Power Limited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overwhelmingly approved Wednesday a manifesto to presidents not to involve the United States in future hostilities abroad without first getting the approval of Congress.

By a 70-16 vote it passed a resolution putting itself on record as warning President Nixon and his successors not to promise or to use U.S. troops or financial resources to aid any foreign country without "affirmative action" by Congress.

ABM Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert C. Sprague, long a consultant on defense planning, told senators Wednesday that failure to deploy the Safeguard antiballistic missile might "drastically weaken our bargaining position with the Soviets by the mid-1970s."

Sprague, in a statement solicited by the Senate Armed Services Committee, said that a report he drafted during the Eisenhower administration recommended that highest priority be given to development of ABM — "in other words, a Safeguard missile system."

Garland Death

LONDON (AP) — The sedatives that Judy Garland had to use to live were responsible for her death, a coroner's inquest ruled Wednesday.

The official ruling was accidental death through "an incautious self-overdose — of sleeping pills."

Judy collapsed and died in her Chelsea bathroom Sunday at the age of 47.

State Road Commission Criticized by Mezvinsky Despite Penalty Change

By KELLY AMBROSE

"Wining and dining" of Iowa State Highway Commission members by representatives of the state trucking lobby was questioned Wednesday by state Rep. Edward Mezvinsky (D-Iowa City).

Mezvinsky said he suspected there had been "collusion" between commission members and the trucking firms.

The Highway Commission, which two weeks ago lifted penalties imposed upon four trucking firms for violating oversize load restrictions, did an about face Wednesday and reinstated the penalties. This action followed sharp criticism by Gov. Robert D. Ray and several state legislators.

The reinstatement, however, was too late to prevent charges of collusion and general incompetence and a call for a full-scale investigation.

"The Commission has achieved notoriety for its dereliction of duty, boondoggling and questionable relationship with the trucking industry," Mezvinsky said.

He accused the commission of protecting the industry rather than the public, and asked for a full disclosure of members' relationship with the trucking industry.

Another lawmaker, Sen. Ernest Kosek, (R-Cedar Rapids), also gave the commissioners a verbal dressing down at a commission meeting Tuesday at Ames. He suggested that the commission's actions could lead to a legislative review of the commission members' qualifications.

Despite their decision to reconsider the penalty suspension, commission members gave little explanation for their June 11 decision to rescind the penalties imposed upon the four trucking firms. The motion to suspend the penalties had been introduced by Commissioner Koert Voorhees of Cedar Falls.

Voorhees also attempted to lessen the penalties before they were reinstated Wednesday, but was voted down by the other commissioners.

The four firms involved are Warren Transport, Inc., of Waterloo; Matson, Inc., of Cedar Rapids; Hove Truck Lines of Stanhope; and International Transport, Inc., of Rochester, Minn.

Warren Transport is owned by state Republican chairman Jack Warren of Waterloo and his brother.

The penalties consisted of 30- to 45-day suspensions of annual permits for the carrying of oversize loads for the three Iowa firms. The firms were also denied the right to apply for new single-trip permits for 30 days beginning July 1.

International Transport, Inc. was denied issuance of any new single-trip permits for a period of five days, beginning July 7. The firm holds no annual oversize load permits in Iowa.

Church Defends Forman

BOSTON (AP) — A stormy, clamorous assembly of the United Church of Christ Wednesday overruled its officials and told them to cease their court action against black militant James Forman.

"It's the way racism always operates," charged Dr. Albert Pryor, a black sociology professor, of Springfield, Mass.

Representatives of the 2-million-member denomination voted overwhelmingly to tell mission executives to drop their part in a restraining order barring Forman from New York's Interchurch Center.

The decision came at the end of a blistering day of demonstrations, accusations and arguments that shattered the program scheduled to open the church's governing general synod.

Most of the furor centered on Forman,

Tornadoes, Rain Continue to Strike The Middlewest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes and violent thunderstorms continued to wallop the nation's mid-section Wednesday, while a sudden cold snap blanketed upper regions of the Rockies with summer snows.

Heavy rains and high winds lashed the Midwest and preceded an invasion of arctic air from the West.

Several tornadoes and funnel clouds were sighted in southern parts of South Dakota and Minnesota. No damage or injuries were reported.

A thunderstorm whipped the Kansas City area with gusts up to 70 miles an hour. A twister south of Topeka, Kan., damaged some trees.

Beating rains deluged sections of Nebraska and Iowa, and there were numerous reports of flash floods.

The steady downpours swelled the Little Sioux River and Railroad Creek above their banks. Several families were evacuated at Cherokee in western Iowa. The rising waters forced the closing of two state highways.

Overnight cloudbursts dumped up to 5 inches of water on sections of central and eastern Nebraska and several roads were inundated.

Residents in an area from Kansas to Iowa were alerted for developing tornadoes.

Leary Doesn't Show For Scheduled Talk, Trips Up Admirers

By RON JACKSON

A scheduled talk by Timothy Leary, former Harvard professor and an LSD advocate, was mysteriously canceled Wednesday after Leary made a brief appearance at the scheduled time.

Leary showed up at the 4-H Fairgrounds south of Iowa City at about 8 p.m. and was immediately surrounded by a group of photographers and admirers. He then went to the stage set up outside where Enoch and Smoky, a local rock group, were preparing to play to an estimated crowd of 700.

Leary made himself comfortable behind the group's base amplifier. He was shortly pinned in by a temporary partition that was erected to reflect the sound of the band to the audience.

As the band proceeded to tune up, heavy cloud formations were moving in fast and it became apparent that another downpour was on its way to soak the already drenched grounds. Leary remained in the two-foot area allotted him as the band appropriately played, "I'm a Back Door Man."

