Electric Merger

Iowa's two largest electric power companies announced Friday that their boards of directors have approved a plan to consolidate into a single company to be called Iowa Energy Company.

Final acceptance of the plan between Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co. and Iowa Power and Light Co. will also depend on approval by shareholders of each company and authorization by government agencies like the Federal Power Commission (FPC) and the Iowa Commerce Commission (ICC).

Under the plan, each share of Iowa-Illinois common stock will be exchanged for one share of Iowa Energy, and each share of Iowa Power will be exchanged for 1.15 shares of Iowa Energy.

'Soccer' War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Salvadoran troops thrust into Honduran territory Friday after taking the provincial capital of Nueva Ocotepeque. In its third attempt to end the five-day-old war, the Organization of American States (OAS) came up with a four-point peace plan in Washington.

The Salvadoran occupation troops based in Nueva Ocotepeque moved 12½ miles beyond the town, extending their control over Honduran territory to the west and north.

Their commander, Col. Armando Monje, said: "We are ready to push forward. We have not received an order to cease firing."

ABM Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington withdrew Friday his request for a second secret Senate session on the Safeguard ABM, but first votes in the long controversy remain more than a week away.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said sponsors of a key amendment to limit the ABM to research, barring deployment or site acquisition, plan to seek a vote on it on either July 29 or 30.

Symington, who announced toward the end of Thursday's 5½-hour closed session he would seek a second secret meeting within 10 days, issued a terse statement Friday on his aboutface. The Missouri Democrat, a leading ABM opponent, declined to discuss the matter with reporters.

Ra Is Abandoned

CHRISTIANSTED (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl abandoned his battered reed boat Ra 600 miles short of his goal Friday night after sharks chased away his six crewmen as they tried to repair the craft.

The seven men scrambled aboard the escorting fishing craft Shenandoah and left the Ra drifting with a small sail.

Heyerdahl was quoted as saying the papyrus boat might drift by itself to Bridgetown, Barbados, a British island 200 miles off northeast Venezuela which was his original destination.

Heyerdahl and his crew of six sailed from Morocco May 25, trying to prove Egyptians could have sailed to America in papyrus boats more than 4,000 years ago.

Power Shortage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From the White House to the Empire State Building, from Massachusetts to Virginia, individuals and huge companies turned off lights, air conditioners and other electrical equipment Friday in an attempt to bail the East Coast out of a serious power shortage.

Four days of humid, 90-degree weather strained power facilities and brought pleas from utilities to avoid unnecessary use of electricity.

An official of the Federal Power Commission (FPC) said there appeared to be no threat of a large-scale blackout, although a power system in the Middle Atlantic states had to borrow electricity from another area because of a plant failure.

Lunar Module Is OK; Astronauts Fine in Telecast

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 11 astronauts inspected the fragile spacecraft that is to land them on the moon and found it in good shape Friday during the longest telecast ever beamed from space.

Neil A. Armstrong and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. wiggled through a tunnel connecting the lunar module with the larger command ship while they were more than 200,000 miles from the earth and speeding closer to the moon.

Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins, the third crewman, started the 96-minute telecast by asking mission control if they wanted some "free television," meaning unscheduled television.

Mission control was surprised, but readily agreed and the color television camera was turned on.

Collins acted as cameraman, focusing on Armstrong as the commander removed the harpoon-like docking probe from the command module tunnel.

Armstrong and Aldrin finished clearing the tunnel, and Aldrin then went into the lunar module, carrying the color camera with him.

Aldrin turned around and showed Armstrong looking through the tunnel. It was as though the Apollo 11 commander was looking down a barrel.

Armstrong followed Aldrin in a few minutes and took over the camera chores.

The astronauts found the LM unscratched by the buffeting of launch and docking. This was their first chance to inspect the lunar module, which is flying nose-to-nose with the command ship. They and ground controllers got the good news when Aldrin slipped through the tunnel and looked inside.

While the astronauts sped toward their destination, space officials were told by Russia that its unmanned Luna 15, already in orbit around the moon, will not interfere with Apollo 11's mission.

Apollo 11 was only a few hours away from the point where earth's gravity is overcome by the moon's gravity and the lunar influence takes control.

Throughout the telecast, the astronauts, who earlier in the day spoke only when spoken to, talked and joked and explained their space home to the audience.

They showed a view of the earth and bobbed around in weightlessness.

"I'd like to say hello to all my fellow Scouts and Scouters at Farragut State Park in Idaho," said Armstrong, a former Eagle Scout. "They're having a national jamboree there this weekend and Apollo 11 would like to send them best wishes."

