Campus survey results

Despite all the alarming newspaper headlines and the grim confrontation scenes on television newscasts, the "great campus revolt" that is frequently said to be sweeping the nation's colleges is actually limited to a very small minority of students.

Only nine per cent of today's male college seniors can be described as "revolutionaries" — in that they think basic American institutions should be scrapped and replaced.

This is one of the major findings of a nationwide study made of student attitudes, values and beliefs in all types of colleges and universities, large and small, public, private and religious. The survey was made by Roper Research Associates.

Although the study focused on college seniors in accredited four-year colleges and universities, it was broadened for comparative purposes to include smaller but similar surveys of freshmen and alumni of the class of 1964. In general, the three groups — freshmen, seniors and alumni — showed a marked similarity of views.

The survey, incorporating the results of intensive interviews on 96 campuses across the nation, including the University of Iowa, gives an in-depth profile of today's college student.

It is a picture that varies sharply from many widely-held impressions, including perhaps the chief one that campuses are hotbeds of student discontent and rebellion.

On the contrary, a decided majority of seniors are optimistic about the future course of American society.

Asked to appraise four basic institutions — the U.S. political system, judicial system, business and industry and higher education — large majorities consider all four "basically sound."

A majority of students agree that the American system does need improvement, but they place the emphasis on improvement rather than upheaval.

Furthermore, most of the undergraduates think individual efforts bring about the needed improvement — and they personally intend to work toward that end in the years after graduation.

While the seniors, alumni and freshmen are in essential agreement, the alumni are somewhat more critical, and the freshmen somewhat less critical than the seniors.

Surprisingly, in view of many reports of students' attitudes, seniors are less critical of American business and industry than they are of the political and judicial systems and of higher education. On the other hand, they have greater confidence in educational leaders than those in business and government.

In the opinion of seniors, the nation's four greatest problems are, in order: race relations (first, by a wide margin); crime and lawlessness; poverty and slum conditions; avoiding future wars.

Alumni, however, place crime and lawlessness at the top of the problem list, and are almost as much concerned about inflation and the cost of living as they are about race relations.

The seniors were queried about their attitude toward student activity on the campus. Although only 34 per cent have been active in student movements, a clear majority of the seniors think that such activity has on the whole had a salutary effect.

At the same time, an even larger number of seniors believe it has "gotten out of hand" in some instances. Mixed feelings were expressed about the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), the organization that has played a prominent role in the current campus disorders.

A majority of freshmen and seniors said they agree with some of the goals of SDS, but a majority also disagreed with its methods to attain those goals. Only four per cent gave the organization their full approval.

Despite criticism of various aspects of the present system of higher education, the great majority of seniors expressed satisfaction with their college experience.

The main points of criticism: the curriculum is too rigid, not related to life; the faculty is not challenging enough, and insufficiently interested in students; students should have more voice in college affairs; and there is too much emphasis on grading.

Many adjectives — "angry," "mixed-up," "frustrated," "lacking in any sense of values" — have been applied to the present college generation.

On the basis of this survey, such descriptions appear far off the mark. The overwhelming majority of freshmen and seniors are optimistic about their own futures. They know where they're going in terms of a career, and they fully expect to get there.

Only seven per cent of the seniors have not yet decided on a career choice. Top preference is for business followed by education, the professions and government service, in that order.

It is, by and large, a serious and socially-conscious college generation. When asked about the job qualities they valued most highly, freshmen and seniors alike put mentally stimulating work at the top of the list. A chance "to get to the top" — the traditional success syndrome — was far down in career requisites.

Naturally, the possibility if not the probability of military service is much on seniors' minds. Almost a third of the students expect to go into the armed forces right after graduation. The others hope to go to graduate school or start on their chosen careers.

Most of the students are taking the prospect of military service in stride, although 27 per cent of the seniors say frankly they intend to try and avoid it — 25 per cent by legal means; 2 per cent by any means, including going to jail if necessary.

The students were also asked about their experiences and views on such personal subjects as drugs, sex and religion. Here, too, the responses run counter to some popular notions.

Less than 25 per cent of the seniors said they had ever tried marijuana; only 3 per cent, LSD. However, almost half thought the sale of marijuana should be legalized, though under controlled conditions as with liquor.

A majority of freshmen and nearly half the seniors are either opposed to premarital sexual relations or believe they should be limited to women they expect to marry.

As for religion, well over half of the students might be called religious insofar as they expressed a belief in God as either a Supreme Being or a governing force that guides the universe.

The comparative survey of freshmen was designed to see if major changes occur in students' attitudes and beliefs during the course of their four-year college careers.

The results suggest they do not. The attitudes, plans and outlook of freshmen are substantially the same as those of seniors. They differ only in degree.

The results of the alumni survey further indicate that no great changes will occur in graduates' attitudes, at least in the first few years after they leave the campus.

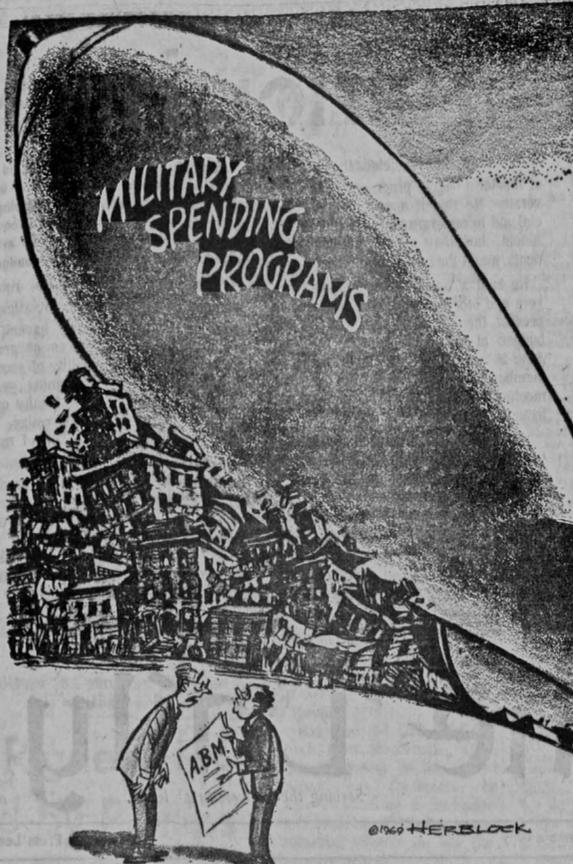

If today's seniors follow in the path of the 1964 alumni, who were still in college when the present campus unrest had its start, they may become a little more critical generally of the American system.

They may become less impressed with the competence of political and educational leaders. But even these changes will be of minor degree.

Planning for the student survey began in the spring of 1968. By then, the college campus had increasingly become front-page news. Students were not only challenging the traditional student-faculty-administration relationships, but were having an important impact on the national political scene.

A great deal was being written and said about students' goals and beliefs, but very little was known. Standard Oil (New Jersey) commissioned the study to obtain the actual facts.

The participating institutions and students were selected at random but on a weighted representative basis, and the interviews were made during the winter of 1968-69.

'By the way, what ARE we developing to protect our cities?'