With the first few drops of rain, the band packed up and the crowd moved into the cattle judging arena, where a rock group, The American Legend, performed for the audience, which had gathered for the "Awakening" festivities that had started at 6 a.m. Wednesday and were to last until 6 a.m. today.

In the confusion, Leary made his way out and rumors started to circulate that he was not going to speak.

At about 9:15 it appeared that Leary was not going to speak and the crowd began to get restless. Another band, the Mother Blues, set up its equipment and everyone sat on the cattle barn floor.

A program of songs the band was going to play was distributed by a four-year-old girl. Bearded men sat around on the barn fences and ate cotton candy, which eventually stuck to their whiskers. Dogs and other animals were working their way through the dense crowd as the main barn lights were dimmed. Only a yellow spot light lit the bearded faces of the Mother Blues. Outside it was raining, as it had all day.

Some persons in the crowd seemed disappointed that they didn't get to hear Leary talk about his religion, which he claims is LSD. In a news conference earlier Wednesday he told newsmen that neither his religion nor Gov. Ronald Reagan's religion should have any influence on the gubernatorial campaign in California.

Leary plans to run for California governor in the next election.

Leary said he was willing to debate Reagan on "whatever he uses to get high."

It proposed withdrawal from the court procedure, and delegates approved.

Vote on Surtax Is Set for Monday By House Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders planned Wednesday to try to pass on Monday President Nixon's bill extending the income surtax.

A vote on the bill, first scheduled for Wednesday, was postponed when head counts indicated serious doubt that it would pass.

Subsequently, however, Republican leaders called their colleagues into conference, relayed an appeal from Nixon and then reported they had assurances of about 170 Republican votes for the bill, an increase of about 40.

This would mean that votes of only about 50 of the 224 Democrats would be needed to insure passage. Democratic leaders then reconsidered their plan not to call up the measure until after the July 4 holiday.

Meanwhile emergency legislation began moving — with some difficulties — to extend income tax withholding at the present rates, including the surtax, through July 31. This is a one-month extension of the original deadline.

This would give both House and Senate time to dispose, one way or the other, of the surtax extension issue. Withholding rates otherwise would drop next Tuesday, creating difficulties for employers and employees.

The Senate passed a surtax extension as a rider to a minor House bill. But final action in the House was delayed when Rep. Phillip Burton (D-Calif.) sought to use the parliamentary situation to force quick action on another measure. He objected to a shortcut procedure requiring unanimous consent.

Burton charged the House and the Ways and Means Committee with undue delay on a bill to repeal a limitation on the federal program for aid to dependent children.

The House last year adopted a formula limiting the number of children helped by the program in each state to a proportion of all the children in the state. But before the limitation went into effect, the House suspended it for a year. The year expires Monday.

Meanwhile the Senate has passed a repeal of the limitation, as a rider on a House bill.

Burton charged, "We have been contemplating our legislative navel" while the deadline approached.

In an effort to eliminate his objection, acting Chairman Hale Boggs (D-La.) of the Ways and Means Committee, moved quickly to send the bill to a Senate-House conference.

But Burton, still unsatisfied, demanded assurances the House conferees would support the Senate position.

Rep. John W. Byrnes (R-Wis.), one of the conferees, said he was disposed to support at least another extension and Boggs, another conferee, seconded him.

But Byrnes told Burton, "I don't intend to be browbeaten and be told I have to take a position identical to the Senate's. . . . As a conferee it would be entirely inappropriate for me to say what may be done in the conference."

Burton thereupon blocked unanimous consent to call up the withholding extension bill, forcing leaders to route the legislation through the Rules Committee.

University administrators Wednesday denied reports that faculty expense allocations would be eliminated for next year as part of the current budget squeeze.

Lane Davis, professor of political science, recently said he had heard travel allocations were being dropped for the next biennium.

However, a check with University administrators turned up no evidence of the reported ending of travel expense accounts for faculty members.

President-select Willard Boyd said he knew of no cuts in travel expense allocations for the coming year. However, he said, the allocations were one area scheduled for review by University administrators in the near future.

Officials in the University Office of Business and Finance also said they were unaware of any plans to discontinue faculty travel expense allocations.

Whatever the prospects for next year's allocations, faculty members contacted by The Daily Iowan agreed that past allocations have been insufficient.

One of those contacted, John C. Wahlke, chairman of the political science department, Wednesday released figures that he had compiled from the travel expenses of 13 members of his department.

Wahlke said that nine of the 13 members took a total of 31 business trips during the academic year just completed.

A sum of $669.57 was received from the University to defray the expense of the trips, Wahlke said. He said the nine faculty members contributed a total of $2,659.63 from their own pockets for expenses on the trips.

In most University departments, travel money is split equally among members of each department, Wahlke said.

He said that at the beginning of last fall, each member of his department was allotted $78 for travel expenses.

However, Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said that faculty members were given $100 each for travel expenses last fall. Stuit contended travel funds were insufficient throughout the University.

MIAMI (AP) — A United Air Lines DC8 jetliner with 57 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba Wednesday shortly after takeoff on a nonstop flight from Los Angeles to New York, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) said.

A United spokesman said the pilot radioed that he was heading for Cuba while over Riverside, Calif., 16 minutes after the plane left Los Angeles' International Airport at 7:09 p.m. EDT.

The pilot said he had sufficient fuel and would reach Havana's Jose Marti Airport about midnight.

FAA watch supervisor Thomas Anderson at Miami said the pilot requested "radar vectors to Cuba" and was developing a course which would take the plane over the Gulf of Mexico.

"We received absolutely no information from the crew about the hijacker," said FAA chief Merle W. Hunter at Miami.

A need to restore public confidence

Editor's Note — The Daily Iowan today reprints the last of a five-part series written by a member of the communications division of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation. The series has been reprinted in full with permission.

By BOOTH WALLENTINE
 Campus radicals have left their mark on society. It is a mark of ugliness.