The 96-minute surprise television spectacular, which caught the commercial networks unprepared to relay it, focused on the instruments and equipment in the lunar module. The telecast was so clear that floating specks of dust could clearly be seen.

When mission control noted the floating particles, Aldrin quietly replied: "Yeah. I'm choking on one every so often."

While Armstrong focused on his crewmate, Aldrin went over the instruments on the lunar module panels. He said everything looked fine.

Aldrin found a polished metal cylinder about four inches long, held it up to the television camera and was asked if anyone knew what it was.

A mission controller identified it as a device used to unjam the cameras.

Apollo Watchers

Mission Control at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Tex., watches the telecast from the Apollo 11 spacecraft. Members of the flight director's team look at the earth on a small screen, at the right, while the same image appears on the giant screen on the wall in the background. Mission Control is the earth control center for the Apollo mission. Apollo receives its instructions from the people in this room.

Nixon Strongly Opposes Legislation— Campus Disorder Legislation Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is trying to head off an attempt in the House to write legislation aimed at curbing campus disorders which would impose financial sanctions on colleges.

Administration opposition played a key role in blocking action by the Education and Labor Committee a few weeks ago, but the battleground now is shifting to the House floor.

Members convinced that the federal government must act to prevent campus disruptions are trying to draft an amendment they can add to the appropriations bill for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

The main purpose of the amendment they are working on is to require colleges and universities to draw up rules of campus behavior and plans for dealing with a student uprising. Failure of colleges to do so could lead to a withdrawal of all federal aid to the institution.

At the request of President Nixon, Secretary of HEW Robert H. Finch and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell have written to House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford strongly disapproving of such an approach.

The office of the Michigan Republican released the letter Friday.

"In our studied judgment," said the two Cabinet officers, "such legislation would be counter-productive and would seriously jeopardize the relationship between the academic community and the federal government, which has been of such inestimable benefit to our society."

"We strongly feel that the threatened cutoff of institutional funds is an entirely inappropriate way of dealing with a serious problem."

Finch and Mitchell also said that requiring colleges to submit plans or certify that they have developed them would imply a federal standard by which the plans would be judged.

"The federal government must not be placed in the role of enforcer or overseer of rules and regulations," they said.

Flash Flood Strikes C.R.

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — There was a run on pumps and buckets in Cedar Rapids Friday as Iowa's second largest city began drying itself off from a flash flood earlier in the day.

The flooding, triggered by over four inches of rain which fell during a three-hour period Friday morning, covered 100 city blocks.

Traffic was snarled on many streets as storm sewers, unable to handle the load, belched back the flood waters. Hundreds of cars were abandoned after stalling out.

Authorities reported 20 families were evacuated by firemen in boats.

"Water stood 10 feet deep in some spots," said Asst. Fire Chief Herman Freuh, who directed rescue operations in low lying sections on the northwest side of town, an area where 1,500 homes lost telephone service due to a short-circuited cable. Electricity was cut off to 100 homes in the same section.

Pet Ban to Stay; Becky Must Go, University Says

University housing officials have decided there will be no modification of the office's no pet rule for married student housing.

Steve and Barbara Haisman, University graduate student residents of Templin Park and the owners of Becky Beagle, were notified Friday by housing officials that they would have to find a new home for Becky by Monday.

The Haismans were originally notified a month ago that there had been complaints about their pet and that they would have to find her a new home.

They are considering legal action on the situation.

Haisman said Friday night he had contacted a San Francisco attorney who was interested in taking the case.

Rains Leave Reservoir Unaffected

By DUANE MORSE

The Iowa River basin received only scattered showers Thursday night — not enough to produce a marked effect on the water level at the Coralville Reservoir.

This was the second night of light rainfall for the Iowa River region, while adjacent areas were drenched by heavy downpours. More than five inches of rain was recorded Wednesday night over watersheds to the east and west and deluges Thursday night produced flash floods in parts of Cedar Rapids.

The only part of the Iowa River basin to receive rains comparable to Cedar Rapids was Salt Creek, which empties into the Iowa River above Belle Plaine. The Salt Creek area was not large enough to produce a measurable effect on the river, according to Army Corps of Engineers officials.

At 3 p.m. Friday, the water level in the Coralville Reservoir had reached 711.47 feet above sea level — just six inches from the top of the spillway — and was still slowly rising. Water is being discharged at the rate of 12,000 cubic feet per second (c.f.s.).

