Mail Hike Canceled?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen who should know say President Nixon's request for a 7-cent rate on first-class mail is not likely to be approved this year — and some say it may not be accepted at all.

"That isn't absolute," said Chairman Gale W. McGee (D-Wyo.) of the Senate Post Office Committee. "But if I were a speculator, I wouldn't run out buying any 7-cent stamps."

Israeli Jets Strike

TEL AVIV (AP) — Six Israeli jets struck inside Jordan Friday and five gun battles raged across the Jordan River ceasefire line, Jordanian military spokesmen said.

On the Suez Canal front, United Nations observers reported two Soviet-made MIG21 jet fighters, a type used by Egypt, were spotted over Israel's side of the canal during a day of 13 cross-canal shooting incidents on Thursday.

Truck Bill Stalled

DES MOINES (AP) — Senate changes in a controversial bill raising truck license fees to produce more revenue for Iowa streets and roads were overwhelmingly rejected by the House Friday.

The House referred the whole matter to a conference committee headed by Rep. Maurice Van Nostrand (R-Avoca).

Tuna Boat Hooked

LIMA (AP) — Peru, enforcing its claim to 200-mile national waters, seized another American tuna boat Friday and forced the skipper to pay $15,000 in fines and fees. U.S. congressmen in Washington demanded retaliation.

A Peruvian torpedo boat seized the tuna clipper Western King 25 miles from Peru's Pacific coast. It was the third U.S. boat seized this year in the rich fishing waters. A fourth vessel was shot up by a pursuing Peruvian craft in February, but got away.

New Talks Moods?

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnamese and National Liberation Front representatives sharply criticized President Nixon's eight-point peace plan Friday but Americans noted a slight change in atmosphere and some observers expressed belief that the Vietnam talks may have reached a turning point.

Both the Hanoi and NLF delegations agreed to continue studying the Nixon proposals.

Nixon Will Wait To Name Judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard Nixon, described as wanting to take his time about filling two Supreme Court vacancies, began to get some advice Friday about whom to appoint.

A Southern constitutionalist suggested Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, assistant Senate Republican leader.

"I'd like to see him put a Republican in," said Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland, the GOP national chairman.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon would take his time in choosing successors to Abe Fortas, who resigned as associate justice Thursday, and Chief Justice Earl Warren, who is retiring next month.

Ziegler said the President was under no deadline pressure and want to make a thorough study before filling the two posts.

Morton told a news conference he was rooting for Republicans because "that's the name of the game."

"This is our opportunity, and we ought to take it," Morton said.

He added, however, that he expected the President to weigh a candidate's ability, experience and wisdom before considering his political affiliation.

Scott, in suggesting a Southern constitutionalist for one of the vacancies, said judges in that part of the country who had carried out Supreme Court rulings despite the rulings' unpopularity should be considered.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the assistant Democratic leader, joined Scott in expressing the opinion that Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had not disqualified himself as a possible successor to Chief Justice Warren, by his role in the Fortas resignation. Mitchell gave Warren information from the Justice Department files that apparently contributed to Fortas's decision.

Break-In Probe Switch Requested by Turner

By KAREN GOOD

A call from State Atty. Gen. Richard Turner sometime since the May 8 vandalism of Pres. Howard R. Bowen's office prompted the transfer of the investigation of the incident from Campus Security officials to the Iowa City police, The Daily Iowan learned Friday.

In a telephone interview Friday, Turner confirmed that he had called Johnson County Sheriff Maynard Schneider Monday to substantiate "rumors" he had received of a "breaking and entering" incident in Bowen's office.

"My source told me the University administration had not made a report of the incident to Iowa City law enforcement authorities," Turner said.

Turner would not reveal the name of the source. However, he said no one in the University administration had placed the call to his office.

Turner said it seemed to him that a felony had been committed and said he felt the law should be enforced.

Earlier reports had said the investigation was officially turned over to Iowa City police detective Richard Weber Tuesday night at the request of a Campus Security detective.

However, Turner said it had been officially transferred Monday at his request.

Turner said that several hours following his call to Schneider Monday, he received a call from Johnson County Atty. Robert Jansen assuring him that the University had made a report on the incident that day and that Iowa City police would take over the investigation.

However, Jansen said Friday that, while he had talked to Turner, it was Turner who had called him and that he had received the call on Friday of last week rather than the following Monday.

Jansen said the investigation was officially turned over to Iowa City police Friday. He said the time inconsistencies were probably due to memory lapses.

Schneider said Friday that Turner had called him Monday and that he had called Jansen to report Turner's call.

When asked if he planned to start a state investigation of the incident, Turner said he didn't plan one "unless the Iowa City police ask for our help."

Schneider said the sheriff's office would not help with the investigation unless requested.

He also said he was skeptical about the "amount of information that could be attained now."

"There's been quite a delay now and that's going to make any investigation very difficult," he said.

Jansen said the "real problem" was in identifying the persons involved. "No officers there saw everything that happened," he said.

Jansen said no charges would be filed until "all the investigation had been completed."

The investigation concerns an incident May 8 when about 20 youths, mostly black students, entered Old Capitol during a rally of 700 students in support of the Coalition to Fight Tuition.

Damage to the offices consisted of broken window panes, overturned furniture and dented file cabinet drawers.

Phil E. Connell, assistant to the president, said after the incident that it appeared nothing was taken and that damage was "minimal."

Bowen was unavailable for comment on the investigation Friday.

Study-In Fizzles, But Students Get Word in at Capitol

DES MOINES (AP) — Approximately 20 University of Iowa students were at the State Capitol Friday for a "study-in" in protest of a threatened tuition increase at Iowa's three state universities.

The group, organized by the Student Coalition to Fight Tuition, had planned to take textbooks and stage a quiet demonstration by studying on the Statehouse lawn. The "study-in" never got off the ground, however, and the students decided to register as lobbyists for the Coalition. They then spent the afternoon meeting with individual legislators.

