Surtax Fading

WASHINGTON (AP) — As prospects dimmed for speedy Senate action on his surtax extension, President Nixon met Wednesday with his economic advisers. But the White House would not say if alternative anti-inflation steps were discussed.

The administration has said it may have to look for other avenues to stem inflation if the surtax renewal is delayed by loading it with tax reform proposals.

Baker Sued

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats who came under fire in 1963 for tax evasion, conspiracy and larceny, will be named in a suit to be filed by the U.S. attorney general's office next week, an assistant attorney general said Wednesday.

"Baker will be charged with violations of civil fraud and anti-kickback statutes," said William D. Ruckelshaus, who heads the civil division of the attorney general's office.

Baker was also a personal friend of former President Lyndon B. Johnson when Mr. Johnson was Senate majority leader.

Tanks Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House armed services subcommittee said Wednesday that the Army has poured $1.2 billion into a new missile-firing tank that, in the subcommittee's opinion, would not be a significant improvement even if it worked.

The House group's report is the latest difficulty to befall the Sheridan tank and its weapon system.

The unanimous findings parallel an earlier, but as yet unpublished, General Accounting Office report that accuses the Army of rushing the Sheridan into production before testing had been successfully completed.

Hickel Stock Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of mineral exploration company stock, which was owned by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel and which he has received Senate permission to delay selling, soared to a record high Wednesday for the second successive day.

As of the beginning of June, Hickel had not begun to sell his stock in the company. Sources close to Hickel refused Wednesday to say how much, if any of the stock, he has sold now.

U.S. Warns on Segregated Schools

Chicago, Georgia Given Two Weeks To Integrate Before Government Suit

Maddox Denounces Integration Order

An angry Gov. Lester Maddox finds little room to gesture as he is hemmed in by newsmen during his denunciation of a federal order to Georgia to desegregate its school system. Maddox said Wednesday that he is willing to go to jail, give up all federal aid and shut down the state's schools rather than bow to an apparent integration ultimatum for the Justice Department. — AP Wirephoto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration threatened two large school systems — the state of Georgia and the city of Chicago — with desegregation suits unless remedial action is taken within two weeks.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard, who issued both warnings Wednesday, declared they demonstrate the administration's commitment "to bring about a final and complete elimination" of racial discrimination.

Moreover, he said, there will be additional desegregation suits filed in the next few days. It was the third day in a row that the Justice Department has acted to force desegregation of schools in the North as well as the South — the 10th and 11th moves by the government in that short time.

The Justice Department told the Georgia State Board of Education it has 15 days to come up with a voluntary plan to end racially separate school systems in all 194 districts.

If Georgia does not act and the issue is taken to court, the suit would mark the first government attack on segregated schools on a statewide basis.

The threat was contained in a letter sent by Leonard to Dr. Jack P. Nix, Georgia's superintendent of education.

It came on the heels of a similar warning to the Chicago Board of Education that a lawsuit may be in the works to force the nation's third largest school system to desegregate its faculty.

In his letter to Nix, Leonard said 119 Georgia districts still had not adopted plans "for the full conversion from a dual to a unitary method" of operation in compliance with federal law against racial discrimination.

Leonard told the Chicago board it must act within two weeks toward integrating its faculty. He said current faculty assignment procedures deny black pupils equal protection under the law.

In Atlanta, Nix said local school boards are separate constitutional bodies in Georgia and said, "I don't think the state can set policy if desegregation means reorganization of schools. The state board doesn't have that authority."

Gov. Lester Maddox called the move "just another step to stamp out local control over education and put people at the mercy of federal whims."

At a news conference, Maddox said he is willing to go to court or to jail, give up all federal aid and shut down Georgia schools rather than bow to the ultimatum.

"My God, what's wrong with freedom of choice," he exclaimed.

Obviously agitated, Maddox said he would favor closing the schools "for a month, or a year, or two years," if the state loses a court fight. But he said he did not think he had the authority to take such drastic action.

"The national administration is demanding that the American people surrender to Communism," Maddox said. "They're a bunch of hypocrites."

But Leonard said such a wide-ranging suit is fully justified because of "broad authority" exercised by the Georgia Board of Education over "rules, regulations, policies and standards" of the entire state system.

In Chicago, the Justice Department demanded in a letter to School Board President Frank M. Whiston complete faculty integration, contending teacher assignment policies deny equal educational opportunities to black youngsters.

Leonard said the department had reached such conclusions after an extensive examination that showed a third of the city's schools had either all white or all black faculties.

In Chicago, Warren Bacon, a black member of the school board who opposes Whiston, welcomed what he called "this belated action on the part of the federal government."

Bacon said, "I do not think the action the federal government has taken is broad enough nor is it a significant counterbalance to the disgraceful relaxation of federal guidelines for the desegregation of Southern school districts."

Whiston, however, said in a statement, "We have never practiced segregation of faculty in Chicago, but we have permitted seniority of choice of schools by our teachers."

County Officials Agree To Pass Up Pay Boost

DES MOINES (AP) — County officers will pass up the "windfall" pay boost due them because of a legislative mistake, Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen said Wednesday.

Jepsen said the board of directors of the Iowa County Officers Association and all parties concerned have agreed to forego the extra money, and the state comptroller's office will send out letters to inform county auditors of the decision.

He shrugged off the question of whether the county officers can legally turn down the pay raises, saying the Iowa attorney general's office has indicated it will have something to say on that subject in the next few days.

The 1969 Legislature wrote a new law intending to give county auditors, treasurers, recorders and District Court clerks a pay increase, but the way the law is written it gives them substantially larger boosts than the legislature intended.

The four county officers for a number of years have been paid according to a formula based on the county's population and assessed valuation of its property. Under the old law, moneys and credits — or potential earning power — were excluded from the assessed valuation used in the computation.

In writing the new law, the Legislature omitted language excluding moneys and credits from the assessed valuations on which the four county officers' pay is figured. The result is that in some counties the officers would get a pay boost nearly double the amount the legislature intended to give them.

Jepsen said the original legislation considered by the 1969 Legislature contained language excluding moneys and credits from the computation, but it was inadvertently dropped in the "round trip" through the House and Senate.

He said the error will be corrected early in the 1970 legislature.

The general reaction, and the reaction of Johnson County officials, is that the Legislature did not intend to grant more than a $2,000 proposed increase, although at least one state official said he thought the "mistake" was intended.

