Things Burgled

Members of unidentified value were taken from the Army Storehouse and from the Central Supply House. In the storehouse, a guard was found asleep in his post. The burglars entered through a window and made off with a number of items. The Central Supply House was also ransacked. The burglars entered through a different window and made off with a number of valuables.

Regents and tuition: "will regret it"

To the Regents:

We the students, hereafter referred to as "we," would like to inform you that we are being charged with tuition fees that are disproportionate to the quality of education being offered.

We believe that the current tuition rates are unjustifiably high and do not reflect the value of the education we receive.

We urge the Regents to reconsider their decision and to make changes to the tuition structure that are fair and reasonable.

(Typical of a letter to the editor, this one is written by a student)

To the Reader:

We,the members of the student body, are deeply concerned about the recent increase in tuition fees.

We believe that the current rates are not only unjust, but also unwarranted.

We urge the administration to take immediate action to address this issue.

Field House a Chapel For 9,000 Worshipers

About 3,000 worshipers heard the Rev. George W. Floyd, director of the School of Religion, preach at a special service honoring Pentecost in the Field House Sunday afternoon.

The Service was an opportunity to reflect on the meaning of the Festival of Pentecost, which is the 50th day of the Passover, to celebrate the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the early church.

There were many who came to the Field House to hear the service, which was broadcast over the radio station, WUIE.

The service began with a short introduction by the Rev. Floyd, who spoke about the significance of the Pentecost and its role in the early church.

The main event of the service was the reading of the Bible, which was followed by a short sermon by the Rev. Floyd. The sermon focused on the importance of the Pentecost and its role in the early church.

The service ended with a closing prayer and a blessing. The Rev. Floyd closed the service with a final reflection on the meaning of the Pentecost and its role in the early church.

Double Defeats in Michigan Put Hawks in 8th Place Tie

By TOM STARK

Iowa's basketball season ended this past weekend with a doubleheader in which the Hawkeyes lost both ends of a doubleheader at the University of Michigan. The first game was played Thursday night in Ann Arbor and the second game was played Saturday afternoon in Ann Arbor.

Both games were played to determine the fate of the Michigan state basketball championship. The first game was a 74-60 victory for the Wolverines, while the second game was a 66-63 defeat for the Hawkeyes.

In the first game, Iowa jumped out to an early lead, but Michigan came back to take the lead in the second half. Iowa made a comeback in the final minutes, but Michigan held on for the victory.

In the second game, Michigan took an early lead and never allowed Iowa to get close. The final score was 66-63.

The Hawkeyes are now tied for 8th place in the Big Ten Conference, with a record of 9-13 overall and 3-11 in conference play.
Council Hears Parking Lot Costs

City Manager Frank Irwin offered the City Council its only clear opportunity yesterday to express its opposition to the proposed parking lot on the corner of Sumner and Belmont. Mr. Irwin recommended that the City Council hear the proposal presented by the developer, who believed that the lot could be of use to the City in the future. The developer, Mr. John Jones, presented a financial summary of the proposed parking lot, indicating that the cost of construction would be approximately $500,000. Mr. Jones also indicated that the lot would experience high usage during the summer months, and that it could provide additional revenue for the City. The City Council unanimously voted to accept the proposal. Mr. Irwin added that the City would need to consider the long-term implications of the parking lot, including potential effects on local businesses and the environment.
Bars serve more than beer: personality is on the house.

A friend once said you can tell a lot about someone by how they laugh; people who laugh, people communicate, but those who don't, well, and instead of saying something, they tend to think about it.

You may not think of yourself as someone who is acquisitive, but the students at Iowa State University are, and they're showing it.

A beer at the bar is a drink, not just a drink.

The bar is a place where you can meet people, and those people may be interested in you.

It's not uncommon for a student to say something like, "I don't really like beer, but I'll try it once." And then they order a beer, and they like it.

The bar is where you can find out what people think about other people.

The bar is where you can be yourself, and that's important.

The bar is where you can make friends, and that's important, too.

The bar is where you can be happy, and that's important, too.

High Court Nixes Iowa’s Bid

WASHINGTON — The all-French Court of Appeals, which had agreed in January to hear the “revised” appeal of the French military, has decided to dismiss the appeal.

The court ruled that the current appeal was not justified because the case had already been heard by the French military court and the decision could not be appealed.

The court ordered the case to be dismissed without prejudice, meaning that it could be reopened if new evidence or arguments are presented.

The decision was made by a panel of the court consisting of seven judges, who decided that the case did not meet the legal requirements for appeal.

The court’s decision is final and cannot be appealed by the French military.

The case involves a French soldier who was killed during the recent conflict in the Middle East.

The French military had originally appealed the court’s decision to dismiss the case, arguing that it was a political decision and should be reversed.

The court ruled that the case was a legal one and should be handled by the French military court.

The decision is a setback for the French military, which had been hoping to regain control of the case.

The court’s decision is likely to be appealed by the French military, which has already indicated its intention to do so.

The case will likely be heard by a higher court, which will have the final say on the matter.

The decision is a reminder of the complexities of international law and the challenges faced by the French military in dealing with cases that involve both legal and political considerations.

The court’s decision is a victory for the French military, which has been trying to regain control of the case since it was first opened.
