Beginning Saturday, students may obtain copies of The Daily Iowan at two additional places — Phillips Hall and the Main Library.

This service is for the student who remains in the city and whose carrier delivery to his home is interrupted until summer school begins.

Carrier delivery will continue at all married student housing units, and copies can be obtained at the office of The Daily Iowan, 201 Communications Center, and at machine locations.

Patience Urged

MEMPHIS (AP) — The chancellor of Vanderbilt University has urged the public to be more patient with university officials unable to deal swiftly with the unrest which has been sweeping the nation's campuses.

"Mistakes were made because the administration did not know how to handle them any better," said Dr. Alex Heard of Nashville. "Coping with guerrilla warfare was not listed among college presidents' qualifications when many of them took office."

Library Chief

AMES — Charles R. Sage, vice president and director of SHARE Research Corporation, Santa Barbara, Calif., and formerly a senior systems analyst at the Ames Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission, has been named the new Coordinator of Automated Library Services for Iowa State University, the University of Iowa and the University of Northern Iowa.

The new position, the first joint appointment for the three institutions and their libraries, is designed to allow coordinated efforts in automation and to avoid duplication and control costs.

Sage will engage in a study of automation needs and make recommendations for coordinated library systems development.

Operating from a central office at the Iowa State Library, Sage will share his time equally among the libraries of the three state universities. Computerized techniques are already in partial use at the Iowa State and University of Iowa Libraries, and data processing centers at all three state campuses make administrative, research and teaching use of computers.

Tower Explodes At N.J. Plant

CARNEYS POINT, N.J. (AP) — Two blasts ripped through the blending tower of the sprawling E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. explosives works Wednesday, killing at least three persons and injuring three dozen others.

Four workmen were reported missing following the explosions, which occurred about 20 seconds apart.

Salem County Memorial Hospital said it expected 40 victims. Ambulances rushed to the site of the huge plant, located along the Delaware River, just upstream from the twin Delaware Memorial Bridges.

A company spokesman in Wilmington, Del., just across the Delaware River from the 400-acre facility, said the explosions occurred in an automated blending tower containing 10,000 to 20,000 pounds of smokeless gunpowder.

Nearly two dozen school children were taken to Salem County Memorial Hospital. A hospital spokesman said the children were treated for lacerations caused by flying glass when the windows of their school were shattered by the blast.

A duPont spokesman said all but four of the approximately 700 employees had been accounted for.

There was no fire. It was the second explosion in two days at a duPont plant. Tuesday a series of explosions rocked the company's chemical plant in Louisville, Ky., injuring four persons.

Nixon Warns of 'Isolationism'

Colorado Speech Angers Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic senators reacted sharply Wednesday to President Nixon's criticism of what he called the new isolationists who have declared "open season on the armed forces."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he thought that the tone of Nixon's Air Force Academy speech in Colorado Springs was ominous and that portions of it were personally offensive.

Nixon had summoned the nation to reject new isolationists who he said were charting a disastrous course that posed a false choice between meeting responsibilities abroad and at home.

"We shall meet both or we shall meet neither," he said.

Addressing the 676 members of the graduating class of the U.S. Air Force Academy, Nixon said, "It is open season on armed forces."

Fulbright was joined by many of his colleagues in his criticism of the speech.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) said the President's speech gave "the unfortunate implication that those who were vigorously opposing the ABM and questioning defense boondoggles are unilateral disarmers and new isolationists."

Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) said, "I know of no responsible American who advocates that we alone lay down our arms. What is sweeping America is a demand that we readjust our priorities and our goals so that we tackle the immense problems we face at home and abroad with realism and not with rhetoric."

Fulbright said the President's reference to new isolationists, advocates of unilateral disarmament and critics of the military offended him very greatly.

Nixon had told the graduates, sitting under clear skies and bright sun in an amphitheater filled almost to its 40,000 capacity, "You are entering the military service of your country when the nation's potential adversaries abroad were never stronger and your critics at home were never more numerous."

One school of thought, the President had said, holds that the United States is blocking the road to peace by maintaining military strength at home and defense force abroad and calling for a unilateral arms reduction. He ruled this out.

He had said this appeal should never be underestimated, because it touches a responsive chord with overburdened taxpayers.

Writer Childs to Speak To Spring Grads Here

Marquis Childs, national syndicated columnist and author, will give this June's commencement address at 9:30 a.m. Friday in the Field House.

Childs, a 66-year-old native Iowan and University-alumnus, is scheduled to speak to the 2,450 graduating students on "Mass Man in a Technological Society."

In his four decades as a newspaperman, Childs has become best known as a specialist on news developments in national and international affairs.

He has gained a wide reputation for his political commentary, "Washington Calling," which is published three times a week in 140 newspapers through the United States and Canada.

Also, Childs' career as both a columnist and novelist has emphasized his interest in the political realm. One of his books, "The Peacemakers," is a novel concerning a time of crisis in the top-level international diplomatic circles.

His early books include a 1958 nonfiction best-seller, "Eisenhower: Captive Hero" and "Sweden: The Middle Way," a study of the cooperative movement in Sweden.

Born in Clinton in 1903, Childs, whose father was a lawyer and whose ancestors had all been farmers, decided at the age of 13 to become a newspaperman.

He began his journalistic career immediately after his graduation from the University of Wisconsin in 1923 when he took his first job with the United Press (UP) in Chicago.

A year later he resigned his position to return to college. He received his

Jetliner Crashes In Mexico; 79 Presumed Dead

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Mexican jetliner with 79 persons aboard crashed and burned on a cloud-shrouded mountain in northeast Mexico Wednesday. Aerial spotters reported no sign of survivors.