The four Johnson County officers met recently and decided to make their rejection of the extra $200 apiece known to state officials. They requested the County Board of Supervisors to draw up a resolution stating that the officers did not intend to accept more pay than they felt was intended for them, according to County Auditor Delores Rogers.

County Recorder John O'Neill said Tuesday that he and Clerk of Court Jerry Langenberg had already submitted letters to that effect to the supervisors.

Donald Krall, county treasurer, was reportedly intending to voice the same opinion — that, as O'Neill said, "We feel that it was an error and don't want to take advantage of it."

Corrected salary — without the extra raise — for each of the Johnson County officers is $9,450 annually.

Civilians Blasted for Woes In Defense Dept. Planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, amid increasing wrangling between supporters and opponents of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system, put off again Wednesday a planned secret session.

Instead, it heard a blistering attack by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith on what she calls "disastrous decisions" on Vietnam by the Pentagon's civilian chiefs.

"Attempts are being made to make the military the scapegoats for the disastrous decisions made by their civilian bosses through the elite, but woefully inexperienced 'whiz kids,'" she said.

"The pattern has been to always credit the civilian bosses with any successes and to blame the military for any failures," the Maine Republican maintained.

Referring to former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford's proposal for withdrawal of all U.S. ground troops, Mrs. Smith said, "The proposal advanced by Mr. Clifford is really a basic plan that Gen. William C. Westmoreland proposed some time ago — but for which he has been given no credit."

Mrs. Smith, the ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee and an opponent of the ABM, made no reference at all in her speech to the controversial Safeguard system. Her remarks drew praise from senators in both parties and on both sides of the ABM issue.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a ranking Committee Democrat who favors the ABM, devoted much of his speech to ABM. He declared that "in my opinion, nothing would be more detrimental to our diplomatic effort — and more short-sighted — than to deny the President the strong hand he needs just as his negotiators are about to sit down at the conference table."

Earlier, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, an ABM opponent, and Sen. George Murphy (R-Calif.) a pro-ABM Armed Services Committee member, clashed over the Californian's assertion that the Foreign Relations Committee has no business getting involved in procurement, testing and development of such military hardware as the ABM.

Chairman John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) of the Armed Services Committee said he hopes the secret session — when it is held — will include all of the classified material the Senate will consider on both the ABM and the rest of the $20 billion military procurement authorization which contains the $759.1 million for Safeguard.

Army Engineers Predict Record High Reservoir

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Rock Island reported Wednesday night that the Coralville Reservoir rose 2 feet Wednesday as a result of more than two additional inches of rain falling in the watershed area Wednesday. The reservoir will "probably reach record heights" within the next week, the Corps reported.

The engineers, who use a computer system to estimate flood probabilities, said that the crest on the reservoir was now expected next Tuesday or Wednesday if no more rain falls in the watershed.

The reservoir was reported to be at 705 feet above sea level late Tuesday night and rising rapidly. The engineers said, however, that the water would "probably not reach the spillway level of 712 feet unless more rain fell."

Once the water goes above the spillway level, the reservoir would lose its ability to regulate the Iowa River and raise the possibility of flooding in areas below the dam.

The Iowa River was reported to have reached 19.60 feet at Marshalltown Tuesday night, exceeding the previous record of 17.74 feet, the engineers said. They added that this would probably be the crest there.

All Corps figures are made on the assumption that no more rain will fall into the 3,084 square mile watershed.

The "Z" shaped reservoir watershed area is roughly bound by Ames, Iowa Falls, Eldora and Forest City, which is 20 miles from the Minnesota border.

Reservoir manager John Story said earlier in the day that each second between 13,000 and 14,000 cubic feet of water were running into the reservoir from the Iowa River, but that only 1,000 cubic feet per second were being discharged back into the river.

The Corps of Engineers termed the flood control a "tricky situation" because the water level of the river below the reservoir — especially in the Wapello area — is also high, and severe flooding could occur if the reservoir were forced to discharge water at an increased rate.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Des Moines late Wednesday night said that the Iowa River drainage basin area "should be in pretty good shape" and that little if any rain could be expected in the next 24 hours. A spokesman said that radar showed showers in the extreme northwestern part of the state but that a long range northern Iowa forecast would not be available until Thursday.

Grand Jury: Continue Bowen Breakin Query

The Johnson County Grand Jury Wednesday recommended that the investigation into the May 8 breakin of University President Howard R. Bowen's office be continued.

The jurors, who convened and recessed this week, reported that they heard some testimony on the case, but that principal witnesses were not available for questioning during the session.

The Grand Jury recommended in a report filed with Johnson County District Court that the investigation be continued when the jury convenes again in September.

Presidential commitments

If Richard Nixon had not been a master politician, he almost certainly would not have become President. His expert politicking last summer, involving certain commitments to Sen. Strom Thurmond and others, saved the Republican Party from a dangerous split and may have been decisive in his victory over Hubert Humphrey.

A politician who honors his debts is remembered favorably the next time around, at least by those favored. Mr. Nixon is being meticulous in repaying Thurmond, Sen. Dirksen, the South, the American Medical Association and others for favors received. But the question arises: Can the President of the United States play out this political hand and still present the image of the statesman and leader?

It happens that the Presidential IOUs are all held by conservatives, and it is clearly impossible to redeem them without alienating moderates and liberals. This has been happening. The administration effort to soften the 1965 Voting Rights Act, the hard-line missile policy, and most recently the breakdown in the controversy over liberal Dr. John Knowles' appointment as assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare have all brought outcries of anguish from the center and left.

Moderates in the Senate like Scott of Pennsylvania and Mathias of Maryland have warned of rebellion in the ranks. If the rebellion should reach the point where the conservative minority leader, Dirksen, could no longer hold his troops in line, disaster could befall the Nixon legislative program. But the danger is to more than the legislative program.

Nixon's best chance to remain in the White House in 1972 lies in holding together the divergent elements of his own party while appealing to large numbers of independents and Democrats.

The last time around, he held the moderate Republicans while deftly directing his outward appeal to those mainly concerned for law and order, and for a fresh start at Vietnam peace. The problem in 1972 may be radically different, and moderate Republican leaders like Sen. Percy and HEW Secretary Finch can be expected to go on studying the signs for possible indications that the day may be coming when the people will be seeking a man whose major concern is for social justice at home and peaceful cooperation abroad.