Committee spokesman Tom Smith, A3, Iowa City, said the participants were "non-political students who have chosen to get involved because they're concerned."

Among the legislators who spoke with the students were House Minority Leader William Gannon (D-Mingo), Sen. Minnette Doderer (D-Iowa City), Rep. Edward Mezvinsky (D-Iowa City), Rep. Andrew Varley (R-Stuart), and Sen. Eugene Hill, (D-Newton).

In talking with the students, Gannon expressed regret that tuition costs were being raised, but said, "Let's face it. We're in the minority here and there's not a lot we can do. I wish we could have helped you, but I guess we can't."

Mrs. Doderer said she thought the tuition battle had been lost because the legislature had not received enough expressions of opinion from the parents of university students.

"Those people at home haven't been doing their work," she said. "We should have gotten a lot more letters from parents. I received a total of two letters."

"If all the parents of the kids who are students at our state universities would write or call their legislators and really chew them out, you would see a complete turnaround in the legislature on the tuition increase," she said. "If your average legislator gets 50 letters on one topic, he'll be very impressed. That is the only way to get him to move."

Mrs. Doderer added that the legislature's reaction to the recent class boycott at the University of Iowa had been "completely thumbs-down." She said that the legislators do not respect university students because most of them cannot vote.

"But get your parents to call up your senator or your representative and say 'Look, what the heck are you trying to do to my kids?' and you'll see some results," she said.

Gannon and Hill joined Mrs. Doderer in saying that the boycott had only made an unfavorable impression on the Iowa Legislature.

One graduate student at the "study-in" said that he together with several members of the House, was investigating the possibility of a graduated tuition payment.

The student, who asked not to be identified, said that some legislators were interested in introducing a bill which would call for graduated tuition payment at Iowa's state universities.

Building Funds Of $7.5 Million OK'd for Regents

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill appropriating $7.5 million to the State Board of Regents for campus construction during the next two years was passed 47 to 0 by the Senate Friday.

The amount is some $3 million more than recommended by Gov. Robert D. Ray, but falls several million dollars short of that requested by the regents.

Ray maintained that bonding authority which he wants the legislature to give the regents under a separate bill could be used to keep the building program going.

But the regents contended that even if they are given authority to finance classrooms and other academic buildings through revenue bonds, the authority will come too late to help during the first year of the 1969-71 biennium.

They said the $7.5 million was the minimum they would have to have to continue work on buildings at the University of Iowa and Iowa State University for which some $20 million in federal funds has been allocated.

To get the additional $3 million, the Senate Appropriations Committee reduced by a like amount the governor's proposed tuition grant program.

Ray originally had proposed allocating $6 million to provide tuition grants for needy Iowa students attending in-state private colleges and universities.

The Senate approved Thursday the reduced appropriation for the tuition grant program. Both bills now have been sent to the House.

Nicaraguans Protest Visit of Rockefeller

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguan students trampled and burned an American flag Friday to protest the visit of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who arrived amid tight security precautions prompted by bloodshed during his visit to neighboring Honduras.

Student Charges Bowen With Holding Information

University Pres. Howard R. Bowen was charged with withholding public information Friday afternoon following an attempt by Jerry Sies, A4, Iowa City, to place him under citizen's arrest.

Previously, Bowen had adjourned a meeting in his Old Capitol office of a student-faculty-staff committee on budget priorities after questioning the eligibility of three student committee members.

The committee is an outgrowth of a proposal by the Coalition to Fight Tuition for representatives of all sectors of the University community to take part in budgetary decisions.

The Coalition proposed that the committee be formed from a list of students, faculty members, staff members and administrators drawn up by the Coalition; that all meetings be open; and that the committee have full control over budget priorities.

The Coalition plan was rejected by Bowen, who suggested the formation of a committee independent of the Coalition, with faculty members chosen by the Faculty Senate, student members chosen by the Student Senate, and staff and administrative members chosen by Bowen himself. The president also stipulated that meetings of the committee would be closed and that the committee would be merely advisory in nature.

Bowen and the Faculty Senate made their choices for the committee earlier this week, although they were not announced until Friday. The student members were chosen by the Coalition, to which the Student Senate belongs.

When the students showed up for Friday's meeting, Bowen refused to accept them.

Two of the students — Bruce Orr, B3, West Branch, and Russ Menard, G, Newark, Del. — argued that the Student Senate, as a member of the Coalition, had, in effect, approved their appointment even though the Coalition appointed them. The third student members — Mal Moore, G, Carbondale, Ill. — was not present.

"I could not regard any organization other than the Student Senate as proper representatives of the University until the senate is replaced (by a higher authority)," Bowen said.

Student Body Pres. Jim Sutton, who is not a member of the Coalition or of the committee, questioned the credentials of the faculty members of the committee. He said that three of the four faculty members had been members of the Faculty Senate committee for the selection of administrative personnel.

Bowen refused to discuss faculty members' credentials.

Orr and Menard left the meeting after Sutton told the remaining members: "Gentlemen, get your information together, because we're getting a lawyer. We'll get the budget information with or without this committee."

Bowen asked a Daily Iowan reporter and Philip Mause, assistant professor of law, to also leave the meeting. Mause, adviser to the senate, was attending the meeting at the request of Student Body Vice Pres. Jim Dougherty, on behalf of the senate.

Outside Old Capitol, Sies discussed with Sutton his intention to make a citizen's arrest on Bowen for withholding budget and appropriations tallies from students.

Sies decided to enter Old Capitol and attempt to arrest Bowen when the meeting ended. He entered the outer office of the president and asked him for next year's budget. When Bowen refused, Sies attempted to arrest him.

Sies told Bowen he did not want to use physical force, and asked the president to accompany him to the police station. Bowen refused.

Sies took Bowen's arm and attempted to lead him out of the quiet outer office.

Bowen, shook Sies' arm off, saying "Put your hands off me."