Several high-ranking political figures, a sports hero and a wedding party were believed to be aboard the plane, a Mexicana de Aviacion, on a flight from Mexico City to Monterrey.

"There is certainly no one alive because the plane exploded in the air," said Dr. Juan Antonio Margain, Red Cross rescue chief in Monterrey.

He did not say why he thought the Boeing 727 exploded. The crash site was on a mountainside more than a mile above sea level, 30 miles west of Monterrey.

The passenger list included Rafael Osuna, Mexico's top tennis player, who engineered Mexico's Davis Cup victory over Australia in interzone play last month; Carlos Madrazo, former president of the country's ruling Institutional Revolutionary party and his wife.

The chief of Mexico's highway department, Raul Chapa Zarate; the president of the national fiscal court, Generoso Chapa, and their wives also were reported aboard. They and the Madrazos were in the party of wedding guests.

More than a score of planes joined the search for the airliner, which vanished after it was refused landing permission at the weathered-in Monterrey airport. Bad weather and rugged terrain slowed rescue teams on the ground.

The plane was last heard from at 7:58 a.m. as it approached Monterrey on a nonstop flight from Mexico City. The pilot was told Monterrey airport was closed because of bad weather and he could not land. He headed northwest and made no further radio contact with Monterrey airport.

Chile Requests That Rockefeller Call Off His Visit

SANTIAGO (AP) — The government announced Wednesday it would be "inconvenient" for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to visit Chile as part of a fact-finding mission for President Nixon.

It was the third Latin American country to ask Rockefeller to cancel the second portion of his trip because of student unrest and other opposition.

Venezuela and Peru told Rockefeller he wasn't welcome after the first leg of his Latin American tour caused 10 deaths and violent rioting in Ecuador, Colombia and Honduras.

A terse Foreign Ministry communique said, "The Chilean government has informed Governor Rockefeller of the convenience of suspending his visit to our country."

It added that Chile's foreign minister, Gabriel Valdes, was to arrive in Washington later this week and would call on Nixon.

Valdes will be representing the United Nations Inter-American Economic and Social Council — of which the United States is not a member — to give Nixon some Latin American views on economic ties with the United States.

Earlier Wednesday, about 500 Chilean students stoned the U.S. consulate and burned an American flag in continuing demonstrations against Rockefeller's planned visit.

Police used teargas, firehoses and clubs to disperse mobs of shouting students.

In Uruguay, about 500 rock-throwing students battled police in Montevideo and two senators called for Rockefeller to cancel his trip there.

CPC Regroups to Clear Autonomy Question

By KAREN GOOD After a year of resignations of bitter Central Party Committee (CPC) members and canceled concerts, the CPC has been reorganized and renamed to form the Commission for University Entertainment (CUE).

The name change, according to Brent Hege, A3, Des Moines, chairman of the new commission, was adopted to clear up confusion regarding the organization's status as an autonomous body.

Two years ago the CPC was written out of the Code of Student Life by the Committee on Student Life (CSL). The resignations and canceled concerts stem in part from the CPC's loss of autonomy since that move.

From its inception in 1946 as an entertainment service for returning World War II GIs, until the CSL's action two years ago, the CPC was an autonomous organization that answered only to the University administration.

CSL's action spurred a great deal of discussion among campus leaders as to whether that action had, in effect, made CPC a student activity under the auspices of Student Senate.

The CPC had been mentioned in the Code as an autonomous organization; leaders argued that the action of taking the CPC out of the Code did away with its autonomous status.

The situation remained static until Student Senate elections this spring. With the election of James Sutton, G. Iowa City, as student body president and the subsequent endorsement of his policy for more student autonomy and less administrative authority, action was begun to make the CPC formally part of student activities answerable to Student Senate.

With impetus from Sutton and his newly appointed vice president for student activities, Phil Dantes, A3, Waterloo, the CPC's name and status were changed to coordinate with a new organizational plan for fine art activities. The new plan had been drawn up earlier in the year by George Chambers, assistant dean of academic affairs.

Also during the past week Dantes has been meeting with Hege and Union Board President Richard Tyner, A3, Shenandoah, to try to bring more cooperation between these two organizations when dealing with concert activities.

Hege and Tyner met with Philip Hubbard, Dean of Academic Affairs, Wednesday afternoon and agreed that there would have to be more cooperation between the two or, as Hege said, "we both realize that neither organization would be able to make it through the next year."

However, neither are clear on just where CUE's authority will end and Union Board's begin.

In the past, all entertainment costing over $5,000 was automatically handled by CPC. Whether CUE will have the same authority has not yet been determined.

Both Hege and Tyner have agreed that formal organizational planning will have to wait until fall, when all members of both organizations are back on campus.

Meanwhile, administrative help has already been promised for CUE next year. The commission will begin the year with $5,000 from the administration.

However, Dantes says that Student Senate hoped to also give the organization some funds.

Dantes explained that it was theoretically possible to run a whole concert series on $4,000 by using $2,500 to pay for Field House set up and reimbursing the fund for the next concert after every show.

"But at that rate we'll never make any money," Dantes said.

According to Dantes, plans for CUE are three-fold: to obtain good entertainment, to attain student autonomy for the organization and to gain enough financial support for the organization to have a substantial return from concert investments.

A great deal of the reorganizational planning, however, still hinges on the University administration. The CPC members' resignations this year stemmed also in part from stringent University rules that concerts have full financial backing before contracts were signed with entertainment groups.

That hassel has still not been resolved. Both Dantes and Sutton see a power struggle looming next year before the situation is resolved.