At any rate a President must stand before all the people for judgment and that judgment will be made mainly on the character of his leadership. The character that is displayed by shaping national policies to satisfy political debts hardly inspires confidence in an unswerving dedication to the public good.

The compleat angle

—By Walton

Speaking as one who becomes sea sick at the mere mention of saltwater taffy, I hereby register formal protest against any more rain.

I believe we should get our water out of faucets, like the Good Lord intended. This business of needing a Mae West vest just to go out on the porch to pick up the newspaper has definitely got to stop.

And if even one more soggy individual inquires with a smirk whether I've started building my Ark yet, I'm going to hit him with my hammer.

Water is wet, and wet is not fun unless it's on somebody else. Ask anyone who's ever had a small boy on his lap.

Some people with mildew between their ears insist that water can be lovely to splash and play in. Such people spend untold fortunes on patent-leather raincoats, see-through umbrellas and sexy galoshes. I have news for them.

There's no such thing as a sexy galosh. I've been watching you waterbabies for quite some time and you all look every bit as miserable as I am — except that I have the good sense to scowl and be cranky about it.

It doesn't really keep you dry to stay indoors in Iowa City when the humidity climbs to 97 per cent. You'll find that even under the best of conditions, most University buildings are clammy than Friday's chowder at the Union. The driest thing you're likely to encounter is your core course lecture. Policemen and firemen and public works people don't enjoy the rain a great deal either, and for that reason alone I think they deserve to pass their Civil Service exams some day.

They view each raindrop as a potential dike-breaker, a possible Ralston-raiser. I have co-existed with a sump pump on occasion, and I know how they must feel.

I always feel personally pursued by water. Like it's after me, the deluge. I'm at its moist mercy. I can't stomp on it, or kill it with a stick, or set fire to it. I certainly can't douse it with more water. And, what's worse, I can't talk it into going away and leaving me alone.

It causes my hair to fuzz up like a brand-new Chore Girl, makes my face shiny and my shoes the opposite. It blows through my car window and makes the seat squish and ooze when I sit down.

In force, it comes up and slobbers affectionately all over my carpet if it wants to, and I can't put it out. Even my close friends don't get away with that.

It keeps little children off the streets — usually diverting them to the stores where I'm trying to shop.

All in all, I take a dismal view of dismal weather. And I don't anticipate any marked sweetening of mood in the near future.

I've heard it said that it's the dawning of Aquarius.

From the people Former Regent explains reason for tuition hike

The following letter was reprinted from the July 6 edition of the Des Moines Sunday Register.

To the Editor:

After 12 years as a member of the State Board of Regents, I have now returned to the relative peace of private life. May I, therefore, inject some historical perspective into the current emotional controversy over the raising of tuition at our three state universities.

The Code of Iowa stated in 1858 that tuition at Iowa's state colleges "shall be forever free." In this case "forever" lasted 66 years, since the language was repealed in 1924. Following that time, the board has been guided by the principle of low tuition which recognizes that the student should pay some of the cost of his education since he, as well as the state, benefits from it.

The perennial problem of the board has been to reconcile tuition with inadequate appropriations. In this endeavor, tuition has been the consistent loser. From 1940 to 1968 undergraduate resident tuition increased 240 per cent.

This biennium the appropriation just enacted is $56 million under askings. Therefore, the universities had to reduce their expenditures by $34 million through eliminating all costs short of dismantling the institutions. Still $22 million was needed in addition to appropriated money. Once again the only available source of essential funds became tuition increases. Massive, unprecedented increases ($205 to $250) were made because of massive and unprecedented undersupport by the state.

One result of this discouraging history has been to make publicly-supported higher education in Iowa approach the point of becoming as expensive as privately-supported education. Since free people cannot govern themselves out of ignorance, it follows that each citizen has a vested interest in public education.

It is too often forgotten that the Board of Regents is a lay board, consisting of farmers, businessmen, lawyers and housewives from all parts of Iowa. Its sole purpose is to insure that Iowa's children have access to the best public education possible within the means available. To accomplish this, the present board needs the support of the legislature and the people.

Movie critic 'well qualified'

To the Editor:

The Wild Bunch was not a film, nor was it Allan Rostoker's energetic critique that appeared this week in The Daily Iowan; it was the string of words that Timothy Steffa barely managed to knot together with any more gallows twist than the old suburban jargon of taste and literacy.

That he pretends to know Allan Rostoker's qualifications is a scholastic joke. Allan Rostoker has conscientiously published film criticism in this academic community through this community organ, and until someone else does the same, as often, as well, Allan Rostoker remains the only qualified man in town.

Adam's rib

By PAT ADDIS

The subtle process of "keeping women in their place" begins with the earliest socialization of female children and continues unabated throughout a woman's life. Perhaps the most insidious result of this process is the way women as an oppressed class have accepted and internalized the oppressor's view of them as inferior beings.

It is almost commonplace to reflect that on the level of sheer gut reaction, women prefer the company of men and men prefer the company of men — because women and men both view women as inferior, dull, interested only in talk-

'Give me my due' Rostoker says

To the Editor:

There is little that can be said in response to Mr. Steffa's miserable excuse for a letter. He expresses himself clearly if boorishly. The trouble is that he has nothing to say. He attacks me for a preview I wrote about Peckinpah in which I talked about what one could hopefully expect from his new film.

The film met many of my expectations and also had real problems. I said that in my review. If Mr. Steffa thinks the whole film was a miserable excuse for cinematography (does he mean the camerawork was bad?) that is the privilege of his blindness. At least let him give me my due.

I expressed myself well enough for him to understand and take exception. If I'm of worth reading, I give Mr. Steffa permission to stop. Why does he persist in torturing himself. He says I know nothing about films. How many Peckinpah films has he seen, would he know the difference between those films and Budd Boetticher's? I am tired of people like Mr. Steffa shooting off their mouths (with the same aimless violence seen in the film he so dislikes).

Perhaps he yearns for the good old days of Nick Meyer when any serious film of complex intentions received the Meyer seal of "cryptomatic." If Mr. Steffa does know someone who fills the requirements he feels are needed to review films in this academic community (was that a virtue or a defect?) let him bring the man forward. As it is, I am bleeding from a thousand wounds and grow weaker by the hour.

ing about children, new recipes, or how to redecorate the bathroom.

Social psychologists, among them C. J. Couch (of the University of Iowa), concerned with "self-role theory" — to throw in a little jargon — have come up with some subtler manifestations of the problem.

