 205.

"We have tested them about 300 miles," the builder said, "and they turned up many things which we have already modified. The two cars present different problems when it comes to engine installation. The push rod engine is completely covered by a cowling while the turbo engine cannot be covered."

Two of the new Eagles, those driven by Gurney and Hulme, will be sponsored by Detroit industrialist Oscar Olson. The other was built for Ford Motor Company mechanic Smokey Yunick. Leonard, who won the pole position last year in Andy Granatelli's turbocar, will drive the Yunick machine.

Ashe Upset in England

BOURNEMOUTH, England — It was a day of upsets in the British hard court tennis tournament Tuesday with the biggest shock of all coming when Jean-Claude Barclay of France eliminated Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Ashe just never got going, except briefly in the second set. His service was off and his game was marred by errors to the steadier Barclay's profit.

Pro Football Headed For 13-13 Realignment Setup

NEW YORK — Pro football appeared to be swinging toward a 13-13 realignment Tuesday with three National League clubs joining the 10 American League teams in one of the two conferences of the merged leagues in 1970.

Each league met separately Tuesday, following long sessions Monday by their realignment committees. They will get to said Rozelle in answer to questions at an impromptu news conference.

"You must remember we are talking, not of two leagues, but two conferences within the National Football League."

Art Modell, president of the NFL and chairman of the league's realignment committee, also indicated he favored moving three NFL teams.

Prominent AFL people appeared to favor this solution to the merger, agreed upon in 1966 and to be completed in 1970.

There was no indication what teams might be involved. Rozelle said, in answer to questions, that literally a team could be forced to move "but practically, I don't know."

Atlanta, Baltimore, New Orleans, Minnesota and Dallas have been mentioned in rumors. Asked to explain the position of Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts, who had indicated he might be agreeable to moving, Rozelle said, "Carroll was asked in Palm Springs if he'd consider such a thing and he said he wanted the merger resolved and was open to anything. He did not say 'No, I won't go,' but he didn't make any deal. It came out later in the papers as though he said he wanted to go and wanted to name the teams."

If three NFL teams do move over, each would go into a different division of the new conference. Such matters as television markets, stadium availability, warm weather cities and park capacity must be considered.

"It will be necessary to have a balanced television package if we go to two different networks," said Rozelle. That would mean that the New York Giants and Jets, Oakland Raiders and San Francisco 49ers probably would be in different conferences.

Rozelle said the NFL owners Tuesday were to consider several plans, none of which was based on the original 16-10 plan that would have kept the two leagues intact.

The commissioner said that, for purposes of the merger, the owners must assume that teams like Boston and Buffalo, which have been mentioned in rumored moves, would remain in those cities and that adequate stadium facilities would be provided.

The NFL guideline calls for a city to have a stadium seating 50,000 either under construction or with firm building plans by 1970.

If the two 13-club conferences are set up, there would be four-team playoffs in each conference involving the three winners of the 4-4 divisions and a wild card team with the best win-loss record among the other teams in the entire conference.

Leonard Tose, who may become the new owner of the Philadelphia Eagles by May 1 sat at the NFL meetings as an observer. Joe Kuharich, coach and general manager of the club, led the voting.

"We are going to do our best to realign here," said Rozelle. "We want it. We want it badly. But you must remember this is a monumental decision for these people, some of whom have a tradition of 50 years in the NFL. If we don't do it here, we'll work some more and come back in two weeks."

PETE ROZELLE Football Realignment Looks

together for a formal joint meeting today to pick up the work started at the mid-March meetings in Palm Springs.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday he favored small divisions, home-and-home series with a division and retention of as much of the 10-year rivalry as is feasible.

"Shifting the three teams meets more of the significant factors than other proposals,"

Nelson Golf Sponsors Ask Earlier '70 Date

DALLAS, Tex. — The Byron Nelson golf classic sponsors will ask a later date on the PGA tournament next year — setting up the possibility of a double-header with Fort Worth's Colonial tournament played less than 30 miles away.

This could lead to a double jackpot winner of the two tournaments, Don Houseman, Byron Nelson tournament chairman, speculated Tuesday.

IM Head Berg off to Indiana

James Otto Berg, director of intramurals at the University since September, 1967, has accepted a similar position at Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind., effective Sept. 1.

In addition to his duties as director of intramural sports at Indiana, Berg will also teach a professional graduate course in physical education, advise graduate students, and be in charge of various sports clubs.

Berg announced his resignation as director of intramurals at the University in February. He resigned shortly after University Pres. Howard Bowen announced that intramural sports at the University would be placed under the administrative control of the Director of Athletics, Forest Evashevski. Before this administrative change, intramural sports had been under the supervision of the Department of Physical Education.

Intramural sports at Indiana is a separate division within the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. It is Berg's conviction that intramurals cannot be run effectively under the jurisdiction of the Athletic Department because of scheduling and facility conflicts which might arise.

Indiana, with an enrollment of over 30,000 students, has one of the top intramural programs in the Big 10 and the nation. Over 30 different sports activities were offered at Indiana the past year and the facilities, according to Berg, are excellent.

A newly constructed recreational complex at Indiana includes 4 gymnasiums, 9 basketball courts, 5 lighted outdoor intramural fields, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, an indoor jogging track, over 35 tennis courts, as well as facilities for the other intramural activities.

