University To Charge Protesters

The University will bring charges against students who participated in the Dec. 2 confrontation between the President’s Office and a group of demonstrators, according to University official John Franks. The University, he said, would bring criminal charges against students who participated in the demonstration and would seek civil charges against others.

Franks said the charges would have to be filed by Monday as determined by the Secretary of State, who would preside over the criminal trial.

The University has not yet determined the specific charges it will bring against the students, but Franks said the university would seek a court order to force the demonstrators to move away from the University campus.

The demonstrators were seeking to prevent construction of a permanent tent city on the University campus, but the University has rejected that request.

UNI’s Mauker To Retire in June

Steadfast in his convictions, Dr. William Mauker, president of the University of Northern Iowa, announced his resignation effective June 1.

Mauker said he had come to the decision after a year of prayer and consultation with his family.

He said he had been “deeply troubled by the current political climate” and had decided that his role was no longer to be the voice of the University.

“I have come to the decision that I cannot continue to be the president of the University of Northern Iowa,” Mauker said.

“I have been deeply troubled by the current political climate and have determined that my role is no longer to be the voice of the University,” he said.

Mauker said he had consulted with his family and had come to the decision with their support.

The Boyd Commission

The newly-formed commission appointed to look into the武装部队 was scathingly criticized. The head of the commission, Mr. Boyd, said that the report would be published within the next few weeks.

The commission was set up in response to the recent atrocities committed by the armed forces. Mr. Boyd said that the commission would not be biased, but would act impartially.

The commission has been criticized by some for its lack of a specific mandate. However, Mr. Boyd said that the commission would work to the best of its ability to investigate the allegations.

"It is our duty to get to the bottom of this, and we will do so," Mr. Boyd said.

The commission's mandate is to investigate the allegations of human rights abuses by the armed forces. Mr. Boyd said that the commission will be given full access to all available evidence.

"We cannot allow this to continue," Mr. Boyd said. "We must uncover the truth and bring justice to those who have been victimized."

Seaver Says Future Salaries Will Hit $200,000 Level

NEW YORK — “The day of the $100,000 baseball player is not far off,” the New York Daily News’ Bob Jones said Wednesday, perhaps making the first credible pitch to the management of the New York Mets. “I don’t mean that I think we should get that kind of a salary for every player by next year, but I think the time is not far off when the baseball player will be earning that kind of a salary.”

Jones said the Mets, who signed Seaver to a new contract last month, are asking for an increase of $25,000 a year for the next five years. He said the Mets are asking for a salary of $80,000 a year for the first three years and $95,000 a year for the last two years.

Hawks Face Cincinnati,
Try to End Road Losses

By ARN KREMLIN

It was a moment no one will ever forget in Atlanta when the Hawks took the lead against the Celtics in a playoff game.

The lead lasted only for a moment, however, as the Celtics came back to win 94-90.

On the other hand, the Hawks have been able to win the first game of the series.

The Hawks, who are riding a four-game winning streak, have won their last five games.

In addition to Seaver, the Hawks have had other players who have been able to win the first game of the series.

Bud Grant Is Picked NFL Coach of Year

NEW YORK — Bud Grant, the strong silent man who is coach and athletic director at the University of Minnesota, has been named Coach of the Year in the National Football League by an anonymous Associated Press poll of newspapermen covering pro football.

The proof, composed of three sports writers, includes the selection of Bud Grant for Coach of the Year. Grant's coach, the University of Minnesota, hired him to coach football and track and field in 1948, his first year as a full-fledged college coach.

Grant played two years in the National Basketball Association with the Minneapolis Lakers and then signed with the Philadelphia Eagles in 1942.

After one season as a defensive end and halfback, he was transferred to Detroit as an offensive end, and later took all the Minnesota game he played with the Eagles and then took over in head coaching, surviving the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants, and the NFL.

Following last year's West, the big man from the Gray City of the West, in 1954, was to have played for North Van Buren.

The Vikings were 8-3-1 in that first year while Grant was getting acquainted with his club and this season won 8-6 last year, winning the Central Division title. The Vikings lost the NFL title game to Baltimore, 26-14.

Before the 1960 season started, Grant was asked for his verdict on the year.

"The Vikings are still in the outside of the pack," he said, "but we have no wish to be in the lower half of the division."

In a recent interview, Grant said, "I'm not taking about winning games."

Grant Gets Pro Coaching Honor—

Sporting a cap full of neat and intricate wigs, Minnesota Village Coach Bud Grant bows the field Sunday after the Vikings beat the San Francisco 49ers. Grant was named NFL Coach of the Year Wednesday.

A compulsory program for the treatment of the "potentially unnatural" behavior of a group of animals is reported in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The report, which follows a study by researchers at the University of California, Los Angeles, suggests that chronic stress and isolation can lead to abnormal behavior in certain species.

The study was conducted on a group of monkeys that had been isolated from other monkeys for long periods of time. The monkeys showed signs of aggression and self-harm, which were not present in monkeys that were not isolated.

The researchers propose that isolating animals for long periods of time can lead to behaviors that are not natural for that species. They suggest that much more research is needed before any conclusions can be drawn.

Hanoi Leaders Say Time On Our Side
High Morale Claimed

by ROBERT J. BARNETT

WASHINGTON—The Vietnamese leaders are confident that the current military stalemate will end in their favor. The Vietnamese Front, under the leadership of the National Liberation Front (NLF), has been conducting a series of military operations against the South Vietnamese and United States forces in the last few weeks. These operations have been part of the broader war strategy to weaken the resolve of the U.S. and its allies. The Vietnamese leaders believe that the U.S. will eventually be forced to withdraw its forces from Vietnam.

"Our confidence is based on the fact that we have the support of the people of Vietnam and the international community," said a Vietnamese official. "We are determined to continue our struggle until victory is achieved.

The Vietnamese government has also been engaging in diplomatic efforts to isolate the U.S. from its allies. The Vietnamese leaders have been attempting to convince other nations to withdraw their support for the U.S. in Vietnam. The Vietnamese government has also been calling for a peace conference to be held in Paris. The Vietnamese leaders believe that such a conference would bring about a rapid end to the war.