They have burned buildings, ransacked offices and destroyed millions of dollars in public and private property. Their perfidious cries of "free speech," and "academic freedom" ring hollow through the halls of great institutions that know better the meaning of these words.

But the physical destruction they have wrought is infinitely less ruinous than the disastrous effect they have had on public opinion towards financing higher education.

And with growing evidence everywhere of a taxpayer revolt, the public doesn't need much excuse to reduce their commitment to higher education.

At least 80 per cent of the operating costs for our public universities are supported by tax collections. Something less than 20 per cent of this expense is paid by tuition and fees. Virtually all new construction and other capital improvements at our public universities are paid through tax collections and private grants and contributions.

In no less than 20 states, legislatures have passed or are considering laws to put down student rebellion. Such proposals are frequently tied to appropriations measures which finance the colleges and universities.

Gov. Robert Ray, in an interview with us at the Statehouse, said that the University administration claimed it could "live with" a 15 per cent increase in operating expenses without raising tuition unreasonably. The statement was allegedly made at a hearing of the Senate Subcommittee for Higher Education.

The Regents have said that unless the legislature provided a $4.5 million increase for operating expenses, a $4.5 million increase in tuition was inevitable. They say this has been their position all along.

The administration says it has cut its budget "to the bone." There will be only five new staff members, for example. A tuition increase is necessary merely to keep up with increased costs and inflation.

We are confronted either with an arithmetic progression of honest ignorance or a geometric progression of double-talk.

Does the University have enough money for efficient operation?
 No student has yet seen an itemized and detailed line-by-line budget for Uni-

Private contributions to university foundations and other funds have been affected too. One Iowan, who had made it known he intended to donate a substantial sum to an Iowa college, recently withdrew the pledge. He wants more assurances the university administrators will stand up to the radicals.

To the radicals whose understanding of dissent means only destruction, the legislatures are saying "Enough — the public will be offended no longer."

But for the administrators and faculty who would run our universities as a "sanctuary" there is another message in the growing attitude of the public. Simply stated, the public is saying "run your institutions as a sanctuary if you will, but don't expect us to pay the bill."

The greatest tragedy of it all is that American cannot afford to reduce her commitment to education—at any level. Our future depends upon education. Thirty-two per cent of our college age people are in college. We now spend over $200 billion annually on our total education system — three times our national defense budget.

Indeed, it is painfully ironic that such a minority of misguided radicals could so effectively influence public opinion towards higher education. But it will not do to deny they have done it. They have done it.

Accepting that, university administrators, elected officials and every other thinking American must turn to the job of restoring public confidence in our institutions of higher education. We can do it. We must do it.

So let's get at it.

A third view

by John Kim

I felt a sort of personal indignation at a DI report last week that a faculty council was considering denouncing an economics professor's actions during a boycott of classes this spring. According to the report, the professor spent two class sessions discussing pros and cons of boycott, and held two additional evening sessions for regular teaching.

Reportedly, the denouncement was considered after two of the professor's students reported his actions to the dean's office. A member of the DI staff later reported that the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors will come to the aid of the professor if the case is "badly abused."

However, apart from all such things as legality or abuse, some crucial questions concerning the general atmosphere of our campus are involved here.

Concerning so-called Academic Freedom, a professor should have a degree of freedom to choose whatever topics he feels to be relevant for class discussion. First, if we are to confine our topics strictly to the "official definitions of a course" (which seem to be in existence on this particular campus, judging from the way the dean's office reacts), then we are going back to the old method of "cook book" kind of teaching.

Then, it becomes apparent that the economics professor involved should be commended rather than reprimanded. Since Dean Hubbard let it be known that the faculty council, of which he is chairman, began the consideration of denouncement after two students came to his office to report it, Hubbard presumably is acting in the interest of students. But, nobody can deny that the boycott of classes by students over the then proposed tuition hike was the most significant matter to students as well as a majority of professors. Then, the question is, what could have been a better topic to discuss in classes?

The whole thing over this particular case implies a profound irony, because it is apparent that the ones who pretended to act in the interest of students actually are trying to reprimand the one who at least showed a real interest in the matter of a great concern to students.

Lastly, it is a horrifying reminder of what could happen on our campus in particular and in our society in general if such an administrative attitude as this goes unnoticed by many. Remember that in Weimar Germany and in the Hitler regime, students who found the views, research, race or religion of a professor unsatisfactory did dispute his classes and even brought about his departure from the university. What was more, these students were manipulated by administrators toward a certain goal: totalitarianism.

In whatever department I may belong as a student, I would rather sign up for a course taught by a professor, reprimanded or not, who at least showed some vital interest in student affairs, than one taught by a professor in administrative authority.

Student behavior: reasons-suggestions

Part three of a series on the interim report of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence.

We emphasize that most students, despite their view of society's failures, accept as valid the basic structure of our democratic system; their main desire is to improve its ability to live up to its stated values. Their efforts to do so are welcome when they take the form of petitions, demonstrations and protests that are peaceful and non-violent.

Although many persons are unsettled by these activities (which are often of a bizarre nature), we must all remember that peaceful expression of disturbing ideas and petitions for the redress of grievances are fundamental rights safeguarded by the First Amendment of our Constitution. Methods of dealing with "campus unrest" must not confuse peaceful protest and petition with violent disruption. To do so will aggravate rather than solve the problem.

A small but determined minority, however, aims not at reform but at the destruction of existing institutions. These are the nihilists. They resort to violent disruption as the means best suited to achieve their ends.

By dramatic tactics of terror, they have focused widespread public attention upon themselves and have often induced university authorities either to surrender or to meet force with force. When they have managed on occasion to provoke counter-force to an excessive degree, they have succeeded in enlisting the sympathies of the more moderate campus majority.

They are the agent that converts constructive student concern into mindless mob hysteria. They are the chief danger to the university and its basic values.

