TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Anti-American students battled police Thursday night in a second flareup of violence sparked by the visit of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller on a mission for President Nixon.

Students burned a Honduran flag on the steps of the National Cathedral where a youth was killed in Wednesday's clash.

Ads Still Puffing

NEW YORK (AP) — Cigarette companies are buying network television advertising at an undiminished rate for next season despite the possibility of a government ban after June 30.

"The cigarette guys are puffing," said an NBC spokesman. "Traditionally they're early buyers and they buy for 32 weeks."

He said the difference between purchases for next season and previous seasons was "hardly measurable."

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today President Nixon once more "has shown sincere good will to go forward to serious and useful talks with the Communist side to bring peace to Vietnam."

Thieu added that his government believes Nixon's peace plan is "not contrary to the spirit" of the government's own basic program.

Premier Tran Van Huong Thursday had called Nixon's proposals encouraging at a meeting with visiting Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

All Systems Go

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The Apollo 10 astronauts sharpened their flying skills in jet aircraft Thursday after hearing the weatherman predict satisfactory conditions for a Sunday liftoff on their around-the-moon journey.

"The weather at this time of year could change radically," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman cautioned, "but there is now no reason to believe that weather will interfere with an on-time launch" for Apollo 10 astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan.

Ask Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-three House members introduced Thursday a bill calling for a 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits.

The move apparently was designed to step up pressure on the House Ways and Means Committee to consider this year legislation for an increase.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) has said he favors an increase but doubts that the committee, now engaged in extensive work on tax revision legislation, will complete action before 1970.

Union Fund Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials of the United Mine Workers Union (UMW) privately set up a four-man pension fund for themselves out of miners' dues, Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W. Va.) complained Thursday.

The special fund, now worth more than $1.5 million, will permit the four to draw their present salaries when they retire, the West Virginia Democrat said.

In a speech to the House, the congressman also reported family members of two UMW officials received more than a quarter million dollars from the union last year.

Slight Face Lift May Show in DI

You may have noticed a change in The Daily Iowan today, but not be able to quite put your finger on it.

Well, it's the new type faces we are using. The new faces are slightly larger as well as clearer and crisper in design than the type face that has been used until now.

The new regular body type face is called Corona 9-point and all material in bold letters (the darker ones) is set in Erbar 9-point.

Both the new faces were designed specifically to save busy newspaper readers from having to squint through their newspaper every day. And, since no one is any busier than students, we thought we owed our readers the favor. So here it is.

Burge 'Fire' Controversy Heats Up

By CONNIE HUGHES

State Fire Marshal Wilbur Johnson told The Daily Iowan Thursday he plans to discuss state fire code violations discovered in a May 2 inspection of Burge Hall with the Board of Regents at their next meeting.

The violations, which were listed in a letter received Thursday by the State Board of Regents, University officials and a student senator, are infractions of the State Fire Marshal's Code, published in 1961.

- They are:
- Dead end corridors in the east and west wings of Maude McBroom House.
 - Dead end corridor in the west wing of Ruth Wardall House.
 - Dead end corridor on the first floor.
 - Open pipe cases such that vents in the kitchens, showers, and restrooms open on to those pipes causing a potential danger of smoke and fire spread.
 - Fire alarm stations covered with glass with no instrument available for breaking the glass.
 - Insufficient number of exit signs in the basement area.

The letter was addressed and sent to David Yepsen, Al. Jefferson, with additional copies being sent to R. W. Richey, executive secretary of the Board of Regents; Phil Connell, assistant to Pres. Howard R. Bowen; Ted M. Rehder, director of dormitories and dining services; Prof. Franklin J. Kilpatrick, director of the Department of Preventive Medicine and Environmental Health; and Darel Forman, Iowa City fire marshal.

Yepsen, a student senator, had requested that the state fire marshal make an inspection of Burge in response to a report of allegedly unsafe conditions in Wardall and McBroom houses of the girl's dormitory.

The inspection was made by Robert Smith, a state fire inspector, and Forman.

State officials had last inspected Burge five years ago.

Johnson told the DI he had not yet contacted the regents to discuss the Burge violations or to make definite plans to talk to them at their next meeting, but, he added, "The regents will probably contact me when the news gets out."

Asked what actions might be taken if the regents decline to make any move to correct the violations, Johnson said "court action could be taken."

The Fire Marshal's Code gives the fire marshal the authority to force buildings built before the Code went into effect into compliance with the Code.

The regents' next meeting will be here in June and, if Johnson doesn't meet with them before then, any state-initiated legal action would not appear likely until late summer.

Legal action from another quarter may be initiated before Johnson meets with the regents, however. The Student Senate passed a resolution Tuesday night which authorized the establishment of a fund to be used in seeking an injunction against the University to prohibit it from issuing room contracts for those portions of Burge in violation of the Code.

Yepsen, the senator who introduced the bill, said he contacted Rehder, the man ultimately responsible for implementing corrective measures, Thursday afternoon.

Yepsen said he asked Rehder for a written statement assuring that the dormitory system would take steps to correct the violations. Yepsen said Rehder refused to give him such a statement.

"I think the dormitory office should be given a chance to initiate some action," Yepsen said. "We (the senate) will give them a week to show some progress in correcting the violations before we decide to take further action on the injunction."

Rehder told the DI he had suggested that Yepsen contact him at the end of the week "to see what we had decided to do. We are considering the feasibility and cost of putting in fire escapes."

The fire escapes Rehder referred to would be put at the ends of the dead end corridors in Wardall and McBroom. These fire escapes would correct some of the violations.

The controversy surrounding the Burge violations was precipitated by a news story appearing in the DI on May 6 which revealed that the violation had existed for almost eight years and that the University had been aware of them for all that time. The DI story cited two reports written during the eight-year period by Kilpatrick pointing out the violations.

George Horner, the University's chief architect, was quoted in the May 6 story estimating that the cost of installing three 44-inch wide fire escapes at the ends of the corridors would cost between $15,000 and $20,000. Horner was out of town Thursday and could not be reached to find out if the figures have been revised.

A statement released Thursday afternoon, Merritt C. Ludwig, vice president for planning and development, said, "We know that Burge does not fully comply with these new standards (the State Fire Marshal's Code of 1961), and it is the intention of the University, within the funds available, to correct any serious deficiencies not only in Burge but also in other dormitories."

"At the time Burge Hall was built, the Iowa Code relating to dormitories and similar structures was not very specific concerning many features affecting fire safety. To be certain that the design would meet proper standards, the University directed the architects to follow provisions of the Chicago code, then considered among the strictest in the country. They did."

"So the question is not whether conditions in a building violate current codes. Perhaps every structure in use on the campus fails to come up to 1969 standards unless it was erected last year. The question is what can and should be done about such conditions. The answer is not a simple matter of law; it is a matter of judgment, and judgments are made by University officials and fire safety authorities."

"The most difficult problem for the University comes when the correction requires major reconstruction or substantial remodeling. Literally millions of dollars could be expended to correct these conditions."

"And so the University faces an uncomfortable dilemma; it must maintain use of many structures which everyone knows do not comply with modern fire safety standards, but it is either physically or financially impossible to overcome all such deficiencies. In these circumstances, the University must determine which conditions are most serious and apply limited resources to correcting them."

Because dormitories are self-financing, the cost of correcting the violations would have to be taken out of dormitory fees collected from students — the amount of which would depend on the occupancy of the dormitories next year — or from the dormitory system's reserve fund. The reserve fund is used for maintenance, repairs and payment on bond debts when the dormitories run short of money.

The controversy surrounding Burge Hall was precipitated in the main by the dead-end corridor violations. Those violations were noted in inspection reports prepared by Kilpatrick and distributed to University officials in August, 1962, and July, 1967.

The Student Senate passed its injunction bill mainly on the knowledge of those reports and on information concerning the inadequate pipe insulation, since the other violations were not made public until Thursday.

The senate took other action prior to the injunction bill when it passed a resolution on May 5 condemning the University administration for what it called "extreme negligence" in failing to follow the State Fire Marshal's Code concerning fire safety standards.

The resolution also urged that "any girl living in one of the three wings in violation be allowed to break her dormitory contract, inasmuch as the University has already renege on the contract."

Police Break Up Riot at Berkeley In 'People's Park'

BERKELEY (AP) — Police used shotguns and tear gas to break up a riot over possession of a vacant lot owned by the University of California, and 50 persons were injured late Thursday.

In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan called out the National Guard.