At this point, John Larson, legal coun-

Records on File

The financial records of the University for the fiscal year 1968-69, one of which has been "confidential" until now, are on reserve in the Main Library. However, no material on the 1969-70 budget is available.

The records were placed there about a week and a half ago under orders from Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

They are: the general budget contained in two volumes entitled "Internal Allocations"; "Auditors' Report"; "Financial Report of the Department of Athletics"; "Recommendations from the University of Iowa to the Board of Regents Concerning Legislative Appropriation Requests for Operating Fund, Building Needs and Related Improvements, 1969-71"; dated July 11, 1968; "Annual Salary Analysis, 1968-69"; labeled "confidential"; "University Financial Report for the year ended 1968"; "Student Organization Financial Report"; and the "Five-Year Review of Developments, 1964-65 Through 1968-69 — An Interim Report of the President", dated Jan. 29, 1969.

sel to the University, and two Campus Security officers arrived on the scene. While Sies' attention was distracted by the new members of the group, Bowen walked out into the hall.

He was stopped in the hall by a crowd of students and faculty and he returned to his private office, closing the door behind him. One of the campus policemen stood in front of the door and refused to allow Sies to enter.

At this point, one of several students who had entered the building with Sies yelled, "Bowen just went out the back door."

Sies attempted to follow Bowen, but apparently could not find him. Sies then

Lawmakers Trim Legislature From 185 to 150 Members

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa lawmakers Friday polished off the task of trimming the legislature from 185 to 150 members.

A plan to slash House membership from 124 to 100 and Senate from 61 to 50 was on its way to the governor.

The scheme originally worked out by a 14-member bipartisan commission, was changed by the House and further revised by the Senate.

But the House accepted Senate changes in the plan Friday and approved it 73 to 42.

Democrats never relented from their contention that GOP switches in the plan would cause it to be thrown out by the courts.

"The commission plan was fair. This plan is not," charged Rep. William Gannon, (D-Mingo), the House minority leader.

"The House messed it up," Gannon continued. "The Senate made it worse. All I can say is . . . I'll see you in court."

The reapportionment task was undertaken to bring Iowa into line with the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote principle.

Iowa voters approved a constitutional amendment last November giving the legislature until September 15 to pass either the commission plan or one of its own.

The reapportionment task will come up again after results of the 1970 census are revealed.

Under the commission plan, the population of Iowa House districts ranged from 26,000 to 29,500 and Senate districts from 52,160 to 58,622.

However, Democrats charged Republicans with "gerrymandering the districts" thus causing greater variation in the population between the districts.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently rejected a Missouri reapportionment plan where the population of districts varied less than that of the districts drawn by Iowa's commission.

The House spent only a few minutes Friday deliberating on the plan. When it was first brought up in the House a few weeks ago members struggled through a marathon session which began at 9:30 one morning and ground on past midnight.

Under the plan, 22 senators will be running for 11 seats. In two cases, three senators have been thrown into the same district with each other.

One Senate district drawn in Dubuque has no incumbent living in it.

With the district changes and expiration of terms, lawmakers estimate senatorial elections will be necessary in 1970 in from 24 to 31 of the new Senate districts.

The Senate added a provision that elections would not have to be held in 1970 in those senatorial districts where all but one of the incumbents resign.

In the House districts, 54 incumbents will be paired in districts vying for 27 seats.

Three House districts have no incumbents and 70 have a single incumbent.

Summer Grads May Not Have Commencement

August Commencement may be eliminated as an economy move, The Daily Iowan has learned.

Pres. Howard R. Bowen sent letters to both the Faculty Council and the Student Senate last month requesting opinions on such a plan. Replies have not yet come in, but sources in both the council and the senate have indicated approval of the idea.

Bowen, who is waiting to hear from the council and the senate before making the decision final, is reported ready to approve the plan barring any unforeseen objections.

In the place of the large commencement, the administration is reportedly to recommend that each college have its own informal commencement.

The college commencements would be informal gatherings at which a local speaker could be asked to give an address.

The informal commencement would eliminate the costs of hiring a prominent speaker to give the commencement address, the cost of renting robes and the cost of setting up the Field House.

Bowen's statement

Editor's Note

These are the respective statements from University Pres. Howard R. Bowen and Student Body Pres. James Sutton, concerning Friday's budget meeting at Old Capitol.

During the past month, my colleagues and I have been developing a budget for the University. Because of many uncertainties about appropriations, federal programs, and tuitions, we have been considering many alternatives and no final decisions have been made. At present there is no final budget for the University for next year. However, we have been consulting informally with various faculty, staff and student groups and with the Board of Regents in preparing the budget.

Recently, I invited the heads of the Faculty Senate, the University Staff Council and the Student Senate to convene one or more joint meetings of representatives of their organizations to consider the budget. These organizations, along with the Administrative Council, are the official bodies representative of students and staff members. The purpose of the meetings was to be frank and detailed consideration of the budgetary alternatives before the University and a seeking of advice. The first meeting was scheduled for Friday, May 16, at 2:30 p.m. in the Board Room of Old Capitol.

When that meeting was convened, duly selected representatives of the faculty, the non-academic staff, and the Administrative Council were present. Several students including Student Body Pres. James Sutton, were present. According to Mr. Sutton, these students had not been chosen by the Student Senate, which is the official and recognized organization representative of all the students.

I asked that the meeting be adjourned until a later date when Student Senate representatives could be present. I strongly urge the Senate to choose, in whatever way they wish, accredited representatives to the joint committee which will then convene for what I hope will be productive sessions.

I indicated to the students present that I would be glad to hear their views about the budget at the other time, and to discuss the issues with them. That offers still holds.

Immediately after leaving this meeting, I was accosted in my office by Mr. Jerry Sies, a student, who threatened citizen's arrest if I did not provide him with "next year's budget." The obvious fact is that next year's budget does not exist. At this point, we have only a categorical outline of tentative expenditures for 1969-70, unsupported at this time by actual appropriations or other firm amounts of income. Until firm income figures are known and until the State Board of Regents approves our recommendations, we cannot be said to have a formal budget.