A third view

By JOHN KIM

Hurrah! The success of Apollo 10 has brought a historical dream of man a step closer to reality. Exhilarated, American scientists already are assuring us that there is going to be no problem in Apollo 11's lunar landing, scheduled for July.

But, while applauding our hero astronauts and NASA's anonymous faces, whose knowhow and devotion were essential to the successful space flights, I feel gloomy about possible social implications of this technological triumph.

My pessimism is based on a hunch, and a purely personal one at that: This historical achievement of science may be a terrible beginning of an undesirable social condition.

As social psychologists have observed, the satisfaction level of a society is a function of the ratio between the level of "achievement" and that of "expectation."

Naturally, people are not really satisfied even though their achievement level goes up if their expectation level also rises. Thus the vicious circle of dissatisfaction.

The American society in this sense has achieved a marvel. The 1969 G.N.P. is projected at over $900 billion, and it will soon reach the trillion dollar mark.

It is predicted that by the 1980s the median family income will reach over $20,000. In terms of a 1966 constant dollar value, the percentage distribution of families earning less than $7,000 has decreased from 78.6 per cent in 1950 to 59.1 per cent in 1960 to 46 per cent in 1966.

But, thanks to the great triumph of American technology and space science, the picture is going to change drastically.

ly and undesirably. As it has been a usual pattern in the past, the technological breakthrough will certainly be exploited by the industrial tycoons for business sooner or later.

And it will be in the near future that the "people," not the heroes such as John Young, Eugene Cernan and Thomas Stafford, will enjoy lunar trips for various purposes.

Who is going to be able to afford the trip, then? Even though NASA already is trying to cut the "cost of putting a pound into orbit from the current $500 to $50," only a handful of a select minority will be able to enjoy such trips.

A Russian commentator, incidentally, has commented that Apollo 10 was the greatest "entertainment" for Spiro Agnew and Hubert Humphrey!

With instant communication media reaching their living room 24 hours a day, the majority of people will hear about all the space trips by those who can afford the luxury. The lunar trip will soon be a new status symbol.

But the majority are not going to be content by just watching it happen: They will want to join the group of people, by raising their level of "expectation."

There's the seed of trouble. Due to the unusually high cost involved in such space travels, it will not be long before lunar trips are open to the public as the jet plane trips are today.

The discrepancy between the expectation and the achievement will widen suddenly, and as a result the people will become extremely dissatisfied.

What happens after that is anybody's guess.

From the people Dorm head resident responds to critics

To the Editor: I wish to make the following points in response to the articles published in the D.I. last week on Adviser behavior, and on incidents of thoughtless acts by some residents in dormitories:

• The great majority of dormitory residents — I'll say 99 per cent if you like statistics — are mature, considerate students.

• The staff and residents of Rienow II are fully in sympathy with the married students of South Park who have complained about debris thrown from windows of Rienow II, except of course for that wretched one per cent.

• The staff of Rienow II, with the ready cooperation of equally annoyed students, have been more than diligent in acting on every complaint from the people of South Park.

In some cases we have been limited in our response by a lack of clear evidence of wrong-doing — that's the price we pay for the maintenance of what we like to call "a free society."

• Considering the work they are required to do (along with carrying a full academic load), the Resident Advisers deserve more than the implication (as subtle in your articles as brandy in coffee), that they are irresponsible and/or drunks. They also deserve a better salary.

• There are more appropriate whipping-boys around here than dormitory residents and Advisers.

Suggestion: Try some investigative reporting on the owners of those restaurants and bars in Iowa City (three-quarters of the total) who operate filthy, law-breaking establishments.

Mental health center needed in county

To the Editor: The Sundance case has merited certainly more publicity than it deserved. I still wish to seize this opportunity and capitalize on their experience to point out several pertinent facts relevant to it.

In Barbara's defensive letter published in the May 22 Daily Iowan (was she taking advantage of a chance to further the publicity rather than eliminate what she was denouncing, and I am, therefore, guilty of contributing to it), she mentioned "waiting for David's mother to come."

What was to hinder Barbara from being the one to sign the necessary papers rather than to place the burden of responsibility on his mother?

If the inference of the purpose of the letter was that she concurred with the Sheriff's "doing his thing" and he "was acting in David's best interest by sending him to Mount Pleasant" and she was genuinely solicitous of her husband's need for treatment, she could have signed them herself.

She states "David certainly was not coerced." I do not know if a prisoner whose offense was only a misdemeanor has the option of going voluntarily but I do know that it is one of the questions put to the patient at a sanity hearing.

Now this is what I really wish to point out in the writing of this: Residents of our locality have the services of Psychopathic Hospital available to them for the treatment of the mentally ill.

A psychiatrist is on the staff of Student Health which students enrolled in the University have a free choice to consult.

Evidently it was decided not to use these facilities. I know that the Commission of Hospitalization cannot commit anyone to Psychopathic Hospital — but the court can.

Apparently after judgment has been rendered and sentence imposed and time of incarceration begun it is not within the realm of the court to be invoked to utilize our local facilities.

At one time Rev. William Weir worked feverishly with Johnson County Social Planning Council on its ad hoc committee to arouse interest in and achieve establishment of a Community Mental Health Center.

Although the project has not died it seems only to be progressing at a snail's pace. There is a Steering Committee's report for a 4-county (Washington, Johnson, Cedar and Iowa) but their activities do not merit the publicity given to this incident.

Having a community mental health center will not entirely eliminate the necessity of commitments — it is the attitude of the patient that determines whether that step is necessary at the onset.

Voluntary admittance does not guarantee that commitment will not later be recommended, according to the Code.

On Aug. 7, 1967 I appeared at the public hearing on the budget for Johnson County and objected to allocation of the sum set aside for mental health without the establishment of a local center.

Sheriff Maynard Schneider was present and "agreed that mental health was a problem in the county" (DI Aug. 8, '67). In the same news item Mrs. Cleo Marsolais, director of welfare, was quoted as saying, "When the public shows sufficient interest in a mental health center, then we can have one."

Apathy is hindering the attainment of that goal. Perhaps the moral of the Sundance affair is the inadequacy of available facilities.

In the May, 1969 Spectator, Dr. Herbert L. Nelson, associate professor of psychiatry, said, "In Iowa, mental health is ultimately a local responsibility and the community must decide what will be done for its mentally ill." This case is the picture of how it is done here in Iowa City.

In conclusion I would like to say "Support Your Local Sheriff" — which is also the title of a movie currently traveling the circuit of theatres throughout the country.

Get behind him, who backed me, and maybe we'll get a 4-County comprehensive mental health center going soon.

The compleat angle

It's quiet now. A lull. Time for a smoke, a quick nap, a brief letter to Mom so she won't worry.

With eyes blurry and swollen from lack of sleep, the young man wearily scans the open green area between him and the road. Looks free and inviting. He knows better. You learn quickly here.

His companion stirs beside him; but the young man doesn't divert his eyes from that open area.

"Richard, I'm hungry."

"Shut up! I think we've fooled them into thinking they've wiped us out!"

"But Richard..."

"Look, I promise I'll get something to eat! We've just got to wait till they go to sleep. They have to sleep sometime."

