Rec Plans Public; Fight Over?

By JAY ENGLISH

The battle is on between the Recreation Department and University Housekeeping Services over the future of the gym in the Student Union. The Recreation Department, with the support of the Student Senate, is planning to transform the old gym into a student center. University Housekeeping Services, however, wants to keep the gym for use as a study area. As a result, the Recreation Department has begun making plans for what it hopes will be a new student center.

This new center would be located in the old gym, which has been vacant since the Student Union was built. The Recreation Department believes that the old gym is the perfect location for a student center, with its large size and convenient location.

University Housekeeping Services, on the other hand, argues that the gym is needed for study purposes. They point out that the gym is currently used by the University Honors Program for study sessions, and that the students attending these sessions would be displaced if the gym were taken over by the Recreation Department.

The Recreation Department is determined to proceed with its plans, despite opposition from University Housekeeping Services. They believe that the student center will provide a valuable resource for students, and that the gym is the ideal location for it.

The battle over the old gym is just one of the many challenges facing the Recreation Department. In addition to the dispute with University Housekeeping Services, the Recreation Department is also facing budget cuts and a lack of resources.

Despite these challenges, the Recreation Department is committed to providing quality programs and services for the students. They are determined to find a way to proceed with their plans, and to continue serving the students of the University.

Sies Still a CSL Member In Spite of Administration

By JAY HENDLER

The General Student Assembly (CSA) has decided to reinstate Sue Sie as a member of the Assembly. Sie, who had been removed from the Assembly earlier this year, has been a controversial figure on campus.

Sie was originally elected to the Assembly in 1970, but was later removed from the Assembly due to her involvement in student protests. However, the CSA has now decided to reinstate Sie, citing her long history of fighting for student rights.

Sie has been a vocal advocate for student rights and has been involved in many protests throughout her tenure on campus. She has been a strong supporter of the CSA and has worked hard to improve the lives of students.

The CSA's decision to reinstate Sie is a significant victory for student rights advocates. It is a testament to the power of student activism and the importance of fighting for justice.

The CSA has previously faced criticism for its handling of the issue, with some members arguing that Sie was not truly committed to fighting for student rights.

However, the CSA's decision to reinstate Sie is a clear indication that it is committed to upholding the principles of democracy and equality.

The CSA's decision to reinstate Sie is also a reminder that student rights are important and that we must continue to fight for them.

The CSA has a long history of fighting for student rights, and its decision to reinstate Sie is a testament to its commitment to student democracy.

Bordy Asks Change Of Women's Hours

By BILL MERTENS

The College Women's Center (CWC) is considering a change to its operating hours. Currently, the CWC operates from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, but Bordy is arguing for a change to the hours of operation.

Bordy believes that the current hours of operation are too restrictive and that the CWC should operate longer hours. He argues that the CWC is an important resource for women on campus and that it should be available to students whenever they need it.

However, the CWC is facing budget constraints and is unsure if it can afford to extend its hours of operation. The CWC is also concerned about the impact of extending its hours on the rest of the University.

The CWC is considering a variety of options, including partnering with other organizations to extend its hours or finding alternative funding sources. The CWC is committed to providing a safe and supportive environment for all students, and it is working to find a solution that is both affordable and effective.

The CWC is also considering the possibility of extending its hours during the summer months. This would allow the CWC to provide services to students during the summer break.

The CWC is committed to providing a safe and supportive environment for all students, and it is working to find a solution that is both affordable and effective.

From the People
Libertarians ‘misguided’

To the Editor:
Libertarians are revolting their true colors and perhaps digging their own graves. They argue that their recent, misguided idea of secession is a step in the right direction. This notion is true when we ask, “One can bear more load, have less, be less secure, and be less respected!” But surely, this notion is not true when we ask, “One can bear more load, have less, be less secure, and be less respected!”

Nevertheless, government is required — by the very nature of its institution — to eliminate the sick of society and to distribute property to those who cannot participate, to promote the general welfare, to promote the progress of science and the arts, etc. When we take part in this, we are giving up our own personal interests for the greater good of society. This is the true definition of a libertarian, and not to be confused with a selfish person who only thinks of their own interests.

This is precisely why some people believe that government is necessary. They argue that it is required to uphold the law and to protect citizens from harm. To this, we can say, “Yes, but that is not the role of government. It is the role of the police.”

By enacting such policies, we are not dividing society, but rather integrating it. This is because we are working together to achieve a common goal: a better society for all.

Yours sincerely,
Charles C. Goddard

New Liberty Policy

The old ideas of the libertarians are no longer relevant. They believe in the idea of “free market” and “individualism.” However, this ideology is flawed. The idea of a “free market” is disillusioning, especially when we consider the harm it has caused to society. The idea of “individualism” is equally dangerous, as it promotes selfishness and the idea that the individual is the only important thing.

Instead, we must adopt a new idea of liberty. This new idea of liberty is based on the idea of community. It is the idea that we are all connected and that we must work together to achieve a better society for all.

The new idea of liberty is based on the idea of cooperation. It is based on the idea that we must work together to achieve a common goal. This is the true meaning of liberty.

Yours sincerely,
Sally Johnson

The Egotist Papers

No individual, by its very nature, is an island. The individual is part of a larger whole, and must coexist with others. This is the idea of the egotist. The egotist believes that the individual is the most important thing, and that everything else is secondary.

But this is not true. The individual is not an island. We are all connected, and we must work together to achieve a better society for all.

His death was a tragic loss to the movement, and to our country. He will be remembered as a hero of the civil rights movement.

Nixon’s job is safe

By Art Bichak

WASHINGTON — Despite rumors that Nixon has been losing in the past few weeks, a new study by the respected political scientist shows that the President’s job is safe.

The scientist, who has been following the polls for several years, states that the President’s approval rating is higher than ever. In fact, the study shows that the President’s job is safe.

The scientist’s findings are based on a series of surveys conducted in the past month. These surveys were conducted in various parts of the country, and the results were consistent.

Satellite Photos Considered
In Urban, Regional Planning

"Satellite" data focused on urban areas could provide information needed to solve urban problems, a University of Wisconsin research team has determined.

"The faults of our cities will be stopped as we think today," one of the researchers, John E. Martin, an associate professor of geography, said. "Our ability to view these faults is a real plus. The new kind of photography shows us the faults that may be present in our cities."

The researches found that urban areas could be studied in various ways. "The satellite data made available to us speeds up the process of understanding the faults in our cities," the professor said. "The data included a wide range of factors from the air which contribute to our problems, in such areas as urban growth, traffic, and the need for more housing in cities."

Hartman, director of the University Institute of Urban and Regional Research, presented a study of satellite data from the Bureau of the Census of the U.S. Department of Commerce to the National Academy of Sciences, said the data included studies of 54 cities in the United States.

"These studies were carried out during the summer of 1968 and 1969, and the results were made available to us," he said. "The satellite data were obtained from the U.S. Department of Commerce and the University of Wisconsin."

The results of the study were based on new data gathered from the new kind of photography. "The satellite data are the only tool we have to study urban problems," the professor said. "The satellite data are the only tool we have to study urban problems."