I referred Mr. Sies, who was accompanied by several other persons, to the fact that the official financial records of the University have been placed on reserve in the Library and are available to anyone to see. This fact should also be known to Mr. Sutton, who spoke during our brief meeting of his intention to subpoena University fiscal records.

Howard R. Bowen

Sutton's reply

Rather than accept the credentials of three students provisionally, Pres. Bowen adjourned a meeting which he had called for discussing the University's budget. He then convened another meeting immediately thereafter, excluding students, guests, and the press.

The student members were elected by a committee which was convened by the student body at its convocation of May 8. The committee's purpose was to investigate the University's budget. Membership on the committee was drawn from the students assembled and was open to all students. This committee, at my request and without nominations from me, elected three students to serve.

Strictly speaking, the electing committee is a student body committee, not a Student Senate committee. Nevertheless, the names of the elected students will be presented to the Student Senate. They could not have been submitted earlier since the election was held last night. The next Senate meeting is Tuesday.

Under the circumstances, Bowen should have continued the meeting if merely as a gesture of good faith. He then might have stipulated that further participation by the three students would be contingent on Senate's approval. Instead he chose to exclude students from the discussion.

The incident indicates that Bowen's narrow legalistic approach to University problems continues to be the main barrier to the solution of these problems.

Bowen also refused to open the question of the credentials of the faculty at the meeting. There is some question as to the propriety of the presence of certain faculty members. The members were elected by the faculty council. Two of the faculty members were members of the committee for the selection of central administrators. In other words, the men who proposed Dean Boyd for the presidency are now passing on the propriety of his budget.

This arrangement, coupled with today's treatment of students, leads easily to a conclusion that the committee is packed. At the very least, the faculty contingent does not represent more than one faculty point of view.

Under the circumstances, the faculty Senate should review the nominations to Bowen's committee. One more faculty member, (non-tenured) should be added to the committee, and one more student (a woman) should be appointed by the Student Senate or the student investigating committee.

We must have information in order to evaluate objectively the fiscal situation of the University. Does the University in fact have enough money? Is it short? We mean to find out for ourselves. But, so far, student attempts to investigate our fiscal situation have ended in failure.

From the people Rostoker replies

To the editor:

(In reply to a letter by Henry Sutton II appearing in Friday's edition of the DI).

Poor Mr. Sutton. I would of course hate to disappoint him when he has me so neatly typed, and so I will continue my fight against such "intelligent, sensitive" criticism as his own.

I must first however agree on one point: "Elvira Madigan" is indeed the portrayal of an ancient Scandinavian tale. As for the longing to escape themselves (I would have said they wanted to escape society but why quibble), a longing which Mr. Sutton kindly tells us is universal, I felt this most acutely while watching the film.

I had seldom desired to escape myself and my situation so intensely. I suppose of course I could have consoled myself by picking out the "replicas" of impressionist painting but then I was under the no doubt false impression that I was at a movie and not a collection of still frames.

Being at a film, I looked for that sense of rhythm and tension between vocals that is so essential to film as a vocabulary and language. I looked for a strong enough point of view from the director to counter-balance this weak little tale with its implication of social revolt and its own consequences (the refusal of violence at the film's end, the cliched freeze frame with the butterfly which ends the whole maudlin affair).

But then why be technical? Rather sit back and enjoy the "subtle" triumph (not too subtle of course to hinder the film from being a real commercial triumph too). If the whole thing seemed monotone console yourself that it was filled with sounds and colors.

How easily some people are satisfied. Oh Well, enough of this. Back to the typewriter to pound out another pseudo-intellectual review of an unseen french movie. Why unseen? I presume Mr. Sutton doesn't approve of intellect or of emotions stronger than complacent sentimentality. I don't blame him.

It's much easier to be lulled by beauty. Poor Mr. Sutton indeed. I wish we could have "Elvira Madigan" at all the theaters all the time. If only to fulfill his "universal longing."

Allan Rostoker 421 Douglas Ct.

Press corrected by prof.

To the editor:

The news and editorial treatment given to the University's Coalition to Fight Tuition Increase have presented Iowans with a distorted perspective on University events. I would like to correct nine errors of fact and interpretation.

- 1. The Coalition to Fight Tuition Increase included faculty as well as students.
2. The Coalition was organized and developed through the careful and principled efforts of Students for a Democratic Society.
3. SDS did not as an organization interject the demands of the Black Athletes Union.
4. The number of students voting for a strike was 1,247. This is not a small group.
5. SDS, in keeping with the principles of democratic opposition, accepted the vote even though they felt it was a wrong decision.
6. The objectives of SDS (and the Coalition) is to try to keep University admissions open to all, regardless of wealth. SDS further put forward the proposal that since corporations were the prime beneficiaries of the university, they should be especially taxed to pay their fair share of the costs of higher education.
7. Because of coalition actions, Pres. Howard Bowen changed some budget priorities — although the full budget details still remain secret.

8. On April 24, as a measure of expediency, the New University Conference, proposed a graduated tuition. This proposal was presented publicly.

9. When Bowen adopted this proposal (in gross outline), he was responding to NUC and coalition demands.

The Coalition has mobilized for further action 10-15 per cent of the student body and perhaps an equal percentage of the faculty. The first of the Coalition demands calls for a public review of the University budget by a Coalition-appointed committee of students, faculty and staff.

Following a reordering of priorities, an equitable graduated tuition may be introduced, if necessary.

Campus Voices On federal fund loss

The federal government faces a serious crisis of confidence with a portion of America's students.

At a hearing before a House education subcommittee last week, four congressmen upheld a bill which would cut off all federal aid to a college which cannot control campus rioting. College authorities would be given five days to restore order before funds would be cut off.

If Congress cracks down on campus dissidents, this action would violate the principle of noninterference by the federal government in educational policy.

Vice President Spiro Agnew has said, to the contrary, that Congress has the right to withdraw financial aid from institutions.