"Physical education, intramurals, and recreation at Indiana have priority and control over the use of these facilities," Berg said. "The Athletic Department has facilities of their own and the only intramural facility it uses is the indoor swimming pool."

Berg, despite displaying enthusiasm about his new post at Indiana, still has regrets about leaving Iowa.

"It has been most gratifying to see such enthusiasm and tremendous increases develop these past two years at Iowa in regard to student and faculty participation in intramural sports and other recreational activities," Berg said.

"I only wish adequate recreational facilities had been made available to reasonably accommodate all of the recreational demands and interests of the students and faculty. The students and faculty at Iowa are really great people and it has been a pleasure working with them and serving their recreational needs."

The position of intramural director at Indiana became open when its former intramural director died of cancer a year and a half ago. The job has been handled this year by two assistant directors and four graduate assistants, 11 of which will be on Berg's staff.

Schuette, Koering Strike Out 18 in Opener— Hawks Sweep Past Coe, 7-2, 4-0

By TOM STARR

Iowa's Hawkeyes took advantage of some fine pitching and timely hitting to sweep a doubleheader from Coe Tuesday at the Iowa Field. The Hawks took the first game by the score of 7-2 and came back in the nightcap 4-0. Al Schuette and Jim Koering allowed the Kohawks only three hits in the first game. Schuette started the game and struck out seven Coe batters while issuing two walks. The Kohawks got all three hits off Schuette. Koering relieved Schuette in the fourth inning and pitched no-hit ball the rest of the way. He fanned 11 of the 13 hitters he faced. The big right-hander was the winning pitcher as he upped his record to 3-3.

on a balk, and scored on a single by Hager. Iowa got its final run in the fifth when first baseman Mike Wymore doubled Cataldo in.

Cataldo's two singles led the Hawks at the plate in the second game. The Hawkeye center-fielder batted in one run and also scored one. Breshears ended the day with four hits in six at-bats. Krull was also a pest to Coe pitchers as he accounted for three stolen bases in the two games.

The Hawkeyes are now 12-13 for the season. Coe stands at 2-12. Iowa continues its busy schedule on the road this weekend. The Hawks travel to Wisconsin for a showdown against the big four to Northwestern on Saturday to take on the Wildcats in another twin-bill.

Safe at 3rd After Rundown—

Iowa's Gary Breshears advances to third base after getting caught in a rundown in the opener of a twin bill for the Hawks and Coe College. Iowa won both contests, 7-2 and 4-0 as Breshears stroked four hits in six at bats. Coe players are (left to right) pitcher Brian Kozlik, third baseman John Cech and shortstop Marty Wolfson.

the second inning. Singles by Stoney Jackson and Gary Breshears knocked in the first two runs and a solo homer by Schuette provided the third tally. Breshears scored on an error in the fifth for the fourth Hawkeye run. The Hawks picked up their final three runs in the sixth on hits by Breshears and Bob Cataldo.

Breshears went 3 for 3 in the game and collected two runs batted in. He also scored twice. In the second contest, the Hawkeyes scored single runs in the first, third, fourth and fifth innings while blanking the Kohawks to take the victory.

Iowa hurlers Bill Hager and Earl Foster held Coe to two hits. The first Kohawk hit was a two-out single by Bob Korschak in the fifth frame off Hager. The other hit was a sixth inning single by Doug Beiler off Foster.

The Hawks got on the scoreboard with two out in the first inning. Dave Krull walked to open the frame. After two flyouts and a stolen base, Cataldo stroked a single to drive in Krull. Krull scored again in the fifth inning. The Hawkeye shortstop singled, stole second, and crossed the plate on a single by Breshears.

In the fourth frame, Dave Almsbah walked, went to second

Cilek Injured In Scrimmage

Iowa's football team held its first scrimmage of the spring Tuesday and it could be a costly one for the Hawks. Backup quarterback Mike Cilek was knocked to the ground and had to be carried off the field.

Coach Ray Nagel called the scheduled 20-minute scrimmage short. Cilek was going back to pass when he was hit by nose guard Bill Windauer.

Cilek was taken to University Hospitals and later left walking on crutches. The injury was to his left leg — the same leg that was operated on last year. He will definitely be out of practice for the remainder of this week, according to Nagel. However, the Hawkeye Coach said he hoped Cilek would be ready to go Monday.

One of the nice little things about Morgan Optical is the price.

We're the first to admit that we don't offer anything that isn't offered by most other optical companies. The only difference is, we offer it for less. At Morgan Optical, you can buy prescription-perfect glasses for as little as $12.95. You'll pay $5.95 more if you need bifocals, $2 more for tempered lenses, and so on. But extras like these get even more at high-priced optical companies. That's why we say for comparable glasses, you can save from one-third to one-half at Morgan. How do we keep our prices down? Well, we have very efficient facilities for producing glasses. But then, so do most of our competitors. Actually, we can sell for less because of one small fact: we operate on a smaller profit margin. There's no difference in the quality; only in the price. That's our big difference.

Celtics Edge Lakers 89-88

BOSTON (AP) — Sam Jones hit a clutch 15-foot jump shot with one second remaining, lifting the Boston Celtics to a dramatic 89-88 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Tuesday night, evening the best of seven series at two games apiece for the National Basketball Association championships.