A terse announcement from Reagan's office said: "At the request of the mayor, city manager and chief of police of Berkeley and the sheriff of Alameda County, Gov. Reagan has ordered the National Guard into active duty in the Berkeley area."

At least nine of those injured were hit by birdshot.

A highway patrolman was knifed in the chest, two other officers were hurt, and up to 40 persons were treated for gas inhalation, cuts and bruises. Most were not serious.

More than a score of rock-throwing demonstrators were arrested.

By late afternoon, the area just south of the campus was deserted except for police at every corner.

The scene was set a month ago when foot-loose young residents took over the lot on Telegraph Avenue and converted it into a "People's Park," complete with shrubs, sod, brick walks and lawn furnishings.

The university, preparing to use it for new athletic facilities, ordered them off. At dawn Thursday, police routed 75 overnight squatters, arresting four.

Rallying in front of the university's administration building Thursday afternoon, a crowd of 1,000 to 1,500 nonstudents and students marched on the lot seven blocks away. Workers had nearly finished surrounding it with an 8-foot steel fence.

A youth wounded by police fire is given first aid on a rooftop (top, center) while a shotgun packing officer stands on alert on a Berkeley, Calif., street Thursday during bloody clash between youths and police that followed a rally at the nearby University of California campus to protest fencing in of a "people's park" built on school property. — AP Wirephoto

CSL Moves to Abolish Campus Women's Hours

By CATHERINE BORCKARDT

Women's hours will be abolished if a motion made by the Committee on Student Life (CSL) Thursday is approved by University Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

Student Body Pres. Jim Sutton made the motion to abolish women's hours during discussion of a request by Associated Women Students (AWS). AWS had asked the committee to make two changes in the current hours regulation. The group asked that the parental permission requirement for sophomore women desiring to have no hours be abolished and that academic probation no longer negate the hours privilege.

Sutton and Ira Reiss, professor of sociology and anthropology, suggested that the entire women's hours policy be dropped.

Vote on the measure was 6 to 1, with Sutton and Reiss joined by John Bowen, associate professor of speech and dramatic art; Linda Gassman, A3, North Liberty; Carl Stuart, A4, Keokuk; and Mitch D'Olier, L1, Chicago. Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs, voted against the motion.

In other action, the committee approved a redraft of a proposal by Associated Residence Halls (ARH) asking for changes in intervisitation regulations.

Under the proposed new policy, housing units would set up intervisitation hours as a whole. The current policy requires each house or floor of a dormitory to establish its own hours.

According to ARH representatives, the old policy caused difficulties when separate houses on the same floor had different intervisitations, because residents did not know when it was safe to travel the halls in less than modest dress.

The proposed policy would make the residence halls autonomous in their decisions, removing a regulation that intervisitation hours be approved by the Office of Student Affairs.

No motion of the committee becomes University policy until it is passed by Bowen. Daniel Moe, chairman of the CSL, said the motions would be communicated to Bowen immediately.

The final portion of the meeting dealt with recommendations of the Student Senate Committee on Rights and Freedoms of Students.

The committee had recommended changes in the CSL's draft of a new Code of Student Life, particularly with respect to Section 15 of that draft's general conduct regulations dealing with non-Code regulations set up by other bodies in the University.

The discussion turned on questions of what a code was supposed to provide in terms of student protections. Further discussion of that matter and of Section 16 was tabled because of the hour and because not all members of the committee were present.

'Go Urban, Young Radical,' Sociologist Suggests Here

To be an effective radical, one must work in the cities — "the heartland of industrial imperialism" — a member of the University of Minnesota's sociology department told a group of about 15 in an afternoon panel discussion in the Union Illinois Room.

Evan Stark, an activist in Minneapolis grass-roots politics, and three other panelists led a discussion on the "University and Society," — part of the three-day conference on the Nature of the Democratic University sponsored by the New University Conference and the Action Studies Program.

"The economic base of the city has moved to the suburbs, but the central city still retains the political power," Stark said. "The people presently in the city lack the political power to improve their situation."

"Professionals, especially university professors, should work through a political party to gain control of the cities," he suggested.

"They should stop being spies in the enemy camp," he said.

The danger of university sociologists, for example, is that they write scholarly papers on the poor which cannot be read by the poor, he emphasized.

The most dangerous things they write are not for the government, but in sociological journals, Stark said. The middle class can afford to pick a loser in sports, Stark explained, but not in economics or politics. The middle class is motivated by self-interest, not suppressed by the establishment, he added.

Most college students also seek self-interest "despite their temporary and fake poverty," he said. Stark said sit-ins and "love-ins" and other activities were "outlets for tears normally shed in everyday middle class life."

He suggested that summer or semester internships in communities for both students and faculty members would help to break the barrier between the college and the city.

Laird Addis, University associate professor of philosophy, said students no longer have future preferences.

Students don't believe in the after-life, the perfection of man or the perfection of society, he said, adding that they do not see present hard work as bringing future success. They think college is a "bad experience," but that the future will not be better, he said.

Bob Heifetz, an urban planner from the University of Illinois, agreed with Stark that professionals have a commitment to the public which they do not practice.

Deal with Wolfson over Fortas Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department officially denied Thursday that any deal was made by jailed tycoon Louis E. Wolfson in return for his cooperation in an investigation of Justice Abe Fortas the embattled Supreme Court Justice who resigned earlier in the day.

The Justice Department statement, passed out late Thursday after numerous inquiries were made by newsmen, marked the first time the department had officially acknowledged that information had been obtained from Wolfson about his relationship with Fortas.

"We wish to make it plain," the statement said, "that Mr. Wolfson's testimony was under compulsion of process and not as a volunteer."

Meanwhile, Senate leaders said the Fortas case is going to bring closer scrutiny of future Supreme Court nominees — and perhaps a financial disclosure law covering all federal judges.

There were demands on Capitol Hill that the Justice Department make public its files on the Fortas matter.

And Rep. Clark MacGregor (R-Minn.) insisted that the House Judiciary Committee should go ahead with an investigation of the entire affair.

To that extent, at least, Congress appeared unwilling to drop the Fortas matter despite the resignation of the embattled justice, who admitted accepting, then returning, a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of Louis E. Wolfson, now in jail for stock law violation.

MacGregor introduced two bills he said he hopes will prevent "another Fortas case" from occurring.

One would make it a federal offense for any federal judge, member of Congress or policymaking official in the executive branch to receive more than a $500 for a speech, published work or any nongovernmental service.

The other would require quarterly disclosure by the same officials of all income outside their government pay.

The department statement said the government approached Wolfson through his attorneys and said it wished to interview him in connection with the activities of the Wolfson family foundation. "At that time the attorneys were told that if Wolfson declined to consent to an interview the government intended to subpoena him before a grand jury and compel his testimony," the department said.

"The attorneys were also advised that in the event he decided or elected to refuse to answer any questions upon the basis of his Fifth Amendment rights, it was the government's intention to immunize him from prosecution, proceed with the interrogation and obtain from him under the compulsion of process the information that the government needed."

"After being informed of this situation and consulting their client, the attorneys stated that Mr. Wolfson would not voluntarily give any information. Accordingly, they were told that a grand jury subpoena would be served upon him in due course."

The department still did not disclose what information it had obtained from Wolfson that might have incriminated Fortas, who resigned Wednesday.

Believe it or not

Reprinted from the Chicago Tribune

As the dust settles at some campuses and others prepare to meet their own unmakers, it is refreshing to take a look at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

In some ways, it is not very different from Cornell or Columbia or California or Harvard or the others: 24,000 students; an excellent academic standing; and R.O.T.C.

But in other ways it is almost unique these days. The students are clean-cut. The hippie look is almost nonexistent. Students stand when the "Star Spangled Banner" is played. The R.O.T.C. is respected and growing. Classes are well taught and well attended. Brigham Young has never had a serious demonstration.

First, it is a religious school run by the Mormon church and has a long tradition of discipline. We're not saying that every college can or should adopt its rigid rules against drinking and even smoking, but the fact that these rules are adhered to without riotous protests suggests a respect for authority and tradition that is rapidly disappearing at other institutions with vastly more years and tradition behind them. The students at Brigham Young seem to be more interested in getting a good education than in reforming everything in sight. Brigham Young has maintained high standards of admission, but not to the exclusion of minorities. True, there are very few Negroes enrolled, but this is only because there are few Negroes in Utah and few applications from Negroes. The university does have 200 American Indian students and 100 Polynesians, and has a broad and generous program of scholarships.