"They only sleep during classroom lectures, Richard. We can't go much longer without food. The children..."

"I know, I know. Poor little urchins!" His tired eyes light for an instant. "The milk box! Surely the milkman stopped..."

"Richard, you know the milkman has refused to set foot in South Park since he got clobbered with a carton of his own prune yogurt. You can't blame him. He has a family..."

"Yes, I know. I..."

There is a terrific explosion nearby. The fragile metal cottage shivers. Richard peers out cautiously.

"It's all right, honey. It was only a gun shot. The police probably shot another dog."

"I'm sorry. I've gotten so jumpy, darling. I realize that throwing trash out the window is good, clean dormitory fun. But I've started to hear cherry bombs in my sleep. I see falling beer bottles and water balloons in my dreams!"

There are tears in his eyes and he clasps her impulsively to him.

"I'm sorry, Margery, that I brought you here! It's no place for a woman! We should have stayed at Finkbine. We may have been hit by a stray golf ball occasionally, but this daily garbage bombing wouldn't have touched us!"

He tears himself out of her arms, throws open the door and with a desperate cry, sprints across the yard.

A few seconds later, he flings himself panting back inside.

"It's no use. They've got us hemmed in."

"Richard, you've been hit! You're bleeding!"

"No, I was nicked by a slice of pizza just as I reached the door. That's tomato sauce."

"What will we do now, Richard?"

"Only thing we can do. We wait. Finals will be over soon, and in the cease-fire before the summer session starts, we start our withdrawal. You and the kids first, in the Rambler. I'll get out later with the U-Haul."

"Richard, won't we lose face if we pull out?"

"Honey, where would our government be if it thought like that? We have to admit we're getting nowhere in this thing and clear out."

"I suppose you're right."

"Of course I'm right. And honey, the fighting won't go on forever."

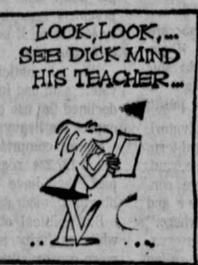

"No, someday 'Rienow' will be just another exotic name in the history books!"

Methodists Eye Black Aid

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the United Methodist Church, emphasizing that they have offered no funds to a movement led by black militant James Forman, called Wednesday for a church-wide emergency meeting of the denomination's leadership to consider stepped-up expenditures to improve the status of blacks.

It was specified that the money is "to be administered by black members of the board and black bishops," but officials said there apparently was a widespread misimpression about this provision among Methodists across the country.

The call was issued in the wake of a special session of the executive committee of the church's Board of Missions, which voted Tuesday to commit $1.3 million for "a program of economic empowerment of black people."

Council of Bishops for black economic development. A black Methodist coalition supported the demands. Since the demands go beyond the jurisdiction of the missions board, it voted to call for the emergency session both of the Council of Bishops and executives of all church agencies to consider the issues. No date was set for it.

Cool Thieves Hit Grocery

Thieves broke into a local grocery store sometime Wednesday morning, used a grocery stock cart to move the safe and cash register into a walk-in cooler and there pried it open. They escaped with $500 to $600.

The store, Clem's Grocery and Market, at 1222 Rochester Ave., was apparently entered through a basement window at the back of the building. The theft was discovered about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday by Eugene Reynolds, assistant manager of the store. He said that, besides the money, several cartons of cigarettes were taken.

3 Quarterbacks Top Hawk Grid Recruits

By MIKE SLUTSKY
If quarterback is the No. 1 position in the game of football, then the University has nothing to worry about concerning the No. 1 spot for years to come. Coach Ray Nagel announced Wednesday the in-state freshmen football players coming to the University next year and three of the 12 Iowans on the 1969 freshmen team are all-state prep at the quarterback post.

The three are Jeff Elgin of West Des Moines, Kyle Skogman of Cedar Rapids and Frank Sunderman of Clarinda. Add these three to the name of Rick Wyatt, quarterback of Mendel High School and most valuable player in Chicago's Catholic League who also will be coming to Iowa next fall, and you can see why Iowa should not be having too many quarterback difficulties for the next four years.

The 12 in-state recruits announced by Nagel brought the number of players Iowa has signed to 30. Nagel announced the signing of 18 out-of-state players Tuesday.

Elgin is a 6-1, 195-pounder from Valley High of West Des Moines. He was a second team all-state selection and, besides playing football, participates in wrestling, track and baseball.

Skogman is a 6-1, 185-pounder from Cedar Rapids Washington. Skogman was named the No. 1 prep quarterback in Iowa and is an option-type quarterback, the type Iowa specializes in.

Sunderman, at 6-4, 205, is the largest of the signal-callers headed for Iowa. Sunderman, who has never played in a losing game, completed 60 per cent of his passes last year and was selected to the all-state third-team.

There will also be some size on next year's freshman squad and two of the biggest rookies are twins.

The twins are Don and Ron Presson from Bettendorf. Both are 6-6 and 250 pounds. Ron is a tackle who made a second-team all-state and Don is a center. The two were labeled the "twin terrors" in the Quad City area.

The largest of the freshmen will be Craig Glasgow, 6-7, 260-pound tackle from Sidney. Glasgow was one of the most sought-after athletes in the Midwest. He was a second-team all-stater and has played in only one losing game in four years.

Craig Darling, 6-4, 220-pound tackle from Cedar Rapids Washington is the last of the tackles signed. Darling, who announced his intention of coming to Iowa last week, was a first-team all-stater. Besides football, he starred with Skogman on Washington's state basketball championship team and also plays baseball.

Also signed to an interconference letter of intent was Glen Richardson, a 6-1, 220-pound guard-linebacker. Richardson, a versatile athlete, was runnerup in the state wrestling tournament and a shot put champion.

Two halfbacks and two ends were the other four athletes signed by Nagel and his staff.

The backs were Charlie Cross,

6-1, 190-pounder from Dubuque Wahlert and Mike Wendling, 6-0, 185 pounds, from Burlington.

The ends were Craig McIntosh, a 6-1, 180-pound third-team all-stater from Oelwein and Rich Byard, 6-2, 210-pound second-team all-stater selection from Clinton.

Nagel had said all spring that his in-state recruiting was going extremely well and that he was quite pleased with the players the Hawks had landed.

There was an excellent group of football prospects in the state this year," Nagel said. "This is my fourth spring recruiting at Iowa and it is certainly the best we have done within the state. We're delighted with our incoming freshmen team, particularly the young men from Iowa."

Trackster Frazier Receives Award

Carl Frazier will be the first recipient of the Iowa Foundation Ted Wheeler Track Award. The award will be presented to him at 4 p.m. today in the I-Club Room at the Field House.

The award will henceforth be made annually to an outstanding senior on the Hawkeye track team.

Frazier captained the Iowa track team this spring. A native of Princeton, he specialized in the middle distance races and anchored the mile relay team. His best time in the 440 this year was :46.8.

Wheeler was an Iowa track star during the 1950s and will be here for today's presentation. Making the presentation to Frazier will be Miss Roberta Sheets. Miss Sheets has been a long time Iowa sports fan.