Jones, the 36-year-old veteran retiring after the playoffs, shook off a close guard, took a pass from John Havlicek and connected from the free throw line.

A crowd of 15,128, the largest pro basketball turnout in Boston Garden history, went into near hysteria as Boston's old pro, accustomed to the pressure-cooker, registered a second straight victory over the Lakers in a bid for their 11th NBA title in 13 years. The Celtics had failed to score from the floor for more than four minutes before Jones connected.

The Lakers led 88-86 before Boston's Emmette Bryant cashed a free throw with 15 seconds remaining. Bryant then stole a Los Angeles pass in and fed Jones, who was short with his field goal attempt. The ball went out of bounds and the Celtics got the ball with seven seconds left. The Celtics then called time out to set up Jones for the decisive basket.

Small Track Fugitive to Battle Big 4 in Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ocean Roar, a ragamuffin son of the great Swaps and a fugitive from the small tracks in Ohio, checked into Churchill Downs Tuesday for a showdown against the big four — Majestic Prince, Top Knight, Arts and Letters and Dike — in Saturday's 95th running of the Kentucky Derby.

The longest of long shots, (100-1) the castoff chestnut immediately captured the imagination of early rail birds on hand for the first leg of racing's triple crown. "We came here to run," insisted the horse's trainer, Gordie McLean. "We definitely will throw Ocean Roar's name in the box Thursday at a cost of $1,600. "We think we can win — especially if it rains." Ocean Roar vanned in overnight from Columbus, where last Saturday he won the De-cathlon Handicap.

Counterfeit Art Market Revealed— Master Forger's Art Draws Big Money

LONDON (AP)—A London art gallery has opened a show featuring paintings by a master forger who's now in jail in New York City. Half his pictures were sold by the official opening Tuesday night.

Unlike his previous and more shadowy efforts, this one-man show by English painter David Stein has run into no trouble from the police. The 40 drawings and paintings are labeled Chagall, Braque, Picasso and Matisse with prices ranging from $125 to $504. But all are signed clearly by Stein.

They are not copies but are done in the styles of the four modern masters.

Once Stein's technique was good enough to earn him almost $1 million and fool many collectors.

David Hepburn, 30-year-old gallery owner, said:

"I think it's a marvelous put-on. We've had lots of customers, even some titled people. People think they're amusing to have, and one or two were even bought as investments."

Stein, 33, was born in Egypt while his British doctor-father was doing research. His mother was French. He has a degree in literature from Paris and studied piano at the Paris Conservatoire.

In Paris he was working as a press agent for American film companies when, as he later told it, he visited Jean Cocteau and saw what looked like a Picasso painting.

Cocteau said he had done it himself and "Pablo liked it very much."

Although Stein never had any formal art training, the next steps were obvious.

During the next five years he produced more than 200 counterfeits. He also ran the Galerie Trianon on Park Avenue in New York, with a Palm Beach branch.

His forgeries were displayed alongside genuine works but in those days he signed the masters' names instead of his own.

Disaster struck when Marc Chagall, on a visit to New York, spotted one of Stein's Chagall fakes.

Stein was indicted on 97 charges of counterfeiting and grand larceny. He pleaded guilty and agreed to cooperate with the New York district attorney's office in telling everything he knew about the booming international market in art counterfeits.

'Atlantis' May Rise Again In U of Miami Sea Project

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—"Atlantis" is the name of a $100-million undersea laboratory proposed by the University of Miami.

If all goes well, the lab could begin operations within four years on the ocean floor near Miami. Its purpose: to develop a national capability for exploiting the continental shelf.

Atlantis would be a testing ground for future Navy underwater combat centers to direct antisubmarine warfare operations.

Industries could use Atlantis as a test station to develop remote-controlled equipment to mine the ocean floor.

Student Discovers Submerged Car

A University of Iowa student found a late model Pontiac while scuba diving Monday.

William H. Hilgendorf, A3, Charles City, discovered the car while diving at the Cedar Valley Quarry. The quarry is about five miles northeast of West Branch near Cedar Valley and the Cedar River.

Hilgendorf said he had been practicing diving in the area and did not believe that the car had been in the 30 feet of water for more than two weeks.

Cedar County authorities are investigating.

The Atlantis program appears to meet all major requirements for becoming a national continental shelf laboratory.

A national continental shelf laboratory was recommended in January by a special presidential commission while Lyndon B. Johnson was president. It was part of a reorganized national program the commission urged to advance America's capabilities in the sea.

If funds can be obtained in the fiscal 1970 budget to start Atlantis, officials hope to begin the design and begin manufacturing it in mid-1970.

FARMERS GETTING LESS FOR PRODUCTS IN APRIL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prices farmers get for their products dropped three-fourths of one percent during the month ended April 15.

Prices they pay for items rose the same amount to another record, five per cent more than a year earlier, the Agriculture Department reported Tuesday.

The decline in prices received was the first since last October. The price index had risen three consecutive months after remaining unchanged during last November and December.

The crop reporting board said the index of prices received was 270 per cent of its 1910-14 average, compared with 272 per cent at mid-March, 259 per cent a year earlier and the record of 313 per cent in February 1951.