President Nixon, however, believes in noninterference by the federal government in educational objectives, a principle which has been built into the structure of federal aid to education.

A congressional crackdown on colleges would not counteract disorders. These are times when issues can be settled best through flexibility.

Government officials have from time to time conferred with student dissidents. Their reactions to the youths' philosophies are usually the same — "stereotyped," "unconstructive."

Students have not offered constructive solutions for society's problems, and their phraseology at times reflects immaturity, but the fact remains that social problems do exist. The government must not overlook that campus turmoil across the nation is an undeniable symptom of underlying ills.

Turmoil on campus, Nixon warned, will continue until "political leaders of our country address more effectively, massively and persistently the major social and foreign problems of our society."

Congressional strong-arm tactics would further antagonize a deeply alienated generation.

On Mailer and Breslin

Not that it makes any difference to anyone in Kansas, but two of America's most prominent authors are running for two top political positions in New York City.

Norman Mailer is running for mayor, and Jimmy Breslin is running for president of the city council.

The two writers are running on a platform which advocates the secession of New York City from the State into the Union as the 51st state.

It is not all that weird, because Mailer and Breslin also have said that if New York City "secedes" under their program, they would call for democratic rule by districts that have already been established in the city. Home rule, indeed. Queens, for instance — where Breslin grew up — would become a separate ruling body within the new state.

And so would the Bronx, and Manhattan, and Harlem and other areas in the city which for so many years have evolved as their own autonomous districts within the city. These districts, according to the Mailer-Breslin ticket, would govern themselves under the new state of "New York City."

The city is now strangling itself under an archaic tax structure — the more wealthy districts financially dictating educational tax policies of the less wealthy districts.

The city is tying its own hands by delegating the same political and societal rules to the Village as it does to Queens — a rather inadequate way of dealing with two entirely different financial, societal, and politically different sections of the city, Breslin and Mailer say.

As the two political candidates say, and admit, they do not have any clear-cut answers to the problems of the city in which they both have lived most of their lives. But what they think they have done, is attack some of the roots of these problems.

Breslin and Mailer believe they are questioning the basic social structures of the city — which both the candidates think need serious revision, if the city is to keep from killing itself.

The Mailer-Breslin approach to big city politics seems at first glance to be a new one — artists offering their ideas for social improvement to the city. Initially, their approach to urban problems seems simplistic and rather idealistic.

Their advocating a return to individual local government instead of a city-wide central machine has drawn support for the Mailer-Breslin ticket from both liberals and conservatives.

Perhaps Kansas politicians should look more closely at these two candidates — perhaps the first two — who really care.

On student petitioning

There are two petitions currently circulating on campus that are deserving of the consideration and support of the university community.

The first is absolutely essential to the continued growth of the University of Massachusetts. The second petition, concerning the "silent majority," is important to consider as an expression of the community's philosophy of purpose.

The petition which asks for the support of Provost Tippe and opposition to the cutting of the budget is imperative. The development of the university must not be obstructed by the political bickering on Beacon Hill. Massachusetts support of education is disgraceful in light of the wealth of the Commonwealth. Surely the ninth most prosperous state should be ashamed of being fiftieth in state aid to education.

In a state famed for its higher education, in a time when public-supported schools are necessarily assuming a burden once satisfied by private colleges,

Massachusetts should be a leader.

State support of the university has brought us this far from our antiquated past; we need continued support or the accomplishments thus far realized will be for naught.

The statement of the "silent majority" is an eloquent enunciation of the purpose of a university. Obviously the statements are admirable goals for this institution to seek.

This petition should have a soothing effect on the citizens of the Commonwealth, upon whom we are dependent for our existence. Of the governor, and the legislature, we ask that they not forget our needs. We are not, and should not be, enemies. Our university needs your support desperately, we are deserving of it. To continue we must have it. The budget is large, unpopular, but we need the funds. Please be helpful to our needs.

On Eric Hoffer

It seems a daily event to read in newspapers about disruptions on college campuses. So now people are getting so upset over the protests they don't understand. The most recent example of this is Eric Hoffer.

He offers administrators his own reactionary advice: If Grayson Kirk had got mad and gunned a couple of them down, he might have saved Columbia.

Certainly rational, thinking and concerned human beings do not take suggestions of this ridiculous nature as being a solution to the problems plaguing American campuses today.

Students, Profs Urged To Redo Universities After 'Chase,' Sies Files His Complaint

By GARY BRITSON

An official of the New University Conference (NUC) Thursday night advocated that University students and faculty "exercise rights collectively by seizing their rights, taking the initiative and redesigning the university."

John McDermott, field secretary of the NUC, made suggestions concerning the reconstruction of American universities at the Union Thursday evening in conjunction with a conference on "The Nature of the Democratic University" being sponsored by the NUC and the Action Studies Program.

"I am not going to preach increased liberalism to everyone at the university level," McDermott said. "But the thing for people who are interested in university reform is not to get involved in preliminary fights and debates with the administration. The thing to do is to seize control and just do it."

Calling for "a collective exercise of rights," he said that a student-faculty coalition could completely redesign a university's set of elective courses, write a new university catalogue and integrate the new courses into "a radically new program," while at the same time recruiting students into the new program.

Besides changes in class and curriculum structure, McDermott criticized tight restrictions placed on university instructors. "In some parts of this country," he said, "it is impossible for a left-wing teacher to be employed. In the university community, there is a considerable purge of left-wing faculty as well as left-wing students."

"University professors should have the right to any 'isms' they want. I think the lack of Marxists in our universities is a scandal. This lack exists because they are systematically purged every few years," McDermott also suggested that all university instructors be allowed to teach in more than one department. Suggesting that "the academic hierarchy be busted up," McDermott said that professors at Columbia University are allowed to "remove professional lines" and to instruct classes in two or more departments. He added that he thought this idea has been successful.