Briefly, Couch begins with the view that "the self arises through interaction," that is, that one's view of himself (in this case, herself) is largely determined by social context. Closely bound to this is the notion that a positive self-conception is acquired and maintained by acquiring only those characteristics, attributes, or statuses that are viewed in a positive way within the social context.

For most people, the first and most influential social context is the nuclear family (father, mother, and children), so Couch's research was based on the following hypothesis: "The greater the reported role specialization is between sexes within a family, the more frequently will the children use their sex status as a means of self-identification in responding to the TST." (The TST (Twenty Statements Test) consists of a piece of paper with the instructions, "In the twenty blank spaces provided below make twenty different statements in response to the question 'Who am I?'"

Interestingly enough, the hypothesis was confirmed by the males but not by the females. In families where children were brought up in a social context that included sharp distinctions between the mother's role (washes dishes, cleans, cooks, etc.) and the father's role (is the breadwinner, mows the yard, repairs the car, etc.), the children unconsciously grasped that the high value was placed on the male image and the low value was placed on the female image.

Thus, in answering the TST, the males from such families consistently identified themselves as males ("I am a son, boy, man, male" etc.). The females, having unconsciously recognized the low value placed on the female role and having unconsciously rejected acquiring a self-image that reflects a low-valued role, consistently failed to identify themselves as females ("I am a daughter, girl, woman, female" etc.).

The acceptance of a slave mentality by the oppressed class is, of course necessary to maintain the slave-master relationship that now exists between women and men. The blacks have succeeded in breaking through the slave mentality that prevented them from recognizing and struggling against their exploitation and oppression. Such a breakthrough by women is the starting-point of the Women's Liberation Movement.

Some Regard Him as Iowa's Version of Ralph Nader— Mezvinsky Defends Record, Vows to Continue Fight

By DAVID KOTOK

Cheered as the lone spokesman for the consumer by his admirers and booed as a self-seeking politician by his detractors, outspoken freshman legislator Edward Mezvinsky has become one of Iowa's most controversial politicians.

Mezvinsky broke the tradition that freshmen legislators are seen but not heard. On the first day of the 1969 legislative session, he attacked lobbying practices.

Continuing to speak out against special interests, meat inspection, Highway Commission practices, ambulance care and 19-year-old voting rights, Mezvinsky was accused of seeking publicity by many Republican legislators.

The chairman of the House Commerce Committee reportedly referred to Mezvinsky as "that idiot" after Mezvinsky asked how much was being spent by Iowa bankers to lobby for a new banking law.

Rep. Mezvinsky said that the accusations of his fellow legislators did not bother him. He said the mail he receives from the people in the state approves of what he is doing.

Explaining his active legislative role in his first year, Mezvinsky said, "I spoke out on problems that have been with us for a long time. If the other legislators had spoken to these issues, I would have gladly remained silent."

Mezvinsky answered the accusation that he was just trying to gain publicity by pointing to the issues upon which he spoke out.

Controversy arose in the last legislative session when Mezvinsky accused meat packing plants of not meeting sanitation standards. To prove his accusation, Mezvinsky displayed what he said were rat claws discovered in lunchmeat served in 1965 at a University cafeteria.

The Iowa Highway Commission has been under attack by Mezvinsky and others for not prosecuting violators of overloaded truck regulations and for allowing long trucks on Iowa highways.

"No matter how some legislators look at a member's motives, the question is if we want clean meat or dirty meat; if we want inferior or adequate ambulance service; and if we want our highways safe from long and overloaded trucks that cost both lives and money," he said.

Rep. Mezvinsky said that the legislature should hold more public hearings to combat the influence of lobbyists. Mezvinsky said, "More public hearings would allow us to take decisions out of the private clubs and dining rooms and into public view."

Viewing his legislative role as "a voice for the consumer and the unrepresented," Mezvinsky said he believed that greater public participation is the best means of counteracting the influence of special interest groups.

During the last legislative session, Mezvinsky tried to involve students in Iowa politics by using student volunteers as research and legal aides.

Besides giving students a chance to participate in politics, Mezvinsky said the student volunteers gave him assistance by presenting an objective view of issues confronting the legislature.

Mezvinsky said student aides were valuable because of the lack of adequate legislative staff serving legislators.

The lack of legislative staff forced legislators to seek better understanding of issues from highly paid, "but not objective," lobbyists, Mezvinsky said.

He said student interest in higher education's problems should be expressed to hometown legislators by students and their parents.

He said that the three representatives from Johnson County were too few to convince the legislature that higher education is in trouble. He said other legislators must be pressured by the public.

Mezvinsky plans to fight for a bill lowering the voting age to 19 in the next session of the legislature.

He attacked the present age requirement saying, "Twenty-one was set as the age to vote because in feudal times age 21 was the age at which one was eligible to become a knight because at that age a person was supposed to be physically capable of carrying armor."

"If we continue our pattern of government, based on the past instead of the realities of the present and future, more and more young people will leave the state."

Commenting on a study of the three state universities' finances by the State Interim Committee, Mezvinsky said, "If they really wanted to study higher education, they would have brought in experts to study finances and teaching loads at our universities."

"A study by experts would not be tinged with politics but be aimed at upgrading the universities."

A member of the Interim Committee, Sen. Joseph Flatt (R-Winterset) urged Tuesday a consulting firm be hired to aid in the committee's study of the budgets of three state universities.

Mezvinsky said he believed that the consultant firm should conduct the entire study and that the legislature should merely review its findings and adopt its suggestions.

Mezvinsky has spoken out mainly on consumer issues: clean meat, long and overloaded trucks and adequate ambulance service. He said these issues have been ignored because of the power special interests have in the legislature and in the administrative agencies.

Calling some state agencies the "vehicle by which private interests receive an aura of respectability," Mezvinsky is urging legislative studies of the Agriculture Department and the Highway Commission.

He said he hoped that a bill would be passed to upgrade Iowa ambulance services.

Mezvinsky said, "It is a sad commentary on the quality of ambulance service that 18 people were dead on arrival at University Hospital from around the state because they had choked on their own bodily fluids."

Mezvinsky's stand on consumer issues have led some political observers to compare him to Ralph Nader. The comparison between Mezvinsky and Nader may be no accident.

Mezvinsky came into contact with Nader when he was legislative assistant to Iowa Congressman Neal Smith. Mezvinsky helped write the U.S. Wholesale Meat Act for which Nader fought.