PRO-BIAFRAN OHIO LEGISLATOR TO SPEAK AT CYR'S BANQUET

A U.S. Congressman who has just completed a "fact-finding tour" of Biafra will speak at a College Young Republican (CYR) banquet Friday night at the Carousel Restaurant in Coralville.

Donald E. "Buz" Lukens (R-Ohio) was the National Young Republican Chairman from 1963 to 1965. He won a Congressional seat in a newly created district in 1966 by defeating a professor from Miami University in Ohio.

Lukens has taken a pro-Biafra stand since the return from that country.

Following the 5:30 banquet, the CYR have scheduled a model legislature for Friday night and Saturday.

At a recent meeting, the CYR's passed resolutions favoring two bills pending in the Iowa legislature.

One is House File 774, which would prohibit students from voting in college towns where they do not have permanent residency. H. F. 774 was one of the issues proposed in a student march on Des Moines Monday.

The CYR resolution supporting the bill said "mobile registration has led to problems in determining accurate voting lists; and it is on record that college students have voted in their college towns and by absentee ballots in their home towns."

Opponents of the bill have said it is designed to prevent blocks of students who are usually Democratic voters from winning control from Republicans in college town areas.

CYR's also support Senate File

3 Faculty Members Highlighted in Debate

By MARIA AMBROSE

About 150 people heard three faculty members debate, "Can we Justify the Military-Industrial Complex?" Monday night as part of the College of Business-sponsored Commerce C'ring C'pree.

Stephen Ford, professor of Business Administration, Robert Boynton, professor of Political Science, and Col. Brooks W. Booker, Director of Conferences and Institutes at the University participated in the debate moderated by John Harlow, professor of Business Administration.

Ford stated that both the military and industrial sectors are unjustified in wielding the power they now have.

"The military establishment is as likely to cause conflict as to prevent it," Ford said. Ford cited the military mentality produced by the armed forces as one of the unfortunate byproducts of the military establishment.

Speaking of industry, Ford said that with the physical, technological and intellectual resources available in the United States, we are not producing what we could be.

"We have solved our production problems," Ford said, "but we have yet to solve our distributing problems."

"Business graduates are in a position to change the economic system. You have to decide whether or not you are going to pick a place in the system or work for a fundamental change," Ford said.

Booker, arguing in favor of the military-industrial complex said he would like to see the military dissolved.

"I would like to see the armed forces disbanded and wars ended. But there is no way until man can live in peace."

"We have to maintain a standing army and a military-industrial base to give us military parity," Booker said.

Boynton, taking the political scientist's view of the problem, said there is no solution.

"War is bad because it doesn't work. It is dysfunctional; it doesn't accomplish its goals," Boynton said.

He said he disregarded the idea of a conspiracy within the military-industrial complex to take over the country. "The military is attempting to serve our interests as they see them," Boynton said.

The real evil of the military-industrial complex as Boynton sees it is the tax money spent for defense that could go to hospitals, roads or improving conditions in the cities, he said.

During a discussion period following the debate, Anthony Costantino, professor of economics, stated that if it is all right for a young man to be drafted, to suffer economic losses and possible loss of life, then big industry which is profiting from the war should be made to suffer losses also.

Costantino's remark was greeted by applause from the nearly all-male audience.

This is the "something good" you've been looking for.

When you go shopping for "something really good" in stereo equipment, you usually have to pay more than you expected, or settle for something less than you expected.

The KLH Model Twenty-Four changes that situation—radically.

The Model Twenty-Four is a complete stereo music system. Its performance and sound quality are close—very close—to that of the best equipment that KLH, or anyone else, makes. But it costs only a fraction of what it sounds like. And it fits gracefully into any living room.

There's nothing missing from the Model Twenty-Four. It has a sensitive, drift-free FM stereo tuner, a custom-made Garrard record changer with Pickering cartridge and diamond stylus, plus jacks for external equipment and for making tape recordings. The solid-state circuitry is powerful enough for any living room, and the unobtrusive speaker cabinets contain a pair of full-range, two-speaker systems.

The modest size and price of the Twenty-Four are the results of advanced engineering instead of corner-cutting. Everything from its components to its oiled-walnut cabinetry is designed to provide a genuine surprise rather than that "nice for the money" feeling. Come see and hear how little it can cost for something really good.

New Fraternity Seeks Recognition, Has Revolutionary Set of Bylaws

A revolutionary social fraternity is being formed here.

Steve Miller, 21, Des Moines, and Bill Israel, 21, Sioux City, who originated the idea for the new fraternity, said last week the main function of the organization is "not to educate our members in the social graces, but to provide them with social opportunities."

Phi Phi Phi, the official designation of the new fraternity, provides changes which Miller and Israel say they believe are more appealing to prospective members than present fraternity regulations.

The three phases of fraternity living which are revised in the by-laws of Tri Phi are: the extensive pledge program, high initiation fee and social dues and the housing restriction that states a member must live in the house, Miller said.

Israel said the Tri Phi's pledge program is a pledge program in name only, and he added, "it doesn't concern itself with the ideals of fraternity brotherhood as put forward in other pledge programs." Miller said that pledges are on the same status with actives in Tri Phi.

"Many fraternities require the members to live in the house," said Israel.

"Tri Phi doesn't require the members to live in any special place to retain their memberships," said Miller.