Army Corps of Engineers officials, who maintain the dam and reservoir, indicated that they have no plans at present to increase the rate of discharge, except in the event of heavy rain.

At the Corps' District Headquarters in Rock Island, Ill., a spokesman emphasized that large amounts of rain "soon" were very possible, and, in that event, there would be no choice but to release more water.

The floodgates can allow water to pour out at rates up to 20,000 c.f.s.

Iowa City has had about one and a quarter inches of rain in the past two days. While this has not been enough to affect the Coralville Reservoir, it has aggravated flood conditions below the dam since local streams continue to dump large amounts of water into the river.

To date, about sixty families in Johnson County have been evacuated because high water threatened their homes. Most have been able to find temporary lodging with friends or relatives, according to local Red Cross authorities.

Red Cross aid is available, without charge, to all persons affected by the flooding. A Disaster Committee has been formed through the Johnson County Red Cross chapter to provide shelter, food, clothing and family services. The committee points out, however, that aid is furnished on the basis of need — to supplement individual resources and

Ray Opposes 'Educational Freedom' Attack

By DAVID KOTOK

Gov. Robert Ray said Friday he opposed any attack on "educational freedom."

Ray was interviewed during a visit to Coralville on his views of the study of the three state universities by the Legislative Budget and Financial Control Committee of the Iowa Legislature.

The committee recently said that a study of the "social adaptability" of the faculty was one of the points to be looked at in its investigation.

The phrase "social adaptability" has caused some faculty members to fear a "witch hunt" in which their political beliefs will be questioned.

Ray said, "I feel the 'social adaptability' clause is difficult to understand, but I do know that we must safeguard our educational freedom."

"We are proud of the education our young people now receive and we want nothing to jeopardize that education."

Ray gave his support to a clause of the Voter Reform Bill, proposed in the last session of the legislature, which would not allow students to vote in the cities in which they attended school. The bill would require students to vote in their home towns.

The Voter Reform Bill was written by an ad hoc committee of the Iowa Republican Central Committee and was scheduled for action in the next session of the Iowa General Assembly.

Students are now offered the opportunity to choose between voting in the town in which they attend school or in their home towns, providing they meet the state residency requirements.

Ray compared students to men who work in one community and live in another. He said in both cases persons should vote in their home districts.

Ray said, "There are people who have no desire to live in the state of Iowa nor any interest in local government and attend our schools and for them to exercise the right to vote in those communities when it is not their true residency is unfair to the people who choose to make those communities their residences."

Ray was at the Ramada Inn in Coralville to award certificates to 25 Iowa law enforcement officers who had completed a two-week course on accident investigation.

The course was the third of four courses offered by the Traffic Institute of Northwestern University and sponsored by the Iowa Sheriff's Association.

Ray said at the ceremonies that 373 people had died on Iowa's highways in the first six months of 1969. He said that this figure represented a decrease of 64 in the number of traffic fatalities suffered in the first six months of 1968.

Ray told the graduates of the institute, "Our human obligation is to use every available resource to end the bloodshed on Iowa's roads."

Ray left Iowa City after he had lunch with about 20 county sheriffs. There was no comment on what was discussed with the sheriffs and no newsmen were allowed in the room for the discussion.

Justice Dept. statement on school desegregation

PART II

Additional time will be allowed only where those requesting it sustain the heavy burden of proving that compliance with the 1969-70 time schedule cannot be achieved; where additional time is allowed, it will be the minimum shown to be necessary.

In accordance with recent decisions which place strict limitations on "freedom of choice," if "freedom of choice" is used in the plan, the school district must demonstrate, on the basis of its record, that this is not a subterfuge for maintaining a dual system, but rather that the plan as a whole genuinely promises to achieve a complete end to racial discrimination at the earliest practicable date. Otherwise, the use of "freedom of choice" in such a plan is not acceptable.

For local and federal authorities alike, school desegregation poses both educational and law enforcement problems. To the extent practicable, on the federal level the law enforcement aspects will be handled by the Department of Justice in judicial proceedings affording due process of law, and the educational aspects will be administered by HEW. Because they are so closely interwoven, these aspects cannot be entirely separated.

We intend to use the administrative machinery of HEW in tandem with the stepped-up enforcement of Justice, and to draw on HEW for more assistance by professional educators as provided for under Title IV of the 1964 Act. This procedure has these principal aims:

- To minimize the number of cases in which it becomes necessary to employ the particular remedy of a cutoff of federal funds, recognizing that the burden of this cutoff falls nearly always on those the Act was intended to help; the children of the poor and the black.
• To ensure, to the greatest extent possible, that educational quality is maintained while desegregation is achieved and bureaucratic disruption of the educational process is avoided.