Sullivan Breaks Ankle In Auto-Cycle Mishap

University football star Tim Sullivan suffered a broken ankle Wednesday afternoon when the motorcycle that he was driving collided with a car at the intersection of Grand Ave. and Grand Avenue Ct.

Besides the broken ankle, Sullivan suffered minor abrasions and has a badly bruised body. He was listed in "good" condition by University Hospital, where he was taken Wednesday evening.

The accident occurred at 3:05 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection which is located near the Field House. The driver of the car that struck Sullivan was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way at a stop-intersection.

The driver of the car was identified by police as Philip G. Spilger, 1115 Rochester Ave., A3, Iowa City.

Sullivan is a two-time Hawkeye letterman at his fullback position. He gained 686 yards last season on 131 carries, an average gain of 5.2.

Besides his running, though, Coach Ray Nagel has said that Sullivan is one of the best blockers in the country. After another outstanding spring this season, Sullivan had been touted as possibly Iowa's next All-America.

Cubs Tip Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randy Hundley's grand slam homer capped a seven-run, second-inning explosion, and the Chicago Cubs rolled to a free-swinging, 9-8, victory over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday.

Don Kessinger saved the Cubs' victory when he threw out Jack Hiatt at the plate for the last out of the game.

Singles by Willie McCovey and Hiatt put runners at first and second with two out in the ninth, and Davenport came to bat for Hal Lanier.

He doubled to the left field corner, driving in the Giants' eighth run, but Billy Williams retrieved the ball, fired to shortstop Kessinger and Kessinger threw to Hundley at the plate, who tagged Hiatt.

Kessinger opened the second with a walk and Glenn Beckert singled. Williams, Ron Santo and Willie Smith followed with run-scoring singles, chasing starter Rich Robertson. Reliever Ray Sadecki walked Al Spangler, loading the bases, and Hundley, a former Giant, hammered a 370-foot homer.

Boxing Underworld Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Nino Benvenuti and Dick Tiger were questioned Wednesday by District Attorney Frank Hogan's office in what appears to be a long and deep investigation into underworld influences in boxing.

Benvenuti, the middleweight champion from Italy, and Tiger, the former middleweight and light heavyweight champion from Biafra, first were questioned by Assistant District Attorney Lawrence Goldman. Both appeared before a New York County grand jury later in the day.

Hogan has said nothing of officially. His office has declined to say what it's all about. But OVERSEAS DELIVERY AVAILABLE sources say Hogan's staff has been investigating for two months a resurgence of Mafia influence in main event fighters.

Both fighters were subpoenaed along with boxer Frankie De Paula and his manager, Gary Garafola, both of Jersey City, N.J. De Paula and Garafola were told to come back and testify before the grand jury on June 12, which indicates that a lot of persons, including Mafia figures, will be called to testify over a long period of time.

De Paula and Garafola are out on $25,000 bail each after being arrested by the FBI on charges of stealing $80,000 worth of copper in interstate shipment. The fighter and manager have been suspended by the New York Athletic Commission, pending disposition of the case.

"I used to stand up and say the world was a miserable place. Then I would sit down and do nothing about it."

Now comes the big question. What can you do? You're only one little individual among over 200 million people. How can you help?

For one thing, you might think about investing in your country. Showing your faith in its future.

That's exactly what you do when you sign up to buy U. S. Savings Bonds. You're simply buying a share in America.

You're also socking away some money for yourself.

Money that grows at a guaranteed rate, to pay you back $4 at maturity for every $3 you've saved.

Of course, Savings Bonds are not going to cure all our headaches. But they'll help to provide the economic strength we'll need for the job.

And at the same time, they can cure a lot of your financial headaches in the years to come.

Any way you look at it, they make good sense.

And that's just what we need in this country right now.

Let's face it. All is not perfect in this land of ours. America has taken some lumps and quite frankly it hurts. But maybe we should step back and take a long hard look... take inventory of how we are and how we got here. Maybe we should inspect our brighter side as well as some of our ills. And maybe, just maybe, we'll come out thinking this country's good side far overshadows its bad. Then maybe we'll start to do something to make it better. Rather than knocking it, which ends up making it worse.

After you've paid for it, it starts paying for itself.

We didn't want our bug to be a hog. That's why we made it go about 27 miles to a gallon of gas.

And why we persuaded it to take pints of oil instead of quarts.

And why we gave it an air-cooled engine. (Air is free. Antifreeze isn't.)