"Most houses have a $75 to $125 initiation fee, and a $20 monthly fee for social dues," said Miller. "However $20 a month from each member would be enough to hire the Beatles if it were actually used for social purposes," he added.

"Tri Phi has a $5 initiation fee, a $5 fee for IFC dues per semester and $5 a month for a more realistic approach to social dues," said Miller. "This $5 for social dues can be suspended at any given month by a vote of the members if there is no need for the money," Israel said.

Miller and Israel said there are three main reasons why the new organization is trying to join the IFC instead of becoming a social club.

Tri Phi would be able to compete for new members along with other fraternities by having the organization publicized in IFC brochures, it would receive the prestige that goes along with being a fraternity and the organization would receive the benefits of the financial services provided by the University, they said.

John Cagle, assistant IFC adviser, said the IFC is willing to help the new organization if it wants to become a fraternity.

The idea of starting a new fraternity originated about a month and a half ago when Miller told Israel a fraternity had bid for him.

"We had planned to room together next year," Israel said, "and I didn't want to lose a roommate. So I asked Steve, 'Why don't we start a fraternity in the dorm?' He liked the idea and we sort of took it from there."

Israel said Tri Phi members would live in the dorms or off-campus for at least a few years until the fraternity could get a house. Tri Phi is pledging now and hopes to have 20 members — enough to receive probationary recognition from the University — by next week, Israel said. The fraternity plans to take part in both summer and fall rush, he said. Tri Phi may seek affiliation with a national fraternity next year, he said.

Men interested in pledging Tri-Phi are asked to contact Israel at 353-1076 or Miller at 353-0839.

Blacks Accepting Theatre, Actors' Equity President Says

By JANE LEONARD

The theatre is becoming more acceptable to blacks because they are now able to identify with it, the president of Actors' Equity Association told a group of about 60 persons in Shambaugh Auditorium Monday night.

Frederick O'Neal said that blacks have always been a potential audience, but that they have previously been unconcerned with "the world of the stage in which they hardly exist." He said the black has not attended the theatre because he was not represented on the stage.

"He can't support something he doesn't identify with," he said.

Speaking on the Black Action Theatre, O'Neal said blacks should seek community support.

"People must feel a need for the theatre. It can't be imposed on them. We must sell it to them," he said.

The essence of black theatre, he said, is a black point of view. He said the style of the everyday black life should be presented and just as black music changed American music, black theatre will change American theatre.

O'Neal took issue with a drama critic who said the crucial problem of black theatre was not finding black writers or black actors, but "getting rid of white money."

He said blacks must be realistic and "decide to sink or swim."

He said that no professional black or white theatres exist without financial problems. Even though the white theatre had every cultural advantage, he said, it is still financially dependent. He said that the black theatre might gain financial independence sooner than the white. Until then, however, the black theatre is based on the white establishment, he said.

Concerning the survival of the black theatre, O'Neal said the first consideration should be given to money. Large and small corporations, as well as individuals seeking tax deductions should be sought for financial aid, he said.

The question and answer period following O'Neal's address centered on an article distributed to the audience by Tom Marriot, G, West Branch, and his wife, Alice.

The article concerned Actor's Equity Association's prohibiting a performance by the New York Workshop at the Forum Theatre in Lincoln Center, New York City. Even though the actors' union was not performing in the theatre, it would not permit the workshop group to perform because Lincoln Center has a contract with the actors' union.

Marriot said O'Neal was in a unique position as both an actor and president of the union. He questioned O'Neal on the opposing artistic values and monetary values of the union.

O'Neal said that the union helped only those in the union. It exists, he said, to give benefits, such as hospital pensions and minimum wages to its members. He said the union had no social or political purpose.

When asked about the blacks who could not afford the $236 union membership fee, he said, "They are free to stay out. We don't seek them out."

Responding to a question, he defined a professional actor as one who had commitment and discipline. He said the union, however, defined a professional as one who belonged to the union and a non-professional as one who did not.

O'Neal's talk was interrupted by David Sundance, G, Iowa City, who objected to the lecture format. He was told that he would be allowed to participate later in the question and answer period. He said, however, that he did not want to participate, but only disapproved of the lecture method in a discussion of the theatre.

O'Neal's address was sponsored by the Afro-American Studies Committee, the Action Studies Committee and Union Board.

In addition to being president of the Actor's Equity Association, O'Neal is a member of the American National Theatre and Academy, Screen Actors Guild, American Civil Liberties Union, and NAACP. He received an honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts from Columbia College, Chicago, in 1966.

Professor's Work on List Of Best Books in Brazil

By BETTY BOWLSBY

A University professor's book has been voted third in the area of literary criticism in a poll of Brazilian critics. "Joao Guimarães Rosa: Travessia Literaria," by Mary Lou Daniel, associate professor of Portuguese, was the only book by a non-Brazilian on the list of the best Brazilian books of 1968.

Prof. Daniel's book came about as a result of her doctoral thesis in 1965 on Rosa, a contemporary Brazilian author.

Prof. Daniel corresponded irregularly with Rosa while she was doing her thesis. When she finished it in 1965 she sent a copy to Rosa. Rosa wrote back saying that her analysis of his writing was absolutely correct.