The Division of Equal Educational Opportunities in the Office of Education has already shown that its program of advice and assistance to local school districts can be most helpful in solving the educational problems of the desegregation process. We intend to expand our cooperation with local districts to make certain that the desegregation plans devised are educationally sound, as well as legally adequate.

We are convinced that desegregation will best be achieved in some cases through a selective infusion of federal funds for such needs as school construction, teacher subsidies and remedial education.

HEW is launching a study of the needs, the costs, and the ways the federal government can most appropriately share the burden of a system of financial aids and incentives designed to help secure full and prompt compliance. When this study is completed, we intend to recommend the necessary legislation.

We are committed to ending racial discrimination in the nation's schools, carrying out the mandate of the Constitution and the Congress.

We are committed to providing increased assistance by professional educators, and to encouraging greater involvement by local leaders in each community.

We are committed to maintaining quality public education, recognizing that if desegregated schools fail to educate, they fail in their primary purpose.

We are determined that the law of the land will be upheld; and that the federal role in upholding that law, and in providing equal and constantly improving educational opportunities for all, will be firmly exercised with an even hand.

Re: police powers

To the Editor:

The following is a copy of a letter I recently addressed to pres. Howard R. Bowen:

We are most concerned with the passage in the new student bill of rights which would permit search and seizure of students' rooms and student property under emergency conditions.

In our view, the University has no right to greater privileges in this matter than the civil authorities. In fact, since University police have civil police powers and since they would presumably be doing the searching, we cannot see how they have a right to abridge Constitutional guarantees when their state counterparts would be unable to do so.

We would urge a thorough and careful evaluation of this provision before implementation.

Our freedom we prize, and our rights we shall maintain.

On movie ratings

To the Editor:

I have recently read the review by J. R. on the "Love Bug". I must say, for a "thinking adult," he is quite an idiot. Since the rating system on movies has come about, the only pictures suitable for children or people who get tired of swearing and overemphasized, often perverse, sex, are the ones rated "G".

The rest of the ratings are for "mature" audiences (eliminating those under 17 or unaccompanied by their parents), and "restricted" for those who are brave or mature enough for the sex and foul language.

A Disney film has long been known for its wholesome quality, optimism, and appeal to children and the parents of children. If J. R. cannot go to the film with that in mind, he should not be reviewing it. All good footage does not necessarily come from Europe under the guise of having won a prize at Cannes, and not all of it has to do with realism and rebellion.

If it were not for fantasy, how would you compare to arrive at truth, and if it were not for dreams, how would anyone reach a goal? If it were not for Disney, where could young people go for entertainment in the movie medium? Certainly not to "Les Biches."

Boyd Visits Korean School

By JOHN NEIBERGALL

Dongguk University administrators weren't convinced when University Pres.-select Willard Boyd told them he couldn't visit their campus in Seoul, Republic of (South) Korea this summer.

A couple of weeks ago Dongguk had its way: Dr. and Mrs. Boyd took a 15-hour flight to spend six days in Korea talking about a planned educational-cultural exchange between Dongguk and the University.

Boyd was invited for a June visit to Dongguk when the University agreed with Dongguk University May 15 to exchange faculty and perhaps student visits beginning in the 1970 fall.

"I thought I was too busy to take time to go to Seoul," Boyd said, "but the Dongguk officials insisted that I come."

Dongguk, one of 60 universities in South Korea, is the nation's only Buddhist university. "In a sense, Dongguk is similar to the University," Boyd said. "It offers a wide range of studies, mostly in liberal arts, and has professional education such as business and law."

Dongguk has a student population of about 5,000 and a faculty of 100.

"In this country we would think it impossible to cover such a broad education with such a small faculty," he said.

"By American standards, Dongguk doesn't have much, but by American standards, they have a hell of a will to improve their education," Boyd added.

Boyd said the desire to improve higher education in the Republic of Korea is why Dongguk is "intently interested" in an exchange with the University.

"I came away with a clear feeling that this improvement should be the number one priority in the exchange," Boyd said.

From talks with Dongguk Pres. Dong-Ik Kim, members of the faculty, the student body president and the student newspaper editor, Boyd said he interpreted their interest in bettering higher education as their expression that education was their best assurance of freedom.

He said Dongguk is interested in having its faculty members study in the University's religion department and the creative writing and translators' workshops here.