There is also a minority of students who are not nihilists, but who feel that violence and disruption may be the only effective way of achieving societal and university reform.

Forceful obstruction and violence are incompatible with the intellectual and personal freedom that lies at the core of campus values. In its recent "Declaration on Campus Unrest," the American Council on Education noted that "there has developed among some of the young a cult of irrationality and incivility which severely strains attempts to maintain sensible and decent human communications.

"Within this cult is a minute group of destroyers who have abandoned hope in today's society, in today's university, and in the processes of orderly discussion to secure significant change." These "destroyers" seek to persuade more moderate students that verbal expressions of grievance go unheeded, while forcible tactics bring affirmative results.

Despite some eloquent and subtle rationalizations for violent methods of protest, the record of experience is incontrovertible. While violent protest is sometimes followed by the concessions sought, it more often produces a degree of counter-violence and public dismay that may gravely damage the cause for which violence is invoked.

Even when violence succeeds in achieving immediate social gains, it tends frequently to feed on itself, with one power group imposing its will on another until repressive elements succeed in reestablishing order. The violent cycles of the French and Russian revolutions and of the decade resulting in the Third Reich are stark summits of history to ponder.

Out of many discussions with faculty members, students and administrators, and with full appreciation that no two institutions are the same, we offer the campus community the following specific suggestions:

• A broad consensus should be achieved among students, faculty and administration concerning the permissible methods of presenting ideas, proposals and grievances and the consequences of going beyond them. Excellent guidelines have been provided by the American Council on Education's recent Declaration on Campus Unrest.

Where agreed upon and explicit codes of student conduct and procedures for student discipline are lacking, they should be adopted; where they already exist they should be reviewed and if necessary, improved.

University operating expenses for the next biennium.

When Jerry Sies asked for a copy of the preliminary budget he was told that it did not exist, although it had been distributed two days earlier to the President's Budget Investigating Committee.

When Sies filed a complaint against Bowen for withholding public information, the complaint was dismissed and Judge Marion R. Neely refused to consider as evidence the budgetary request which proved that the preliminary budget existed two days before Sies requested it.

Administrators, legislators, and the Regents are unwilling to take responsibility for the tuition decision. No one took responsibility while the decision was being made.

But we do not need to fix blame. What is necessary now is for an independent and representative committee to investigate the financial situation of the University in order to determine whether or not the University does need to raise tuition to amplify operating funds. Such a committee ought to be composed of students, faculty, legislators, and laymen, and it will have to do the job. Students will not tolerate more whitewash and more buck-passing.

There does not seem to be much question that the Administration can make a case for the substantial tuition increase. Its case is based on estimates of the cost of projecting the present priorities into the future. But are these the right priorities?

Should we have a research institution only, or a University which emphasizes and rewards excellence in teaching and provides some balance by supporting research? No study into the finances of the University can succeed unless it considers the question of the basic priorities which legislate finances.

The facts are not simple. I don't have the answers, but I have doubts and questions. President Bowen's preliminary budget implies there will be no new faculty members in the College of Business Administration. It does this by putting the numeral "0" next to the classification "Other additions" under Business Administration. But there will be five new staff members in Business Administration next year. How is this possible?

The College of Business Administration will be filling unused budget lines from the previous biennium. That is to say, a certain percentage of faculty budget lines ordinarily remain unused. Business Administration will be filling the unused budget lines. Perhaps they should have abolished them.

Why has administrative overhead at the University doubled in the last two years?

Why has the cost of research and instruction doubled in the last five years? Why are research and instruction included on the same budget line?

If faculty salaries for instruction increase 30 per cent in five years, does this mean research increases 70 per cent?

There is no question that the budget we have seen needs backing up with facts in detail. There is no question that we have not seen these facts.

Leary Outlines His Political Views

By IRENE BOYD

Black Power advocates, middle-of-the-roaders, suburban housewives, the old and the young would have 90 per cent of their wants satisfied if Dr. Timothy Leary had his way, he said. Leary, a former Harvard professor and LSD advocate appeared Wednesday at a press conference in the back yard of the Clayton House, Coralville.

Leary wore a sheer red and blue print blouse and blue velvet trousers. His gray hair was drawn back tightly and held with a rubber band.

Leary, who is running for governor of California, outlined details of his new-born political party.

Leary said his "party" was formed in the true sense of "celebration." He is fighting, he said, to achieve a "happy and healthy" way of life for Americans.

He said that he wants the United States to return to the free enterprise system as it was before World War II, "with people supporting themselves and the government out of it."

"The black power advocates, the suburbanites, the rightists, each has something about them that is right," according to Leary. He said his party could meet 90 per cent of the demands of all the groups. "As long as we're not trespassing or pushing people around," the demands could be met, he said.

The real issue in the United States, Leary argued, is the generation gap. Leary said he has offered to bridge that gap by meeting with President Nixon and California Gov. Ronald Reagan to "smoke the peace pipe."

Nixon, Leary said, could end the generation gap by "three strokes of the pen." He said Nixon should "end the war because they (young people) want life, end the draft because they want freedom and legalize marijuana because they want to pursue happiness."

Leary wants to take the best ideas from all political groups, to cut taxes and to empty the prisons. He complained that the nation's leaders run the country on a theory of crises, in which a "cowboy hero" has to come running up to save the day.

If elected in California, Leary said he would place a $1,000 annual tax on marijuana smokers. With two million such smokers in California, Leary contended he would thus be able to lower taxes and increase the number and pay of policemen.

Campus disturbances should not be tolerated, Leary said. He would turn the state universities over to private hands and have the schools placed in the free enterprise system. Thus, if there were a disagreement between students and professors, they, the universities, would "send in negotiators, not troops. Make it more like a trade union."

When asked about his colorful costume, Leary said that conformity of dress was an issue in the United States and that he thought "everyone should be free to express the beauty, the joy within them in his own way."