McDermott also called for the "democratization" of American universities. He said he favored student and faculty autonomy. He told the audience that universities should be largely run on the principle of "one man, one vote" and that this should apply to all students and faculty alike.

"People should be able to control their work life. It's a right they should seize," he stated.

"The most important investment in modern society is in people. If you see the university as the place where that investment is made, the university is a major socio-economic factor in society. The university is now a major power constellation."

UI Coed 'Serious' After Auto Crash Which Killed Girl

A University graduate student was in serious condition at General Hospital Friday following an early morning one-car accident on a Jefferson County blacktop road.

Margaret Ann Hurt, 22, Iowa City, suffered a broken pelvis and head injuries when the car in which she was a passenger hit a bridge abutment on a road five miles northwest of Fairfield.

Another passenger in the car, Sandra Fisher, 19, of Clarence was killed in the accident.

Richard Hitchcock, 20, Springfield, Mass., driver of the car, suffered minor injuries.

decided to go to the police station and file an information (a legal complaint) against the missing Bowen.

At the police station, Sies was told that he could not file the complaint there because it was a civil complaint and because it was a state rather than a city offense. Officers suggested that he go to the office of Police Court Judge Marion Neely.

At Neely's office, Sies was informed that he should return to the police station to file his complaint. Neely suggested that Sies check with Asst. County Atty. John W. Hayek about the matter.

In Hayek's office, the complaint was filled out and notarized, and Sies returned it to Neely.

Neely told Sies that the complaint would be officially filed in court Monday morning, and that a letter would be sent to Bowen informing him of the action.

Bowen released a statement about the afternoon's activities at 4:30 p.m. Friday. That statement, and a reply from Sutton, appear on today's editorial page.

Faculty, staff and administration members of the committee on budget priorities, appointed by Bowen and announced Friday are: Paul Neuhauser, associate dean of law; Stow Persons, professor of history; Robert Caldwell, professor of sociology and anthropology; David Hamilton, assistant professor of history; Prof. Jerry Kollros, chairman of the Department of Zoology; Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Alvin Logan, laboratory technician in bacteriology; and Robert Leahy, associate director of admissions.

Coalition Asks Support For Anti-Tuition Plans

Petitions are still being distributed to gain support for a request that the University business office itemize University bills and for a proposal to withhold tuition payment from the University.

Distribution began Friday. The petitions are the product of two committees of the Coalition to Fight Tuition. The committees are 2 of 14 formed to implement the Coalition's 14-point plan to continue the fight against a tuition increase.

One of the petitions reads: "We, the undersigned, pledge to request itemized bills of the business office this fall as a legal and legitimate means of fighting the tuition increase." Student Body Pres. Jim Sutton, who supports the Coalition, believes it would cost the University more to send out itemized bills than it would gain from a tuition increase. Thus, the proposal is a means of protest that would nullify the tuition increase.

The petition provides space for parents' names and home addresses so a mailing list can be compiled to keep parents informed of developments in the tuition fight.

The other petition reads: "We, the undersigned, will be willing to withhold all payments from the University and will pay the corrected bill (i.e., minus the tuition increase) to an escrow bank account which will act as a collective bargaining agent for the students, providing there will be adequate student and parental support for our actions."

Faulty Brakes Seen as Cause Of Bus Wreck

OXFORD — Faulty brakes on a school bus were blamed for an accident Friday morning in which seven children and a bus driver were injured. Authorities said the bus hit an embankment off a T-intersection five miles southwest of this Iowa county town.

Donald Tomas, 10, of rural Oxford, underwent surgery at Mercy Hospital in Iowa City Friday for abdominal injuries and severe facial cuts. He was reported in satisfactory condition Friday night.

Of the six other children who were injured, all from the Clear Creek Community School System, two will remain overnight in Mercy Hospital for observation. They are Cynthia Gorsch, 9, and Linda Spratt, 13, who suffered head lacerations and are reported in satisfactory condition.

The remaining four children were treated and released from Mercy Hospital Friday. They were John Gorsch, 9, Cynthia's twin brother, their sisters, Sandra, 11 and Verna Ann, 16, and Tom Spratt, 15, a brother of Linda.

The bus driver, Paul Gegenheimer, 53, was treated for numerous cuts and released from Mercy Hospital.

Highway Patrolmen said the accident occurred as Gegenheimer was preparing to make a right turn onto another road.

Gegenheimer applied the brakes and when they did not work, he pulled the emergency brake which also failed to work.

Authorities said Gegenheimer did a good job of keeping the bus from going into the ditch and overturning.

Ervin L. Burton, school superintendent, said the brakes were checked and adjusted by mechanics a week and a half ago and at that time were in good working condition.

Women Exploited, Female Prof Says

By PAUL FARRRENS

Because society believes that women are biologically inferior, women are pegged in a caste system, Marlene Dixon, a member of a New University Conference (NUC) and Action Studies Program (ASP) panel told a group of about 40 Friday afternoon.

The panel was part of a three day NUC-ASP conference on "The Nature of the Democratic University." The conference ends today with discussions on research and curricula beginning at 10 a.m. in the Union Michigan and Minnesota rooms. A summing-up session will be held at 4 p.m. in the Union Lucas-Dodge Room.

Miss Dixon, assistant professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, emphasized the subordinate role that women play in society today.

She said the caste system in which women are classed perpetuates itself because women believe they are inferior.

If women are to be independent from men they must take up the struggle to free themselves from this system and from men, Miss Dixon said.

Women are exploited by men because they are paid less for doing the same work, usually 40 per cent less, she explained.

Douglas Dowd, professor of social science at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., who along with Miss Dixon led the discussions, explained the situation at Cornell two weeks ago when a group of black students took over a university building.

He said that the blacks took guns with them when they seized the building for only one reason - self-defense.

Concerning curriculum changes at Cornell, Dowd said that blacks have brought about more changes in the curriculum at the university than white students have.

He said he favored the idea that education should be a process of inquiry, not instruction, because instruction merely lumps students together, whereas inquiry keeps the student searching for knowledge that interests him and is useful to him.