Brigham Young's faculty is generally as interested in providing a good education as the students are in getting one.

As for what is called social involvement, Utah has for some time had the best record in the country in terms of voter participation. In the 1968 election, 76.1 per cent of eligible Utah voters cast their ballots, whereas the national average was only 61 per cent and in New York and California, where the shouting against the "establishment" seems to be loudest, the figures are even lower.

Utah's concern for community affairs is reflected, logically enough, in the desire to provide and to obtain a good education at Brigham Young with a minimum of disruption. Outsiders had better look to their own record before trying to tell us that Utah is out of step.

Addendum . . .

It is not a question of whether outsiders would look to their own record in order to determine whether Utah is out of step, but whether factors conducive to campus upheaval are present at Utah.

Indeed, Brigham Young is a religious school and because it is Mormon, there should be small wonder that there are few Blacks. The Mormon church believes that blacks are members of a cursed race dating from the time of Cane and Able, and although the church allows blacks to be members, it does not allow them to hold any church office.

Obviously, under such conditions, one would be foolish to think the blacks on the Brigham Young campus would cause or even be motivated to cause any "trouble."

There is a long tradition of discipline on the Brigham Young campus. But, here the question is, what kind of discipline. To a small child, discipline is the paddle his father uses to punish him for misbehavior. On campuses such as Cornell, Columbia, Harvard and even Iowa, a form of discipline is arising under which the students are asking questions and demanding answers — answers that have been slow in coming.

However, the discipline on the Brigham Young campus is more similar to that of the child — one is not to raise questions or demand answers. The synonym for this is complacency.

Therefore the Tribune's logic that at Brigham Young there is only the desire to obtain a good education is faulty. Why? Because the questions that are being asked and the answers being demanded on other campuses are primarily concerned with the meaning of a "good education."

Undoubtedly, Harvard and Cornell are institutions where one can get a "good education." The only problem is that good is no longer good enough for the students — they want a relevant education.

Neither does the Tribune's logic in contrasting the percentages of eligible voters voting withstand inspection. The differences in the population size and makeup of such states as New York and California and Utah make percentage statistics irrelevant.

Utah does not have the large industrial urban centers which over the years have attracted the minority groups with the resulting consequences of economic depression, racial oppression, slum living; a deaf, giant, governmental bureaucracy and so many other frustration-inducing social conditions.

One should only expect the loudest shouting to arise from such places. One should not expect a disillusioned populace to be concerned with registering to vote, let alone voting.

Obviously then, Brigham Young is not a norm and even if it were, the only thing it is normative of is Utah. We do not have a situation where "as goes Utah so goes Harvard, Cornell or Iowa."

Just because Brigham Young has no problem, does not mean that other campuses should not. And when campuses have problems they should not just look at their record, they should study it and the particular factors causing the disturbances on their particular campus and design a program to alleviate their particular problem.

The motivations and goals of student dissent are not necessarily the same on every campus. The questions asked and the answers demanded, therefore, are not the same, nor should they be.

Hence, as other campuses "prepare to meet their unmakers" some may indeed find it refreshing to take a look at Brigham Young — but what good will that do?

Bread and roses too

Bruce R. Johnson

The university is a nice place to forget the real problems we face in this society. We are taught that no matter how ugly things are on the outside, things are different here.

At the university, if there are differences, they can be discussed and solved because reason and truths are our concerns and, we are told, they shall prevail.

So if students have something they wish to be changed there's nothing to prevent that change. All that is required is to present reasonable arguments and if they are just, grievances will be met, sooner or later.

The hollowness of this perspective at this university was shown clearly during the last few weeks. The University administration's response to the Coalition to Fight the Tuition Increase was one of double dealing and down right lying.

The most blatant example of the lies we were fed was president Bowen's assertion, both verbally and in his own "memo," that the tuition rise would really hurt no one because the rise is proportionally equal to the rise in wages.

Now Mr. Bowen knows different because he is an economist, so we must assume that he chose to lie to us. Inflation wages might be going up, but as he knows real wages — the buying power of the dollar you earn — have gone down for the last four years, so, a larger proportion of a person's wages are needed to provide for the basic necessities.

A $300 tuition increase will hurt. The point is not that we have had men here at the University and they should be replaced by men that won't lie; I don't think Bowen is any more dishonest than any other college president.

But the nature of a college president's job requires one thing: keep things running smoothly. If this requires half-truths, then so be it. But above all, keep things quiet.

Not understanding this, many students thought that the administration need only be shown that students were concerned and they would do the best they could. It is precisely this failure to deal with the reality of what the administration's function is — that of keeping the lid on — that led to the defeat of the coalition.

If we had recognized that the only way students could affect the tuition was to have united and said "no," instead of believing it was enough to make our "point," we would have won.

Next time let's not make that mistake.

Conscientious objection

The following article is reprinted with the publishers permission, from the May 3, 1969, edition of the New Republic.

subjected to military orders, which may require him to kill in the Vietnam conflict, and is immune to such orders regardless of whether he professes any belief that may remotely be termed religious.

The Quakers, Justice Holmes once suggested, "have done their share to make the country what it is," even though "they believe more than some of us do in the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount."

In US v. Seeger, in 1965, the Supreme Court gave a generous construction to the concept of religion, holding that it may include beliefs which occupy "the same place in the life of the objector as an orthodox belief in God holds in the life of one clearly qualified for exemption."

So, the Court decided, adherence to a formal religion was not necessary for draft exemption. Congress promptly amended the statute to indicate — if not altogether unambiguously — that in its view formal religious training and belief should be the touchstone.

A decision by the United States District Court in Boston, which will no doubt soon find its way on appeal to the Supreme Court, has now cut through all that. The case — it is a name to remember — is United States v. John Heffron Sisson Jr.

The opinion, at once solid and eloquent, by Chief Judge Edward Wyzanski Jr., holds that a "sincere conscientious objector... cannot constitutionally be required to military orders, which may require him to kill in the Vietnam conflict, and is immune to such orders regardless of whether he professes any belief that may remotely be termed religious. The defendant explicitly disclaimed any religious objection. His conscience was moved by reading about the Vietnam situation, and by studying the UN Charter and the charter and judgments of the Nuremberg Tribunal. Thus he arrived at his objection to killing in this war at this time.

But his "table of ultimate values," Judge Wyzanski said, was "moral and ethical." And his sincerity seemed to Judge Wyzanski beyond question.

Sisson "was genuinely and profoundly" governed by his conscience as would have been a martyr obedient to an orthodox religion," even though nothing in his belief derived from the discipline of a church.

Judge Wyzanski was prepared to assume that the military operation of the United States in Vietnam is lawful, or at least that its lawfulness is not subject to adjudication by courts; that in circumstances of ultimate peril, in defense of the homeland, the United States has the power to conscript for combat anyone at all, and is under no obligation to respect conscientious objection; and that the government may conscript conscientious objectors for noncombat service.

But he held that in "a campaign fought with limited forces for limited objectives, with no likelihood of a battlefield within this country and without a declaration of war," the United States could not constitutionally be conscripted for combat sincere conscientious objectors, whether or not their objection was grounded in formal religious training, and whether or not it was an objection to war in general, or to a particular war.

"When the State through its laws," said Judge Wyzanski, "seeks to override reasonable moral commitments it makes a dangerously uncharacteristic choice. The law grows from the deposits of morality. Law and morality are, in turn, debtors and creditors of each other.

The law cannot be adequately enforced by the courts alone, or by courts supported merely by the police and the military. The true secret of legal might lies in the habits of conscientious men disciplining themselves to obey the law they respect without the necessity of judicial and administrative orders.

When the law treats a reasonable, conscientious act as a crime it subverts its own power. It invites civil disobedience. It impairs the very habits which nourish and preserve the law. This is the heart of the matter. It is doctrine as far-reaching as it is sound, for it suggests that democratic governments cannot long carry on wars that violate the conscience of large numbers of its citizens.

From the people Criticizes DI Study-in set for today Grad reaction

To the Editor: Allan Rostoker's capsule review of "Elvira Madigan" in Tuesday's Daily Iowan marked the low point in his continuing fight against intelligent, sensitive criticism. In fact his review was indeed more of a revelation of his own dull-wittedness than anything else.

"Elvira Madigan" is several things. First, it is a portrayal of an ancient Scandinavian tale — supposedly true, which just by itself is rather touching — an embodiment of the universal longing to escape one's self and live carefree and loving.