Dean Hubbard said Wednesday night he saw no likelihood that University policy on the matter would change.

Rock 'n' roll a curse; noise a blessing

That Ralph Nader is a busy little fellow, isn't he? Having got the automobile and food processing industries well started toward better ways, he now has turned his attention to "noise pollution."

In this field he may find the going a bit rougher. Heretofore he has been jousting mainly with middle-aged establishments, but now he is going up against the youth establishment, which in the last few years seems to have developed an almost impervious facade.

It doesn't respond to orthodox forms of logic and its stomach is not easily made queasy.

There is reason to think that this time Mr. Nader is starting from a false premise anyway. He warns that:

"Acoustic trauma from rock 'n' roll music is emerging as a very real threat to the hearing quality of young people who expose themselves to substantial durations of this music by live rock groups with high amplification."

"This country may be producing a new generation of young Americans with impaired hearing before they reach the age of 21."

If you ask us, it had better be. You have to be a little deaf to tolerate that stuff, let alone enjoy it.

It had been our theory that the apparent popularity of rock 'n' roll (or whatever it is being called this year) is just a universal put-on by a rebellious younger generation bent on getting us old gaffers' goat.

We have let it go in one ear and out the other, consoled by the conviction that sooner or later the kids would cease to find the joke amusing and move on to some other form of devility.

We simply can't accept the notion that a youth which professes so much devotion to finer values of life could really like a type of music that puts so few demands on talent or technique.

If we've been wrong about that and are to be beleaguered indefinitely by rock groups, then deafness has to be looked upon as a blessing.

And we'll thank Mr. Nader not to be egging Congress on to pass any laws to prevent it.

A critical reply

To the Editor:

While I thank the Gartland-Farrants for pointing out the inaccuracy of my data for the action of the film "The Fixer," I wish to take exception with the rest of their letter.

They claim that to call the Fixer a Christ figure is an oversimplification. I can only wonder what they make of his little speech to the prison guard to the effect that anyone who spits on a Jew spits on Christ.

Nor do I see how they can take the Fixer's stubborn refusal of his so-called "crime" (and yes the letter writers can be as literal and narrow as the film they are defending) as anything but actually willing and accepting his suffering. Indeed, if anything that is the point of the film.

As for being more precise about editing and color, let me merely regret the lack of space to which a reviewer is subject as well as the whole problem of talking about the visual in verbal terms.

In regard to the pogrom and its staging (relying on the most conventional fast cutting and upward camera angles instead of any real originality or imagination in the image itself) and the imagery of confinement, let me admit most readily that I am indeed at least partially criticizing the film for what it is not as well as for what it is.

Mr. Edwards' little love note on the bottom of Tuesday's Editorial page can be answered more briefly. He seems unaware of my reviews of the Union and other University film series presentations.

Or perhaps like the inimitable Mr. Henry Sutton himself, he would dismiss all that as "Pseudo-intellectual reviews of unseen French movies."

It would indeed take someone with his sights on the level of Donald Duck and Mickey Mouse to write favorable criticism of most of the uptown films.

Writer says Quad residents confused

To the Editor:

I question the statement made by the Quad residents who were at the party which resulted in the resignation of four Quadrangle advisers.

The residents confuse the issue of respect between the resident and the adviser. Admittedly, there are some problems in communications between the adviser and the residents.

However, I do not comprehend how the Quad residents can gain respect for an adviser who commits an infraction of the Code of Student Life.

I would think that they would be more unwilling to comply if, in the future, these four advisers turned them in for a beer party or any other infraction.

I believe the advisers can gain respect without having to engage with his residents in activities which are in violation of the Code. If he can break the rules, why should other students be prevented from doing the same.

There are definitely more constructive ways to communicate and gain the respect of residents.

The Quad residents seem to presume that the adviser is on another level than they are. I certainly hope this is not true because the adviser remains on an equal basis as them although he must at the same time carry out those responsibilities designated to him as an adviser.

This letter in no way attempts to reflect my opinion of the four advisers nor does it support the decision rendered by the administration.

My intent is only to point out the fallacious statement made by the Quad residents.

University tuition is going up. Dorm rates are going up. With the new city tax hike, off-campus rent may well be going up. The price of Cokes at Kresge's is already up.

But rest assured, dear student, there is one financial facet of your life which has not changed since Grandma's day. That's the price you get for last semester's textbooks when you sell them back to the bookstores.

People walk through those magic doors bearing mountainous stacks of leather-bound volumes and come out clutching a handful of beads and trinkets.

Legend has it that one poor wretch sold his birthright and his organic chemistry text for a mess of pottage.

Freshmen intoxicated by their first experience at reselling books sometimes rush out and blow the whole return in the nearest slot machine.

What it is a state of mind. Students tend to go out of theirs upon finishing a rough semester.

Bookstore operators move in then, seductively ruffling greenbacks and making money music. Walk in the door and they mechanically bark out an offer for whatever you've got with you. One guy got 37 cents for his fiancee.

Frequently the pain incurred in shell-backed Chaucer that you never learned to like despite the efforts of your core lit instructor is revived upon entering a bookstore, and you find yourself seized by an insane desire to recoup your losses.

Time has mercifully blotted out of your memory that day five months ago when you had the same foolish notion.

Just like the harried TA's have been telling you and each other they have — you never learn, booby.

You should remember that the bookstore man doesn't want that infernal "Inferno" or Tillich any more now than you did when you bought it. And he doesn't have to have it by Monday like you did.

You don't have to sell back your books. You can keep them and use them again. To level the short-legged dining room table; To press botanical specimens; To — you'll pardon the expression — read again one day.