Dongguk alumni have begun to collect funds so one Dongguk faculty member can attend the University by 1970.

A grant of $20,000 from Clupak, Inc., a company that sells licenses for patents it holds in the paper industry, will help finance the exchange.

Boyd said money to send a faculty member from the University to Seoul is not available now, but may come from Fulbright Scholarships and similar funds.

James Murray, professor of political science and director of the University's International Studies Program, is coordinating the University's part of the exchange.

Murray said that some faculty members at the University have expressed interest in going to Dongguk to do comparative studies in the areas of religion and education.

Boyd said the University would be particularly interested in learning something of the non-western culture from Dongguk visitors to Iowa City.

He said, "Some cultural exchange has already taken place."

Dongguk has given the University a special collection of the Korean Tripitika, which are complete writings related to Korean Buddhism.

While he was in Seoul, Boyd said, he was asked about the extent of Buddhist influence in the United States.

Boyd said he was also asked a few questions about demonstrations on American campuses.

Dongguk was closed when Boyd was there because of a demonstration against a proposed Korean constitutional amendment that would allow the Republic's president a third consecutive term in office.

The demonstration was not taking place on the campus of the Buddhist university, Boyd said, but was going on nearby.

Boyd said he understood that the faculty and students agreed that classes should not convene for the rest of the soon-ending semester.

"Most questions I was asked were about the exchange. That was the intense, almost overwhelming interest at Dongguk," Boyd said.

Boyd and his wife spent a day and a half visiting Buddhist shrines and temples in what Mrs. Boyd described as the "hilly and mountainous Korean countryside."

Boyd said he was "most impressed with the contemplative life of the monks and the way Buddhism functions in Korean life."

Mrs. Boyd said the art in the temples, including one stone cave temple with a Buddha carved in stone and set on a stone lotus, impressed her.

She said she was also "surprised to see primitive hand farming in the country in such complete contrast to the modern setting of Seoul."

"I had no idea what a colorful, attractive country Korea is," Mrs. Boyd said.

Unit Supports Six In School Elections

The Bipartisan School Board Nominating Committee Thursday night endorsed six candidates for election to the Iowa City Board of Education.

They are Eugene L. Radig, 201 North First Ave., Robert Engel, 913 South Summit St., Mrs. Harold L. Franklin, 921 Walnut St., Mrs. Bruce Spivey, 1713 East Court St., James Stier, 2401 Mayfield Rd., and Daniel Moe, 637 Dearborn St. Moe is a University professor of music.

Three of the seven positions on the board are to be filled at the Sept. 8 election.

Board Pres. Henry W. Piro and member William V. Phelan have announced that they will not seek re-election.

The third position up for election is currently held by Arthur L. Campbell. He announced Thursday that he will seek re-election, but would not seek endorsement by the bipartisan committee.

Campbell has said that he chose to run independently because he disagrees with the current role of the bipartisan committee.

The committee has traditionally reviewed and endorsed all candidates running for school board seats.

Its major purpose is to see that qualified candidates are named and that those candidates are named and elected on a bipartisan basis.

However, Campbell said he felt there was too much voting among committee members along party lines.

Campbell said a qualified candidate could end up at the bottom of the list if he was not a member of the party which had the largest number of members attending the committee's meeting.

'Care' Home Rule Getting Results better able to provide better care" than the present owner and should not be denied a license simply because the facilities are old.

Referring to residents of homes which would be denied licenses, Holden asked, "Where will they go?"

DeBiak has said recently that space in new homes is growing at the rate of 1,000 beds a year — fast enough to absorb the patients from homes which did not meet the stiffer standards.

In 1957 the board modified the standards because of a lack of bed space in Iowa's nursing homes. When the board modified the standards, it gave the existing nursing homes 12 years in which to improve their homes voluntarily.

Homes built during the 12-year period were constructed according to the tougher standards which are now being proposed for all nursing homes.

Under the new standards, inspections would be conducted to check for adequate plumbing, electrical wiring, fire extinguishing equipment and sanitation requirements.

Grape Boycott Is 'Drifting,' Leader Says

Efforts to halt the sale of table grapes in Iowa City are presently "drifting," according to the chairman of the Iowa City Table Grape Boycott Coalition.

The chairman, David Vogel, G. Bakersfield, Calif., said that his group was waiting for the return of Robert Harper, general manager of the Eagle's Supermarket at 1101 S. Riverside Dr.