Education should be a growth of knowledge not simply giving a student a grade in competition with other students, Dowd said.

Dean Intervenes In Rienow Cases

Recent incidents of Rienow II residents throwing objects from their windows down on pedestrians have come before Richard M. Trumpe, associate dean of students.

Trumpe said that "six or eight" students so far had been brought before him to discuss the incidents. He said the punishments administered depended on the individual involved, but declined to spell them out or identify the students.

Trumpe said the "immediacy" of the situation made it necessary for him to take the problem out of the jurisdiction of the dormitory's judiciary board. He said there had been a series of incidents of this nature but that about three weeks ago the situation became too serious for the dormitory board to handle.

Most seriously affected, according to Trumpe and some judiciary board members, are the children of students living in South Park, which is near the dormitory. There have been reports of children being hit by objects while playing outside.

There were also reports of students being doused by water on their way to classes.

According to Trumpe, the objects, including firecrackers, have been not only thrown from dormitory windows but have also been planted in or near vending machines in the dormitory. He said several students had narrowly escaped serious injuries on occasions.

James Steilen, A2, Ankeny, spokesman for the Rienow II Judiciary Board, said the board would meet early next week to discuss the situation and decide whether to support Trumpe's action.

As associate dean of students in charge of dormitory problems, Trumpe has the authority to administer punishments to offenders in such situations and to take the matter out of the board's jurisdiction.

Trumpe emphasized that if similar incidents continue, offenders will be punished. He said this is true no matter how late in the semester, or during final week, the incidents occur.

Meat Bill to Ray

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill imposing federal meat inspection standards on intrastate meat processors and packers was sent to Gov. Robert D. Ray Friday after the House and Senate agreed on its final form.

The bill originally was written in the Senate and was amended in the House to provide for a $400,000 appropriation to pay increased inspection costs, partially through fees on processing plants, lockers, restaurants and grocery stores.

ZTA ALUMS TO MEET

Zeta Tau Alpha alumnae will meet at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday at Mrs. Lloyd Rinehardt's home, 107 7th Ave. The alumnae will make gifts for the college chapter.

House Splits On Tax Bill To Help Poor

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa House Democrats accused Republicans Friday of throwing poor people "a handful of peanuts" by voting to exempt them from state income tax if their net income is below $3,000.

The exemption bill, approved 78 to 33 in a straight party line vote, now goes to the Senate for consideration.

GOP leaders said it is the only tax break Iowa poor will get this year because Republicans have abandoned a simplified "postcard" tax plan which would have exempted those with incomes below $4,000 a year from income tax.

The postcard plan, which would have based the Iowa tax on a graduated percentage of the federal tax, was junked because it wouldn't be as simple as it first appeared, Rep. Maurice Van Nostrand (R-Avocca) said.

Rep. Edgar Koch (R-St. Charles) sponsored the $3,000 exemption plan which was adopted by the House as a substitute for the postcard tax.

Rep. Vernon Bennett (D-Des Moines) unsuccessfully sponsored an amendment to provide exemptions to persons with net incomes below $4,000.

"You are really handing the people a handful of peanuts," said Rep. Norman Jess (D-Des Moines). Van Nostrand defended the GOP proposal.

'Hamburgers, Yes; Gas, No;' J-School Wins Hearst Award For 7th Place

Scotti's Hamburgers, 621 S. Riverside Dr., has been charged with violating a state law prohibiting operation of self-service gas stations.

Two state charges filed in Police Court contend that Scotti's has allowed customers to service their own cars from pumps on the premises. State Deputy Fire Marshal Robert Smith filed charges on May 7 and Iowa City Fire Marshal Darel Forman filed charges on Tuesday. According to City Atty. Jay H. Honohan, the city informed Scotti's last year of the illegality of the self-service station.

According to state law, "No person other than the service station proprietor or an authorized employe shall use or operate any motor fuel dispensing equipment at any service station."

No date has been set yet for a preliminary hearing to be held in Police Court on the matter.

Car Hits Light, Woman Injured

An Iowa City woman whose car went out of control and struck a traffic light Thursday night was listed in good condition at General Hospital Friday.

Jane A. Rust, 33, 1232 E. College St., suffered head injuries. Police have charged her with failing to have a driver's license.

Fifty-two schools compete in the Hearst competition each year. The University placed third in the program's 1967-68 competition.

Senate Votes To Tighten ADC Policy

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Senate adopted Friday, 33 to 19, a hard line policy on recipients of Aid to Dependent Children while passing a measure requiring mothers on welfare to work if able.

Democrats charged that the proposal would "bring utter chaos to the family unit," but Republican leader David Stanley of Muscatine, author of the proposal, described it as "helping people to help themselves."

The work proposal was substituted for a House-approved bill "encouraging" persons who receive the ADC payments to work.

Stanley's lengthy amendment rewrote the entire bill, with the principle change being that recipients "shall be required" to accept employment, training or education set out by county boards of welfare.

Sen. John Walsh (R-Dubuque) attached to the measure a provision requiring all cities to set up distribution points for federal food stamps or commodities. Walsh's proposal was adopted, 31 to 17.

Local Unit Forms To Study Schools

An organization designed to study various areas of Iowa City school activity and develop public reports on these studies was formed at a meeting at the Recreation Center Thursday night.

The group, called Citizens Action Council for Education, proposes "liaison between the school board and the public and political action such as working for school board candidates," according to its organizers.

The council was formed to "fill a gap in the community as there is now no active school study or advisory group in this district."

Now Ready--- YOUR ANNUAL NEWSPAPER

THE WORLD IN 1968

For all its hard back cover and slick paper, THE WORLD IN 1968 can well be regarded as the annual edition of your own newspaper.

In fact this handsome volume was prepared by our chief source of national and international news, The Associated Press, and was written largely by the skilled correspondents who in the first place reported the year's outstanding news.

Unlike any other annual, it gives breathtaking immediacy to the 12-month period's unparalleled events.