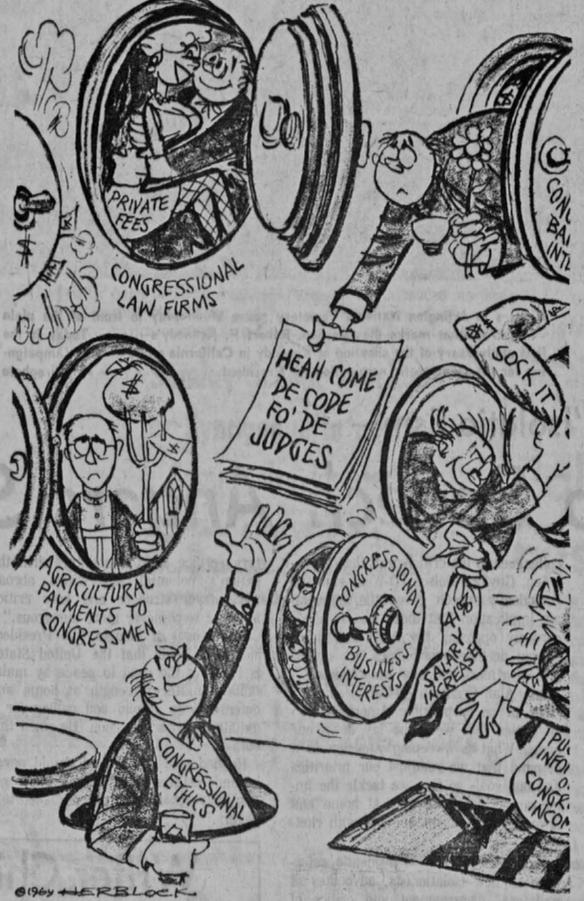

You can resell the books yourself and cut out the middle man.

But you probably won't do that.

You will instead join the throngs of thousands standing in line to get taken care of at the store.

And you will, in your turn, get taken.

I am not suggesting that the proprietors of college bookstores are all profit-mongers. I'm certain that several of them are in the business to provide a public service — cleaning up.

An explanation of power

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Several of our congressmen are in Paris this week observing the air show, which they insist is essential to their legislative duties during the forthcoming year.

Leading the group is Congressman L. Mendel Rivers, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, and Charleston, South Carolina's gift to the American people.

It must be very difficult for a Frenchman to understand Rivers' role in our system of government, and I can just imagine a scene between the congressman and a French official he is introduced to at the show.

"Monsieur Rivers, as I understand it, you are a member of zee American parliament."

"Ah happen to be chairman of the House Armed Services Committee."

"I do not understand zis House Armed Services Committee."

"Wal, it's not hard to fathom. In our armed forces we have a chain of command. The President is Commander in Chief, then there's me, then the secretary of defense and then the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

"You must be a very powerful man."

"When ah tell a general to jump, he jumps. Wahtch this — Hey you, general, over there — jump."

"Zut alors. He jumped. How do you come by zis power?"

"Wal, Frenchie, under our system when the armed services want anything, they have to come to me. If they want a new plane or a new submarine or even a new PX, they have to present it to mah committee. If ah don't want them to have a new plane or a new submarine, they aren't about to get it."

"Mon Dieu, if De Gaulle had zat much power he would navaire quit."

"Ah'm not mean about it. Matter of fact, ah'm so kindly disposed toward the military that ah give them things they don't even want."

"Zay must be grateful!"

"Ah don't get many complaints from them. Of course, the military's been good to me. Whenever they want to build a new base and they can't think of any place to put it, I let them put it in my district in Charleston, South Carolina."

"You are a kind man."

"Mind you, ah don't ask them to build anything there. But for some reason Charleston seems to fit all their needs."

"Your district must be well protected."

"Ah'd say from a defense standpoint, Charleston's probably the safest place in the United States."

"What about zee rest of the members of your committee?"

"If they play along with me, ah throw them a bone every once in a while: A missile site here, a sub-chaser school there. There's enough for everybody as long as they play the game."

"And if zay don't play zee game?"

"Ah don't have much time for the enemies of the military. Just the other day there was a misunderstanding about a new C-54 Air Transport, which happened to be built down mah way. It cost a little more than Lockheed said it would, and some of the people on mah committee started making noises about holding a hearing."

"Wal, I gave them their hearing and from mah point of view, Lockheed came out smelling like a rose. But ah'm not forgetting the names of the troublemakers."

"Monsieur Rivers, you are a great man."

"You're not a bad guy yourself. You need any military hardware ah can help you with?"

"Not for zee moment, but I'd like your card. By zee way Monsieur, what about the general?"

"Ah plumb forgot about him. OK general, you can stop jumping now."

Canada 'more humane' draft-dodger says

By JIM WITTE
College Press Service

EDITOR'S NOTE — The author was a student at the University of Colorado at Boulder before leaving last year to go to Canada.

CALGARY, Alberta, Canada — Canada is not just a lesser evil than serving in Vietnam; it is a better country, a better government and a more humane way of life.

American young people have been brainwashed into thinking the United States is the greatest, and that life anywhere else is unthinkable. Canada — most students only know that Pierre Trudeau is Prime Minister, that we have a Parliament, that Canada is a flashy liberal and that Canada doesn't have compulsory conscription.

But students on the other side of the 49th parallel know every capital city of every state, the cabinet members and problems of the United States and in the next 20 years, as Canadian young people take over the reins of government, they will take precautions against all the bad things they've seen in the United States. Canada has one-tenth the population of the United States, and generally has about 10 to 20 years to prevent the development here of situations that cause major crises in the United States.