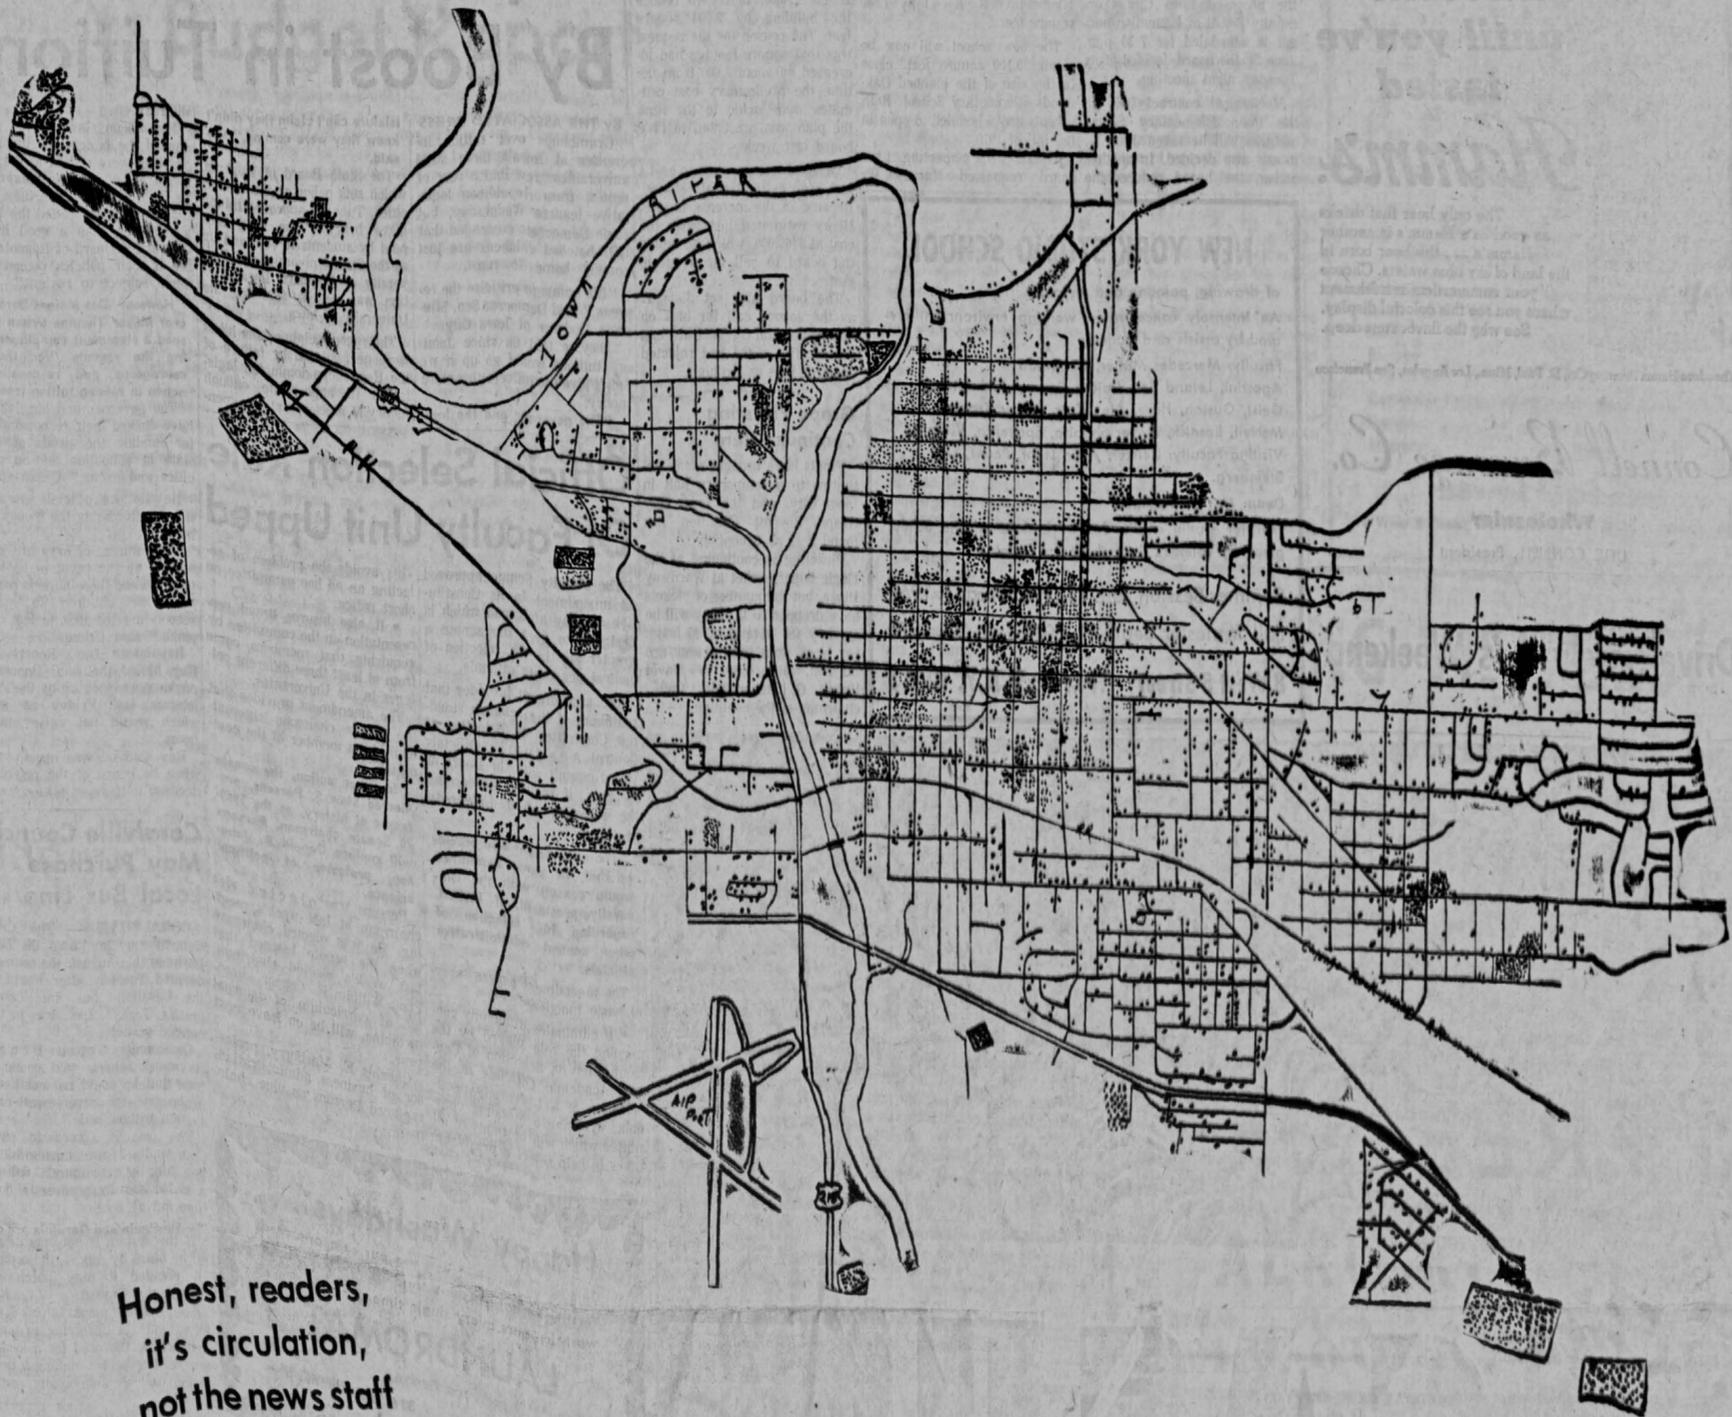

And why we put the engine in the back so you get more push from the rear wheels. (And less pull from tow trucks.)

And that's why at trade-in time if things are still the same as they have been, you can count on getting back more of your initial investment of $1799 than practically every other car owner gets of theirs.

After all, why shouldn't the car that's been saving you money while you own it do the same when you sell it?

Honest, readers,
it's circulation,

To write for The Daily Iowan, to make your association with the paper known at all, to—horror of horrors—reticulate a by-line, is to invite a pestilence worse than locusts. This is the considered opinion of one who has endured the onslaught for less than one year and is already fed up to her bippy.

I may just go over the hill, under the table, around the bend, and/or of my arborvitae if one more person accosts me with "We haven't been getting our paper!"

I sympathize, neighbors, I really do. I haven't had a Daily Iowan stuck in my door once in the three years I've been a University student.

I have pried cola-sticky D.I.'s from the desks in Schaeffer study hall, whisked them from the faces of unsuspecting snoozers in the Union and retrieved them section by section from wastebaskets the campus over.

I have even, on occasion, resorted to the radical action of going to the Communications Center and picking up a nice, fresh paper unsullied by previous readers.

I have never berated a reporter or editor for not getting my D.I. to me.

It would be the height of immodesty for one who contributes to the paper's content to also distribute it. Elsie the Cow doesn't see to it personally that you get your ice milk and your yogurt every morning. Zsa Zsa Gabor doesn't tune up your transmission herself, dahlink.

The point is, there is a nice man at The Daily Iowan office who keeps our circulation going. Relieving arterial constrictions is his job.

His name is Jim Conlin, and you may call him at 337-4193.

Jim is the man to whom you address your request for a certain paper boy to be beaten to a creamy gruel if his habits don't improve.

It is true that being without a Daily Iowan for even one morning leaves a regrettable void in one's life. And it's flattering to a staff member that you think he need only say the word and your service will be healed. Unfortunately, his influence stops at the typewriter.

I, for one, only start the rumors. I don't spread them.

—Joanne Walton
—D.I. April 12, 1969

A lot of papers . . .