Secondly, it is a tribute to the impressionist school of painting, with many of the "shots" being replicas of famous impressionist paintings. Mr. Rostoker's opinion may be that impression consists merely of "pretty pictures," but without a knowledge of it, one would be severely handicapped in reviewing "Elvira Madigan."

Furthermore, the film is a sensuous delight, full of sounds, colors and emotions. It is a subtle triumph and a worthwhile cinematic experience, far in excess of Mr. Rostoker's trivia.

Possibly, he could take his bag of Norman Rockwell, Steve McQueen, Bulletin, and pseudo-intellectual reviews of unseen French movies elsewhere.

To the Editor: Tuition at the University will go up approximately $300 next year because of inadequate allocations in the state budget. Students do not believe the people of Iowa realize the serious implications of this increase.

An increase is a denial of the principle that all should have an equal opportunity to get an education. Low income students will feel the most discrimination. An estimated four hundred students will not be able to return next year. The remaining students and their parents will have to bear the financial burden of the increase. Iowa cannot afford to drive promising young people out of the state.

Students have not received adequate answers as to the priorities of the state. Information given us has been full of contradictions. Therefore, on May 16, students will conduct a "study-in" on the State House lawn and steps.

We have selected this unique form of constructive protest to dramatize to the people of Iowa the general student concern over the future of education in the state.

We hope Iowans will join us in urging Gov. Ray and the Legislature to reorder their priorities.

WASHINGTON — You can talk about the antiballistic missile system from now until doomsday (I'm sorry I had to use that word), but you still go around in circles.

One of the strongest proponents of the ABM system is a friend of mine who has been assigned by the Pentagon to convince skeptics like myself that we really need an ABM system. Since they have no funds yet, I bought him a drink.

"I don't think I could make a stronger argument for the ABM," he said, "than the fact that Secretary Laird has revealed the Soviets will have a first-strike nuclear capability by 1975."

"That's pretty strong," I admitted. "But how come Secretary Laird found out about this first-strike Soviet capability and Secretaries McNamara and Clifford knew nothing about it?"

"Laird reads more."

"Look, a few months ago you told me that the reason we needed an ABM system was to protect our cities from Soviet missiles. Then you said it was to protect our cities from Red Chinese missiles. After that, you said it was impossible to protect the cities so we had to protect our missile launching sites. Now you say we need it because the Soviets are building new first-strike missiles.

"Actually, it's a little of this and a little of that," he said, unperturbed. "We know we need the system, but we're still not quite sure what we need it for. It has many uses.

"For example, the Soviets are building an ABM system around Moscow. Now we know it doesn't work, but we're not certain the Soviets know it doesn't work. So if we build an ABM system, they'll find out ours doesn't work, and then they'll have to assume their system doesn't work either."

"I get it," I said excitedly. "If we didn't have an ABM system, the Soviets might put to much value on the one they have."

"Right. Now we also have to think in terms of disarmament. When we have a disarmament meeting with the Soviets, we're going to have to give up something. Right?"

"Of course. That is what disarmament is all about."

He continued: "I know there are many scientists and Nobel Prize winners who are attacking the system, but what they don't realize is that if they say the system won't work, the Soviets will be encouraged to go ahead with their offensive missiles, and the more missiles they stockpile the more they will be encouraged to try a first strike."

"But why?"

"Because Secretary Laird says so." Copyright (c) 1969, The Washington Post Co.

Stanley Said Ready to Seek Bill Limiting Tuition Rise

State Sen. David Stanley (R-Muscatine) is reportedly planning to introduce a resolution to establish a 10 per cent ceiling on any regents institution tuition increase before the legislature adjourns.

Conferring with the legislative committee were Student Sens. Clark Reid, A1, Hamburg; and David Yepsen, A1, Jefferson; and Coalition steering committee members Orr; Ken Crabb, A1, Indianola; and Pat O'Connor, A3, Waterloo.

Yepsen said the proposal would: Force the University to "cut the fat" out of its budget, since a ceiling on revenues realized from tuition would place further limits on University funds.

Charles Ferster, professor of psychology at Georgetown University, predicted Thursday that, sooner or later, psychoanalysis will disappear. He added that, the training of psychoanalysis is in "real trouble." Ferster spoke during a discussion on operant conditioning at East Hall.

House Sets $5,000 Salary; Measure Returns to Senate receive $7.50 daily under the House plan, $9 under the Senate plan.

Republicans, who dominate the legislature, settled on the $5,000 figure in a caucus Wednesday night and stuck to it when it came up on the floor Thursday, over objections of some legislators who said they were worth more.

The House also decided to lower the Senate recommendation of $12,000 a year for the House speaker. Under the House proposal, the speaker would get $10,000.

Campus Police Voted Police Officer Status

Recommendations to give certain Campus Security personnel the status of peace officers and to insure that these peace officers be "well-chosen and well-trained" were unanimously approved by the Parking and Security Committee Thursday afternoon in Old Capitol.

The purpose of the two-hour meeting was to discuss the report of a subcommittee on security. The report addressed itself to three basic questions. These were whether certain Campus Security forces should be designated peace officers, what should be done to train them and whether they should be armed.

Debate on the first two points was limited to rewording parts of the subcommittee's report and clarifying what would be covered by the recommendations.

On the question of arming officers, the subcommittee declared itself to "be unable to resolve the question" and recommended that the full committee leave final resolution of the matter to University Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

Some committee members argued against this saying that it was merely "passing the buck" to the president. These who criticized this aspect of the subcommittee report favored taking some definite action.

After discussion, the committee voted to table the question and make it the first order of business at its next meeting.

A law enacted by the legislature allows regents-university presidents to designate campus forces as peace officers.

The law, when put into effect, will give campus security officers who have been designated as peace officers arrest power equal to that of

Senate Votes Tuition Help

DES MOINES — A bill appropriating $1.5 million a year for Gov. Robert D. Ray's new program of tuition grants was approved 40 to 10 in the Senate Thursday after an attempt to boost the figure by $1 million a year was narrowly rejected.

Under the Senate plan, the program would provide a state aid of up to $1,000 a year for needy Iowa students attending in-state private colleges and universities. The bill now goes to the House.

A number of clouds hang over the program, for which machinery is set up in a separate bill already passed by both houses of the Iowa Legislature and signed into law by Ray.

Foremost is the declaration by Atty Gen. Richard Turner that the measure is unconstitutional.

AREA FACILITIES

DES MOINES — A bill allowing area schools to lease or rent additional facilities, some with purchase options, was approved 78-32 Thursday by the Iowa House. The bill now goes to the governor.

Tracksters to Big 10 Meet

By KEITH GILLET
The Iowa track team left Thursday for Lafayette, Ind., to take part in the 69th Big 10 championship meet this weekend. Preliminaries in most events will start at 3 a.m. today with the finals starting at 12:45 p.m. on Saturday.

The Hawkeyes will be making their bid on the strength of individual performers. Part of the Hawkeyes' trouble this season has been a lack of sprinters. Iowa defeated Purdue in a Big 10 dual meet for its only victory of the season, and finished last in a triangular with Drake and Michigan.

Wisconsin is a heavy favorite to win the meet. The Badgers walked away with the team title in the conference indoor meet and placed third in last year's outdoor meet by two points.

Indiana is expected to give the Gophers their biggest challenge. The Hoosiers were second in the indoor. Illinois, Michigan and Ohio State are given outside chances for the title.

Coach Francis Cretzmeier plans to enter Carl Frazier in either the 660 or the 440, and the mile relay. Frazier has been clocked in :47.8 for the 440 this season. Frazier ran 2nd in the conference indoor in the 440 and has the third best time in that event in the Big 10. Frazier has the fourth best time in the 660, 1:19.2.

Al Bream will run in the 220 and will run a leg on the mile relay, along with Mark Meyer and Steve Dertinger. Dertinger will also run in the 440. The mile relay team has the third best time in the Big 10, 3:13.4.

Cris Well is entered in the half-mile. Dave Larson in the 660, Tom Haugo in the shot and discus, Bruce Presley will enter both hurdle events and will also compete in the broad jump. Presley ranks 7th in the 440 intermediates with a :53.7 best effort. Presley has run the 11th best time in the 120 hurdles, :14.7.

Phil Wertman, Don Utzinger and Rich Gershenson will compete in the pole vault. Gershenson, who only recently returned to action following a knee injury, has gone 15-feet this year and is tied for the third best effort in the league.