Even in such Bible-thumping provinces as Alberta, where the Premier has an eleventh-grade education, city planning, socialized medicine and a spirit of goodwill exists among men.

In Calgary, police constables would be fired instantly for spraying Mace at anyone. In fact, they have none to spray and would need special permission from the chief to use it.

Use of marijuana is widespread in Calgary. It is outlawed under the Narcotic Control Act, which carries a maximum sentence of 14 years in prison, but powerful members of Parliament, including Minister of Health John Munro, have called for reducing the penalties. Alberta Supreme Court Justice J. V. H. Milvain has set a precedent in the province by giving suspended sentences to all first-time offenders.

And even in Alberta ("even" is a byword for liberals in this country, since Alberta is the Texas of Canada and oil-rich), there is little discrimination by Canadians against draft dodgers, as American emigres are called. The United States oilmen and other Americans who make up 40 per cent of Calgary's population are less kind to their fellow countrymen.

Canadians generally aren't well-informed about the Vietnam war; they don't have the sense of a super-power corrupted by big business, or the sophistication of U.S. intellectuals about the military-industrial complex.

Canadians do know that Trudeau doesn't like the war, that the Vietnamese death-count is abominable and that Sen. Eugene McCarthy and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller were the popular U.S. presidential candidates.

They are aware that more than 15,000 young U.S. citizens have come north to escape the draft, as they have during other controversial American wars. Few Canadians will argue for the Vietnam war on its merits, but they recognize the competition for jobs American immigrants present.

Although for every American citizen moving north there are two Canadians moving south into the United States, the unemployment rate in Canada is high — about five per cent — and the borders are slowly closing to foreigners.

Jobs aren't easy for a draft dodger to get, since many Canadian companies are U.S. subsidiaries and won't hire us. Jobs in the Northwest Territories, where it is really cold in the winter (-15 to -20 degrees for two straight months this year) are the only ones usually plentiful and well-paying.

Canada, of course, has the usual capitalist hangups. It is dependent on the United States for much of its market and has the United States to thank for its high standard of living. The unemployment rate makes the country an employer's paradise and workers are in real danger if there is no union to join.

Landlords in many cities get away with charging outrageous rents and raise them on the spur of the moment. Food prices are higher than in the States, as are prices for liquor, cigarettes and gasoline.

But the right of privacy is being secured, and the feeling among men is good and friendly.

How does it feel to be gone from the United States? It is a strange loneliness; it is hard to believe that you can never go back, but yet somehow a relief. (If a serious revolution ever begins in the States, of course, a good number of non-pacifist expatriates would probably return as enemies of the state.)

An individual coming from the United States has to live by a philosophy of life — one of peace and tranquility, of harmony with nature and other men, and of tolerance of different attitudes and opinions.

Fortunately, these are precisely the kind of people (mostly immigrants themselves) and the kind of government you find in Canada, and living here makes you happy.

There are causes to fight for here too. You can help the French-Canadians fight Anglicization; you can help end discrimination against Indians; you can help Canadian business compete with the "damned Yankees."

I joined a co-op grocery store (all Canadian-owned), and I make sure the insurance I buy and the bank where I deposit my money are English or Canadian owned. I (and many other Canadians) want to compete with the super-state-turned-sour.

As adopted citizens, we are sometimes homesick for our American friends, and for the beauty of their struggle against our adversaries in Washington and the unity and closeness in their ranks. Sometimes we feel guilty for not being there when a comrade gets maced, or assaulted by a cop with orders to be tough.

Late last year Dick Gregory, the U.S. Peace and Freedom Party Presidential candidate, echoed our sentiments in Calgary; Canada is the last, best hope for peace and understanding between East and West.

The United States is hated by the black, yellow and communist world. Only Canada stands out in the west as a great country, a peaceful understanding country with a sense of dignity available for all men.

I've got an only brother in Vietnam. Even he, a Mormon, confided to me that the Army is teaching its leaders to act immorally. He feels war is just when against communists, and that we have a chosen country in the United States, but the absolute authoritarianism which the officer training schools teach is ungodly he says.

So I'll take the cold, and the uncertainty that forces me to work or be forced to face the elements without the comfort of monetary sustenance.

Come to Canada and be good. We need you to fight American imperialism from abroad.

Military, Lockheed Disagree on Cost Of C5A Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee, investigating intricacies of the contract for the C5A super transport, heard officials of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. estimate Wednesday that the firm stands to lose far less than the Air Force says it will.

Secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seamans Jr. had told the committee Tuesday that Lockheed would probably lose about $285 million if the government bought 120 of the transports.

But Daniel J. Haughton, Lockheed board chairman, and Thomas R. May, president of the subsidiary Lockheed-Martelle Co., which is building the planes, said the firm would lose only $13 million. And Haughton said, "We still may break even or even come out ahead."

Haughton said, "If we build 115 airplanes, we would lose $13 million. There is no way for us to make very much though we'll work as hard as we can."

The hearing, second of two before the committee that is considering legislation that includes another $1 billion for the plane, marked the first time in the controversy that Lockheed officials had given their side of the story.

The result was considerable confusion amid a mass of figures and disagreement between the contractor and the government on various things.

In response to a question by Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. (D-Va.) on whether the government could cancel the contract, Haughton said, "we think it is past the time where it could be canceled" before the full 115-plane order is completed.

Byrd then asked, "Lockheed feels it has a commitment for 115 airplanes?"

"Subject to certain funding requirements, yes," Haughton said, noting that the actual funds to pay for the planes must still be appropriated.