Concerning LSD, Leary said: "LSD is my religion. It brings me closer to God. There is no evidence that it does damage to humans. We warn people to stay away from LSD. Less than 50 per cent should take it."

UI Doctor Disagrees and Criticizes Leary's Claim That LSD Is Safe

Dr. Timothy Leary, who enjoys his own mind-expanding trips on LSD, poo-pooed Wednesday evidence from scientific circles that taking LSD results in malformed offspring.

"I have been around a hundred babies whose mothers took LSD before conception, at the time of conception and during pregnancy; and they are all bright, happy, outstanding children."

"LSD does less genetic damage than color TV and aspirin," Leary added with a smile. "And so I'm going to give up watching TV."

"The amounts (of LSD) used in experiments are large and they are injected," he contended. "It (reports of genetic damage) is a fraud put over by the scientific establishment."

In sharp disagreement, Dr. Hans Zellweger, professor of pediatrics at University Hospitals, told the DI that the topic has been "poorly studied"; but there are "conclusive experiments done on animals, in which some of the resulting offspring have shown brain damage and other malformations."

The problem, said Zellweger, is like that of German measles in early pregnancy. Not all pregnant women developing German measles in the first trimester (the first third of pregnancy) will give birth to malformed babies. Only 15-16 per cent of the babies will be born defective, according to Zellweger.

Likewise, contended Zellweger, the incidence of malformation caused by taking LSD may not be high, but the "risk is most probably increased from what we now know." Zellweger said there has been one case at University Hospitals in which a baby was born with a malformation of the leg, thought to have been caused by the mother taking LSD.

North Viet Infiltration May Be Slower

WASHINGTON — North Vietnam may have sharply slowed the rate at which she is sending troops to South Vietnam, according to some preliminary intelligence reports received here.

The intelligence is not yet regarded as confirmed — nor have U.S. strategists reached any conclusions about its significance.

If true, a sizable scale-down in North Vietnamese infiltration would have important consequences both on the battlefield and on the diplomatic front.

Earlier this year, U.S. intelligence indicated that North Vietnam was continuing to send south a sufficient number of soldiers to make up for battlefield losses. These replacements have been estimated by the allies to have been running upwards of 10,000 men a month.

In recent weeks, some intelligence has indicated that Hanoi has cut down markedly on the number of men being sent to the northern end of the infiltration route which leads through Laos into South Vietnam.

Other intelligence was said not to have supported such a finding, at least not so far. Intelligence on the input into the northern end of the infiltration pipeline into North Vietnam is relatively sparse. Reports on troop movement have tended to become more reliable farther down the trail, where allied experts have been able to place sensors and use other intelligence devices.

Intelligence specialists say it would take a month or more to determine whether a drop-off in infiltration reported at the northern beginning of the infiltration route had actually taken place.

500 Sign Grape Boycott Petition

A petition calling for an end to California grape sales in Iowa City stores has been signed by over 500 customers at Eagle's Supermarket, 101 S. Riverside Drive, according to David Vogel, G. Bakersfield, Calif., chairman of the Iowa City Table Grape Boycott Coalition.

Vogel said Wednesday the petition was growing by 15 to 25 signatures an hour and was being signed by nearly 25 per cent of passing shoppers at the store. He said he thought he would soon have enough signatures to worry local food store managers.

The manager at Eagle's, Robert Harper, said Wednesday he paid no attention to the pickets. Harper said that very few customers had even mentioned anything about it to him. He had no comment on Vogel's claims.

Vogel said earlier attempts to organize picketing and petitioning were hindered by a rumor that California grape growers would soon come to terms with the United Farm Workers and that the boycott would end. Checking with the union's national headquarters in Delano, Calif., Vogel was informed that no agreement was in sight and that the grape boycott is still in effect.

Sutton: City Not Enforcing Jaywalking, Noise Statutes

By BOB VINTON
The Iowa City police do not appear to be making good on their promise to crack down on jaywalkers and noisy motorcycles, according to Student Body President Jim Sutton.

Sutton wrote that he became concerned then that the crackdown might be discriminatory against students. McCarty had promised to enforce existing ordinances against excessively noisy vehicles and jaywalking. Sutton said he thought this would primarily involve students because they are the highest percentage of pedestrian traffic and of motorcycle traffic.

Carney a letter requesting information about the enforcement procedure of the two ordinances. He said he had not yet received this information.

Sutton said he has appointed a research staff to investigate jaywalking and excessive noise charges since April.

There have been 68 excessive vehicular noise violations since that date. Twenty-seven of these violators were University students. There has been one jaywalking violation since April 1. The person charged was a student.

Sutton said he thought, after reading the report, that students were being treated fairly. He also said he thought McCarty was not making good on his promise to enforce the ordinances on jaywalking and excessive vehicular noise.

Renewal Opponents, HUD to Meet Today

Local urban renewal opponents will meet with Federal Housing and Urban Renewal representatives at 1 p.m. today in the Iowa City Recreation Center, 220 S. Gilbert.

The "work session" will provide an opportunity for dialogue among those concerned about renewal plans in the downtown Iowa City area.

A group identified as Legal Action for Property Protection (LAPP) has arranged the meeting. John B. Wilson, spokesman for LAPP, said Wednesday that limited time and space dictated that the meeting be closed to the general public; however, representatives of the area news media have been invited.

LAPP is the same group of local businessmen that successfully stopped local urban renewal action here earlier this year. City councilmen, representatives of the University, the State Board of Regents, the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce and the League of Women Voters have also been invited to the meeting.

Top trade union leaders recently swung in line behind the Communist party's pro-Soviet policies after reminders by party chief Gustav Husak that party discipline required this.