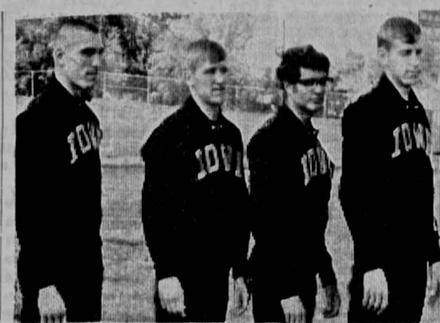

Rollie Kitt is entered in the 3000 steeple chase. Kitt's best time of 9:25.7 puts him 4th in the conference.

Dave Eastland will compete in either the mile or three mile run. Dave Sundberg is entered in the triple jump and Larry Wilson in the high jump. Wilson went 4-8 indoors and his leap of 4-6 outdoors is the seventh best recorded so far this year in the Big 10. Iowa is not entering a 440 relay team and will not have anyone in the 100.

The favored Wisconsin squad is undefeated in four dual meets this year. Last Saturday Wisconsin topped Indiana 100-73.

The Badgers will be entering four titlists from last year's outdoor meet out of a total of 12 defending champions expected to compete.

10 marks in the 100, 220 and 660 yard runs, tied all-time marks in the hurdles and high jump and surpassed meet records in the 440 relay and shot put.

At least 8 Big 10 outdoor marks are in danger of falling in this weekend's meet.

Gophers, Hawks In 3-Game Series

By TOM STARR
The second ranked baseball team in the nation, Minnesota, will take on Iowa's Hawkeyes in a three game weekend set starting at 2:30 this afternoon at Iowa Field. The two teams will play one game today with a doubleheader slated for tomorrow.

The Golden Gophers will bring a 31-8 record into the three game series. The Hawkeyes stand 18-19 for the season. Iowa Coach Dick Schiltz plans on starting pitcher Bruce Reid (5-3) in today's contest. Minnesota's probable starter is Dave Cosgrove (4-2).

The Gophers have no less than nine batters hitting .300 or better for the year. As a team, they are carrying a .291 average. The Hawks are hitting at a .242 clip as a team.

Gary Breshears continues to lead the Iowa hitters. The second baseman is batting .352 in all games. However, teammate Andrew (Stoney) Jackson is the leading Hawkeye hitter in the Big 10. Jackson, Iowa's left fielder, has a .444 average for a conference play.

Minnesota is led at the plate by Mike Walseth. The Gopher first baseman is batting .460 for the year. Next in line is right fielder Noel Jenke, also a Gopher football star. Jenke, hampered by an injury, is hitting .417 including 11 home runs.

The first game of tomorrow's twinbill will count in the Big 10 standings but the second game on Saturday will not.

"You only play two conference games with your traveling companion," said Schultz. (Each team has a traveling companion. For example, if Iowa played Michigan on Friday and Minnesota played Michigan State on Friday, the companions would switch on Saturday. Iowa would play Michigan State and Minnesota would play Michigan.)

Today's game and the first game tomorrow will be nine inning affairs. Saturday's second contest will only be seven innings. Saturday's twinbill will start at noon. Gopher Coach Dick Siebert is optimistic about his team but is not overly confident.

"On paper everything looks great," said Siebert. "But Iowa, Michigan and Michigan State (Minnesota's three remaining opponents) are no paper teams. We still face an awesome challenge and cannot let down for an inning."

Minnesota needs only a single victory to clinch a second straight Big 10 title.

Netters in 5th Place After Opening Day

Iowa's tennis team scored 54 points, good for fifth place in the team standings, in the opening rounds of the Big 10 championships at East Lansing, Mich., Thursday. Michigan, the overwhelming pre-meet favorite, recorded 110 points to place itself far ahead of the rest of the field.

In a day marked by Iowa upsets, both for and against, three singles players and one doubles team advanced for the Hawkeyes into second round action today.

Craig Sandvig, No. 3 singles, Steve Ehlers, No. 5 singles, and Steve Houghton, No. 6 singles, all posted first round victories in the day's opening competition. Houghton and Rich Stokstad later teamed up to win a second round berth in the No. 3 doubles competition.

All other Iowa entries were defeated in the preliminaries. This included Jim Esser, No. 1 singles, Randy Murphy, No. 2 singles, and Nate Chapman, No. 4 singles. Also beaten were the No. 1 doubles team of Esser and Sandvig, and the No. 2 doubles team of Chapman and Ehlers. All three singles players and both doubles teams now move into the losers' bracket for play-back competition.

Sandvig and Ehlers pulled big upsets in their singles victories. Sandvig defeated Geoff Hodson, the No. 2 seed from Indiana, 6-3 and 6-4 in No. 3 singles play. Ehlers also beat a No. 2 seed, Ron Meis of Indiana. Ehlers won in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4.

Iowa's Houghton gained the second seed in No. 6 singles competition and came through as expected. Houghton beat Tom Nelson, 6-3, 6-2.

Houghton and Ehlers were seeded fourth in doubles and defeated Terry Rosborough and Jeff Cook of Illinois, 6-4, 6-1.

Nate Chapman was involved in two upsets which went against Iowa. Chapman lost to Rick Raines of Michigan State, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3. Chapman had been seeded second in No. 4 singles.

Chapman and Ehlers were then defeated in No. 2 doubles play by Northwestern's John Brennan and Bill Meyers, 6-3, 6-3.

Behind Michigan's 110 points was Minnesota with 71, Indiana with 70, Illinois with 60, then Iowa, followed by Northwestern 51, and Wisconsin with 47. Michigan State, Purdue, and Ohio State were the bottom three in the standings far behind the leaders.

Iowa Golfers Compete In Big 10 Meet Today

Iowa's golf team will be in East Lansing, Mich., today and Saturday for the Big 10 championship meet. Today's is the first formal action the Hawks will have seen in two weeks because the Iowa Invitational scheduled for last Saturday was canceled due to inclement weather.

The weather has been a hindrance to the Iowa golf team the entire season. Though only one other meet the Hawks were entered in was canceled, Coach Chuck Zweiner said that the poor weather this spring has caused the team to miss a lot of valuable practice.

The Hawks are 2-1 in dual meets this season and have done, according to Zweiner, a pretty good job in the three tournaments they have participated.

The Hawks split two dual meets with Arizona and beat Drake 15-3 in their only other dual meet. They then placed second in the Illinois Invitational, 5th in the Purdue Centennial, and 7th in the Northern Intercollegiate Tourney at Columbus, Ohio.

Zweiner is entering his regular lineup in the championships. They are, with round averages in parenthesis: Phil Aldridge (75.8), Jim Carney (76.9), Bob Mulert (77.4), Brad Schuchat (78.1), Tom Lightner (79.1), and Pat Stopolus (80.4).

Indiana is the defending Big 10 champion and co-favorites in the meet with Ohio State, fifth place finisher last year.

Zweiner said that the championships are wide open this year and that any of the ten entries can finish just about anywhere.

"Our boys have been out practicing as much as possible and we're as ready as we can be," Zweiner said. "The weather has been poor lately and has cost us a lot but if we can put it all together this weekend we should be able to make it into the first division."

Aaron Homers Let Braves Nip Phils

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Aaron hit his sixth and seventh homers and Sonny Jackson slammed a two-run triple in a 12-hit Atlanta attack that carried the Braves to a 6-5 victory over the New York Mets Thursday.

Aaron, getting off to his best start in a dozen years, continued his hammering with a solo homer in third inning that built the Braves lead to 4-1, then made it 6-2 with another solo in the seventh. He also collected a single.

His second homer, bringing his career total to 517, turned out to be decisive when the Mets chased starter Pat Jarvis in a three-run eighth inning uprising that brought them to within 6-5.

Aaron's first homer came after the Braves struck for three second inning runs against Don Cardwell. Clete Boyer knocked in one with a bloop single and Jackson brought across the other two with his triple to right center.

Boyer and Bob Tillman also drove in runs while Orlando Cepeda collected three singles in the Atlanta offensive.

Sports Comment—

Extra Innings

By MIKE SLUTSKY
Sports Editor

Spring football practice may or may not conclude Saturday for the Hawkeyes with the annual intrasquad game at 1:30 in the Stadium. Because of poor weather, the team has not used up its allotted 20 practices and Coach Ray Nagel has not decided yet whether or not the team will practice after Saturday's game.

The intrasquad meeting, though admittedly only a sneak preview of next fall's team, should reveal quite a bit of what is in store for Hawkeye football fortunes. Students will be admitted upon presentation of their IDs. Admission for the general public is $1.