Seamans had testified that 58 planes had been purchased and 23 more were included in the fiscal 1970 budget.

"The government is not committed to procure any additional aircraft," Seamans said.

As for the differing estimates of the firm's anticipated loss, Haughton said this is due in part to differences in cost of the remaining planes.

"I feel the Air Force estimate is approximately $200 million high," he said.

"They think they're right but we think we're right. Some way we're going to have to resolve it," he said.

Presidio Mutiny Case To Go to Jury Today

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP) — The long court-martial of 14 Army privates, accused of mutiny for their sit-down at the San Francisco Presidio stockade, will go to the five-man trial board today after the defense suggested that the Army also is on trial.

The trial board deliberates verdicts in a court-martial.

"Please don't over-react, for the sake of our Army and for the sake of our nation," Capt. Emmitt Yeary told the five-man panel during his defense sum-up.

"We have a very strong system — we don't have to be afraid of men such as these who are immature and sick," he said.

Terence Hallinan, the civilian defense attorney, compared the two-months-old trial here to the Dreyfus case in France in 1895.

He said the French army, in sentencing Capt. Alfred Dreyfus to life on Devil's Island for treason, "over-reacted and created a national scandal."

Hallinan said the defendants' act in sitting on the grass and singing last Oct. 14 instead of going on stockade work details "was a cry for help, not an attempt to override lawful military authority."

Hallinan said the defendants and 13 other prisoners who took part in the sit-down were trying to bring to the attention of higher authorities unsanitary and overcrowded conditions at the stockade.

During 35 days of court sessions, the focus has been on the psychiatric condition of the defendants.

Army Abandons Fire Bases On Enemy Supply Routes

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. 25th Infantry Division has abandoned four fire bases from which it inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in April, American military sources said Wednesday.

The reasons given for abandonment are a lack of enemy activity, the onset of the monsoon rains, and knowledge that the troops and their 105mm howitzers can be better used elsewhere.

The fire bases are Diamond I, II and III and Frontier City, 30 to 35 miles northwest of Saigon and close to the Cambodian border.

All were on or close to enemy infiltration routes to Saigon. The U.S. Command said the bases were set up to check infiltration. It denied they were meant as bait to lure the enemy from its sanctuary in Cambodia, as some soldiers in the bases suspected. In any case, the bases did lure the enemy from Cambodia.

In two enemy assaults alone in April, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong lost 483, allied sources say. U.S. losses were 13 killed and 16 wounded.

The attacks were made by the Viet Cong 9th Division — now composed of 70-90 per cent North Vietnamese troops. The Division is still reputed to be in the area, but inactive of late, one source said.

Fierce fighting continued in the central highlands, where South Vietnamese forces claim they have killed 945 enemy troops in a three-week operation around Dak To.

North Vietnamese, possibly firing from inside Laos with guns that have a 10-mile range, sent 75 rounds Tuesday into U.S. artillery, medical and special forces bases supporting the

Arab Nations Embittered On 6-Day War Anniversary

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Arab nations face Israel on the second anniversary of the six-day war, embittered and disillusioned by their failure to regain their conquered lands.

Humbled by defeat, they are as yet unready to fight another full-scale war.

But neither can they repudiate years of their own propaganda by accepting Israeli demands for face-to-face peace negotiations.

The six-day war, which began June 4, 1967, resulted in heavy losses for the Arab nations. Territories captured by Israel then still remain under Israeli control.

While the promises of their leaders to recover every inch of Arab soil remain unfulfilled, massive military budgets bleed many Arab states of their meager resources and retard economic development.

Artillery duels rage across the waterway and Egypt lives with the help of a dole from the oil states of Libya, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia.

Clashes also flare almost daily across the Jordan River. Rich farms in the valley lie abandoned. In the hills around Amman, Jordan's capital, and further north, more than 300,000 refugees live in tented camps, their hatred festering and their children being taught to kill by the Fedayeen — the Palestine guerrillas.

The guerrillas took up the fight in 1967 where regular Arab armies left off.

Owing allegiance to no Arab government and commanding more popular support even than Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser, the guerrillas seemed likely to dictate the course of events in the troubled Middle East.

Court Finds Ali Told King To 'Watch Those Whiteys'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A document introduced at a federal court hearing Wednesday quoted Muhammad Ali as advising the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in 1964 to take care of himself and "watch out for those whiteys."

The document was one of four wiretap conversations Judge Joe Ingraham admitted into evidence at a Supreme Court-ordered hearing to determine whether the information had any bearing on Ali's 1967 conviction on a charge of refusing to be inducted into the Army.

After hearing arguments in closed session, Ingraham ruled the four tapes — which the lawyers called logs — had been obtained illegally by government agents. He refused, however, to admit a fifth log, upholding a government contention that revealing its contents possibly would endanger national security. U.S. Atty. Gen. John W. Mitchell had certified that the fifth log had been obtained lawfully.

Charles Morgan Jr. of Atlanta, Ali's chief counsel, read transcripts from the four tapes into the record. He said they were not verbatim transcriptions and that the defense should be permitted to subpoena the government agents involved for questioning at a full-scale hearing.

Morgan said the logs had at least indirect bearing on the former heavyweight boxing champion's court trial in that each involved matters of religion and race. Ali had claimed selective service exemption on grounds that he was a Black Muslim minister. He is appealing the conviction that resulted in a maximum sentence of five years and a $10,000 fine.

The logs as read into the court record did not make it clear which parties involved in the conversations had been "bugged." The conversation with Dr. King was dated Sept. 4, 1964, at which time Ali and his Chicago attorney, Chauncey Eskridge, were in Miami, Fla.