Rosa was so enthusiastic about her work that he took it to his publisher. At the same time Prof. Daniel's professor wrote the same publisher in Brazil suggesting that he publish the thesis.

The publisher agreed to print the thesis, but in Portuguese. This involved rewriting the entire thesis. Using the thesis as the skeleton for her book, Prof. Daniel said that she tried to take the Brazilian viewpoint as she wrote. Prof. Daniel made her first trip to Brazil when her book was released last summer.

Rosa was born in the interior of Brazil in 1908. He worked as an itinerant medical doctor in the backland region of Brazil. Rosa came to know the people of the backland area well.

Prof. Daniel believes that Rosa had a premonition of his death. In 1963 he was elected to the Brazilian Academy of Letters, the highest honor a Brazilian writer can attain. Rosa hesitated in taking his seat at the academy because, Prof. Daniel said, he had a feeling that he would die if he joined the academy. Finally in mid-November, 1967, he took his seat at the academy. He died three days later.

Prof. Daniel, a native of Florida, received her B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin. She came to the University in 1964 when the department of Portuguese was created.

Prof. Daniel's book will be on display with those of other Iowa authors for two weeks in the exhibition area of the Main Library beginning Thursday.

Nixon Requests Gambling Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration asked Congress Tuesday for tough new laws against organized gambling and authority to use wiretapping in enforcing the statutes.

The new curbs were proposed in a bill, entitled "Illegal Gambling Business Control Act of 1969" transmitted by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and embodying President Nixon's gambling control proposals.

Besides wiretap authority, the proposed legislation would give the federal government two new tools to combat large-scale operations.

Under one section, the bill would make it a felony for gamblers to bribe law enforcement or public officials to obstruct enforcement of state and local gambling laws.

The other provision would, for the first time, make it a federal offense to engage in large scale gambling activities.

County Gets Offer To Purchase Dam

The Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co. has offered to sell a dam on the Iowa River at Coralville to the Johnson County Conservation Commission.

The offer will be discussed by the commission at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Johnson County Courthouse.

The dam and generating station is located near the intersection of Fifth Street and First Avenue in Coralville.

According to officials of the company, the dam will not be removed if the commission should decide against the offer.

Commissioner Robert Osmundson said that if the dam were removed, the water level from the dam site to the Coralville Reservoir site would be lowered about 10 feet, causing probable elimination of fishing and boating in that area.

Senators Seek Repeal For Clinton Job Center

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate poverty subcommittee Tuesday approved on a party-line vote a resolution calling on the Nixon administration to suspend its plans to close down 59 job Corps Centers, including one at Clinton.

The resolution, proposed by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., is to go before the full Labor Committee Wednesday.

Minor Changes Seen In Missile System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's missile defense specialist raised the possibility Tuesday of a minor compromise in administration plans for the Safeguard antiballistic system.

Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard spent about two hours arguing the administration case at a closed session of Republican senators.

He said President Nixon wants to construct missile facilities at two sites to provide a prototype so that the nation will have a workable system if it needs one.

Nixon also has asked Congress to approve funds now to buy land for 10 installations, to be built later if they are deemed necessary.

Offering a slight concession, Packard told a news conference that the additional installations could be postponed, with no harm to the national security.

"I think the sites could be foregone for a year or two," he said, "but I'm troubled by the idea of postponing them until you actually need them."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen told newsmen he already has assured Nixon the Safeguard plan will win Senate approval by "a comfortable majority."

"The President contemplates no withdrawal and no modification," Dirksen said.

He said the House will act on the measure authorizing funds for the system within two weeks and the Senate later.

Refusing to discuss vote totals, Dirksen said "It will carry by a substantial margin in the House and by a very, very comfortable margin in the Senate."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.), said "I do not agree that that is the likely result."

He said the lineup of Senate votes is not clear yet.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.), like Javits a critic of the administration plan, said if there was a vote now he thought the Senate would reject the $900 million the administration seeks for Safeguard.

But he acknowledged the outlook could change.

Police Battle Protesters At Frankfurt University

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Police used water cannons and clubs Tuesday in a battle with about 400 demonstrators at Frankfurt University and police said 13 persons were taken into custody, including Daniel Cohn-Bendit, a leader of last year's riots in France.

Cohn-Bendit, who is known as Danny the Red, is a student at the university where there have been three days of disorders and demonstrations.

Student Leaders Talk to Legislators About Tuition Rise, Voting Proposals

By DON NICHOLS
DES MOINES — While 250 students marched on the State Capitol in Des Moines Monday, about 25 student representatives from the University spoke with state legislators in an attempt to "make them understand why we can't have a tuition increase at this time."

Monday morning Sen. Joseph Platt (R-Davenport), head of the senate sub-committee which studied budget needs for the three state universities, explained the legislators' proposed University budget to a few members of the group.

"Your rationale is good, according to your figures," Student Body Pres. Jim Sutton told Platt.

"But the budget has no correspondence to reality," William H. Harbor, Speaker of the House, tried to clarify for the group the problems of biennial budgeting.

Currently state agencies are funded on a two year basis, meaning they are given funds in one lump sum to be spent over the two-year period as the agency sees fit.

"Some state agencies are very frugal with their spending the first year and then spend like its going out of style the second year to justify increases in allocations for the following biennium," Harbor told them.

"This is also probably true of the State Board of Regents," he said.