It is doubtful that an Iowa football team has caused much more talk — and with good reason — than this year's version. Nagel and his assistants have recruited diligently the past three years and have assembled a team with the potential to become a national power. Indication of the team's strength was seen last year as the offense made the scoreboard look like an IBM computer at times and even the defense had its outstanding moments. With only a few players not returning in 1969 — most notably Ed Podolak, Steve Wilson, Al Bream, and Barry Cress — the cry rang out, "Wait 'til next year." Well, next year is here.

Practice began about a month ago and, as everybody must know by now, 16 of the 20 blacks on the roster were absent. They were protesting or boycotting or whatever you want to call it the "intolerable conditions" of the athlete at Iowa.

Nagel said that his act was an automatic dismissal from the team on the part of all the blacks concerned. A month of practice has elapsed since that opening day boycott and, for all practical purposes, the situation has not altered.

Black Athletic Union (BAU) meetings took place; football team meetings took place; Athletic Department meetings took place. The blacks listed their demands and stated the intolerable conditions, adding that the protest was for all athletes, not just the blacks. There were rumors that the blacks would be allowed back on the team. Then more rumors that the black freshmen would be allowed to return because they had been influenced by the upper classmen. But as spring practice nears its end, it is becoming more and more evident that these 16 blacks, regrettably, will probably be playing no more football for the University of Iowa.

Ray Nagel

Nagel has been backed into a corner throughout all this mass confusion. He has taken a stand and to change his position now could mean a total revolution on the team. He has apparently consulted the team and the decision to reinstate the blacks would have to be granted by Nagel with the consent of the team. Up to now, the team and the coaching staff have not had to make this decision. The blacks apparently have not asked to come back. Should the question arise, though, it is no secret that the team would vote down the reinstatement of the blacks.

Throughout the whole affair, Nagel, his staff and his team have exercised their "no comment" rights to the utmost whenever questioned about the blacks. Nagel has been blasted by various critics for his handling of the problem. He has yet to attempt a defense of the case. Obviously, Nagel does not want to stir up any more trouble and bad feelings. Because of this attitude, he has been pelted from all ends and has taken the punches without hitting back.

By boycotting the first practice, the blacks knowingly put their athletic futures in jeopardy, though it was decided that they will be granted aid to continue their education here whether they play football or not. They wanted to make their point and they have. Their demands are not unreasonable. In fact, the demands should be given careful consideration.

Thus, the blacks have made their stand also. They could — and probably will — be giving up a great deal through this stand. The decision to boycott was theirs; the price they may pay will also be theirs.

The question here is not who is right and who is wrong. There really is no right or wrong answer.

Where the difficulty lies is that there was a complete lack of communication between the blacks and the coaching staff. It seems ironic that the two groups could not sit down before practice began and try to iron out the difficulties. Here again, as in almost every sore spot at the University, is a prime example of an unfortunate situation due to a communications breakdown.

Taking nothing away from the team as it stands now, it should be a very good squad — barring serious injuries. But take away 16 players — black or white — and you are going to come up short somewhere. Depth, what there is of it, will be woefully weak. There simply is not enough man power to go around. It is just too bad, for all parties concerned, that lessons at Iowa have to be learned the hard way.

13 Get Eligibility in Big 10

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — The Big Ten extended varsity eligibility to 13 "hardship cases," including four football players Thursday.

The conference faculty representatives, beginning the annual spring business session, sanctioned another year of competition to the 13 athletes, mainly on the basis of injuries.

The football players granted another season included a pair from Illinois, defensive halfback Dan Franklin and defensive guard Karl Pnasek, and two from Minnesota, linebacker Tom Simon and guard John Walsh.

Also given an extra season was a seven-foot basketball player from Wisconsin, Elmo Henrikson, who missed six weeks of school because of a back injury.

Other cases approved included wrestler Phil Henning of Iowa. The main business item, discussion of the conference ban on use of athletic facilities by pro teams, will come up at Friday's joint meeting of the faculty group and the athletic directors.

Hanoi, NLF Hit Nixon Peace Plan

PARIS (AP)—The National Liberation Front delivered a mild-sounding attack Thursday on President Nixon's proposals for a Vietnam solution, but appeared to be carefully avoiding rejection of the President's eight-point plan as a whole.

At the same time, North Vietnam's official radio also attacked the Nixon program, saying that the plan "is not to end the war of aggression, but to replace the war of aggression fought by U.S. troops into a war of aggression fought by the puppet army of the United States"—meaning the South Vietnamese.

In both cases, the attack centered on that section of the Nixon proposals that insisted upon mutual withdrawal of all "outside" troops from South Vietnam. There was a hint of caution in this, suggesting that Hanoi and the NLF might explore the Nixon proposal further at the 17th full-scale session of the Paris talks today or possibly later.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Nixon's chief negotiator, was flying back from Washington to present the President's plan formally to the other parties in the talks and to repeat the President's statement that Washington welcomed the NLF initiative in putting forward its comprehensive 10-point plan at last week's session.

The variety of proposals—the Hanoi "4 points," the NLF "10 points," the American "8 points" and the Saigon "6 points"—left the opposing sides as far apart as ever on some key issues. But conference observers said the initiatives might at least get the talks off dead center. The sides remain at opposite poles of such questions as the mutual troop withdrawals and an eventual political settlement.

Hanoi radio, using a "special interview" commentator to get across its rebuttal, underscored the gulf between the sides by insisting that if Nixon wants peace, it could be achieved "by the United States ending its aggression against Vietnam and unconditionally withdrawing all U.S. troops from South Vietnam."

This illuminated a major snag in the talks—the insistence of Hanoi that the Americans pull out unilaterally, without any conditions.

Move to Open Busing Debate Fails in House

DES MOINES (AP)—A Des Moines Democrat tried in vain Thursday to convince the Iowa House to consider, before it adjourns, a bill to allow private school pupils to ride on public school buses on established routes.

"As far as I am concerned, that is the most minimal amount of school busing," Rep. Thomas Renda said.

Renda proposed a parliamentary maneuver which would have made it possible for the busing issue to be debated before the session ends.

"I want you to reach down into your souls and consciences," Renda pleaded.

But House Majority Leader Ralph McCartney (R-Charles City) sponsored a motion which in effect kept the measure from being discussed this year.

McCartney stressed that his motion, approved 64 to 45, had not foreclosed possibility of considering the matter next year.

The Republican leader accused Renda of "trying to embarrass" him.

McCartney said his views on the busing measure were no secret. He said he had been "disappointed" that it had not been brought out of the House Schools Committee.

The GOP leader said he had wanted to prevent discussion this year only because he wanted the legislative session to come to an end.

Renda replied, "Mr. McCartney, I didn't bring this up to embarrass you. I've been fighting for the bus bill since 1965."

UI Initiates Exchange With Korean School

An exchange agreement between the University and Dongguk University in Seoul, Republic of (South) Korea, was announced Thursday at a press conference in Old Capitol.

The agreement, which would allow for exchanges of faculty, students, technical aid and cultural events, was signed by University Pres. Howard R. Bowen and Dongguk University Pres. Dong-Ik Kim.

The exchange program will begin on a modest scale during the fall semester of 1970, said Bowen. A grant of $20,000 from Clupak, Inc., a company that sells licenses for patents it holds in the paper industry, will be used to start the program.

At the end of a five-year period, the program will be evaluated to determine its future course.

Chosen to direct the University's part of the program was James Murray, professor of political science and director of the University's International Studies Program.

Two areas suggested by Bowen as possible subjects that may be included in the exchange are university management techniques and studies of the Buddhist religion.

The University would supply information about its administrative processes, while Dongguk, which is located in one of the centers of Buddhism, could supply information about that religion.

Besides the two university presidents, the South Korean ambassador to the United States, Dong-Jo Kim, and the president of Clupak, Inc., Roger B. Leithead, were present at the signing of the agreement.

An invitation was extended during the afternoon press conference to University Pres.-Select Willard Boyd to come to Seoul during June. Boyd was not present at the meeting.

ARH Unit Seeks Cuts In Dormitory Budget

Higher dorm rates will be investigated by a committee formed at an Associated Residence Halls (ARH) meeting Wednesday night.

Committee Chairman Bob Beller, Al. Glencoe, Ill., president of Reinow II, told The Daily Iowan that the purpose of the committee is to re-evaluate the University dormitory budget and make recommendations for reductions.

The dorm rate increase, announced May 10, is $56 per academic year.