Rude Pravo said the number of members and organizations of the party not paying dues rose from 5.03 per cent in 1967 to 17.48 per cent in 1968 — the year of the Soviet invasion — and hit 21.3 per cent during the first four months of this year.

Mayor Loren L. Hickerson said the city will hold public discussions on renewal before any formal council decision on the proposed $13 million Federal downtown project is reached. He says citizens will be given "ample opportunity" to express views to the Council on renewal.

A state supreme court decision earlier this year ruled that local councilmen could not participate in urban renewal plans if they had business interests in the renewal areas.

However, state laws concerning the issue passed in the last legislative session have relaxed and narrowed the conflict of interest issue.

It appears that this modification will enable local officials to continue with former renewal plans.

However, the new state laws have not been tested in the courts.

Czechs Withhold Party Dues, Rebel On Hard-Line Policies

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakian Communists unhappy with the party's new hard-line policies are withholding payment of their dues and as a result are sending party income into a sharp decline.

Rude Pravo, the party's daily newspaper, said Wednesday some "local branch organizations of the party — as an expression of political disagreement — are refusing to send money collected to the district party committees and in some cases are depositing it in banks."

"This practice must be condemned as a gross violation of party discipline and likewise of the principles of democratic centralism," the newspaper declared.

Democratic centralism is the Communist rule of obedience. There can be no further discussion once a party decision is made.

Withholding of Communist party dues paralleled the decision of workers in major Prague factories to start withholding next month that portion of their union dues which would normally go to the trade union hierarchy.

Top trade union leaders recently swung in line behind the Communist party's pro-Soviet policies after reminders by party chief Gustav Husak that party discipline required this.

Rude Pravo said the number of members and organizations of the party not paying dues rose from 5.03 per cent in 1967 to 17.48 per cent in 1968 — the year of the Soviet invasion — and hit 21.3 per cent during the first four months of this year.

Jenkins 2-Hits Bucs

CHICAGO (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins pitched a two-hitter and struck out 10 while his Chicago Cub teammates made the most of just three hits for a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday.

Jenkins, now 9-5, and Bob Veale hooked up in a tight duel but each wild-pitched in one run.

Veale was chased during a two-run sixth handed the Cubs when shortstop Fred Patek threw a doubleplay relay over first base.

The only hits off Jenkins were Richie Hebner's solo homer in the fourth which cut the Cub lead to 3-1, and Matty Alou's double in the sixth.

Alou reached third on Jenkins' error covering first on Hebner's roller and scored on a wild pitch.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the second on the first of Veale's five walks and Jim Hickman's two-out triple.

A leadoff walk and Jose Martinez' error at first when he dropped a throw set up a two-run Cub third inning. Billy Williams singled home one run and Veale wild-pitched across Don Kessinger from third.

Pancho Fights Off Pasarell

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Pancho Gonzales, the 41-year-old warrior of the courts, fought off six match points Wednesday and went on to defeat Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico in a history-making marathon that brought tears and cheers at the Wimbledon Open lawn tennis championships.

Gonzales, of Los Angeles, was two sets down when darkness forced a halt of play Tuesday night. He stormed off the court, threw his racket down in disgust and got boos from the crowd.

But the "Old Battler" came back with all his competitive spirit Wednesday, leveled the match at two sets all, dramatically saved six match points and captured the imagination of the center court throng by defeating Pasarell, 22-24, 16-14, 6-3, 11-9.

The Gonzales-Pasarell marathon was just one of many during a day of sunshine and watched by a total crowd of 30,000.

Pancho is seeded 12th. But he was not the only seed to teeter perilously close to the brink of a three-set defeat.

For also dropping the first two sets, yet coming back for final victory, were Rod Laver, the defending champion from Australia and Arthur Ashe, the U.S. No. 1 from Richmond, Va.

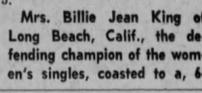

Laver, the top seed, trailed 3-6, 4-6 in his second round match against Premjit Lall, the stylish Indian nomad, but recovered his touch in time to take the last three to win, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-0.

Ashe also was down 3-6, 4-6, but to Terry Ryan, the young South African. Again, class told in the end and Ashe won, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

The Gonzales-Pasarell thriller was not even the day's only marathon. Stan Smith of Los Angeles and seeded 16th, was on court for nearly four hours before ousting Alan Stone of

Other American winners included Tom Edleson of Berkeley, Calif., who defeated Roy Barth of San Francisco, 6-3, 6-6, 9-7, 6-3; Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, defeated Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1; Clark Graebner of New York defeated John Brown Australia, 6-2, 3-0, Brown defaulting; and Bob Lutz of Los Angeles defeated Jan Kodec of Czechoslovakia, 2-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, 7-5.

Nancy Richey of Dallas, seeded fifth in the women's singles and rated the girl most likely to upset the favorites won her first round match, 6-1, 6-1, over Finland's Christina Lindstrom without a trace of trouble.

Mays' Tantrum at Houston 'Spur of the Moment Thing'

HOUSTON (AP) — The tantrum thrown by Willie Mays was brief and the San Francisco Giants' outfielder says it was just a spur of the moment thing, but there still is the possibility he will be fined by Manager Clyde King.

Mays cut loose with choice words Tuesday night when he learned that King had removed his name from the starting lineup against the Houston Astros.

"It could happen on any ball club," Mays said. "As soon as we start back winning, everything will be all right."

"I'll let it sit for a day," said King when asked if there would be a fine.

Mays, at 38, plays when he feels he is in condition. He volunteered Sunday to play in a crucial game with Atlanta but told King that would mean he probably would have to miss two of the games in Houston.

King indicated, however, he would abide with a Sunday agreement that Mays could miss two of the three games in the Astrodome series that was to end Wednesday night.

"We didn't agree on the first two games as being the ones he would miss," King explained.

"After we lost the first game Monday night I thought I would play him Tuesday and leave him out of the line-up Wednesday."