Many names have been mentioned as possible First District Congressional candidates, including Mezvinsky's. Mezvinsky said that he was considering running but would not decide before checking public response to his views.

Mezvinsky, the son of an Ames grocer who immigrated to this country early in the century, became active in politics in 1960. During the spring of 1968, he served as the First Congressional District chairman for the Robert F. Kennedy presidential campaign.

It appears unlikely that Mezvinsky will be less outspoken in the next session of the legislature. Looking back on his performance in the last session, Mezvinsky said, "I believe that I was more effective by speaking out on public issues than if I had just watched the action."

Marshalltown Dike Breaks, Floods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National Guardsmen were called out late Wednesday to guard homes evacuated in Marshalltown after a dike broke flooding several residential areas.

The dike, on the Iowa River, in Marshalltown, broke about 500 feet east of the Iowa Highway 14 bridge closing all the bridges except one across the river.

In southwest Iowa a search was begun for a rural Lenox man feared drowned when the surging waters of East 102 River swept him off his horse while he was helping a neighbor move cattle that were trapped in flood waters.

The missing man was identified as Leo W. Hingeley, 22. The accident occurred on the C. L. Henrickson farm near Lenox, authorities said.

DES MOINES (AP) — Legisla- tive studies ranging from the politically touchy subject of state busing for parochial school children to the emotion laden issue of sex offenses against children were approved Wednesday by the Iowa Legislative Council.

The council, set up by the 63rd General Assembly to carry on business between its first two annual sessions, had to approve the studies before they could be made by legislative committees.

These studies, recommended by the committee chairmen, touch nearly all major functions of Iowa government — education, taxation, the courts, transportation, law enforcement, commerce, development, human and industrial relations, and cities and towns.

Between now and the 1970 session, lawmakers said they want to determine if present laws in these areas need to be revised, or new laws added.

Besides approving these committee studies, the council also appointed 104 legislators and ayment to conduct eight major studies which the 1969 legislature authorized the council to direct.

The eight studies will review collective bargaining for public employes, the criminal code, eminent domain, littering, the Iowa Highway Commission, highway programs, Medicaid and municipal laws.

Some of these studies must be completed by the 1970 session, while others are marked for consideration by the 64th General Assembly in 1971-72.

Sen. Seeley Lodwick (R-Weaver), council chairman, said the Senate-House Schools Committee will study all pupil transportation in Iowa, not just parochial school busing.

Lodwick said busing of public school children is inadequate in some areas.

Currently, there is no provision allowing parochial school children to be transported on public school buses. Efforts to enact a law making it possible stalled in the 1969 legislature.

Possible sex offense legislation will be studied by the Senate-House Law Enforcement Committee, which also will delve into a probe of wiretapping.

Study Shows Label, Drugs Of Little Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-sponsored study shows two-thirds of the medicines used by Americans are badly labeled and a large percentage partly or totally ineffective.

The study by the National Academy of Sciences National Research Council was released Wednesday by the Food and Drug Administration. Its conclusion resulted from a three-year, $1 million study of drug efficacy.

About 4,000 drug preparations — 85 per cent of them prescription and 15 per cent over-the-counter — were included in the study. The drugs were supplied by 237 firms and represent more than 80 per cent of the total sold.

The study said two-thirds of the drugs were found to have labels that were "poorly organized, repetitive, out of date, evasive and promotionally oriented."

Man Accused Of MU Slaying Bound for Trial

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A convicted rapist was ordered bound over Wednesday for trial on a first-degree murder charge in the slaying last Saturday of a University of Michigan co-ed, the seventh young woman murdered in the Ann Arbor area in the past two years.

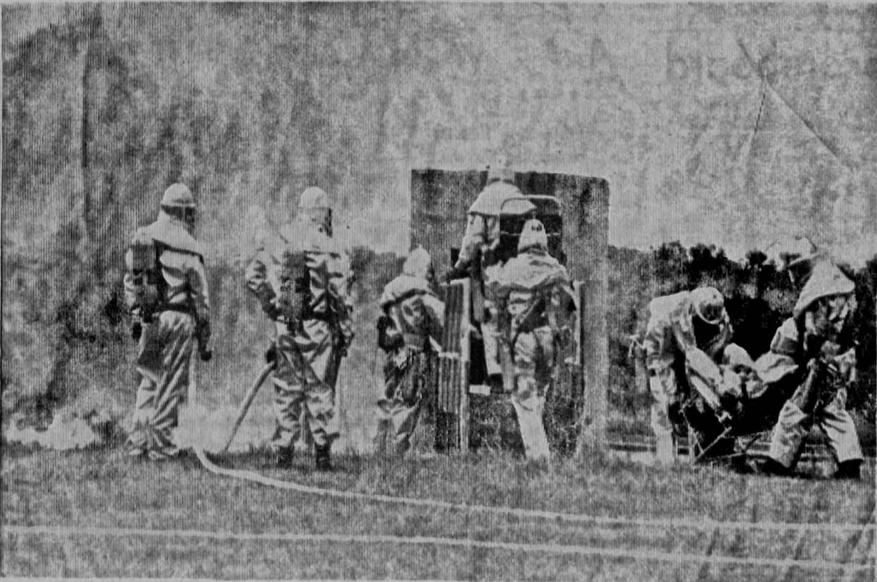

The order came after District Court Judge S. J. Elden denied a defense motion that the charge against Ernest R. Bishop Jr., be reduced to manslaughter, on grounds the prosecution had failed to produce evidence supporting a first-degree murder charge. Bishop is accused of murdering 25-year-old Margaret Phillips, a B-plus graduate student, in her apartment near the campus.

Earlier, her roommate testified she heard the shots that killed Miss Phillips. Bishop, a small muscular handyman, listened intently to the witness.

Countdown to Begin Today— Astronauts See Computer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With the countdown scheduled to start Thursday, the Apollo 11 astronauts Wednesday reviewed the computer programming that they hope will guide them to a precision landing on the moon.

The astronauts, Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., met with experts from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to review the computer navigation programs designed to automatically keep Apollo 11 on a perfect course to and from the moon and to guide Armstrong and Aldrin to a touchdown on the surface early on July 21.

Launch crews installed batteries aboard the lunar landing spacecraft as preparations continued to start the countdown clock at 8 p.m. Thursday, aiming for liftoff next Wednesday at 8:32 a.m.

Altogether, the countdown includes 93 hours of work and an additional 40 hours 32 minutes for crew rest or to solve problems that may arise with Apollo 11's complex 363-foot-tall Saturn

5 rocket and spacecraft combination.