Vogel said Harper has been on vacation for about two weeks and, since the coalition must initially negotiate with him to stop the store's sale of table grapes, coalition work has ground to a halt.

A store official said Friday that Harper would be out of town for "a couple more weeks."

The coalition's efforts are part of a national boycott which supports the demands of the United Farm Workers Union against California grape growers.

The national boycott group is weak, however, and most work is being done on the local level by groups that sprang up spontaneously in support of the farm workers, according to Vogel.

The Iowa City group, Vogel said, randomly selected Eagle's in its effort to pressure Iowa City food stores to take table grapes off their counters.

Vogel said that from 700 to 1,000 signatures have been collected on a petition calling for an end to sales of grapes.

He emphasized that the group's task now is pinning the authority over the matter on someone specific at Eagle's.

Once this is done and the coalition is able to confront that person, Vogel said, "I think he will probably be willing to take them (grapes) off the market."

If such methods do not work, Vogel said, "more unpleasant forms of harassment" would be utilized. He didn't specify what he meant by harassment.

Vogel said the Iowa City coalition is composed of political and social groups favoring the United Farm Workers' demands, like the Popular Democratic Party, the Iowa City Labor Council and Americans for Democratic Action.

Viet Fighting Increases Around Hue, Da Nang

SAIGON (AP) — The pace of the Vietnam war, in a lull for four weeks, increased slightly Friday with two enemy assaults around the old imperial capital of Hue in the north.

Attacks occurred simultaneously against South Vietnamese units three miles southeast and five miles west of Hue.

The South Vietnamese reported they killed 37 enemy troops in the two skirmishes. Government losses were given as one killed and two wounded. One enemy soldier was captured.

The clashes near Hue followed two small unit encounters around Da Nang, the big U.S. military complex 55 miles southeast of Hue.

Squad-sized enemy forces took on U.S. Marines and elements of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division.

In one night, 35 miles southeast of Da Nang, 13 enemy soldiers were reported killed in an attack on a Marine-South Vietnamese combined action platoon. There were no Marine casualties. Two government soldiers were wounded.

Eight more enemy soldiers were killed during a probe by an estimated Viet Cong squad against a 101st Airborne Division night position 22 miles northwest of Da Nang. There were no U.S. casualties.

Despite the attacks near Hue and Da Nang — a relatively quiet area in recent months — United States military forces said there were no indications enemy forces were stepping up activity.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, continued his secret-shrouded tour with visits to U.S. commanders in central and northern South Vietnam.

Wheeler and Adm. John S. McCain Jr., U.S. commander in the Pacific, came here Wednesday to spend four days assessing the war situation and prospects of turning more of the war over to South Vietnamese military units.

The Army asked the science academy to study the matter and a special committee issued a report June 25 recommending a series of actions to avoid, where possible, shipping the nerve gas and other chemical agents across the United States. It recommended such measures as chemical means, burning or demolition to destroy the chemical warfare material.

Hickerson Talks At Drake Panel

Iowa City Mayor Loren Hickerson was a panelist at Tuesday's session of the 14th Annual Institute in state and local government at Drake University in Des Moines. Subject of the panel discussion was the financial plight of cities.

Purpose of the Institute, which continues through August 1, is to introduce students to Iowa government and politics.

Marine Recruiter Here Next Week

A Marine Corps representative will be on campus next week to recruit candidates for Marine Corps officer training.

Interviews and tests will be conducted Tuesday through Thursday between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Office of Career Counseling and Placement in the Union.

A lesson on inflation

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Today we're going to have our quiz on inflation. You've had enough time to read up on it so you should do very well. All right, let's begin:

QUESTION: Where does the word "inflation" come from?

ANSWER: In 1887 there was a bar and grill owner in San Francisco named George Inflation. One day he failed to receive a shipment of booze from the East. Since the demand for booze was great, George Inflation decided to charge 15 cents for a shot of whiskey, instead of the standard 10 cents. He also made the shot glass smaller.

This did not stop his customers from buying booze, so he raised the price to 20 cents, then 25 cents. The other bars in San Francisco raised their prices accordingly, and when their customers complained the other bar and grill owners would say "Blame it on Inflation."

Thus, inflation soon became part of the English language.

Q: Why is everyone so fascinated by inflation?

A: Because there are so many things that you can do with it. You can hold it; you can turn it around; you can spiral it; you can send it sky-high; you can let it get out of hand; you can try to curb it; restrain it; stop it; and during banking hours you can go to the bank and watch it eat up your savings.

Q: What causes inflation?