But when the time arrived Tuesday night for Mays to hand the Giants' line-up to the umpires, he was not on the field.

"I thought that meant he didn't feel like playing," King said. "So I changed the line-up and took it out to the umpire myself."

The first Giant batter was at the plate when Mays came into the dugout from the clubhouse. He tossed a glove onto the field when told he was not in the line-up.

"He got a bat and was going up to hit," King said. "That's when I told Larry (pitching coach Larry Jansen) to stop him."

Press box binoculars showed Mays screaming at King. Willie McCovey also moved between Mays and the manager.

King acknowledged moving toward Mays but said he intended only to tell him to stop yelling or go to the clubhouse.

One inning later, Mays moved into the line-up when outfielder Jim Ray Hart was injured. In three trips to the plate he struck out, flied to center and singled sharply to center.

By the eighth inning, Mays and King were sitting side by side in the dugout.

prunes have wrinkles.

Prunes without wrinkles are just plums. Clothes without wrinkles are just GREAT.

The new no-iron Permanent Press fabrics remain wrinkle-free — provided they are properly laundered. They receive that type of care, too — from today's new automatic washers and gas dryers, with special Permanent Press cycles.

The new models provide a cool-down period at the end of the washing cycle and the proper cool air tumbling period at the end of the drying cycle. This relaxes the fibers and keeps Permanent Press garments smooth and wrinkle-free — thereby eliminating the need for ironing.

Other advantages are new beauty and efficiency, bleach and fabric softener dispensers in the washer, and electronic sensors that shut off the dryer when a load is dry.

U.I.'s Summer Theatre Gives Education, Entertainment

By GEORGE REYNOLDS
Editor's Note — This is the second and concluding part of a series on the Summer Repertory Theatre.

Training of actors and contributing to the University's cultural atmosphere are the goals of the Summer Repertory Theatre, a group of actors and their supporting staffs who are presenting a rotating variety of plays during the summer session.

Future changes in the Summer Repertory Theatre will be a continuation of changes made since it was established in 1961.

The Theatre began by presenting, during each season, plays of different periods.

"This proved to be a straight jacket," Dr. David L. Thayer, professor in charge of the theatre, said. "And it caused problems. Actors had to shift gears so completely — during rehearsals, in an hour or two. In presentations, the shift had to be made from night to night. The actors had trouble making the shifts. And it created staging problems."

"We changed several years ago. The plays now don't require such a complete shifting of gears. We think it's much better — for the actors and for the audience."

Another change from the original format is scheduling of play openings. Originally, all four plays were introduced during the first week and presented the rest of the season in straight rotation.

"This caused too many problems in preparation," Thayer said. "We had to build four complete sets. We had to rehearse all four plays before we could open."

"We now open one show a week until all four are on stage. This has also helped us improve the repertory theatre program."

Thayer said that the value of the Summer Repertory Theatre exists on several levels.

"You can't forget the importance of the theatre to the people in the company. The theatre exists to provide experience and training for the student actors and the production crew," Thayer said, describing the first level.

The second level is the contribution the theatre makes to the cultural training of all University students.

"It's always been important to provide this training. It's even more important in this day and age. The students need to have an alternative to TV, to movies. Repertory Theatre is something else — another kind of cultural activity — for them to take part in," Thayer explained.

He said that the theatre provides an attraction which helps bring students to the campus for the summer session.

"Iowa City gets hot and sticky. Wouldn't you rather spend the summer in the cool of Colorado? The theatre — the whole Fine Arts Festival — helps make people want to stay in Iowa City during the summer."

"I don't mean that if the theatre folded, the faculty would leave," Thayer said, explaining a fourth value level. "But a good cultural program will help attract top-flight faculty."

The value of providing Iowa City with a community theatre is a bonus of the program, he added.

This summer the Theatre has six actors and 19 production staff members who are all students.

"The summer theatre adds to the actor's list of credits. If he plans to continue in theatre, credits are his stock in trade," Thayer said.

"The American community theatre is building up again. The move is to repertory companies. The students need the training and experience to help them get into this growing field."

"For the actors, repertory has an advantage over stock theatre," Thayer said. "In our summer theatre, actors have roles in at least three of the four plays. Switching between roles helps them in their fight to keep the character current and alive. They tend to stay fresh in their performances."

"There are no stars in repertory theatre. We work to develop a spirit of ensemble:

a sense of working together, a continuing sense of company emerges."

"We can't overlook the training value of the plays we select," Thayer said. "We look for plays that will push the actors, that will be exciting and challenging for them."

"Nor can we overlook the audience. Actors need the audience — its reaction is a necessary part of the play. So we try to select plays people will want to see."

"We've got a good theatre for repertory. Scenery problems are answered mostly by the great amount of storage space we have backstage. We also make some use of the rotating stage and a 36 x 18-foot slip stage. And we have a good flying system."

The flying system allows backdrops to be stored above the stage and lowered into place when needed. A full set can be built on the slip stage and can easily be moved on or off the main stage. Other sets need to be set up and torn down for each play.

"We've cut into the lighting set-up problems by using photographs," Thayer said. "Each time we change the set, we have to readjust all the lights. We take a photograph of each set with the individual light adjusted the way we want it."

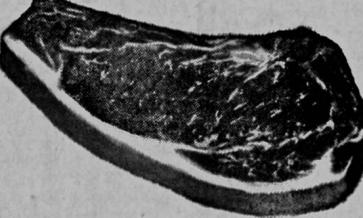

"When we put up the set again, we use the photos as guides for adjusting the lights." Expenses for the summer productions are paid from box office receipts, according to Thayer.

"Ticket sales are going very well. We're expecting to sell out some performances very shortly."

"But if the University box office tells you a performance is sold out — don't give up. We sell standing room only at the theatre box office the evening of the performance. And most standing room only's end up with seats."