"The kind of accuracies we're dealing with are extremely precise" in navigation computer programs, a space agency official said.

Computers on the ground will back up those on the Apollo spacecraft calculating how crucial maneuvers should be performed.

But in several key instances — such as when the astronauts are behind the moon out of contact with earth tracking stations and during rendezvous and docking maneuvers between the command ship and lunar module landing craft — the spacemen will depend on computers aboard the spaceships.

Floyd Bennett, a space agency expert in landing and take-off procedures from the moon, said he believed the most dangerous part of navigating to the surface would occur at the moment of landing.

"The touchdown phase is the most critical phase because all your unknowns are coming together — the lunar terrain is uncertain and your fuel is nearing depletion," he said.

Flight planners expect that Armstrong and Aldrin will have enough fuel in their lunar module to burn the landing engine slightly more than one minute longer than they expect to need. This margin could be used to hover like a helicopter to check out the site or perhaps shift the landing point slightly.

Evans Deck Officer Indicates Mix-Up Led to Ship's Crash

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — The inquiry into the collision between the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans and the Australian carrier Melbourne took a new turn Wednesday. The Evans' young deck officer indicated a misunderstood message led to the crash.

Lt. (jg) Ronald C. Ramsey, who earlier refused to testify at the hearings into the collision that took the lives of 74 U.S. sailors, submitted three statements to the joint U.S.-Australian fact-finding board.

In the statements, one handwritten, one typed and one a transcript of an interview with an investigating officer, Ramsey also said:

• The Evans was not on a wrong basic course as another Evans officer testified.

• That he thought he could have missed the carrier, but that she surprised him and turned sharply into him at the last minute.

• He did not wake the sleeping captain of the Evans because he at first didn't think it was necessary and because he was too busy.

Nixon Orders Troop Cutback For 20,000 at Foreign Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. troops and civilian employes at foreign bases Wednesday as a means of saving money and "reducing the American presence overseas."

The pullback affects 14,900 military people — but none are in such actual or potential trouble spots as Vietnam, Korea, West Germany or other countries protected by the NATO alliance.

The White House specifically exempted those areas and said further there will be no cuts in military units in Southeast Asia directly involved in the Vietnam war effort.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said any decision on Vietnam reductions beyond the previously announced 25,000-man withdrawal would come under an entirely separate program. The next decision time is August.

This presumably means the cuts might be made in such countries as Japan, which has 40,000 American troops; Spain, with 10,000, or Turkey, which has 10,000. No specific list was given, however.

There was no indication as to why the foreign streamlining was undertaken at this time, but some key members of Congress have been increasingly critical about the United States continuing to keep large forces overseas.

Ziegler said the reductions, to take place over the next 12 months, will eventually save the United States $75 million in annual balance-of-payments costs.

The Pentagon had no immediate word to give on which military outfits are affected.

In addition to the large contingents in Japan, Turkey and Spain, the United States had 30,000 military people in the Philippines, 24,000 in Latin America, 45,000 in Okinawa, 10,000 in Taiwan and 10,000 throughout Canada, Greenland and Iceland.

Viet Pullout Soldiers Were Ready to Rotate

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — Most of the soldiers withdrawn from Vietnam Tuesday were near completion of their one-year tours and were transferred into the unit for withdrawal, a check of Army records showed Wednesday.

The records showed that 138 of the 778 men who arrived at McChord Air Force Base Tuesday actually had fought under the banner of the Army's 3rd Battalion, 60th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division.

The rest were men from other outfits who had almost completed their tours of duty in Vietnam and were transferred into the unit for withdrawal.

Soon after President Nixon announced the withdrawal of 25,000 American troops from Vietnam, the Pentagon explained there would be a reshuffling of soldiers in and out of the returning Army units. Soldiers with little time left to serve in Vietnam would be withdrawn and soldiers with a long time of their normal tour of one year would stay, the Pentagon said.

More than 700 of Tuesday's returnees had served 11 months or more in Vietnam.

"The important thing is that this is symbolic of something — that we are cutting back," said Spec. 5 Laboy Jones.

Charles Grabs Early British Open Golf Lead

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP)—Bob Charles, a left-handed New Zealander who won the title here six years ago, carved a two-stroke lead as tourney-toughened golfers from the United States dropped back Wednesday in the first round of the 1969 British Open.

Charles equalled his own course record of 66 for the Royal Lytham and St. Annes layout and actually set a record because Lytham has been re-ramped and lengthened to 6,848 yards since Charles fired a 66 in 1963.

A.L. All-Star Team Named

NEW YORK (AP)—Rico Petrocelli, Boston Red Sox shortstop, led the American League All-Star team balloting with 286 votes in the returns announced Wednesday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. The All-Star game with the National League team will be played on the night of July 22 at Washington.

Baltimore placed outfielder Frank Robinson and first baseman John "Boog" Powell among the eight fielding starters but the Orioles' Brooks Robinson, perennial All-Star third baseman, lost out to Sal Bando of the Oakland A's who also have Reggie Jackson, slugging outfielder, in the starting lineup.

The voting by the players, coaches and managers, who were not permitted to cast a ballot for anybody on their own teams, also rewarded catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit, second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and outfielder Frank Howard of Washington with starting roles.

The National League starters will be announced Friday afternoon and the remainder of the 28-man squads, including pitchers, will be selected by the two managers and released within the next 10 days.

By virtue of winning the 1968 pennant, Mayo Smith of Detroit will manage the American League and Red Schoendienst of St. Louis will manage the National League, which has won the last six games and holds a 21-17 edge. The score in Houston last year was 1-0.

All starters, except pitchers, must play at least the first three innings.

All of the American League starters, except Carew who leads the league at .356, have hit 11 or more homers in games through Tuesday night. They had a total of 159 homers, topped by Jackson's 34 and Howard's 32. Of the eight starters, Powell, Jackson and Carew are left-handed hitters. Jackson and Bando will be making their first All-Star appearances.

The closest competition was for third base where Bando shaded Brooks Robinson, 163-126. Robinson had been on the squad nine straight years and had started at third base in the last five years as well as in 1960 and 1961.

A total of 59 players received votes and the Baltimore club polled the most total votes, Carl Yastrzemski, Boston's two-time league batting champ, finished sixth among the outfielders with 63 votes. The once-mighty New York Yankees picked up only 21 votes, 10 for first baseman Joe Pepitone, five for outfielder Bobby Murcer and two for second baseman Horace Clarke.