A: Economists. They're always talking about it. The trouble with inflation is that the more you talk about it, the more inflated things become. When the government says it's worried about inflation, business gets worried, too, and so it raises its prices to protect itself against the inflation the government is worried about — which, of course, brings on more inflation.

Q: Then why doesn't the government shut up about inflation?

A: Because it wants Congress to extend the 10 per cent surtax, and it has warned that, unless there is a surtax, inflation will run rampant.

Q: Is that the best way to stop inflation in its tracks?

A: Not necessarily. You can cool off the economy when it overheats and you can dampen investment in economic expansion or you can try to reverse the wage-price upward cycle. But they're only temporary solutions. The key word, of course, is "restraint" on the part of business and labor, which, of course, is out of the question.

Q: Can you live with inflation?

A: You can if the bank doesn't take away your house.

Q: What about a little inflation?

A: Some economists say that a little inflation is a good thing because you have full employment. Other experts say it's better to have unemployment than inflation.

Q: Why do the latter say that?

A: Because they're working. Whether or not you have inflation, you're still going to need economists to tell you what you've got.

Q: What can the little guy do about inflation?

A: Write to his congressman and tell him if he doesn't do anything about it he's going to see that he's unemployed in 1971, which will be his contribution to fighting inflation.

Nixon Calls Birth Control Future Need

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon set a five-year national goal Friday of making birth control help available to all American women of childbearing age.

This would mean the spending an eventual $150 million more a year to provide family planning advice and contraceptive devices to all eligible women from low-income families — an estimated 5.4 million women.

In a special message to Congress, the chief executive emphasized:

"Clearly, in no circumstances will the activities associated with our pursuit of this goal be allowed to infringe upon the religious convictions or personal wishes and freedom of any individual, nor will they be allowed to impair the absolute right of all individuals to have such matters of conscience respected by public authorities."

Nixon said an expanded birth control program is needed because projections indicate a United States population increase of about 100 million by the end of the century.

Local Bands Ask for Bandshell

The Iowa City Community Bands organization has asked the city to build a bandshell at College Hill Park at North Dodge and College Streets.

The request was presented at the Parks and Recreation Commission's meeting Wednesday night in the Civic Center.

Commission member Robert Rollins reported on a conversation he had with Dr. Albert Soucek, a spokesman for the bands organization.

Rollins said the group wants to have the bandshell in the park because it has held its annual summer concerts there in the past.

Rollins said the cost of the structure would be $5,000 to $6,000.

Cop Charges Man For 'Obscenity'

A Coralville man allegedly made an obscene gesture, commonly referred to as "the finger," at an Iowa City police officer Friday afternoon when the officer drove his squad car past the man's parked car in the 500 block on Bowery Street, according to police.

Charged with disorderly conduct by the Iowa City police was Kenneth L. Hunter, 27, 106 5th St., Coralville. Police said the incident occurred about 3:30 p.m.

Former UI Football Player Del Gehrke Named Asst. in Recreation, Intramural

Del Gehrke, a former University of Iowa football player and a 1966 graduate of Iowa, has been named Asst. Coordinator of Recreation and Intramurals.

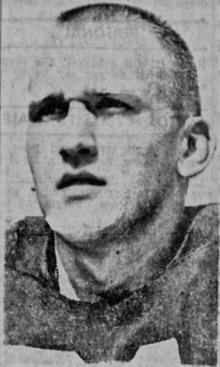

Gehrke, with a B.S. degree in Recreation, will assume his new position on Aug. 1.

He worked for two years as Community Center Supervisor for the Iowa City Recreation Dept. He also served as President of the University of Iowa Student Recreation Society.

The Mendota, Ill., native is married and has two children. He was recently discharged from the Army where he served as a personnel officer and did extensive work with the Army Intramural Program.

Gehrke was a linebacker on the Iowa teams of 1962-64.

Gehrke will be assisting Harry R. Ostrander, who assumed his duties as Coordinator of Recreation and Intramurals on June 1.

World Champion Jets Get the Good Word— Namath Bows to Pressure; Sells Share of Bachelors III

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath bowed to pressure and agreed Friday to sell his interest in a swinging East Side night club so that he could return as quarterback of the New York Jets.

The decision came after a near all-day conference with Commissioner Pete Rozelle in the National Football League headquarters.

The announcement was made by Rozelle at a mammoth press conference, with scores of newsmen, cameramen and television cameramen.

"I'm happy to announce that Joe will be back with the Jets," the commissioner said. "He and I have privately reached total accord. He is selling his interest in Bachelors III, and we consider the entire matter closed."