Its hundreds of news pictures in color and black and white form an outstanding collection available no place else.

Whether you want it for reference or as a help to your children in their school work, or for just plain enjoyment, you should not miss the opportunity of ordering now.

The price is only $3.50--comparable bookstore value $7 to $9.

- THE WORLD IN 1968 volume contains:
- 300 pages, page size 9 1/2" x 12 1/2"
 - 140,000-word text on outstanding news events of the year
 - 240 photographs, 60 of these in full color
 - 30-page almanac containing world chronology, the world's top stories and newsmakers, U.S. economic and sports statistics.

Nagel Puts Gridders on Display

By MIKE SLUTSKY

The date may be May 17, but football returns in earnest to Iowa Stadium today as Coach Ray Nagel presents his 1969 squad in the annual intrasquad game beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Admission is $1 for the general public. University students will be admitted upon presentation of their IDs.

The game will wind up spring drills for the Hawkeyes unless Nagel decides to use a couple of spring-over practices. The left game is normally the 20th and last practice but bad weather has thrown the Hawks a little behind schedule.

Nagel has split the squad into two teams, the Blacks and Whites. The Black team includes the entire first-team offense, plus the top defensive line and linebackers. The Blacks get an additional boost because they have both Larry Lawrence and Mike Cilek, Iowa's top quarterbacks.

The No. 1 defensive backfield will operate on the White team. This move is designed to give the four backs, none of whom were starters last year, some added experience against the No. 1 offensive unit. The Blacks, with both Cilek and Lawrence on its side, are expected to come out throwing.

The Hawkeyes will dress 56 players for the game, including 24 lettermen. Seven players on the squad will not take part in the contest due to injuries, most notably veterans Rich Stepanek and Bob Gruver.

Three sophomores-to-be have cracked the No. 1 team. They are split end Don Osby on offense, and Bill Windauer, middle guard, and rover Steve Penney on defense.

With 16 blacks dismissed from the team because of a boycott of opening-day practice, numerous first and second team positions have become open to players who had not figured prominently into the picture beforehand.

This is especially true of the defensive backfield where all four of the first-line backs are relatively inexperienced at their positions.

Tom Hayes, a junior letterman, and Pat Dunningan, a senior two-time letter winner, are the No. 1 left and right defensive halfbacks respectively. Though both are lettermen, they have seen very little action in game competition at their spots.

Steve Penney, a 207 pound sophomore, has won the starting rotator job and Chris Hamilton, a senior non-letterman, is the new No. 1 safety.

Nagel said Wednesday that practice has been very good this spring.

"There's been good progress in every department," Nagel said. "The defense of course was our largest concern and we feel that they have come along very well."

Nagel said that there will be no big changes in players moving to new positions although Ray Manning will learn the split end position as well as his regular job at first end. Kerry Reardon, first team tailback, has been working out in the defensive backfield also and may see some action there.

"Our biggest problem is the depth of the team," Nagel said. "Our starting offensive backfield is set with Bill Powell, Kerry Reardon, and Tim Sullivan but after them, there is nothing. We need all the forces we have intact for our balance to be effective," Nagel said. "To say the least, we are going to be a little lean."

Michigan State and Purdue were in a battle for first place ahead of the rest of the teams. Michigan State had a 747 total score and Purdue had 758. Iowa had 784 strokes.

Besides Aldridge's 148, Iowa's other entries recorded scores of 76-81-157 by Jim Carney; 81-84-165 by Tom Lightner; 76-80-156 by Bob Mulert; 79-79-158 by Brad Schuchat; and 83-85-168 by Pat Stopolus.

a big drop to the No. 2 backfield."

Nagel said that injuries have been at a minimum this spring, Rich Stepanek being the only major exception.

"If we can keep the injuries down during the season, we should be all right," Nagel added. "But players like Sullivan, Powell, and Reardon would be next to impossible to replace."

Lawrence and Cilek have both had minor injuries this spring and, because of this, the offense has gotten a little behind where it should be. Sophomore Alan Schaefer has replaced them during most of the practices and Nagel said that he has done a good job while gaining valuable experience.

"We need all the forces we have intact for our balance to be effective," Nagel said. "To say the least, we are going to be a little lean."

Tennis Squad 4th Moving into Finals

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Iowa's tennis team, behind the strong performances of Craig Sandvig and Steve Ehlers, moved up a notch Friday into fourth place after the semi-final rounds of the Big 10 championships here.

Sandvig, No. 3 singles player, and Ehlers, No. 5 singles, both beat fourth seeded opponents Friday in semi-final action to move into today's finals.

Sandvig defeated Tom Dunlap of Illinois, 6-4, 7-5 and Ehlers beat Jorge Herrera of Minnesota, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Iowa's two other singles players Steve Houghton lost to Minnesota's Paul Krause, 5-7, 6-0, 6-4.

Houghton and his doubles partner, Rich Stokstad, later lost in the semi-finals of the No. 3 doubles competition. They were beaten by Michigan's Dan McLaughlin and Jon Mainline, the first seed, 6-1, 6-4.

Michigan, as expected, was far out in front of the rest of the field in the team standings. The Wolves have 137 points while Minnesota is a distant second with 80. Indiana is right behind Minnesota with 78, followed by the Hawkeyes with 69 and Illinois with 67.

Iowa's entries who lost in the first day's action Thursday participated in play-back rounds Friday.

Nathan Chapman (No. 4 singles) and Randy Murphy (No. 2 singles) both moved into play-back finals with victories. Jim Esser (No. 1 singles) won his play-back quarter-final but was defeated in the semi-finals by Illinois' Ed Thompson, 6-4, 7-5.

Iowa's No. 1 doubles team of Esser and Sandvig moved into the play-back finals by beating Ken Bartz and Chris Burr of Wisconsin, 6-4, 8-6. Iowa's No. 2 doubles team of Chapman and Ehlers were beaten in the play-back semi-finals.