American League All-Stars Announced—

These eight players will comprise the starting lineup for the American League All-Star team in the 1969 game to be played in Washington July 22. The National League starters will be announced Friday.

Don Klotz: Teacher, Recreation Leader, Coach and Inventor

By MIKE SLUTSKY
Sports Editor

ED. NOTE — This is the first in a two-part series on the University's Dr. Don Klotz, former varsity tennis coach and presently director of recreational tennis.

Recreation director, inventor, coach and teacher: Wrap all these ingredients into one package (not necessarily in that order) and you come out with Dr. Don Klotz, a name familiar to anyone who has had anything to do with the game of tennis at the University since 1947.

Dr. Klotz is indeed a rare personality. He was varsity coach here from 1947 to 1968, when he stepped down and John Winnie took over the coaching chores.

Members of his teams throughout those years recently showed their appreciation to Dr. Klotz by presenting him a plaque with the names engraved of all the Iowa tennis lettermen who ever played under him. Klotz also received as a gift from the Iowa tennis lettermen an all-expenses paid trip to Forest Hills Country Club in September for the U.S. Open.

There's a lot more to the Klotz career than merely varsity coaching, though. For instance, Klotz has invented a type of clay tennis court which, he feels, has the possibilities to become one of the most widely used clay courts in the country. Klotz is presently the University's director of recreational tennis, a physical education teacher and a member of the Recreational Board.

The director of recreational tennis is a newly created position this year and Klotz explains, "I'm about the only one on campus who knows about court maintenance but, above all, I realize the great need for scheduling of the courts. Right now we're feeling our way around the position."

Klotz sees many ways in which to develop recreational tennis here. And if anyone can make the program a success, it has to be Klotz, the man who devised the "Volley Method" of teaching tennis, probably the most widely used teaching method in the nation.

"We're trying to pool the knowledge and interests of the members of the Recreational Board into a workable pro-

Seaver 1-Hits Chicago, 4-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver retired 25 consecutive batters before rookie Jim Qualls' one-out single in the ninth inning ended his bid for a perfect game as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4-0, Wednesday night.

Randy Hundley opened the ninth by bunting Seaver's first pitch back to the mound and the pitcher threw him out — the 25th Cub retired in a row. Then Qualls, also swinging at the first pitch, dumped his hit into left field, breaking the spell. Seaver then got the last two batters to end the game.

The one-hitter was Seaver's eighth straight victory and ran his record for the season to 14-3. The strong-armed right-hander struck out 11. Seaver, got a tremendous, standing ovation from the Shea Stadium crowd of 59,083 when he came to bat in the eighth inning with his perfect game still intact.

Tom Matchick Lifts Tigers Past Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Light-hitting Tom Matchick drove in the game's first three runs with a sacrifice fly and a bases-loaded single Wednesday and the Detroit Tigers outlasted the Boston Red Sox, 6-5, in a sloppily played contest marred by five throwing errors.

A walk to Jim Northrup, a single by Bill Freehan and Matchick's fly to center gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Then two walks sandwiched around a single by Norm Cash loaded the bases in the third and Matchick lined a fly to right to make it 3-0.

The Tigers picked up another run in the fourth on Dick Mc-gram," Klotz said. "Our long range plan is to work out various forms of clinical help in which we can drift from court to court and make suggestions — sort of an impromptu clinical work."

"It disturbs me a little to see players coming out anytime and expect to get a court immediately," Klotz said.

"The problem is getting the maximum use out of our facilities. The ideal situation is to see one set of players step on the court when another leaves. If there are empty courts, you've either underpromoted your program or overexpanded your facilities."

Klotz has a number of remedies which he feels will bring the recreational program up to a level of maximum efficiency. "I'd like to see lights on the new courts," (referring to feet, shoes, legs and balls. Besides this, they're never hot." Klotz said that it would cost about $3,400 a court to rebuild them completely.

"But for much less," said Klotz, "say about $1,000 a court, we could put them in good shape so they'd at least dry quickly after rains."

High maintenance costs for the courts is what stops most of the clay courts while in their planning stages. This is where Klotz the inventor steps in.

"I've spent thousands of hours not to mention between $5,000 and $10,000 of my own money experimenting this way and that with clay courts," said Klotz. "And I've been able to develop a type of clay court with all its advantages and the maintenance would be 75 per cent less than any other clay court."

A Show of Appreciation—

Dr. Don Klotz gazes appreciably at a plaque presented him recently by former Iowa tennis lettermen. Inscribed are all the names of Iowa tennis lettermen who played under Klotz. Klotz was varsity tennis coach at the University from 1947 to 1968. — Photo by Linda Boettcher the new asphalt courts south of the Stadium) Klotz said. "I've heard unofficially that it's in the works. The heat of the summer makes it difficult to play during the day and lights would expand playing time greatly."

"The next thing I'd like to see is the clay courts given attention," said Klotz, speaking of the five courts behind the Field House and the seven near the Old Armory.

With the construction of the new asphalt courts at the Stadium, these clay courts have been all but forgotten and maintenance is next to none.

"It's been our experience that, given a choice of courts, 80 per cent will go to the clay courts when they are in good condition. These courts are easier on the

So far, Klotz's court has not fared too well on the market.

"People got the idea that all the experimenting I was doing was court maintenance," Klotz said, "and so they have stayed away from the idea. I've had a few nibbles but the people behind this proposed multi-sport indoor complex in Iowa City have said that they are definitely interested in my court."

"I'm completely sold that someone could make a mint with it," said Klotz. "It could compete price-wise and it has numerous advantages. But because I've been so busy, I've only been casually looking for a contractor. If it goes through in the multi-sport facility here, it would be a start which could go across the country."

Giants Top Astros With Late Rallies

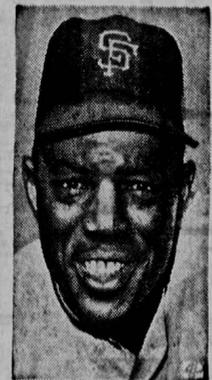

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco rallied for four runs in the seventh inning and then Bob Burda cracked a bases-loaded homer in the eighth, lifting the Giants to a 10-3 victory over the Houston Astros Wednesday.

Left-hander Denny Lemaster, 7-9, was working on a one-hitter and retired 18 of 19 batters when the Giants exploded in the seventh.