Honest, Joanne, if you lived in Iowa City, we'd deliver the paper to your door, every morning. We do that for all University of Iowa students.

There's a dot on the map above for each home where The Daily Iowan is delivered. It takes 60 carrier boys, each with a bagful of papers, to cover all of Iowa City and Coralville. That's a lot of dots; a lot of doors; a lot of students.

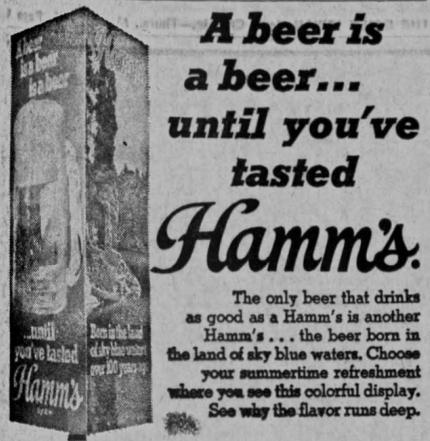

You'd think we'd have a lot less circulation when summer school starts, but actually, it won't be down much. Just a different group of students in town. So we'll still be delivering The Daily Iowan to homes throughout Iowa City and Coralville.

We'd like to mail the paper to Lone Tree (Lone Tree?!) and other places where commuting students live. But the low student fees for the newspaper and the sky-high postal rates don't exactly dovetail. (Actually, we think it's a conspiracy on the part of Congress to keep students from receiving news by mail.) If you'd like to pay the going postal rates, however, see Jim Conlin. He'll tell you how much.

School Budget Hearing Set

A special public hearing on the proposed Iowa City Community Board of Education budget is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. June 24, the board decided at its Tuesday night meeting.

Mechanical contract bids on the Penn Elementary School addition will be taken June 17, it was also decided. In another action, the board reduced the size of the planned Grissel Place Elementary School by 1,500 square feet.

The new school will now be about 20,100 square feet, close to the size of the planned Oakwoods Elementary School. Both schools are scheduled to open in the fall of 1970.

At last week's meeting, the board requested Harvey W. Henry, architect of the Grissel Place school, to try to reduce the building by 2,000 square feet. The reason for the request was that square footage had increased by about 3,600 from the time the preliminary cost estimates were made to the time the plan was presented to the board last week.

Original construction costs had been estimated at $350,000. Because of the increase in size, Henry estimated last week the cost at $400,000, which prompted the board to call for a cut in size.

The board also set June 17 as the second call for bids on the mechanical contract at Penn School. The board had rejected previous bids as too high.

Finals have brought many activities to a temporary halt in Iowa City, and the Iowa City Grape Boycott Coalition has found it is no exception.

Picketing is continuing at the Eagle Supermarket at Wardway Plaza, but the number of pickets have dropped to 15. They will be on duty for a total of 30 hours per week until final exams are finished, according to David Vogel, G. Bakersfield, Calif., chairman of the coalition.

The amendment provides that members of the senate's standing Committee on Selection of Central Academic Officials would consult with the Board of Regents, if invited, concerning the selection of a University president.

The amendment also provides that the same committee would consult with the University president, if invited, regarding his selection of other central administrative officials.

The amendment serves several basic functions:

- It eliminates ambiguity concerning the role played by the Committee on Selection of Central Academic Officials in the selection of a University president, by using a standing committee which will be ready at all times to help select a president.

It also insures broad representation on the committee by requiring that members come from at least three different colleges in the Universities.

The amendment provides that the Senate chairman automatically be a member of the committee.

In other action, the senate elected Stow S. Persons, professor of history, as the 1969-70 Senate chairman. Persons will replace Donald B. Johnson, professor of political science.

Persons was elected vice chairman at last week's meeting. He was elected chairman when the senate learned that last week's elected chairman, Prof. William R. Connor, director of curriculum of internal medicine, will be on leave next year.

Charles E. Marberry, professor of business administration, replaced Persons as vice chairman.

Republicans Upset By Boost in Tuition

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grumblings over tuition increases at Iowa's three state universities grew into a roar of protest from Republican legislative leaders Wednesday, but some Democrats contended that GOP-hatched chickens are just coming home to roost.

"It's unfair to criticize the regents," said Democrat Sen. Minnette Doderer of Iowa City.

"They've told us since January tuitions would go up if we didn't give the universities more money."

"The governor and the legislature can't claim they didn't know they were coming," she said.

The State Board of Regents, which sets policy at the universities, Tuesday approved tuition hikes bringing the total fees paid by students to $600 and up at the State University and University of Northern Iowa. Tuition was set at $620 for the University of Iowa.

The regents claimed the hikes were necessitated by failure of the Republican-dominated legislature to appropriate enough money to meet operating expenses.

Republican lawmakers who shaped the budget for the universities were miffed at the decision and one, House Majority Leader Ralph McCartney of Charles City, suggested the 1970 legislature "take a good hard look at the Board of Regents to see if their policies cannot be made subject to review."

However, Des Moines Democrat Mayor Thomas Urban issued a statement complimenting the regents "for their courageous and responsible action in raising tuition fees."

"The governor and legislature have ducked their responsibility for funding the needs of the state in education and in our cities and towns," Urban said.

He said local officials now are faced with raising the money at home.

"The citizens of Iowa are just waking up the myth of no tax increase and those parents sending their children to state schools are the first to feel the pinch," said Urban.

Republican Gov. Robert D. Ray hailed the final financial package wrapped up by the legislature last Friday as one which would not raise state taxes.

Ray said he was upset, too, when he heard of the regent's decision to increase tuition fees.

Official Selection Role Of Faculty Unit Upped

The Faculty Senate approved an amendment to its Constitution Monday afternoon which is designed to give the senate a greater say in the selection of central academic officials.

The amendment provides that members of the senate's standing Committee on Selection of Central Academic Officials would consult with the Board of Regents, if invited, concerning the selection of a University president.

The amendment also provides that the same committee would consult with the University president, if invited, regarding his selection of other central administrative officials.

The amendment serves several basic functions:

Coralville Council May Purchase Local Bus Line

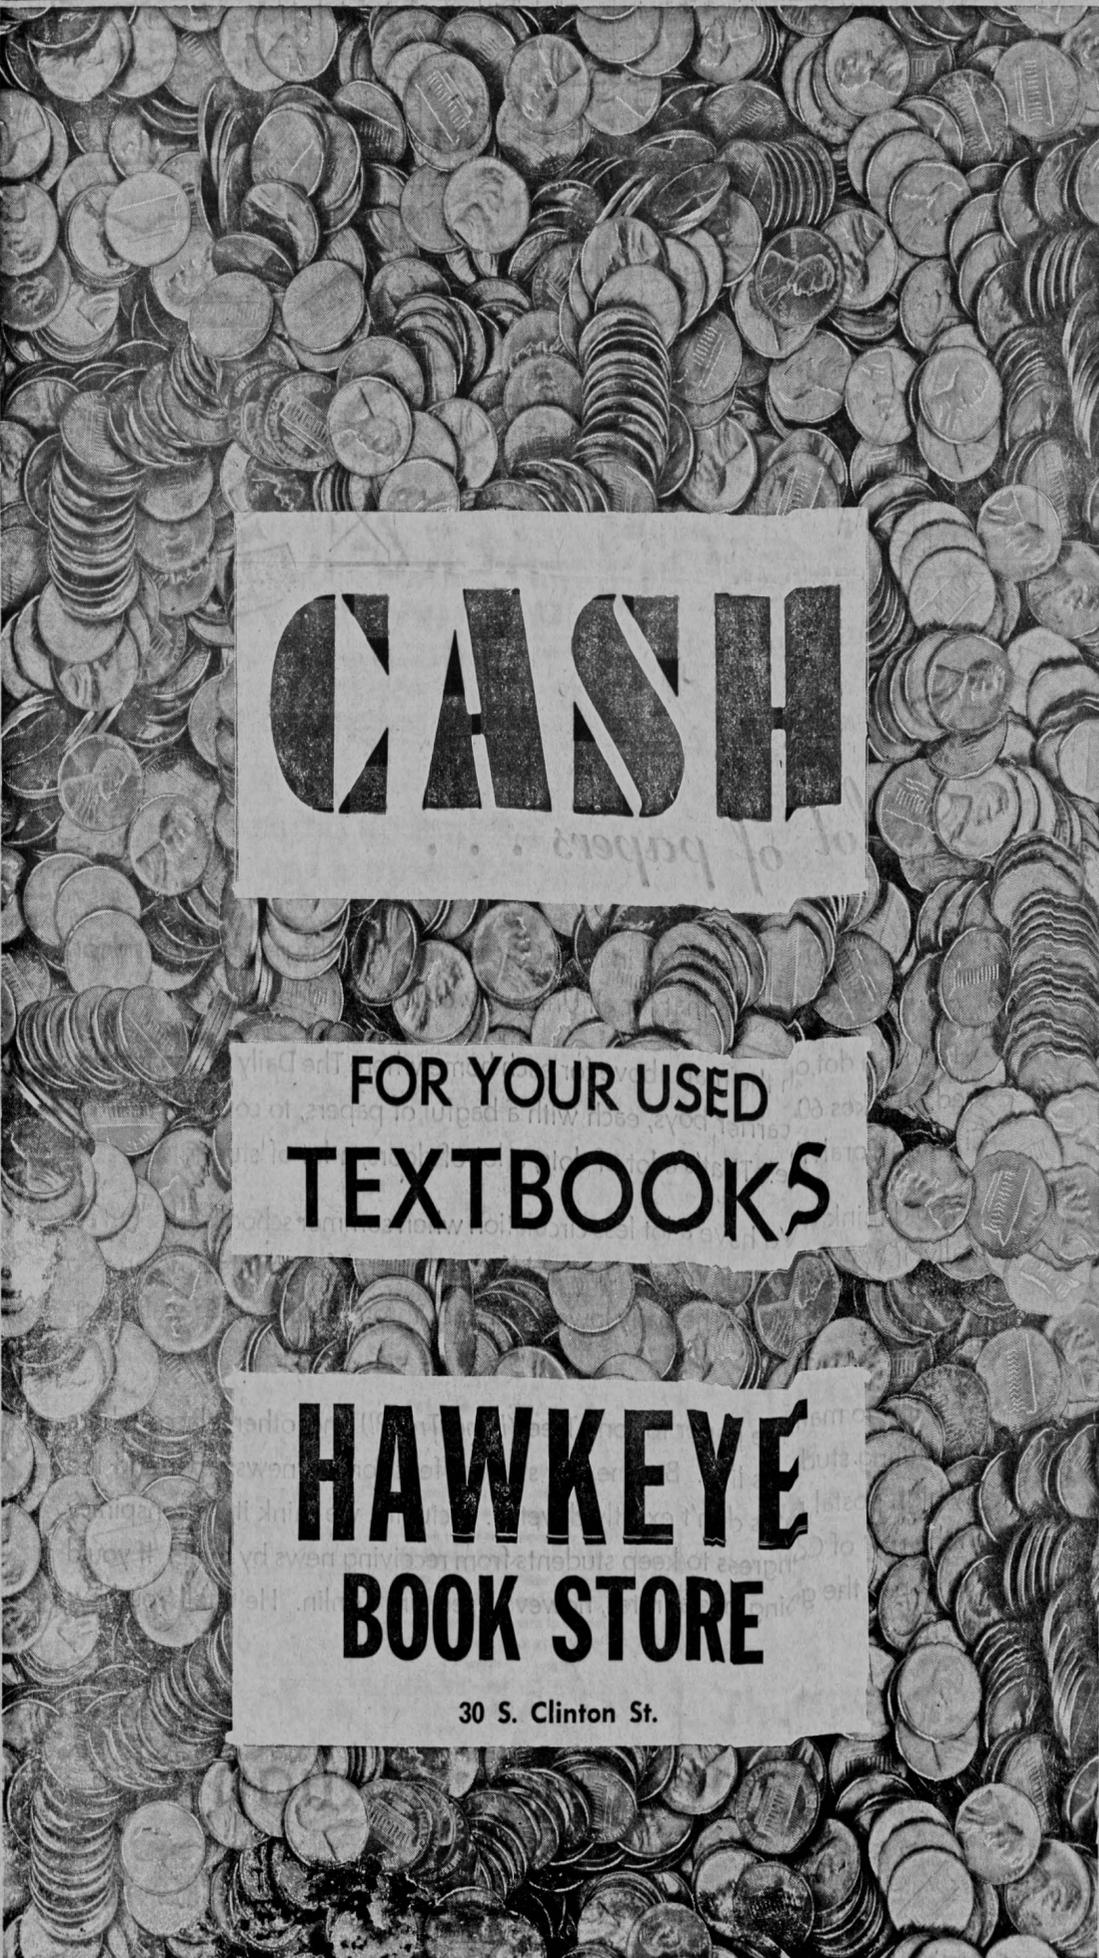

CORALVILLE — The City Council may go into the bus business this August, the council decided Tuesday after learning the Coralville bus line, Community Transit, Inc., was in financial trouble.

Community Transit Pres. Raymond Scheetz told councilmen that he could not continue to operate the seven-month-old system without aid.

The council agreed to pay Community Transit during June and July the remaining $3,600 of a $9,750 subsidy promised the firm during its first year of operation.

If the system is not operating in the black by Aug. 1, the council decided it may purchase Community Transit.

The council plans to take a straw vote in Coralville to test opinions on the need for a local bus service before making a decision on a municipally run system.

Rec Advisory Group Gets Budget Report

By KAREN GOOD

Recreation Advisory Committee (RAC) members spent an hour Tuesday afternoon listening and questioning an administrative recreation budget and facility use report, then went into a two-hour executive session to review the recreation situation during the past year.

Meeting in the Union Purdue Room, the nine committee members present listened to an administrative report by George Chambers, assistant dean of academic affairs and a committee member.

Chambers told the members that next year's recreation program would receive $28,515 — an increase of $1,465 over the 1968-69 budget.

Chambers emphasized that recreation money did not come from student fees but did say that it was "very difficult to identify exactly where the money did come from because it was drawn from a general University fund made up of funds from various departments.

The greater portion of the 1969-70 budget, $17,500, will go for recreational administrative salaries.