Tickets are available without charge to students with current registration certificates. Other people may purchase tickets for $2.

Businessmen Abroad To Hold Session Here

An Institute to orient American businessmen toward a better understanding of the society and culture of European countries in which U.S. firms operate will be held at the University Sept. 7-13.

Among the subjects to be covered are the attitudes and mobility of European businessmen and employees, classes and tensions in European society, power structures and business-government relations, and attitudes toward profit, management and collective bargaining.

Eric Bergsten, professor of law, one of the two coordinators of the institute, said Wednesday, "A failure to appreciate the difference between doing business in the United States and in western Europe has been a major factor in several recent unsuccessful ventures by large American companies. We hope that our institute will help other American firms avoid some of these mistakes."

John S. Harlow, professor of business administration, the other coordinator, said, "Post-de Gaulle Europe and post-Vietnam America will open a new and exciting chapter in political and business relationships. We hope, through this institute, to participate in making America's business experience in Europe as successfully creative as possible."

The professors are frequent visitors to western Europe and have written on European business behavior and economic planning.

Two staff members of the program will be F. C. Jeanet, a Paris lawyer and management expert who advises American firms, and Richard Mayne, former executive assistant to Jean Monnet, known as the father of the Common Market.

Panther Says He's Unhappy in Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — American Black Panthers have become disenchanted with their expatriate lives in Cuba and want to leave, according to a party member.

The member, Raymond Johnson, 22, of Alexandria, La., who said he was a lieutenant in the Black Panthers and had hijacked an airliner, told a newsman Wednesday, "The Panthers have not been received in a revolutionary fashion. We have been condemned to live in Cuba."

He said members of the party had been imprisoned, isolated, banned from Havana and told they could not organize their party in Cuba.

Johnson said Black Panthers have been imprisoned more than was necessary to investigate them.

"Some have been imprisoned a second time. They have been sent to completely isolated sections of the island and forced to work in labor camps," he said.

Johnson said, "It is possible some of the Panthers will be arrested today."

He added that arrests "always come when the Panthers become disenchanted and after they protest conditions and express a desire to leave the country."

"We think there's a racial discrimination in Cuba," he said.

Johnson said the Black Panthers had been discouraged from talking to black Cubans about black awareness and the wearing of Afro hair styles.

More than 30 per cent of Cuba's 8 million people are black.

Johnson, a former student at Southern University in Baton Rouge, La., said he was jailed for 21 days here after hijacking a National Airlines jet on Nov. 4, 1968.

He asserted most of the Panthers would like to go to Africa, but they have been told not to contact African embassies in Havana.

Johnson said his motive in hijacking the plane carrying 50 passengers and a crew of 7 was to seek asylum in Cuba as a political refugee.

At the time he was a fugitive from an arson charge in Baton Rouge, La. Earlier, he had been charged there with criminal mischief and criminal trespass. On the latter charge, he was given a one-year suspended sentence.

School Budget Hearings Set

Two public hearings on the proposed budget for the Iowa City School District have been set by the Board of Education. This year's proposed budget would require a 16-mill increase, or $16 on each $1,000 assessed valuation, for local taxpayers.

One of the hearings will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 11. Also, the first part of the board meeting on July 8 will be devoted to discussion of the budget.

Although the budget has been cut from the original askings, it still represents a 21.7 per cent increase over the current budget. The proposed budget totals $10,873,512. The current budget is $8.9 million.

The proposed budget includes these amounts: instruction, $6,890,952; transportation, $262,540; administration, $352,483; fixed charges, $685,590; operation and maintenance of buildings, $940,635; payments on construction bonds and interest, $1,320,937.

Coralville Plans Hearing

CORALVILLE — An increase of about six mills over the 1969 rate is being forecast for property taxpayers here. This rate will enable the city to have a budget of $1,288,310 for 1970, based on present property values.

The proposed budget would include $356,919 to be raised by taxation. The budget was studied Tuesday night by the City Council.

A public hearing on the budget will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 22 in the city hall. The present millage rate is 31.216 mills per $1,000 property value.

Desegregation Guidelines Of Schools Could Change

WASHINGTON — In what appears to be a reversal of an earlier conflict-settling policy decision, the Nixon administration said Wednesday possible changes in school desegregation guidelines are "under discussion."

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare issued this terse statement in response to mounting reports that the guideline would be loosened, delaying this fall's deadline for ending all segregation.

The revisions reportedly were worked out by top officials of the Welfare and Justice departments over the strenuous objections of Welfare's Office of Civil Rights, which is charged with enforcing the guidelines.

The guidelines, which were published last year by the Johnson administration, spell out Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which applies to schools.

Under Title VI, federal funds can be shut off to school districts that practice discrimination by maintenance of a dual system of schools for blacks and whites.

Under the guidelines, school systems were told that they "should be able to complete the reorganization necessary for compliance with the law by the opening of the 1968-69 or, at the latest, 1969-70 school year."

The guidelines have been a continuing source of controversy for the administration following campaign statements by President Nixon last fall which were interpreted by some as promising modification.

Conflicting reports from anonymous administration officials finally prompted Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch to declare formally last April 15, "No change is contemplated now in the existing guidelines."

Poison Vanishes from Rhine River

DUESSELDORF, Germany — The West German section of the Rhine river showed no more traces Wednesday of a poison that has killed millions of fish, officials reported. A Health Ministry water expert said one sack of insecticide may have caused all the trouble.

river water late Tuesday. He added that fish put in the river showed no effects of poisoning Wednesday.

The German-produced insecticide, which is marketed under the trade name of Thiodan. Amsterdam has shut off all water from the Rhine, which usually supplies about half the city's water needs.

The water expert, who is aiding investigation of the poison, said the insecticide could have been thrown, dropped or washed accidentally into the already heavily polluted river.