The other logs reported these conversations: March 24, 1964, between Ali and Elijah Muhammad, head of the Black Muslim sect; April 22, 1965, between Herbert Muhammad, Elijah's brother and Ali's boxing manager; and Oct. 22, 1964, between Ali and John Ali, identified by Morgan as business manager for the Black Muslims.

An FBI agent indicated in Ali's hearing Wednesday that federal agents had the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. under electronics surveillance several years.

Robert Nichols of the Atlanta, Ga., FBI office also testified that an investigation of the Black Muslim sect, of which Ali is a member, had been under way since the late 1950s.

Muhammad In the Spotlight Again—

Former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali was the center of attraction in two news stories Wednesday. Ali was first blasted by Joe Frazier, present heavyweight champion in six states, as being a "big mouth phony" and a "disgrace." Ali is presently involved in a court action dealing with a government wiretapping incident on Sept. 4, 1964. Joe Frazier Blasts Ali; Calls Him A Disgrace

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier, admitting that some of Muhammad Ali's remarks had irked him, took a couple of long distance pokes at the former heavyweight champion Wednesday. He called Ali "a big mouth phony" and "a disgrace."

"I think the public is fed up with all his fussin' and fumin'," said Frazier at his upstate training camp where he is preparing to defend his six-state piece of the world heavyweight title against Jerry Quarry of Bellflower, Calif., at Madison Square Garden, June 23.

"All this hollerin' he's doing about not wanting to fight is just a defense," said Frazier. "He knows I can beat him. I knock him out. I'd like to button his big mouth once and for all, knock him out and get rid of him. I think the public is fed up with his fussin' and fumin'."

"What kind of a man is this who don't want to fight for his country? If he was in Russia, or some place else, they'd put him up against the wall. He walks around like he's one kind of a big hero but he's just a phony, a disgrace."

"Clay's day is all over. I just don't call anybody a name, but I just had enough of that big phony. Everybody wants to say what I'm saying. Some people can't but I can. It's about time somebody took off on that loud mouth."

The 25-year-old father of four made some of the remarks in a conversation with Yank Durham, his trainer and advisor, and John F. X. Condon, the Garden's boxing publicity director, in the lobby of the Hotel Concord at Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., Tuesday night.

Clay, who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, is spending a five-year conviction for refusing induction into the military service.

He is now in Houston, Tex., seeking dismissal of the conviction on the grounds that the government used illegal wiretaps of some of his conversations.

The unbeaten Clay, now 27, was stripped of heavyweight title recognition two years ago by the World Boxing Association and the New York Athletic Commission when he refused induction.

Plane Crash Claims Tennis Ace Rafael Osuna Killed

NEW YORK (AP) — Rafael Osuna, among the 79 persons believed killed Wednesday in a plane crash in Mexico, achieved one of the great moments of his tennis career just 10 days ago.

Osuna, 30-year-old tennis veteran, led underdog Mexico to a stunning 3-2 upset of Australia in the Davis Cup North American zone elimination round.

"One of my last ambitions in tennis was to beat Australia," said Osuna, who in recent years had limited his play to representing Mexico in important matches, such as the Davis Cup.

"I've always wanted to win the singles at Wimbledon, but you can't have everything."

During his career, though, Osuna had a lot.

For example, he became the first Mexican to win the U.S. men's singles championship at Forest Hills, N.Y., in 1963.

And while he never won the singles at Wimbledon, he was a member of the championship men's doubles team twice. He won with Dennis Ralston of the United States in 1960 when he was only 21, and he repeated the feat with countryman Antonio Palafox in 1963.

Osuna first burst into tennis prominence when he and Ralston won the doubles at Wimbledon.

Their victory came as a great surprise to everyone because they more or less became partners at the last minute — and only because they knew each other from the University of Southern California where both were students.

He graduated from USC with a degree in business economics.

It was just about four years ago that Osuna began reducing the time he spent in international tennis competition, limiting himself to the big tournaments and the Davis Cup.

About two years ago he joined the public relations staff of a U.S. tobacco company and spent much of his time out of Mexico.

He and his wife, Leslie, had four children ranging in age from four months to 10 years.

Survivors of Evans Tell About Heroism

PEARL HARBOR — Survivors of the USS Frank E. Evans said Wednesday they had no warning before the Australian carrier Melbourne cut their ship in two in the South China Sea, with the loss of 74 American crewmen.

Navy investigators talked for the first time to some of the 199 survivors; all but one of them were aboard the carrier Kearsarge bound for Subic Bay in the Philippines.

They told of acts of heroism among shipmates and a lack of panic aboard the crippled stern section in the terrifying moments after the collision. The bow section, containing those who died, sank.

Reports released here indicated the sailors, many in their underwear, performed emergency rescue and damage control "just as we had done during drill."

Most of the crew was asleep when the big carrier cut the destroyer in half, sending the forward section of the smaller ship 5,400 feet to the sea bottom.

There were small fires and some explosions, the survivors said. The impact hurled many sleeping seamen through the cracked hull.

One man was killed outright and 73 others went down with the severed hull.

"At first, I thought we had run aground," Seaman Apprentice Mark A. Gee of Port Angeles, Wash., recalled. "Suddenly, everything heaved to starboard."

The young sailor said mattresses and people were thrown to the deck along with "everything else that wasn't tied down."

He said he remembered someone shouting, "We've collided!" There were no lights but he said he and several seamen managed to reach safety on the ship's fantail.

The forward section of the ship began to capsize immediately after the huge impact as sea water gushed into gaping crevices.