Namath announced his retirement in a tearful news conference June 6, refusing to sell his half-interest in Bachelors III as ordered by Rozelle.

Namath returned from California, where he was making a movie, last Saturday night, but did not show at the opening of the Jets' training camp in Hempstead, N.Y.

Wednesday night, Namath met secretly with veteran teammates of the Super Bowl champions in the training room at Hofstra and told them he thought the situation might be resolved this weekend. Namath has been meeting all week long with Rozelle. Namath's attorney, James Walsh, also has been in on the conferences.

When he made his announcement June 6, the former University of Alabama quarterback, star of the Jets' Super Bowl victory over Baltimore in January, said that he had been threatened with suspension if he did not dispose of his interest in the night club.

Rozelle insisted that the place was frequented by unsavory characters and that, while Namath himself had not been found guilty of wrong-doing, pro football had to avoid the "appearance of evil."

Namath was present Friday wearing a yellow shirt, tan sweater, striped blue and white trousers, no socks and sneakers.

The commissioner was dressed dapperly in Madison Avenue cut suit, white shirt and tie.

Rozelle opened up the conference, saying: "All of us in professional football have gone through six weeks of considerable unpleasantness. I'm happy to announce that the problem is resolved."

"Our security forces investigated everything that came to our attention."

Namath, his voice cracking with emotion, said: "We all got a little tired of the situation. Initially, I didn't think it would involve as many people, but it's gotten way out of proportion because of the people involved and because I do want to play football."

"And so the problem has been solved by my selling Bachelors III."

"I want to stress that nothing is wrong with Bachelors III but because of what was written, what was said and the public reading it all, it caused so much trouble we felt we should do it."

He mentioned the dice games and the list of undesirable characters mentioned in some magazines.

"That hasn't been proven, and Bachelors III hasn't done anything wrong. But we are back in football."

Asked if he had forsaken his principle, the quarterback said: "I went as far as I could, with it involving only me. I still insist I haven't done anything wrong but there was an area of doubt with the public. It's never been a question about myself, except guilt by association."

"I'd stand on my principle if it was only me alone. With all those other people involved... His voice trailed off."

He said several groups were interested in buying Bachelors III. "We are working on it, but I am definitely selling my interest in it."

Rozelle was asked if there were any other conditions involved in Namath's return to football and the commissioner replied:

"Joe and I have come to a understanding."

Tom Jacobs Takes Lead In Philly Golf

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tommy Jacobs, an infrequent competitor in recent years, fired an early 70 for a 139 total, sat back in the cool of the clubhouse and watched the five-member par to a 1 stand up for the second round lead Friday in the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Several players took runs at the slim, soft-spoken Californian but one by one they fell back in the sweltering heat that Arnold Palmer called "the worst I've seen since I've been playing golf."

The last was Lee Trevino, the flamboyant character from El Paso, Tex., who came to the 18th sharing the lead at five under par but drenched and dripping from a brief late afternoon shower.

But he took a double bogey six on the hole, falling back to three under at 141. He put his second in a trap, came out short and still in the rough, chipped 10 feet past the hole and missed the putt for a second round 70.

That left the 34-year-old Jacobs, who hasn't won since 1964, alone at the top.

He held a two-stroke lead over a group of six, including Trevino, locked at 141. The others, and their second round scores, were George Boutell, 70; Grier Jones, 69; Dave Stockton, 70; Dean Reframm, 70, and Lou Graham, 73.

Scores generally were higher in the 95-degree temperature and high humidity, but Palmer came in with one of the day's best rounds, a three-under-par 69 on the 6,670-yard Whitmarsh Country Club course and became a factor at 142, one of five at that figure.

AL All-Stars Add 2 More

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy White of the New York Yankees and Don Mincher of the Seattle Pilots have been added to the American League All-Star baseball team, it was announced Friday.

White replaces Minnesota's Tony Oliva, the American League's second leading hitter with a .339 average, who has a severe case of chicken pox.

Mincher will spell Pilots' teammate Mike Hegan, a .293 hitter, who is suffering a leg muscle pull.

Joe Would Rather Switch Than Fight

New York Jet's quarterback Joe Namath is shown in New York City Friday at a news conference held jointly with pro-football commissioner Pete Rozelle. Rozelle, shown in the background, announced that Namath has decided to sell his half-interest in New York City night spot, Bachelors III and return to the Jets. The announcement came after an all-day huddle between the two at the National Football League headquarters in New York City.