Beller was named chairman of the ARH committee following a motion that ARH join Reinow II in investigating the increase.

Beller said he is confident the committee will be allowed to see the budget. Virgil Copeland, associate director of dormitory administration, refused to comment Thursday afternoon.

Karen Leonard, A3, Logan, former secretary of ARH, listed several areas that will be investigated by the committee.

Food and maid service, she said, would probably be the areas concentrated on by the committee. She said one inconsistency of the maid service was due to the fact that men have the service every day while women have it only twice a week.

Beller was confident that the committee will be effective. "Even if it doesn't work," he said, "at least the communication channels will have improved."

A Wave for Fans

"A computer has no mind of its own. Its 'brainpower' comes from the people who create the programs," says Rod Company.

Rod earned a B.S. in Math in 1966. Today, he's an IBM Systems Programmer working on a portion of Operating System/360, a hierarchy of programs that allows a computer to schedule and control most of its own operations.

A mixture of science and art "Programming" means writing the instructions that enable a computer to do its job. Says Rod, "It's a mixture of science and art.

You're a scientist in the sense that you have to analyze problems in a completely logical way.

"But you don't necessarily hunt for an ultimate right answer. There can be as many solutions to a programming problem as there are programmers. That's where the art comes in. Any given program may work, but how well it works depends entirely on the ingenuity of the programmer."

Programmers hold a key position in the country's fastest growing major industry—information processing. Business Week reports that the computer market is expanding about 20 percent a year.

AMENDMENT DISCRIMINATES AGAINST STUDENTS AND FACULTY

Following is the text of the Messerly-DeKoster Amendment to Iowa Senate File 655 (the Regents' appropriation bill). This amendment has also been passed by the Iowa House.

No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide payments, assistance, or education, in any form, with respect to any individual who is, while enrolled as a student or while teaching at a university, convicted in any federal, state, or local court of competent jurisdiction of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, resulting in material damage to public property or injury to persons, unless such individual, if a student, shall be re-examined by an admissions officer, and be found by him to be a proper character for re-admission as a student.

This amendment grossly discriminates against faculty and students at the three state universities. It says, in effect, that their behavior is so riotous and vandalistic that special controlling legislation is necessary for them but not for any other citizen. It apparently seeks to intimidate them from engaging in normal and permissible civic activity for fear that they will somehow be convicted of "inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot."

No adequate justification exists for this amendment. Iowa state-supported campuses have been relatively peaceful. Most publicity indicating otherwise has been promoted by statements of some legislators, rather than by actual events. News stories concerning debate on the amendment quoted such terms as "bearded degenerates," "barefoot hippies," "nuts," and "kooks." These terms seem to indicate that some senators voted in favor of the amendment because of the personal style of some students and faculty members. This reason is not in the best American tradition, and it is obviously not proper cause for the proposed amendment.

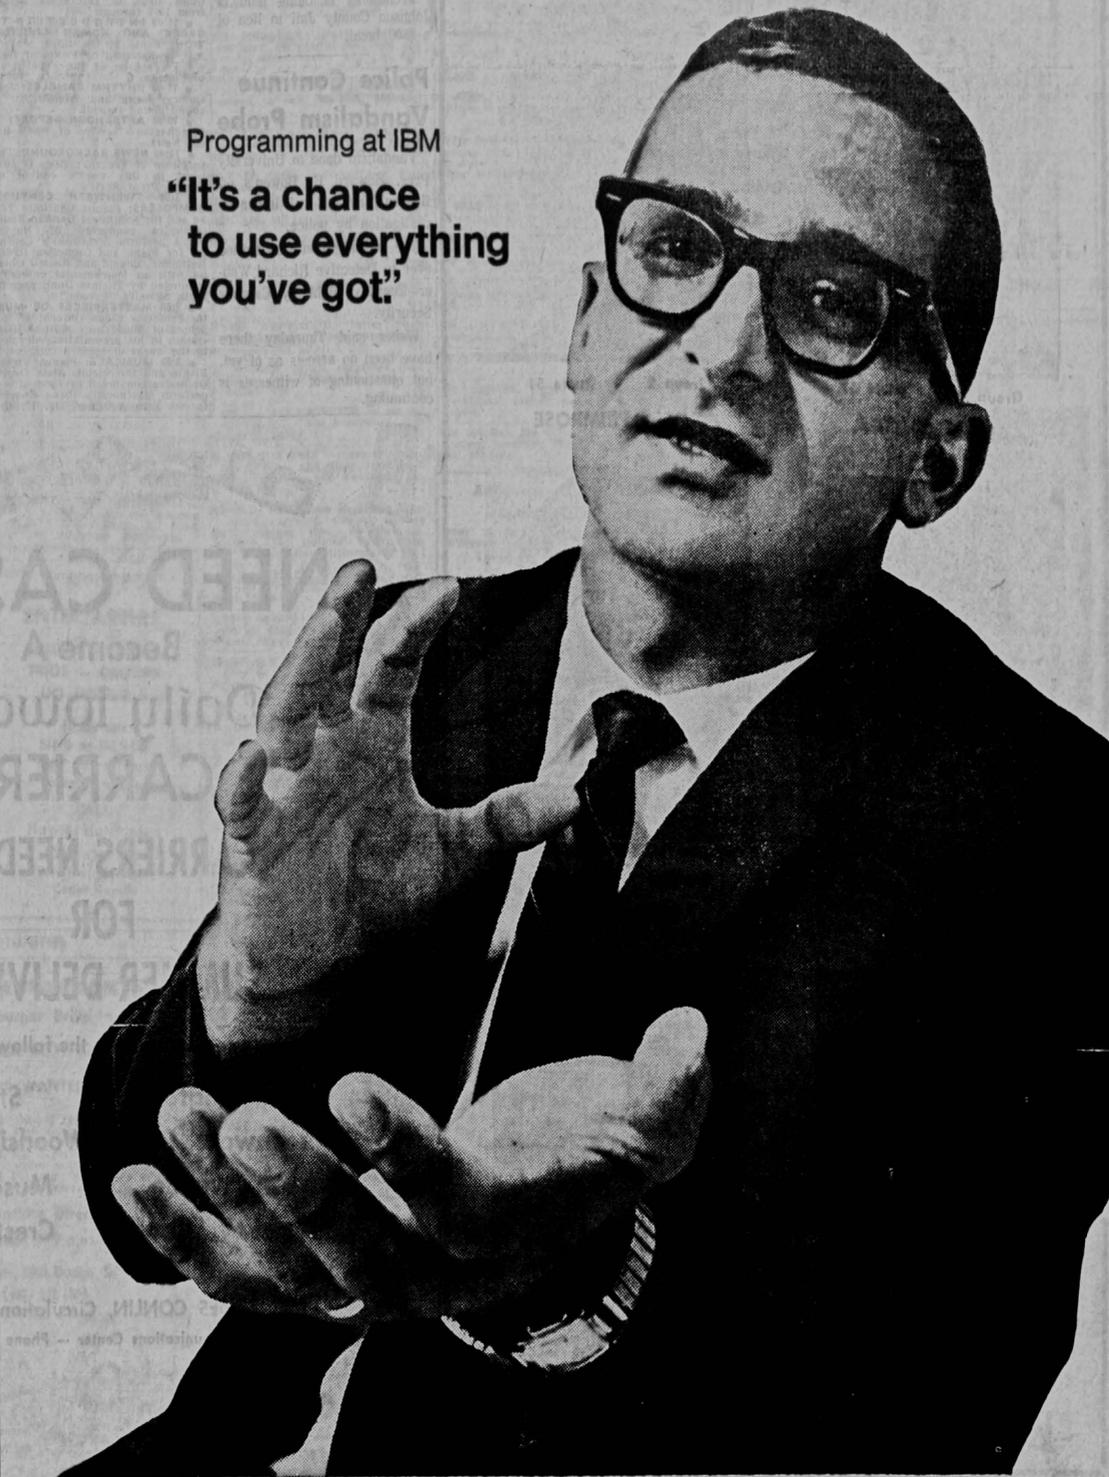

Furthermore, the amendment provides excessive punishment for civil offenses. In some cases, participation in a riot or in vandalism may be grounds to dismiss a student or a faculty member. The existing rules of the University and of higher education provide for such dismissal after academic due process has been satisfied. In other cases, however, the unlawful behavior may be the result of accident, of momentary bad judgment, or of some other circumstance that does not affect the individual's desirability as a teacher or student. Academic due process provides for proper hearings in such cases. The amendment does not. And the amendment takes teachers and students at the state universities as the only victims of such arbitrary and unreasoned punishment.