Phil Dantes, A3, Waterloo, asked Harbor if the legislature had any means to follow up budget allotments of the University and the regents.

Dantes referred to a proposed swimming pool that is scheduled to be built for women students. Student studies show that women students do not want a swimming pool, but funds have been earmarked for its construction anyway, he said.

Harbor admitted the legislature had no means to prevent such "apparently unwarranted" allocations but that annual rather than biennial budgeting could improve misuse of allocated funds.

The legislature, because of the annual session amendment passed in November, will begin annual budgeting next year.

Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen told four members of the Iowa group that the University administration "gives a lot of lip service to how much they involve students in University affairs."

Jepsen added, "Now you of the quiet majority have started to speak out as I was hoping you would."

"I think the student body down here has been misguided, and we'd like to know about it," Jepsen added.

Although the group went to Des Moines to talk primarily about the University appropriations, several legislators voiced opinions about the 19-year-old vote and House File 774, a "voting reform" bill which has been criticized because residency requirements of the bill would prohibit students from voting in the towns where they attend school.

Baker Appeal to High Court Expected to Be Made Today

A local court ruling on a suit against the First Presbyterian Church here is expected to be appealed today to the Iowa Supreme Court.

Action taken by Southeast Iowa Presbytery, which will meet Tuesday at Washington, Iowa, will determine whether or not a local church couple will continue the appeal.

The civil suit was originated by Prof. and Mrs. Joseph E. Baker, of Iowa City, after the two were placed on "indefinite suspension" after a church trial in 1968. At that time the couple were found guilty of "disturbing the peace and unity of the church."

Baker said that there would be no need to pursue an appeal to State Supreme Court if they were restored to full standing in the church. The ruling of the District Court at issue said the matter was a church concern which the civil courts had no right to enter.

to full standing in the church or, in effect, excommunicate them.

The disagreement between the Bakers and the local church arose from a proposal to demolish the 113-year-old church despite a congregation vote on Oct. 6 against constructing a new building on that site.

The Bakers have filed a church complaint against the session, the church's ruling body, charging it with the same thing that (the Bakers) were charged with, disturbing the peace and unity of the church.

Baker said that there would be no need to pursue an appeal to State Supreme Court if they were restored to full standing in the church. The ruling of the District Court at issue said the matter was a church concern which the civil courts had no right to enter.

Election Reform Bill Meets Local Democrats' Opposition

By KIRK WINKLER
A controversial election reform bill is meeting stiff opposition from Johnson County Democrats, who say the measure would disenfranchise many of the state's college students.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Richard F. Drake (R-Muscatine), says that a person attending an educational institution or living in the area of such a school with the intent of resuming his studies, or any other person whose residence in an area could be considered temporary, is not considered a resident for voter registration purposes. That would mean, according to the bill's critics, that a student at the University could not vote in Iowa City.

Rep. Joe Johnston (D-Iowa City) said that "the purpose of the bill is not to reform election laws but rather to restrict the rights of large numbers of voters, particularly low income and student citizens."

"It is no accident that those people who stand to be disenfranchised happen to be Democrats," Johnston said.

Mrs. Arthur A. Small, chairman of the Eastern Iowa American for Democratic Action (ADA), contended that the bill made college students "a special group of second class citizens." She also charged that the measure was "only another example of Rep. Drake's support for the privileged establishment."

Robert Lehrman, G, Cedar-rush, N.Y., the co-chairman of the Johnson County Democratic Conference, a Democratic party reform group, said that "it would be unfair to blame all Republicans for this" but that one group of Republican state legislators "wants to make it twice as hard for students to vote as for anybody else."

"In addition they want them to vote in elections, taking place hundreds and sometimes thousands of miles away from where they live," Lehrman said.

"Finally," Lehrman said, "while not allowing a student at the University of Iowa to claim Iowa City as his residence, they want to allow Johnson County to claim the student as a resident in its census for revenue purposes."

Marion Neely, chairman of the Johnson County Republicans, said that he had been in Washington and had not had time to study the bill. He said that it was his understanding that the bill would also eliminate irregularities with mobile registrars and absentee voter ballots, which he said had been missed in Johnson County and around the state. Neely said he would not make any further comments on the measure until he had had time to study it.

Features of the bill not under such direct attack include: Allowing residents who move from one area of the state to another to vote in their old precincts until they qualify for residency in their new home precincts. Iowans who move out of the state could vote in Iowa for the President and Vice President of the United States if they had not met the residency requirements in their new home states.

Increasing the pay of election officials.

Standardizing the location of places of registration and the times they would be open.

Sections of the bill concerning curtailment of mobile registration and changes made in absentee voting procedure have come under attack, as has the proposed change that would make voters present some form of identification that includes their signatures to the election officials at the polling places. Democrats charge that these changes are designed to make registration and voting more complex.

Singing Minister, Wife to Tour Here

A guitarist-singer Episcopal clergyman and his wife, who have received wild ovations throughout the country, will be at The University Sunday to meet with student religious organizations, preside over an ecumenical service and present a Union Board Concert.

The Rev. Ian Mitchell and his wife, Caroline, of New York City, will begin their day of whirlwind activities with informal conversation at Christ House, the Lutheran Student Center, from 2 to 4 p.m.