Ron Hunt, who tripled for San Francisco's only previous hit, was struck by a pitch opening the inning. Bobby Bonds' walk and Willie Mays' single produced the first run and Jim Davenport's bunt single loaded the bases. Ken Henderson cracked a two-run double, chasing Lemaster.

Dave Marshall's then connected for a pinch single off John Billingham for a 4-3 lead.

In the eighth, Mays doubled home a run before Burda's grand slam, and Dick Dietz followed with a homer.

John Edwards' single, Dennis Menke's double, Doug Rader's RBI single and a bases-loaded walk gave Houston two runs in the second. Joe Morgan cracked his 10th homer in the fifth.

Integration Guidelines Give Government Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, which spent five months putting together last week's attempt on school desegregation guidelines, is grappling with a new problem:

How to word another statement saying what the first statement meant without ending up with three sets of guidelines.

The new statement is to take the form of a letter to school districts "clarifying" the statement issued by Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell last Thursday.

That statement appeared to relax somewhat this coming fall's deadline for complete desegregation of most schools set in guidelines issued by the previous administration last March.

The statement, however, drew sharp criticism as being contradictory and confusing.

The letter — apparently a response to this criticism — had been expected early this week, but has been delayed. A spokesman for the Office of Civil Rights said Wednesday he did not know when it would be sent.

The spokesman said no agreement has been reached on final wording.

Pope Stresses Free Choice, Pledges to End Absolutism

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI stressed the freedom of personal choice in moral decisions Wednesday and pledged that "all arbitrary intolerance and all absolutism will be abolished" from the Roman Catholic Church.

The pontiff underscored the right of the individual to follow his own conscience, one of the principal arguments used by critics of his encyclical banning artificial birth control, issued a year ago this month.

Pope Paul said that the Second Vatican Council had conceded "for every man a high degree of autonomy, recognizing the dominion of individual conscience."

However, Pope Paul stated that with greater freedom comes a greater need to be "enlightened by truth and sustained by grace." And he cited those who disobey his contraceptive ban as abusers of freedom because they go against the "natural law."

School Unit Discusses New Superintendent

The Iowa City Board of Education went into executive session Tuesday night to discuss a site for a new elementary school on the west side. Members also discussed candidates for superintendent of schools.

The closed session was held after the Board's regular meeting. Board Pres. Henry W. Piro objected to the closed session, but the Board voted for it.

During the Board's regular session, it accepted the resignation effective Sept. 1 of Charles Railsback, curriculum director for the past four years.

Railsback has accepted a position as assistant superintendent in La Grange Park, Ill. His primary duties there will be in the area of curriculum and personnel.

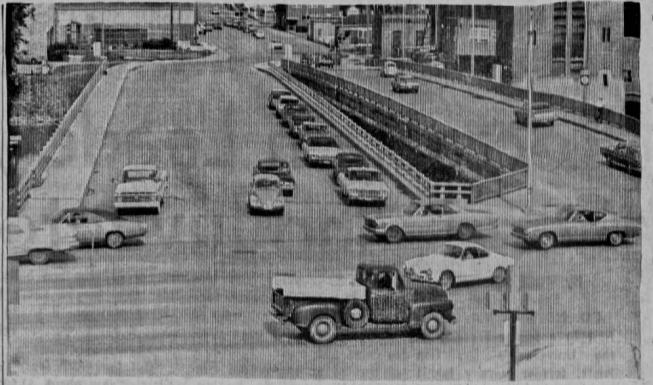

In other action, the Board approved a request from parents that bus transportation be provided for junior high school students living south of Bypass 6.

Parents, in the Fairmeadows area, based their request on previous actions of the Board in granting transportation to students who had to cross heavily traveled streets.

Richard Lahr, bus administrator, said that approval of the Fairmeadows request removes the last highly dangerous walking condition for any large group of youngsters in the school district.

The Board also set dates for the opening of bids on two new elementary schools. Bids for Bohumil Shimek Elementary School will be opened on Aug. 6, and those for Helen Lemme Elementary on Aug. 20.

Piro recommended that the Board postpone for one year introduction of an auto mechanics program into the high school curriculum. He cited as reasons the difficulty in finding a qualified instructor and uncertainty about the amount of government aid.

The old portion of the Burlington Street Bridge (on the right) is open to traffic again, and thus eastbound cars can again occupy three lanes instead of just one lane on the westbound side. With both sides open, the bridge holds seven lanes of traffic. Burlington Bridge Reopens

Motorists found traffic moving more smoothly over the Burlington Street Bridge as the old section of the bridge was reopened Tuesday after being closed for renovation.

The old section of the bridge carries three lanes of east-bound traffic, while the new section carries four lanes of west-bound traffic.

According to Police Chief Patrick J. McCarney, new traffic signals have been ordered for the intersection to improve the traffic flow.

The completed bridge improvement project cost $475,000. It was financed by state funds, with no city money involved. That includes construction costs for the new addition, approach work and sidewalk removal.

A nearby pedestrian overpass on Riverside Drive and Grand Avenue is behind its construction schedule because of Iowa City's heavy rains, according to the contractor, Schmidt Construction Co. of Winfield.

The overpass will cost $175,000, and is scheduled for completion in four to six weeks, a spokesman for the company said.

Volunteer Organization Helps Exconvicts Stay Out of Prison

DADE CITY, Fla. (AP) — More than 2,000 Floridians have become their brother's keeper. And in so doing, authorities say, they're helping hundreds of paroled convicts — many of them teen-agers — stay out of prison.

They are volunteers in a statewide citizen parole worker program state officials say is giving relief to an overworked staff of professional parole workers and saving the state an estimated $200,000 annually.

Marie Roberts, a Dade City cafe owner, is one of the volunteers. "I like talking to people, so I decided to help this man," says Mrs. Roberts, who helped one person in particular with his money problems.

She guided him through a confusing web of rent payments, insurance premiums and budget balancing.

"That man would have been back in jail long ago if it hadn't been for Marie," says Henry Hamner of the State Probation and Parole Commission. "She works long hours in that cafe, but she took the time to help and has done a marvelous job."

Since the agency's Community Service Department began operations last Nov. 1, it has grown to a corps of 2,036 volunteers. In a recent month, the workers rendered 3,965 hours of service valued at $16,000 by state officials.

The volunteers pay off in more ways than merely shouldering part of the work load of the 177 professional parole officers who try to keep track of 11,000 ex-convicts.