Finally, the provision to exact such punishment for the rather vaguely-defined activities of "promoting" and "inciting" and for conviction in "any federal, state or local court" seems to come dangerously close to violating the free speech of and abridging due process for teachers and students at the Regents' institutions.

In the 1950's, when many universities were using loyalty oath laws in a manner that discriminated against professors, Iowa proudly resisted the thoughtless pressure. The state has an enviable tradition of academic freedom. This record may partly account for the relative calm in her universities today.

Senate Investigators Zero in on Medicaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators digging into the Medicaid program say they have turned up evidence of scandals that could run into hundreds of millions of dollars. The probe is centered on inflated fees and possible fraud involving doctors, dentists, druggists, nursing homes and other medical services.

"I'm finding it much worse than I ever dreamed of," said Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.), who is spearheading the Senate Finance Committee's investigation.

Williams cited cases of a nursing home accused of charging for dead patients, of alleged phony billings by pharmacists, of giveaway lures by an unnamed dentist to bring in more welfare patients.

The Finance Committee has zeroed in on possible scandals in New York, Los Angeles, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago and Appalachia in the coast-to-coast probe.

One investigator said the losses through abuses in the $5-billion, 38-state program of free health care for welfare recipients and other poor patients could total hundreds of millions of dollars.

The committee's staff is expected to deliver its detailed report to the Senate panel at the start of next month as a prelude to public hearings this summer.

The investigators have asked state officials to supply names of all doctors and dentists receiving more than $25,000 a year from Medicaid and the separate medicare program for the aged.

One practitioner in New York City has collected almost $500,000 so far, records show. A doctor in the South has received almost $300,000.

Williams said the programs had been meant to pay doctors for cases that had been charity in the past. But, he added, "We didn't intend for it to be a bonanza or a gold mine."

The Nixon administration has announced plans to try to trim Medicaid costs sharply by such steps as tying doctors' payments to the same level as private Blue Shield program and cutting out the 2 per cent sweetener added on top of actual costs in hospital payments.

These and other cuts are expected to forestall a predicted $2-billion jump in the program's costs for the next fiscal year. Even with the cuts, the increase is pegged at almost $1 billion, boosting the bill for Medicaid in the next year to $5 billion.

The rising costs of doctors' fees and hospital charges have helped cause the big spurt in Medicaid spending. In the three years since Medicaid and medicare were started, average doctors' bill have gone up 19 per cent, hospital bills 48 per cent.

Cop's Trial Told Riot Was 'War'

MASON, Mich. (AP) — The defense said Thursday it will prove that the killings of one of three blacks in the Algiers Motel during Detroit's 1967 riot was "justifiable homicide committed under battleground conditions."

The assertion was made in opening statements in the first-degree murder trial of suspended Detroit policeman Ronald August, 31. He is charged with slaying 19-year-old Aubrey Pollard on the night of July 26, 1967.

Defense attorney Norman Lippitt said, "We intend to show that this was not an insurrection and not even a riot — we intend to show that we had a war."

Lippitt said that the mayor, the governor and even the President had been "indecisive about what to do" as the riot grew.

The prosecution asked the court to declare a mistrial because of what it termed Lippitt's "inflammatory statement," but the motion was overruled.

Avery Weiswasser, Wayne County assistant prosecutor, argued that Lippitt was attempting to place the police department and higher authorities on trial under the guise of explaining his client's actions.

Lippitt said that there would be no denial on the part of the defense that August shot and killed Pollard. He said August would take the witness stand to explain his actions.

August had gone four days and four nights without sleep, had been shot at on the streets and had had the displeasure of watching looting, burning and shooting "while the governor, the mayor and the President were indecisive about what to do," he added.

Since being charged with murder, the defendant has suffered tremendously, Lippitt said. He was referring to August's having been tried and sentenced to death in absentia by a group of black attorneys.

Teen Booked For Larceny

An Iowa City youth was charged with larceny under $20 after he was discovered removing a voltage regulator from a car parked near the Carriage Hill Apartments early Thursday morning, police reported. A number of other items that police say may have been taken in car thefts during the past couple days were also in his possession.

Detective Ronald Evans said that Allen E. Vrchoticky, 19, whose address was not known, was arrested about 2:50 a.m. He had the following items in his car at the time of the arrest: three stereo tape decks, an FM radio, four cameras, 48 stereo tapes, a baseball glove, two stereo speakers, and numerous small items such as flash lights, baseballs, two car batteries, automotive gauges, and two five-gallon cans of gasoline.

Evans said the larceny charge was filed on Vrchoticky for stealing the voltage regulator, but that other charges are pending in the event that owners claim and identify the other items.

Vrchoticky is being held in Johnson County Jail in lieu of a $500 bond.

Police Continue Vandalism Probe

Vandalism done to University Pres. Howard R. Bowen's office on May 8 is still under investigation by police.

The investigation was turned over to Detective Richard Weber Tuesday night by Campus Security.

Weber said Thursday there have been no arrests as yet, but questioning of witnesses is continuing.

The tour is sponsored by the Iowa City chapter of the UNA.

Exhibit Begins

Fifteen paintings and 15 drawings by Robert J. Berguson will be shown in the Union Terrace Lounge Sunday through June 1. The exhibit is being sponsored by the Local Shows Committee of the Union Board Art Area.

Berguson, G. Blossburg, Pa., is an assistant in the new Museum of Art.

All of the works to be shown at the opening Sunday were completed this year.

Paintings in the show are of two types. The earlier ones are hard-edged and non-objective. The more recent works present a more personal statement and are comprised of human and animal-like forms. Berguson's works have been shown in a variety of museums and on a number of college campuses. His drawing, "Billy Jones' Corner," was chosen, along with a number of other works, at the 23rd American Drawing Biennial at the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences, to be circulated by the Smithsonian Travel Institute.

VOCAL RECITAL—
Soprano Kristen Steinbeck and mezzo Cheryl Brogia will present a public recital Sunday, May 18, 4 p.m. in the North Music Hall. Selections from Handel and others will be heard. Admission is free.

He Gambled

his father's passing his heart was cracked
he knew and was afraid and yet he dared an April day to trim his roses
in a frozen rain.
why did he risk it all on horticulture?
why,
he was gambling
on Spring.

Blacks to Dance

The Universal Freedom and Dance Company, featuring Godfrey Sackefio, will appear at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday in Macbride Auditorium.

The program, sponsored by the Afro-American Studies Program and Union Board, consists of 13 numbers — ranging from drum solos to African dances. It should be particularly interesting to see the imaginative innovations in the modern African choreography. Admission is $1.50.

Godfrey Sackefio studied at the African Dance Department at the University of Ghana, where he majored in ethnography of African dance.

He was the choreographer and lead dancer in the National Dance Company of Ghana which toured Germany, the Soviet Union and other Eastern European nations in 1964-65. In 1966, he performed in the World Negro Art Festival at Dakar, Senegal.

Sackefio is now a student at Julliard School of Music. He is the African cultural consultant to the New York City Board of Education, and the lead dancer and choreographer of the Universal Freedom Drum and Dance Company.

If you're interested in Sunday entertainment, the Union Music Room will host a performance by the "Zzaz," a local, progressive jazz group. The free performance will begin at 7:30. Those interested in jamming with the group are welcome.

THE ENDLESS SUMMER—

For those in the audience who know surfing and understand the terminology, this film will be great. For those who enjoy beautiful scenery, it will be good with an occasionally intelligible dialogue. For those not included above, it has limited redeeming qualities. At the Iowa, May 19.

Blues'll Kill Ya While Reliving Sounds of Old

"The Blues'll kill ya and make ya live too." And that's no exaggeration. The music will capture you Saturday evening in the Sculpture Court of the Museum of Art.

Shirley Griffith may well tear his audience apart and put it back together as he combines his Mississippi Delta and Midwestern blues styles. If it seems he's playing his life for you, it's because the roots of southern blues have been embedded in each of his calloused finger tips.

No less will his companion command your attentions. Yank Rachel's mandoline — the blues best — is as warm and expressive today as it was in his early recording days in the 30s — those cuts are now collector's items.

The performance is at 8 p.m. Saturday; it's free to all. The event is cosponsored by the School of Letters and the Afro-American Studies Program.

You'd ordinarily have to travel to Chicago to catch entertainment like this — Don't miss it!

— Phil Dantes