Crewmen astern ran from compartment to compartment securing hatches and doors.

Others helped or carried stunned shipmates to the deck.

Engineman 3c Charles M. Frey of San Mateo, Calif., and a companion pulled three shipmates from one of the crevices.

A giant whirlpool, caused by the sinking wreckage, sucked some sailors below the waves.

Electrician's Mate 1c Everett O. Dees of Long Beach, Calif., said he was pulled under but managed to swim back to the surface.

"I looked around," he said. "I was alongside of the captain, Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore. We both hung on to debris and were soon picked out of the water by the Australians."

Ray Predicts A Lowered Voting Age

DES MOINES — Gov. Robert D. Ray predicted Wednesday the 1970 Legislature will complete action on his proposal to lower the minimum voting age to 19 in Iowa.

"There are many rationales for lowering the voting age, not the least of which is the new political activism of our youth," Ray told 832 high school juniors attending a Boys State encampment at Camp Dodge.

"You, who will inherit this nation, deserve a piece of the action — and you are half of all of us," Ray said.

The Iowa Senate approved a proposed constitutional amendment to lower the minimum voting age from 21 to 19, but the House took no action.

Before it can become effective the proposal will have to be approved by two consecutive legislatures and a vote of the people.

Watch Thefts Strike Dorms

Two University students reported to police Wednesday that their watches had been stolen from their dormitories during May.

Helaine Oster, A1, Des Moines, told police a gold watch valued at $45 had been stolen from her room in Burge Hall between May 17 and 19.

David Sorenson, A1, Clinton, reported the theft of a watch May 15 from the eighth floor lounge of Rienow II. The watch was valued at $20.

Hid Under a Plane Cuban Flies Free

MADRID — A young Cuban soldier escaped from his homeland Wednesday in the wheel well of a Spanish jetliner, unaware that a fellow stowaway apparently fell to his death during the flight.

The survivor, 22-year-old Armando Socarras Ramirez, was pronounced out of danger of dying from the effects of his 7½-hour flight from Havana at 29,000 feet where the temperature hovers around 40 degrees below zero.

Socarras was in grave condition suffering from frostbite and was unconscious when officials found him on the runway at Madrid airport and took him to the hospital, but he rallied quickly.

Socarras tumbled from his niche behind the left wheel of the DC8 after it touched down and came to a stop. He made the trip with no breathing aid and only the wheel cover to protect him from the cold.

After regaining consciousness, Socarras told hospital officials that a companion had hidden himself behind the right wheel of the Iberia Airlines plane. He was identified by the Spanish news service Cifra as Jorge Perez Blanco of Havana.

It was believed that the missing stowaway either plunged to the ground a few minutes after the plane took off from Havana or fell out about 15 miles outside Madrid as the jet began to make its landing run.

The pilot, Cmdr. Valentin Vara, told officials that his right wheel didn't retract properly after take off. He notified the Havana control tower, but when he lowered the wheels a second time they retracted normally.

Socarras was wearing thin clothes suitable for the warm weather in Cuba. At 29,000 feet, the air was so thin that he must have lost consciousness, officials said. But he apparently was so tightly wedged in his hiding place that he did not fall out, even with the landing gear lowered.

The pilot was quoted as telling airport officials "he could have wrecked the plane and killed all the passengers."

Flight surgeons at the U.S. 16th Air Force installation at Torrejon outside Madrid expressed amazement that anyone could have survived such a trip. At 40 degrees below zero, they said, a normal human could not survive more than 30 minutes.

"Of course, we don't know what the temperature behind the wheel well was," said one doctor, "but it couldn't have been much higher than zero, probably not that much."

Socialists Criticize War's Sent to Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army sent Wednesday that Sgt. Michael Sanders, who criticized U.S. involvement in Vietnam, must go to the war zone because he is physically qualified and because he hasn't been there before.

The Army denied the 22-year-old Kentuckian's protest that he was being banished to the war because of something he said. After a top-level review of the Sanders' case, Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor said: • Sanders has a "hearing limitation" but can be given a quiet assignment in Vietnam, possibly in a headquarters unit, so that his hearing won't be further damaged by the sounds of war.

• He also has an asthmatic condition but will be stationed near hospital facilities in Vietnam "where he can receive definitive medical care" for that problem.

TO THE GRADUATING COLLEGE

Ever think you'd be good at selling life insurance?
Mutual funds?
Investment counseling?
Or did you ever wish you could sell all three?
We're one of the few who is now in all three. And I'm ready to offer the right man an executive sales opportunity. Selling broad-spectrum financial planning to individuals and businesses. Representing a first-rate $3-billion company. With a training salary up to $1,000.00 a month plus opportunities for additional income. And prospects high in the five-figure range.
If this sounds like your thing, write Box 304, Daily Iowan. We'd like to hear from you.

EAGLE BRINGS YOU TRUE DISCOUNT PRICING...

There Is A Difference

What is "true discount pricing"? "True Discount Pricing" means lowering the price of a product without a corresponding sacrifice in quality. That way, you enjoy fine quality foods and non-food products as well as savings on your total grocery bill! Does Eagle really bring you this kind of quality-and-savings combination? Yes, and you can prove it to yourself . . . by comparing the total of your register receipt at Eagle with the total charged elsewhere on your average weekly supermarket needs; and by comparing the quality of food and non-food products offered at Eagle. One stroll through our grocery aisles will attest to our claim of quality, for you'll find we offer all your favorite nationally-advertised brand-names . . . and at Discount Prices that add up to considerable cash savings week after week! Why not start saving this week, with Eagle Discount Prices on your everyday holiday needs!