At 5 p.m., Mitchell will preside over an ecumenical Eucharist service, to be held in Wesley House Auditorium. Sponsoring the service will be the Catholic Student Center, the Anglican Community, Wesley Foundation and Lutheran Campus Ministry.

Both events are free, and tickets are not required.

The couple will end their day by presenting a Union Board Concert at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. The public may purchase concert tickets for $1.50 at University Box Office in the Union.

Tickets will be available to students for 50 cents with the presentation of student identification cards.

Mitchell, who describes himself as a "priest-worker in the entertainment business" and his wife as a "housewife-mother-entertainer," has traveled with his wife over much of the United States to perform in churches, schools, concert halls, coffee houses, theatres and night clubs.

The couple has appeared also on television programs, including Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show.

The road to popularity began for Mitchell when he wrote the American Folk Mass in 1960 while serving in an inner-city mission to Chicago. It was this work that prompted the late Joseph Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis, to commission him to adapt the Roman Catholic English lan-

Injuries to Firemen in 1969 Run Ahead of '67, '68 Totals

By RON JACKSON

The number of injuries to firemen in 1969 are ahead of previous years according to Iowa City Fire Chief, Dean Bebee.

Bebee said recently that 15 firemen have been injured so far this year. This figure is five more than the 1967 total and two more than 1968 total.

One of the main reasons for the increase in the number of injuries this year was the fire and explosion at Mercy Hospital in which seven firemen were injured, Bebee said. On of the seven injured in the April 7 explosion, Robert L. Hein, 44, 1153 Hotz Ave., is still listed in critical condition at University Hospital.

Bebee said that the most common injuries to firemen are to their back and knees. He said that many times a fireman is unable to see because of the smoke and, as a result, receives cuts on the knees from broken glass and nails. Another common type of injury, Bebee said, is smoke inhalation.

According to Bebee, the equipment used to prevent injuries includes self-contained oxygen masks and a cart for removing refrigerators so that back injuries will be prevented.

Bebee said that equipment such as asbestos suits would take up too much room on the trucks from vital equipment and therefore aren't used. Equipment is packed on the trucks in order of preference, he said.

Bebee said that in the 19 years that he has been on the force, there has not been a fatal injury to a fireman. He said the closest he had seen a fireman come to his death was about five years ago when the old Bremers clothing store, 120 E. Washington, caught fire. He said that fireman Don Dolezal, 512 Church St., fell two stories through the weakened roof into the fire below and was very seriously injured. Dolezal is still on the force.

WEST HIGH CONCERT—

West High will present a choral concert Thursday. The concert starts at 8:00 p.m. and will be held in the Little Theater. Both the concert choir and glee club will perform. David Krause is the conductor.

N.Y. Lawyer Cries Frame Up In Rockefeller Assassin Plot

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney William M. Kunstler said Tuesday someone was trying to frame him in a possible plot to assassinate New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Kunstler, who has represented civil rights activists and members of the Black Panther party, called a news conference to reveal the alleged attempt to implicate him, but he did not cite any indications that a plot was in progress other than an-

Ray To Approve Equal Tuition Bill

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Robert D. Ray said Tuesday he plans to sign a tuition grant bill which Atty. Gen. Richard Turner last week declared unconstitutional.

Turner, who is also a Republican, claimed the proposal violates the constitutional separation of church and state.

"I want to read the bill carefully, but it is presently my intention to sign it," Ray said at his morning news conference.

The measure would provide grants of up to $1,000 for Iowa students attending in-state private colleges and universities, many of them church-supported or church-affiliated institutions.

Ray said the grant program is similar to the "GI bill" in that the money goes to the students, not directly to the colleges.

onymous telephone calls.

One of the calls, he said in a sworn affidavit, referred to a person prepared to assassinate Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for $100,000.

Another of the calls, he said was "from a person who first identified himself to my wife as Eldridge Cleaver and then to me as a friend of Mr. Cleaver." The caller asked him to meet Cleaver, a Black Panther leader who is believed to have left the country, at a nonexistent address in Manhattan to receive money involved in the plot, Kunstler said.

A caller had used two other well-known names on previous calls, Kunstler said. He refused to reveal the other names, saying "I did not reveal the name of Cleaver since I did not consider the remarks by his alleged friend as incriminating to anyone but myself."

He said he had informed Mrs. Cleaver of the call.

The State Police Bureau of Criminal Identification confirmed that Kunstler had contacted them about the alleged plot. The police said it was a "security matter" and would not say what their investigation had revealed.

No comment was immediately available from Rockefeller's office.

Kunstler is defending 21 Black Panthers indicted for conspiracy to bomb department stores, railroads and other facilities in the New York area.

FirstCard is more than a charge card. It's a better idea about buying things.

A better idea because FirstCard is the one card that lets you charge everything . . . merchandise, auto repairs, meals, transportation, lodging . . . everything!

A better idea because you keep track of one figure for all your charges. One monthly statement, write one check, keep track of one figure. There's no service charge if you pay in full within 25 days. Or, budget your payments over a long period of time. Better because you can even borrow cash; up to $250 at member banks. Better because it lets you take advantage of sales and specials. Better because you're not responsible if the card is lost and you report it to your bank.

FirstCard. Simply stated, it's the hardest working charge card, and it costs you nothing to get.
