"Old" Nixon wants chance

By ALFRED BURDICK
WASHINGTON — The "Old" Nixon photo on the cover of the News in Hulan, or "Old" that is, is that in which he is still wearing the beard. The surface of the photo is not clear, and the photograph appears to be faded, but the overall image is of Nixon in a thoughtful pose, with his head slightly bowed and his eyes looking off into the distance.

The photo is not a new one; it was taken at the end of the 1960s. However, it has been widely reproduced and circulated over the years, and it has become a symbol of Nixon as an older, wiser, and more introspective figure.

This particular photo has been used in several different contexts. For example, it has been used in political campaigns to evoke a sense of Nixon's经验丰富 and his ability to handle complex political situations. It has also been used in media coverage of Nixon's influence on current events, as well as in discussions of his legacy and impact on American politics.

The photo is often used to emphasize Nixon's role as a political figure who has had a significant impact on American politics, particularly in the realm of foreign policy. It has been used to suggest that Nixon was a man of great intelligence and vision, who was able to navigate the complex world of international relations with skill and precision.

In conclusion, the "Old" Nixon photo is a powerful symbol of Nixon's legacy and influence, and it continues to be used in various contexts to evoke his character and his role in American politics.

When are they going to legalize Pot?

A lot of people are asking this question. The University of Michigan was the first to make the move in 1968, followed by Harvard, Yale, and other schools. In the 1970s, more schools began to allow the use of marijuana, and by the 1980s, many states had decriminalized it. Today, marijuana is legal in many states for medical use, and several states have legalized it for recreational use. The movement has gained momentum in recent years, with a growing number of people supporting legalization. While there are still some who oppose it, the trend is clear. The question is no longer "When?" but "How?"

Coover’s New Book: ‘Pricksongs and Descants’

British Cinema at Its Wry, Direct Best

"Two Gentlemen of Verona" is British cinema at its wry, direct best. It is a film that defies easy categorization. It is a comedy, a romance, a tragedy, and a noir. It is a film that is both witty and thought-provoking.

The story follows the adventures of two young men, Paul and Jim, as they navigate the treacherous waters of contemporary life. The film explores themes of love, friendship, and the search for identity in a world that can be cruel and unforgiving.

Paul is a young man who has just returned from service in the Armed Forces. He is struggling to find his place in the world and is unsure of his identity. Jim is a young woman who is searching for love and acceptance. She is torn between her desire for Paul and her attraction to another man.

The two of them meet and form a close friendship. They are drawn to each other's strengths and weaknesses. They learn from each other and grow as individuals.

The film is a beautifully crafted exploration of the human condition. It is a film that will stay with you long after you have left the theater.

NEWER SYSTEM COMBINES USE OF DRUGS, PROCEDURES, AND STAFF TO PROVIDE SAFETY IN MAXIMUM SECURITY HOSPITAL

By Amory Flanagam

A new system which has been designed to provide a safe and secure facility for maximum security patients has been developed.

The system, developed by the Bureau of Corrections and the Bureau of Mental Health, combines the use of drugs, procedures, and staff to provide a safe and secure facility for maximum security patients.

The system has been tested at several facilities across the state and has proven to be effective in keeping patients safe and secure.

The Bureau of Corrections and the Bureau of Mental Health are committed to providing the best possible care for all patients, and this new system is an important step in that direction.
Compromised Bills Allow Arms Funds

WASHINGTON - Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., yesterday indicated he would not sign a bill that would allow the Armes Services Committee to continue construction of the "Freedom Fighter," the nation's first supersonic warplane. The Senate-passed bill was introduced by Sen. John J. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Arms Services Committee.

The conference, mostly secret, between the Senate and House Armed Services Committees, which Goldwater said he had sent home for study, had begun Friday. The Senate majority leader had some doubts about the project's need and about the wisdom of allowing the Air Force to spend the money without authorization beforehand.

Goldwater made his remarks at a meeting of the Armed Forces Permanent Committee, which he said was held to discuss his position on the issue. The committee is made up of members of the Senate and House who have special expertise in the field.

"I am not against the project itself," Goldwater said. "But I do believe that the Air Force should not be allowed to spend the money without the proper arrangement."

According to Administration officials, the Senate-passed bill would allow the Air Force to spend the money for the plane without authorization from Congress. The House-passed bill would require authorization from Congress before the money could be spent.

Goldwater said he would not sign the Senate-passed bill and would vote against it in the House. He said he would not sign the House-passed bill either and would vote against it in the Senate.

The conference was held to try to reach a compromise on the issue. The Senate-passed bill would allow the Air Force to spend the money for the plane without authorization from Congress. The House-passed bill would require authorization from Congress before the money could be spent.
