U.S. Ship Sinks: One Dead, 57 Missing

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii - An underwater search for survivors of the sunk USS Indianapolis continued today, but hopes for finding any of the 57 shipwrecked men were fading.

One U.S. official in Honolulu said 37 survivors are missing and 20 have been confirmed dead. The Navy said 37 others are still alive, but no word has been received from them.

The weather was a barrier at the time the USS Indianapolis was sunk in the North Pacific Ocean on July 30, 1945. There were no trees on land anywhere near the ship.

A total of 1,600 women had responded to the moves to end women's hours at CSL. The council of women workers had made the first campus demonstration against the working rules. The working rules were to be reviewed and the council would hold another meeting on the 12th. The council was to be held at 12:30 on the 12th.

Anarchy?

The state of Arkansas is one of the few states which has received the unenviable title of "Civil War State." This is due to the fact that the state is divided into two main sections: the eastern and western sections.

The eastern section is known as the "Library Section," while the western section is known as the "Frisco Section."

The western section is inhabited by a large number of people, many of whom are former slaves who have been denied the right to vote. These people are known as the "Frisco Section," and they have been denied the right to vote due to their race.

The eastern section is inhabited by a smaller number of people, many of whom are former slaves who have been denied the right to vote. These people are known as the "Library Section," and they have been denied the right to vote due to their race.

The governor claims that this is in the best interest of the state, as it will help to promote peace and harmony between the two sections.

Rent strike continues

Over the last few months, there have been a number of rent strikes in the city of New York. These strikes have been called by a group of tenants who are protesting the high cost of housing in the city. The tenants have been protesting the fact that they are paying a large amount of money for rent, while the landlords are making a profit.

In this case, the tenants are protesting the fact that they are paying $500 per month for a two-bedroom apartment, while the landlords are making a profit.

The landlords argue that they are paying for the maintenance of the building, including the repair of the building and the payment of the building's insurance. They also argue that they are paying for the security of the building, including the payment of the building's security staff.

The tenants argue that they are paying too much money for rent, and that they should be able to afford a better quality of life.

The governor has been asked to intervene in this case, but he has refused to do so. He argues that the tenants should negotiate with the landlords to come to a mutually agreeable solution.

The tenants have been taking part in a number of protests and demonstrations, including a march and a rally. They have also been picketing the landlords' offices.

City Begins Work on Budget

The City Council will begin reviewing the fiscal year 1971 budget proposal at its meeting tonight. The budget will approximate $2.5 million, and is based on an estimated $5,500,000 revenue from property taxes, $3,059,000 for current expenses and $2 million for capital improvements. The budget will be released at the council meeting at 8 p.m. and will be published in the Chronicle the same evening. The city will begin work on the budget by the third week of July, after the property assessment rolls have been released. The mayor will call July 10th a "ready date" for the release of the budget. The council will hold a hearing on the budget, and the public is invited to attend. The budget will be adopted at a special meeting of the council, which will be held immediately after the hearing. The budget is expected to be completed by the end of September.

The reviewer had been looking forward to the "Family-style" reading. After all, they had told him that it would be a unique experience. He had heard so much about the quality of the Colony's food, and he was eager to try it for himself. "It's a shame," he said, "that this kind of thing doesn't happen more often."

Family-style dining is a tradition that dates back to the earliest days of the Republic. It was a time when people gathered together to share a meal, and it was a way of life that was simple and true. Today, family-style dining is making a comeback, and it is more popular than ever. People love the idea of sitting down to a meal with their family and friends, and it is a great way to spend time together.

"It's a pleasure," the reviewer said, "to be able to eat like this."

He had ordered the "Family-style" special, which included a variety of dishes. He was about to dig in when he noticed something strange. There was a note on his plate that read, "If you enjoy this, try our other specials."

He looked around and saw that everyone else was also enjoying their meal. "It's a great way to share a meal," he said. "I wish we had more places like this."
New Migrant Law's Funds Insufficient

DE MOINES, Ia.-A tough new law designed to close up migrant labor camps wasn't backed up with enough enforcement money by Iowa's legislature, a State Department of Health official has revealed.

The law was designed to be a step toward a really adequate policy and it is backed up by the department's own recorded enforcement efforts, which will enforce the law.

"If it is the law, we are backed up with the staff we have," House said.

The legislation appropriated funds for the health commissioner and the department's own staff to do this. There's an enforcement clause that says we can operate migrant housing.

Before the state issues this permit, however, it must be sure that a state permit is obtained. A state permit is obtained. The permit will be issued by the state department of health.

The state department of health, according to the state's governor, the top state manager, has not issued permits. The permits have been issued by the state department of health.