Chambers said, however, that there was still $11,015 not yet allocated for salaries or any other specific use.

His figures were referring primarily to allocations to men's recreation.

Prof. Gladys Scott, head of the Department of Physical Education for Women and an ex officio member of the committee, asked Chambers why there had been so little money allocated to women's recreation.

"$3,000 is the largest amount we've ever had for anything," she said. "Would it be possible for us to have a part of the $11,015 not yet allocated?"

Chambers assured her that uses for the money had not yet been determined and that it was possible some might be made available to women's recreation.

He suggested having some of the funds allocated to pay for women's recreation graduate assistants.

The $17,500 figure includes a $11,500 salary for Harry Ostrander, coordinator of recreation hired this year and $3,000 salaries for two graduate assistants who will assist Ostrander next year.

Chambers said the administration was still looking for a coordinator for intramurals. He said that two prospects, Duncan Davis and Carl Crane, both recent alumni of the University, had been contacted to fill the position but would not accept the $11,000 salary offer made by the University.

Chambers noted both were black.

"We're looking for a black to fill the position," Chambers said.

Steve Quiner, A2, Des Moines, asked Chambers to define the difference between the position of director of recreation, currently filled by Forest Evashovski, and the coordinator of recreation. Chambers said the coordinator was responsible for day to day coordination of recreation affairs.

Following Chamber's statement, Lane Davis, professor of political science and committee chairman for the meeting, asked Quiner to reserve further inquiry into job descriptions until the committee's executive session.

Chambers told the committee that allocations of space for recreational facilities were 15 to 20 years behind current demands, but emphasized that problems would continue because of competition with academic departments for priority rankings.

Chambers also told the committee he felt he had been "misquoted or misinterpreted" recently when he said recreation would eventually be phased out of the recreation building, now under construction.

The $2.1 million building is currently being built northwest of the Field House and is being financed out of student fees. Chambers said he felt his statement had been interpreted to imply that the building would be left vacant following the construction of a sports arena for athletics and the renovation of the Field House.

Administrative plans have said that the Field House would ultimately become the University recreation facility.

"We certainly won't leave that building (recreation building) vacant," Chambers said.

Chambers told committee members the role of RAC was two-fold: to advise the Office of Academic Affairs on recreation policy and to advise the administration on short and long range plans for recreation.

He emphasized that the committee role was one of recommendation.

Aetna claims there is nothing comparable to the leg freedom a short skirt can offer for easy-braking and accelerating.

Safe driving habits are the most successful means to avoiding accidents, but the right clothing can help.

Aetna further applauds the fact that short skirts, giving more leg freedom, dictate the need for low heels. Unlike the spike heels of years ago, square heels will rarely catch in the car's floor covering or get stuck underneath the accelerator.

Aetna advises that a female driver keep a pair of flats in the car if she occasionally wears narrow heels.

Also a popular part of today's fashion is long hair, but long hair can be a menace if it seductively blows across the driver's face to block her view of the traffic ahead.

To remedy this problem, Aetna advises tying hair back with a scarf or ribbon while driving.

The insurance company counsels the female to wear gloves that allow her to grip the steering wheel. Leather rather than a fabric like nylon, cotton or wool is advisable.

If a coat or jacket restricts the driver, she may not be able to move fast or far enough. Should the coat be confining, it might be wise to unbutton it or rearrange it in order to drive in comfort.

Zima added, "Since career decisions are often made in the last years of high school, young people at this time should meet and become involved with media if they are to consider careers in the media."

Zima, who is an assistant professor of journalism, said that he hopes to involve newspapers and the electronic media of the state in the seminar through field trips, scholarship support to individual students, financial backing for the total program, or scholarship support for participants who later choose media careers.

Tuition, room and board in University residence halls, transportation, and incidental expenses will average about $160 per student, according to Zima.

He said that provisions were also being made for follow-up programs throughout the coming school year in each of the 30 participants' schools, in local neighborhoods and through possible part-time employment with communications outlets in the students' hometowns.

William Zima, assistant professor of journalism and the seminar director, said that in planning the seminar, the School of Journalism "took a page from the Kerner Commission Report which alerted the media and journalism schools to their responsibility for promoting media careers among young blacks."

Although miniskirts are frequently blamed for causing accidents for male drivers with interests in the female anatomy, Aetna Life & Casualty, an insurance company turned fashion consultant, offered a contradictory point in a report released earlier this month.

School of Journalism To Host Black Youths

The University School of Journalism will introduce 30 disadvantaged Iowa black youths to the study of communication, the media, and to career possibilities in journalism during the first Urban High School Journalism Seminar to be held here June 16-27.

Thirty high school students from minority areas in Des Moines, Waterloo, Cedar Rapids, Davenport and Burlington have been invited to participate in the seminar, which will be held partially to discuss how the young blacks view society through the mass media.

During the two-week session, the students will participate in classroom discussions, hear guest lecturers, write news stories, analyze media coverage of racial issues, and take part in several visits to area newspapers and radio and television stations. They will also help publish an issue of The Daily Iowan and prepare tapes for use on WSUL.

University faculty members in journalism and other areas will lead classroom discussions.

William Zima, assistant professor of journalism and the seminar director, said that in planning the seminar, the School of Journalism "took a page from the Kerner Commission

Report which alerted the media and journalism schools to their responsibility for promoting media careers among young blacks."

Miniskirts Can Help a Girl Keep Accident Level Low

By JAN SCHWARTZ

Moon Landing Site
Relatively Smooth
With Small Craters

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The landing site on the moon for the Apollo 11 astronauts is relatively smooth with small craters nearby, a picture taken by the Apollo 10 space men and released here Wednesday shows.
The photograph of the landing site in the moon's Sea of Tranquility shows a large crater called Molke and, some distance farther, a rille — or deep canyon — called Hypatia.
The key purpose of the Apollo 11 flight was to survey and photograph the target area for the Apollo 11 mission, now scheduled for July. The landing is near the lunar equator and in the east zone of the moon.
On the east border of the site is a small ravine, barely perceptible in the photograph. A shallow crater about two miles across is on the north border.
Other photographs taken by the Apollo 10 astronauts, Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdrs. John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan, show deep canyons, massive craters and majestic mountains on the moon.
The photographs bear a striking resemblance to aerial pictures of the ice-bound antarctic continent on earth.

OPEN MEMORIAL DAY
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

With the barbeque season beginning, variety and flavor in meat become the most prominent aspects of the evening meal. Also, in many families, meals become less elaborate and, with fewer side-dishes, require greater quantities of meat. For these reasons, Eagle Bonded Meats and Discount Prices are just what most homemakers will be looking for! The fresh meat department at Eagle offers a truly remarkable variety of fresh meat cuts, notably for consistently fine quality and full, rich flavor. In addition to special barbeque cuts in the display cases, Eagle's "Master Meat Men" are always on hand to cut steaks, ribs and chops to your specifications. Besides continual variety and flavor you can count on, Eagle Bonded Meats bring you the advantage of Discount Savings. So, with months of outdoor cooking ahead, plan to make the most of your meat budget at Eagle, with Bonded Meats at Discount Prices!
